Unpopular Dancer Can Learn at Home

Diagram Explains Tango Steps

Lots of men do that who aren't sure of their steps or how to lead. Are you? You could learn the steps from diagrams.

Our 32-page booklet has complete dance instructions for men and women and gives footprint diagrams for the smartest steps—in the tango, rumba, Conga, waltz, fox-trot, Westchester, Lindy, Samba, Peabody, shag.

For your copy of "How to Do the Newest Dance Steps and Variations" send 15c in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner, Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SLEDGE BEATS RAPIER

MOST FINE bidding bears the same relationship to ordinary bidding that a rapier does to a sledge hammer. Ordinarily the neatly tuned-up calling of the expert produces an accuracy, in choice of declaration and height of it, that makes the effort of the slam-banger crude by comparison. But there are times when the brute force kind of wild gamble, by some so-called "natural" player, will produce a profit. Those rare occasions make such bunglers think their methods are great, for they very conveniently forget the countless times when more skilled performers out-score them.

North: ♠ 4 3 2 ♥ 7 6 4 2 ♦ 7 3 ♣ 9 8 7 6

West: ♠ Q 10 ♥ K Q J ♦ 10 8 5 ♣ A 10 4 3 2

East: ♠ A J 8 7 ♥ 10 9 ♦ A K Q 9 4 2 ♣ K

South: ♠ K 9 6 5 ♥ A 8 5 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ Q J 5

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

Having learned about his partner's carefully revealed six-card diamond suit and his four spades, also about his general power, through first the jump in diamonds and second his reverse bid of spades at the level of four, West, at Table 1, was ready for a grand slam try if his partner held all three missing aces. If East had responded to the Blackwood with 5-Spades to show all the aces, West would have asked about kings with 5-No Trumps; if East disclosed only two, West would have signed off at 6-No Trumps; if three, he would have bid 7-No Trumps. But, when East showed only two of the missing three aces, West was satisfied with an immediate small slam bid.

Unfortunately for him, North was the leader and chose a spade. That made it impossible for him to take more than 11 tricks, as you can easily see.

At Table 2, where East gambled on 3-No Trumps, with no heart protection except his own deduction that West "might have hearts stopped," an unbid small slam was made after South led the spade 5 to the 10. The club K was scored, a heart led, and South could only take the A of that suit, East getting all the rest, no matter what South then did.

Your Week-End Lesson

Do you understand the principle on which a "match-point" game among a lot of teams-of-four is based? Do you know how the scoring decides which team wins the match point on any particular hand? And do you know which is better for your team between two sets of developments? One of them is to have the fine results by your pair and the fine ones by your team-mates come on the same deals, with your good and ordinary hands mixed up a bit. The other is to have your poor hands and your team-mates' poor hands come on the same deals, with your good and ordinary ones in assorted fashion.

Rationing Action

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he hoped by Monday to put into effect practically all the recommendations of a special committee which studied the vital rubber problem, and recommended nationwide gasoline rationing.

The President indicated at a press conference that it might take some time, however, to put into effect this rationing recommendation. He said it would take time to set up the machinery.

U.S. War Effort Backboned By British Aid

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, Sept. 12 (CP).—Britain has much for which to thank the United States, but the American war effort itself has benefited greatly from British material aid and experience.

In September, 1940, Britain gave the United States, in exchange for 50 over-age destroyers, the right to establish defence outposts and naval bases on Britain's island possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

A year later production of three Canadian shell-making factories, working exclusively for Britain, was diverted to the United States.

Britain supplied equipment for the largest gun factory in the U.S.A. free of charge, sent America machine-tools, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and Rolls Royce engines, and supplied her with her newest inventions such as radiolocators and astrographs.

Much Dope on the Enemy

Britain, too, has supplied the United States with much valuable military and technical information on such matters as German tanks, anti-submarine equipment, magnetic mines, special explosives and aviation medicine. The basic design for the American "Liberty" ship came from Britain.

This nation gave an impetus to American shipbuilding, notably through the Henry Kaiser associates. British cash contracts earlier in the war were a deciding factor in creation of new American plant capacity and experience in war industry. Since September, 1939, the British government has placed nearly $3,260,000,000 in cash contracts with American industry.

In addition Britain has spent some $200,000,000 directly in capital assistance to American corporations making munitions and before the attack on Pearl Harbor and lease-lend, poured about $1,500,000,000 into the American aircraft industry.

British fighter planes and escort vessels have been helping the Americans in their fight against U-boats and the Royal Navy helps protect the United States as well.

A second column pushed eastward toward Antsirabe from the beachhead at Morondava. A third moved southward from Diego Suarez toward Ambanja (apparently to supplement the newly-landed British detachments in that area).

The French also told of a fourth major approach to the west coast with the arrival of British warships off Tuear, southernmost of the big ports of the Mozamique Channel.

taining carriers with battleships, heavy and light cruisers and destroyers, and the other centring on a small carrier escorted by one heavy cruiser and two destroyers. In addition there were several other groups of transports under warship protection.

Four Hard Attacks

In the battle, United States aircraft made four separate attacks. The largest was by carrier planes on a Japanese carrier. The carrier planes also attacked two other Japanese warship forces while Navy and Marine dive-bombers from Guadalcanal battered the separate group of Japanese warships and transports this morning.

The battle started with an attack on Guadalcanal airfield early yesterday afternoon by Japanese carrier planes and land-based heavy bombers from Rabaul and Bougainville.

(Rabaul is on New Britain Island and Bougainville is in the Upper Solomons, both north-west of Guadalcanal.)

A handful of Marine Corps pilots and Army pilots soared to meet them, and in quick, slashing fighting shot down 11 Zeros and 10 twin-engined bombers. Three American pilots were missing in this action, of whom one was known to have been killed.

Marine ground installations escaped damage.

Meanwhile, the weather, which had been stormy over the entire area for two previous days, had cleared, and American and Japanese airylanes sighted the respective forces about noon yesterday.

Scouts located three enemy carriers and the attack group consisting of dive-bombers and torpedo planes found the small Japanese carrier at 4:10 p.m. escorted by two destroyers and one heavy cruiser. Bombs stopped the carrier nearly dead in the water.

Torpedo planes got one hit amidship on the heavy cruiser, and another torpedo which missed the carrier hit an escorting destroyer.

One dive-bomber shot down a Japanese torpedo plane which had just taken off from the carrier deck. The attack group escaped with minor damage to one plane. It was hit by a small group of Zeros circling the carrier.

Greatest of Air Battles

Meanwhile the American force was expecting an attack momentarily. It came and developed into the greatest air battle of the Pacific war as fighter planes ripped into enemy dive bombers and escort Zeros. I watched the attack and the air battle from the bridge.

Japanese planes dropped all around in great flaming streaks of smoke. Of an estimated 70 planes in the Japanese attack group, only 10 got through to drop their bombs.

The Japanese had planned a coordinated dive-bomber and torpedo-plane attack, but the torpedo planes never reached their objectives. Fighters intercepted 15 of them 40 miles from American ships and quickly shot down eight, one after another. The remaining seven fled.

Just before the enemy dive-bombers reached us another small attack group took off from our carrier. They encountered a strong enemy force of one Mutsu-class battleship, four heavy cruisers, six light cruisers and six destroyers.

United States planes attacked. One bomb hit the battleship just aft of the smoke-stack while one torpedo hit a heavy cruiser. One of our torpedo planes was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

Shortly after this attack, just before dark, two scout bombers located a Japanese carrier and dropped two bombs which fell within 10 to 20 feet of it and caused some damage, although probably not extensive. Later in the evening, long-ranging army planes attacked the Japanese carrier and scored four near misses.

At dusk, the enemy carriers and accompanying warships retreated northward, and this morning they couldn't be located.

One or possibly two small Japanese ships sneaked into the Guadalcanal coast yesterday evening and attempted to land a handful of troops from small boats. The Marines dive-bombed one enemy destroyer, while planes strafed the landing boats repeatedly. The Marines reported that as far as they were able to observe, not a single Japanese soldier reached the shore.

During the night, one group of Japanese ships kept coming south. Marine and navy dive-bombers from Guadalcanal attacked them this morning northward of Florida Island. One transport and one heavy cruiser were hit by bombs and set afire. When seen later, both ships were stopped dead in the water. The other vessels fled northward.

This morning, a scout bomber attacked two enemy submarines found on the surface.

This afternoon, Japanese planes attacked Guadalcanal from an altitude of 27,000 feet in a hit-run raid, but there was no damage.

NAZI LIQUIDATION

LONDON—(CP). — Germans in occupied Poland are liquidating all Jewish artisan enterprise, and complete liquidation is expected before the end of 1942, the Polish Telegraph Agency reports.

LAKEFIELD

Three Monsters In Week From Katchewanooka

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 12.—(ENS).—Lake Katchewanooka turned out its share of the Kawartha chain's big muskies this week with George Jackman of the village landing a 24 pounder Friday night to make two over twenty pounds and a third over the thirty mark landed by different men in the last five days.

Mr. Jackman trolling at the head of Third Island, tied on to the big lad shortly before dusk. Hitting a jointed creek chub pikie the whopper tested his steel pole for a twenty minute battle before being hoisted into the boat for a Jackman score of a round dozen for the summer. His first of the season tipped the scales at 18½ pounds and the rest were all nice fish.

This last prize, Mr. Jackman's biggest yet, measured 47 inches from tip of snout to V of tail and the weight was verified on Charlie Hunter's creamery scales.

Possibly topping the summer's honors in the district was the monster the veteran A. V. (Tiny) Hill hauled in Monday. Measuring 48 inches the muskie hung out over both sides of the canoe after Tiny had used the medicine stick on it. The fish took a single Buffalo spoon No. 10 about 2.30 in the afternoon in the channel just off Hill's Island and put up a fifteen battle that gave the fisher all he could handle.

"It was the biggest muskie I've caught in the last four years," said Mr. Hill, "and after catching muskies for many a year I'd say it topped the thirty mark, possibly thirty-two or three. My store scales wouldn't handle it."

"It was an exceptionally deep fish that with its 48 inches would shove it over 30 pounds without too much exaggeration."

Two experts who can testify to the size are Fred Marshall and Bob Cotton. This beauty, along with Russ Wildman's 24 pounder of Sunday, make as nice a trio as any water can yield.

Besides George Jackman a few of the boys who have run their catches around the dozen tally in the lake are Carm and Frank Payne, Ed Evans and Russ Wildman.

Snow Falling

The battle to wipe out the Axis bridgeheads in the Terek River valley of the Central Caucasus was maintained and the Soviet Information Bureau said 2,000 Germans were killed and 90 tanks burned in the last five days of that action.

Red Army troops probing at Nazi nerve centres on the central front were declared to have annihilated more than 500 enemy officers and men and captured several strong points.

"The enemy, trying to regain his positions, counter-attacked," the communique said, "but was repelled with heavy losses, 26 enemy tanks being destroyed in the course of one engagement."

"In one sector of the central (Moscow) front, fighting continued on the outskirts of a large inhabited locality."

"Southeast of this locality the Germans, one and one-half regiments strong and supported by tanks, counter-attacked."

"The Soviet troops withstood the attack and, in a long engagement, destroyed 49 enemy tanks. The Germans suffered heavy losses."

Snow Slows Tempo

The late summer snowfall in the Caucasus mountains was reported to have complicated fighting between Russian mountain detachments and Axis Alpinists, mantling the slopes south of the perpetually ice-capped peaks. Cold rains fell earlier this week in the lower Volga regions.

Field dispatches said the Russian army of the Central Caucasus had destroyed all bridges across a river in the Mozdok region (apparently the Terek) and was closing an iron ring around German forces crowded back to the south bank.

The invaders succeeded in making another crossing of the stream and launched a flanking blow against the Russians, but it failed, the dispatches said.

The army newspaper Red Star indicated the German losses before Stalingrad were among the war's largest, with the assault troops at times "walking knee-deep in blood."

Field Marshal Von Bock was declared to have expended 1,500 men and 30 tanks in a series of seven vain assaults upon a Russian-held settlement west of the city. At one time, the newspaper said, 300 Nazi bombers cruised over the Russian positions, bolstering an artillery barrage with their bombs.

Warns Petain

Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies of the French republic, who, with Jules Jeanneney, president of the French Senate, has signed a letter, written in the name of the French parliament, accusing Marshal Philippe Petain of assuming an unlimited dictatorship and warning him not to try to draw France into war against "our Allies." The letter indicates that France is facing its greatest crisis since its fall in June, 1940.

Fire Damages Store

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., Sept. 12.—(ENS).—A fire at the rear of the Kingsway store on Front street, did only slight damage shortly before noon on Friday. Originating in a wall at the rear of the building firemen had some difficulty in locating the source of the blaze, but after they pried off a part of the cornice and poured chemicals into the opening the fire was extinguished. Damage will amount to less than $35.00, according to Fire Chief C. B. Williams. The alarm was sounded by the store's owner, William Brady, who noticed the smoke inside the building, but the actual cause of the blaze is not known.

GORE'S LANDING

WMS Hears Fine Leaders' School Report

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 15. — (ENS). — Mrs. George Harris was hostess to the W.M.S. for the September meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Though the weather was most unfavorable for the meeting, there was an attendance of 15.

Mrs. Joe Harris opened the program with the theme of the year, "The Church is My Community," meaning the rural church, followed by the daily prayer from the prayer card. Roll call was responded to by scripture quotations.

The next meeting will be the autumn thankoffering and will be held at the home of Mrs. M. F. Ames. It is requested that each member will make a special effort to be present.

Misses Audrey McKinlay and Berenice Linton were present from Plainville, and as they attended the school for leaders held at Whitby last week, gave their report to the W.M.S. There were 150 registered at the school and worship service was conducted in the chapel each morning by Mrs. Smythe, dean of the school. There were several discussion groups from which one could choose to study. Miss Stella Cheng of China spoke at her out-of-door class on her experiences in school in China. Dr. Harvey Forster, author of this year's study book, introduced and spoke on the subject each afternoon. Mrs. R. S. Langley, also of China, who returned last year, told of how, at times, one would be 44 hours in air raid shelters without food. Some comparison of the high price of food may be gained when rice normally would cost $4.00 per bushel was costing $170.00 when she left. Eggs were $1.00 each.

Mrs. George Harris was program convener, and after the singing of two hymns, Mrs. MacDonald read the scripture lesson. Mrs. Hastings by use of a chart introduced the study book. Mrs. Neill and Mrs. George Harris gave readings. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

Marmora Sale Sees Good Prices

MARMORA, Sept. 12—(ENS)—The auction sale of farm stock and implements of Tom Paranuik, who is vacating the farm east of Marmora on No. 7 highway where he has resided for a number of years, drew a large crowd on Friday afternoon and good prices were obtained for everything.

Cows averaged $85 and a sucking colt realized $49.50. A demand for poultry resulted in $1.05 being obtained for young pullets and 88 cents for old hens. F. S. Johnston was the auctioneer.

Must Strip Civilian Economy To Bone If Allies To Turn Tide

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(CP).—President Roosevelt told Congress to-day the United States is producing only a little more than 50 per cent. of its maximum possible war production and solemnly warned:

"Not until we have reached the maximum—and we can do this only by stripping our civilian economy to the bone—can our fighting men and those of our Allies be assured of the vastly-greater quantities of weapons required to turn the tide.

"Not until then can the United Nations march forward together to certain victory.

The President's statement was in a letter transmitting the sixth quarterly lend-lease report in which he spoke of Britain as an "offensive base." The report showed such aid to the British commonwealth of nations and 36 other countries during the 18 months since the program began totalled $6,489,000,000, with actual exports amounting to $3,520,000,000. In the same time lend-lease countries purchased $5,800,000,000 worth of goods, including munitions, from the United States.

Lend-lease help now is being provided at the rate of $8,000,000,000 a year, with the maximum aid possible under 15 separate appropriation acts reaching almost $63,000,000,000.

At present, the report said, about 85 per cent. of lend-lease exports are going to the United Kingdom, 35 per cent. to Russia, and 30 per cent. to the Middle East, Australia and other areas.

"Aid to China," it added, "has been limited by the difficulty of transportation, but the development of other means of transportation will relieve this situation."

Express Blasted

CRESTON, Ia., Sept. 14 — (AP). — Twelve explosions rocked the westbound 12-car Burlington Zephyr streamline train 2 1-2 miles east of Nodaway, Ia., early today. Burlington officials said passengers escaped injury and damage to the train was slight. There were about 180 passengers aboard the streamliner, which was travelling approximately 70 miles an hour when the explosions occurred, officials here said. Nine cars suffered damage. Air brake equipment on three cars was damaged, and the rest suffered damage to undercarriages.

British Troops Now 100 Miles Off Tananarive

LONDON, Sept. 14 (CP)—British spokesmen announced today the capture of Maevatanana, 150 miles by road northwest of Tananarive, capital of Madagascar, and information reaching some military quarters here indicated that advance forces had pushed on to within 100 miles of the capital.

By this account British forces had covered fully half the distance to the capital—230 miles air from the northwest Madagascar port of Majunga, one of three landings which they made last Thursday in an effort to prevent use of the French Island by the Axis.

Week-end reports placing British troops 70 miles or less from Tananarive were unsubstantiated.

A communication said the forces pushing into Madagascar from three directions were making good progress, and that besides capturing Maevatanana, advance detachments were moving on across the mountains to the southeast toward Andriba, about 125 miles north of the capital on another road.

The Allied forces which landed farther south at Morondava were reported meeting "little or no opposition" on the advance inland. From Ambanja, on the northwest coast, another column was reported "making good progress" southward.

The force advancing from Majunga encountered resistance from Vichy forces at bridge over the River Betsiboka, but this was overcome Saturday.

The defending forces had dropped the middle span of the suspension bridge into the river to hold up the British forces.

Capital May Be Tough Nut

The most serious fighting possibly still is ahead for the 4,000-foot plateau on which Tananarive is located is said to be the best-defended area of Vichy-controlled Madagascar. It is approached by steep, winding roads.

The second column was coming up from the southwest of Tananarive after landing at Morondava, on the west coast more than 350 miles airline south of Majunga.

Sunday's communique said it was proceeding satisfactorily toward

Sales Brighten Hopes Of Beef

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—(CP)—An improvement in cattle marketings at Toronto, one of the areas most severely hit by the beef shortage, was reported to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Foods Administration branch today.

Although Agriculture Minister Gardiner has advised Canadians to keep down their beef purchases during the next few months so that heavier animals will be marketed next year, officials said they did not expect a ban on the marketing of calves would be imposed.

The tendency has been for stock raisers to hold calves for marketing in the spring when higher prices may be paid under the beef price ceiling regulations of the Prices Board. A ban on the sale of calves

King To Act Curbing Liquor Sale

Before Cabinet Now Statement Soon United Church Told

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told a delegation from the General Council of the United church in Ottawa Saturday that a committee of the Federal Cabinet was studying ways "in which effective action could be taken" to curtail liquor consumption in Canada. It was announced here today.

The delegation from the council—now in session here—reported that the Prime Minister told them he accepted their argument for curtailment of liquor as "clear and convincing" and that he would soon make an appeal for temperance in the Dominion in a National radio address.

The delegation's report will be submitted at the afternoon session of the council today but was made public this morning.

Recognizes Seriousness

Mr. King was quoted in the report as having told the delegation that he "fully recognized the seriousness and urgency of the situation" but that prolonged negotiations with the provinces over financial arrangements had made action by the Dominion government "difficult." However restrictions the government had been forced to make along so many other lines "had opened the way now for action with regard to the liquor problem."

The report added that Rev. John Coburn, secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United church, told the Prime Minister that the delegation would have to report the result of the interview to the general council and added: "Do we understand that we are at liberty to say that the government of Canada expects in the near future to take definite action restricting liquor consumption?"

The Prime Minister was quoted in reply: "You may. Before very long I expect the government will have a public statement on the matter to make."

Mr. Coburn was the chief speaker for the delegation in its interview with the Prime Minister while further argument was presented by Rev. Andrew Roddan of Vancouver, Rev. H. S. B. Strothard of Lunenburg, N.S., S. J. A. Brandon of Prince Albert, Sask., and C. W. Taylor of Toronto, president of the Lay advisory council of the United church.

Finishing Tanks

READING, Pa., Sept. 14—(AP)—A United States army officer, Lt.-Col. John H. Snyder, who escorted Wendell Willkie to Egypt said today British forces are knocking out Gen. Erwin Rommel's tanks by placing dynamite under them.

"Light motorized forces sweep out and plant charges under tanks that might have been only temporarily disabled by bombs and shell fire," said Col. Snyder, chief of the intelligence section of the air transport command.

Canuck Bombers Bremen Fires Visible 100 Miles

LONDON, Sept. 14 — (CP Cable)—Canadian fliers participating in last night's attack on Bremen reported on their return that visibility was fairly good and crews were able to pick out the River Weser through a slight haze. Occasional breaks in the light clouds over the target permitted them glimpses of the city.

Three Canadian bomber squadrons took part.

"I saw three big fires and several smaller ones," said Sergt. Arthur Greene of Bear River, N.S., who flew with Sgt. John Probert of Montreal, Sgt. Jack Kitchen of Fredericton, N.B. Sgt. A. B. Carter of Orillia, Ont., and Sgt. Ben Copeland of Moose Jaw, Sask.

"There was plenty of light flak and a lot of searchlights but we were not bothered by them much." said Probert who wound up his bomb doors by hand when the hydraulic system failed.

Six Merging Into One.

Air-Bomber Sgt. E. J. Nickerson of Moncton, N.B., reported six big blazes seemingly joining together in the target area. Others from this Halifax bomber squadron included Sgt. Les Rogers, Toronto; PO. Cecil Anderson, Toronto; Sgt. W. J. Farrer, Newcastle, N.B., and PO. R. W. Griffiths of Toronto.

PO. Bill College of Vancouver, said the target was well alight when he and Sgt. John Karleff of Toronto, Sgt. A. Taylor of Vancouver and Flt. Sgt. Joe Steward of Calgary, got there.

Huns Rush Reserves To Break Caucasus Deadlock

MOSCOW, Sept. 14. — (AP.)—Fresh hordes of Nazi troops smashed to-day at the approaches to Stalingrad in an obvious all-out effort to storm the city whatever the cost in blood, but the Russians said that after yielding precious ground the Red Army halted and pushed back a new peneration southwest of the city.

But to the west and southwest the Germans were pouring tanks and armoured cars and new reserves into the bloody struggle, but the mid-day communique indicated the Russians were holding.

Earlier the Russians reported the capture by the Germans of an unidentfied "populated place" southwest of Stalingrad. From all reports the beleaguered city was at hand.

(The German high command claimed Sunday that German troops were fighting in the southern streets of Stalingrad and that siege lines about the city had been tightened).

A Soviet tank detachment was credited with halting the German penetration of the Russian positions southwest of the lower Volga city. After the Germans had broken through, the Russian tanks moved into the battle, knocked out five German tanks and 11 armored cars and supported the infantry in restoring the Soviet position, the Soviet information bureau said.

Much Hand-To-Hand Fighting.

The Red army was fighting hand-to-hand over a broad area west and southwest of Stalingrad, Pravda said in a front dispatch.

German air units which went up to bomb the Russians were forced to turn back without carrying out their mission when it became obvious that bombing of the massive close-quarter struggle below would destroy Germans as well as Russians, it was reported.

Pravda said the present battles were as bloody as any so far experienced.

A bitter fight apparently has developed in the Sinyavino area east of Leningrad where the Russians seem to be trying to ease the position of Leningrad in preparation for the second winter of siege.

Nazi Victory Slogan Toned By Labor Chief Ley To "Germany Is Determined Not To Yield"

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—(AP).—The BBC said today that Dr. Robert Ley, German labor leader, has changed the tune of the Nazi slogan from "the certainty of victory" to "determination not to capitulate." Ley in a Nuremberg speech omitted the previous oft-repeated reference to certain German victory, saying instead: "The German nation has entered the fourth year firmer and harder, and determined not to capitulate."

"Germany has erected formidable economic defences but we are approaching the point when we are breaking through," Mackintosh Dingle Foot, Minister of Economic Warfare, said today in Birmingham. He said Germany is preparing now for both a winter and spring campaign. "The whole of Europe is being ransacked for skins and furs, while oilstoves are being bought up or requisitioned," he said. "For spring, even valuable machinery and machine tools temporarily not in use are being collected and used as scrap."

Huns Racing Fortified Winter Line To Shelter Badly Mauled Troops

LONDON, Sept. 14—(CP).—The Germans were reported today to be making intense preparations for a strongly-fortified winter line in Russia even while the terrific frontal assault on Stalingrad is going on. Behind this line, apparently, Hitler hopes to regroup, rest and re-equip his badly mauled forces.

First disclosure of Hitler's winter plans, which he promised in his Reichstag address last April, was the Axis announcement of the appointment of Generals Franz Halder, Jacob and Wietersheim to establish an impregnable line and clothe Axis troops against the ravages of the Russian winter.

In London it was believed that these preparations were the imperative result of heavy casualties and material losses in Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's frontal attack on Stalingrad which the Nazi command earlier had hoped to avoid by its more familiar swift flanking movements.

The decision to sacrifice valuable shock troops before Stalingrad, London military quarters said, had been forced upon the Nazis by the Red army's retention of a Don bridgehead in the Kletskaya area which had robbed Von Bock of freedom of movement.

The three generals reported chosen to prepare for the Nazi winter campaign in Russia are considered Hitler's top men for just such a job.

Halder, considered one of the ablest generals in Germany, will direct military requirements, according to word reaching London.

EXTRA!

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—(CP— Naval Headquarters to-day annunced loss of the Canadian patrol vessel Raccoon with 38 officers and men, and the sinking of four United Nations' merchant ships on the east coast. The Navy statement said the Raccoon "had been presumed lost through enemy action while guarding a convoy and that all hands were lost with her."

No Labor Tieups Demands Mosher

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 —(CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, in an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Congress to-day called on labor to centre its entire efforts on essential war production and avoid disputes or other action which might hamper Canada's output of war materials.

"We must not endanger the war effort, no matter how great the provocation may be to do so, by strikes or slowdowns in war industry," he said.

"Even though this may entail the acceptance of hardships, the endurance of unfair treatment in many instances, and the temporary abandonment of rights which have been won only by long and bitter struggle, I believe that this is the policy which the workers organized in the chartered and affiliated unions of the Congress ought to follow for the duration."

Failure of the government to the present to take advantage of offers of co-operation made by organized labor and its proposals for increasing war production did not justify any conduct on the part of labor which might lessen the chances of victory.

"There are many matters upon which we do not see eye to eye with the government and we are not here to protect it from criticism or to justify many things it has done," Mr. Mosher said. "But itis our government, democratically elected and holding office by the will of the people of Canada, and it is carrying on our war effort for the benefit of the whole nation and for the sake of all we hold more precious than life itself."

MOSCOW, Sept. 14—(AP). —The Rumanian oil field centre of Ploesti was left in flames as a result of a bombing attack last night by Russian planes, the Moscow radio reported today.

Bucharest, capital of Rumania, and Koenisberg in East Prussia also were said to have been Red air raiders' targets.

Thirty-three fires, accompanied by heavy explosions, broke out in Bucharest, the announcement said. Fiv blasts were observe in the vicinity of a military barracks, arsenal and the Rumanian War Ministry. Bulgarian towns were also bombed.

Twin Coup to Nazi Flanks

LONDON, Sept. 14—(CP).—British, Canadian and Russian bombers, delivering a new twin blow to the flanks of the Axis 1,000 miles apart, smashed at the northwest German port of Bremen last night in an R.A.F.—R.C.A.F. attack probably hundreds of planes strong, and raided Bucharest and the Poesti oil region of Rumania from bases deep in Russia.

Lone-flying British bombers were back over northwestern Germany again at down in follow-up attacks, the Air Ministry reported, announcing a total loss of 19 British bombers.

The Air Ministry said the 100th attack of the war on Bremen was delivered by a "very strong force," a phrase which was taken here to indicate that bombers by the hundreds were used. Three R.C.A.F. squadrons participated.

An authoritative British statement said:

"Last night a very strong force of our bombers went to northwest Germany.

"Bremen, their main objective, was heavily bombed.

"Nineteen bombers are missing."

It was the first R.A.F. attack on Germany since last Thursday night,

Tobruk Assault Fails Says Rome

ROME, (From Italian Broadcasts), Sept. 14 (AP)—The Italian High Command claimed today that seaborne British troops, supported by parachutists, attempted a landing last night to pinch off the vital Axis supply port of Tobruk, some 300 miles west of the Egyptian battlefront, but were beaten off by the German-Italian garrison.

The alleged landing attempt, in which a force of British cruisers and destroyers participated, was preceded by a violent attack by a large number of planes, a communique said.

Two warships were reported hit by shellfire and one of the vessels was claimed to have sunk later.

(The Berlin radio carried a similar claim, but there was no confirmation of the reports from any Allied source, the British commun-

R.A.F. Forcing Hitler's Hand In The Air

Nazi Sub-Strato Bombers At 40,000 Feet Seen First Real Answer To Challenge

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

Disclosure that the Nazis have developed new planes, including a sub-stratosphere bomber capable of operating from a heigh of 40,000 feet, lends substance to Berlin's threat last week that Germany is preparing to launch a new air offensive over Britain.

There's no reason to doubt that this threat accurately describes one of the Fuehrer's objectives and that he is getting set for the assault. To my mind, however, that doesn't tell the whole story, for the indications are that we also may expect a terrific dog-fight for supremacy of the air over Western Europe.

The steadily increasing British strength has put the Nazi chief on the spot—and a nasty one it is. The Allies already hold superiority (though not "supremacy") in the air, and he must answer this challenge to domination—for two reasons.

1 His vital industrial centres are being devastated systematically by bombing on a big scale. Moreover, his rail transport is being cut to pieces. That's a bad combination—loss of essential manufactures and lack of transportation facilities for the supplies still available.

2. If Hitler is to protect himself against a land invasion of Western Europe, he must control the air, just as the Allies must control it if they are to put an expeditionary army ashore. He certainly doesn't dominate it now.

For long weeks now Hitler has stood by in apparent meekness and seen his resources diminish in the deluge of Allied bombs; he has seen some of his proudest cities all but wiped out. Only last night a strong force of British bombers was over the great port of Bremen again, while Russian planes were strafing Eastern Germany. But his meekness has been seeming and not real, for there's nothing meek about this man who would be emperor of all mankind.

The cold fact is that Hitler has had to use virtually every available warplane in his efforts to subdue the volcanic Reds. A high Allied source recently told me of a certainty that the Nazis are short of planes, short of gasoline and oil, and very short of pilots. Additional proof of this is seen in the fact that Field-Marshal Rommel wasn't able to get the air support he needed for his new drive against Egypt although that operation is an essential part of the Nazi pincers movement against the Middle East.

However, aproaching winter will see a slackening of the fighting in the Caucasus, and Hitler will be able to release planes for operations elsewhere. He also will have recently manufactured machines ready for action.

Renfrew Magnesium Reality

Fills Big Bill For Planes, Shells, Night Bombs

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP) — The Munitions and Supply Department disclosed today that the new government-owned plant of Dominion Magnesium Co. near Renfrew, Ont., a $5,000,000 project, now is in operation and "Canadian-made Magnesium is available for the first time."

The metal, in heavy demand for making aluminum alloys used in aircraft construction, formerly came entirely from the United States.

The announcement production has begun at Renfrew followed a visit to the plant by Munitions Minister Howe, Metals Controller G. C. Bateman and C. A. Banks, Canadian representative of the Munitions Department in England.

Canada's entry into the field of magnesium production is based on discovery of a new extraction method applied to Dolomite deposits at Haley's Corners near Renfrew.

The problem of supply became more acute with increased wartime demand for aluminum alloys and with heavier needs for magnesium in the manufacture of flares, shell fittings, night bombs and pyrotechnics.

Berlin Boast—Routed 7 Men

Say All Killed Or Captured, Near Cherbourg

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), Sept. 14—(AP).—The German high command said today that a British detachment of seven men attempted to land on the French coast east of Cherbourg Saturday night, but claimed their boat was sunk by shellfire and all were killed or captured.

A communique reporting the incident said:—

"During the night of September 12 a British platoon consisting of five officers, one sergeant-major and one private attempted to land east of Cherbourg.

"Before they reached shore they were discovered, shelled and their boat was sunk by a direct hit.

"Three British officers and one De Gaullist (Fighting French) naval officer were taken prisoner, and the bodies of a major, a sergeant-major and one private were recovered."

London said German commentators have pictured actions such as the seven-man landing attempt on the French coast, reported today by the Berlin high command, as almost nightly occurrences along the shores of the occupied continent. It is likely that today communique covered the Saturday night incident only because of the claim that the landing was frustrated.

FRENCH EMPLOYERS ARE ORDERED TO SURRENDER WORKMEN

Vichy Orders Labor Draft For Hun

Notifies Employers To Assemble Crews For Work Anywhere

VICHY, Sept. 14 — (AP). — French employers were ordered to stand by to-day to assemble crews of workmen— apparently for shipment to Germany—under a sweeping new compulsory labor law which the Vichy government intimated it had decreed to avert the possibility of even more stringent action by the Germans.

Subject to the law are all able-bodied Frenchmen between the ages of 18 and 50 and unmarried women between 21 and 35. Persons in these categories unable to prove they are engaged in work "useful to the country's needs" may be drafted "to effect all labors which the government will judge useful in the higher interests of the nation."

The law, effective with its publication this morning, also provides total state control of employment and working conditions giving the government power to fix salaries and working hours. Untrained persons may be compelled to attend vocational schools which employers are obliged to set up.

A semi-official statement said the measure was dictated by "hard necessities, both national and international," and that labor would be called upon to make many sacrifices but it recalled that "even more serious measures have been taken in other countries of very recent date."

"The present law," it said, "will permit us to prevent their being extended to us."

(This may have been a reference to the action taken by the Germans last week in instituting conscription of manpower in the conquered Duchy of Luxembourg.)

There is no limitation on where persons drafted for labor under the law may be sent although full details on how it would be applied were not published at once. Still

Pass Resolution Of Condolence

Copies of the following resolution of condolence, passed by the council last week, are being sent to the brothers and sisters of the late Bishop Denis O'Connor and to the authorities of the diocese of Peterborough:

Moved by Ald. Glover, seconded by Ald. Sands: "That in the death of His Excellency Denis O'Connor, Bishop of the Diocese of Peterborough, the Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough recognides the great loss suffered by the people of the city and district about Peterborough, since Bishop O'Connor was held in high esteem by all members of the community, who respected his kindly and sympathetic nature and his untiring devotion to the duties of his important office."

The brothers of Bishop O'Connor are, John, Martin and Bartholmew of Wawota, Saskatchewan; and the sisters: Mrs. Peter Sweeney of Edmonton, Alberta; Mother Mary Catherine of Loretta Abbey, Toronto and Misses Mary and Catherine O'Connor of Wawota.

One copy is being sent to Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan of this city, recently appointed Administrator of the diocese of Peterborough, and another copy to Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston.

Captured In June

Tobruk, about 75 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, has been in Axis hands since June and is an important supply port for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies in Egypt.

The Italian communique said:—

"Last night the enemy, after a prolonged air attack carried out by a large number of planes, attempted with the support of parachute troops to effect a landing from light naval units in the Tobruk area.

CONSTIPATED? CORRECT IT!

This Easy Way Eliminates Harsh "Dosing"

LONDON, Canada: When you treat constipation with harsh cathartics it's only temporary relief. Your constipation may be caused by lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps supply "bulk" needed for regularity.

ALL-BRAN is so good, with cream, milk, fruit juices, or in hot muffins. Eat ALL-BRAN every day and drink plenty of water. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives; it takes time. In two convenient sizes at your grocer's. Or in individual serving packages at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

W. P. Eastwood Named O.C. Of Air Cadets

Rotarian W. P. Eastwood, flying veteran of the First Great War, will be the commanding officer of the Peterborough branch of the Air Cadet League of Canada, it was announced by Rotarian Wes. Brown at Monday's meeting of the Rotary club. The branch here is sponsored by the Rotarians.

The other officers announced are:

Medical Officer—Rotarian Dr. D. W. Clark.

Adjutant — Rotarian A. Ward Smith.

Disciplinarian—Joseph Dunkerley.

Rotarian Brown stated that enlistment and medical forms are on their way, that quarters have been arranged and the local squadron is all ready to start enrolment upon receipt of the approval of the club's application by the Ottawa headquarters.

The speaker at Monday's luncheon was Edward J. Beattie of the Anaconda American Brass Limited of New Toronto, who entertained the club with a very educative film entitled "Copper Goes to War," in which in picture form was presented the reasons why copper and brass are scarce commodities so far as civilian consumption is concerned.

The film show the manifold uses of copper and brass in Canada's war effort, demonstrating the fact that copper was essential to every part of the war program and the necessity of producing tremendous quantities. The part played by Anaconda in this production, the various processes followed in the turning out of copper and its alloys, were effectively illustrated by this interesting picture.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Ron. McGrath and a vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian H. Keefer. President Ian F. McRae presided and among the guests was Major James Hamilton

"Immediate intervention of Italian-German defences frustrated the attempt.

"The attempt was supported by six naval units, made up of cruisers and destroyers. Two of the enemy warships which were hit were set afire. One of them later sank."

The communique claimed that German fighter planes destroyed two planes in air combats which accompanied the landing attempt, while Axis anti-aircraft defences shot down four more.

The high command claimed that the Italian hospital ship Arno had been torpedoed and sunk the night of Sept. 9 about 40 miles off Tobruk, although she was "marked with the international sign of the Red Cross and strongly illuminated."

committee of six members of the Federal Cabinet has been forced to study the liquor question in Canada with a view to reducing the annual liquor bill—estimated at $250,000,000 for the present year—it was learned today.

The committee is headed by War Services Minister Thorson and its other members are Resources Minister Crerar, Revenue Minister Gibson, Finance Minister Ilsley, Postmaster-General Mulock and Fisheries Minister Michaud.

The committee has already held some meetings and "is thoroughly canvassing the entire situation," Mr. Thorson said today.

The committee has the same personnel as one which studied the liquor question about a year ago. At that time it dealt with representations made by the Canadian Temperance Federation, asking that beverage rooms be closed, and sales of alcoholic liquor restricted to government liquor stores.

A third force, which went into action in northern Madagascar, was disclosed to have occupied Embanja on Saturday after overcoming slight resistance. No casualties were reported from either side.

A delayed message said British troops took Majunga in a three-hour fight before breakfast the first day of the campaign. The total cost to both sides there was given as between 30 and 40 casualties.

Hitler Rewards Dieppe Frees Captives

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—(AP). — With everything done to remind them of Hitler's "graciousness" in granting freedom, a special train crowded with French war prisoners from Dieppe and its vicinity arrived in Normandy Saturday, a reward to the citizens of that region for behaving themselves during the Canadian-led raid on Dieppe last month.

But with all the ceremony calculated to stress the good-conduct reward angle, the fact remained that the BBC during the raid constantly told the Dieppe people to remain in their homes and take no part in the fighting for fear of reprisals such as were visited on the populace after a Commando raid on St. Nazaire.

Apparently mindful of the Allied warnings, Dieppe residents took no part in the action—and this greatly pleased Hitler, who interpreted it as collaboration with him.

The Berlin radio broadcast that the prisoners, released from German prison camps upon Hitler's special orders, were given an official reception at a station between Rouen and Dieppe.

Those present, said the Berlin radio, were the German field commander of Rouen and his entire staff as well as Minister Schleir from the German Embassy in Paris; Fernard De Brinon, Vichy representative in Paris; George Scapini, a blind French deputy who has been negotiating with Germany for release of war prisoners; Jacques Benoist-Mechin, Secretary of State in the Vichy Foreign Office in charge of the department of French labor in Germany and the Provincial Prefect of Normandy.

Chief of Government Pierre Laval sent a message from Vichy while various speeches were delivered praising French and German collaboration and reminding them that Hitler gave "the order to liberate you."

The Germans already have given the Dieppe folk a reward for their "remarkable discipline and calmness" during the fighting, donating 10,000,000 French francs to the Dieppe prefect to pay for damages and civilian hurts suffered in the Allied attack.

New Gun Shown 50 Members Of 4th Battery

Fifty members of the 4th Field Battery, R.C.A. (Reserve) were given a chance to see the new Reising sub-machine gun in action at the Rifle Ranges in Otonabee on Sunday when the unit marched out to the ranges for rifle, machine gun and sub-machine gun firing practise.

Many of the gunners convinced officers that they were crack shots with rifles as on deliberate fire of five rounds, they smacked the five shots into the heart of the target at 100 yards. Many of the new men, some never having fired a 30.06 rifle before, made a good showing.

An Examiner reporter was privileged to take a part in one firing relay. The first five rounds were deliberate, and each shot was scored. The second relay of firing was five shot for grouping, and here too the reporter had little trouble. On the third relay, Sgt. Major Jack Dobbin and Battery Sgt. Major Charlie Skelding clapped a steel helmet on the reporter, then plunked a respirator on his chest and told him to put the respirator (gas mask) on his face. The reporter followed instructions as the last five rounds had to be fired in forty seconds with respirators on. However, the reporter found it a little different under the respirator. The two obliging soldiers asked the reporter how he was feeling, and when he mumbled O.K. one of them promptly squeezed the respirator hose cutting off the air. The reporter gasped for a few seconds like a fish out of water, then promptly ripped the respirator off his face for some fresh air, and discovered by the grins on the faces of the two culprits that thede he was being initiated.

"Don't breathe through your mouth or you'll fog the lenses" was the admonition from Sgt.-Major Dobbin, and the reporter flopped on the firing mound to wait for the target to appear over the butts.

The first shot hit the target and so did the second, but on the third shot, a spurt of dust ten feet above the target indicated the reporter was away off. He then discovered that he couldn't find the rear sight, and as he fumbled with the gas mask seeking to line things up, the target disappeared. That was certainly not a success but an interesting experience.

The Reising gun, a short stubby weapon somewhat like a Thompson sub-machine gun attracted the soldiers. It hold a clip of shells on the under side, is .45 calibre and pumps lead out at a terrific rate. Several of the men tried firing it. The Lewis gun firing was more effective. One soldiers walked back and forth behind the concrete butts holding a target on a long stick, and the gunners riddled the target. Lt. Fred Green even smacked a bullet through the stick just below the target.

The men had map reading as well as rifle practice, and several tried their driver tests with the two army trucks now assigned to the Battery. Then at noon they ate lunch at the school house, having carried their own, and the Battery supplied hot coffee.

An invitation will be extended all prospective recruits to attend the next outing at the Rifle Ranges which will be held some time this month, and those who know nothing about army training can see the program which is followed.

A DEFINITE HAZARD

Sandwich board type of signs parked on the sidewalk in front of some stores in the city will undoubtedly come under the critical eye of the police force because of reduced street lighting and window lighting. These signs are on the travelled portion of the sidewalk and it is possible that some person may receive a serious injury should they stumble over them.

Obituaries

JOHN JAMES CONLIN

The funeral of John James Conlin, fifteen-year-old son of James Conlin and his wife Agnes Veronica O'Brien was held from the family residence 491 Romaine Street, to the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the church, offered requiem mass, also delivered an eloquent address to the large gathering of friends and relatives who were present to pay tribute to one of the most popular young adherents of the church.

Jack as he was known to everyone, was a favorite with not only the younger folks, but the older people, as he had always taken a keen interest in sports.

A guard of honor stood with bowed heads as their school comrade was carried to and from the church and every class of the Sacred Heart School was in attendance.

The numerous floral and spiritual tokens presented at the home added further tribute to the untimely passing of this young student.

Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery, Rev. J. F. Houlihan conducting the service at the graveside.

Pall-bearers were Leo Hickey Eldon Paquette, Donald Masters, Egbert Duffus, Michael Crowley and Ernest Mills.

Relatives and friends were present from Douro, Cobourg, and other places.

JAMES MURTY

Visiting the home of the late James Murty, friends from far and near expressed their sorrow and esteem, paid their final respects, prayed for the repose of his soul, and sympathized with his dear sister, Mary Anne, who is a sole survivor of their immediate family.

The funeral was held on Thursday morning from his late residence, 380 Brock street, to St. Peter's Cathedral. Solemn High Mass of Requiem was offered by Rev. Gregory Wolff, assisted by Rev. K. Malane and Rev. James Houlihan.

The funeral sermon by Rev. Father Wolff was most consoling to the friends and neighbors of one who was an exemplary citizen, religious, charitable, and successful in business.

The late Mr. Murty was most unassuming and hundreds of both old and young of this community will long remember him by his many acts of kindness and advice.

Among those who attended the funeral from out of the city were two nieces and six nephews all of Buffalo, N.Y., Mrs. Henry Lapp, Mrs. Albert M. Kraus, James, Edward, Michael, John, William C. and Anthony Murty.

The burial services in St. Peter's Cemetery were conducted by Rev. K. Malane assisted by Rev. Victor McFadden of Downeyville.

The casket bearers were Messrs. William Phillip, Fred Overend, Edward Hickey, Ernest Wolff, George Lynch and Samuel Houlihan.

MRS. ARTHUR R. CHURCH.

Friends will be sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Arthur Rolfe Church, 197 MsDonnel street, who has been a resident of this city for thitrty-one years. Her death occurred after a short illness at the age of 67, Sunday.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Swain, she was born in Bedfordshire, England, and her family is widely scattered in different parts of the world. Prior to her death Mrs. Church was a member of George Street United church, but had previously belonged to St. James' United church, where she was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Arthur R. Church, three sons, Cecil of St. Catharines, Stanley with the 16th Field Company, R.C.E. overseas, and Leslie with the R.C.A.F. There is a brother, John Swain, of England, and five sisters, Mrs. E. Coles, Mrs. M. Coles, Mrs. D. Lemmon, all of England, and Mrs. F. Welford of India, and Mrs. T. Townsend, of Melbourne, Australia.

The funeral service will be held, Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Nesbitt Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street, the Rev. H. L. Roberts officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

ELLEN McNICHOLL.

The death occurred Saturday evening of Ellen McNicholl, a life-long resident of Peterborough county, after an extended illness, due to her advanced years.

Born in Belmont, daughter of the late Eugene McNicholl and his wife, Julia Condon, she was the last surviving member of her immediate family, whose parents came as pioneers to this district from Ireland over a century ago. Miss McNicholl was a member of the Third Order of St. Francis, and was possessed of a very devout and quiet nature all her life.

The funeral was held this morning from the parlors of the House of Providence to St. Paul's Church, Norwood, where requiem mass was offered by her nephew, Rev. Alphonsus McNicholl of St. Cecilia's church, Toronto. A large gathering of old neighbors of the Norwood district and relatives were present to assist at the services and pay tribute to one who had been a friend to all. Interment was made in the family plot in St. Paul's Cemetery, Rev. Father McNicholl conducting the services at the graveside, assisted by Rev. C. J. Carroll.

Pall-bearers were Timothy Collins, Victor McNeely, John McLaughlin, Harry O'Carroll, Eugene McLaughlin, and Henry McLaughlin, all nephews of the deceased.

CPL. GEORGE R. EBBS

After a two weeks illness, Cpl. George Robert Ebbs, No. 1 O.T.U., R.C.A.F., Bagotville, Que., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ebbs, 223 Mark street, passed away Sunday in his 22nd year.

Cpl. Ebbs was born in Peterborough and lived here all his life prior to his enlistment with the R.C.A.F. two years ago. He attended the Collegiate here and was a member of St. Luke's church, and his father is a veteran of the last war.

H is survived by his wife, the former Myrtle Deyell, who has been living in Brighton, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ebbs, Peterborough, two sisters, Mrs. Douglas Miller, Peterborough, and Mrs. J. A. Woodburn, Ottawa, and two brothers, Dr. Harry Ebbs, Toronto, and Arthur Ebbs, Peterborough.

The funeral, which is to be private, will take place Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock & Sons, 305 Water street. Interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Alex M. MacLeod Dies Aged 58

One of the best known roofing contractors in Eastern Ontario, Alexander M. MacLeod, 120 Hunter street (Ashburnham), and a familiar figure around Peterborough for 32 years, who has handled many of the city's roofing jobs, died Monday, after an 8-months' illness at the age of 58.

The late Mr. MacLeod was born in Glasgow, Scotland, son of John MacLeod and Margaret MacDonald, new deceased. He came directly to Peterborough from Glasgow and he has always taken great interest in civic affairs. He served on the Welfare Board of the city for many years and was also very active on the Board of the Children's Aid Society. Mr. MacLeod was also a member of the Orange Order and the Peterborough Lodge AF and AM.

He was a faithful member of Bethany Tabernacle and was a trustee of the Board for many years.

The body is resting at the family residence, 120 Hunter street, East. until Wednesday at 11 a.m. The funeral will be from Bethany Tabernacle at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Wm. McArthur and the Rev. George Chambers officiating. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Service Will Call Women For Jobs, Mrs. Eaton Declares

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—(CP).— Interviews with women available for work will followe the registration of women between the ages of 20 and 24 which commences to-day, Mrs. Rex Eaton, Assistant Director of National Selective Service, said in a radio address last night.

Mothers looking after families are considered to be performing a vital war job, and in most instances can make their greatest contribution to the war effort by keeping on with their home duties, Mrs. Eaton said.

"Certainly they will not be considerued available for employment until they want to take it of their own free will," she explained "There are many married women, however, who are prepared and glad to work, and no one who volunteers will have any handicap put in her way."

Following the registration all cards will be carefully examined, and those which show workers ready and trained for war industry will be sent to employment advisers.

They will call the most promising prospects for an interview at the nearest Selective Service ofifce, and the most urgent work for which they are fitted will be pointed out. Those who have no training, but who are anxious to go to work will be intervieed and offered training if it is required.

This classification and sorting will take time, Mrs. Eaton said, asking co-operation of the registrants by refraining from telephoning the Selective Service office or asking for a second interview.

"Carry on with whatever you are doing now, or take whatever essential work for which you are fitted," she said. "If Selective Service needs you, you will be called."

Mrs. Eaton explained that the registration is compulsory, and applies to all women in this age group except members of religious orders and the active forces, inmates of hospitals, mental hospitals and penal institutions, and those who were working in insurable employment under the unemployment insurance plan last April, and who then registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Women who, as a result of that registration, received cards bearing the number 411 or 413, and who are still in insurable employment are exempt from the new registration.

At North Hatley, Que., Saturday night Mrs. Eaton said Canada has reached the stage where women, young women, are needed to supply to workers necessary to maintain the output of essential industries. Mrs. Eaton spoke before the Quebec Business and Professional Women's Club in convention.

Although 150,000 women are engaged at present in essental war work, 250,000 additional workers are needed within the next few months, she said.

"The supply of unemployed men is exhausted," Mrs. Eaton said. "We have come to the time when we shall put our dependence on woman-power. The extent of supply has not been estimated. The underlying purpose of the forthcoming registration of women is to provide further information of the numbers of available women.

Britain, Russia Beating U.S.

Compared with their available resources he said, Britain and Russia had produced more weapons than the United States.

"And they are continuing to produce to the limit in spite of the fact that Russia is a battlefield and Britain an offensive base."

The President went on to say that as American men moved overseas to battle "they must and will have sufficient quantities of the best equipment" the United States can produce" and at the same time "we must provide more weapons to the Armies of our Allies already in the fighting lines."

"Britain has been fighting the Nazis for three years. China is in her sixth year of war and in Russia the war's greatest land front is more than a year old," he declared. "From the beginning they have carried on without enough guns or tanks or planes. It is through their uphill fight that the war has not been lost.

"Only by strengthening our Allies and combining their strength with ours can we surely win."

The report said lend-lease funds now are being spent for many special projects, including further tests of the "seamobile" shallow draft cargo vessel originally known as the "sea otter," and for saving shipping space and refrigeration capacity by the development of dehydrated foodstuffs. The "sea otter" is described as being virtually immune to torpedo attack).

To show that lend-lease is not entirely a one-way proposition, the report said that in Great Britain 250,000 British workmen were engaged on construction for the American Army in July alone.

In addition British guns and camps, aircraft and military stores have been turned over to United States expeditionary forces and reciprocal aid is being furnished American troops in Australia, New Zealand and by the "Fighting French" in Equatorital Africa and New Caledonia.

Of the $6,489,000,000 aid furnished by the United States thus far, $5,129,000,000 represented goods transferred and services rendered, while $1,360,000,000 was the value of the goods "in process."

During August military items comprised about 58 per cent of the total transfers, industrial materials 29 per cent, and foodstuffs 13 per cent.

Women Mechanics

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP)—For the first time in 141 years, women are being hired as apprentice mechanics at the United States navy yard in Brooklyn to take over the jobs of men leaving the mechanical shops. Third district naval headquarters announced yesterday that of the 20,000 women who applied to take the test for mechanic learners, 6,000 took the test and 3,000 were found qualified for navy yard jobs. Already 125 women have started work.

Consumers Are Asked To Stop Buying Of Pork

The people of Canada are being asked by federal authority to impose upon themselves voluntary rationing of meat during the next two months.

J. G. Taggart, chairman of the bacon board and foods administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, issued Saturday night an urgent appeal to consumers to refrain from buying fresh pork, bacon and ham as a means of assisting the Government to maintain its shipments of bacon to Britain.

Actually the only authority the Government agency has applied throughout this part of the Ontario is a further restriction upon the local plant of Canada Packers Limited. Their output of hogs has been reduced to 50 per cent of their 1940 average, and from the recent allotment of 446 hogs a week to 292.

The Government can exert authority upon the licensed packing industry simply by issuing orders, but beyond the present bounds of control are the independent and small butchers and meat retailers who obtain meat from the producing farmers.

Cheap and uninformed opinion heard occasionally along the street to the effect that government regulations were intended to put the clamps on the "small retailers" is certainly not taking effect in the industry these days. The boot is on the other foot.

Inspectors At Work

The public is probably aware that the Government's inspectors are working in their behalf every day in the packing plants. Every carcass must pass government inspection before it is permitted to be distributed through retail channels. This is certified meat, that has been examined by men qualified to determine that it is fit for human consumption. That is a protective service the people are paying for, and large numbers of them refuse to buy meats elsewhere.

Facing a serious imminence of temporary decline in supplies of pork to maintain the food contract with Britain, the Government can easily and immediately reach the organized and regulated meat trade.

Getting at the independents is another problem that would involve the employment of more agents to carry out the regulations which would have to be passed to embrace the small butcher and meat retailer. The people daily wonder about the appointment of such officials, but it must be apparent to everybody that rationing laws cannot be put into full effect without officers to go about and enforce these laws.

For the present the Government, through its bacon and food administrator, is taking the circuitous approach, going to the consumer and appealing him to keep out of the meat market for a few weeks.

"Black" Market

One man who is a bystander and only a consumer remarked a few days ago that there is practically a "black" market in meats up and down the country. He said that if it continues unchecked by the consumers, who can remedy the situation by rationing themselves, then the Government would have to extend its system of rationing.

The Government assumed the responsibility of filling a huge bacon contract with Britain, and the man on the street might as well realize that this agreement comes first, especially will all the substitutes the Canadian people have at hand.

This is a patriotic appeal at present, urging the people to stay away from meat shops for a few weeks until the marketings of cattle and hogs have restored the domestic trade balance. This something the people can do if they are willing to fall in line with present necessity and avoid the necessity of a greater rationing system, with its additional legion of employees, the cost which the people themselves will have to pay.

New Bulgar Revolt Breaks Out

Fear Wave Of Terror Due For District As Nazis Clamp Down

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(CP).—German reports of a revolt in Bulgarian Macedonia and the proclamaton of a state of siege in Skoplje in former Yugoslavia aroused fear in Yugoslav government circles to-day that a new Axis wave of terror against the civilian population in that area might be beginning.

The report, which came from German circles in Stockholm, was received with extreme suspicion by these sources, who pointed out there was nothing to indicate any serious defection among the Bulgarian people themselves.

It is not doubted here that sentiment for the Russians is still strong among the Bulgarian peasants and possibly in the army. It was conceded this Slavic bond of sympathy might facilitate Russian efforts to lend aid to the Serb army, but it was added that the Yugoslav government has no such specific information.

This Yugoslav source recalled the German claim in June that 18 Soviet agents had landed in Bulgaria by parachute and from submarines and were condemned to death.

The most recent demonstration of pro-Allied action in Bulgaria was the dynamiting of the Gaprova railway station which DNB, German news and propaganda agency, said brought the arrest of 100 communist sympathizers.

The German report of the "revolt" said the revolutionary groups were spreading terror among the population and that Bulgarian officials had been killed.

Sixteen Italians and 11 Yugoslav soldiers were reported killed at Rebinje, near Ragusa in occupied Yugoslavia, in a new outbreak of fighting.

FindNo Sabotage In Buffalo Crash

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 14.—(AP). —Special agent Kenneth M. Piper, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said last night that "no evidence of sabotage" had been found in the crash of a flaming Curtiss plane through the roof of a building at the Curtiss-Wright aircraft plant here Friday.

The 13th victim of the accident, Cecil Clark, 48, died yesterday in hospital.

Piper announced that the F.B.I. had concluded its probe after two days of examination of the plane's wreckage.

Two men were killed instantly when the ship plowed into the build late Friday. Three others died that night and seven Saturday. Four of the 34 injured are in critical condition.

The ship caught fire at high altitude from an unknown cause. Test Pilot J. Bertrand (Jack) Purnell, 33, parachuted down but was severely burned.

Highway Mishap Kills 4-Year-Old Boy

COBOURG, Sept. 14—Four-year-old Edward Dawn, ward of the Children's Aid, Toronto, was instantly killed late Saturday afternoon, four miles east of here, when he fell from a moving car driven by W. Littlejohn of 90 Orchard Park Blvd., Toronto. After falling he was struck by an oncoming car, which police said was driven by Pte. W. Fox of Barriefield. The accident victim was taken to MacFayden's undertaking parlors. An inquest will be held on September 21.

According to the police account of the accident, Littlejohn, with his wife were in the front seat of the car, while Edward Dawn and the four year old son, Douglas Littlejohn were in the back. The Dawn boy opened the rear left door while the car was going about 35 m.p.h. Police believe he was killed by the fall onto the pavement. Behind the Littlejohn car was a car driven by Miss Olive Zeron of Brockville, who was accompanied by Miss Margaret Mellon of 32 Park Hill, Toronto. Miss Mellon, who is a trained nurse, was the first to the side of the accident victim.

The car driven by Pte. Fox was going in the opposite direction and the bumper caught the boy after he had rolled about 30 feet. Dawn received fatal head injuries which smashed the skull.

Fisherman Bags 30-lb. Muskie

TWEED, Sept. 14 — (ENS). — The largest muskie to be hauled from Stoco Lake this season was landed by D. Gray of Toronto while fishing with E. Cronkwright. The fish which tipped the scales at well over 30 pounds, measured 4 feet 3 inches in length and had a girth of 22 inches.

J. E. Harris, Roy Mather, Harry Milsap and George Havoy, all of Buffalo, N.Y., managed to hook and land a 32-pound muskie. Three-quarters of an hour was consumed in subduing the big fellow.

Narrow Escape.

Michael Krause, Cleveland, Ohio, fishing in the Clare River at the eastern entrance to Stoco Lake, and using a light spinner baited with a live frog hooked a 22-pound muskie. This same angler had a narrow escape from drowning. It appears that the boat was not too strong, and part of it gave way, pitching Krause and his brother John into the lake. Michael Krause is a poor swimmer and it was only after careful manoeuvring on the part of his brother John that he was brought safely to shore. They lost about $50.00 worth of fishing gear which toppled from the boat into 30 feet of water.

Joe Allore tells that excellent catches have been made of bass, blue-gills and muskies from the six lakes on his ranch during the past summer.

Tag Day For Blind Nets Institute $116

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14 (ENS)—Local officials of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind had reason to be well pleased with the response citizens of this community gave their annual tag day on Saturday. According to the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. P. B. Nelson, proceeds of the day exceeded those of a year ago by $35. Some thirty taggers, all young girls of public school age, did the big job of selling which they began by nine a.m. and continued throughout the day till late in the evening. They turned in $96, but this amount was boosted to $116.56 by several contributors who sent their cheques directly to the treasurer. All of this money will be used in work among the blind of Northumberland county.

Downed Bomber Crew Is Rescued By British Destroyer

Four Cars Tangle On Highway Curve

COBOURG, Sept. 14—Wet pavements on Saturday afternoon accounted for a motor accident on the House of Refuge curve in which several cars were involved. According to Chief Constable W. J. Carey, who investigated, a car driven by Harry Wilson of Toronto skidded on the curve, forcing an oncoming car, driven by Miss Ethel Laurine of R.R. No. 1, Port Hope, to pull over to the shoulder of the road. Miss Laurine's car was struck from the rear by a truck driven by William Gillard of Toronto. Another car, driven by Kenneth Pye of Mimico, piled into the tangle of cars to complete the picture. Damage was not extensive and nobody was injured.

Cartridge Strike Laid To Firm

WASHINGON, Sept. 14 (AP). — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced Friday he had ordered strikers at the Western Cartridge Company, East Alton, Ill. to return to their jobs, and at the same time accused the company of provoking the strike.

Green said he directed Fred Olds, A.F.L. representative, to call a special meeting of the employees and to direct them to return to their jobs without delay.

Unless they comply, Green said, their union charter may be revoked. The organization is a federal union directly affiliated with the A.F.L.

In a statement, Green said:

"This plant is engaged in vital war production work, and no delay in production can be tolerated. Nevertheless, I think the public is entitled to know that the Western Cartridge Company, by its arbitrary anti-union tactics is directly responsible fir this strike."

"The company discharged the president of the local union and charged him with sabotage. He asked for an investigation. An official inquiry was made by a special United States Army Commission which exonerated the union leader and recommended his reinstatement. This the company has refused to do.

"Under the circumstances the employees are forced to the conclusion that the real purpose of the company is to wreck their union organization. That is how this strike came about."

Green said he had sent word to the strikers he was confident that if they submitted their case to the War Labor Board in an orderly manner they would get a just decision.

24 Persons Die In Accidents, 4 Airmen Killed

By The Canadian Press.

Twenty-four persons met violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the week-end, a man and his two children being asphyxiated by a fire at their Quebec home, and a farm shooting and plane crash together claiming six lives in Ontario.

Allan Robinson, believed to have become demented through brooding over his rejection from the army, is thought to have killed his father and mother Saturday at their farm home south of Clarksbury, Ont., and then turned the gun on himself. He is not expected to live.

Four airmen were killed after a collision between two planes near Richmond, Ont., Sunday. An instructor saved himself by parachuting.

Herbert Cointois, 30, of Midland, Ont., was burned to death Sunday when his bedclothes caught fire from a cigaret.

Edward Dawn, ward of the Toronto Children's Aid Society, was killed east of Cobourg, Ont., Saturday, when he opened the door of a moving automobile, fell out and rolled about 30 feet.

Mrs. Michael Peters, 42, of East Windsor, Ont., was killed and three other passengers injured when the car in which they were riding failed to make a sharp turn early Sunday on a highway southeast of Windsor. The car plowed into a ditch and through a field.

A heart attack, brought on by exhaustion as he was wading out to a boat in Lake Erie, took the life of Aubrey Kreuch, 43, of St. Catharines, Ont.

The body of Bernard McDonald, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, of Port Colborne, Ont., was discovered floating in the Welland Ship Canal near Port Colborne Saturday. The child had been missing from his home since Tuesday.

James David Hughes, 17, a sailor, was struck and killed on No. 2 Highway, near Ingersoll, Saturday by an automobile.

Harold Dair, believed to be 32 years old, son of Mrs. Annie Main Dair of Norwich, Ont., succumbed to shock while bathing in Lake Huron Saturday.

Three Asphyxiated

Albert Laprade, 31, and his two children, Roger and Andre, 5½ and 7½ years of age respectively, were asphyxiated Sunday when fire swept through their wooden fram home in Sorel, Que. Mrs. Laprade was away at the time.

At Roberval, Que., Bruce Yasinki, 36, and W. G. Auger, 38, were killed and another passenger seriously injured when a Dominion Skyways, Limited, plane crashed Saturday on the Bersimis River, not far from Roberal, Yasinki was the pilot of the plane. Joseph Rioux, 32, was injured.

Majolaine Langlis, 18 months old, died in hospital at Chicoutimi Friday from injuries suffered when struck by a Canadian National Railways train.

W. Prulx, 37, was fatally injured Friday at Rimouski, Que., when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a motor car.

At Ste. Agathe, Que., Albert Vai, 27, was burned to death Saturday before his brother, Gerard, 28, could rescue him from the garage where they were repairing their automobile. An oil lamp ignited Albert's clothing.

Adjutor Marcotte, 51, of Ste. Therese, died in hospital Sunday from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile Saturday.

At Ste. Justine, Que., Jean-Paul Trudeau, three years old, of nearby St. Bernard de Locolle, died in hospital Saturday from burns suffered when he fell into a large basin of boiling water Friday.

Pte. Kenneth Wheaton, 23, stationed at Frederickton, was instantly killed Saturday in a collision of two trucks near Dorchester, N.B.

Uniform Ceiling Ordered On Canned Goods

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 — (CP). — A more uniform ceiling on canned goods in Canada is expected to result from a revised order on canned fruits and vegetables, announced to-day by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Earlier price regulations had resulted in widely-carried prices as between different districts in the Dominion, and canners' maximum prices had been established on the basis of 1940 costs. The new order will overcome difficulties experienced by distributors of the 1942 pack who were "squeezed" by the prices fixed for canners, the Board announcement said.

Also through the former order, an artificial scarcity developed, the Board statement said. The new regulation would ensure an adequate supply.

Canned tomatoes, tomato juice, peas, corn, green and waxed beans, peaches Bartlett and Kieffer pears, plums and apricots, which together make up more than 80 per cent of the trade, have been subject until now to individual retail ceilings established in the basic period, while canners' prices were governed by specific maximum rates, fixed in a Board order effective last July 1.

Subsidy Fails To Do Job.

As many wholesale and retail prices at that time were based on 1940 costs, a subsidy was provided to take care of the time lag, and to maintain the retail price ceiling. It was expected that normal trading would adjust any differences which the flat regional prices and the subsidy did not take care of, but the margin to distributors proved so narrow that some lines could not be handled.

Wholesalers' and retailers' prices now are to be determined by their laid-down costs plus a percentage makeup, which in the case of wholesalers is not to exceed 10 per cent. of their selling price. This formula applied to canned fruits and vegetables in general and not merely the major lines already mentioned.

The Schedule "C" lines of the former order, 23 varieties of canned fruits and vegetables, including strawberries, raspberries, cherries, fruits for salad, tomato catsup and puree, spinach, lima beans and asparagus tips, are already subject to the percentage markup plan by the previous order. Retailers' markup was then limited to 25 per cent. of their selling price, and that percentage still applies to Schedule "C," but the new order places a limit of 20 per cent. of selling price as the markup on the major products—tomatoes, peas, corn and so on.

The former order permitted wholesalers to increase prices after Dec. 1, 1942, by a consecutive monthly amount of one-half cent a dozen until next year's pack of such products is available for redistribution. Under the amending order this permission to increase prices is restricted to Schedule "C" items. Any such monthly price increase by wholesalers may be inclided by retailers in their laid-down cost for purposes of computing markup.

10 And 20 P.C. Maximum

The statement said "the new order recognizes the prices in the former order as the canners' legal ceiling and allows the wholesale and retail trade to take their normal markup as established in the basic period, but with a maximum in the case of the wholesaler of 10 per cent and for the retailer of 20 per cent of their selling price.

"In effect, the wholesaler's maximum price will be 111 per cent of his landed cost and the retailer's maximum price will be approximately 139½ per cent of the canner's maximum price as named in the former order plus sales tax and transportation. Actually, many wholesalers and retailers will sell at less than these rates, as they are still tied to their basic period markup."

Government reports this week the board said, indicate a larger available supply of the major fruits and vegetables used for canning than were consumed in Canada last season. This will help offset the curtailment of certain fruits and fruit juices formerly imported, and of tin containers for certain domestic products put up in metal.

The prospect is that supplies of the tinned fruits and vegetables essential to Canadian consumers will be adequate, and under provisions of the current order they will be enabled to move to retail outlets under an adjustment of price ceilings—upward or downward in different zones.

New Metal Curb To Crimp Many Services

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP).—Caninsatiable demand for raw materials to feed Canada's hungry war machine led to-day to new and drastic curtailment in use of copper or other non-ferrous metals for extension of public utility services.

Meantime informed quarters in Ottawa anticipated curtailment of use of electricity in Ontario and Quebec homes to make more power available for essential war industries.

The metals curtailment move was announced in an order issued last night by Metals Controller G. C. Bateman, and made public by the Munitions and Supply Department.

The order prohibits the following:

Any new installation of electric, gas, water or telephone service in summer cottages and other seasonal residences; new installations of electric advertising or display signs; new lighting for city streets and highways; Public Utility Service extensions to refreshment booths, seasonal places of business, carnivals, lawn socials, sports grounds or arenas, and other civilian places of entertainment.

It also prohibits, except by permit, any new street railway lines or extensions to existing lines.

It prevents any home owner, whose home is more than 250 feet from water and gas mains or power and telephone lines, from obtaining electricity, gas, or other public service connections without a permit.

Make Certain Ahead.

Mr. Bateman warned that the public should make certain that utility services could be provided before building new homes or buying new electric stoves or other equipment.

"If you expect to obtain gas, electrical or other utility services you should first consult your utility company," he said.

The order in general provides that no public utility, furnishing electrical, telephone, telegraph, electric railway, street car, water, sewage, gas or steam service shall put into use any non-ferrous metal without a permit from the metals controller.

Exempt from the order are metals necessary for maintenance and repair, for emergency requirements of the armed forces and for certain essential and military direct connections from lines, leads and mains. But in these cases installation costs must no exceed $500 and involve no more than 250 feet of cable, pipe or line, or alternately no more than 20 pounds of non-ferrous metals.

At the same time S. W. Caniff, general manager of the Ottawa Hydro Electric Commission, announced restrictions in use of electricity which will apply to domestic consumers in Ottawa effective Oct. 1.

Use of electric heaters in homes will be banned and store window lighting reduced to a minimum, Mr. Canniff said.

Barn Is Burned During Threshing

LINDSAY, Sept. 14. — The large barn on the property of Leonard Griffin, Cannington, was destroyed by fire during early morning threshing operations on Saturday.

Firefighters were unable to save a number of hogs and some implements. The blaze is believed to have started in the straw stack. Damage to the threshing equipment is estimated at $500.

Timber Shortage Gets Serious

OTTAWA, Sept. 14—(CP). — The ada's huge lumber and logging business was officially placed in the essential industry class today as the government outlined an eight-point program with the dual purpose of stepping up production to meet war needs and curtailing civilian use.

Announcing the new program, Munitions Minister Howe said Canada faces "The gravest timber shortage in her history." This was due to enormous war demands from the United Nations" and to a drop in production this year compared with 1941.

Classification as an essential industry means that steps will be taken to see that lack of labor will not cripple the timber business.

In an accompanying statement, addressed to the Canadian Lumber industry, Timber Controller A. S. Nicholson said the figure for exports to the United States was approximately double Canada's maximum exports to that country in any previous year.

Surveying the lumber situation, Mr. Nicholson said in the Pacific coast region production recently had fallen from 160,000,000 feet a month to 140,000,000 or less. Log production in the first quarter of 1942 showed a drop of 102,000,000 feet and in the second quarter 142,000,000 feet "and is continuing to drop while the industry in this area is short approximately 3,400 men."

His survey gave this picture for timber regions across the Dominion:

Southern interior British Columbia: Production holding up fairly well;

Northern British Columbia and Northern Alberta: production somewhat below normal as a result of labor shortage;

Northern Saskatchewan and in Northern Manitoba: production somewhat below normal;

Ontario and Quebec: production somewhat below normal with stocks low;

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia: Demand is largely British and American and exceeds available supply.

Dreams Of Adventure Come True For Two Young American Girls

Lots of girls entertain dreams of great adventure in foreign lands, but not many pick up like Alma Heflin and Margie McQuin and go skylarking in a plane around the uncharted skyways of Alaska, making their trip from the eastern part of the United States through storms, mountains and more than one accident. What's more, they loved it, even though they had a couple of smashes.

Both girls were employees in a plane manufacturing plant and one afternoon in their off hours they were reading "I Married Adventure" and "North to the Orient," when Alma sighed regretfully about other people's chances at real adventure in the mystic reaches of far-off lands. That was when Margie had her brilliant inspiration. Why couldn't they go? Alma had Mister Shrdlu.

Mr. Shrdlu was one of a succession of small planes that had belonged to Alma Heflin who is fairly well versed in flying. In fact, her qualifications would make most pilots rather envious. Because of a doctor's verdict that she be allowed to do whatever she wanted. Alma covered a wide range of territory. She wanted to fly and lacking the money to further her ambitions, she started out to remedy the situation.

Miss Heflin did everything from picking cucumbers at $12 a week, to washing dishes at college and this all helped in reaching her objective. Finally she got a job in a plane manufacturing plant and she learned the business from the ground up by serving in the welding department, covering, sewing repair, rib fabrication, shipping, and finally wound up in the publicity department and spent her time chasing back and forth across the States.

Since her trip to Alaska, Alma Heflin has qualified for a commercial pilot's licence, one of only 250 women in the United States to do so and she has been appointed test pilot for the Piper Aircraft Corporation. She is the first American woman to hold such a position and the second in the entire world.

Make It Big.

For some weeks before their departure the girls worked frantically at their preparations and packing and checking up on the plane. Everything was arranged to their satisfaction more than once, when it had to be arranged again. And their friends from the factory did not let them work in peace. When they announced that they were taking a revolver in case of a forced landing, which they might need to get their meat on the hoof, the boys told them never to bother with small game, but to take something sizeable, like a moose, and if they aimed at the tail they might hit the head. All this was very encouraging for two girls who were accustomed to shut their eyes and pull the trigger.

The two adventure bound, flew across the United States to the west coast narrowly missing a crack-up in the mountains during the bad storms that broke out in the area. Another comforting factor was that at the last minute it was discovered that the compass was 30 degrees out. Upon reaching the Pacific the plane was shipped via boat to Canada where once past the customs officials, the girls flew gaily onwards with a minimum of trouble, even though it was a case in a number of places of landing by guess or by gosh, because there was no regular landing field.

Skagua and Burwash Landing were two points of call and they visited a number of places where history was made in the gold rush and met some of the old-timers with their vivid memories of the past. They also visited streamlined cities like Fairbanks.

Any Old Place.

When knocked off their course and a forced landing producing a few casualties to Mr. Shrdlu, they had only a little gas left and so therefore could not reach the regular airport some miles away. Finally a telegraph despatcher had an inspiration. He wired a small community a few miles away and said they had a disabled plane coming in and what would they use for a landing field? The answer came back: "The baseball field. There's a game on, but when we hear the machine we'll vacate."

After nine years of flying without a crack-up Miss Heflin damaged her machine when her wheel caught in a broken culvert. While awaiting new parts she and Alma were treated to some really hair-raising ghost stories one night in an old cabin, and they were feminine enough to react with screams of real terror, much to the miners' consternation.

Two of the sights around Fairbanks that surprised the girls were when they saw a tough old sourdough in a beauty shop getting a permanent wave, so he could "look nice," and hearing an old man who had never travelled any other way in the north except by plane, exclaim with delight after he had taken his first taxi ride, "that he wasn't scared at all."

Successful Trip.

The north captured Margie so completely that she threw over her job in the United States and remained in Fairbanks while Alma returned home to write the story of her adventures under the title of 'Adventure Was the Compass," after which she claimed new flying honors.

The girls didn't have a lot of money, but they had a lot of fun and adventure and made many friends in strange surroundings. So for those who have dreams, it is not as impossible as it looks.

Women List Pet Peeves

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14 (ENS)—In place of their usual social held in the early Fall each member of the Seymour East branch of the Women's Institute is being asked to make a contribution of $1 towards the general fund of the organization. This announcement was made at the September meeting held at Mrs. E. C. Pollock's. Seventeen members responded to the roll call, "The most personal factor in a girl's appearance" and they minced no words in telling of their pet peeves which listed many of the usual dislikes of the immaculate such as unkempt hair, unbrushed teeth, cleanliness of the hands, nails and face. Several mentioned things which they didn't like to see. The topic of the day was to have been under the heading of "Home Economics," but Mrs. Alex. Milne, the speaker, changed this and gave instead an interesting talk on the fur industry. She spoke of the Chinchilla which is the newest addition to the luxury fur business and told of the efforts made to raise the small animals in the United States together with its still more recent importation to Canada.

As a means of raising money for war purposes a motion was passed adopting the "cent a meal" plan which will be put into effect by members during the month of October. To assist the Red Cross in its preparation of comfort bags, being sent overseas for Christmas, the branch authorized a $5 contribution, which will be used to buy shaving sticks for the soldiers. Several thank you letters from those in the community who had received fruit and flowers from the Institute, were read by the secretary. The reorganization of the Institute sponsored Girls' Club, the Jannie Canucks was another important business item discussed during the afternoon. Mrs. George Airhart and Miss Elsie Rannie were named as leaders of the group and they will outline their work program for the year following the leaders' conference slated for October 14 and 15 in Warkworth. Not till they have returned from this and a meeting has been called will the officers of the club be elected.

"Canadianization"

The discussion of the "Canadianization" of the Royal Canadian Air Force was begun by the Hon. Mr. C. G. Power, the Minister of Defence for Air, and he is certainly the proper man to deal with such a matter; such a change is dictated by the Government, for reasons of Government policy and is not an exclusively military affair. But our Air Officer-in-Chief in Britain, H. E. Edwards, has interfered in the matter and has expressed himself with great force. Referring to suggestions that "Canadianization" of our Air Force might not be a wise move, he said, "Some Canadians are talking a lot of bloody nonsense," and went on to say "If they want to be mugs all their lives that's their business." Clearly A.O.C. Edwards is very anxious for "Canadianization"—so anxious indeed that he cannot bother to be polite about it.

Reasons have been put forward by A.O.C. Edwards why the R.C.A.F. should be "Canadianized." By that word he means that all R.C.A.F. men should be taken from the R.A.F. units with which they now serve and put together. He thinks that the men would be happier, as they would be with other Canadians, could talk about Canada, play Canadian games, and in short, make any place in which they happened to be as like Canada as possible. Perhaps this would be congenial to some Canadians; to others it would be quite the reverse. We know of instances, and have read of many others, in which R.C.A.F. men have found their greatest pleasure in the opportunities which they had to make friends with other young men from all parts of the Empire. Every good Canadian loves Canada and regards it as his homeland, but he does not for that reason wish to be restricted to friendship and association with Canadians from cradle to grave. New points of view, new ideas of discipline, new expressions, novelty of all kinds is the breath of life and we gather that the Canadian boys in the R.C.A.F. find association with Australians, New Zealanders and Englishmen exciting and pleasant. They don't want to be "Canadianized"; they want to find out as much about the world as possible.

A much more important point is that the adoption of A.O.C. Edwards' idea would serve to divide British air strength unnecessarily and possibly to complicate matters which should remain as simple as possible. We are part of an Empire, or Commonwealth of Nations, and it is simple common sense to stick together; for division will destroy us. Let us maintain the unity of our fighting forces as much as we can, and forget petty matters of nationalism.

The R.C.A.F. boys are not milksops. They don't want to be coddled and kept from disturbing contacts with non-Canadian elements. They have shown how adventurous they are, and men who are physically adventurous and courageous are usually mentally adventurous and courageous too. Let them have their chance to meet men of their own age from all corners of the globe; let us get rid of this silly notion of intellectual isolationism.

Mistrust Dispelled

It has been suggested in some quarters that the Russians are displeased and discouraged because Britain and the U.S. have not yet established a second front in Europe. We do not believe that this is a true picture at all; of course the Russians would like us to open a second front at once and because we have not done so and because they themselves are in serious straits they are impatient. But Prime Minister Churchill's report to the British House of Commons on his trip to Russia gives us more reliable information. Stalin, the realist, knows that the failure of a second front would be worse for Russia in the long run than a prolongation until winter of her present struggle. As things stand, the Allies send supplies to Russia and do what they can by bombing to weaken the German offensive; if a second front were tried prematurely, and failed, Russia might find herself facing the enemy absolutely alone.

The visit of Mr. Churchill and U.S. representatives to Moscow had the good effect of convincing Russian leaders beyond a shadow of doubt of the sincerity of Britain and the U.S. in their pledges of help to Russia. That help will surely come, and there are signs that the greatest haste is being made to prepare it; added to the assurances of Winston Churchill is the latest warning to Germany from President Roosevelt. Meanwhile Russia is hanging on with a tenacity which is making history hourly; Stalingrad has been called a Russian Verdun, and it is having the same effect in slowing up the German advance and complicating the German time-table.

It is undesirable and unwise to entertain ideas of mistrust between Russia and her two greatest Allies. Churchill's statement explains the grounds for that feeling, and it also makes clear that the feeling has been dispelled from the minds of Russia's leaders. The Russians, Americans and Englishmen met in an atmosphere of realism which made misunderstandings and misrepresentations impossible. Both sides know how matters stand.

Wheat To The Hellenes

It is good to hear that Canada is sending some of her surplus wheat to the starving people of Greece. Approximately 15,000 tons a month are to go, carried in Swedish ships, and it is to be distributed under international agreement. A great quantity of wheat has already been sent.

It is not for us to pat ourselves on the back for this humane action. We may, however, take a proper pride in the fact that we are able and willing to feed the starving in a brave and stricken country. Nazi officials are reported to have said that the food shortage would adjust itself in Greece by the natural method—that is to say, by the death of those for whom there is no food. We are fortunately able to check the progress of nature in this respect with our vast surplus of wheat; we lack that rugged indifference to the sufferings of others which characterizes our enemy.

It is possible, of course, that some of our wheat will find its way into Nazi mouths. That is a risk which we must take, and it is well worth taking in order to relieve the great misery of the Greek people. The Germans have little regard for international obligations, and they may try to steal our wheat for themselves; if they are caught doing so the shipments will stop at once. But, knowing the dire need of the Greeks, we could not fail to make this attempt to help them. It is our earnest hope that this gift will do something to make their hardship more bearable, and that when the war is over and Greece is free once again a strong friendship may be built up between that ancient country and our new one.

After Three Years

We of the British Empire have completed three years of war, and are entering upon our fourth with courage, hope and confidence. Much has been said on this subject, and some of it was good and some of it was hot air. Nowhere have we seen anything which put the matter so briefly or so well as this verse by A. P. Herbert, the celebrated British wit who is M.P. for the University of Oxford, which appeared in a British Sunday paper:

"Three years! Three years! And it has scarce begun.
Three years of waste, and wretchedness and woe.
Since one man's lunacy put back the sun.
Yet—were we happier three years ago?
Three years. Our swords were rusty—and our souls:
And this old lion was despised of men.
Were we the people to defend the Poles?
The very Wop was laughing at us then.
He is not laughing quite so much, we hope:
We are not quite so comic as before.
Respected, feared, we struggle up the slope
And march, if God commands, for three years more."

There seems to be nothing more to say upon the subject, and we have reproduced this verse prominently because we felt that some of our readers might like to keep it.

The Scalping of Mr. Philip

From THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

THE three hundred-odd earnest seekers after light who make the annual pilgrimage to Lake Couchiching for the conference of the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion are impelled by diverse forces and motives. They go to spend a quiet holiday, to obtain enlightenment, to do some missionarying for a Cause, or merely to listen. They expect argument and revel in it, but drama is not on the program. Thus the scalping of Mr. Percy Philip by Dr. Jacob Viner was buckshee entertainment and it was highly acceptable.

The main characters of this little drama are well known in Canada. Mr. Philip is the eminent New York Times' Ottawa correspondent who worked in Paris for 17 years before being driven out by the Nazi invasion. Mr. Philip is tall, thinnish and urbane, and he has a flair for making speeches. Dr. Viner, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, is one of Montreal's most brilliant sons. His is one of the best minds Canada has produced, and his ability to put his thoughts into words is unsurpassed. To meet and talk with Jacob Viner is an experience not soon forgotten.

MR. PHILIP had been invited to make a critical analysis of Canada's war effort, and in his rather mystical approach to the question he wondered far afield. To the astonishment of many of his listeners, he became involved in the long-buried controversy over the Ogdensburg agreement between Canada and the United States. The views he expressed have already received wide publicity and have been answered in these columns. Mr. Philip took a long look down his nose at the Ogdensburg agreement. At the depth of Europe's tragedy, Canada ran for the sheltering arms of the United States. Mr. Philip made it plain that he considered this something in which we could take no pride. It was definitely not cricket, chaps, not playing the game. As if to illustrate the unworthiness of our action, Mr. Philip mentioned the glee it produced in Vichy.

From Ogdensburg it was but a short hop to lease-lend, and Mr. Philip made it deftly. There had been much publicity about lease-lend. Astronomical figures of the amount of help to be given had been published. Britain was to get $500 millions or some such amount, but after months and months she had received only $50 millions. In Mr. Philip's estimation, lease-lend could be brushed aside—and brush it aside he did.

WHEN Mr. Philip was finished, Dr. Viner rose from his place in the audience. Mr. Viner smiled, complimented Mr. Philip on his speech, and then proceeded to tear him apart. That he did it with a smile and with brevity did not detract from the effectiveness of the job.

Surely Mr. Philip should have known, Dr. Viner said, that the request for Ogdensburg came not from Canada but from the United States. Canada was not running to the shelter of anyone. The United States was alarmed at the danger to her security which Hitler represented. It was the United States, and not Canada, which had sought Ogdensburg. While the United States sought to strengthen its defences, it also wanted to do everything in its power to help beat Hitler. Out of Ogdensburg came lease-lend. There was, Dr. Viner recalled, a Neutrality Act on the United States' statute books.

To sneer at lease-lend was unkind. Dr. Viner said that there were defects to lease-lend, but the spirit behind it was wholesome and decent. Lease-lend was not a stop-gap for immediate use. After the fall of France, Britain told the United States she felt she could hold the fort for a year unaided. However, she had vast commitments in the United States. She had placed orders for guns, planes and tanks. These supplies would not start to roll for a year. But Britain's ability to pay for these supplies was being strained. Lease-lend was adopted to enable American factories to keep working on British orders.

Now that the supplies were coming off the production lines, the problem was to apportion them. To the eternal credit of the United States Government, it was doing this with a world view. In order to get supplies moving to distant theatres of war, the American armed services at home often had to go without. The arguments were never whether the British or the United States were to get supplies, but whether the British, Russians, Australians or Chinese needs came first, and how much each could be given.

WHEN Dr. Viner sat down Mr. Philip's scalp was dangling from his belt, so to speak. Mr. Philip, in reply, failed rather dismally and when the crowd broke up it was Dr. Viner who got most of the handshakes.

In his scalping of Mr. Philip, Dr. Viner did his native and his adopted lands a great service. Yet, and this is more than passing strange, none of the papers which carried lengthy reports of the Philip speech even mentioned Dr. Viner. The record, so far as Dr. Viner and this newspaper is concerned, is thus belatedly brought up to date. The splendid job he did should not have been allowed to go unnoticed.

Telegrams Sing No More

The tale of the four-and-twenty blackbirds popping up singing out of the king's pie has intrigued many a youngster, as well as young oldster. So when the modern scheme was cooked up for making a little black instrument burst into song in a specified ear, it was not surprising that it caught on—to some extent.

But occasionally those on the receiving end have been anything but charmed. More than one executive, interrupted in a business discussion by the ringing of the telephone, has picked up the innocent-looking receiver, and then sat outwardly mute but inwardly voluble as the strains of "Happy Birthday to You" reached not only his ears, but those of his amused conferees.

Thus the passing of the singing telegram, due to war meaures, does not cause unalloyed regret. An acceptable substitute would be a victory song without words, conveyed by war stamps.—Christian Science Monitor.

Laval Drafts French Labor

By E. D. HALL

SNUBBED in his campaign to coax Frenchmen into Hitler's service, the collaborationist Laval has clamped the yoke of forced labor upon the people of France, in effect placing them at his beck and call for toil under their German conquerors.

This great forward step in Axis collaboration, in the name of Chief of State Marshal Petain, came Sunday after the provisional French capital bristled with guns manned by troops and police called up suddenly during the week-end for mysterious "manoeuvres."

Vichy officially has dismissed this martial prelude as mere practice, but it took on new significance after disclosure of the Government's startling action. Laval was playing with dynamite and knew it.

By decree, the Petain-Laval Government made all Frenchmen between 18 and 50 and all unmarried Frenchwomen between 21 and 35 answerable to compulsory labor service. Every Frenchman must show that he is engaged in work for "the best interests of the State."

This latter phrase had a familiar and ominous ring. Aging Marshal Petain signed the law, but the hand of Laval was behind it.

It is Laval who repeatedly has trumpeted that it would be to the "best interests" of France for the Axis to win the war.

Studied side by side, these identical phrases may mean that thousands of Frenchmen, who thus far have resisted the blandishments of their Chief of Government, soon will find themselves working for Hitler, willingly or not.

As Hitler's chief labor scout in France, Laval proudly announced last June 23 that he and Hitler had cooked up a plan whereby one French war prisoner would be released for each three skilled workers who agreed to go to work in Nazi industry.

To date there have been few takers. Only one trainload of prisoners has come home, a mere corporal's guard out of the more than 2,000,000 being held by the Germans.

Besides the three-for-one factor, which weighed heavily in Hitler's favor, there was another catch in this magnanimous proposal foisted upon the French people by Laval.

For each of these skilled workers who would go to Germany the three released Frenchmen would be farmers—not an industrial worker among them.

In other words, Hitler would be getting rid of a lot of mouths to feed and France at the same time would be reduced to the status of a country of farmers.

As Others See Us

(FROM THE WINDSOR STAR)

IRRESPONSIBLE criticism of the Government finds its most vivid expression in the oft-heard charge that we are "doing nothing." This is the cry of the destructive attackers, and it is particularly vociferous in respect to the question of the mobilization of manpower. Even since details of the new law to bring this about have been announced, there has been a resurgence of such criticism, and the plan has been referred to variously as "futile," "useless" and "an anachronism."

Such condemnation has come almost exclusively from those who have political reasons to attack the administration. It cannot be taken as unbiased or disinterested.

The Detroit Free Press is an American newspaper. It can be given credit for taking an entirely detached view, and it has come out with a significant editorial praising Canada's program of economic control, and contrasting it with what the United States has done in the same field. Here is one telling paragraph:

"The Canadian Government has a way of making up its mind and acting, worthy of emulation. When the cost of living threatened to get out of hand, it slapped ceilings on both prices and wages, with a provision for paying workers bonuses if living costs rose in spite of these controls. We fooled around for a couple of years and then enacted a price-control law that allowed wages and farm prices to run wild. That has failed to stop inflation."

One if the favorite pastimes of our complainers is to run to the United States and tell what a hesitant, weak and vacillating Government we have. Such people should take warning. They are likely to do nothing more than appear ridiculous in a country which is looking toward ours with open envy of our leadership.

It's Work Well Done

From New York Herald Tribune

THE Canadian Aviation Bureau—a small but potent agency which helped more than 6,700 flying Americans to join the British and Canadian air forces and ferry commands before Pearl Harbor—was packing up its records the other day on the sixteenth floor of the Waldorf-Astoria and preparing to close.

Its work was done. Today Americans who want to fight in the skies or instruct pilots must do so through agencies of the United States.

But during the 26 months of its life, particularly from June, 1940, to October, 1941, the bureau, with its 15 officers and 100 employees, played a powerful part in the Allies' war effort.

Through it the American Eagle Squadron in England received flying personnel which blasted scores of Nazi planes from the skies. Most pilots of the early trans-Atlantic ferry command, which kept bombers flying to Britain, came from its rolls.

In June, 1940, after France fell and beleaguered Britain no longer could provide instructors for the Royal Canadian Air Force, the bureau sent American instructors to Canada, and this saved Canada $30,000,000 in costs of training new instructors.

The saving benefited America five times over. After Pearl Harbor, when the United States awoke to war, this country was sadly short of flying teachers. By agreement with the Canadian Government, the United States sent a special train, commanded by a general and an admiral, to Canada to bring back carloads of instructors.

It is estimated that the American saving in cost of instructor training was about $150,000,000, because, after a year on the job in Canada, the teachers were far more competent than when they set out.

The strangest feature of the bureau's work, considering the great record of its flyers, is that it sent to Canada and abroad only men who had been turned down by the air services of the United States, or who were not eligible to fly for their own country because they lacked two years of university education.

No pilots were solicited. But so many Americans wanted to fly, even though their own country turned them down, that the bureau never lacked applicants. Even after a man was okayed in this country, he was not permitted to join up until he got to Canada and looked over his prospective outfit. If he decided to back down, his return ticket to this country was provided.

Homer Smith, a Canadian citizen who has lived in America for 25 years, the director and founder of the bureau, is about to leave for Washington as air attache to the Canadian Legation with the rank of wing commander. Most of the other supervising personnel already are in service.

Hitler Couldn't Do It

Mr. Churchill's trip to Moscow and Cairo, a few weeks following a second wartime visit to America, is a reminder that the ocean airways and seaways are open to British, American and Allied peoples. Hitler would not dare and could not, if he would, make any trip beyond the narrow borders of Europe. In spite of all, he is a virtual prisoner.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

"Here's a wonderful thing, dear. It's about a man who reached the age of fifty without learning even to read and write. Then he met a woman, and for her sake made himself into a scholar in two years."

"That's nothing," grunted her husband. "I knew a man who was a profound scholar at forty. Then he met a woman, and for her sake he made a complete fool of himself in two days!"

Junetta Gamoyle Wed Saturday To Jack F. Newton

COBOURG, Sept. 14—(ENS).—St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, was the scene of a smart wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Junetta Gamoyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jenings of Cobourg, became the bride of Mr. Jack Frederick Newton of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Newton of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dean W. L. Armitage.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk jersey. Her headdress was a halo of white chenile and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and bouvardia. She was attended by Mrs. George Edwards, matron-of-honor, who wore a blue silk jersey floor-length gown with a blue halo of silk jersey. She carried a bouquet of red roses and gladioli. Mr. John Hughes of Toronto was the best man and the ushers were brothers of the groom, Edward of Simcoe and William of Toronto.

After the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where her mother received in a gown of ashes of roses duvtyne with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother received in blue crepe with hat to match and her flowers were a corsage of red roses. About 60 guests attended the reception, of which about 20 were from out-of-town. The bride's going-away costume was a green wool suit with brown accessories. They will take up residence in Montreal. The bride is a graduate of Alma College and the groom is a graduate of Upper Canada College.

HOARD-JOYES WEDDING

Donna Veale Is Bride In Pretty Bethany Nuptials

The United Church at Bethany, decorated with baskets of gladioli and asters, with a background of fern and star of Bethlehem, was the setting on Saturday for the wedding of Donna Veale, Reg.N. of St. Catharines, only daugther of Mrs. Edwin Veale and the late Mr. Veale of Bethany, to LAC. Frank Richard Windibank, also of St. Catharines.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. A. J. Veale of Nestleton, to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Richard Wagner's opera "Lohengrin," played by Mrs. A. V. Thomdy at the piano. She looked charming in a gown of white marquisette over satin with a long veil and a face veil caught with a halo head-dress, and carried a beouquet of pastel glads. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Margaret Windibank, who wore a floor-length gown of flowered silk jersey in mauve tints, with a matching hat and a bouquet of white and mauve asters. Little Gracie Bigelow, niece of the bride, also attended her, wearing a long dress of pale pink sheer and carrying a nosegay of roses and small blue asters.

Mr. Wallie Mann of St. Catharines attended the groom and the ushers were Mr. Basil Earl of Toronto and Mr. Eric Porteous of Brantford. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, during the signing of the register, Mr. Alvin Porteous sang "O Perfect Love." A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who received wearing a floor-length gown of black crepe with jet trimming, a small black felt hat and a corsage of sweet-peas. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of black embroidered crepe, a large black hat and a corsage of sweet-peas.

A buffet luncheon was served at the home by Mrs. Basil Earl, Mrs. Carle Porteous, and the Misses Audrey Comstock, Margaret Windibank, and Mrs. Jean Bigelow.

Guests present at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Windibank, Miss Margaret Windibank, Mr. and Mrs. Comstock and Miss Audrey Comstock of Bowmanville, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Earle, Mrs. Leslie Wright, Mr. Alvin Porteous of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Rae Malcolm of Yelverton; Mr. Fred Veale of Nestleton; Mr. Eric Porteous of Brantford; Rev. and Mrs. Harding, Miss Joy Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Poretous, Mrs. Ruth Porteous and son Arnold, Mr. A. V. Thorndyke, Mrs. Jean Bigelow and daughter Grace, Mr. Andrew McGill of Janetville; Marvin Porteous, Mrs. A. V. Thorndyke, Gracie Bigelow, Mrs. Wright.

Southern—LaBrash

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14 (ENS)—A pretty wedding took place in the Manse of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon, when Grace Lucille LaBrash, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank LaBrash, became the bride of Sgmn. John Douglas Southern, son of Mrs. Nellie Southern and the late Henry E. Southern. Rev. J. O. Ralston officiated, it being his first wedding ceremony since coming to Campbellford.

The bride, who was attended by Mrs. Jack Macoun, wore a street length dress of beige crepe with rust accessories and corsage of Briarcliffe roses. Mrs. Macoun chose a becoming heaven blue crepe with black accessories and corsage similar to the bride's. Mr. Manson LaBrasn, a brother of the bride, assisted the groom. Later a reception and buffet luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents, and guests who were mainly the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, numbered seventeen. Following this Mr. and Mrs. Southern left on a wedding trip, and on their return they will make their home in Campbellford. For travelling the bride donned a grey corduroy suit with matching accessories.

PARENTS TOLD TO EXTEND GOLDEN RULE TO CHILDREN.

Many Are So Calloused That They Ridicule Their Youngsters in Public.

It would be a wholesome, spiritual exercise for parents now and then, to put themselves in their children's places and see how they would like to be treated by some domestic overlord the way they treat the youngsters. Very few mothers and fathers are intentionally unkind to their children, but many are brutal to them through sheer stupidity and thoughtlessness.

They have the idea that children are some sort of unclassified fauna with hides like a rhinoceros, so thick that no barb can pierce them, and they have strange habits and tastes that make them enjoy being exhibited in public and having their peculiarities discussed in their presence, and that they don't mind being baited and teased and lied to and disappointed.

They know perfectly well that they would commit mayhem upon the person of anyone who would point out their peculiarities to the gaping crowd, and would never forgive one who made them promises they did not even intend to keep. But they expect children to take it and like it, yet a child is the most sensitive creature on earth and the one most helpless and least capable of defending itself.

Why so many otherwise intelligent people, into whose hands God has mistakenly entrusted children, ignore this palpable fact no one knows. Yet they do. It is the common custom, for instance, for grown-ups to discuss a child in his presence as freely as they would discuss a horse or a dog, apparently under the impression that little Johnny is a deaf idiot who doesn't understand what it is all about. But he does and it crucifies him when Aunt Sally comments that he looks small for his age and takes after his Mother's family who were all runty, or when Uncle John remarks that he must be backward in his studies if he is only in the Third Grade.

Parents Permit Torture.

Father and Mother stand complacently by while this torture is going on and make no effort to stop it; yet imagine what Father would do if anybody told him to his face that he was a miserable-looking little half-pint-size manikin. And what Mother would say to anyone who dared even suggest that she loked lige homely old Cousin Eliza would be a-plenty.

There are even parents so calloused that they hold their children up as laughing stocks for the amusement of their guests. All of us have seen children writhe in agony while Father set the dinner-table in a roar by relating some blunder that Tommy had made or repeating some artless question that Dicky had asked. Worse still, we have known a Mother to make a funny story about Mamie's shy confidence to her about the boy whose desk was next to hers at school. Once I even heard a Mother read aloud her little girl's first love letter to a guffawing crowd of grown-ups.

Now perhaps there are people with such overgrown sense of humor that they enjoy a joke on themselves and are willing to be made to look ridiculous for the entertainment of their fellow creatures, but if there are any such I have never met them. We like people to laugh with us, but not at us; and Father would no more enjoy having his blunders dragged forth to make a Roman holiday for his acquaintances than little Jimmy does. Mother would be just as much stabbed to the quick as little Sally is by having her sacred confidences betrayed.

Careless About Promises.

Most parents do not regard a promise to a child as binding. They will promise the children to take them to the movies or on a picnic on Saturday or to give them a bicycle or a doll or whatever the childish heart is set on. Then when the time comes if they want to go on a party themselves or to spend the money on something they want they put the yonugsters off regardless of the crushing disappointment they are inflicting.

Yet many a man, who has been defeated for some high office, or who has missed making a million by a drop in the market, has felt less disappointment than he did when his Father went to play golf instead of taking him fishing as he had planned. Many a woman has shed fewer tears over the wreck of the dreams of her life than has the little girl whose Mother forgot to bring her home the doll she promised her.

Childhood lives only in the present. It has no perspective on life and it has not learned the law of compensation which is the staff we lean on in our latter years.

So I urge parents to extend the Golden Rule to their children and treat them as they would like to be treated. As Josh Billings once said: "Train a child in the way he should go, and walk there yourself once in a while."

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 15

UNDER ASTRAL influences bearing on the affairs of this day the most cherished aspirations and ambitions should be crowned with success. It is a time for working the combined forces, resources and goals. These may embrace financial associations to reach such high increase, expanded credits, honors and preferment from superiors, and probably the public or community contribute to enhance this estate of high praise.

Those whose birthday it is should have a year of conspicuous and gratifying success under the most propitious and pleasant of auspices. Friends and superiors and those in high standing may unite to promote the financial status, expand the credits, and enhance personal prestige. There may be signs of public recognition or esteem as well as private benefits, probably in gifts.

A child born on this day should be abundantly gifted with a high order of talents and efficiency which should attract the powerful and appreciative in both public and private station.

CHARLIE LOW AND STAN PAYNE CAPTURE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIPS

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Westclox, local girl champions, are through for the season. They were defeated at Preston Saturday evening in the second game of the P.W.S.U. intermediate semi-final series after battling ten innings to a tie in the afternoon. Without trying to take any credit away from a sporting organization like the Rivulette team and management has proved to be, it can be said in behalf of the Big Bens that they got few of the breaks in either game. They had to be unfortunate to lose the first battle here and as for the afternoon game at Preston Saturday it is still a mystery how they could outhit the Rivulettes 22 to 9 and yet not get a win. The explanation of course is found in the error column but usually a club with an attacking margin as large as the Big Bens had in that contest doesn't need to worry about a few defensive slips. It just happened that the Westclox errors on this occasion were unusually costly. They as a matter of fact presented Preston with nine of their eleven runs and threw away a glorious chance to tie up the series.

* * * * * *

The re-play of the tie in the evening had the Westclockers at a disadvantage. When the afternoon game was finally called no contest and the rain continued to come down, both clubs took it for granted there would be no more ball Saturday and the managements were busy trying to make some arrangement for deciding the series this week. The Westclockers had changed into their street costumes and were just about to leave for their evening meal when the sun suddenly popped out and the umpires hurried down to the ball park, inspected the diamond and announced that it was fit to play on. Then the Big Bens had to hustle into their wet ball uniforms again and rush back to the park. By that time they were both tired and jittery but they battled hard nevertheless and it was a nip-and-tuck tussle until Preston scored three times in the sixth to take the verdict 4 to 1.

* * * * * *

It was a tough afternoon for Tommy Bullock who took over the pitching duties with one out in the first inning of the afternoon game, pitched 9 2-3 innings to complete that battle and then went in as starting pitcher against Rivulettes in the evening tilt. Altogether the Westclox catcher-pitcher twirled nearly 17 innings, most of the time with a wet ball and with the additional handicap of having defensive slips bobbing up constantly to keep the pressure on all the time. She held the Rivulettes to three earned runs in her long tenure on the hilltop and with adequate support should have come through with an easy victory in the afternoon engagement. Her work in the second game was made all the more difficult by reason of the fact that the Westclockers' offence folded up in that battle and they could not give their hard-working pitcher any runs to work on. Under the circumstances Tommy was the outstanding figure of the day and earned brackets.

For A Worthy Cause

Playing in aid of the British War Victims' Fund and the St. John Ambulance Society, Brintons and Electrics will clash at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight in what may be the last softball game of the season. Three draw prizes are offered the holders of three lucky numbers. Brintons now lead the series for the intermediate title and the Knox Cup with three straight wins and can take the round with a win tonight. Electrics, however, have confidence that they can prolong the series by tossing the Carpetweavers for a loss and Manager Batley's team are determined that they will win at least one game in the playoffs. It should be a lively argument and with all the proceeds going to two worthy causes should pack in the customers. The game is called for 6.30 o'clock and will have to start on time because darkness comes early these evenings.

* * * * * *

If all inter-city series could be conducted on the same high plane of good sportsmanship that distinguished the Preston-Westclox playoffs it would be a fine thing for sport. The two teams battled hard on the diamond and the managements had arguments over suggested playoff arrangements but the best of feeling prevailed at all times. When Saturday night's game was over, the Westclockers, disappointed but game, gave three cheers for the Rivulettes, and then rushed across to the Preston bench to congratulate the winners. The players of both clubs fraternized after the game, autographs and addresses were exchanged and there were mutual wishes that the two clubs might meet again another season. The manager of the Preston team entertained the Westclox officials and some of the players at his home in Galt after the game and all-in-all the series, outside of its outcome on the field, was one of the most enjoyable in which the Westclockers have ever been engaged. The Preston girls agreed that they too had found the clash with the Peterborough team the most pleasant series of the whole season.

Cards Take The Lead

The big feature in the major league campaign is of course the fact that the Brooklyn Dodgers who a month ago were ahead of the National League parade by 10½ games, today find themselves in second place, a full game behind the on-rushing St. Louis Cards. The Bums are in the throes of a terrific slump and unless they snap out of it soon the Yanks will have to travel to St. Louis for part of the world series. When the Cards and Dodgers opened a two game series Friday the Brooklyn club was two games up. The Cardinals swept the series, winning 3 to 0 Friday with Mort Cooper pitching and coming back Saturday to take the verdict 2 to 1 with Max Lanier tossing a five-hitter. Sunday the Brooklyn decline continued for the Dodgers lost both ends of a double-header to the Cincinnati Reds 6 to 3 and 4 to 1. Bucky Walters outpitched Buck Newsom to take the first game and Ray Starr held the Bums to five hits in grabbing off the second. Meanwhile the Cards were breaking even with the Phillies, losing the first game 2 to 1 but coming back to nose out the Philadelphia club 3 to 2 in the second. The Cards might have had a two-game lead today but the Phillies got two in the ninth to grab the first game away from them.

Still another well known Peterborough athlete has decided to enlist in the Canadian Navy. He is Les Ascott, star football lineman, last year with Argos who is joined the Navy forces in Toronto. Ascott, who was home over the week-end announced that he had resolved to throw in his lot with the Navy and would have his medical examination today in Toronto. If he goes through, the big wingman will of course line up with the Navy football squad in the senior O.R.F.U. race. Balmy Beach had been counting on his services but H.M.C.S. York will be Ascott's address for time being.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—(AP). — Van Lingle Mungo, brought up from the minors recently to aid a wobbly New York Giant pitching staff, is through for the season. Mungo, formerly with Brooklyn before being sent to Minneapolis of the American Association, twisted a knee Friday and doctors today told him to refrain from hurling until next Spring.

Kawartha Club Title Goes To Charlie Low

By DAVE PRICE

When the 1942 golfing season opened, Charlie Low had his golf sights set on only one goal: The Kawartha Club championship, and he has been working toward that goal all year. Yesterday, his ambition was fulfilled, when, in the 36-hole championship match, he defeated Fraser Dunfield 4 and 3. Now, Charlie has raised his sights, and would like to play the Peterborough winner for the city championship.

Low, by no means had everything his own way. Starting out in the morning round, Dunfield was 4 up at the end of the first six holes, and three up at the end of the first nine. From then on Low's shots started to click, and his approach shots were particularly effective. Low won the tenth, twelfth and thirteenth, to square the match. Dunfield went out in front two holes, when he picked up the fourteenth and fifteenth. Low won the 16th, they halved the 17th, and Low won the 18th, to finish the first eighteen all square. Both golfers shot a 79, for the first eighteen, but it was evident that it would take a better score than that to win the afternoon round.

Afternoon Round

Dunfield won the first hole in the afternoon, with a birdie three. The next three holes were halved. Low won the fifth with a birdie four, the sixth was halved, and then Low took three in a row, to win the first nine 3 up, with a score of 35, even par. Charlie won the 19th, the 11th was halved. Dunfield won the 12th with a birdie three, his second birdie of the round. The 13th was halved with two pars. Low won the 14th and they stepped up to the 15th tee, with Low ahead 4 up and 4 to go. The 15th was halved, and Charlie Low was 1942 Club champion, 4 up and 3 to play. They finished out the eighteen, and Low turned in a card of 37 on the back nine. He put two nines together for a very respectful 72, one over par. Dunfield put a 38 and 37 together for a 75. Low deserves a lot of credit for his win, and no one has ever worked harder for a championship. As stated, he has been working towards this goal all season, and he has worked hard. As a lot of golfers will tell you, Dunfield is a mighty tough opponent whether playing for marbles or silverware.

In all fairness to Fraser, it should go on record that he was playing under a terrific handicap. Mrs. Dunfield has been seriously ill the past week, and her illness was a definite mental handicap to Fraser. But Charlie Low's 72 was not to be denied and he proved himself a real money player, the way he came back during the morning round. Charlie's win will be a very popular one with the club members. Fraser has had his name engraved on the cup, before and this is the first time Charlie has even reached the finals.

Here are the scores:

Morning Round

Out Par	453 453 443—35
Dunfield	453 454 553—38
Low	554 555 543—41
In Par	444 543 534—36
Dunfield	545 553 635—41
Low	444 464 534—38

Afternoon Round

Out Par	453 453 443—35
Dunfield	353 454 554—38
Low	453 444 443—35
In Par	444 543 534—36
Dunfield	543 554 434—37
Low	444 544 534—37

In the Sunday ball sweep, Gordon Munro came out on top with a net 33. Lionel Browne and Dave Price were runners-up with net 34's.

As a prelude to Saturday night's corn roast and old time dance, a mixed Scotch foursome was played Saturday afternoon. The rain didn't mean a thing, except that all players got plenty wet. However the spirit was willing, and every foursome finished. Of course, as expected, the weather cleared as the ninth green was reached.

Lindsay Tennis Aggregation Beats Quaker Team 4 Matches To 3

St. Mary's Tennis Club met the Quakers in Lindsay over the week-end and with the unpalatable memory of two previous defeats still fresh in mind handed the redoubtable Quakermen their just desserts with a four matches to three serving. Both clubs were happy about the whole thing and parted with an after taste as luscious as that of Muffets. The locals met their too familiar jinx in the men's doubles division where they were forced to give all three matches to the Saints. In the mixed doubles the Quakers managed to gobble up three out of four matches for their contribution to the proceedings. Players of both clubs were fresh from an enforced lay-off from tennis due to unfavorable weather and perfect conditions welcomed them back in this enjoyable tourney. Although Quaker courts have endured almost a week of mud bathing it is hoped that they will be in condition for the next meet Tuesday. Now to discuss the seven ingredients of Lindsay's latest dish.

St. Mary's flashy young team of Jim Doran and Joe Baker mixed it up with George Scott and Ralph Charlton, coming out on top after a strong rally following a poor showing in the first set. A fortnight ago this same team followed the identical routine as was displayed yesterday by losing the first set 1-6 and romping through the second and third in championship form. Disorganized team work lost the opener but miracuolusly disappeared as Doran and Baker took the match 1-6, 6-3 and 6-2. Fast and furious tennis kept the attention of the gallery focused on this match and since the date was the thirteenth it proved both lucky and unlucky to the divided interests of players and fans.

Until this tourney the doubles squad of Howard Macdonald and Roy Johnston had been undefeated but there is always a first time and in this case it was Bill Callaghan and Jim Doran who ended the winning streak of the Quaker team. The Saints took two straight sets 6-3, 6-4 to knock Quaker prestige for a loop.

Jack Callaghan and Rhys Williams chalked up another victory after three tight sets 6-4, 4-6 and 7-5 against Horace Fisher and Al Conlin. Play was even in the first two sets but the third was a major upset. 'Leave it to Lindsay to make a fighting comeback,' is going to become a moto for the St. Mary's group if other whirlwind finishes are in the offing. Callaghan and Williams waited until the Quakers had a 4-1 advantage in the final set before starting their spurt to take the set and match 7-5.

Eleanor Meehan and Bill Callaghan had a pleasant battle with Dorothy Weese and Walter Jones but were finally dethroned by the Quakers in straight sets 6-2 and 7-5. This match was lively and proved to be a barrel of fun for both teams.

The brother and sister team of Lucy and Jack Callaghan had two much co-ordination and too little discordance for Isabel Martin and Roger Barrie who fought both the Lindsayites and Old Sol before ceding victory in the match destined to break the tie between the two clubs in the tourney. Lindsay snared the match neatly with a 6-4, 6-1 decision.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Duncan made a brilliant rally for Peterborough as they overcame Kay Meehan and J. G. Sabourin 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. The Quakers were steadier than their opponents and used this to advantage for their win.

Helen Hennessey and Guy Mills fought hard against Ula Porter and Warren Trotter before the Quakers won out 6-1, 6-3. Both teams played wide-open tennis with the Quakers finally outdriving the Lindsayites.

Refreshments were served and made short work of by the famished club members. Lindsay hopes to tie this inter-club series up in the next engagement but the locals promise stern opposition before agreeing to such an outcome.

Out of five tourneys in the past month the Quakers have come out victorious in three, amassing a total of nineteen matches as against sixteen for rival clubs. This is encouraging news for local tennis fans who believe that tennis still has a high position in city soprt circles.

Peterboro Club Defeats Oshawa 78-43

The local cricketers travelled to Oshawa on Saturday to play the third of four matches arranged between the clubs. Honors were even in the first two matches, Peterborough winning here on July 5 by 48 to 35, and Oshawa winning there on August 22 by 34 to 22, and on Saturday the local team won by 78 to 43.

Oshawa could only put nine men in the field and rain fell during part of the match, but play was carried on and the match finished with the result as stated.

P.-W. batted first and thanks to good work by the opening batsmen the total was taken to 58 for 3 wickets. Colbran got 10 in short order and Langhorne and Pagett took it to 25 when the latter unfortunately placed a ball on to his wicket. Smith then joined Langhorne and the pair made the best stand of the day putting on 33 runs before Smith was bowled for the day's high score of 22. He has been out of luck lately, but played a fine innings on Saturday. Five runs later Langhorne was bowled for a strong defensive innings of 8. He was in when 63 runs were scored. Wild batted steadily for 7, but could get no one to stay with him. Two men were run out and the innings closed for 78, including 17 extras generously provided by Oshawa.

Against the bowling of Dyer (3 for 16) and Colbran (5 for 24) Oshawa, never looked like getting the runs. Howarth was top scorer with 13. Six wickets were down for 29 and the short-handed Oshawa team's total was 42, leaving the P.-W. men winners by 35 runs.

The clubs will meet again at Nichols Oval on Saturday, September 26 to end the season.

Remember When—

By the Canadian Press.

Jack Dempsey picked himself up from the press table and flattened Luis Angel Firpo in one of the greatest modern-day heavyweight boxing fights staged at New York, 21 years ago to-night. Knocked down six times Firpo sent the champion through the ropes in the first round. Dempsey sprawled Firpo to the canvas twice more before the knockout in the second round.

Newark Held To Two Hits

By The Associated Press.

Jersey City's forgotten man, Pitcher John Carl Wittig, jogged the memory of many Giant fans Sunday.

The 28-year-old righthander, handicapped most of the season with a bad shoulder, kalsomined the pennant-winning Newark Bears 3-0 on two hits for the Jerseys' first victory in the semi-final round of the International League's Governors' Cup playoffs.

While Wittig was handing the Bears their first defeat Ewell Blackwell was blanking Montreal Royals 6-0 for Syracuse Chiefs in the oft-delayed starter of the other semi-final series.

Wittig didn't allow a Bear to reach second and the only safe blows off his delivery were singled by Bud Metheny in the fourth and by Bill Johnson in the eighth. He walked four and fanned seven.

He won his own ball game, too, hoisting a 360-foot fly that brought home Nap Reyes with the first Jersey tally in the third frame. The Giants scored again in the fifth on a walk to Joe Orengo, a sacrifice by Hugh Poland and hits by Reyes and Buddy Kerr. Nino Bongiovanni, Sid Gordon and Orengo connected in succession for the third tally in the sixth.

Blackwell, 19-year-old skyscraper, gave up six hits in registering his shutout. Two double plays helped him out of his difficulties, along with seven strikeouts.

Stanley Payne Defeats Robert Abbott

His deft work on the greens enabled Stanley Payne to win the championship of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club yesterday when he triumphed over the veteran Bob Abbott in the final round 4 and 3 in a very interesting match.

It was Payne's second championship. His opponent of course has won the title on a number of occasions and has always been up near the top, so that yesterday's clash was a match between two experienced opponents. As usual Abbott drove beautifully all through the battle but his putting touch failed to duplicate his driving power and the match was won and lost on the greens where Payne's steady putting earned him the verdict.

Play was very even during he morning round, but Payne edged into a slight lead and was one up at the end of the pre-luncheon battling. The champ continued to play steady golf in the afternoon and not only held his margin but increased it until the issue was decided on the 33rd hole, with Payne four up and three to go. It was a fine struggle all the way and the two finalists, two of the finest golfers in the Peterborough Club, put on an interesting exhibition before the championship was decided.

ELECTRICITY
Effective as of the 20th Day of September, 1942

The following are excerpts from Order No. PC8 issued by the Dominion Power Controller, and apply to the use of electricity by and the supply of electricity to a person or persons in any area in Canada designated a Power Shortage area.

The area in Ontario designated as a power shortage area by the Dominion Power Controller is all that part of the Province of Ontario lying south of the line from Parry Sound, Ontario, to Huntsville, Ontario and from Huntsville to Pembroke, Ontario, including the municipalities situated on this line, which area is served by the Niagara, Eastern Ontario and Georgian Bay Systems of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and by a number of other electric utilities.

SECTION 2. CERTAIN USES OF ELECTRICITY PROHIBITED

Except as provided in Section 3 next following, no person shall use electricity for the operation in any Power Shortage Area of lighting or electrically operated equipment or installations for:
Interior or exterior sign lighting (whether commercial or non-commercial) but not including direction signs in stores and signs at the office or residence of a medical practitioner;
Interior or exterior show window and showcase lighting (but not including stock wardrobes);
Interior or exterior outline or arnamental lighting;
Interior or exterior lighting for decorative or advertising purposes;
Outdoor lighting and floodlighting;
provided however that the following shall be exempt from this subsection:
Such lighting of marquees or sidewalk canopies as is necessary for public safety up to but not exceeding one-half watt per square foot of floor or sidewalk area covered by such marquee or canopy;
Such exterior lighting of entrances to and exits from buildings as is required for public safety up to but not exceeding 5 watts per foot of width of such entrances or exits;
Such exterior lighting of the facilities of gasoline service stations as is necessary for the safe and proper operation of outside equipment up to but not exceeding 100 watts per active gasoline pump;
Lighting between the hours of 4.00 and 10.00 p.m. of outdoor skating rinks up to 1 watt per 100 square feet of skating surface;
Lighting for places where outdoor sports are carried on, subject to such restrictions as the Power Controller may from time to time impose.
The operation of any electric air heater or electric grate in a store or office building.
The lighting of any theatre, music hall or concert hall to an extent involving the use of not more than 40 watts per hundred square feet of floor area and the lighting of any entrance to or exit from such place or any passageway leading from the street to the body of such place to an extent not greater than is necessary for public safety.

SECTION 3. USES EXCEPTED FROM SECTION TWO

The provisions of Section 2 next preceding shall not apply to lighting essential to the construction, operation, maintenance and repair of the following services:
Ordinary street lighting and lighting for traffic control and signal systems; provided that the power used for street lighting shall be reduced by at least 20% from that ordinarily used, except in areas which are lit by series arc lamps located more than 200 feet apart and that no street light shall be lit before one-half hour before sunset or after one-half hour after sunrise;
Signal or other lighting for police, fire or other public safety requirements or devices;
Lighting for war production plants;
Airports and air fields, military training or other military purposes;
Hospitals and schools;
Urban, suburban and interurban common or contract carriers for passengers or freight, including terminals;
Railways, terminals and related facilities;
Generation, transmission and distribution of electric power;
Shipping on inland waters, including locks and terminals;
Oil pipe lines, refineries and pumping stations;
Maintenance and repair yards or shops used exclusively for the maintenance or repair of transportation services;
Post offices;
Radio communications;
Telephone and telegraph systems;
Water supply and sanitation systems, including waterworks, pumping stations and sewage disposal plants and equipment;
Natural and mixed gas systems, including manufacturing plants, pipe lines, pumping stations and facilities;
Military establishments, including cantonments, posts, depots and fortifications;
News dissemination (but not for any advertising purposes).

PRESTON RIVULETTES ELIMINATE WESTCLOX GIRLS FROM SERIES

Second Game Ends In Deadlock While Preston Girls Wins Third Game 4 Runs To One

By FRED CRAIG

Westclox girls were eliminated from the Ontario playdowns Saturday at Preston but only after they had battled the Rivulettes through 18 innings.

The original program called for the teams to meet in the afternoon with a third game to be played in the evening if the Big Bens won the afternoon tilt. But an unexpected twist saw the two rivals play an 11-11 10-innings tie in the afternoon with a heavy shower presenting the deadlock being broken. That tie had to be played off on a wet, slippery diamond in an evening battle which the Rivulettes won by 4 to 1, thus taking the round in two straight games.

The Big Bens had to be decidedly unlucky not to have tied up the series with a win in the afternoon. Showing the greatest attack punch they have displayed all season, they hammered two Preston pitchers for a total of 22 hits as against nine by the Rivulettes and yet failed to win because their defense fell apart. Preston only scored two earned runs, the other nine being handed to them through six Westclox errors, each of which hurt worse than an ulcerated tooth.

The Big Bens, coming from behind, had a lead of 11 to 7 at the end of their half of the eighth and then blew the margin with a couple of costly outfield errors that enabled Rivulettes to score three in the eighth and another in the ninth to tie the score. The rivals failed to break the tie in the tenth and the game was called for half an hour with the rain which had been falling for the last four innings coming down harder. It was still raining an hour after and the battle was permanently called off then.

Marg. Watson started on the hilltop for the Westclockers but was hit hard and got wobbly support in the first inning and was finally relieved by Isobel Bullock, after the Rivulettes had scored five runs with only one out. The relief hurler retired the side promptly and for the balance of the game held the Preston girls to six scattered hits and one earned run and should have earned an easy win of it had not been for the fielding misplays of her teammates. It was a tough break for the relief pitcher who had the Preston batters handcuffed, if her defence had not failed her.

Marg. Hawthorne with a double and three singles led the Westclox 22-hit attack, Eunice Armstrong and Verna Patterson each had two doubles and a single and Aggie Anderson a double and two singles. Every one of the Big Bens got at least one hit and the club hit safely in every inning but the sixth.

Albina Patrinka started on the mound for the Rivulettes and the Westclockers took kindly to her offerings from the start, although good support kept her in there until the seventh when she was finally driven to the showers by a barrage of hits. Eenie Ernst who pitched the game here finished the heaving job.

Preston outfielders did their best to hold up their pitchers by covering lots of ground to gather in nine flies.

Big Bens Start Well

Westclox got away to a good start. Aggie Anderson beat out a bunt but was out stealing. V. McLean popped to the pitcher. Eunice Armstrong doubled to right. Marg. Hawthorne grounded to short and Eunice Armstrong was safe at third when Verna Edwards dropped the shortstop's throw. Tommy Bullock's triple to right sent the two runs in after which Marg Watson rolled out.

Preston came back with five. Nellie Ranscombe beat out a roller to short and Helen Demmery got a life on her tap when Eunice Armstrong's foot was off first base on the throw there. Betty Hallman fouled to Tommy Bullock but Eenie Ernst tripled to left to score two. Ruth Swaniga flied to left and reached second when Audrey Patterson dropped the fly, E. Ernst scoring. V. Evans homered to left on a drive that V. Patterson failed to hold on the run and R. Swaniga ran home ahead of her. Tommy Bullock took over the pitching burden and got the next two batters.

There was no further scoring until the fourth when Westclox got two runs on V. McLean's single to short, Eunice Armstrong's double to right and Marg. Hawthorne's single over second.

That made it 5 to 4 but Preston increased their lead with a couple of unearned runs in the sixth. Ruth Swaniga walked to start with and V. Evans got a life when A. Anderson dropped her short fly. Mary Esch lined to Vern Patterson, who made a nice catch and the Big Bens should have had an easy double play as the base-runners were on the move on the play. However they tossed the ball around until there was a bad throw and got nobody. H. Ranscombe popped up for what should have been the third out. Then a wild pitch scored R. Swaniga and V. Evans went home on A. Patrinka's single to left.

A Real Barrage

It was 7 to 4 when the Big Bens went to bat in the seventh and they cut loose with one of their heaviest batting bombardments of the season. Marg. Hawthorne started it with her third hit in succession, a single through short. Tommy Bullock singled in the same spot and the rally was on. It stopped for a moment when Marg. Watson flied out but Audrey Patterson singled through short, Vern Patterson doubled to right and Doris Walker singled to left to score four runs and A. Patrinka, the starting pitcher, was lifted at this stage. Eenie Ernst who took over got a hot reception too, for Aggie Anderson greeted her with a double to left and V. McLean singled to right for two more runs. There might have been more but Westclox got the worst of a decision at second by Umpire Pollock who called Toots McLean out as she tried to stretch her hit into a double and Eunice Armstrong flied to right to end the big inning.

That left the Big Bens in front 10 to 7 and they increased the gap by scoring a run in the eighth. Marg. Hawthorne opened with her fourth hit, a double to right. Tommy Bullock rolled out but Marg Watson singled past second to send the run in. A. Patterson flied to right but Verna Patterson doubled to right for her third safe blow. Doris Walker popped to short.

Preston struck back in their half. Ruth Swaniga struck out, but V. Evans singled over second and Mary Esch drew a walk. Helen Ranscombe singled to left, scoring R. Swaniga and when Audrey Patterson let the ball roll through, the batter went all the way round, V. Evans also scoring in front her on the error. It was a tough break for the next two batters were easy outs.

The Rivulettes tied it up in the ninth. Helen Demmery singled to left to start the frame but was forced at second. Eenie Ernst drew a walk. R. Swaniga singled to centre. When the ball trickled past Aggie Anderson, Helen Dammery scored and Eenie Ernst ran to third and the batter to second. V. Evans rolled to Marg Watson and E. Ernst was out at the plate and M. Esch popped to Marg. Hawthorne.

There was no scoring in the tenth, M. Watson got a single for the Big Bens but was left on the bases while Preston went out in order.

A Pitchers' Battle

The re-play of the tie was ordered at 6 o'clock, when the rain suddenly stopped and the sun broke through the clouds. The grass diamond was very slippery when the teams returned to the park and the ball was wet, but in spite of that the teams staged a good battle. It was a pitching duel between Eenie Ernst, the blonde pitcher with the jerky delivery who twirled for the Rivulettes when they visited Peterborough and Tommy Bullock who after pitching 9 2-3 innings in the afternoon tussle was sent right back at the Preston team.

For five innings the teams were deadlocked with a run each and both counters were tainted. Then Preston bunched four hits with a couple of Westclox errors in the 6th inning to score three runs and that was the ball game, play being called at the end of the first half of the eighth with the score 4 to 1 for the Rivulettes.

Westclox evidently used up all their batting punch in the afternoon game for Eenie Ernst held them to six hits and refused to allow more than one in any one frame.

The fielding feature of the game was Aggie Anderson's catch of a foul fly. She had to run over the left field foul line to make the grab.

Westclox had a chance in the first when V. McLean walked with one out and after Eunice Armstrong had fanned Marg Hawthorne singled past third Tommy Bullock popped out to end the chance.

Preston took the lead in their half. Nellie Ranscombe drew a pass. Shirley Stevens fanned but Betty Hallman's fly to left was misjudged by Aggie Anderson and went for a double, N. Ranscombe scoring. E. Ernst singled to centre sending B. Hallman to third but R. Swaniga fanned and V. Evans flied to Doris Walker in centre.

The Big Bens tied it up with a soft run in the second. Marg. Watson doubled to right and when she tried to stretch it into a triple there was a wild throw to third on which she ran home. It was Westclox's only run.

There was no more scoring until the sixth when Preston staged the winning rally. R. Swaniga opened with a single to left. V. Evans flied to centre. M. Esch singled to centre and when it rolled through A. Anderson, R. Swaniga scored. H. Ranscombe doubled to left, scoring M. Esch. A. Patrinka got a life on an error and after Nellie Ranscombe had struck out S. Stevens singled to left to send in another run.

The winners had another good chance in the seventh to increase their lead. E. Ernst got a life when M. Hawthorne dropped her pop fly R. Swaniga singled and V. Evans walked, filled the bases with nobody out. Tommy Bullock however forced M. Esch and Helen Ranscombe to pop to Verna Patterson adn A. Patrinka to float an easy fly to A. Anderson.

Dodgers Drop Two Games To Cincinnati

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers are beginning to look like a couple of playboys with empty pockets "fighting" for the cheque in a nightclub, and it might be that they've just discovered the Yankees are about to clinch the American League pennant.

You know, the National League winner has to take on the Yanks in the World Series, and in five of the last six sets that has turned out to be an unhappy predicament.

Yanks now can put the clincher on the 1942 flag. A victory for the Bombers in Cleveland this afternoon or a loss for Boston Red Sox in Chicago means the sixth pennant for the Yanks in seven years.

The news may have affected the work of the Dodgers and Cards. Anyway there were few signs yesterday that either the collapsible Flatbush Follies or the hot and cold Cards were any too anxious to get in there as the Yankees' sparing partners—or targets.

As a matter of cold fact, the Dodgers, after three days of dropping their stitches one at a time, came completely apart at the seams, losing both ends of a double-header to Cincinnati, 6-3 and 4-1. And it's probably a lucky thing they're able to close for repairs until their next start on Wednesday.

Cards Divide Bill.

Meantime, the Cards were somewhat better in splitting a bargain bill with the Phillies to take a one-game edge in the race.

But with a chance to make it a two-game bulge placed right in their laps they handed the first game to the Phils 2-1. They did it on a couple of errors with two out in the ninth inning. After that they took the nightcap 3-2 when Terry Moore broke a tie with his fifth homer of the year.

Brooklyn's efforts weren't nearly as close. In the first game, Bucky Walters pitched their ears off with a six-hitter and then knocked the roof in on them with a jackpot three-run double. And in the nightcap, Ray Starr, who has been about as tough for Brooklyn in the past as a walk in the park, tossed a five-hitter at them.

This tied a modern National League record, but before the afternoon was over, the mark was broken. The "hero" in this case was young Lennie Merullo, Chicago Cubs' new shortstop. Apparently excited over word that he was a brand new father, Lennie fumbled four in one frame of the Cubs' second game with Boston Braves, but Chicago managed to hang on in spite of it to win 11-8. The Braves took the opener 11-6.

Yankees Win Two

The Yankees arrived at the pennant doorstep by mowing down Cleveland 9-1 and 4-1 behind Red Ruffing and Hank Borowy. The Red Sox also clicked twice, over Chicago White Sox, 6-1 and 5-0, with Bill Butland winning his seventh in a row in the first game and Tex Hughson collecting his 19th victory of the season in the afterpiece.

Otherwise, the boys were just playing out the string. New York Giants knocked over Pittsburg twice 5-0, as young Bob Carpenter tossed his second straight shutout. and 5-3.

St. Louis Browns ran off an hid twice from Philadelphia Athletics 7-0 and 3-2. Washington and Detroit broke even, the Nats winning the first 5-2 and the Tigers taking the nightcap 8-0.

The Cardinals' 2-1 victory over the Dodgers that brought them into a tie for the National League featured Saturday's games. In other contests, Cincinnati defeated the Phils and Boston won by the same score over Pittsburg. The second game of the doubleheaders ended in a 2-2 tie after 11 innings when darkness set in.

In the American League, Washington went 12 innings to turn back the surging St. Louis Brown 7-6, Detroit had to go 11 innings to win 6-5 over Philadelphia. New York humbled the White Sox 7-1 and Boston beat Cleveland 8-6.

Persecution Complex Hits Dodgers

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—What the Dodgers have, in addition to a fight on their hands, is a persecution complex, says Gabe Paul, secretary of Cincinnati Reds. He says it with grim satisfaction.

"We're not trying to beat them any harder than we're trying to beat any other team in the National League," Gabe insisted. "But they think we are, and that's what's getting 'em down. It's a wonder they haven't gone running to the league president about the way everybody's picking on them.

"You know the old saying, something about reaping what you sow, don't you? Well, that's what's happening to the Dodgers rights now. All year they've been hollering 'teacher' every time something happened they didn't like. Some of them, like Coach Chuck Dressen, have said some pretty mean things to rival players, too. They're getting it all back now.

"Last time they came to Cincinnati they beefed that we pitched Vander Meer out of turn against them. We didn't, but it's a wonder they didn't take it up with the district attorney. Another time they yelled because we didn't remove the infield covering exactly when they wanted us to. It had been raining, see.

"And the way they've screamed about pitchers throwing at them! You wouldn't think they started it, would you? Goodness no. But before the big shooting started this summer there was even a magazine article about how the Dodgers admired their pitcher Max Macon because he wasn't afraid to dust off a batter.

"What they want, is to throw at batters and not get thrown at, themselves. If they can't have it that way, then they get a persecution complex. They think everybody's persecuting them. When all that's really happening is the other clubs aren't laying down to them. Why should we do them any favors? We're trying to finish in fourth place.

"I'm not saying there aren't good Dodgers. Lew Riggs is a nice fellow. He used to be with us. And I like Durocher all right, too. A lot of people don't like Leo, but I believe in liking a fellow according to the way he treats me. There are worse fellows than Leo."

Whirlaway Wins $24,300 Stake

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Sept. 14 (AP)—The year's "dream race" turned into a nightmare Saturday when Alsab refused to tangle with Whirlaway in the Narragansett Special—and he's probably lucky he didn't.

For Whirly ran one of his greatest races to come from far back, win the "big heat" going away, and get even for all the things they said about him when he lost this same rich stake a year ago.

With the $24,300 he won, he skyrocketed his gaudy all-time record bankroll to $491,136, jut a pitch and putt away from his $500,000 goal.

And the way Whirly did it, coming from as far back as he never came before—in fact, just about as far back as he possibly could and still remain on the same race track with the others—it is doubtful if even Alsab could have matched the lightning he turned loose on the stretch. He was some sixteen lengths out of it at one point, and it looked as if Jockey Georgie Woolf just couldn't get him out of a mild lope. Suddenly he turned it loose—and it was just a romp.

A lot was taken out of the race when Owner Al Sabath, the Chicago lawyer, who owns Alsab, withdrew his 3-year-old a few hours before the race with the explanation to Narragansett Park officials that the colt's arrival Thursday was too late to permit him to carry out the scheduled training plans that had been mapped out for the horse. Yet Trainer Sarge Swenke had told turf writers Friday that "the Sab shipped well and is in the best condition of his life."

As a result of the disappointment to an estimated 30,000 fans who turned out for the show and to back 'Gansett's Army-Navy relief program, Track President James E. Dooley announced this racing plant would put up a $25,000 purse for a match race between Alsab and Warren Wright's Whizzer here next Saturday.

Dooley said Narragansett's contribution to America's soldiers and sailors from Saturday's card was $101,804, which, added to this little plant's $58,227 offering from its spring meeting, makes the track the turf's biggest single contributor in the United States.

Whirlaway, $2.80 for $2 in the betting, toted 130 pounds in the special—spotting the other six horses in the race up to 30 pounds apiece—and hit the wire in 1.56 2-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths, just 1 2-5 seconds off the track record. He did it wearing a new isinglass blinker to protect his infected right eye.

Farm Incomes Showing Sharp Increase

OTTAWA, Sept 14 — (CP). — Cash income from the sale of farm products in Canada in the first six months of 1942 totalled $399,200,000 against $343,300,000 in the same period in 1941 and $259,300,000 in 1940 the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated.

The most important feature of the 1942 cash income was the substantial increase which occurred in the returns from live stock and live stock products.

Income from wheat was sharply lower in the first half of 1942 as compared with the same period of 1941. This reduction was due to the abnormally large proportion of the 1940 crop marketed during the early months of 1941.

Income from cattle and calves increased from $53,800,000 in the first half of 1941 to $76,000,000 in 1942. Income from hogs increased from $62,200,000 to $89,300,000, and in the case of dairy products the increase was from $70,200,000 to $97,400,000. Greater output combined with higher prices were responsible for these increases.

Main Gain in Ontario.

Cash income in the first half of 1942 was greater than in the same months of 1941 in all Provinces except Saskatchewan. The greatest increase occurred in Ontario where live stock and live stock products predomnate as sources of arm income. Substantial gains were also recorded in Quebec, the Maritime Provices and British Columbia.

The bureau said the greatest percentage of farm cash income is usually received during the last six months of the year when marketings of grain and live stock are at a high level. In 1941 total cash income for the year was $876,500,000 of which 39.2 per cent had been received up to the end of June. In 1940, when there was a more normal distribution of income from wheat, only 35.1 per cent of the total income for the year was received during the first six months.

"Record yields of grain and a further expansion in live stock production should result in a high level of income to farmers during the last half of 1942," the bureau said. "Income from wheat, however, will depend largely on the volume of deliveries which will be possible in the light of the crowded storage situation. The minimum price of wheat is, however, 20 cents per bushel higher than a year ago.

Subsidies Excluded.

"Income received by farmers in the form of Government subsidies and bonus payments are not included in these calculations, except in those cases where the assistance has resulted in higher prices to the producers."

The bureau stated the cash income from sale of farm products for the first six months of the year, by Provinces, was as follows, with 1941 figures in brackets:

Prince Edward Island $4,606,000 ($2,892,999); Nova Scotia $8,821,000 ($7,011,000); New Brunswick $8,905,000 ($6,039,000); Quebec $67,024,000 ($54,104,000); Ontario $148,144,000 ($106,510,000); Manitoba $23,288,000 ($26,516,000); Saskatchewan $48,525,000 ($63,501,000); Alberta $65,961,000 ($65,331,000); British Columbia $14,914,000 ($11,407,000).

Centenary W.A. Is Planning Bazaar

CENTENARY, Sept. 14—(ENS). —The business session at the meeting of Centenary United Church W. A. held on Thursday afternoon was devoted to plans for a bazaar to be held in Roseneath town hall early in October.

Departments planned and conveners of committees named for each were: Farm Table, Mrs. I. Skuce; Home Cooking, Miss Jessie Sherwin; Needlework, Mrs. Arnold Elder; Afternoon Tea, Mrs. W. Smith, with Mrs. D. Sherin as tea convener; Children's Department, Mrs. N. Lean; Miscellaneous, Mrs. Bruce Arthur; Decorating, Mrs. I. Skuce; Price committee, conveners of departments.

It was decided to forward Christmas boxes to the soldiers enlisted from Centenary community.

A letter of thanks from the Dominion Board of the United Church of Canada was read for war saving certificate to be applied to the United church deficit.

W. A. Meeting.

Mrs. W. Houghtailing was hostess on Wednesday afternoon when the W. A. meeting of St. James' Anglican church was held in her home, with Mrs. R. McCracken, president, in the chair.

While routine business was transacted the members quilted a quilt to be turned in to the Roseneath Red Cross Branch, and materials were brought in for a second quilt. A donation of two dozen eggs, or price of same from each member was received, adding $5.50 to the treasury.

Following a discussion regarding sending boxes overseas at Christmas, it was decided to forward these boxes after the Christmas season to all enlisted men from Alnwick township.

Find Lad's Body

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP)—The Welland Ship Canal this morning yielded the body of seven-year-old Bernard McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, Port Colborne, who has been missing from his home since Tuesday noon. The body was found at Ramey's Bend, about one and a half miles north of here, shortly before seven o'clock this morning.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

TO START DRIVE

Officials at the Y.M.C.A. are busy lining up the winter's program, and will start the annual membership drive on Sept. 25. Many newcomers to the city between the ages of 17 and 19 have already obtained memberships in this organization.

LEAVES ARE FALLING

Push broom men who manicure the city streets had quite a few wagon-loads of leaves to sweep up as they made their rounds on Saturday, another sign that winter is coming pounding down the stretch of 1942, to make citizens conscious of fuel bills, and rubber footwear.

A HAPPY MEMORY.

Mrs. Walter Barringer on Bolivar street got quite a thrill out of reading the "How Time Flies" column in the Examiner on Friday. It listed that a girl of 12 giving the name was congratulated for flagging down a passenger train at Lock street and thus averted a collision. Mrs. Barringer was the little girl, and she remembers that she waved her hair ribbon and pointed at the other train which was stopped around a bend. Fortunately the engineer noticed the signal and stopped in time. "It brought back happy memories to me when I read this little item," she said.

SUCCESSFUL CAMP.

Camp Kawartha operating for its 21st season had 122 different boys enrolled for periods ranging from 2 days to six weeks. Of this number 78 were from Peterborough and 44 from out of town. There was not a serious accident during the camp period.

ANNUAL VISITOR

A pheasant flew in the back door at the home of E. H. Jewell, 121 Stewart street on Friday evening, to startle four little girls who were having a birthday party. The girls shut the door quickly and captured the badly frightened bird, which was not injured in any way. Mr. Jewell proposes to hand the newcomer over to Ross Dobbin to be added to the collection up at the Filtration plant.

MRS. MINIVER.

Some of the natives have been bringing back opinions about the film "Mrs. Miniver." This is what the Liverpool Daily Post says of it: "Almost everything that can be slightly wrong with the film in relation to English village life is wrong, is not to say that people here, too, will not enjoy the escape from reality. But, the more films we get like it, the less possibility will there be of our crochety. Unsentimental phenomenon, the English village at war. This film is just what American producers have been serving us for years, the village society on feudal lines, the squires living in a replica of Hatfield House, the flower show with the glee singers and snobberies, the comic servants and the peasantry, the quantities of roses."

RUBBISH FIRE.

A fire was reported at 481 Reid street, behind the Ventilating Shade, Sunday at 7.42 p.m. The Fire Department reported that apparently some rubbish lying around in the yard had caught fire and it smouldered for a few minutes.

A YOUNG MOTHER.

Clifford Johnston of North Monaghan, reports a 5½ months pullet with chicks as a further example of nature's greater production this year.

COTTAGES ENTERED.

A number of cottages on the east shore of Clear Lake have been broken into recently, Provincial Constable Price Morris has been informed. One of the places entered was the cottage of John B. Pratt, an American visitor, where a pair of binoculars, a number of baskets and cooking utensils were stolen.

TO BUY GIFTS.

The army of chicken supper followers have been disappointed by the curtailing of chicken suppers across the country, even Young's Point having cancelled their feed. However it was learned to-day that the Women War Workers at Buckhorn plan to throw a big chicken dinner at Buckhorn Lodge on Wednesday evening, and Charlie McCaffrey has donated the hotel for the purpose. They want to raise money to send Christmas parcels to the boys from Buckhorn now overseas.

WILD DUCKS FOR DINNER.

With the current meat shortage it is expected that the wild ducks will take a terrific beating this week, as the season opens north of No. 7 Highway at sunrise on Tuesday morning, September 15. So far very few flocks have been reported in the district, although there are quite a number in Rice Lake, where they are safe—we hope, until October 1 when the season opens south of Highway 7.

NICE SPECKLED TROUT.

Bob McCabe wound up the speckled trout season with two beauties caught in Kelly's Creek out in Centre Dummer. The largest was 15 inches long and weighed 1 pound 12 ounces, and the other weighed three-quarters of a pound. The speckled trout and brown trout season ends on Tuesday evening.

GOOD TURNOUT.

About 45 of the 55 donors listed were expected to appear at the Blood Donors Clinic this morning, the Red Cross workers reported. Not only are donors being supplied from the Lindsay district, but now Port Hope has joined the lineup and is sending in donors regularly. The ladies of St. James' Church and the Jeannette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E., were on duty this morning, and the doctors who gave their services were Drs. F. O'Reilly, W. S. Fitzpatrick, Prust, S. Y. Walsh and H. V. Dobson.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAY OFF YOUR DEBTS

Here's how Household can help you clean up your old bills on a monthly payment plan

Do YOU NEED some extra cash? Would you like to pay off old bills as part of your wartime financial program? This advertisement tells about a simple plan which is helping many men and women with their present-day money problems.

Repay out of income

Suppose you need $100 for an emergency or to pay off debts. You get the money in a quick, simple transaction. Then you may repay on a regular monthly payment plan. At the end of a definite time, you are entirely in the clear. The payment plan thus becomes a personal debt-paying program.

The cost of this service is reasonable. Suppose you borrow $100 and repay in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each, a total of $107.10. The cost of your loan is just $7.10. A $50 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $8.93 each, a total of $53.58, costs only $3.58.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit. The principal requirement for getting a loan is a steady position or other source of income. We consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in twenty-four hours or even sooner.

Loans for many purposes

People borrow at Household to pay a doctor or dentist bill, general expenses, insurance, mortgage payments, down payments on homes, old store bills, car repairs, a training course, tools, moving expenses, coal for winter—and for expenses of many other kinds.

You may repay your loan on almost any plan you wish. The table shows how loans may be repaid in 2 to 15 payments. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Look in the table now for the loan you need. See how you may repay out of income.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. Or just phone and tell us how much you need.

King Edward School Wins Kiwanis Cup

At the Junior Horticultural flower show held on Friday evening, King Edward School wrested the Kiwanis Trophy from the Queen Alexandra School, where it has rested for the past seven years. The trophy is awarded each year to the school winning the greatest number of points at the annual Junior flower show sponsored by the local society. In winning the trophy, King Edward, owes much to the Harris children whose numerous entries, were outstanding exhibits of floriculture. The family of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith made a determined but unsuccessful effort to retain the trophy for Queen Alexandra. The display of flowers grown by the children, reflects much credit to those responsible for this branch of the society, the exhibits being of a very high standard despite adverse growing conditions.

The cup awarded for the most outstanding entry was awarded to Sheila Smith for a very artistic display of Heart of France Asters and Bronze Chrysanthemums. Several displays by the adult members were of interest to those attending the show especially a vase of the new Giant Pink Cleome, a very beautiful annual which should be popular in the near future. Douglas Harris exhibited a beet grown from the seed supplied by the society, which tipped the scales at 2¾ pounds.

Calendula — Katherine Benton, Marie Harris.

The Junior Garden Plots conducted during the summer months by the society were judged as follows: 1, Phyllis Harris; 2, Olive Dainton; 3, Jean Smith; 4, Marie Harris; 5, Doug Harris.

The society gratefully appreciates the generosity of F. C. Paterson for the use of the Agriculture Rooms and to all those whose efforts made for the success of the show. The financial effort was for the British War Victims' Fund.

Lloyd's Sentence Is Cut To 6 Months

An appeal by Donald Lloyd, Lakefield car salesman, against his conviction before Judge S. L. Smoke on a charge of stealing an automobile by conversion, was partially successful.

The Appeal Court at Osgoode Hall has changed the conviction to one for obtaining money under false pretences and reduced the sentence from one year's imprisonment to six months.

CARRYING ON.

As a tribute to the memory of their late superintendent, C. S. Thompson, every officer of the George Street Sunday School was on duty on Sunday afternoon at the opening of the Sunday afternoon sessions of the School.

Three Sergeants In Family

Salvation Army Songster Brigade Visited Camp Borden On Sunday

A three-hour trip to Camp Borden Sunday put members of the Peterborough Salvation Army Songster Brigade, some 50 strong, on their mettle to give the boys at camp some A-1 performances during the day and evening. The Brigade went to the camp at the invitation of the Salvation Army War Services Department, and they also responded to an invitation to sing in the Collier Street United Church in Barrie during the morning service.

Two busloads of sleepy people pulled out at an early hour in the morning and they reached Barrie just at church time, and it is to be noted that after bouncing over some particularly rough spots in the road, the songsters were wide awake when they reached their destination. They gave a fine performance at Barrie, after which the women of the Barrie church served dinner to the group before they proceeded to Camp Borden.

Their first concert in the afternoon was presented to the boys in the main centre Salvation Army unit in the regular auditorium. This room is large enough to hold about 500 people and is equipped with a regular stage. A fair crowd of boys put in an appearance, and the same thing prevails in Borden as in every other camp, namely, that the back rows are by far the most popular for seating accommodation. In these concerts there is a very free and easy atmosphere as the boys drift in and out at will, and while it may prove a bit disconcerting to some artists until they are accustomed to it, still everyone seems to enjoy it.

The wide variety of program and artists made a hit with their enthusiastic and appreciative audience, and one of the features of the show was the quintette of xylophone players, believed to be the only such group existing in Canada at the present time. This group is composed of Mrs. R. Routley, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. E. MacDonald, Miss Ruth Smith and Miss Ardyth Richardson. A solo by Mrs. M. Braund and an unusual recitation, "The Grumbling Soldier," which contained appropriate and satirical ideas, was given by Miss Betty Craig, and both numbers were an instantaneous hit.

Perhaps the most popular number on the entire program was the beloved old hymn, the favorite of the troops everywhere, "The Old Rugged Cross." Many of the lads were singing along softly with the Songsters.

Following a bus ride around the camp, the Brigade held an open air service, followed by their regular church session. A large crowd was in attendance, and at their request following "Church," an impromptu musical program was held, when the xylophone again took first place in popularity.

The Songster Brigade is under the direction of A. B. Smith, who did a splendid job of conducting, and those present at the Sally Ann were unanimous in their agreement that this was one of the finest programs to be presented in some time.

Lt. Les England Wounded Twice

R. M. England, 53 Edgewater Blvd., employed as a barber with Ray Bacon, received a letter from his son, Liept. Les England in Britain this week, which reveals the son received two bullet wounds at Dieppe. He was shot in the shoulder during the attack and a rifle bullet clipped his right leg in the fleshy part of the calf during the evacuation.

He says in part: "It was about four a.m. on the 20th that I arrived here and it terminated 24 hours of experience that I'll not forget for some time. I was wounded early in the game and received another on one leg during evacuation. The evacuation is a tale too long to tell about here, but was in my case a long succession of pure unadulterated luck and I am of the opinion I could go through anything now."

Lieut. England stated that he expects to be in the hospital about two months but should be as good as ever by that time. The hospital he is in is strictly Canadian and is staffed by Canadian nurses.

The family came to Peterborough from Weyburn, Sask., some time ago, and Lt. England was serving with a Western Regiment.

Forced To Row Boat To Fish

Milf Hardill and George Dunham must have been thinking of that old saying, "If the mountain won't come to Mahomet, then Mahomet will go to the mountain," when they were fishing in the Trent River above Healey Falls on Sunday.

Hardill hooked one of the stubborn muskies close to the 20-pound class, and the muskie was such a battler that they had to row the boat to the fish, rather than reel the fish in. After quite a battle, Dunham reached down with the net to scoop up the fish, but the net was too small and the muskie gave a jump, tore the net from his hand, ripped two sets of gang hooks out of the plug bait and was gone. They succeeded in landing two smaller 'lunge and one large pickerel.

Collection Of Scrap Metal In Peterborough Go Long Way To Solve Utilities Problem

Peterborough needs 135 tons of 18-inch cast iron pipe for the extension of its new water main from Park Hill Road to Benson Street.

The Utilities Commission applied to the metals controller for permission to go into the market and buy the 1,800 feet of pipe required for the stretch of the Bethune Street line which will eventually be carried to the waterworks.

The Commission was informed that its request could not be granted this year, and it was suggested that they renew their application next spring.

How can Peterborough hope to get 270,000 pounds of 18-inch iron pipe next spring in the face of official warnings that the failure of the country to supply scrap iron is likely to affect seriously munitions industries this winter and on into next spring?

Peterborough wants 135 tons of cast iron pipe, but no one in this city, and also in this county, has made any move to begin a more drastic combing for metal than the community has yet attempted.

It is dollars to doughnuts that not only in Peterborough but also in most of the counties throughout this part of the province no one has paid any attention to the warnings of the serious consequences of a scrap metal shortage.

One thing that could be done, and might yet be done, is this: some persons here and there might make speeches about it.

Church Services Yield $57 For War Victims

Sunday, September 6, was observed in all place of Christian worship throughout Canada as a day of prayer and intercession on behalf of the nation's war effort, at the request of the Government, being the Sunday which was closest to the anniversary of the day when hostilities were commenced both by the Motherland and this country.

From this circumstance, two nice donations are recorded in to-day's list of receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund which in all total $57.25.

At Knox United Church, the officers and men from Basic Training Centre, No. 32 under the command of Lieut.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., held a special church parade to observe the occasion, from which the sum of $40 has been received from the collection taken, to give help to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the fund, repeating aid that has come on similar occasions in a similar manner.

At the United Church in Lakefield, a special observance of this call to prayer was held with all the churches of that village uniting for the occasion, and here once again, the collection taken, which in this instance amounted to $17.25, has been turned in to the fund by Rev. G. Kelly, minister of the church, marking also a repeat of help given formerly through church functions held in the same place.

This special observance of the start of the war, with its call for prayer and intercession on behalf of the cause for which the United Nations are fighting, would seem to be most appropriate to have been made the occasion for sending help to those who have suffered materially in a direct way from the war itself, and the very fact that men who are themselves in training and may at some future time be in the front line of battle themselves, were among those participating is very significant indeed.

A further fifty cents from the Fraserville centre effort at the market stall on September 5 was turned in by Miss Florence Sweeting, having been given by Mrs. W. Waterman for that purpose.

With today's deposit there is now a little over $600 on hand toward the next donation of £500 which in all takes $2,240, so the fund has passed the quarter-way mark towards that objective.

Laying Water Main On McGill Street

The Utilities Commission began this morning a pipe-laying job for the municipality of North Monaghan. This work is the laying of a twelve inch sewer on McGill street from Lock street to Park street, and an eight inch water main also on McGill from Lock to Park and northerly on Park street to connect with a present main in the vicity of Exhibition Park.

A deputation from North Monaghan council recently went to Ottawa and obtained permission to buy the necessary pipes for this project, and with that assurance of supply they let the job to the Utilities Commission on a cost plus basis. R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities, said the work would be finished in about four weeks.

The Commission has distributed over odd jobs the crew of men who laid the Bethune street water main this summer, and the North Monaghan contract will keep them together until some time in October.

Salesman Is Fined $15 And $26.50 Costs

After a session that lasted all day Saturday, Francis Simpson, Guelph salesman, was fined $15 and $26.50 costs, after being convicted by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., on a charge of careless driving.

The charge, laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure was the result of an accident on the Springville hill, in which a car driven by Simpson, was involved in a collision with a bakery truck. The vehicles were damaged and Simpson sustained a broken nose and his wife was shaken up.

T. J. Carley, K.C., defended the accused and V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted the case.

Omemee Couple Observe 50th Anniversary

OMEMEE, Sept. 14.—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. William Rehill of Omemee Saturday quietly celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at their home.

Mrs. Rehill, formerly Adeline Fee, was born in Emily Township 82 years ago, daughter of Anne Jane Laidley and William Fee. Mrs. Rehill was born 84 years ago in Manvers Township, son of Mr. and Mrs. William James Rehill.

Mr. and Mrs. Rehill were married in 1882, at the home of the bride's parents in Emily Township, by Rev. Albert Wilson. The greater part of their married life has been spent in Omemee and vicinity.

They had five children, four boys and one girl. Three boys and the girl have passed on and only son left, Bruce, lives on the homestead, one mile north of Omemee.

An accident to Mrs. Lillian Douglas at the Geneloo plant on Saturday morning sent the no-accident record of the plant glimmering after a total of 900,000 man hours had been piled up without a single lost time mishap.

The accident was an extremely painful one as the girl suffered a compound fracture of the wrist, and had her hand badly torn as well. She was working on a lathe turning round stock, and forgot to remove the adjusting key from the chuck, after she had set the chuck jaws to hold the piece of steel. When the machine started up, the key whirling around jammed her hand between the key and the lathe frame, and the hand was torn on a square head set screw which was under the chuck.

chuck. On Sunday it was found necessary to amputate the hand.

T. Lister, safety engineer, stated the employees were shooting for the one million hours without an accident mark, and will start all over again. The achievement of working 900,000 hours without an accident is in itself a record that goes back to pre-war times, and indicates that every employees is striving to work safely.

Window Lights, Signs Are Out

George street on Sunday night took on the appearance of a city under a partial blackout, as downtown merchants co-operated in cutting off window lights and neon signs.

At the corner of Simcoe and George streets it was very dark, and as the street lamp in front of Payne's Grill was also out, the blackout was quite noticeable. On the 20th of this month all signs are automatically cut off by government order, and while many merchants co-operated over the week-end by cutting off signs, several others kept their big ones illuminated.

It was reported this morning that most of the big stores would darken windows this evening, and would continue this until the stores started to remain open for the Christmas trade.

One storekeeper remarked that Saturday was a poor business day until after six in the evening, when sales soared to high levels and he attributed this condition to the fact that many people were now working all day Saturday.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON.—In loving memory of dear mother, Mrs. Sam Wilson, who passed away September 13, 1938.

Four years have passed, dear mother,
Since you were called away,
How well do I remember
That sad and weary day.
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Always remembered by your son, Robert Wilson.

EVANS.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who died September 14, 1940.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

EVANS.—In loving memory of Mrs. R. Evans, our dear friends, who passed away September 14, 1940.

She is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of her are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith and family.

Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—(CP).—Johnny Greco, the Montreal lightweight, may get a fight with fading Lew Jenkins this fall....Ex-Champ Jenkins isn't getting much work these days, and probably could be had, but a frantic beating through the bushes by Greco's manager, Pete Audette, has failed to uncover a promoter to stage the fight....Greco could make the boys forget all about Dave Castilloux and Maxie Berger if he could beat Jenkins, even if the former titlist is on the way down.

All In The Family:

The name Douglas is a big one in British Columbia lacrosse. Johnny, Ralph and Fred Douglas play for the Norvans and Jimmy for New Westminster. Jimmy became famous with the old Adanacs out there. He's just 24, but he's uncle to Norvans' three members of the clan.

Incidentally:

Edmonton and Moncton, for two, are hoping the military will be able to turn their rinks back to civilian use for hockey matches this winter, but Regina fans have a more unusual problem....The roof of the Queen City Gardens there blew off in a wind storm, and will take both lumber and priorities to fix....Latest word is the work will be completed before winter....Football enthusiasm is high in Quebec, but slightly higher than the available supply of equipment....That factor may restrict what looked one week ago like a 10-team league.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Bucky Walters and Ray Starr, Reds—Walters pitched six-hit ball, drove in three runs with two-bagger to down Brooklyn 6-3 in doubleheader opener; Ray Starr tossed five hitter, knocked in one run with single for 4-1 handicap victory.

Red Ruffing and Hank Borowy, Yankees—Ruffing muffled Indians with seven hits for 9-1 opener victory; Borowy pitched nine-hitter, knocked in two runs, for 4-1 victory in second game.

Tommy Hughes and Tom Livingston, Phillies, and Terry Moore, Cardinals—Hughes handcuffed the Cards with three hits and Livingston's single drove winning run home in ninth inning for 2-1 opener triumph; Moore's homer won second game 3-2.

Bill Butland and Tex Hughson, Red Sox—Pitched four-hitter and seven-hitter respectively, to whip White Sox 6-1 and 5-0.

Elden Auker, Vern Stephens and Frank Hayes, Browns—Auker shut out Athletics 7-0 with three hits in opener; Stephens' home run and Hayes' single drove in runs during winning rally in 3-2 nightcap victory.

Nano Fernandez, Braves, and Vern Olson, Cubs—Fernandez went four-for-four, including two doubles, drove in two runs and scored three in 11-6 first-game win; Olson held Braves with one hit in two-inning relief chore to save 12-3 second game decision.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

No. 1 group of the supplementary schedule will play this evening along with postponed games as listed in this column on Saturday evening.

T. Doughty and G. Gimblett were the only local pair to bring home one of the forty-six prizes in the annual Loblaw doubles. They landed in 14th place for three wins. Some of our other entries did very well, but not high enough to get into the charmed circle.

Along with the regular schedule games for Thursday night the following postponed games will be played,

H. Freeman vs. J. Harrison.
C. Renaud vs. F. E. Kerr.
C. Williamson vs. R. French.
R. Hendry vs. J. Skinner.

We do not know what the program is for Wednesday and Friday nights. Maybe we'll find out tonight and let you all know by tomorrow.

Clover, Alfalfa Seed Crop Low

TORONTO, Sept. 14 — (CP). — Most of the Western Ontario grain crop was in store last week, although farmers in a few districts had not completed harvesting operations, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said Wednesday in its weekly crop report.

Considerable acreages of grain were cut last week in Southern Ontario. Yield of seed crops, including red clover and alfalfa, was disappointing. Farmers have had difficulty in ploughing fields for Fall wheat due to dry hard ground.

Harvesting operations throughout Central Ontario were nearly completed. Many farmers started sowing Fall wheat and others were preparing fields for sowing following a substantial rainfall.

Light frost damaged garden crops and buckwheat in some districts of Eastern Ontario last week. Rains in a few counties retarded nearly-completed harvesting operations but improved pasturage. Corn crops showed excellent growth.

Dinners Of The Week

Rice
Apple Tapioca Hot Cocoa

NOTE: You will note throughout these menus that peanuts, the protein vegetables such as beans, the meat substitutes such as cheese and eggs and fish are stressed, since beef has been "frozen." When you cannot buy meat remember that the protein content of your food need not be neglected if the above mentioned foods are used to replace them.

Evangelize Or Perish

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 14.—(CP).—The annual sessions of the executive council and departments of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada ended here yesterday with a plea for evangelism.

Canon W. H. Davison, Montreal, declared the church must evangelize "or perish."

The world, he held, was looking forward to a new order in which changes were rapid.

Testing Her Sanity

MEXICO, Sept 14—(AP). — A medical commission was assembled today to determine the sanity of Gregorio Cardenas Hernandez, 27-year-old chemistry student, under arrest on suspicion of murder in connection with the deaths of four young women whose bodies were unearthed in his garden. Police sai dthat Cardenas already has confessed the slayings.

Fresh Slip Cover Transforms Room

Like any slip cover, it's easy to make and fit the pin-on way, even if your chair has curves and curlicues.

The welting that trims the seams is also easy to sew on. In a color that matches a color in the fabric, it looks smart, professional!

To start the cover, remove cushions and smooth fabric over chair, starting at top-back and continuing to edge of seat. Pin down every 3 inches where seams will be and cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams.

Other sections you fit one at a time the same way—front, sides, arms and back. Where the fabric bunches at curves, take darts as in our diagram. Then pin pieces together and remove cover.

Full details of making lovely slip covers are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to fit chairs, sofas and automobile seats the pin-on way. Gives directions for finishing seams, trimming; for making flounces.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "How to Make Slip Covers" to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOVE'S LABOR LOST

IN A GAME among a number of teams of four, there are two ways of scoring. One of them is to add up all of the scores made by one pair of a team playing the North-South hands of each deal, and those of its opponents, also add up all of the scores by the pair playing the East-West hands, and those of its opponents, and then subtract the total points of your two pairs from those by your opponents, to see how many net points you have, which may be either plus or minus. The other is "match-point" scoring. By this, if the score of your North-South pair on a deal, combined with that of your East-West pair on it, produces a plus result, you get one match point for winning the deal; if the contrary, you lose it and get no points, and if tied, you get a half of a point.

North: ♠ A 8 6 2 ♥ J 9 4 ♦ A 6 4 ♣ 10 8 5
West: ♠ K J 10 9 7 4 ♥ A 5 ♦ Q 10 2 ♣ Q 3
East: ♠ None ♥ 10 8 7 3 2 ♦ 8 7 5 ♣ K J 9 6 4
South: ♠ Q 5 3 ♥ K Q 6 ♦ K J 9 3 ♣ A 7 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1♦	1♠	Pass	Pass
1 NT	2♠	2 NT
2. 1 NT	2♠	Dbl

Without any brief in behalf of good bidding at either table, there is the way it actually went in a team game where the East-West pair of one team was at Table 2, and its North-South mates were at Table 1.

Both pairs got a fine result, and consequently the deal was won emphatically. At the first table, South was set one at his bid of 2-No Trumps, whereas in most cases South played at 3-No Trumps, was doubled and set two tricks. Thus the loss of 100 points for down one not doubled was a 400 point gain as against those who lost 500 for down two doubled.

At Table 1, West was fortunate enough to make his 2-Spades doubled, for a score of 120 for tricks, 500 bonus for game, total 620. That was 120 better than the score by the pairs who beat the doubled 3-No Trumps 500.

So the team beat most of the field 120 at one table and 400 at the other. That was not good luck, however, as it wasted two good results to gain one match point. If the team had made one of the two pairs' fine scores on one hand, while the mates were making an average, and the other pair's fine score on another hand, while its mates made an average, two match points could have been scored by the same amount of fine work. It is better to have two bad scores together, but your fine scores opposite ordinary ones.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J 6 4 ♥ K J 10 7 3 ♦ J 10 8 2 ♣ 3
West: ♠ K 3 2 ♥ 2 ♦ A 6 5 4 3 ♣ A K 9 4
East: ♠ A 10 9 8 ♥ 8 ♦ K Q 9 7 ♣ J 7 5 2
South: ♠ Q 7 5 ♥ A Q 9 6 5 4 ♦ None ♣ Q 10 8 6

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Heart, West doubles, North 2-Hearts, East 2-Spades, South 3-Hearts, West 3 Spades, North 4-Hearts and East doubles, what is the correct defense?

Bride of Week Helen Cheyne Shower Guest

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 14. — (ENS). — In honor of Miss Helen Cheyne, a bride-elect of Saturday, a miscellaneous shower was given on Thursday afternoon at Cedar Springs, the home of Mrs. F. W. Pratt and Miss Emily Pratt.

The house was decorated with gladioli, asters and zinnias in bright colors, also white bells and pink and white crepe paper added the wedding touch to the occasion. An interesting novelty was the "wishing well" made to resemble an old-fashioned well with the windlass and pail, decorated in pink and white crepe paper. Underneath this, a large pink-covered box held the many gifts for the bride.

Miss Emily Pratt sang "I Love You Truly," after which Mis Flora MacDonald read an address to Miss Cheyne whose marriage takes place on Saturday to John Polly. Mrs. Lewis Harris gave a reading. Mrs. Minifie (nee Margaret Cheyne) assisted her sister in opening the parcels which consisted of gifts of linen, china, pictures, and an electric kitchen clock. Miss Cheyne expressed her thanks and invited them to her new home in Cobourg.

A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. Hastings Mrs. Clare Harris, Mrs. Lewis Harris and Miss Emily Pratt.

Among those present were Mrs. Joe Harris Mrs. MacKenzie, Mrs. Milne, Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Melville Harris, Mrs. William Blakely, Mrs. Leslie Blakely, Mrs. Norman Waldon, Miss Geraldine Waldon, Mrs. Cecil Thackeray Miss Jean Thackeray, Miss Carmen Phillipi, Mrs. Milton Harris and baby daughter, Mrs. Ed. MacFarland and two daughters, Miss Jennie Fowlie, Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Meggs, Mrs. Ainslie Smart, Miss Bella Smart, Mrs. Brisbin, Mrs. Cameron, Miss Alice Harris, Mrs. Phillip Pomeroy and Ann and Miss Ella Waldon.

South Monaghan Sets Tax Rate

CENTREVILLE, Sept. 14. — The South Monaghan council at its regular September meeting struck a tax rate of 19 mills for 1942. A communication from counties' engineer A. S. Miller reported that the United Counties had accepted a tender for the building of a new pier on the Bensfort bridge. The Ontario Municipal Board wrote giving its approval of the debenture bylaw for $8,000 to build the new school for S.S. No. 1 at Bailieboro.

The district engineer of the Department of Highways notified the council that the department's approval of an expenditure of $3,000 on maintenance of the township roads had been given.

The bylaw to issue debentures to the amount of $8,000 for the new Bailieboro school received its final reading and bylaws were passed striking the tax rate at 19 mills; appointing J. R. Perrin tax collector, and to borrow the sum of $8,000 from the Bank of Toronto, until the debentures had been sold.

On motion of H. C. Barnard and Jay Whittington the following accounts were ordered paid: Municipal World, supplies, $1.05; Ontario Municipal Board, approval of bylaw, $8.00; Fred Barnard, council pay, $10.00; J. J. Heaslip, superintendent's pay, $53.60; Frank Barnard, teamwork $6.75; Clem Thompson, labor $26.63 and J. J. Heaslip, telephone 80 cents.

Council adjourned to meet on Monday, October 5, at 1.30 p.m.

Herriot Draws Hull's Praise On Patriotism

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—State Secretary Corden Hull warmly praised the courage and patriotism of Jean Jeanneney and Edouard Herriot, presidents of the now-abolished French Senate and Chamber of Deputies, who protested to Chief of State Petain against the pro-Axis policy of his government.

To Americans and to the French people generally, Hull said, there was tremendous significance in the utterances of these two Frenchmen. With rare courage, he said, they proclaimed what the United States Government and other true friends of France have been proclaiming for some time.

Their words, Hull added at his press conference, will live in history.

In connection with the renewed and widened British military operations in Madagascar, Hull said he had not yet been informed whether the British forces would need the assistance of American troops there or whether they had requested any such aid.

Hull voiced skepticism as to the reported willingness of Chief of Government Pierre Laval to allow refugee Jews in France to emigrate to the United States.

Laval, according to a well-informed Vichy source, told the American charge d'affaires there that if the United States did not like the mass deportation of Jews from unoccupied France to other European countries he would be glad to let them go to the United States.

Questioned about this, Hull told his press conference that he did not know whether such a statement had been made to the American charge d'affaires.

Hull also was asked about a Paris radio suggestion that United States citizens in unoccupied France be held as hostages against the repetition of American air raids such as the recent raids on Le Havre and Rouen. He replied briefly that this looked to him to be a typical piece of German propaganda.

DOMINION SUCCESSION DUTY
Brings Need For More
LIFE INSURANCE

The Dominion Government and the Provincial Governments now exact Succession Duties on all but the smallest estates and demand payment of the duties quickly and in cash.

Will your Executors find in your estate, sufficient liquid assets, that can be quickly converted into cash, without loss, to pay these Succession Duties, and still have enough in the estate to meet the reasonable needs of your dependents?—If not, more Life Insurance is probably the best answer.

It is well to remember that Life Insurance costs less at 40 than at 55 and that it is both wise and economical to arrange for Insurance now, to build up your estate, and to meet the demands that you know will be made upon it.

Discuss your requirements with your Life Insurance underwriter—also with one of our officers available for consultation, without cost or obligation.

OshawaRunsLow In Help For War Jobs

By DOUG. MACLENNAN

OSHAWA, Sept. 14.—This city of war factories is booming. There isn't a man skilled in any trade who is idle. So everybody is happy. Money is flowing freely, and only a few pay any attention to the clouds gathering on the horizon—that few comprising industrialists who are going to need help, and the Selective Service office.

At this moment if somebody were to deliver a moulder to Oshawa, there would be a wild scramble to sign him up. Or, if somebody were to deliver a few hundred, or maybe a few thousand, girls to another industry, the cheers would be heard in Toronto. Now that doesn't mean that every idle girl in Toronto should flock to Oshawa. There is the matter of seeing a Selective Service officer first, and there is the matter of housing arrangements.

Nor does it mean that there are not girls idling their days here. There are lots of them out shopping. Simcoe street is thronged with them. So is King street. But for varying reasons they are not at work.

When registration of womanpower is swung into high gear—and it may take some time for that—the problem may not exist. At least, one industrial plant hopes so. As far as two other plants are concerned, they don't need girls at the moment, and their staffs of men are up to strength at present, always excepting certain types of skilled help.

So it all boils down to this in Oshawa: Soon, and very soon, somebody is going to have to find several hundred girls, and that somebody is the Selective Service officer. Unless the registration of women is completed and in operation by then, the girls for the most part must come from out of town.

That involves housing. And fortunately there is a fair amount of accommodation for single people—rooms and the like. But for families, the housing situation is similar to any other war industrial centre.

All Jobs Are War Jobs

When the matter of skilled men comes up, the query always seems to be: But what about men in so-called non-essential industry? Can't they be persuaded to switch to war jobs, even though there is no enforcement machinery with teeth in it to effect such a change

The answer, as far as Oshawa is concerned, is that the majority of industries here, having skilled workmen of value to war plants, already are working on war contracts, feeding their output to other plants also on war jobs.

There may be a few garagemen around who could be called skilled mechanics, but that appears to be all. And if the industrial personnel men don't know the situation, nobody does.

The proposal to classify men between 20 and 40 eligible for the army before they are called up, and to direct them into industry if needed, probably is going to help somewhat, but that means still another big job, another headache for a time.

Selective Service here is facing a tremendous task—but then, so it does every place. Every possible worker in Oshawa who is fitted for a war job is getting a permit restricting him or her to just that. But it isn't enough.

So it all boils down to this: Most additional workers needed here soon must be drawn from outside points—and that means Selective Service in high gear, with lots of oil on the machinery and red tape at a minimum.

S. Thompson Outstanding Layman Christian Church Laid To Rest

Close to 500 people entered George Street United church on Saturday afternoon for the funeral service of the late Charles Stanley Thompson, beloved Sunday School Superintendent for the past eleven years, and one of the outstanding laymen in the realm of Christian teaching in the city.

Mr. Thompson died on Thursday morning following a lingering illness that has kept him from his work as an insurance salesman since last May.

Rev. H. L. Roberts, minister at George Street church was assisted in the funeral service and at the graveside by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, Murray Street Baptist church, and Rev. A. H. McConnachie, a close friend of the late Mr. Thompson. In his sermon Mr. Roberts eulogised the deceased as a model of Christian living, a kindly, sincere and rugged man who was imbued with the spirit of service to his fellow man, and who directed his energies to the glory of God, with a thoroughness that will survive for generations to come.

Mr. Roberts' econium was brief but he spoke of the late Mr. Thompson as a friend, and a stalwart apostle of everything that was good and beautiful. "We who have been left behind can pay no greater tribute to this man, than to carry on efficiently and successfully the fine work he has been doing in the Sunday School."

"Down through the years Christian has long since been regarded of paramount importance and with respect to children in any community and nation it is indispensable. Any church is fortunate who has among its members men who have this vision, and we of George Street church counted ourselves fortunate and are grateful that we had such a man as the late Charles Stanley Thompson.

Continuing Mr. Roberts said that Mr. Thompson had been a member of the trustee board, and an Elder, and that he had fulfilled his duties in an exemplary and efficient manner.

"He will be remembered by us chiefly as the superintendent of our Sunday School, where nearly 500 pupils Sunday by Sunday felt the impact of his guiding hand, and were moulded in the model of Christian living and outlook, through the staff of teachers directed by Mr. Thompson. In a lesser sense he was like St. Paul who said "This one thing I do."

The one thing which he did and did well was to direct this big Sunday School. This work was in his mind during his working hours and during his dreams. Even when he was ill, his visitors were invariably asked "How is everything down at the Sunday School." His work was characterized by a thoroughness, and a quiet unassuming manner, coupled with a genius for organization that led him to group around him a staff of men with executive ability.

He was well equipped for this work, first by his very nature, for he was a quiet gentle man, a lover of the beautiful and he loved young people. His training also fitted him admirably for this work for he was a college graduate, and since graduation had been a keen student of humanity and of nature. His background too helped equip him for for this work, for he was reared in a Christian home with all its stabilizing influences. In later years his wife, and partner in the Sunday School teaching teamed up with him to make the task even easier.

He was the type of man who kept himself in the background, and one of his aims was to create and maintain a reverential attitude in his teaching. In his training of young people for the difficult task of living according to God's pattern, he took a broad view of the program, including recreation, the value and need of missionary work, and above all temperance in all things.

We feel that he was young, but I believe God's purpose has been wrought in him. In a sense his work was complete. His influence will live in the tender memories of his pupils whose lives were enriched by his teaching."

The pallbearers were Leo W. Copp, E. R. Shirley and Milf Hardill representing the Masonic Order, and Robert Kitchen, Wilfred Frise and Harold C. Throop, representing the congregation of George Street United church.

Case Nears Jury

GUELP, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP)—Mr. Justice W. D. Roach today delivered his charge to a Supreme Court jury, after addresses by counsel were completed, as the trial of 21-year-old Charles Clarence Dickinson, charged with the murder of his mother and sister, entered its fifth day.

Poultry Demand Brisk On Market

The upstairs section of the local market developed an increased demand for chickens Saturday, and the supply was almost as plentiful as the usual week-end preceding Thanksgiving Day.

Roasted chickens, and there were many of them, were 45 cents a pound. Broilers were 35c, roosters 32c and hens from 25 to 28 cents a pound. Some of the early spring roosters may have declined slightly below the 30c mark before the morning ended, but on the whole prices were steady.

Eggs ranged all the way from 25 cents to 45 cents a dozen, according to grade. The 25c price got you a dozen peewees, and the 45 cents for the biggest. The medium grades sold at 33 to 40 cents.

Butter was 38 cents a pound, with only a few baskets in sight, most of that small supply being held for customers.

The honey producers folded up early. They report only a few pounds of the light colored stock left, clover and basswood, and Alan T. Brown and Offa Williamson said that the prospects for the amber colored honey are only fair. Mr Brown said he was turning down all orders. Tom Shields of Toronto, was a market visitor, bringing information that shelves of some of the big retail chains in that city are already bare of roney.

Brisk Buying.

The outdoor market was crowded, and supplies of fruit and vegetables moved swiftly. Producers say their main problem for the last two months has been to wait on the people, and grab the business on the wing. Potatoes were $1.75 for Cobblers, Katahdins and Chippewas. D. Olan sold quite a lot at 35 cents a peck.

Prices at the stand of Hillcrest Gardens, Bailieboro, included: Tomatoes $1 a hamper; peppers, three for 10c; cabbage 5 and 10c; cauliflowers 15 and 20 cents; corn 25 and 30 cents a dozen.

Fred Clifford had cantaloupes at 15 and 20 cents and watermelons at 35 cents each. Spanish onions were six quarts for 50 cents.

Norman Moncrief's apples were Gravensteins, Peerless and Wealthies at 50 cents a peck, and Flemish Beauty pears at 80c a peck.

Pleasant View Gardens, Bowmanville, had Bartlett pears at 65c a peck; pickling pears 50c for six quarts, and pickling onions at 10c and 20c a quart; St. Lawrence apples 35c for six quarts.

Drop In Dramas Of 50 p.c. Noted By CBC

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 (CP).—Rupert Lucas of Ottawa, supervisor of drama for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, yesterday told delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association that drama submissions to the C.B.C. have dropped fifty per cent since last May.

The decrease, Mr. Lucas said, may be due to the fact that authors are busy with war work, that they are upset by chaotic conditions in the world and can't settle down to write, or that they have been overcome by a "laissez-faire" spirit.

Mr. Lucas asked the delegates to write and submit dramas for radio use and "to write for radio what you believe and think and let that be one of your contributions to Canada."

Fees are becoming "increasingly better" for radio dramas, Mr. Lucas said, and the writing of radio drama as a means of livelihood should not be "underestimated."

War Quickens Interest

W. H. Clarke of Toronto, manager of the Canadian Branch of the Oxford University Press, said the war has "aroused and quickened an interest in reading, in fields never before explored by many of our people. Our curiosity is aroused about far-off places and people. The men in the services are to a far greater extent than in the last war going back to schools and books are part of a soldier's and defense worker's essential equipment nowadays."

"It will be very unlikely if the reading habit thus formed will not persist afterwards. We hear of the demands for physical fitness. I need not tell you that mental and spiritual fitness are just as important to our survival as free men.

"We have been spoon-fed too long. We have had too few demands made upon us to assess what we hear. It has been construed to be bad education, bad phsychology to give us hard facts to evaluate, stern realities to face and difficult decisions to make.

"Our modern education is largely based on the theory that exposure of the pupil to purposeful situations will promote meaningful activities. What awful jargon! Is exposure enough? Are activities ends in themselves? Can we not 'take it' mentally as well as physically. Are we never to be treated as wholly responsible individuals, capable of exercising individual judgment, and reading conclusions of our own?

"These are the things which contribute to our mental laziness, but the challenge is unmistakeable. We must rise to it or admit that we are too indifferent, too soft, too lazy to survive."

Material for Novelists

Miss J. Georgina Sime of Montreal, a former president of La Societe des Ecrivains Canadiens, told the delegates that there is an unlimited amount of material in Canada which could be used by novelists for stories.

"The material is available," she said, "in the large cities, in the country villages and in the wide open spaces, but it must be used by Canadian writers if the true beauty of Canadian life is to be brought out."

Miss Sime expressed belief that Canada does not need any propaganda.

"I don't see the need of it. Canada has that certain something that will be written to delight the entire world."

launched an offensive with one infantry division supported by 100 tanks but in the severe fight which developed on the western bank of the river, 2,000 German officers and men were killed or wounded, the Soviet information bureau said.

In the Mozdok region of the Caucasus, where the Germans are trying to drive eastward to the Grozny oil fields, the Russians said a battalion of German infantry had been destroyed and the news agency Tass said German forces were "withdrawing northward."

In the Leningrad area Russian forces were moving aggressively to tighten their hold on the city and heavy fighting was reported on the Volkhov front near Sinyavino. There the Russians apparently were attempting to snatch a stretch of railway line held by the Germans and dispatches said several German-fortified points had been taken.

Grozny Push Nipped

In the Central Caucasus, the Russians said their forces in the Mozdok sector had halted the German drive toward the Grozny oil fields, but that the Nazis were bringing up strong reinforcements and that a new assault was expected momentarily.

Field dispatcher said Soviet Marines had been brought into action on this inland front and had played a big part in stopping the enemy.

News was lacking on action along the Black Sea coast south of fallen Novorossisk where the Germans were believed feeling out Russian strength in preparation for a thrust down the coastal road leading to the oil port of Batum.

At the northern end of the front the Red Army offensive continued in the Volkhov sector toward the rail town of Sinyavino. This fighting as taking place in heavily-fortified zones where the Nazis have been entrenched for almost a year.

London Shelter 'Last Word' Room For 8,000

LONDON, Sept 14—(CP). — This Empire capital, which expects the Germans eventually to repeat the fierce bombings of 1940 and 1941, opened for inspection today what it believes to be the most modern and elaborate air raid shelter in the world.

The tubes range from 68 to 120 feet below ground. Entrances are through adjacent subways or big surface pillboxes. Elevators from the pillboxes lower supplies to the shelters. Sewage is raised to the ground level by a pressure apparatus.

Officials said the structures were emergency auxiliaries to existent public shelters with 150,000-person capacity.

Both the Berlin and Vichy radio stations reported that Budapest and other points in Eastern Hungary, which the Russians bombed last Wednesday night, had air-raid alarms. The broadcasts reported no hostile planes had crossed the frontier.

Broadcasting stations at Bratislava in Czecho-Slovakia, and in Rumania also went off the air during the night.

There was no German air activity over Britain last night.

Jail up to 5 Years

Infractions of the law are punishable by prison sentences ranging up to five years and by fines up to 30,000 gold francs. These penalties may be doubled in the case of second offender.

The law contains a clause declaring that "every head of an enterprise will be obliged to conform to instructions which he may receive from competent secretaries of state, notably for crews of workmen."

Employers are forbidden to hire any workers except those provided by the government labor service, and are enjoined from discharging any employees without government authorization.

Promulgation of the decree follows a government campaign to recruit skilled workmen to be sent to Germany in exchange for the release of French war prisoners in a ratio of three workers for one prisoner.

Thus, far, however, only one trainload of "relieved" prisoners has arrived in France.

The absence of the prisoners—estimated at more than 1,250,000—has confronted France with a shortage of labor, particularly in agriculture. To obtain their release in the three-to-one ratio, France would have to send to Germany between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 skilled workers — or more than half her total supply.

Apparently the government is hoping to achieve better results by adopting a rotating system for a specified time, after which they will be relieved by other crews from the same factory or industry.

Fighting French sources in London said the new Vichy decree appeared to be a camouflaged move under which workers could be sent "collectively" to Germany to work in Nazi war industries.

These quarters said Pierre Laval, collaborationist chief of government at Vichy, had been obliged to institute a system of forced labor by the "ghastly failure" of his efforts to provide Germany with 300,000 workers on a voluntary basis.

UK Planes, Tanks Roll To Reds Far Over Pledge

LONDON, Sept 14 (CP).—Great Britain is more than living up to her commitments to Russia.

By the beginning of July 2,000 tanks had been shipped from this country at the rate of 50 a week. For every 100 airplanes which Britain promised Russia she had sent 111 by the end of May.

In May, 1942, the average load handled per dock worker at Murmansk was more than treble what it was in January, 1942—9.3 tons per working day compared with three tons. In June the load was even greater.

Britain has sent some of her best locomotives to help the Russian Army and has done fine engineering work opening up transport through Persia. One report in mid-April said tonnage over this route had increased 600 per cent in 4 months.

The quantity of raw materials of all kinds sent from the British Empire to Russia during the first three months of 1942 was greater than delivery in previous quarter.

During the first year of Russia's fight, nearly £2,000,000 was raised in Britain for the Red Cross "Aid to Russia" fund. Yorkshire Mills were reported in May to be making blanket-cloth coats, breechettes and special fine woollen linings for Russian troops.

The British government has given the Soviet government credit amounting to £35,000,000. By an agreement of June 27, the British government ensured the Russians military supplies and other military assistance, the supplies of armaments manufactured in Britain or the Empire to be made available free of payment.

And by her air offensive against Germany, Britain is estimated to be keeping between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 Germans—many of whom might be serving on the Eastern front—permanently pegged down. In addition, a good part of Germany's fighter strength has been diverted to the West to counter R.A.F. attacks.

US Now Holds Balance In The Pacific

Stop Any Jap Push Says Admiral After 26,000-Mi. Tour

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Rear-Admiral W. H. Blandy, just back from a 26,000-mile inspection trip, said today that United States forces presently hold the balance of striking power in the western Pacific.

Rear-Admiral Blandy, navy ordnance chief who talked with reporters at Navy Secretary Frank Knox's press conference, said he is not "bold enough" to make any forecasts of the future Pacific situation but that "for the time being, most certainly," the United States hold the balance of military and naval striking power there over Japan.

He had been asked "are we in position to hold the Japs against anything they might throw?"

"Yes," he replied, "I think we are. But we can't do it by merely holding. We've got to keep pushing. The best defence is a strong offence. We can't remain static."

Black Market In Beef—McLean

TORONTO, Sept. 15—(CP).—Existence of a "Black Market" in Toronto is causing further disturbance to the already serious beef supply situation, was charged today by J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Ltd., in his annual report to shareholders. Federal authorities are said to be investigating.

His report said: "The most disturbing feature of the period was the development of an extensive 'Black Market' in both the processing and retailing branches of the trade. Live cattle sold at prices much above the equivalent of the price ceiling. Reputable processors and retailers lost heavily. Those who disregarded the ceiling did a record volume at high profit."

Mr. McLean said he cited this experience as showing the difficulty of enforcing ceilings in regard to essential foods in a period of acute shortage.

Smaller retail stores in Toronto were virtually without meat of any kind to-day.

Skipper Escapes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP).—The Navy Department announced Monday that a medium-sized merchant vessel of Panamanian registry was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine late in August in the Atlantic several hundred miles off the north coast of South America. Survivors have been landed at an east coast United States port.

The skipper of the vessel possibly saved himself from being taken prisoner aboard the undersea craft by refusing to identify himself.

450 Jap Prisoners

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 15 (AP).—United States Pacific fleet headquarters announced last night that 450 Japanese prisoners were taken in the Guadalcanal and Tulagi Island areas of the Solomon Islands and have been removed to a port outside that area.

United States Marines landed on those islands on August 7 in the first major offensive action of the war in the Pacific.

RAF Canucks Rip Wilhelmshaven Dock Area Apart

LONDON, Sept. 15—(CP)—A strong force of British and Canadian bombers last night attacked Wilhelmshaven, chief German naval station on the North Sea, and kindled fires which one participating Canadian pilot said were left spreading "right bang in the middle of the docks."

From this assault—by perhaps hundreds of bombers—only two raiders were lost, the Air Ministry said. The Wilhelmshaven attack was the second in as many nights and the ninth this month upon Germany.

R.C.A.F. bomber crews returning from last night's raid on Wilhelmshaven reported damage in the heart of the port's dock areas.

"I could see fires spreading right bang in the middle of the dock," said Sgt. Fred Wood of Edmonton after his 19th operational trip.

"We had no trouble at all," said Sgt. Jack Cameron of Waskada, Man.

Other Canadians from Wing Cdr. Don Ferris' squadron were Flt. Sgt. John Craig, Abbey, Sask.; Flt. Jack Irmie, Toronto; Flt. Sgt. Howard Treherne, Vancouver, and Sgt. Joseph Ralloway, Milton, Ont.

50 Miles North of Bremen

Wilhelmshaven, 50 miles airline northwest of Bremen, the main target the night before, is the chief German naval station on the North Sea.

The constant pounding of Germany marked a full swing of the pendulum from two years ago when it was Britain which underwent successive smashing attacks.

Today is the second anniversary of the battle of Britain's climax and Allied air chiefs commemorated the event with the promise that their air armadas would help destroy and defeat the Axis enemies.

The Berlin radio gave the first word of the new assault on Germany, the second in as many nights, without naming the exact target. An authoritative source here said only that British bombers were over Germany.

The Berlin report said "fires were started and some damage was caused to buildings, mainly in the residential district." Four attacking bombers were claimed to have been shot down.

Last night's raid followed by 24 hours a double blow by the R.A.F. and the Russian air force at Germany and her Axis partners, Ru-

Larry Allen Feared Captured

Fleet Writer Missing In Tobruk Raid; Caught By Italians?

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The Italian radio broadcast an announcement today that an American newspaperman was taken prisoner in the British raid on Tobruk Sunday night and there is a strong possibility that it was Larry Allen, Associated Press correspondent and 1941 Pulitzer Prize winner.

The Italians withheld the name, but Allen has not been heard from since the British fleet landed the Commando-type raiders at Tobruk.

The 34-year-old Allen, a native of Mount Savage, Md., has been an eyewitness to almost every action involving the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

His work, notably his story of the fierce German bomber attack on the aircraft carrier Illustrious, won the Pulitzer Prize for international reporting in 1941.

Later he survive another brush with death on the line of battle when the British cruiser Galatea was sunk.

Admiral Sir Browne Cunningham, now a member of the Allied war council and former commander of the British fleet in the Mediterranean, told newspapermen in Washington in praise of Allen's initiative:

"Why it got so I hardly liked Allen to go to sea at all. He was a stormy petrel—always got into trouble wherever he was... But he always came through. He had an explanation for it, saying cautiously that 'what my folks want is a live story, not a dead reporter'."

George Palmer of the United Press is the only other American accredited to the British Mediterranean fleet. While the broadcast might have referred to Palmer, there were private indications that it meant Allen.

Revised figures for July showed 411 persons killed, or reported missing and believed killed, and 871 treated in hospitals.

Japs Shoot Off Own Wounded About Milne Bay

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 15.—(CP)—The Japanese killed their own badly wounded so that no prisoners were taken in the battle for Milne Bay, where Allied forces crushed a Japanese landing last month, a senior Allied officer reported today.

The officer, who just returned from the southeastern New Guinea battlefield, describe the fight as divided into three phases, each growing in fierceness until the climax.

In the first phase, the Japanese struggled for possession of a vital air field strip from which Allied planes took off to bomb and strafe the invaders.

The tide of battle may have turned there, for the officer gave the air force a great share in the credit of repelling the enemy.

The third and most vicious stage was reached in the steaming jungles of the north peninsula after the Japanese had been backed up into a position from which there was no escape.

Maj.-Gen. Cyril Clowes, Australian officer who commanded the Allied forces, faced the problem at the outset of determining where the Japanese might land. He was later handicapped by the lack of absolute knowledge as to whether they were landing reinforcements or taking off wounded when warships entered the bay during two or three nights of the main engagement.

Use Tanks With Lights

Landing under the cover of darkness and a tropical rainstorm, the Japanese pushed west the first night. They used small tanks to cover their advance, their lights searching out the defending forces.

The Australians made a stand at their landing strip and not a Japanese was able to step across. The Allies sent an outfit into the hills to come behind the enemy. It met 120 Japanese and wiped them out to a man.

As the Japanese retreated they

Stukas Bomb Red Line In Squares

Russ Slaughter 4,000 Take Fort In Centre 3-Day Fight

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

MOSCOW, Sept. 15—(AP).—Backs to the Volga, the defenders of Stalingrad stood to their guns today under the heaviest of pattern bombing and still held hills looking down upon the heart of the city against the redoubled assault of Nazi troops and tanks.

"It is impossible to retreat any farther," a Russian correspondent reported from the war's bloodiest battlefield.

But even while the bomb-splattered city fought for its life, the Red Army kept up its own dogged punching at the German defensive lines on the Moscow front to the north and announced the annihilation of about 4,000 Germans and capture of a fortified town in a three-day fight.

Russian planes and Russian tanks still played their part in the fight to save Stalingrad—badly outnumbered though they are. And the Russians reported that although their lines sagged again and again under terrific onslaught, the German gains now are being held to a costly 300 to 400 yards for a whole day's fighting.

Whole block of the city smouldered in bomb-strewn ruins. But the smoke of war factories rose with the smoke of devastation as workers toiled within sound of the firing from the battleline to keep the troops supplied.

A dispatch to the Army newspaper Red Star said the Axis now is using twice as many troops and tanks aagainst Stalingrad as in earlier assaults and has increased the number of planes in the action.

Nevertheless, the defenders were said to be passing at times to counter-attacks.

Stalingrad's lines, although battered and threatened as never before still held in the 21st day of an epic battle and mounds of new dead were added to the thousands of casualties previously suffered by the invasion army of Field Marshal Von Bock.

FREDERICTON, Sept. 15 (CP)—Duck and geese hunters set out in many sections of New Brunswick today when the season opened at dawn but they had to refrain from stepping ashore on forest lands, where travel is banned in order to reduce fire hazard. The hunting season for deer and bear has been postponed until Oct. 1.

Time Bomb Scares Downtown Boston Area Rocks British War Relief Society Building

BOSTON, Sept. 15—(AP).—An explosion, which a police ballistics expert attributed to a dynamite bomb probably bearing a time device, today shook the quarters of the British War Relief Society in the downtwn district here. No one was injured.

The blast shattered several basement and first-floor windows, but did little damage to the old brownstone mansion. At least eight women, several of whom were working at windows near the origin of the blast, were driven to the street, frightened but uninjured.

Sgt. Edward Seibolt, ballistics expert, based his opinion that it was a timed dynamite bomb on the fact that white smoke issued from the blast and the discovery of a two-inch piece of fuse. A hole two feet long and one foot wide was found on the lawn near basement windows in the rear of the building.

We Beat 'Em, Loudly Boasts Rome As British Raid Rocks Tobruk

LONDON, Sept. 15—(CP).—A sea-borne British army detachment, supported by light naval units and heavy R.A.F. squadrons, was reported by the Admiralty today to have struck a damaging blow Sunday night at Tobruk, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's key supply base.

While this raid was executed against the rubble-littered Libyan port 75 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, another light naval force "successfully bombarded enemy lines of communication in the El Daba area," about 20 miles behind the Axis front across the Egyptian desert, the Admiralty said.

British losses were announced in the withdrawal from Tobruk, but the action against El Daba was declared to have been concluded without damage or casualties.

"Our force landed in the face of strong opposition and inflicted casualties and damage on the enemy before retiring," the Admiralty said. "The withdrawal was not carried out without losses, which, in view of the strength of the defences, were to be expected."

The Admiralty made no comment upon Italian communiques of yesterday and today claiming that three British destroyers, a cruiser and several patrol boats were sunk during and after the operations and four other ships damaged.

A Cairo communique, however, inferentially discounted today's Italian communique claiming that bombing and torpedo planes, in pursuing the expedition, sank the cruiser and damaged the four ships. The Cairo announcement said long-range British fighters forced these large formations of enemy bombers to jettison their bombs.

Italians Take Credit.

In the second day Italian communique, Italian troops were given most of the credit for the Axis defence of the port. After reporting that the San Marco Marine Battalion had particularly distinguished itself, the Italians acknowledged that it was "later supported by German troops in the fighting."

"Within five hours' time we Italians were masters of the situation," the communique boasted.

The Italians claimed that 576 British prisoners were taken, including 34 officers and that a large amount of British equipment was captured.

Towers Heads US Fleet Air Arm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Rear-Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the United States Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, has been appointed to the newly-created post of "commander air force, Pacific fleet," Secretary Frank Knox announced today, in a move giving new recognition to the navy's air arm.

Towers, 57, will become a vice-admiral in his new position and will be replaced as chief of aernoautics by Rear-Admiral John S. McBain, 58, who now has an air command in the Pacific.

The navy said that as commander air force, Pacific fleet, Towers would take over certain authority over aircraft carrier divisions now exercised by Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., who will thus be free to devote his full time to his duties as a task force commander, "in which activity he had distinguished himself."

Survivors Reach Grenfell Home

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—(CP).—Word that some survivors of a sunken ship have reached the east coast reached headquarters of Grenfell Labrador Mission here to-day from one of the Mission's nursing stations, in a message asking help in caring for survivors from a lost ship.

A doctor and a nurse were sent to the scene and found one survivor who reached shore had died and was buried. Others were sleeping on the floor of the station and in fishermen's homes. Those in the most critical condition were taken to a hospital. Two cooks and a baker were among the men who reached shore and they took over the kitchen at the small nursing station, leaving the nurse in charge, Miss Ethel Brown, of Wainwright, Alta., free to attend to the nursing.

Some of the men were reported ill fro mhaving swallowed oil. Others were so coated with oil their lifebelts had to be cut from their bodies.

2,547 Troops 130 Officers Are Missing

Canada's Most Costly Venture Of War Topping Hong Kong

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP).—Canadian casualties at the Battle of Dieppe aggregate 3,350 dead, wounded and missing, the Department of National Defence announced today.

The announcement was made along with a list of the men officially reported missing whose names have been held up from publication until now for security reasons, and with a statement from Defence Minister Ralston expressing sympathy to the relatives of the men who were killed, wounded or taken prisoner.

Along with casualties previously reported, to-day's list brings the total number of known dead to 170, including 40 officers the wounded to 633, including 41 officers, and the missing to 2,547, including 130 officers.

"Canada's total casualties in the Dieppe attack aggregate 3,350 dead, wounded and missing," said Defence Minister Ralston's statement.

"In releasing these figures and the long list of those described as missing, I wish again to express the sympathy which all Canadians will feel with those who must endure sorrow and anxiety, and the deep pride which belongs to our country in the courage, the fighting gallantry and the proof of victory to come which Canada achieved at Dieppe."

Save 1 Of Three In River Crash

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 15—One airman was rescued and two others were believed trapped in the wreckage when a Royal Canadian Air Force plane today dived into the St. Lawrence after developing engine trouble.

The twin-engined Avro-Anson trainer from St. Johns, Que., was seen to plunge into the water after two muffled explosions had heard. A fleet of small craft hastily went to the scene and picked up an Australian student flier, S. D. R. Cook, who was injured, and clinging to an empty gas tank. He suffered facial cuts and shock and possible leg injuries.

Cook, who was unable to answer questions, indicated by his fingers that two other men were with him when the plane crashed. The wreckage was later located in 50 feet of water and Air Force officials planned efforts to raise it. Witnesses said the pilot was trying to make a crash landing after the explosions had been heard. The plane hit the surface twice, almost levelled off, before it broke in two and sank.

Their Stars Shine Bright

McNab, Fulton, Fauquier Rank With Bishop

TORONTO, Sept. 15—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the War Amputations Association of Canada today that the names of three Canadian airmen now stand alongside those great Canadian aces of the First Great War.

"The names of McNab, Fulton and Fauquier are written large on the same glorious page of history as Bishop, Barker and Collishaw," he said.

Group Capt. Ernest McNab, Regina, was the first Royal Canadian Air Force fighter pilot to win the Distinguished Flying Cross while leading a Canadian formation overseas.

Wing Cmdr. John (Moose) Fulton, D.S.O., D.F.C., A.F.C. of Kamloops, B.C. is a distinguished bomber squadron commander who was recently reported missing.

Wing Cmdr. Johnny Fauquier, D.F.C. of Ottawa, is also a distinguished bomber commander.

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., director of R.C.A.F. recruiting, the late Lt.-Col. W. G. Barker, V.C. and Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw, now of the Royal Air Force, were Canadian "aces" in the First Great War.

Hitler's Net Spreads for More "Slaves"

New Laval Forced Labor Decree To Add Thousands Of French to Poles, Dutch

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

The startling decree issued by the Laval government at Vichy, establishing forced labor on French men and women, is held by Fighting French sources in London to reflect Hitler's determination to add more slave labor to the millions over whom he already is master.

However, without ascribing ulterior motives to the decree in advance of proof, we still can say with definite knowledge that the Nazi conqueror has been doing his utmost to swell the ranks of his unwilling chattels with more Frenchmen. The scheme whereby Laval was to provide Germany with 350,000 voluntary workers has failed miserably because forsooth, the liberty-loving Frenchmen wouldn't sell their birthrights.

I am employing that shocking word "slave" deliberately as representing the exact position created by the Nazi Pharaoh who is trying to build his pyramid of conquests by use of the lash. He already has impressed millions of unhappy peoples of the subjugated countries to serve the Reich, and he has taken more from his allies—even the once-proud Mussolini, who long since has ceased to exercise a free will.

Countless thousands of these unfortunates have actually been collected within the borders of Germany to toil for Hitlerism. But that isn't the half. Workers in the subjugated countries have been placed under the most severe Nazi military discipline, in order that the last ounce of strength may be squeezed from their undernourished bodies.

Up-to-the-minute figures aren't available, but six months ago the foreign workers actually within the borders of Germany were close to 3,000,000, apart from about 1,600,000 prisoners of war who were working there, and other hundreds of thousands of Russians reported captured. At that time the Nazis were bragging that they were going to increase these figures greatly, and undoubtedly this has been done.

Field Marshal Goering, Hitler's Crown Prince, also announced that prisoners of war would be used, which wasn't surprising in view of the fact that they already were at work.

The largest groups of foreigners were Poles and Italians, of whom there were more than a million each. Then there were 140,000 Czechs, 250,000 Belgians, 109,000 Yugoslavs, 200,000 Hollanders, 80,000 Slovaks and 269,000 others of various nationalities. Among these workers were great numbers of women, including 250,000 Polish and many Italians.

Action Brews In N. Guinea

Allies' Gun Stalled Jap Troops From The Air

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 15.—(CP)—There were signs today of possibly imminent action in the Owen Stanley mountains where the Japanese driving for Port Moresby have been stalled for five days, but the day's communique said the general situation remained unchanged.

The communique noted that patrol activity is increasing in the mountains where the invaders have advanced to within 40 miles of Port Moresby, the principal Allied base in New Guinea.

Allied air units, on the alert for a resumption of the Japanese drive, skimmed over the enemy positions, raking them with machine-gun fire and bombs.

Allied aerial assaults on Japanese New Guinea bases at Lae, Salamaua, and Buna were halted temporarily, but medium bombers attacked two small enemy cargo ships and machine-guns at Saumlaki in the Tanimbar Islands, north of Darwin, Australia.

Results of this attack were not observed.

Patrol Boat's Whole 38 Feared Lost

127 Off 4 Other Ships Are Picked Up After 24-Hour Attack

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (CP)—Royal Canadian Naval headquarters' announcement last week that the battle of the Atlantic in which Canadian warships are bearing one-third of the burden is 'now of far greater scope than ever before experienced" was grimly underscored with the announcement late yesterday of the loss of the Canadian patrol vessel Raccoon, former Canadian pleasure yacht, formed part of a convoy escort which was attacked by one or more enemy U-boats and is presumed lost with all hands—four officers and 34 ratings.

The tight-lipped announcement also said four United nations merchant ships, with 10 members of their crews, had been lost, but did not indicate whether these had gone down in the same engagement as the Raccoon.

Just where the Raccoon was sunk was another secret kept from Canadians as well as the enemy, but it was believed likely, following as it did the headquarters warning last week against undue optimism over loss shrinkages in the Atlantic battle, that the announcement indicated renewed U-boat activity in the North Atlantic.

During the action the Raccoon signalled that torpedoes had crossed her bows, but sister ships of the escort, edging to her assistance while maintaining a guard over the convoy, heard only explosions muffled by the thick fog as they worked their way up to her position.

Close search failed to show any trace of the Raccoon or any of her crew. A Royal Canadian Air Force plane which swept the area later reported sighting a lifeboat and two Carley floats with no sign of life upon them.

H.M.C.S. Raccoon, eighth Canadian naval vessel reported lost since the outbreak of war, was under the British sources declined to comment on Italian reports that parachutists were used in the raid.

The Cairo communique said large formations of Axis bombers attempted to intercept British warships returning from the commando-type raid on Tobruk but long-range R.A.F. fighters "obliged them to jettison their bombs and inflicted casualties."

Over the Egyptian battle front, air activity was on a small scale yesterday, the bulletin from general headquarters said. Except for daylight artillery exchanges and night patrol operations, the land front also was quiet.

Saturday night, however, the communique said that heavy medium and light bombers of the Allied air forces carried out three attacks "in force"—against shipping and port installations at Bengasi, airfields at Sidi Heneish and picked targets at Tobruk.

"Explosions and fires were caused, anti-aircraft and searchlight batteries put out of action and encampments attacked," the announcement said.

HOW TO RELIEVE
PILE TORTURE

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Yanks Whittle Japs Carriers To Nearly Half

By CLARK LEE

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Sept. 15 (AP)—The United States now is nearing the halfway mark in its fight to destroy the Japanese navy's aircraft carrier strength, which is the most important immediate objective of the war in the Pacific.

It now can be reported that a small 7,500-ton Japanese carrier, first identified as the Ryvjo, possibly was sunk in the big battle between carriers off the Solomon Islands Aug. 24.

United States pilots got four bomb hits and one torpedo hit on this ship. Patrol plane pilots several hours after the battle saw the carrier dead in the water and listing.

Pilots who were on the spot also believed two Japanese destroyers and one submarine were damaged in the battle in which United States losses were minor.

In addition two Japanese cruisers, one battleship and one transport were severely damaged. One of the cruisers and the transport later were seen abandoned.

All these facts were compiled on the spot by an Associated Press reporter from personal observation and from all the available official information and the reports of pilots who participated in the attacks.

This was the third great carrier battle in the Pacific in which carrier-based airplanes did almost all the fighting. It compares with the Midway battle in the size of the forces involved, although the damage inflicted on the enemy was smaller than at Midway. As at Midway and the Coral Sea engagement, the Japanese invasion forces were turned back short of their objectives.

In addition to the damage to enemy surface ships listed above, the U.S. forces shot down 96 enemy airplanes on Aug. 24 while losing only a few pilots.

It was the sixth enemy carrier disposed of. The other five were the Ryukaku, in the Coral Sea May 7, and the Seoryu, Hiryu, Kaga and at Midway June 4.

That leaves the enemy eight known carriers, the Hayataka, Shokaku, Zuikaku, Hitaka, Yunyo, Zuiehzo, Kasuga Maru and either the Ryujo or the Kosho.

In addition to the Hosho or Ryujo the enemy had three large carriers in the Solomons battle, of which two may have been damaged.

Lt. Arthur Blackford Patterson (Rev. R. B. Patterson, father), Cannington, Canadian Armored Corps, missing.

Hon. Capt. (Chaplain) John Weir Foote (Mrs. Edith Sheridan Foote, wife), Port Hope, Western Ontario Regiment, missing.

Lt. William Smithson Mackenzie Lang (Mrs. Reathea Lang, mother), Cobourg, Manitoba Regiment, missing.

Sgt. John Wilce Dudley (C. O. Dudley, father), Warkworth, Canadian Armored Corps, missing.

Bdr. Deans Cumming Lansing (Mrs. E. May Lansing, mother), Nestleton, Canadian Armored Corps, missing.

Full List of Missing.

The list issued to-day is a complete list of the missing at the Dieppe operation when Canadian soldiers, previously trained in combined operations, stormed ashore on the coast of France and battled Nazi defenders for nine hours, withdrawing after achieving heavy destruction, taking prisoners and obtaining information.

It includes the names of some 120 men previously officially reported missing in casualty lists, within a few days after the operation and before the Department decided to withhold all further reports of missing men until after a period which would give them time to escape capture by the enemy if they were still free and on French soil.

Dieppe thus goes down in history as the most costly Canadian military operation of the Second Great War, even more costly than the defence of Hong Kong, where a force of some 1,900 men was lost. All the Hong Kong men have not yet appeared in official casualty lists, as precise information on those who were killed and those taken prisoner has not been available.

The number of men officially reported killed and missing by the army since the start of the war now stands at 3,511, but does not include the Hong Kong fighters.

Slayer Paints Vivid Scene Of Twin Murder

SAN MARIA, Calif., Sept. 15—(AP).—Vivid description of how he killed two Wisconsin social workers was contained in a lengthy confession authorities possessed Monday from Robert T. Bailey, 23-year-old United States army deserter.

Thomas Weldon, deputy district attorney, said Bailey admitted he fatally shot Miss Neil Pietrangeli, 30, and Doroth Baun, 32, and left their nude bodies near a roadside outside Tomah, Wis., last Monday night, after they had given him a ride at Madison.

"After driving down the road, I made both these women get out of the car and take off all their clothing," Bailey's confession to Weldon stated.

"At this time, they said 'Let's call the whole thing off,' and I said 'No, get going.' All they said was it wouldn't do me any good, and I told them to get going, and I fired at them.

"The big one (Bailey said he didn't know their names) was a little ahead of the little one from me, and they both fell at the same time when I fired the first time. I stood off about five yards and I shot the bigger one in the back while she was standing there.

"The little one was grunting and groaning. And when she turned over, I shot her. I fired three shots altogether. I believe the first shot went through the smaller girl and also struck and knocked down the bigger girl ahead of her.

"When I shot first, they both fell and the big one never said anything. The little one screamed out: 'He's killing me! He's killing me!'

"I am positive the larger of the girls was dead (when he left the scene) but I am not sure whether the smaller one was, as she was still crying when I marched off."

terday with Republicans scoring a political grand slam in all major offices by capturing the governorship, three seats in the House of Representatives and one in the Senate.

With relatively few ballots cast, the voters returned Governor Sumner Sewall and Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., to office by majorities of better than two to one over Democratic opponents. Sewall defeated George W. Lane, Jr., and White won from Fulton J. Redman, Jr.

The closest contest was won by Robert Hale, outspoken Republican critic of the administration's domestic policies, in the first Congressional district. He defeated the former Democratic Governor, Louis J. Brann, a supporter of President Roosevelt, by approximately four to three.

Representative Margaret C. Smith, Republican, was re-elected by a margin of more than two to one over her Democratic opponent, Bradford C. Redonnett. The Republican incumbent in the third Congressional district, Frank Fellows, was returned to office without a contest.

Dieppe Casualty

Sgt. John Wilce (Jack) Dudley, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dudley of Warkworth, has been officially reported missing at Dieppe. He enlisted with the 14th Cobourg Battery, two days after war was declared, and had been in England since October, 1940.

Warkworth Boy Is Missing In Dieppe Raid

WARKWORTH, Sept. 15—(ENS).—Sergeant John Wilce Dudley, who took part in the Commando raid at Dieppe, was officially reported missing according to word received August 24, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton O. Dudley.

Sergeant "Jack" Dudley was born near Sibbald, Alta., October 10, 1918. He came to Warkworth with his parents 15 years ago. With the exception of attending public school for about two years in the West and a short time at Dundonald while staying with his grandmother, he attended Warkworth Public and Continuation School. After leaving school he worked with his father in the grist mill and driving truck, and on the second day that war was declared he enlisted in the 14th Field Battery, Cobourg, later he attended Military College in Kingston where he received his commission as Sergeant and on September 6, 1940, he landed in England and while there was transferred to the 2nd Field Battery.

"Jack" was a favorite with all his friends. He was keenly interested in sports and took an active part in hockey and softball.

He has five brothers and four sisters, namely Ralph, Pickering; Mrs. M. Baunchen (Margaret), Mabel and Myrtle, Toronto; Raymond, Clayton (Buddie), Dorothy, Norman and Arnold, at home.

Obituary

MRS. FRED TANNER

APSLEY, Sept. 15—(ENS).—The sad news has been received by relatives here of the death in Toronto of Mrs. Fred Tanner, wife of Pte. Fred Tanner, who is now overseas. She was formerly Miss Phyllis Trunk, and was married to Pte. Tanner three years ago.

Pte. Tanner volunteered for overseas service and left Canada May 13, 1942. She is survived by her mother, one sister, two children, Patricia aged 2 years, and an infant daughter.

No Place In Canada's War Effort For Strikes, Lockouts Says Mitchell

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP).—There is no place for industrial strikes, inter-union strife or lockouts in Canada's war effort, Labor Minister Mitchell said in an address prepared for delivery Monday at the annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

"There is no complaint big enough to warrant ceasing one day in making the munitions required by those who are fighting for us," Mr. Mitchell said.

While there had been too many small strikes in Canada there had also been cause for complaint that some employers had discriminated against trade unions, he added.

"In all we have done in Canada so far the workers have played their party," Mr. Mitchell said. "As a trade unionist myself, I am proud that our movement has supplied a large part of our fighting forces. On the home front in hundreds of our war plants men and women toil to produce the weapons our sailors, soldiers and airmen need to meet the foe."

While workers could not match the contribution of those who offered their lives on battle fronts they could always work harder, remembering that in the final analysis work would make victory possible. Workers would also be called on to aid in the struggle through increased taxes and loans.

600,000 Jump in 3 Years.

Mr. Mitchell reviewed the growth in industrial employment in Canada, an increase of 600,000 workers in three years, with per capita earnings of employees of some 13,000 plants at $28.55 July 1 compared with $25.49 weekly a year ago.

The wage stabilization policy which the government had adopted was one of benefit to the worker.

"Linked with price stabilization policy it is a control over the cost of living," he continued. "Without this control you would have inflation with higher prices for goods and chaotic wage conditions.

"You can't have price fixing unless you have wage stabilization. The price ceiling would break wide open. The working man never would have enough money to buy the things he needed. The cost of the war would increase to tremendous levels compared with to-day under the existing control. It would be a terrible bill to meet in the difficult post-war period."

Mr. Mitchell appealed to the delegates for their assistance in combatting absenteeism which caused lost production which could not be caught up. The absentee was a deserter from a post of duty.

"I think you will agree there is altogether to much casualness about the war in Canada, we haven't scratched the surface of sacrifice necessary to win this war."

Labor had its representatives on the National and Regional War Labor Boards and a consultative committee, Mr. Mitchell said in replying to criticism that labor had not received its fair share in the formulation of war policy in the United Nations. Such criticism could not fairly be applied to Canada.

It was much easier to undertake this form of consultation where trade unions existed and sound relations were in effect between employer and employees.

"What we trade unionists have got to learn is that the administration and consultation demands the willingness to accept responsibility for decisions that are at first sight not altogether acceptable by the members of our organizations," Mr. Mitchell said.

Suspect Black Market Used On Sugar

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP).—Hnudreds of Canadians who are classed as "other than householders" who did not apply for sugar rations, now find themselves in an embarrassing position after applying for tea and coffee rations as industrial users, public caterers or operators of institutions, The Canadian Press learned yesterday. Working on the assumption that institutions which require tea and coffee also require sugar, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has taken the attitude that many of those who did not ask for sugar and now ask for tea and coffee either had stocks of sugar on hand which they failed to report as required, or else made purchases of sugar in the "black market."

When coupon-rationing of sugar was made effective on July 1, between 40,000 and 50,000 persons made application as industrial users, public caterers or operators of institutions, these classifications including restaurants and boarding-houses.

When tea and coffee rationing was made effective in August the board sent a new form to all those who had registered for institutional use of sugar. It was assumed that all establishments which had applied for supplies of sugar would also require tea and coffee.

How Did They Get Sugar?

They did—but, in addition, many others also made application for tea and coffee supplies or complained they had not received the necessary application forms. These belated applicants are being asked by the Prices Board what they did for sugar supplies during July and August.

In applying for tea and coffee rations, these applicants are also asking that sugar rations be made available to them. Officials cited the example of one late applicant for both sugar and tea and coffee registration who reported his stock of sugar at 50 pounds on July 1 and said he required 150 pounds for the month of September.

This application, said board officials left open the question whether the applicant actually had more than fifty pounds on July 1 or whether he obtained his apparent July and August requirements of 250 pounds from some "black market" source.

Board officials said that persons who complain they have not received the form which must be filled in before they can obtain tea and coffee sometimes inform the board that they did not make application for sugar because for patriotic reasons, thety felt they should postpone such application.

"The obvious suggestion from the board is that they continue to be equally patriotic in respect to tea and coffee," a board official said.

Could Charge Hoarding.

The regulations provide that no industrial user or institution can buy sugar after July unless registration has been made and the name of the supplier provided to the Prices Board.

If persons requiring sugar for other than household use had sufficient sugar on hand to carry them from July 1 to the present, and had failed to register it, board officials said, they might be liable to prosecution under hoarding laws.

If they bought sugar from some unauthorized source they would be breaking the regulation requiring that buyers in their category must have registered and given the name of their supplier to the board.

If, in the applications now being made, any false statement is made on the amount of sugar on hand June 15 the applicant is liable to a fine up to $5,000 or imprisonment up to two years, or both fine and imprisonment.

In the application form, the applicant is required not only to state his holdings as of June 15, but also to undertake to use from July 1 to September 30 not more than 70 per cent of the quantity used during the same quarter of 1941.

The board has no check on the quantities used between July 1 and the present by those who now seek the privilege of registration to obtain sugar, officials said.

The prospect was that practically all the late applications for sugar, tea and coffee rationing would be held up pending investigation as to how sugar requirements were met after rationing became effective on July 1.

Spokesmen would make no comment on the possible scope of the "black market" in sugar, but said it appears to be "active" in some areas.

The board said yesterday that ration books issued to September 9 totalled 11,488,558, while 71,424 were held in abeyance pending the checking of applications.

The numbers issued from offices in major cities follow: Montreal 1,522,714, Toronto 1,007,778, Winnipeg 828,570, Quebec 577,675, London 518,392 Saskatoon 474,500, and Vancouver 468,400.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, September 16

This should be an interesting and eventful day, with many pleasures and gains, but not without its surprises, conflicts and contradictions. There are signs of outstanding performances of a public, group or fraternal nature, with gratifying rewards, honors or tokens of esteem. Happy and lucrative conditions are shown for the young and romantic. Artistic, intellectual and social functions should engage the major attention. However there may be disappointments, delays, and possibly reversals even in this connection.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of conflicting circumstances, with unusual activity and many profitable adventures, possibly in literary, artistic or social contacts, although there may be emotional or sentimental setbacks or disappointments. This might be due to lowered health or vitality or that of those in the domestic circle. Beware nervous tension and emotional strain, also be cautious with writings.

A child born on this day may have a life of fluctuations and strange vicissitudes. It may succeed financially but have sorrows or disappointments in its social or romantic affiliations.

Jap Seaplane Bombs U.S. Forest

Believed Off Sub; Forestry Patrol Soon Douses Blaze

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 15—(AP)—The first aerial assault upon United States home soil, possibly by a seaplane operating from a submarine, was announced by the Army's western defenre command today.

The attack, just before dawn Sept. 9, was an apparent attempt to set fire to a valuable but isolated forest on the Southern Oregon coast. The effort was fruitless, however, thanks to the vigilance of a forest service lookout and the efficiency of alert air-raid warning system volunteers.

The Army's communique said fragments of metal found near a crater by forestry patrols which quickly snuffed out the fire, bore Japanese ideographs.

A small seaplane, without identifying markings was seen to come in from the sea and circle the Mount Emily area and shortly after the craft returned toward the sea.

Several hours later an Army patrol plane sighted and bombed a submarine 30 miles off the Oregon coast with "unobserved results."

The Army communique noted: "It is possible a plane of this type may have been carried on a submarine."

Lieut. R. J. Runyon, area supervisor of the air-raid warning system, said the plane was spotted on the filter centre control board with seconds of its appearance over the coast, and observed: "It was an excellent test, and the system proved fully effective."

How to make the most of your Coffee

WHATEVER type of coffee-maker you use, follow these rules to prevent waste and to use coffee to best advantage.

1 Use good coffee—correctly ground for your method of coffee-making.

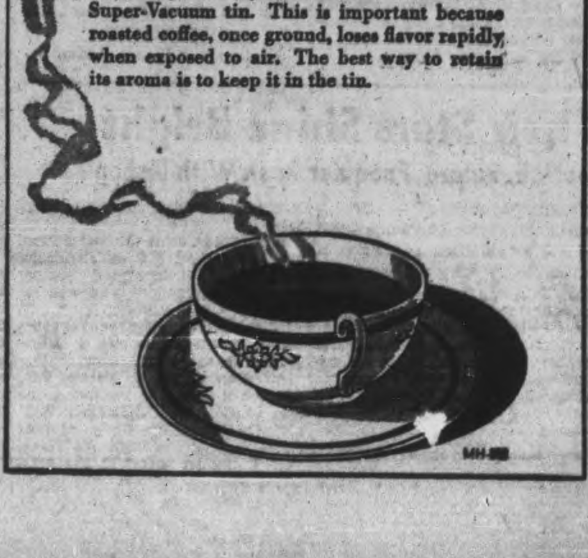
2 Measure ground coffee and water carefully so as to provide just the number of cupfuls you need and no more. Use freshly drawn water.

3 Make coffee at just below boiling point. Boiling develops bitterness and spoils flavor. Remove grounds as soon as coffee is made.

4 Serve immediately, if possible. If necessary to keep hot, use only low heat.

5 Keep coffee maker scrupulously clean. Stale odors and sediment affect flavor. Preheat by scalding just before use.

MAXWELL HOUSE is a blend of the world's finest coffees, roasted by a special process to capture all its extra goodness. It offers precisely correct grinds for each type of coffee maker—Drip and Regular. Maxwell House reaches you absolutely roaster-fresh because it is sealed in a Super-Vacuum tin. This is important because roasted coffee, once ground, loses flavor rapidly when exposed to air. The best way to retain its aroma is to keep it in the tin.



Appeal Planned To Public To Save Power

Looking ahead to the approaching Victory Loan the Utilities Commission scanned its financial condition yesterday and decided to avoid conversion of present bonds for cash, continuing to hold them, and buy some of the new issue with funds in the bank.

The Electric Department at August 31 had a credit balance of $39.731.44 waterworks $21,874.87, and gas $6,768.50.

Domestic lighting increased 15.8 per cent in August commercial also increased 5.58 per cent, but commercial power was down 34.83 per cent. Mr. Dobbin reported that the Quaker Oats Company accounted for 82 per cent of the factory decrease. It was said that C.G.E. represented 15.5 per cent of the drop and De Laval Company is down 49,200 kilowatt hours. The latter company was working day and night a year ago.

Total sale of gas in August was 4,063.100 cubic feet as compared with 3,835,400 cubic feet in August last year.

Appeal to Public.

The Commission instructed R. L. Dobbin to prepare an advertisement to be published next Saturday appealing to the general public for co-operation in reducing local consumption of electric power in the season of lengthening nights beginning next Sunday evening. The advertisement will include suggestions to householders and others as to little economies within the homes which will avoid waste and unnecessary use of power.

The longer nights and the heavy demand for power in the munitions industries and generally for war production will require thoughtful co-operation by the public.

Street lights will be gradually dimmed by substituting 200-watt lamps when the present 300's burn out. The Commission intends to maintain adequate street illumination in so far as possible. Their program of economy in that direction has not yet been fully planned.

Mr. Dobbin is preparing a list of the names and telephone numbers of commercial power users for quick action on expected instructions from Hydro headquarters in Belleville for cutting the local load. On occasions when consumption in the district circuit is heavy, the commercial consumers can be easily reached by telephone and asked to reduce at that time their individual power loads.

Industrial requirements are going to have preferment during the winter season and the public will have a chance to make some self-control of domestic convenience. If the voluntary plan should fail to bring results as the season advances, people should remember that domestic power can be cut off whole sections of the city simply by pulling separate switches, and if that becomes necessary it will be done.

However, that is a last resort, and is not being mentioned by the Utilities Commission in their present appeal.

Operating Report.

The August power peak was 11,400 h.p. as compared with 12,400 in August, 1941. This decline of 1,000 h.p. has already been referred to.

The water pumpage last month was 119.988,000 gallons and in August last year 101,894,000 gallons. The average per day was 660,000 agllons more than last year, and nearly a million gallons a day more than August, 1939. An increase of about one-third in our pumpage will call for some serious consideration in the future. Mr. Dobbin observed.

"The 18-inch force main was completed to a point north of Stewart Street when we ran out of pipe. A temporary connection was made pending the arrival of the balance of the pipe (which had been diverted to some other city). This came later in the month and will be installed when convenient.

"Work was begun on 930 feet of 6-inch fire service main around the new staff house on Monaghan Road. This was nearly completed by the end of the month.

A Serious Charge

COBOURG, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — George King, former customs employee at Cobourg, who was arrested last week at McDonnell's Corners, near Perth, appeared in police court yesterday on two charges, one of falsifying an entry in a customs return and the other with theft of $343 of customs funds. Harry Deyman acted for the Crown and Constable Karl Lockwood was present on behalf of the R.C.M.P. King did not plea but elected trial by judge and was remanded until Monday next for the preliminary hearing. Later he was released on $1,000 bail. The charge was dated on or about February 1, 1939.

Oblate Mission

COBOURG, Sept 15—(ENS).—Renewal of the mission conducted last year by the Oblate Fathers is being held all this week at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church. The mission will close on Sunday. Last year a week's mission was held for the men and a separate week for the women, but the renewal this year is for both men and women in the same week. Like last year, the missionaries are Rev. Father A. Unger and Rev. Father J. Scannell. They belong to the Order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. Both men are forcible speakers and their sermons are very inspiring.

Bishop At Churchill's

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(CP Cable). —Air Marshal W. C. Bishop, R.C.A.F., spent the week-end with Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill. A spokesman at R.C.A.F. headquarters said the visit was purely informal.

Evangel Service Packs Hall At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15—(ENS).—A. P. Gibbs, who has been conducting evangelistic services in Grace Gospel Hall for the past week, and again this week, has been attracting such large crowds that it was necessary to hold the Sunday evening services in Memorial Hall.

Evangelist E. Ernest Tatham conducted a song service at the beginning of the meeting. The hymns used were There's Not a Friend Like the Lowly Jesus; There Is a Fountain; "Was It For Me; and Come to The Saviour. Mr. Archie Neilson contributed a very beautiful solo, The Old Rugged Cross. Mrs. Tatham presided at the piano.

Mr. Gibbs, who comes from Chicago, Ill., has led a very interesting life. He spent 25 years in South Africa, has preached to thousands all over the world, and besides being a very capable speaker is an author and song writer.

He held the audience of nearly 300 persons enthralled with his interesting illustrated address of The True Story of an Artist's Studio.

The Story of Stenberg.

It is the story of a poor artist named Stenberg, who lived in the city of Dusseldorf. He paints a picture of The Crucified Saviour, to adorn the altar of St. Jerome's Church. As he wanders about the country sketching, he chances on a gypsy encampment. Here he meets Pepita, a beautiful gypsy girl. He engages her as a model and paints her as a Spanish Dancing Girl.

Pepita asks questions about the picture of the Crucifixion and is told how the Saviour died for the sins of the world and asks the artist if he loves Christ for doing so much for him.

Stenburg is speechless and confesses to Pepita that he is not a Christian and does not love the Lord. He tries to dispel the matter from his mind, but her question keeps coming before him, until he decides to become a Christian.

He seeks out an old man who lends him his worn and marked Bible. After reading John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosover believeth in Him should not perish but have everlastin life,' Stenburg believes God's word and is saved. He rushes to camp only to find that the gypsies have gone elsewhere.

Now he wants to do something for the Lord and paints a picture of Christ on the Cross underlined with these words, "This have I done for thee: What hast thou done for Me?" He presented it to the corporation and it was given a prominent place in the art gallery. Thousands gazed at the picture and Stenberg watched the effect.

One day Pepita came and as she wept at the foot of the picture Stenberg spoke to her. When she asked him if Christ could possible love and save her, he was able to answer Yes, and she, too, put her trust in the Saviour and became a Christian.

Years rolled by. Pepita and Stenberg died. One day a young Polish nobleman, Count Zingendorff, on a pleasure trip to Paris was compelled to stop at Dusseldorf while his horses were receiving attention. To pass the time he wandered into the art gallery. He was attracted to the picture of "The Christ" and as he read the words under the picture he thought of his sinful, selfish life and dedicated his life and wealth to the One who did so much for him on the Cross. He went back to Poland to preach the Gospel. He became founder of the Moravian Missions, which sent thousands of missionaries to various parts of the world.

John Wesley and other famous men were converted through these missionaries and particularly through believing John 3:16.

Conducts Services

Rev. J. Hutchinson, who is now conducting services in the Bethel Baptist Church, will give a series of Bible studies each evening at 8. Mr. Hutchinson comes to Peterborough with an interesting background of experience, having spent almost seven years in Germany and Austria, and has seen the results of Hitlerism at their worst. Many interesting experiences will be woven into the messages of this former missionary to the persecuted Jews in central Europe. Mr. Hutchinson at one time was employed in the local plant of the Canadian General Electric Company.

CAMPBELLFORD

Rotarians Fear One Policeman Is Not Enough

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15.—(ENS).—Decision of the town council to get along with a single policeman for an unspecified term came under the scrutiny of local Rotarians at their noon-day luncheon held Monday. The question was raised by H. B. Longmore, M.D., who saw in the move to cut police protection in half together with Hydro announcement that street lighting was to be cut by twenty-five per cent. a very bad combination which might lend itself to the advantage of anyone with criminal intent. Another member feared the single policeman in the daylight hours might reflect in upward revision of the insurance rates and he felt if only one man was to be employed he should be on night duty. Members gave unanimous support to a motion expressing the opinion that the council should reverse its decision and again employ two policemen. The secretary was authorized to forward the resolution to council. From the Campbellford and Seymour Branch of the Red Cross Secretary, M. B. Sayers read a communication asking the club to contribute 13 razors to their comfort bags being supplied to soldiers overseas. On motion the club decided to give the Red Cross a dozen and a half razors instead of the dozen requested. District Governor G. G. McNab will pay his official visit to the club on September 21st, according to a letter read by the secretary.

H. J. Taylor, chairman of the committee which is sponsoring the Salvation Army's Red Shield Home Front Appeal outlined plans for the campaign for which the Campbellford and Seymour objective is $1,600.00. Oficers of the campaign for this district are headed by Mayor F. F. Long as Honorary District Chairman; H. J. Taylor, District Chairman; Captain Alex Turnbull, Corps Officer in Charge; J. D. Mills, Treasurer. In addition to the canvass under the direction of the various committees Rotarian Bert Taylor told the Club arrangements were being made to hold a tag day on September 28th as a means of contacting residents of the township who might otherwise have to be overlooked owing to the difficulties of canvassing in the country.

The following committees with the classification allotted to them were named: Industrial, P. C. Denyes, chairman; A. J. Meyers, Dr. E. A. Stuart, F. F. Long, W D. Wood, Bell Telephone; H. Gummer, C.N.R.; S. Robins, Trent Dehydrated; R. Bale, Shoe Factory; J. O. Benor, Civic Employees; J. Cunningham, Campbellford Cloth; H. Saunders, Pulp Mill; H. Beatty, Hydro; V. Kellogg, Canals. Special Names Committee: Dr. O. C. Watson, chairman; J. P. Archer, L. B. Glover, A. J. Armour, W. A. Hoie, Rev. G. N Maxwell, Chas Davidson, T. L. Diamons, W. S. Wiggins. Public and High Schools Committee: R. J. Locke, A. K. Loucks, N. Alex MacColl. Separate School Committee, W. J. Callaghan, W. Masterson. Business Canvass Teams, Front St. (North from Bridge), C. B. Williams, Capt., H. T. Scott, W. Brady, F. G. DeCarroll. Front St. (South) A. D. Bennett, Capt., R. Hazell; Bridge and Rear Streets, Earl Bell, Capt., Doug. Watson. West Side of Town, M. B. Sayers, Capt., Harry Barrons, Wilf Coleman, Harold Gummer.

Campbellford Airman Honored By Friends

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15 (ENS) —Nearly sixty young people from this town gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen, Booth street, on Friday evening for a farewell party and presentation in honor of Douglas McMullen who recently enlisted in the R.C.A.F. Douglas, who was a popular member of the younger set and a graduate of the local high school had been working as a learner operator for the H.E.P.C. for the past year and prior to that had been on the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff in Trenton. The evening was arranged in his honor by his many friends and the highlight of the affair was the presentation of a lovely wrist watch on their behalf by Miss Josephine Nesbitt. Glenn Hay read the presentation address in which tribute was paid to Doug's many fine qualities. Following this he voiced his thanks in a few well chosen words. A very enjoyable social time was had by the guests during the remainder of the evening and later delightful refreshments were served.

More Salvage

COBOURG, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Approximately four tons of rubber have been collected for the salvage depot at Allison's coal yards in Cobourg. The daily collections have ranged from a small amount to a very heavy poundage. It is expected that the depot will remain open until the end of the month, but this will be decided at a meeting scheduled for this week, of the salvage committee.

Thieves Ransack Home At Trent

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 15 (ENS)—Thieves visited Trent River for the second time this month on Friday night when the Sedgewick House was entered and a small sum of money and some jewellery stolen. An attempt to break into the homes of E. Vaness and James Cook failed when the occupants were aroused by the noise. Police are investigating.

Indians from Rice Lake who are busy harvesting the wild rice crop on the river report the crop the best in years.

Pte. Charles Menzie of Nanaimo, B.C., was a visitor with his sister, Mrs. K. Lewis, last week.

Mr. Jim Umphrey returned home on Sunday after spending the past week with friends in Toronto.

The Campbellford bus is running to Trent River this fall so that local youngsters can get back and forth to Campbellford High School.

Mrs. Mort Stewart and Miss Alice Hay of Whitby were Sunday visitors with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hay.

Messrs. Herbert and Harold Carnrite, K. Chaplin and Pat Logan of Peterborough were week-end visitors at their respective homes.

Board Of Education Plan Is Turned Down In Port Hope

PORT HOPE, Sept. 14.—(ENS).—At the request of all members of the Port Hope Council a special meeting was held Monday night to consider the advisability of forming a Board of Education for the town of Port Hope rather than a Public school board and a High school board as at present.

Councillor Hugh Bird and Deputy-Reeve Len Moncrief favored a vote at the Jannary election, but this failed to meet with the general approval of the council. The following resolution was carried unanimously:

"We, the member of the Port Hope Council, after due consideration do not feel that it is expedient at the present time to call for the forming of a Board of Education and that the matter should now be laid over for further consideration at a more opportune time."

Several members of the council said they would like more information on the subject, which will be discussed at a future date.

Plans were made for a regular meeting of the council on September 21, at 7.30 p.m.

Power Shortage Not Noticed By Any Cobourg Industries

COBOURG, Sept. 15—Ways and means of cutting down electrical consumption was the main subject of discussion last night at the regular meeting of the Cobourg Public Utilities Commission. Preliminary arrangements were made to curtail power consumption.

A letter from the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee of the town council authorized installation of an extra street light on Tweed street.

Manager McIntosh stated that the war-time restrictions on metal would curtail further street light installations. It might be possible to take the lights out from some place else.

Mayor Burnett moved that the matter be left to the manager to co-operate with the town council in deciding what light might be out out; carried.

Mr. McIntosh informed the meeting that Cobourg had not experienced power difficulties but that he had been advised by the H.E.P.C. that Cobourg might well expect at any time to experience whatever general restrictions might arise.

Mayor Burnett said that it might be a good idea to have the local industries to meet with the P.U. Commission to talk over the situation. He also suggested that the public be asked to co-operate in power saving, so that the industries be not placed in jeopardy. Mayor Burnet said that the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the town council and the P.U.C. should get together to see what lighting could be curtailed. The members of the Commission concurred and a motion was passed incorporating the mayor's suggestions.

Mr. McIntosh said that more electricity was used in the summer for cooking, but with colder weather people turned to coal for cooking where they had combination ranges. The situation therefore, as far as range consumption was concerned should improve with the arrival of colder weather, the manager said.

Accounts passed were as follows: Electric light — Ontario Plumbing and Heating Supplies, $37.54; Dundas Bros., .88; McDonnell Motor Sales, $1.55; Bell Telephone Co., $17.00; W. L. Allen Co. $6.00; Cobourg World, $3.75; Total $66.72.

Water Dept. — P.U.C. Cobourg (Electrical Dept.) $569.60; R. Patterson and Son. $96.72; Nichols Chemical Co., $110.09; E. McFayden, $21.53; William Dodge, $54.40; British American Oil, $50.02; Total $902.36.

Further discussion on power shortage drew the comment that if industries staggered their mid-day shut-off it would lower the peak by spreading out the load, although it would not lessen the total consumption. However it would reduce peak costs, it was pointed out.

Commissioner Jack Delanty expressed the opinion that electric ranges were mainly responsible for the uptrend in the peak load, but Mr. McIntosh stated that a complete survey of the full working-day power chart revealed that the ranges alone were not responsible for the boost in the peak.

I think that staggering of the noon-day closing hour would help matters, including range consumption, commented chairman Harry McGuire.

QUESTION: What is a "LINE FINDER"?

1 A piece of fishing tackle?

2 A telephone switching mechanism?

3 A device to control artillery fire?

When you lift your telephone, your line is seized by a line-finder—the automatic "central" which completes your telephone connection.

When more calls are made than there are line-finders to handle them, you may get a "slow dial tone." You then must wait until someone hangs up, and a line-finder is released. If you dial before hearing the dial tone, you either fail to reach the telephone you want or else get the wrong number.

REMEMBER—you tie up a line-finder at central every time you use your telephone.

So please make only essential calls... and make them brief. Help keep communications clear for urgent war business.

Rationing Ourselves

In addition to the rationing which is under Government control it is going to be necessary for us in future to ration ourselves in our consumption of several necessary commodities. What these commodities are will vary from time to time, but our principle of intelligent self-denial must not change.

The Foods Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is asking us to buy as little as we can of fresh pork, bacon and ham during the next seven weeks. Probably it will not be possible to keep these meats off the menu entirely. There is little beef to be had and we cannot eat mutton and veal all the time. But we can make an effort not to use pork, and by doing so we shall make it easier for Canada to keep up her shipments of bacon to Britain. The British need this meat badly; if they do not get it their already frugal ration will be reduced still further. By continuing to eat pork in our usual quantities we are subjecting them to further hardship. It is squarely up to us to do our duty in this matter.

We are asked also to cut down our use of electric power. There will be a serious shortage of power for war industries unless we stop using power unnecessarily. Electric advertising is to be stopped, and already one large group of movie theatres has reduced its outdoor display lighting to a minimum. But we must conserve power in the home also. We are not asked to live in the dark, but we are asked not to use power wastefully. This means that we should use no lighting for purely ornamental purposes; lights outside doors, and lights left burning in halls merely in order to give the home a pleasant appearance must be forgotten. Great care must be used also in the control of sewing-machines, electric heaters, toasters, coffee-machines and electric irons. All these things use current, and some of them use far more than can be justified in wartime. Toasters, for instance, consume 600 watts; obviously if it is possible to make toast in the oven while something else is cooking, this should be done. Radios use only 60 watts, but if they are left on when no one is listening, they are wasting current. Let us be sensible about this matter, and stop wasting current wherever we can.

The telephone service is becoming dangerously overstrained also. It is difficult at present for telephone companies to supply the equipment and the service needed for essential calls, and wasteful conversation on the phone simply makes matters worse. Telephone conversations have increased enormously since the outbreak of war, and by no means all of them are important. Let us give up the habit of using the telephone as a time-waster and a visiting medium; let us use it only when we have something to say, and let us be as brief as we can when we do use it.

These are forms of rationing which we must impose upon ourselves. We are not being forced to eat less pork, or use less light in our homes, or talk less on the telephone. But these are things which we should do all the same. It is highly undesirable that a nation in time of war should be forced to do anything which it can be persuaded to do of its own accord. We know what must be done and it is up to us to do it.

Publicity Tangle

The public has waited with impatience for the formation of the Wartime Information Board, and now that the personnel of that Board has been made known there is dissatisfaction in some quarters. Mr. Charles Vining is at the head of it, and no one will find fault with this appointment; he made the report upon the basis of which the Board was formed, and he is a newspaperman of experience and ability. But he is the only man on the Board who has had any first-hand experience of publiicty; the other nine members are lawyers, soldiers, diplomats and other fine things, but they are not publicists.

It is not necessary or desirable that all the members of the Board should be experienced newsmen, but one out of ten certainly seems a very small percentage of expert opinion. Nor is it reassuring to notice that the members appear to represent various government departments; are they on the Board to speak for their department heads? If so they will be less likely to produce a coherent publicity scheme for Canada than an equal number of free-handed, well-trained publicists. Publicity is not a game at which anyone can play, and the set-up of the Board hardly points to a single-minded program.

Meanwhile, the former Director of Public Information, Mr. G. H. Lash, has resigned, and it has been suggested that this is because he has not been given a seat on the Board. Certainly Mr. Lash's experience in this work should be as valuable as that of any of the nine gentlemen who are undertaking this sort of work for the first time. Frankly, we do not think that the Wartime Information Board is the place for amateurs to serve their apprenticeship in the complex craft of publicity.

As Churchill Sees Him

Winston Churchill has long been an opponent of Communism, and there is no indication that he likes it now any better than he did twenty years ago. But he appears to like Josef Stalin, and admire him too; Stalin is a great leader and a great man, and it is not surprising that he should have appealed strongly to Mr. Churchill who is also a great leader and a great man. Speaking of him to the British House of Commons, the Prime Minister used these words:

"It is very fortunate for Russia, in her agony, to have this great, rugged war chief at the head. Stalin is a massive and strong personality, suitable to the stormy times in which he has lived. He is a man of inexhaustible courage and will power; a man direct and blunt in speech...Above all, Stalin is a man with that saving sense of humor which is of high importance to all men in all nations, and particularly in great men and great leaders. Stalin also left upon me the impression of deep, cool wisdom and complete absence of illusion of any kind."

It is absolutely necessary that the Allied leaders should trust each other. But it is even better when they like each other. Churchill obviously likes Stalin, and it is to be hoped that this may be the beginning of genuinely friendly relations, now and after the war, between Britain and Russia. There is no reason to regard such friendship as dangerous. After all, the Russians are in quite as much danger of picking up the bourgeois ways of the British as the British are of acquiring the totalitarian outlook of the Russians.

The Vanished Banana

Only a year ago we were able to read of the banana shortage in Britain with that fortitude which we all show when bearing someone else's misfortunes. Now the boot is on the other leg—our own leg; we have no bananas, and we see nothing funny in the situation. Labat, the eighteenth century traveller in the Americas, said of the banana, "Animals of all kinds, including even cats, are fond of this fruit," but we venture the opinion that the human animal leads in the consumption of bananas and now, save in countries where the fruit grows, it must go without.

Hitler, of course, is responsible for this. No banana splits for schoolgirls, who need them as brainfood; no banana sandwiches at parties, to make them worth going to; no bananas to dip in hot coffee—what a delicacy—for a midnight snack; for all this the Beast of Berlin must bear the blame. And to think that only a short time ago bananas were used to grease the ways at the launching of a ship! Nowadays not even the powerful forces of Hollywood can get a banana-skin for a comedian to slip on. The dictum of a once famous evangelizing group—"It's the banana that leaves the bunch that gets skinned"—has lost its point; youthful converts have forgotten what banana looked like. Not the least blessing of peace will be the return of the delicious golden fruit spotted here and there with brown, which we have loved long since ,and lost awhile.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Housewives Asked To Stagger Ironing Days," says a headline. What will the temperance faction have to say about that?

General McArthur has told his men that all he asks of them is that they kill one Jap apiece. Of course those who want to curry favor with the General are allowed to do better than this.

In Sweden human hair is being used as a substitute for wool in the manufacture of blankets. Women get 11 cents a pound for their locks, and men half that price. We have heard of hair shirts, but why wear one when you are trying to sleep?

Rural Ontario 60 Years Ago

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT WAS my good fortune recently to be given an opportunity to inspect a book now seldom seen, called "An Illustrated Historical Atlas of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham," which was published in 1878 by Beldens of Toronto. It is one of the earliest books of its kind to be seen in Ontario; not every district was favored with Messrs. Beldens' attention. Apparently the book was published on a subscription basis, and only the well-to-do counties could afford it. Map-making is an expensive business. The book has already acquired curiosity and value with age, and will acquire yet more.

The Atlas of the United Counties is an elaborate and, by modern standards, strange work. It gives not only detailed maps of each township and concession, but illustrations showing the principal residences in each district, the more important places of business, and portraits of eminent citizens. The latter, we may be sure, tallies pretty exactly with the subscription list. This list of patrons is given at length in the back of the book, and it makes interseting reading. Details are given of each man's name, address, occupation, the place of his nativity and the year in which he settled in the county. Most of the patrons are farmers, with a sprinkling of lawyers, physicians, millers and other necessary citizens. One gentleman, bent on getting a little free advertising, calls himself "Carriage Manufactory, warranted Superior Work and Best Material"; another is an Editor, Dealer in Books and Musical Instruments; the Curate of Millbrook describes himself as a Clerk in Holy Orders. He is apparently the only clergyman who could enter the charmed circle of patrons; perhaps he had a private income.

THE MAPS, on a scale of ten chains to the inch, are executed with style, though whether they are accurate or not is beyond my knowledge. The publishers guarantee them to be done from personal examinations and surveys by their own men, which may constitute a recommendation or it may not. People who had ancestors in that part of Canada would doubtless find the maps of absorbing interest, but to the ordinary reader the pictures are better. They are engravings, executed in that style which places accuracy first and artistic merit a bad second.

Let us examine the first picture in the book. It is a depiction of "Bellevue, the residence of Thomas Heenan Jr., near Grafton." Bellevue stands at what appears to be a busy crossroads: a buggy is hurrying down one fork, and seems just about to run over a dog; a man in a derby hat is hurrying in the other direction with eight sacks of meal on a dray; up yet another fork we see a yoke of oxen, pulling a cart containing two ploughs; at the crossroads itself, an aged father appears to be admonishing his son, for the younger man is prone under a tree while the older one waves his arms above him. In Mr. Heenan's fields great things are afoot; haying, stooking and loading are in progress. Two ladies on the verandah at Bellevue gesture toward the scene while a gentleman—presumably Mr. Heenan himself—lolls in an easy-chair, reading a book. Modern farmers will envy the man who could calmly read a book in the midst of harvest.

BELLEVUE itself is quite a place. It is built in the height of late Victorian style and very handsome it is, though perhaps a little ornate for modern taste. The modern observer cannot but be impressed by the size of the house, the extent of the ornamental grounds and the general air of a prosperous country estate. Either Mr. Heenan did exceptionally well at his farming or Beldens employed a flattering draughtsman. The same thing may be said of the picture of the residence of Mr. G. B. Salter, a miller of Canton. His house is a most pretentious affair, has a positive miniature Versailles for a garden, and sports a handsome flagpole. And the home of Dr. McLaughlin of Bowmanville is a palace, no less, with two summer-houses in its very extensive gardens!

Doubtless Beldens' men exaggerated what they saw, but they must have seen something. They could not make these handsome houses and their fine grounds up out of whole cloth. Can it be that in 1878 the United Counties were more handsome than they are now? At present as we drive through them we see a general prosperity, but nothing to suggest magnificence, particularly in the agricultural districts. Were the Victorians more house-proud than we; it seems not unlikely.

THE interest of this old atlas is considerable, and I shall continue my description of it on Thursday. The approach of Beldens to rural Ontario is the most engaging that we have yet encountered, and we should like to follow it further.

Unconsidered Trifles

"My wife," said Mr. Henpeck, "kisses me every time I come into the house."

"Ah," said his friend, "that's affection."

"No," sighed Henpeck, "that's investigation."

"As soon as my fiance has completed his military service we shall be married."

"Ah, yes. He will be better able to stand it then."

Officer: "I say, sergeant, where have all these silly asses in our company gone?"

"He knows all the best people in town." "Why doesn't he associate with them then?" "They know him!"

"Your rifle is your best pal," he told them. "Treat it as you would your mother, your sister or your sweetheart....rub it over with an oily rag every morning."

Although she was keen on her job, the newly recruited landgirl was evidently finding things very strange "down on the farm."

After having an incubator explained to her very carefully, she was asked if she understood how it worked. With a puzzled look in her bright blue eyes, she replied:

"Yes; but I can't see where the hen sits."

Huns Need Stalingrad's Shelter

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

REPORTS that Hitler has designated a trio of his top-flight generals to fashion and equip a winter line for his troops in Russia from the lower Volga to the Baltic sound highly credible.

They tend to explain, also, why he is lashing his resources in manpower and material, regardless of losses, to take Stalingrad. Even though the city's strategic value as a base for future Nazi offensive action would be strictly limited, the bomb and shell-battered ruins of Stalingrad could be invaluable as a pivot of a defensive winter line.

They could be used to improvise winter shelters for powerful forces. And weather-proof shelters for many thousands of men at the apex of the Nazi Don-Volga salient must be available if German 1942 gains are not to be risked when winter comes. Caught by as severe a winter as the last in the open steppes of the Don bend and below it, the Nazis might be forced to abandon much of the salient so freely watered by German blood—just as they abandoned wide segments of hard-won territory last year about Moscow.

POOR SHELTER ELSEWHERE

There is no prospect of good shelter for Nazi invaders anywhere in the Don bend. Winter conditions there and along the whole length of the Volga are bitter even in relatively mild years. Except for Stalingrad, the Donetz basin has the only populous Russian towns and cities to provide housing in winter on the scale German forces must have if they are to halt and refit for a new campaign to destroy Russia's fighting power next year.

Unless he can anchor his lines to Stalingrad for the winter, Hitler's 1942 campaign can be written off as an even greater and more costly failure than that of 1941. The Russian successive stands on the Don and now on the Volga have balked his hopes of a decisive victory that would permit him to turn westward against Britain or centre his winter campaign on Egypt.

The German sweep to the Volga at Stalingrad has left the Nazis holding a dangerous salient. They have by-passed Russian-held bridgeheads south of the Don far in the rear of the advance on Stalingrad. Only urgent necessity of taking the city before the winter closes in could warrant that risk.

It seems certain that the seemingly inevitable fall of Stalingrad must be followed by a Nazi turn north and west in the Don-Volga corridor to outflank Russian bridgeheads. They are in the Kletskaya area on the upper face of the Don bend nearly 100 miles northwest of Stalingrad. A Russian winter advance southward even half-way across the bend toward its lower face could render the Nazi hold on the Stalingrad salient precarious.

MAIN OBJECTIVE

The first Hitler necessity, therefore, must be to get possession of the ruins of Stalingrad to anchor his winter line and that all-important salient. It is the protective screen for his operations in the Caucasus. Should a miracle save Stalingrad, a Nazi retreat into the Donetz Basin for the winter and evacuation also of much of the ground taken in the Central Caucasus to threaten the Grozny oil field would appear likely. Weather conditions in winter are comparatively mild in the Caucasus except in the mountains, but without a Stalingrad salient to support and protect it, the German push down the Rostov-Baku railway to the vicinity of Grozny would be open for hundreds of miles to flanking attacks.

Hitler wound up his campaign belatedly last year against Moscow with dangerously exposed salients thrust deeply in both north and south of the city. He was compelled to relinquish both by the amazing Russian winter offensive.

This time he seems to be heeding his generals and preparing in time to revert to the defensive to hold his gains until another fighting season comes.

This Is Millard Speaking

"THE most humble man in a steel plant is just as important today as any man in khaki, in the air force or in the navy."

This statement does not come from a member of the Government, anxiously endeavoring to imbue the steel worker with a sense of duty to the State. It does not come from an angry citizen, incensed at the prospect or threat of a strike in the steel industry. It comes from Charles H. Millard, national director in Canada of the United Steel Workers of America, the head and front of the labor trouble at Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney, the man who threatened the Government and the people with a strike in the steel mills of both these places. It comes from a very arrogant labor leader, the Millard who says he wants no promises from Mitchell Hepburn, Premier of Ontario, because he has learned that these promises are "not much good." It is the Millard who says, "why are they interfering in labor now? What have they been doing all these years? Because they are afraid of labor, that's why."

This strutting Millard has given away his whole case, has cut the ground from under his own feet. It is exactly because every steel worker is as important in his job as is the man in the fighting forces that a strike in the steel industry would be a national outrage, the equivalent of desertion from the Army or the Navy or the Air Force. Men in the fighting services, acknowledged by Mr. Millard to be not more important than the steel worker in the fight for victory, do not go on strike. They are not permitted to go on strike, but they are not the kind of men who would lay down their tools in the face of a national emergency. Mr. Millard has provided an unanswerable argument for those who are to take part in next week's steel conference. If they use it he can make no reply. It is his own.

Science And The Censor

(FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES)

SCIENTISTS in general and physicians in particular will be disturbed by the correspondence which has passed between the postal censor and Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, editor of Science, and which appears in the current issue of that journal. That censorship in war is necessary no one will deny. But was the censor justified in deleting from Science an item on a new sulfa drug which can be used with good effect in such intestinal infections as dysentery, because our enemies in tropical regions might learn how to return the afflicted rapidly to the fighting line? From time immemorial military surgeons have made no distinction between friend and foe in dealing with wounds and disease. In 1917 both the Surgeon General of the Army and the Secretary of War decided that for humanitarian reasons publication of information about an antitoxin developed in this country to combat the bacillus of gas-gangrene, then highly destructive on the Western Front, was permissible. Thousands are now dying of typhus in occupied Middle Europe, but if the censor has his way they cannot be saved by the dissemination of any new knowledge acquired here.

We detect no such narrowness of view in the few German medical and scientific publications that have reached this office since the attack on Pearl Harbor, nor in the pages of Nature, which is apparently permitted to exercise its discretion, and which prints communications of the very type that have been expunged from Science. The censor was certainly on slippery ground when he deleted references to indium because that metal can provide a satisfactory lining for shaving-cream and toothpaste tubes. The Germans know as much about indium as we. So with the suppression of an item on a method of spraying walls of mines to prevent mercury poisoning. Some of the material to which the censor objected in the case of Science had been published in newspapers from Main to California, so that nothing whatever was gained by deletion. To make matters worse, there is no appeal from his decision.

Probably Dr. Cattell is right in holding that the editors of scientific periodicals are better judges of what may or may not be of value to the enemy than technically incompetent postal authorities. If the popliey to which he objects is carried out consistently, new scientific books and periodicals must be suppressed. Astrophysicists, biologists, plant and animal breeders, organic chemists who are trying to isolate vitamins and hormones, designers of new electron miscroscopes, inventors of materials that will resist fire, mathematicians who devise techniques that can be applied in solving the problems of designing engineers—all make discoveries that have some application in totalitarian war.

A Bible Message For Today

But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I should write unto you; for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another.

And indeed ye do it toward all the brethren which are in Macedonia; but we beseech you brethren, that ye increase more and more.

And that ye study to be quiet, and do your own business, and to work with your hands as we command you.

That ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing.—I Thes. 4.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Examiner:

Why not close the pool and billiard rooms, and other hang-outs of the youth, such as hot dog dens, run under an assumed purpose to attract the boys, run lotteries, games of chance, crap and such like. These places to be shut down at the same time as the beer parlors?

It would certainly conserve power and heal many a heart-ache for parents and stop to an extent the unnecessary spending of the boys' hard-earned money.

SOUR.

Immediately a man got up, but before he could speak the girl said: "It's very good of you, but I'd rather stand."

He raised his hat and began: "I—"

"No, really, I mean it."

"But—"

Again she interrupted him.

"I assure you, it's quite all right."

"But," he shouted, desperately, "I'm trying to get out."

For three solid hours the young man had sat beside her on the settee and talked, and she was thoroughly bored. Time and again she yawned and looked at the clock, but he was blind to hints.

At last, as midnight drew near, she made a desperate effort, with the remark:

"I'm afraid dad always turns out the lights at 12 o'clock."

The young man beamed at her.

"What a thundering good sport he must be!" he said heartily.

Improvement Still Needed Despite Fine Work Of Hospital Auxiliary

A year of splendid achievement was recorded on Monday afternoon at the annual meeting of Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary, held in St. James' United church, with the president, Mrs. Joseph Detcher, in the chair.

Mrs. W. C. Boate, secretary, read the annual report in which these achievements were recorded. The first of the two general meetings held last year was in the form of a jam, jelly and pickle shower held at All Saints' church, after which Mrs. Howson reported a total of 22 jellies, 34 jams and 31 bottles of pickles was received. The second of the two general meetings was held in the Guild Room of St. Paul's church, with the Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart as guest speaker. Mr. John Hornal, director of Nicholls Hospital, also spoke.

In her report the secretary expressed the appreciation of the auxiliary to the people of Lakefield, Lily Lake, Hastings and Bridgenorth, who have shown much interest and given much help to the auxiliary. The auxiliary now has 40 members in Bridgenorth, 9 in Millbrook, and 80 in Lakefield with the canvass not yet complete. The rolls now show a membership of 2,408 ladies, an increase of 100 over last year, and the membership and life-membership conveners, Mrs. Graham and Ray Scott are to be congratulated. The life-membership roll now stands at 84.

The Auxiliary was represented at the annual convention of the Hospital Aids Association held in Toronto last October, and also on the Women's Auxiliary of the Civic War Services committee, and on the Local Council of Women. The Auxiliary is now permitted to appoint one member to represent them on the Hospital Board. This representative, Mrs. Detcher during the past years, is an associate member of the board with power to speak but not to vote.

The visiting committee, under the convenership of Mrs. R. Ross, made a total of 1,972 visits to the hospital. Special visits were made at Hallowe'en, Easter, and Valentine's Day. Radios were borrowed from local stores for the pleasure of the patients.

Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser, social convener, generously entertained 50 of the nurses at her home at Burleigh. Student nurses were transported to and from St. Joseph's Hospital for lectures. The Thursday club, convened by Mrs. W. H. Hill, has contributed two layettes a month and the sewing committee, convened by Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, reported that 75 articles of sewing had been made by the Lakefield ladies, 130 by the Lily Lake ladies, and splendid gift had come from the Hastings ladies.

The buying committee, under convenership of Mrs. I. T. Lillico, have made purchases which included three chairs, three stools, one table and one large rug for the first floor sunroom of the hospital; a small case, containing two thermometers, for each of the graduating nurses; curtains and rods for an eight-bed ward in the Women's Medical Ward. They also gave advice concerning the curtains and drapes in the semi-private ward in the new extension and helped Miss Young and Mr. Hornal with furnishings for the extension and the Nurses' Residence.

When the new extension was built, the auxiliary gave $3,000 to provide the equipment for the Nurses' Station, the soiled and clean utility rooms, the diet kitchen and one semi-private room. This was made possible through the special ventures, such as the Penny Sale held last May, at which $1,269.37 was realized after all expenses were paid. Membership money did not enter into it, as this is used to buy needed articles for the hospital.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Hornal, Miss Edith Young read the Hospital report, in which he expressed his deep and sincere appreciation of the work which the auxilyiary had done and was doing for the Hospital.

The Hospital has increased its capacity to 133, 114 beds and 19 bassinettes, since the addition of the new wing, but in spite of this the hospital was forced to refuse admittance to 59 patients since the opening of the ewn wing. Many patients have had to take accommodation other than they desired and the hosp'tal has been so crowded that it is impossible to segregate patients properly according to their medical conditions.

Improvements made in the hospital during the year include the installation of cubicle curtain screening in one public ward provided by the Women's Auxiliary; the refurnishing of the first floor sunroom by the W.A.; the equipment of the new Central Supply Room in the north pavilion, which is just being completed; the addition of a bakeshop to the kitchen suite; the installation of a second hand walk in refrigerator in the kitchen with a new mechanical unit; a new basal metabolism machine; minor changes in the operating room suite; the laying of linoleum in the entrance to the hospital and in the corridor leading to the North Pavilion; two Dunlopillow mattresses, one of which was provided by the Junior Welfare League.

The Board has rented a house at 800 George street to alleviate over-crowding in the Nurses' Residence, and the buying committee of the auxiliary gave valuable help in developing the scheme of decoration. Mr. Hornal hoped that during the coming year something might be done to alleviate the over-crowding in the Nurses' Dining Room.

He also said that facilities in the second floor Diet Kitchen were utterly inadequate and that it was almost impossible to keep maids serving in this position. Most of the laundry equipment, with the exception of the presses, is inefficient and obsolete, and much of the furniture in private and semi-private rooms could be improved.

A loan fund for graduates wishing to take post-graduate courses would be most desirable as it is only by developing its own graduates that the Hospital can hope to keep its supervisory position filled. Substantial prizes of scholarships for post-graduate work are also needed.

Mr. Frank Kitney of the Board of Directors of the Hospital, gave a brief talk in which he expressed the deep appreciation of the Board for the work of the Auxiliary, and hoped that they would continue their successful and necessary work.

Ladies were received at the church door by Mrs. F. Kitney, Mrs. A. Rosoborugh and Mrs. F. W. Craik.

The following ladies have been elected to the Board for a two-year terms: Mrs. W. Belleghem, Mrs. W. B. L. Blackwell, Mrs. G. A. Borland, Mrs E. Breckenridge, Mrs. V. M. Eastwood, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. R. Laing, Mrs. W. C. Hughes, Mrs. I. T. Lillico, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, Miss Evelyn Morrow, Mrs. R. Ross, Mrs. A. Rosborough, Mrs. J. Wharry. The following have already served one year and are starting their second: Mrs. R. Bamsey, Mrs. W. C. Boate, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. J. Detcher, Mrs. E. Dinner, Mrs. L. G. Dobbin, Mrs. W. J. Gordon, Mrs. S. J. Graham, Mrs. W. G. Hail, Mrs. A. G. Graham, Mrs. W. G. Hall, Mrs. A. G. Howson, Mrs. J. Low, Mrs. W. Masters, Mrs. I. McRae, Mrs. F. Merrett, Mrs. L. M. Richardson.

Mrs. John Dawson Hostess To Auxiliary

The Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox Church met at the home of Mrs. John Dawson, Bolivar street, on Monday evening. The meeting opened with a Doxology and prayer followed by a short business period during which a committee was appointed to take charge of the supper rally. Mrs. V. Zufelt is the convener.

The worship service for the year, the "Church in our Community," was used in the service for the evening, which opened with the hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life"; scripture was read by Mrs. W. Dale and followed by prayer.

The new study book was introduced and a discussion followed on the interest of the community in the church. Six groups were formed to carry out the study book program. Leaders of these groups are Miss M. Morton, Mrs. G. Hutcheson, Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. V. Zufelt, Mrs. D. Gourley.

Mrs. H. Clegg gave an account of Dr. Harvey Forrester's lecture which she attended at the school for leaders held in Whitby. Dr. Forrester said that the church should identify itself with the community and acquaint itself with the problems of that community. He said that the factories were full of problems and that the church should study industrial conditions. If every church has a hall for wholesome healthy recreation the whole community would benefit.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL.

The King Edward Home, and School Asociation held its initial meeting of the season on Monday, September 14, with the president. Mrs. A. Ellis, in the chair. The guest speaker, Mr. J. W. Pierce, gave a talk on the early history of surveying in Peterborough, telling of the many hardships encountered by pioneer surveyors and also some of the humorous and interesting events which took place in their time. Two vocal solos were rendered by Mr. L. Hanlon and were very much enjoyed by those present. A review of Current Events was given by Mr. Crawford the principal.

Clothing made by members and friends through the summer months for air raid victims in England was displayed by Mrs. Gibson, the War Service convener. Mrs. G. Harris moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Pierce and Mr. Hanlon and all who had taken part in the evening's program.

Due to wartime conditions the social convener, Mrs. Gibson, dispensed with the usual refreshments and in their place had a jumbled word contest, the winner receiving a War Savings Stamp. Mrs. G. Wallace was pianist for the evening.

CENTRAL SCHOOL.

The Central Home and School Association held its opening meeting of the season and students' graduation exercises yesterday evening in the kindergarten room at Central School, with the president, Mrs. L. Raper, in the chair.

The meeting opened with a repetition of the Home and School pledge, then Mrs. Raper expressed a welcome to the large attendance, which filled the room to capacity. Miss Margaret Avison, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. D. B. Avison, played a violin solo. A report on the C.W.S.C. was given by Mrs. McGee, who told of the improved working conditions in the new depot. Miss Barbara Craig played a piano solo. The association is proud of the school's talented music pupils. The roll-call banner was won by Mr. Dearborn's class.

F. H. Dearborn, principal of the school, introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. J. D. Smart, who spoke to the graduating class and to the pupils on the title, "Looking Ahead."

He said that if we have a purpose we will strive for and obtain the best possible results. To live well is far more important than just to work well. The principal thanked the speaker for his address. He then gave advice and helpful instruction and congratulation to the 31 entrance pupils and wished them good luck in the future. They were presented with the diplomas, which were very beautifully engraved and looked gay with the school colors of red, green and blue. These were arranged by Mrs. Raper and Mrs. A. Jones. Joyce Goodyear gave a short valedictory address.

Parents and pupils were entertained and served light refreshments by Mrs. P. Martyn and her committee, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. H. Delahaye.

St. Paul's W.M.S. Hears of Mission Work

At the fall reopening of the W.M.S. of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Mrs. W. Steinkrauss gave an interesting talk based on Dr. Van Dusen's book, "The Healing of the Nations." Taking Fiji, Java, India and China as examples, the speaker showed what Christianity had done for the East. In Fiji a serious problem arose when 84,000 Hindus arrived and mingled with the population who were 84 per cent. literate and lived in a Christian manner. In China, Dr. Van Dusen found one-sixth of the population Christian, but, rather remarkably, half of the important leaders of that country have adopted our religion.

In India only 2 per cent. of the people are literate and the vast majority are desparately poor. Suspicion of foreigners and a phenomenal development of nationalistic feeling hinder the spread of Christianity, but the untouchables have adopted it to the greatest extent. In Java missions form the only social agency to help the millions living outside the capital city which is itself modern and Christian because of Dutch influence.

Mrs. L. Mitchell sang a very beautiful solo, "The Lord's Prayer," and the appreciation of those present was expressed by the president, Mrs. E. Howson.

DOROTHY DIX

LAMENTING WAR MOTHERS ARE OBJECTS OF CONTEMPT.

DEAR MISS DIX: What is your opinion of a mother who goes about crying on the shoulder of every person who will let her because her married son has been drafted? She refuses to go to a party, even to a movie or listen to the radio or read the newspapers because there is so much in them about the war. She declares that until her son is returned home to his family she will not go anywhere or indulge in any pleasure. One would think that she is the only woman in the world who has been called upon to make this sacrifice.

I have two sons who are not of draft age, but who have voluntarily enlisted, and a younger one who is anxiously awaiting the day when he will be 17, so that he also can enlist. But I am not bemoaning my fate; on the contrary, I am very proud of my boys. I admit I have many lonely hours and miss those two sons dreadfully but I know there are millions of other mothers who are far worse off than I am; so I keep busy with war work along with my household duties. I try to keep my troubles to myself. I go to places of amusement and try to divert myself as much as possible and not to pass on to others any depression I may feel. Don't you think I am taking a wiser course than my friend?—A WAR MOTHER.

ANSWER: Indeed you are. Nobody minimizes the suffering that every woman goes through when her son marches forth to battle. She knows the hardships he must suffer, the dangers he must run and the chances there are that he may never come back; or if he does he may be maimed or crippled for life. These are the inevitable fortunes of war, and as she thinks of them her soul is torn with fear and anxiety.

But she makes the matter worse for herself when she brooks over them and exaggerates her fears until they become certainties. After all, the proportion of soldiers who are injured or slain in war is small compared to the total number in the armed forces. In the last war I knew a woman who wrecked her health by imagining horrors that would befall her son who was in the army.

She could neither eat nor sleep because of picturing him shivering and cold in a trench in France or lying dead on a battlefield. There was no atrocity of the enemy that she did not visualize as being perpetrated upon her darling. Yet when the war ended and he was returned to her, he had not been out of this country; he had never heard a gun fired; had never so much as caught a cold, or hurt his finger in the service of his country.

Cowards Die Many Times.

It has been said that a coward dies a thousand deaths, the brave man dies but once. That is as true of the woman who stays at home and nurses her fears as it is of the man who is a craven in the army. The woman who has the courage to meet her responsibility and do her duty, does not, in reality, suffer half

New City-Wide Pick-up Of Salvage to Start First Week in October

Mrs. R. Whalon presided at the first regular meeting of the Civic War Service Council to be held this fall. After opening the meeting she spoke of various unfair, and wholly untrue rumors which have been passed around the city concerning the Salvage collections and emphasized that these rumors should be silenced as quickly and as thoroughly as possible. One of these rumors concerned the Salvage truck. Rumor says that the committee no longer uses the truck and that those who have salvage must get it to the depot the best way they can. The truck is in use constantly for picking up salvage, and while it is true that collectors can no longer answer calls as quickly as they once could, owing to the number, salvage is still picked up by the truck.

Mrs. C. Collins gave the report on the work of the Salvage Committee and said that voluntary help during the summer had been confined to the efforts of three groups and a small number of regular workers. As Peterborough still has an outlet for newspapers the collection of them will continue, but scrap paper, brown paper, corrugated cardboard and bags are the most urgently needed at the moment. Citizens are urged to wrap garbage in newspapers, leaving brown paper and bags for the salvage.

The urgent need of rubber cannot be emphasized too strongly. Even the smallest articles made of this valuable substance should be turned in when they are no longer in use. The committee has asked Alderman M. Swanson for a space in the market square in which farmers can dump their rubber salvage on Saturday mornings, during the nation-wide rubber drive planned by the Dominion government.

A new Salvage depot, with pleasanter working conditions and in a more convenient location has been acquired, but the space at South Central School and the shed will be retained as storage space. The lack of voluntary help during the summer has made necessary the use of more paid help but it is hoped that this can be dispensed with now to a certain point.

The program has been planned and the schedule for a city wide pick-up to be carried out beginning the first Tuesday in October. On that day the district from Lansdowne west to Monaghan road, north to Wolfe street, east on Wolfe to the river and east on Lansdowne to the bridge, will be covered. On the first Tuesday in the month bottles, rags and paper will be collected; on the following Thursday the same area will be covered for rubber and metals.

Mrs. Curtis, corresponding secretary, read a letter from the North Monaghan Red Cross, thanking the C.W.S.C. for the sewing machine which they got from the salvage and are now using on war work. This was a very old machine brought in on the Salvage truck, which was put into running order by the Red Cross unit, which was badly in need of a sewing machine.

Mrs. Whalon was voted the sum of $25 a month to spend on games for soldiers at the training centre and in the uptown recreation room. Though this sum might seem large, Mrs. Whalon pointed out that there are a very large number of men in the Training Centre and that games receive a great deal of wear and tear. These recreation rooms have recently asked for gramophones, sheet music and records, in addition to games.

It was decided to give Miss Rachael Young of the Children's Aid Society a cheque for $200, this sum to be used by her for the alleviation of sudden temporary financial distress in the families of men on active service, the money to be paid back whenever the receivers are able.

No Special Consideration Given Professional Sport In Wartime But Its Continuance Is Approved

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—(CP)—Canadian and United States manpower authorities today put their stamp of approval on continuation of professional sport in wartime but said no special consideration will be given under mobilization regulations to professional athletes.

The decision was reached following a request from the National Hockey League for information as to its status in light of the manpower regulations.

Today Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service, issued a brief statement—scheduled for simultaneous release at Washington:

"While neither country (Canada or the United States) has any intention of granting exemption from military service to hockey players or other athletes, there is no objection to allowing any men who are not subject to military service to continue their professional athletic activities unless and until they are requested to engage in some non-military war duty."

This statement apparently leaves selective service officials free to direct professional hockey players, or other professional athletes, into other work if such action is deemed necessary in future. But the announcement from selective service headquarters here said: "In the meantime there would be nothing to hinder the National Hockey League from engaging in the winter schedule of international games."

O.H.A. Request

Consideration also has been given to a request from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for a ruling on the position of players and teams in its organizations, said Mr. Little. The statement from his office said:

"The ruling means that professional hockey can continue, with no special considerations having been granted.

"No representations will be made in behalf of a hockey player by National Selective Service if the player seeks deferment when he is called up for military training.

"And hockey players will be subject to our regulations which provide that any person in Canada may be requested to transfer from one job to another or equal or greater essentiality.

"The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has undertaken to arrange its scheules, particularly travelling schedules which occur during playdowns and playoffs, to allow for a minimum of lost time from work.

"This co-operation is necessary, because every adult amateur hockey player, like every other able-bodied citizen, must have a job and must remain on that job the maximum possible time."

Transfer of workers from one industry to another is on a voluntary basis. If an individual is wanted for work considered more essential in wartime, the procedure is for a National Selective Service official to approach him and ask him to change his employment. The decision then is up to the individual. He may take the more essential job or remain where he is, as he may see fit.

Brief Submitted

After conferences with Mr. Little some weeks ago Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, submitted a brief to the Selective Service director outlining the manpower requirements of the league during the coming season.

It was on the basis of that survey—and after consultation with United States Selective Service officials—that the decision, announced today, was made.

After the original conferences with the N.H.L. president, Mr. Little said: "It may be necessary to give some consideration to maintaining the N.H.L. in some form, or on some basis, or else we would face the problem of replacing what it at present means to hundreds of thousands of Canadians in entertainment and maintenance of morale."

At first it was thought possible Mr. Little would reach his own decision on the matter but because of the international aspect of the N.H.L. he submitted the league's position to Washington officials as well.

It was understood here that Canadian players would be permitted to go as usual to the United States to play with United States teams. The possibility was seen, too, that Selective Service—which soon is to take over the calling up of men for military service—might institute a more uniform policy in this regard than was in operation last year by regional war service boards. Some boards last year permitted issuance of passports to men of military age while others refused them.

Bums Ain't Dead Only Hoit Is Fans' Version

By JOHN K. MURPHY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—(AP). — An embattled Brooklyn fandom chafed under inactivity of its Dodgers, but held tight to-day to a faith in them as strong as the waters of the Gowanus, and twice as deep.

'Dem bums ain't dead, dey're only hoit," was the consensus along Flatbush Avenue after St. Louis pulled 1½ games ahead in the National League by whipping Philadelphia yesterday while the Dodgers were idle.

From the top of the boroughs social and political scale to the lowermost floor of the elevator operated by Jeremiah Francis Looney, partisans muttered encouragement for the men of Ebbets Field.

Said Looney: "Us guys in the stands is building up resolve power so's we can yell our brains out rootin' the bums in. They's takin' a setback, soitenly but Grant didn't get to Lee wit'out trouble, did he?"

Judge Samuel Leibowitz rendered this verdict: "Brooklyn licked? Hah, little you know. Brooklyn never quits. Brooklyn is synonymous with dynamite. Watch us go."

The spirit even spread across the river to Manhattan, where one soda clerk posted on the mirror behind the counter a sign saying: "The Cardinals are leading."

It was hung with black crepe.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

It will be a mixed tournament tomorrow night. Draw from the board at 7:30 p.m. Fee, 25 cents. The season is rapidly coming to a close so come on out and bowl while you can.

Well, the schedule rolls merrily along. These are several rinks in Group A that have not lost a game, as yet. The next few days may have a big bearing on the standing.

We're just passing this hint along: A little supervision of the greens would not be amiss. After all, there is some consideration due the bowlers.

After many postponements and a month's delay the playoffs to break a tie for third position of the ladies' schedule finally got under way last night. Just when the remaining games will be played, we don't know.

We were too busy with our own game to pay an attention to this game, but judging by the score handed in it looks as is Mrs. Coursey's rink was never in trouble. The rinks were:

Mrs. R. Payne, Mrs. P. Sexsmith, Mrs R. Crowe, Mrs. J. Coursey—18.

Scores:

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—(CP)—The Ten to Ace Brain Trust (H. Giddings, president and general manager; C. W. SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The curtain was rung down on local softball last night when Brintons took the fourth game in a row from Electrics to cop the intermediate title and the Knox Trophy. It was a decisive win, the Carpetmakers coming home in front 18 to 1 in a six-inning affair. With Leila Hughes pitching great ball for them all through the series Brintons have been too good for the C.G.E. girls, winning four games without a loss and by margins that left no room for argument. Electrics tried hard but the majority of the team are first year players and their lack of experience has told heavily against them. However, both Brintons and Electrics, have done their bit for softball this year by bringing many youngsters into the game and material for future campaigns has been dug up. With more seasoning some of the novices of this season will become the stars of the future. Congratulations are in order for the new intermediate champions—the Brintons.

* * * * * *

Brintons just cleaned up the series in time, by the way, as Leila Hughes who has pitched every game for them this season is leaving for Hamilton and if the round had been prolonged the Carpetmakers would have had to finish without her. At the conclusion of last night's game the Brinton pitcher was presented with a gold signet ring by the Brinton players and officers, as a souvenir of a successful season and a mark of appreciation of the value of her services to the club. The gift has been richly earned for the recipient has been a tower of strength to the intermediate champs all season, tossing every innings the Brintons have played and rising to her finest performances during the playoffs when she handcuffed Electrics throughout the four games. Miss Hughes has a job with the Otis-Fensom Company in Hamilton and as that concern sponsors a girls' softball team her name is likely to appear in the lineup next season.

Had A Good Year

Westclox girls after getting further along the championship trail than any other similar organization here are through for the season after their defeat in Preston Saturday but they have the satisfaction of knowing that in spite of discouraging obstacles at the beginning of the campaign they have had one of the best years a Westclox club has ever had. Incidentally the fans owe the Big Bens a vote of thanks for salvaging girls' softball this season. When the league opened and the C.G.E. team began reeling off victory after victory it looked like a one-team league and interest was at a low ebb. Then the Westclockers began to find themselves and started a drive for the leadership that gained in momentum week after week until finally the Big Bens overwhelmed the Generals in the league playoff series and went on to defeat the Toronto representatives in the Ontario playdowns, before losing a pair of hard-luck games to Preston Rivulettes. The Westclockers, starting from scratch with only a few regulars left from the 1941 team filled in the gaps and improved surprisingly during the campaign.

* * * * * *

Incidentally while on the subject of girls' softball the Preston series brings up the question of why Peterborough girls' softball teams have always frowned on the use of gloves by the players. The rules permit every member of a girls 'team to wear a field's glove and it was noticeable that the whole nine Preston players were thus equipped while in the case of the Westclockers only the catcher and first base player had the advantage of a mitt. Anyone who knows anything about the game knows that it is easier to catch a ball in a glove than with the bare hands, yet our teams go on year after year without the equipment that the rules allow. It just doesn't make sense.

Collegiate Prospects

Rumors have it that in the event of no interscholastic group being available in this district that the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School will organize a senior club nevertheless and play exhibition games until the playoffs arrive. The reports among the student body indicate that the Cossa champs will not be badly off in the matter of backfielders for while Gordie Burns, forward passer and Harry Matthews, the club's hard-hitting plunger will not be back to school, a rearguard composed of Dewart, Spike Matthews, Ackford, Routley and Saunders looms up as available. The greatest loss is up in front where such stalwarts as Allen, Beatty, Cuppy, Tommy Craig and Geraghty are gone. However new arrivals in school may produce a number of reinforcements to fill the gaps. The Collegiate does not open until a week from today and then Coach Bamforth will be able to get a line on the material that is in sight to build up another winning machine.

The Yanks Are In

If there was any doubt about the result in the American League it disappeared yesterday. The Yanks have cinched their sixth pennant in seven years and now have nothing to do but ready themselves for the world series. The New Yorkers made sure yesterday by bumping off the Cleveland Indians 8 to 3 but even if they had lost they would have been in any way for Boston Red Sox were shut out by the Chicago White Sox and that defeat would have handed the McCarthy clan the American League flag. Ernie Bonham was the Yank pitcher, picking off his 20th win and thus became the first American Leaguer to hit that mark. Mort Cooper of the Cards is the only other heaver in the big leagues to win 20. New York won 8 to 3 with Joe DiMaggio setting the pace with four hits including a home run. Humphries pitched for Chicago and whitewashed the Boston Red Sox 4 to 0 with Heber Newsome absorbing the loss. He has been a big disappointment to Boston hopes this season.

* * * * * *

The Brooklyn Dodgers didn't play yesterday and thus didn't lose a game. However they are now a game and one half behind the St. Louis Cards who came from behind yesterday to defeat the Phillies 6 to 3. The front placers were behind 3 to 2 when they went to bat in the ninth but they came through with four runs thanks chiefly to Philadelphia errors. Gumbert started for St. Louis but Krist had to go to his relief and got credit for the win. Pearson was the original Phillie pitcher but Johnny Podgajny took over and was nailed for the loss. Two Toronto pitchers, Strincevich and Schuman were used by Pittsburg yesterday against the New York Giants as relief pitchers. Mel Ott's athletes who won 6 to 1 with Hal Schumacher doing the tossing. Four of the runs were scored off Dietz, starting Pirate pitcher.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: St. Louis Browns have cinched third place in the American League, the highest ranking the Brownies have enjoyed in 14 seasons....Don Crowe was out at the initial practice of the R.C.A.F. football team....Yanks were nearly two weeks behind last season in grabbing off the American League pennant....Although the shower a short time before the game kept the crowd down the Brintons-Electrics battle raised an acceptable donation for the British War Victims' Fund....Yesterday's homer by Joe DiMaggio was his first in nearly a month....He has had nineteen all season....St. Louis Cards are giving Mort Cooper a chance to win his 21st triumph today as they finish the season with the Phillies....Cleveland picked to supply the chief opposition to the Yanks this season may not even finish in the first divison....Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champ is enlisting in the United States Marines ....Mimico-Brampton Combines jumped from the barrier in the final round for the O.L.A. senior championship, defeating St. Catharines Athletics 10 to 6 in the opening game of the best of seven series.

Brinton girls won the championship of the intermediate section of the Girls' Softball League and took the Knox Trophy last night by a hollow win over Electrics, 18 to 1. The carpet-makers thus won the title in four straight games.

Last night's game was practically settled in the first inning when Brintons scored five runs after the side should have been out. They got two more in the third and then bunched five hits with three Electric errors to score eight runs and make the affair a rout. Mary Larmer who pitched for Electrics had not as good control as usual and was hit freely while her support was full of holes.

Leila Hughes held the losers to three hits and was never in much trouble as she won her fourth game of the series.

Marg. Barrie and Doris Walker had home runs for the winners, the former's coming with a team mate on the bases while there were two runners on when Doris Walker poled out her four-master.

Electrics got their only run of the game in the fourth when Shirley Milburn doubled to right with one out and completed the circuit on two passed balls. The losers failed to threaten very much in any other inning.

Sport Shots From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 15 (CP)—He's 40 and not liable for conscription as a married man with four children, but Larrupin' Larry Gains is fighting in the Middle East—a bigger fight than any he ever had in the ring.

The Toronto Negro, who came to Britain on a cattle boat nearly 20 years ago and left the mark of his iron fists on many a British heavyweight, arrived "over there" recently. A sergeant -major in the Pioneer Corps, he joined up a few hours after war was declared.

Once heavyweight king of the British Empire, Gains never was recognized as British titlist because of a British Boxing Board of Control ruling that "men of color" may not hold a British title, although they can be Empire champions. He lost the Empire crown to Len Harvey many years ago and hasn't done much boxing of late.

The color ruling also applies to Stoker Tommy Martin, Britain's present-day "Brown Bomber" who is attempting to get the bar blasted. Before leaving the port as stoker on a merchant ship a few days ago, Tommy issued a challenge to all leading boxers in the heavy and lightheavy classes, including the lightheavy champ, Bashing Freddie Mills, and appealed to the board against the ban.

Another Canadian in Britain's sport spotlight is Lieut. J. W. (Johnny) Loaring of Windsor, Ont., who's going to make an attempt—conditional on leave—on the British 440-yard hurdles record at a big athletic meeting at Portsmouth, September 17. The record of 53 seconds was made four years ago in London by J. Patterson, an American.

Johnny, on loan from the Canadian to the British Navy, has been hitting pretty close to that figure in practice timber topping, although he's not quite in the running shape he was in the last Olympics. In the only organized meet in which he has competed this season, he won the two events he entered. He ran an easy 15.8 seconds for the 120-yard hurdles and sped 300 yards in a shade outside 30 seconds.

". . . Nor Iron Bars a Cage."

A bunch of the boys made practice nets from Red Cross parcels' string, then played England - Australia cricket "Test" matches—in a German prison camp. While Nazi guards who had never seen a cricket match looked on in perplexity from outside the barbed wire, the English side walloped the Aussies two straight games.

6 Ex-Argonauts Show Up With Beaches

TORONTO, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Football training is in full swing in Toronto these days, with three senior Ontario Rugby Football Union teams warming up for the start of the season on September 26.

Balmy Beaches have six former Argonaut players in their lineup and Coach Alexander Ponton is working overtime these nights whipping the club into shape for the opener against Hamilton Wildcats Eastern Canada finalists last year.

Meanwhile FO. Ley Hayman the coach of the Royal Canadian Air Force entry from No. 1 Training Command, has a host of talent, including such names as Art West (from Argos), Eddy Thompson (Balmy Beach), Herby Moores (Balmy Beach) Truck Langley (Ottawa), Jake Gaudaur (Argos and Hamilton), Don Durno (Montreal), George Oliphant (Argos and University of Western Ontario).

Knifing through a midnight sky at 300 miles an hour, they're "brothers in arms." Up there above the clouds they share a great adventure—working together as skilled "attack teams" to shower flaming destruction on the Axis.

Trained in Canada, R.C.A.F. air crews take the world in their stride. Smooth-working teams—bomber and fighter Pilots, Navigators, Bombers, Gunners, Wireless Operators—they're ready for action on any front! Seeking out and destroying the enemy wherever he is to be found, they do the job RIGHT. And after Victory? These keen young Canadians will lead the way to a bright new world. Our future is in their hands. Their future is in the skies.

WOMEN TOO—join "that men may fly." Canadian women fill vital jobs in the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, releasing men for air crew duties. Recruits are needed, age 18 to 40, physically fit, with at least High School entrance. Many useful and fascinating jobs await you. No experience needed. The Air Force will train you quickly to take your place with Canada's airwomen. Full information at any R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, or write address below for explanatory booklet.

The expanded Air Training Plan has room for men who want to join these fighting comrades of the skies in their great deeds of today and their great prospects for tomorrow. Applications are being accepted for air crew at R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

If you are physically fit, mentally alert, over 18 and not yet 33, you are eligible. Lack of formal education is no longer a bar to enlistment.

YANKS COP IT AGAIN—THEIR SIXTH PENNANT IN SEVEN YEARS

Thump Indians By 8 to 3; Browns Nose A's

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

The Yankee team that clinched another American League flag by beating Cleveland yesterday undoubtedly is not the best that has worn the Bronx livery since Manager Joe McCarthy began winning championships in the bulk.

But, as Marse Joe points out with comfortable satisfaction, it is "plenty good enough." Its great pitching and greater defence will make it a pronounced favorite to win the Fall title again, whether its opponent in the series is Brooklyn or St. Louis Cardinals. From the looks of things today, it probably will be the Cards.

In some respects, the Yankees who won their sixth pennant in seven years through yesterday's 8-3 victory over the Indians look definitely less formidable than they did a year ago. Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller have not hit as they did in '41, and Tommy Henrich, third member of the championship outfield, is lost to the Coast Gaurd.

On the other hand, the team has a brilliant new pitching star in Hank Borowy, and Ernie Bonham is better than he was last year. Bill Dickey has made a nice comeback with the willow, and the infield looks even a little slicker, if possible, than it did a year ago. The Yanks, in other words, will do.

Bonham had the distinction of pitching two of his team's prize victories during the year. On May 6 he pitched the Yanks into first place to stay, and his 20th victory yesterday settled all bets. With 98 wins and 47 losses, McCarthy's Beauties could lose all their remaining nine games and still finish ahead of Boston Red Sox, who were blanked by Chicago White Sox yesterday, 4-0.

Browns Clinch Third

The Yanks were not the only club to do some clinching, incidentally. St. Louis Browns sewed up third place in the American League when they put over an unearned run in the 16th inning to nose out the Athletics 5-4. This is the highest the Browns have finished since 1928.

In one other American League game, Sid Hudson relief-pitched and batted Washington to an 8-6 verdict over Detroit.

The Cards, by pushing across four runs on as many hits and three errors in the ninth, racked up a vital 6-3 victory over the Phis and stretched their advantage over the idle Dodgers to a game and a half.

With Morton Cooper, their 20-game winner, ready to pitch the final with the Phillies today, the Red Birds stand a fine chance of moving on to their next stand at Boston with a 2-game margin over the Brooklyns.

The Giants, safely ensconsed in third place, socked the Pirates 6-1 to sweep their three-game series at the Polo Grounds. A four-run outburst in the eighth, climaxed by Max West's 14th homer with one on, gave the Braves a 4-2 decision over Chicago.

Mighty Mite Of The Saddle Nears Jockey Title

Weighing in

Johnny Adams . . . leading jockey

Strong hands to guide his mounts

He's a little guy

A little guy with a barrel chest, but how he can ride! That's Johnny Adams, the 27-year-old Iola, Kan., jockey, who is favored to win the U.S. national jockey championship this year. Adams, now second behind Eric Guerin for the national leadership, recently completed a sensational riding spree at the Thistle Down track at Cleveland, O., and now is but a few victories from Guerin, who has been hospitalized in Chicago from a racing injury for several weeks. Adams, famous for his stretch riding, is an old hand in the riding game and was the U.S. leading jockey in 1937 and again in 1938. With Guerin on the sidelines, Adams is expected to win.

Orpens' Estate Takes Over Long Branch

By APPAS TAPPAS

The Long Branch Jockey Club, a mile track in Etobicoke, will pass into the control of the Orpen estate in a deal which is expected to be completed between today and Wednesday.

The Orpen estate is controlled by Mrs. A. M. Orpen, widow of the founder of Long Branch and Dufferin tracks, Fred S. Orpen and A. M. Orpen, Jr.

Long Branch track, one of the finest mile ovals in the Dominion of Canada, was not opened for racing this year. The track was turned over for war purposes at the close of the 1941 racing season and Fred S. Orpen secured permission from the Dominion Government to transfer the spring and fall dates of the Long Branch Jockey Club to Dufferin Park.

The Long Branch track was built in 1924. It was originally laid out for a mile track. For the first season of racing A. M. Orpen decided to make the course a half-mile racing strip.

Later on when the Ontario Government raised the daily tax of $2,000 up to the same standard as that assessed on mile tracks, Orpen turned the course into a mile one. Since the death of his father, Fred Orpen has kept making improvements, until today the track is one of the best. Many feature races have been built up, including the Mrs. Orpen Cup and Saucer 2-year-old futurity which carries the richest prize in Canada for 2-year-olds.

The late Thomas Hare, long identified with Mr. Orpen in operating race tracks in the province, held an interest in the Long Branch holding Company which built the Long Branch track. On different occasions rumors were whispered in racing circles of the executors of the Hare estate being anxious to get away from racing.

While no official confirmation of the transaction could be secured last night from Fred Orpen, it is understood the deal has been drawn up and will be completed within twenty-four hours. It is understood the directors of the Long Branch Club will remain the same, C. H. Kemp, president; Fred S. Orpen, George Hay and A. M. Orpen. The Hare estate did not hold any financial interest in Dufferin Park, as had often been reported.

FOR STRETCH DRIVE — By Jack Sords

Ernie Lombardi Jumps Into Batting Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(CP)—Big Ernest Lombardi of Boston Braves, who is the slowest man in baseball without much doubt, bounded blithely into the batting leadership of the National League during the last week, waving in passing to Pete Reiser, Enos Slaughter and Stan Musial.

Big Ernie, with an average of .333 in 98 games, came to the fore suddenly when the statisticians recalled that the National League leadership was decided among those players who had taken in 100 games or more, whereas the American League works on a basis of 400 times at bat.

With nearly a fortnight of play remaining, Lombardi is certain to go over the 100-game mark.

True, Lom has been to bat only 282 times through yesterday, while most of his league rivals were over or close to the 500 figure. Also, he had made only 94 hits to Slaughter's 173. But he was the leader, nevertheless.

Reiser, who was out ahead a week ago with a mark of .324, held second place, even though his average fell to .318. Slaughter and Musial, the Cardinals' twin terrors, were tied for third and fourth at .314.

Ted Williams of Boston, with the lofty mark of .353, still had no real rival for the American League leadership, but he was being pursued earnestly by his rookie teammate, Johnny Pesky. Pesky, after climbing into a tie with Joe Gordon a week ago for the runner-up honors at .331, took over the spot all by himself with the lusty average of .339. With 199 hits to his credit, Pesky virtually was certain to be the first big leaguer to pass the 200 mark.

Homer By Mele Sees Chiefs Lace Royals 4-2

By The Associated Press

Syracuse discovered during the International League season that a stingy pitching staff was a valuable asset, the Chiefs climbing from seventh place in mid-season to third at the end of the year with hardly a base hit.

But they are discovering in the semi-final round of the Governors' play-off series that a heavy hitter also can come in mighty handy. Last night at Montreal Dutch Mele swatted a home run with two mates on base in the first inning to start the Chiefs toward their 4-2 victory.

It wasn't until his final turn at bat that Mele was retired, the outfielder reaching first base each time in eight appearances at the plate in the two games.

Several hours before Mele put on his one-man show Jersey City Giants, with Hugh East on the mound, levelled their semi-final series with the pennant-winning Newark Bears at two games each. East stifled the Bears with a five-hit performance and triumphed 3-1.

All four clubs will be in action again today, Jersey City continuing as host to the Bears, but Syracuse taking over in that role in the other bracket.

Ferrell Back In After Squabble

ROANOKE, Vo., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell, manager of the Class C Virginia League Lynchburg Senators, who was suspended indefinitely after a brawl Sunday with umpires, was reinstated last night by C. R. Williams, league president.

Williams said the reinstatement of Ferrell was for the remainder of this season only and that the matter of his further participation in organized professional baseball will be left up to President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Ferrell, once a great righthander in the American League, also was fined $200 for his walkout. His suspension resulted from a protest with umpires in a game at Newport News, where Ferrell picked up his equipment in the first inning and headed back to Lynchburg. Around 1,400 paid admissions had to be refunded.

Ferrell had gone to his home in North Carolina and said by telephone he would return to the club.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 — (AP).—Brooklyn fans may wind up without even 'wait till next year" to console them if you can believe all the hints about green lights turned red on sports....And the fans are no sadder than Eastern baseball scribes as they contemplate making the trip to St. Louis and back without special trains cars or comforts.

Negative vote:

Red Burman, who is working in a Baltimore shipyard, stopped the other day to help a blind man across the street.....Feeling Red's bulging muscles, the man remarked: "Boy, you could beat Joe Louis with arms like that.":......"Nope," Red replied seriously "I tried it."

Shorts and shells:

Col Isaac Hedges, St. Louis businessman, is conducting a one-man campaign for Branch Rickey for Senator by buttonohling Missouri Republican officials.....If they'd give Branch a free hand with the trades, the senators probably would not have to worry about tax bills....And Jack O'Brien, the Boston fight promoter, had a busy week, running for Secretary of the Commonwealth of Masaachusetts in today's primaries and running the Ray Robinson-Georgie Martin scrap on Friday.

Synthetic Rubber Miracle Promises Reality for '43

Production Of Butodiene At Million Ton Rate As Canada, U. S. Buckle Down

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 15—(AP).—The war miracle which scientists doubted, synthetic rubber production at the rate of 1,000,000 tons a year by the end of 1943, promises to become a reality.

The figures on production of butadiene, announced to the American Chemical Society yesterday by Dr. Albert L. Elder of the War Production Board, showed that 13 months from now the United States will be producing butadiene rubber at about a 1,000,000-ton per year rate. In addition, there will be one plant in Sarnia, Ont., with an annual production of 30,000 short tons. It will be in operation in June, 1943.

Furthermore, that much production is scheduled to come in an least two months before 1943 ends.

There is some confusion over two points, one that the 1,000,000 is short tons, that is, the usual 2,000-pound American ton. Before the war it was customary to speak of natural rubber in long tons, 2,240 pounds each. But since the war, rubber chemists here said the two kinds of figures have been used indiscriminately in semi-official reports. The 1,000,000 tons would be about 850,000 long tons.

Some Small Loss

The other point is a widespread report among chemists that when butadiene and styrene are added to make synthetic rubber, there is a loss or shrinkage. The loss is a little butadiene, which can be recovered by a rerun, but in any event the leading rubber chemists here said it is not enough to affect the nearly 1,000,000-ton total.

An important recent step is the speed with which synthetic rubber can be made, once the butadiene and the sytrene to add to it are produced. The time is only a few hours.

The buna rubber which will be made under the butadiene program is composed of three-quarter butadiene and one-quarter styrene. The chemists have been worrying only about the butadiene problem, because that is a product to which American industry was almost wholly unaccustomed, while styrene has been made here for years.

For that reason, the budadiene production figures announced here answered the big question, whether the United States could make the rubber in time. The production of butadiene in the present program alone is set to reach completion with 717,800 tons a year rate in October, 1943.

Butadiene rubber is only part of the United States growing synthetic resources. The amounts and the speed of expanding the other types have not been mentioned here. Privately rubber chemists say they expect to meet the war needs. No chemist has said whether civilians can expect rubber for tires.

Beat Off Two Flank Attacks.

The mid-day communique told of the repulse of attacks both west and southwest of the industrial centre and details of scattered engagements indicated more than 2,000 Germans were slain in that critical area yesterday.

Red army men fighting west of Stalingrad killed 700 Germans in a series of defensive engagements and destroyed two tanks while Soviet artillery "dispersed enemy infantry concentrations and blew up six ammunition truck," the communique said.

Southwest of Stalingrad, where one frustrated German assault was described officially as "unprecedented in its ferocity," two Axis infantry companies were wiped out by mortar fire and eight tanks of a Nazi column stalled by anti-tank barricades were destroyed or disabled, the Russians said

A German tank formation broke into another Russian town in the battle of the central Caucasus, but is under the fire of an elite Soviet detachment which is seeking to annihilate it, the communique reported.

The scene of the Red army men's triumph on the central front was not announced, but presumably the attack was made in the Rzhev-Vyazma salient west of Moscow.

"In three days of fighting they wiped out about 4,000 Germans, disabled or set fire to several dozen tanks and destroyed 11 guns and six mortar batteries," it was declared. "We captured 15 guns, one tank, 19 machine guns and other war material."

Soviet soldiers also repulsed assaults in the Upper Don sector and gained in a Volkhov front action, but were reported to have lost the initiative at least temporarily before German tanks in the central Caucasus.

Bismarck's Grandson Taken

A German pilot captured in the Stalingrad fighting was identified by the Russians as a great grandson of Prince Otto Von Bismarck, "The Iron Chancellor," and they quoted him as saying:—

"This war has cost us enormous losses. My great grandfather was right in advising us against a war with Russia."

The Moscow radio said 100 bombers were used to blast one narrow segment of the Russian lines southwest of Stalingrad and Nazi tanks and riflemen streamed into the gap. Then Soviet infantrymen struck from the flank, it reported, and the wedge was hurled back.

Red army cavalrymen were credited with the slaughter of 500 Germans and the repulse of two assaults upon the Volga River industrial centre from the northwest.

Russian artillery batteries and roving, truck-mounted destroyers were reported to have wiped out nine tanks and about three companies of infantry in turning back a thrust by two armor - supported regiments from the west.

Soviet counter - attacks against German forces menacing the Grozny oil fields and a transcaucasian highway through operations in the Terek River valley near Mozdok were reported to have faltered and finally collapsed under the hammering of Nazi tanks newly transferred to the south bank of the stream.

"After stubborn fighting," the midnight communique said, "our troops retreated to new lines."

It was announced, however, that snipers of one Red army unit had killed more than 1,000 German officers and men recently and the implication was that this took place in the Mozdok area.

Hungarians thrown against Russian positions in the Upper Don region south of Voronezh were declared to have suffered heavy casualties in five vain attacks.

"Our troops wiped out about 2,000 officers and men and destroyed 20 tanks and 30 motor trucks," it was announced. "Prisoners were taken."

Red army men fighting in the area of Sinyavino, on the Volkhov River between Lakes Ilmen and Ladoga, were declared to have dislodged the Germans from a settlement, killing about 600, and destroyed five tanks, six guns and 40 dugouts and blockhouses.

Fails Army Test Son Shoots Self And Parents

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 15—(CP)—Despondency over his failure to pass the army medical test is believed to have caused Allan Robinson, 27, to turn a gun upon himself and inflict injuries from which he is not expected to recover after allegedly shooting and killing his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Robinson, late Saturday at their farm home 10 miles south of Clarksburg.

A neighbor, John Knowll, discovered the tragedy Saturday night when he went to call upon the Robinsons. He stumbled over Mrs. Robinson's body about 50 feet from the house, in a lane leading to the highway. Allan was at her feet, and a 22-calibre rifle was lying a yard away.

In the beam of his flashlight, Knowll saw the son was breathing faintly. Knowll ran into the house to telephone for help, and as he did so came upon the body of Mr. Robinson in the kitchen.

The bodies were ordered removed to a Thornbury Undertaking establishment by Dr. Frank Moore of Clarksburg. Allan was not removed from the home, and physicians regarded his death as certain in a matter of hours.

Dr. Moore, saying the tragedy was incomprehensible to him, remarked the Robinsons were "the type one turns to instinctively in time of trouble."

Both Dr. Moore and Coroner Dr. Aberhart believed Allan Robinson's rejection for army service had so affected him he went berserk.

A neighbor said Allan was "crazy" about army life and "took it hard" when he was rejected because of poor eyesight.

80 Reach Port

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP)—Almost 80 survivors of Allied Nations merchant ships arrived in Montreal yesterday and spent last night in a main in Montreal until new berths are found for them aboard other vessels.

The survivors were from four vessels sunk along with the naval patrol vessel, H.M.C.S. Raccoon. Announcement of the sinking of the ships was made in Ottawa yesterday.

Meanwhile officials were considering a request from the seamen that they be paid two months' pay due them in one lump sum. The general practice is to allow the men $1.25 per day while they are in port.

One man said the boat he was on was torpedoed Sunday, and survivors were picked up by a Corvette which later picked up some men from the Raccoon. They said there were 127 saved from the sinking of the five vessels.

The convoy was reported under continuous attack for more than 24 hours.

One Man Escapes

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 —(CP)—Twelve hours after she had been advised of the death of her husband, an electrician aboard the H.M.C.S. Raccoon, Mrs. Philip F. Brady of Montreal last night received a wire from her husband saying he was "O.K. and fit."

Mrs. Brady, who had a "hunch" that the official announcement telling of her husband's death was wrong, wired to his last shore address asking if he were all right.

Mr. Brady was not aboard the Raccoon when it was sunk. Injuries to two ribs, suffered in a sparring bout with a shipmate, kept him ashore when the Raccoon last left port.

Service Lookout, observed the plane and saw the fire break out from his post on Mount Emily, nine miles from Brookings, Ore.

Looking into the darkness at 6 a.m. Sept. 9 when he heard the sound of a single motor, Gardner saw a circling plane overhead—saw it so closely he identified it as a small seaplane.

Shortly afterwards he saw flames break through the tree roof below—in the same general area where a disastrous fire in the middle of 30s destroyed a great forest and most of the coastal city of Bandon.

Gardner sounded the alarm on the forest telephone, gathered some equipment and plunged through the forest by a shortcut to battle the flames single handed. He had them under control by the time the forest fire suppression crew arrived—4½-hour battle through brush and over rugged terrain from their station.

So isolated is the spot that Ed Marshall, Federal Forester, was sure the Japanese had chosen it for the assault. The countryside is heavily timbered, mountainous, sparsely settled, with few trails and no highways into the interior.

The Japanese, the plane and the fire became linked together shortly after Gardner had controlled the flames.

He found bomb fragments and a "sizeable crater." The bomb sheared a six-inch tree and set fire to a stump, he said.

Marshall dug out of the crater what he said was the nose of an incendiary bomb. Attached was a steel shank bearing Japanese characters.

Army Takes It Up.

Then the Army began investigating. To-day it announced the results of its inquiry which it indicated still is progressing and for the first time allowed stories of witnesses to be published.

In a communique isued by Lt.-Gen. John L. Dewitt, Commander of the 4th Army and the Western Defence Command, it cautiously reported the sighting of the plane, the fire that followed, discovery of the bomb crater and bomb fragments carrying "marking of Japanese ideographs which may have been part of a code indicating the arsenal where the bomb was manufactured." It related that on the same day, only 30 miles off the coast in he vicinity where the plane was seen, an Army patrol plane bombed the submarine.

Japanese submarines shelled an oil well area in Southern California on February 23, causing slight damage, and a beach near Seaside, Ore., June 22, but last night's report was the first evidence of an actual air bombing of the continental United States.

(An attack on Canadian territory occurred early on June 20 when a submarine of unknown nationality shelled Estevan Point, Vancouver Island. Broken windows in the Estevan Point Lighthouse was the only damage caused in the brief shelling.

(The submarine never was spotted despite intense aerial search.)

Ready For Their Long Hop To War Zone

Serviced and ready for their long haul over the Atlantic, to a destination somewhere in the United Kingdom, a number of U.S. small or medium bombers await their turn at a north Atlantic ferrying base.

$20,000 Damages Sought After Car Crash

An action to collect $20,000 damages for injuries resulting from a motor accident on November 8, in which Mrs. Lily Laidley was seriously injured, is the first jury case on the Autumn Assizes now in session at the court house before the Honorable Mr. Justice Wilfrid Roach.

Mrs. Laidley is suing Percy Hockaday of Young's Point, the driver of the car involved in the accident, and Isadore Levinter, K.C., of Toronto, is acting for Mrs. Laidley. Cecil G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay, is acting for the defendant.

This action which promises to be a lengthy one, got underway shortly after three o'clock on Monday afternoon and was resumed at ten o'clock on Tuesday morning.

The accident apparently took place on the night of November 8 last, when Mrs. Laidley was struck by a north-bound auto as she crossed the street to catch a bus, near the junction of Anson Street and Water Street.

J. W. Pierce, Ontario land surveyor, was the first witness for the plaintiff, and he identified a plan he had drawn at the request of Mr. Levinter showing that section of Water Street where the accident took place. On examination by Mr. Frost he identified another plan of the same section of street, made at the request of Mr. Frost, which included the road for 750 feet north and south of Anson Street.

Dr. H. M. Yelland, Peterborough physician, was the second witness and he told in his evidence that he had been called to treat Mrs. Laidley on the night of the accident, and the patient was then at Nicholls Hospital.

Describing her injuries, he said she had a laceration of the left hand, bruises on the chin and face, a bruise on the right shoulder which later under X-ray examination indicated a chip fracture of the shoulder, and both legs were fractured below the knees. She was suffering greatly from shock as well.

He stated that both bones on both legs had been fractured and that one fracture of the left leg was compound and the bone was protruding through the flesh.

"What did you think of her condition?" Mr. Levinter asked.

"To me it was a question as to whether she would survive," replied the doctor.

Treatment of Injuries.

Continuing the evidence, Dr. Yelland went into detail on the treatment of the injuries, saying that the first step was to treat her for shock, and to put a certain trough type of splint on the fractured limbs to eliminate any possibility of movement. On November 19, 11 days after the accident, the bones were set and the limbs encased in plaster of paris casts from the toes to a point half-way to the hips.

"How long did she remain in that position?" Mr. Levinter asked.

"Until November 22, when windows were cut in the casts to allow treatment of the wounds. On January 14 the casts were removed and more X-rays taken. These showed there was some evidence of healing on the left leg but little or none on the right. On January 21, a bone grafting operation was performed on the right leg. Then the cast was put back on until March 20, when casts were changed again."

He gave the court a complete case history of the progress made by this woman, and his evidence concluded the session for the afternoon. Mrs. Laidley was in court, using crutches to walk but was asked to withdraw from the court while the doctor gave his testimony. She appeared to walk with considerable difficulty. The case is proceeding.

Neil Gemmell, 2nd-in-Command Of Canadian Hardening-up School

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept 15—(CP).—Canadian soldiers leap from assault boats, double across an English beach and swarm up 40-foot cliffs, lugging full equipment, but they are not training for places in some special Commando corps. They are simply taking a step in the sharpening and hardening of the whole Canadian army.

When Canadian newspapermen visited a divisional assault landing training school, Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, a divisional commander, termed it "an embryo combined operations school" designed to train men from all units so that they could go back and train others. Here they would be hardened physically, would learn something about demolition explosives, about the technique of landing on beaches and scaling cliffs.

Harden-up Whole Army.

Later Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canadian Corps commander, told me: "The aim is to harden the whole army, strengthen its endurance, speed its mobility. That is why the emphasis is being placed on youth in officers. They must have the stamina of their men."

Pte. Mederic Lapiere of La Regiment De La Chaudiere would be, perhaps, typical of fellows at this particular school, though he had the edge on some of them in having been a fisherman on the Magdalen Islands in Quebec before joining up, and thus was never afflicted by the seasickness that grips some when the assault boats are operating in choppy weather. Lapierre had been at the school only a few days, but he said that already his muscles had hardened and adapted themselves to the new regime, which was measurably more strenuous than ordinary training. One of Lapierre's job on the day we visited the school was to throw himself down, with a partner, to flatten out barbed wire so that companions could stream through the breach. He liked the work.

This school is commanded by Capt. George Edwards of Galt, Ont., with Capt. Neil Gemmell, of Peterborough, Ont., as second in command.

Routine Work.

On the day we watched it operate, Capt. Vince Stark of Kitchener, Ont., put the boys through regular assault course routine, a business of crossing ditches and swaying rope bridges, scaling walls, and falling prone at the end to blaze away at figure-targets. Part of a mortar section under Sgt. J. L. Nelson of Galt, Ont., demonstrated mortar-fire.

The curtain act of the show, of course, was "combined operations" in which a troop came ashore from assault boats which had been used at Dieppe. In this exercise they simulated the destruction of a radio direction finder on the French coast, landing under cover of darkness. Surprise was the element, and the landing craft proceeded slowly and quietly to shore, the men traversed the beach, climbed the cliff in the wake of engineers, and carried out their mission. Noise of the demolition alarms the "enemy" and the retirement was carried out under cover of smoke and fire from their own weapons.

Obituary

MRS. LOUIS REYNOLDS.

MARMORA, Sept. 15—(ENS). — The funeral of the late Mrs. Louis Reynolds, who passed away at Peterborough on Saturday morning following an illness of three weeks, was held on Monday morning from the residence of her son William Reynolds, 493 Albert Street, Peterborough, to the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, where requiem mass was held at 10 a.m., with Rev. Father H. J. Farrell officiating.

Interment followed in Sacred Heart Cemetery. The pall-bearers were George Forestell, Joseph Doyle, William Flynn, Fred Johnston, Bert Crawford and Joseph Shannon.

Dogs On Patrol

FIRE ISLAND, N.Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—East Coastguard man on patrol along the south shore of Long Island will have one dog assigned to him, and will learn how to care for the dog. Eventually all stations on the beach will have dogs in their patrols.

CLEANS YOUR BREATH AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH

Here's a tip for sit-down workers...

Sitting all day at a desk or work table doesn't give much chance for healthy exercise. So guard against the headachy, heavy feeling that so often means incomplete elimination. Take these two steps to health: (1) To get well, see your doctor; (2) to keep well, watch your habits. Make sure elimination is complete, but shun harsh cathartics! Get enough "bulk" in your diet to keep the food wastes moving promptly. Start every morning with a bowl of crunchy Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too. And they're so fresh and crisp, so delicious, you'll want them every day! Look for Kellogg's Bran Flakes in the golden yellow package. Comes in two convenient sizes. And when you breakfast out, order the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

"BEING TIED to the end of a wire in these wartime days is no picnic. I can't afford 'slowdowns' and dull, listless days. I have to keep fit! So here's my message to every 'sit-down' worker: do as I do, get plenty of bulk in your diet, eat a big bowlful of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every day in the year. They're mildly laxative, and there's nothing like their crisp flavour to start the day right."

VOL. LXXXVI, No. 63 — PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1942

MAIN STREET TOPICS

PLENTY OF MICE

Householders in several parts of the city report that mice are becoming very numerous. Even in the downtown restaurants the tiny rodents have been noticed scampering out under the booths. Apparently the animals are moving into the houses with the approach of cooler weather, and citizens will have to launch a campaign of extermination right away.

HELPING AT LINDSAY

Captain Colin Althouse of the Ontario Voluntary Constabulary reported today that the 40 members of the local voluntary police unit would assist at the Lindsay Fair this year offering their services as special constables. This was done last year as well and the Fair Board were highly pleased with the efficient work done by these men.

NEW DIRECTORIES

Some of the new directories were distributed around Peterborough on Monday and it will take a few days before every customer has received his copy. This year the book is bound in a bright orange cover and has 344 pages. Last year's population was estimated at about 27,300 and for the present year it is estimated to be about 31,324. These estimations cover Peterborough and outskirts.

HAND AMPUTATED

Mrs. Lilian Douglas who suffered an injury while working at a local factory on Saturday is the mother of four children and her husband is serving with the Canadian Army overseas. Her many friends were shocked at the fact that the injury assumed such serious proportions. The wrist was broken in two places and the fact that the hand was crushed so badly interfering with circulation made it imperative that the limb be amputated.

NEW HALL

The Nazarene Gospel congregation which has been holding its meetings in a tent all summer on Aylmer street takes over a new building as its meeting place for the coming year. They are moving in immediately to the building at 213 Charlotte street, and the opening service will be held Thursday night.

GREETINGS FROM OVERSEAS

Spr. Jack Heffernan, of the Engineers, formerly employed at the Grand Hotel was heard on Sunday over the air sending greetings from the Beaver Club in London. Stanley Downer, another Peterborough boy, was on the same program and he spoke to friends at R.R. 4, Omemee. Ordinarily the Examiner would have been advised in advance that these men would be on the program, but notification did not come through this time.

TO CONSULT COMMITTEE

Proposals for economy in street lighting will be planned by the Utilities Commission, and will be recommended to the light and power committee of the council for their approval. The Commission is beginning a general survey of ways of reducing the consumption of power during the fall and winter.

HEAD CAUGHT IN CAN.

Residents in the neighborhood of Marie Street and Armour Road saw something new in the line of animal incidents the other night when a skunk with its head firmly caught in a tin can suddenly made its appearance on the street and frantically whirled around in an effort to dislodge the headgear. The banging of the tin on the road could be heard for a considerable distance but all the frenzied animal's struggling failed to release Mr. Skunk from his predicament and it still had the tin helmet on when it disappeared from view. Just what became of the animal no one seems to know. It is presumed that the skunk had stuck its head into the can in search of food and then was unable to release itself.

ARRESTED AFTER FIGHT.

As the result of a fight in a restaurant last night, a local man pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of being drunk and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs. According to the police report the accused started a row with a customer in the restaurant and in the battle that ensued the aggressor got the worst of it. A stool was torn from its moorings during the scuffle.

BICYCLIST NOT HURT.

C. S. Frost, 215 Hunter Street, escaped unhurt when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with a motor car at Reid and Dalhousie Streets. Frost was travelling north on Reid Street and had made a turn east into Dalhousie Street when his machine collided with the side of the left front fender of an automobile being driven west on Dalhousie Street by W. T. Regan, 600 Gilmour Street. The front forks and cross bar of the bicycle were bent but the rider was not injured.

HIS EIGHTH YEAR

With the completion of three new bungalows, one on McCannan Ave. and two on Aberdeen, A. E. Thompson starts his eighth year as realator in the city today.

HEATING TENDERS

Four tenders for the heating of the Aylmer street substation were received by the Utilities Commission. They were referred to the chairman, G. S. Matthews, and R. L. Dobbin, manager, with power to act.

FOR PLOWING MATCH

The Melville Deyell farm, one mile south of Fowler's Corners, has been chosen by a committee of the local plowmen's association for the county match on October 14. A meeting of the association will be held Wednesday night in F. C. Paterson's office.

CASE WITHDRAWN.

A charge of assault arising from a neighborhood argument over children was withdrawn by the complainant in police court this morning. The accused woman has been ill, and under the circumstances the other woman said that she wanted to withdraw the complaint. The Crown was willing and that was the end of the case.

Island Commander

Pension Action Speedier In New Setup

TORONTO, Sept. 15—(CP).—Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the War Amputations Association of Canada convention today it is the "national purpose" that men who have served in the forces shall be able to return to civil life in a condition to hold their own in private employment, "and able to pull their weight with any person anywhere."

The Minister reviewed arrangements made for the care of the injured after the war, provisions for rehabilitation and re-establishment, and programs for training for employment and completion of education.

When a man is discharged from the forces as physically unfit his fyle is automatically transferred to the Canadian Pension Commission which is able to make an award at once without waiting for an application from the man concerned. The cases where the commission did not make an award the man was notified of the procedure he may adopt to bring additional evidence to the commission for a second hearing. Beyond that again there is a right of appeal.

The discharged man who at any time within a year of his discharge was suffering from some physical handicap whether or not it was due to service will have the right to receive treatment from Pensions Department medical officers with hospital care which will restore him to better health.

The Federal Compulsory Reinstatement Act could be greatly broadened in its effect by similar legislation in the provinces, and ex-servicemen should bring this matter to the attention of provincial legislatures. The Act provides for the return to their jobs of the men who have seen service, the Minister continued.

Welfare Officers.

In each employment office a welfare officer had been placed with the duty of meeting the discharged soldier and assisting him. Such officers had received the assistance of a citizens' committee in most cities.

"I cannot over-emphasize the importance of these citizens' committees," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"No matter how complete and effective the official program may be, the vital problem of welcoming and assisting our returning service men is one for the whole people.

"There must be the personal sympathetic touch of a friendly hand. I appeal for your co-operation as a body of successfully re-established ex-service men."

To meet postwar problems, Canada had a vision of timed public works, co-ordinated municipal, provincial and federal effort, a sound and progressive agriculture policy, the development of natural resources and progressive development of highways to link the people of the Dominion more closely and open scenes as scenic beauty for the visitor.

"Above all and transcending all we envision the development of a great national scheme of social security, by which the masses of our people shall never again know those fears that come from insecurity and poverty and want and ill-health," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"I believe with all my heart that we shall—after blood and sweat and tears are to be our portion for many continuing months—we shall conclusively win this war upon which we have engaged as crusaders of Christianity," the Minister concluded.

NATURE'S BOUNTY.

The harvest season is upon us, and with it a tremendous crop of thimble berries, elder berries and apples. Motorists passing heavily-laden apple trees are tempted to relieve the farmer of a few of them, and those seeking enough elder berries for a pie will have little trouble if they know the location of the bushes.

Died Of Wounds

Petty Officer Tom Macdonald, age 21, only son of Mrs. Cora MacDonald, 554 Sherbrooke Street, has died of wounds following a naval engagement at sea. He is the first sailor from Peterborough to die in action in World War 2.

Tom MacDonald Naval Officer Dies Of Wounds

First naval casualty from the Peterborough district since the war started was reported today with the announcement that Petty Officer Tom MacDonald, 554 Sherbrooke street had died of wounds following a naval engagement at sea at an unspecified location and time.

He is the only son of Mrs. Cora MacDonald, and the late Mr. MacDonald, a veteran of World War 1, whose final illness was hastened and aggravated by wounds received in the last war.

Tom MacDonald is a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, having taken the vocation course prior to being engaged by the C.G.E. on June 23, 1937. He remained in the switchgear department of the C.G.E. until June 28, 1940, when he enlisted with the Royal Canadian Navy. He was stationed at Esquimault for some time, and was on Pacific patrol for many months operating off South America and over as far as New Zealand.

On August 10 last he was home on leave and was in good health, and reported for duty again to an east coast port. He was born on May 7, 1921, in Toronto and was a member of the United Church.

As a member of the Y.M.C.A. he was well known, and was prominent in athletics particularly swimming.

Rangers Served Moose Meat

Moose meat is plentiful with the Prince of Wales Rangers, in British Columbia according to a letter received by his parents from Sergt. Elgin White. Sergt. White says that several moose have been shot and also a number of prairie chickens and as a result some of the Rangers have been living high.

Many of the Peterborough soldiers have been busy again fighting bush fires in the neighborhood of the camp.

Sergt. White describes a recent adventure while on a hunting trip. One of the party developed what was thought to be an attack of appendicitis and the sergeant made his way through 25 miles of bush country for medical help, only to discover when the doctor arrived on the scene that there was nothing seriously wrong with the patient.

$2,540 Collected To Purchase Cigarettes For Men Overseas

Smokes for the boys overseas, one of the finest services that can be extended to the soldiers miles from home is getting plenty of attention locally, due to the work of a committee set up by the local branch of the Canadian Legion, No. 52 and headed by Bob Hotrum, a veteran of World War 1.

When the Buckshee Fund officials made an appeal for co-operation from the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion, Bob Hotrum was named chairman, in March of 1941, and the work of collecting money for cigarettes and tobacco has gone ahead steadily since then. Buckshee boxes were placed in stores and shops throughout the city, and on Saturday night Mr. Hotrum canvassed the places where many people congregate and thus adds much to the fund.

To date the sum of $2,540.15 has been collected locally which means that more than 1,200,000 cigarettes have been sent over. During army week, the committee stated the cigarettes must be sent to the units in which the majority of Peterborough men are serving such as the 32nd Light Anti-aircraft, 3rd Field Park Company Engineers, S. D. and G. Highlanders, 4th anti-tank and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Six weeks ago the Legion started a bingo for Friday nights with a view to raising money to send cigarettes direct to Peterborough soldiers. Every person buying an admission ticket to the bingo is entitled to place one soldier's name in the box. Following each bingo game, names are drawn from the box and each soldier whose name is drawn receives 300 cigarettes. The number of names drawn is determined by the amount of the receipts. In short, the more people who attend the more Peterborough boys will receive cigarettes. Following last Friday's bingo 19 names were taken out, and the orders have already been sent. These bingo games have attracted larger crowds with each week, and they are in charge of Bob Hotrum, who has a hard-working committee to assist him. The committee consists of Andy Rutter, Sr., Bob Mitchell, Jim Mitchell, Pete Wallace, Jack Ridyard, Fred Varty and Charles McDermid.

Next week the names of the men drawn will be listed in the Examiner so that those attending the bingo games will know just who has been sent cigarettes.

Traffic Lights Are Discussed

"Both ideas seemed to be favorably received," Alderman Dutton remarked this morning in regard to an interview between a deputation from the city council and the members of North Monaghan council yesterday afternoon.

Joint use of the township dump as a means of getting away from the riverfront dump, was one of the proposals, and the other was the placing of traffic lights at Monaghan Road and Chamberlen street.

The township council suggested that they would appoint several of its members to meet representatives of the council and consider details about the dump ground.

The Peterborough Canoe Company, Engleburn residents, and the Fire Marshal's department are all demanding that the city put out the fire on the river front and find some other location for that purpose. Although some members of the council are convinced that the community has no obligation to provide disposal facilities for any refuse except the garbage materials that are burned in the incinerator, the members have instructed a committee to look around for some convenient place.

Monaghan has a dump out near the Bennett farm, and if they are agreeable to taking the city in on that accommodation "we'd pay the cost of a man to supervise the place, and let them engage him, somebody living near the place," Alderman Dutton said.

As to the Monaghan Road lights it was said that Constable Bruce Menzies has been doing a faithful job every noon hour, but the installation of stop-and-go lights would relieve him of that extra duty, and extend protection to all hours of the day and night.

The city is willing to pay half the cost of setting up lights at Chamberlen street, and when the present rush of traffic ends with the war, would reimburse the township for the amount they contributed, and transfer the lights to some other corner.

North Monaghan council said they would consider both questions.

Moderator Denies Wife Died In 1904

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP).—Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, new Moderator of the United Church of Canada, said in an interview Sunday that in the post-war period Canada "will need men who live dangerously, who can win peace as they can win wars."

The supreme post-war function of the church will be to provide the opportunity for people to worship, said the new Moderator, who was elected to office last week.

In the interview he laughingly said "the press is trying to remove one or more of my family from the earth. The press carried a story the other day that my wife died in 1904. That is the date of our marriage. I have been talking with her every night and if she is dead, then it is a story that should interest psychic research."

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

Sept. 15, 1917—Five-man Russian war cabinet formed under Premier A. F. Kerensky. Battle centre in northern Italy transferred to Bainsizza plateau where Italians gained in the southeast. United States record war credits bill for $11,538,000,000 passed unanimously.

Employees Of Utilities Commission Gave 74 Days Work To Farmers Of District

Employees of the Utilities Commission who were given leave of absence to assist farmers of the county in their harvesting of hay and grain were listed in a brief tributary report by R. L. Dobbin at yesterday's meeting.

B. W. Rupert spent 21½ days "farming." He is the man Frank Paterson recommended to a farmer out Omemee way. Of course Rupert was unknown to the farmer, who was decidedly sceptical about taking on a city man. When the job was done the farmer was so pleased with the results that wrote his appreciation, and even suggested that the Examiner use a photograph of the "hired man." However, the photograph was not sharp enough for reproduction.

W. F. McMahon worked 12 days; E. E. Bell, 9½ days; C. W. Simmons, 8 days; W. A. Whawell, 7 days; R. Winn, 6 days; M. Hynes, 5 days; G. E. Rayment, 3½, and G. H. McIlmoyle, 2 days.

The Commission paid these employees their cost of living bonus while they were in the country. This amounted to $53.43.

The total number of days represented by the Commission's men was 71½.

Take Time Out For Cup Of Cocoa

Girls of some department at Canada Packers have a custom of knocking off work for a sip of tea, a bit of refreshment and a break in the routine. Lately, they have been switching to cocoa, all but two who are bringing a bag of oolong a day.

Hearing Gordon S. Matthews mention this detail about C.P.C. employees, the Examiner might have passed it by, if there had not appeared yesterday an article to the effect that a Kalamazoo research scientist has discovered that coffee contains substances which with chemical changes may become "a fountain of youth."

Note particularly that qualifying and restrictive phrase "with chemical changes" as a check on opinion that a new compound "cafesterol" extracted from green coffee beans is an important possible source for the synthetic production of certain hormones and vitamins. One of the hormones is the "estrone," the female hormone, widely used by physicians for the prolongation of the youthfulness in women.

Another is corticosterone, the vital hormone of the adrenal cortex gland, which is essential for life and vitality.

All of which intimates the coffee may have more creditable ingredients than some of the health authorities know or acknowledge, and although the Canada Packers girls do not need to worry yet about the prologation of youthfulness, still that "cafesterol" might have something on both tea and cocoa.

Four Jury Cases Are Set Down

Nine civil actions, four jury and five non-jury along with one criminal case comprised the docket of the Autumn Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario before the Honorable Mr. Justice Roach at the court house on Monday at noon.

One case, a claim for damages by Gilbert Arnold against Wm. J. Murphy and Harry Ketchum for $1,500, covering the loss of a Belgian stallion was settled out of court, and the agreement was confirmed by the court. The amount of the settlement was not mentioned. T. J. Carley, K.C., acted for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., and W. B. Gordon for the defendants.

Justice Roach addressed the Grand Jury at some length setting forth the duties of this body of men in the courts of Ontario and he said in part. "Grand jurors are not only a cross section of the people but are in the discharge of their duties the people of the county. What is more reasonable, than that you, the representatives of all people of the county, should make inspections of the institutions in the county which everyone is called on to support.

"Such an inspection should not be cursory, a mere matter of form. As you make this inspection I would suggest that you should have certain matters in mind. In the case of institutions where elderly people live, where the infirm find themselves, you should have in mind the question of fire hazard, the question of cleanliness and the question of whether or not the accomodation is adequate with regard to the demands made on them. Watch for overcrowding, and check the physical condition of the buildings, are those in charge discharging their duties as they should.

"Also in the interests of economy, what is the situation, that are the buildings in need of repair.

"Make your inspection and submit a written report to me. Embrace in the report such recommendations as you deem advisable."

Alderman Max Swanston was named foreman of the Grand Jury, and the other members are G. A. Brethen, William Darling, William J. Grady, William Hayes, Norman A. Moore, Stewart Livingstone, J. C. Poolman, William Tully, Erle G. Welbourn, W. H. Outram, John Coons and Kent Throop.

Justice Roach explained that he would address the Grand Jury later on their duties relative to criminal cases, and that any reference to the lone criminal case on the list would be made later in the session. This is a case against Donald Lloyd of Lakefield who faces three charges of fraud.

so much as the whiner and complainer who magnifies her sacrifices and calls upon everybody to sympathize with her. The courageous woman has the consolation of her own self-respect and the admiration and respect of all who know her, whereas the weakling mother who wanted some other woman's son to go out to defend her and her child is an object of universal contempt.

Unless a boy is as weak and flabby-souled as his mother, she makes life very hard for him. Every boy in the army has had to make sacrifices. He has had to give up his job or his profession just when he was getting started in it, and he knows he will have to start afresh when the war is over. Often he has had to leave a young wife and little children, and he has enough to bear and enough to worry about without his mother constantly breaking down his courage by moaning and groaning over him and telling how she wets her pillow with her tears and how she knows she will never see him again.

It takes a brave and unselfish woman to smile in these days, to be cheerful and to keep up the morale of all with whom she comes in contact by saying something gay and pleasant instead of telling them a tale of woe. It takes courage to write an amusing letter to one's son when one's heart is breaking, but that's the kind of mother we need.

Everyone is filled with pity for the mothers whose sons are at the front. Their bread is sorrow and their drink is tears in these sad times, but they make a bad matter worse when they fill the world with their lamentations. Every mother of a soldier owes it to him, to her country and to those about her to put up as brave a fight at home as he does at the front.

Day of Leisure Causes Trouble.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I have been married three years. He is a good provider. We have a nice home, a lovely baby and are quite happy together.

But there is one thing we never can agree about and that is what we shall do on Sundays and his days off. He always wants to spend them at home fiddling around in the backyard, or doing something about the house or in resting and relaxing while I want to go somewhere. When I nag him into taking me he does it so ungraciously it takes all the pleasure out of it.

He feels that I am silly to make an issue of this and that I should not object to his enjoying his free time playing ball or doing exactly as he wants to.

How can I make him understand that I get fed up with dishes and diapers and cooking three meals a day, seven days a week and want some amusement myself?—G. C.

ANSWER: The difficulty about settling a domestic dispute is that so often the husband and wife are both right from their different points of view and they so seldom seem to be able to make a common-sense solution of their problem.

Entitled to Enjoy Day Off.

That is the case with you and your husband. Certainly, if he works hard all the week, he is entitled to enjoy his one day of leisure and should be permitted to stay at home in his own backyard, if that is what he wants to do, instead of being dragged off by you to a dance hall or picnic or to see your family who probably bore him to tears.

You, too, are entitled to one day off a week from cooking and washing and baby tending, and to spend it at the beauty shop or in the movies or having an orgy in the department store and lunch at a restaurant.

Such being the case and you two being reasonable human beings, why can't you talk it all over and agree on having different days off instead of quarreling over it? Believe me you would have a better time going alone than you would together, for nothing is so aggravating as to have a companion who is acting like a martyr when you are trying to enjoy yourself.

Says McCormick Bogus Patriot

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Rev. E. V. Holland (Dem.-Pa.) referred to Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, as a "bogus patriot," and declared that the Tribune, the New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald sought to destroy the immunity from lawsuit which Congressmen enjoy in their official actions.

In the House of Representatives he said that McCormick, along with Capt. Joseph M. Patterson and Eleanor Patterson, publishers of the News and the Times-Herald, respectively, had not denied "that their newspapers echo the propaganda coming out of the Third Reich of Adolf Hitler."

He said that McCormick "glories in his title of 'Colonel', a title he got through a political deal," that the publisher "threw wild parties in Paris" while Holland was serving with the army in France.

Holland also criticized John O'Donnell, chief of the New York Daily News Washington bureau, terming him "the key-man in distorting the news flowing out of this capital of a world at war."

Mrs. H. J. Ford Hostess To Red Cross Group

NORWOOD, Sept. 15.—Mrs. H. J. Ford entertained the ladies of the Red Cross group of war workers of her community for the first meeting in September at her home on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 10.

One large quilt was quilted and one cut quilt was tied. Additional squares for the afghan were turned in.

Mrs. Gordon Girven of Campbellford, formerly group leader, was a guest at the meeting.

At the conclusion an afternoon tea was served by the hostess followed by a social time.

NICE GOING

One party who went duck hunting today at Pigeon Lake had good luck bagging ten ducks. Three members of the party were Wally Davidson, Floyd Taylor and Wallace Harvey. Other the hunters who had been out at Chemong found ducks scarce.

School Children Do Good Work For War Victims

After chalking up a fine record for work done on behalf of sufferers from air raids on Britain through the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund during the holiday recess, the children have hardly settled down to the common round of daily tasks as it applies to their studies when they are found once more up and at the job of doing good deeds for others, with no less than three different efforts standing to their credit in to-day's list of receipts for the fund.

Three girls, Barbara Outram, Marylin Galbraith, and Isabel Moffatt in the Chamberlain Street area held a bazaar at 552 Chamberlain Street on Saturday selling a variety of goods which netted the fine return of $11.01. Only as late as August 8 two of these girls were associated in a similar event which netted $9.45 for the fund. All of these girls are pupils at Prince of Wales School.

Two girls, Muriel Butcher, a pupil at Sacred Heart School, and Sheila Jones, a pupil at Confederation School, both of whom are only seven years of age held a bazaar on the grounds adjoining their residences at 281 and 285 King George Street on Saturday, selling a variety of goods and in this manner made $6.64 for the fund which was turned in by Mrs. Jones. For girls of such tender years this is very much to their credit.

Two other girls, Ruth Gardner and Irene Nicholls, who live in the Murray and Weller Streets areas and attend Queen Mary School, sold home-made buns and apples to raise $1.35 for the fund, and this for young girls is also a worth-whole effort to help others.

Market Stall.

On Saturday the Market stall was supplied with donations of farm and garden produce by farmers of the Cavanville district under the convenership of Sydney C. Boyles a farmer-veteran of that district, with two girl guides, Kitty Smith and Lona Parrott, in charge as sales clerks. Donations were given by Mrs. A. Pritchard, Mrs. M. Carr, Mervin William Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. K. Syer, Mrs. R. Matchett, W. Pudsey, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. R. Syer, and Mr. and Mrs. Sydney C. Boyles from which the sum of $8.88 was realized, which later was augmented by 50 cents to make a total of $9.38, with more likely to follow at the next week-end.

This coming Saturday the stall will be supplied by farmers in the Springville centre, with Miss Jean Fairburn as convener, further details of which as well as a list of future bookings will follow later in the week.

The box at the Bell Telephone was opened for its regular monthly contribution, and yielded the sum of $2.15 making a grand total of $70.28 that has come to the fund from this one box.

Previously acknowledged	$45,832.18

PETERBOROUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE LTD.
Now Open
It is important this year that enrolments be made earlier than usual. Our office is open daily for consultation. Phone 4861 for appointment.
Business firms and the Government need capable stenographers and accountants. Young people can serve their country by preparing for office positions, and when the war is over will likely hold these positions. Rather important, is it not?
Ask for full information by letter—or call Day 4861—Night 6431.

BORN

GRAFSTEIN.—Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Grafstein are happy to announce the gift of a daughter at Nicholls Hospital, on Sunday, September 13, 1942; a sister for Harold, Murray, and Jeanette.

MACKAY—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mackay are happy to announce the birth of a son, Kenneth Ronald at St. Joseph's Hospital, Sunday September 13. Both doing well.

ENGAGEMENTS

The engagement is announced of Lillian Dorothy Guerin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Guerin, of this city, to Raymond Driscoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Driscoll of Stewart Hall. The wedding to take place the latter part of September.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH.—In loving memory of our infant daughter, Joan Elaine, who passed away September 15, 1941.

"In God's care."

—Always remembered by Mummy, Daddy (overseas), and Bobbie.

HEARD.—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Gloria Jean, who passed away September 15, 1941.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remebrance keeps her near.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Father, sisters Muriel and Doreen.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leether and daughter wish to extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness and messages of sympathy received since receiving the sad news of the loss of their only son and brother, Albert.

Trainers Collide 1 of 5 Leaps, Lives

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP).—Four members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were killed and one escaped with minor injuries Sunday when two training planes collided in the air near Richmond, Ont., about 20 miles west of here, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced.

Following notification of the next-of-kin, the name of one of the crash victims was announced. He was Sgt. Stanley Victor Patterson, 35, of Eastview, a suburb of Ottawa.

Sole survivor of the crash was PO. C. E. Cusson of Chelsea, Que., who with another flier 'baled out' of the Harvard training plane in which the two were flying. PO. Cusson was taken to hospital for a check-up for possible other injuries.

His flying companion was seen to leap from the plane, but his parachute harness was empty when observers reached the spot. Searchers subsequently discovered his body.

The three occupants of the Oxford bomber, the other machine involved, crashed with the plane. Names of the other victims are withheld pending notification of their next-of-kin. Two were Americans.

Residents of the district who saw the crash said the two planes were flying high when the Harvard seemed to dive at the twin-engined bomber slicing off a section of its tail. The two planes then swirled and plumetted to the ground, landing about half a mile apart. Detached portions of the fuselage were scattered over a radius of two miles.

Sgt. Patterson was born in England, a son of D. C. Patterson who now resides at Smiths Fall, Ont. He joined the R.C.A.F. two years ago and came to Ottawa air station as a radio technician last May. During his training he was stationed at Shediac, N.B.

Both planes were from Ottawa air station at Rockcliffe. Cause of the accident has not been determined, but a full investigation will be carried out, R.C.A.F. headquarters said.

Son Withholds Unpublished Doyle Mystery

By WILLIAM KING

LONDON, Sept. 15—(AP)—"Most astounding, my dear Holmes!"

That probably would have been the reaction of faithful Doctor Watson to the revelation from the family of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle that an unpublished Sherlock Holmes story had been discovered among some of the musty old papers left by the famous writer when he died twelve year ago.

The comment of the millions of devotees who have devoured every one of the Sherlock Holmes stories will probably be much more vocal, however, when they learn of the decision of Conan Doyle's son not to publish the new discovery.

The story, "The Man Who Was Wanted," was found by the author's son, Adrian Conan Doyle, in an old chest among family papers—many of which pre-dated Sir Arthur.

On the envelope in which the manuscript was discovered was a note in the writing of the author's wife, that he did not intend to have the story published because he did not consider it up to the standard set by the others in the Sherlock Holmes' series.

"It is not up to scratch," said his son, "and my father didn't want to run the risk of disappointing his admirers by putting out a story that he felt did not come up to par."

Hesketh Pearson, biographer of Hardy, who is preparing a life of Sir Arthur, agreed that the story was "very feeble" and said Conan Doyle showed "good common sense" in withholding it from publication since it might have injured the reputation of the famous detective of Baker street.

London Critic Raps Herridge Scheme For FDR

LONDON, Sept 15 (CP Cable).—The suggestion of W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington, that the United Nations should unite under the leadership of President Roosevelt was an "undiplomatic performance" that catered to Nazi propaganda, "Candidus," outspoken political critic of the Daily Sketch, wrote today.

In a luncheon address in Ottawa Friday, Herridge said: "Mr. Roosevelt must be proclaimed leader by the acknowledged leader of the British Empire. Mr. Churchill, speaking on behalf of the Empire, must declare that victory demands a leader for the English-speaking world and that that leader is the President of the United States."

"Candidus" commented:

"If Goebbels reads Major Herridge's speech—he's certain to read it sooner or later—his response will be one of unqualified pleasure. Ever since the U.S.A. entered the war Goebbels has been trying to drive a wedge between the British and Americans, his principal argument being that the U.S.A. and the President are aiming at hegemony of the world, beginning with hegemony of the British Empire. That insinuation never has been taken seriously by the Empire...

"But it is to say the least a pity that anybody of any prominence in the Empire should supply Goebbels with the faintest shred of apparent justification for exulting, 'I told you so'."

The columnist added that he did not believe there is a man available fully equipped to be the supreme warlord of the English-speaking peoples. "That super genius isn't to be found on earth," he said. "There never has been such a super genius."

Dogs Eating Tags

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 15. — (CP).—Brantford's dog owners are complaining their pets now eat their tags—something which never happened when the animals wore metal tags before the war. The dogs appear to find something appetizing about the plastic discs they wear, and steps are being taken to see that next year's non-metallic tags are free of whatever it is which now tickles the dogs' palates.

$2,000,000 Less

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—New York's dim-out regulations have cost the Consolidated Edison Company "almost $2,000,000 of revenue" during the last four months, say company officials. They report that a drop of 50,000,000 kilowat hours in normal current consumption was recorded between May 1 and Aug. 30.

Dining Rules for Hostess and Guest

Seating Guests at Dinner

How delightfully some women fill the role of hostess — while others are baffled by such a simple etiquette problem as seating guests at a small dinner party!

Simple to remember that a woman guest of honor sits at the host's right, that a man guest of honor sits at the right of the hostess.

To direct guests to their places, you need only say, "Will you sit here, Mr. Jones?" indicating the place with a slight gesture. Of course, you avoid seating husbands and wives together—or two women or two men.

Another moment that can be awkward is the start of the dinner. Should guests or hosts delay eating until everyone is served? No, correct to start in a leisurely way so that no one finishes much before the others.

You'll want to be sure of using knives, forks and spoons correctly, too. One rule to remember—take only one sip with your tea or coffee spoon. Drink from the cup.

Brush up on fine points of table etiquette! Our 32-page booklet gives rules for formal dinners, teas, buffet parties, clubs, restaurants. Tells correct silver for different courses, when fingers are correct, how to eat unusual foods.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "Good Table Manners" to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SUIT PREFERENCE VITAL

NEXT TO the opening lead, which is the most important single play of all in the overwhelming majority of hands, the one ranking second to it is the choice of suit to be led by the defenders to the second trick. The first is more or less "blind," except for whatever inferences may be drawn from the bidding, plus what you see in your own hand, but the second is or should be a more precise matter. Then calculations may be based partly on what you see in the dummy and partly on what your partner plays to the first trick.

North: ♠ J 6 4 ♥ K J 10 7 3 ♦ J 10 8 2 ♣ 3

West: ♠ K 3 2 ♥ 2 ♦ A 6 5 4 3 ♣ A K 9 4

East: ♠ A 10 9 8 ♥ 8 ♦ K Q 9 7 ♣ J 7 5 2

South: ♠ Q 7 5 ♥ A Q 9 6 5 4 ♦ None ♣ Q 10 8 6

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dbl	2 ♥	2 ♠
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	Dbl

East would have succeeded with his double if his partner had paid close attention to all that he saw, and made proper use of it. But he didn't.

Picking the safest lead of the club K, instead of the suit which his partner bid in response to the informative double, as a free bid, but did not rebid, West did not notice the card his partner put on the trick, which was the 2, or else did not derive any message from it. To the second trick, he switched to his partner's suit, the spade K. That and the A won tricks, but the Q scored for declarer on the third round, and the rest of the hand was a pushover for South, by means of trump-dropping and a cross-ruff.

No trick can ever be taken in spades by South unless the opponents lead the suit. West should have read, upon seeing the singleton in dummy and the great number of hearts there, that East knew he would shift to spades or diamonds. There would be no sense in a shift to trumps with so many in dummy. Hence East's job was to signal his preference as between spades and diamonds. That is exactly what he did. His 2 was meant to call for the lower-ranking diamonds, whereas the 7 would have asked for the higher-ranking spades. Had West read the message, a diamond lead would have forced the declarer eventually to break spades himself, and thus take no trick in the suit while losing three, enough to beat his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K J 9 7 ♥ A Q 7 3 ♦ 6 5 ♣ Q 9 2

West: ♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ J 9 5 4 ♦ J 10 9 7 ♣ 3

East: ♠ 2 ♥ K 10 8 6 ♦ 8 4 3 2 ♣ K J 10 8

South: ♠ A Q 10 8 ♥ 2 ♦ A K Q ♣ A 7 6 5 4

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What method of play would you prefer on this deal, to seek 6-Spades, West having led the diamond J.

Dogs But No Children

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP).—The complaint "it's all right to have a dog in Ottawa but it's wrong to have a child" was voiced by a woman tenant who told Ottawa rentals committee she was willing to pay $15 monthly for a room because she could at least bathe every day. She said she had a 13-year-old child, but couldn't find a place for him to share with her, so had to send him to Toronto.

Deserter Admits Slaying 2 Social Workers

SANTA MARIA, Cal., Sept. 15 — (AP)—A twenty-one-year-old army deserter, Robert T. Bailey, signed a confession yesterday, Deputy District Attorney Thomas Weldon said, admitting he killed two Kenosha, Wis., women social workers last Monday near Tomah, Wis.

Weldon said Bailey ascribed theft of their automobile and money as his motive, but he denied he had raped his victims. The nude bodies of the women, Miss Neil John Pietrangeli, 30, and Dorothy Baun, 32, were found Tuesday by the side of a road.

"Bailey has told several conflicting stories of the actual killing," said Weldon. "But I believe the confession he has just signed is true insofar as his admission that he alone shot the women is concerned. At first he claimed a soldier hitch-hiker he met in Cincinnati raped the women. Now he confesses he didn't meet the soldier until after he had killed them."

Weldon said Bailey's confession related, in effect, that he met Miss Pietràngeli and Miss Baun in Madison, Wis., as the former's automobile stopped for a traffic signal. They offered him a ride and he decided to take their purses and the car. After forcing them from the machine on a side-road he instructed them to disrobe and go toward a nearby hill.

Miss Pietrangeli, the story related, told him she intended to notify police. This angered him and he fired an army revolver at her. He said the bullet struck Miss Baun first and that he believed it also penetrated the other woman's body, because they both fell. Going to Le Sueur, Minn., Bailey said he cashed a cheque on Miss Pietrangeli's account. Driving to Sioux City, Ia., Bailey met two sixteen-year-old girls, Alberta Coon and Pauline Conley. He offered to take them to California and they accepted.

Weldon said Bailey told him he wanted to come to California and go to Fort Ord to kill his brother, W. R. Bailey, against whom he held a grudge. Bailey, Weldon said, deserted from the Army in July, 1941.

Clothing belonging to the two slain women was found in Bailey's car here. The two girls with whom Bailey came west are at the home of an aunt of Miss Coon's, Mrs. Cyril Simmeon, with whom they were visiting when Bailey was arrested.

Simmeon, a former police officer, observed Bailey repainting his car. Questioning Bailey, he received evasive answers and called police.

Supplies For Pacific Front Arrive By Boatload

Find Ships' Dogs Excellent Plane Spotters

By ALLAN NICKLESON

A BRITISH PORT, Sept. 15 (CP). —There's a pleasant little pub near the waterfront of this bustling harbor where men of the sea gather for a pint or two. Lately, it has gone all to the dogs.

Ship commanders and crews have taken to swapping stories in an effort to determine who has the best four-legged aircraft detector. It seems that the dogs they keep aboard as pets and mascots have super-excellent accuracy in sensing the enemy before anyone else.

"I noticed soon after we got him that Nobby would suddenly stand to attention and point in a certain direction," he told an avid group. "No word from anyone could move him.

"All at once before any of us expected it, a Jerry plane would be spotted. . . .

He may pull a bloomer sometimes because he doesn't always know the difference between one of our aircraft and a German. But I train my gun the way his nose is going."

Others tell similar stories and arguments grow loud and long as to whether the dogs' actions are based on sound, instinct or smell.

Instinct and Hearing

The discussions grew so warm they brought about a call to an official of "The Dumb Friends' League" who said he was sure "There is more than something in it." He favors sharp hearing plus instinct as the explanation.

Dogs, a seaman added, often show signs of uneasiness a few minutes before the sounding of an alert that signifies the presence of enemy aircraft in the vicinity. In illustration, he told this bit:

"A woman and her grandchild were alone in their house with an Alsatian. There was apparently no cause for fear but the Alsatian suddenly began pulling at the woman's skirt, then running to the door and back.

"She took no notice. The dog then picked up a shopping basket and ran from the house. The grandchild, to recover the basket, chased the animal which loped a good distance from the house before stopping.

"A bomb fell, the child was unharmed, but the woman was killed."

Labor Congress 150,000 Strong

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (CP).—Membership of approximately 150,080 in the Canadian Congress of Labor was reported in the Executive Council report prepared for presentation to the Congress today by Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer.

Local unions chartered by the Congress during the year numbered 60, the report said. The Congress has 18 paid organizers, most of them in the larger industrial centres of Canada.

During the past year a research department was established with Dr. Eugene A. Forsey, formerly of the staff of the economics and political science department of McGill University, as director. Particular attention will be paid in the research program to the basic industries in an effort to help larger affiliated unions in their negotiations with employers. Problems of economics, finance and post-war reconstruction are also to be considered.

Bite For Bite

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15. — (AP).—"Boy bites dog," made the usual headlines here, but with an unusual twist. Five-year-old Bobby Castillon took a bite out of his pet dog. The dog promptly nipped his youthful master in return. Bobby was treated at an emergency hospital.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Sixers' Conference

The Sixers' Conference is scheduled for the week-end of September 19. Very few reports have been received as to th numbers attending. We would appreciate the immediate action of the cubmasters in this work.

At St. Luke's

All cubs are requested to be on hand on Tuesday, September 15, at 6.30 p.m. sharp for the opening of the fall meetings. Sixers have been notified to get in touch with every member of their six.

Leaders' Meeting

We have been asked to notify all scout officers and their assistants that a meeting of all scout leaders will be held on Wednesday evening of this week, September 16. Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe will take the chair for the occasion and items of scout and cub interest will be discussed.

With St. George's

Thirteen cubs turned out for the opening meeting of the pack when the evening was given over to games.

The sixers were warned about the coming sixers' conference being held on Saturday, and all cubs were asked to tell their parents about the Mother and Dads' group meeting which will be held on Tuesday, September 15, at 8 p.m. sharp in St. George's Church.

Apple Day

Just to remind scout officers that we are one week nearer our Apple Day and to keep getting more and more prepared for the job. We are aware that, owing to war work, many of the officers will not be able to get on the job themselves. Why not draw in the mothers of the scouts to help you along. Have you started with the decoration of the baskets? If you do not remember your district, we will furnish you with a new map. But get ready now.

At St. John's

Twenty-four boys turned out for the pack meeting on Friday at which two more members were invested into the world brotherhood of scouting. Larry Cunningham and Billy Robertson made their promise as wolf cubs before Akela Groombridge. Baloo Tom Littlefair presented Carl Sergeant, Stuart Wigg, George Hall, Terry Common and Billy Cummings with the swimmer's badge. The evening was spent in games and instruction on Union Jack, Skipping and First Aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Robertson were visitors during the evening, and witnessed the investiture of their sons into the cub pack.

Registration

Yes, Sir, the month for registration is slowly but surely drawing nearer, and we renew our appeal that the scoutleaders of Peterborough will do their best this year to see that this district goes in among the first to report. I is not the fault of the local association or any other officials that we fall down, but the leaders. The papers are sent to the scout master early in the month. Why hold on to them. Give them to your cub leader, and get them filled out right away.

St. John's Scouts

A special meeting of all patrol leaders and seconds is called for this Friday, for 7 p.m. sharp.

Another Scout Goes

Rover Scout Matt Sergeant is now in the Air Force stationed at Toronto. We wish him good hunting in all his future activities. We understand that R.S.M. Cpl. Ken Brown is now at St. Johns, Quebec, taking special courses Also it is reported that Rover Scout Tom Hooper, who recently took up double harness, is also serving in the Air Force.

Coming Events

Wednesday, September 16. — Leaders' Meeting at Local Association Headquarters.

Saturday, September 19.—Sixers' Conference at Jamboree Grounds.

Saturday, October 17.—Boy Scout Apple Day.

Saturday, Oct. 31.—Final day for group registration.

WARKWORTH

Annual Supper Dropped By WA

WARKWORTH, Sept. 15 (ENS).—Thursday afternoon the regular meeting of the Women's Association of St. Paul's United church was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Seward with a good attendance.

Following the work period the president, Mrs. Kory Zufelt, called the meeting to order and it was decided to suggest to the board of stewards that the anniversary supper be withdrawn. It was also decided to purchase five war savings certificates for the United Church of Canada. The matter of painting the parsonage was left in the hands of the parsonage committee and board of trustees.

Owing to the absence of the treasurer the financial report was given by Mrs. A. M. Smale, the report of the parsonage committee by Mrs. R. B. Nelson, the visiting committee by Mrs. Kory Zufelt. Miss Charlotte Ross reported that a reply had been received from a card of sympathy sent.

It was decided to continue serving refreshments at the meetings until the end of the year.

At the October meeting which is to be held in the Sunday School room a quilt will be quilted.

THE WAR RISK INSURANCE ACT, 1942

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD BE WELL-INFORMED CONCERNING the DOMINION GOVERNMENT'S PLAN FOR WAR RISK INSURANCE

In the following Questions and Answers may be found information, in part—but every Citizen, Property Owner, Director of a Company, Trustee, is urged to seek full particulars regarding the Government War Risk Insurance Scheme.

Q. THE PURPOSE OF THE SCHEME?
A. To implement the Government's responsibility to the people of Canada. The Scheme provides a means of insurance at low rates—in the case of War Damage to Property.

Q. DOES THIS GOVERNMENT PLAN COVER PERSONAL INJURY?
A. Not at all. It is confined only to Property.

Q. WHAT IS MEANT BY "WAR DAMAGE"?
A. In brief—damage by, or because of, enemy action, and by accidental explosions of munitions.

Q. IS NOT THIS ENTERPRISE ONE THAT COULD BE UNDERTAKEN BY THE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES OF CANADA?
A. No. This type of War Risk is not being sold by private insurance companies, because of the magnitude of the risk involved.

Q. IS THIS WAR RISK INSURANCE AVAILABLE TO ALL PROPERTY OWNERS?
A. Yes. The Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.

Q. HOW DOES A PROPERTY-OWNER GO ABOUT SECURING THIS GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE?
A. To save costs of Administration, and to avoid setting up an extensive organization, the Government has accepted the services and facilities of the organized Fire Insurance Companies and their Agents, on a non-profit basis.

Q. I UNDERSTAND THERE IS A PROVISION FOR FREE COMPENSATION IN CERTAIN CASES OF WAR DAMAGE. WHAT KIND OF PROPERTY IS INCLUDED IN THIS CATEGORY?
A. War Damage to owner-occupied homes—and to the chattels of householders and others.

Q. WHAT IS THE AMOUNT OF "FREE COMPENSATION"?
A. Up to $3,000 for owner-occupied homes; $800 to a householder for chattels (personal effects); $400 for those of his wife; $100 for those of each child under 16; $200 for others.

Q. IS AN INSURANCE POLICY NECESSARY TO QUALIFY FOR FREE COMPENSATION?
A. No. Such home-owners and citizens are insured automatically for the Free Compensation feature.

Q. BUT SUPPOSE THE AMOUNT OF "FREE" COMPENSATION IS NOT DEEMED SUFFICIENT TO COVER THE DAMAGE?
A. Then the property-owner should contract with the Government now for an additional sum at a low rate of Premium.

Q. WHAT ABOUT OTHER PROPERTY—NOT BEING OWNER-OCCUPIED HOMES?
A. Owners of Factories, Stores, Offices, Farm Buildings (other than the Farm House) Stock in trade, etc., may contract for Government Insurance at low rates.

Q. IS THERE ANY DIFFERENCE IN RATES IN DIFFERENT TERRITORIES—SAY AS BETWEEN THE COAST AND CENTRAL REGIONS?
A. No, this is a National matter—a risk undertaken by the Government for all Canadian citizens across Canada. The rate is the same for similar properties in any part of the Dominion.

Q. IS INSURANCE OF PROPERTY COMPULSORY UNDER THIS GOVERNMENT SCHEME?
A. No. The Scheme merely sets up the plan and provides the opportunity for property owners to secure this Government Insurance.

Q. THEN DIRECTORS OF COMPANIES OWE IT TO THEIR SHAREHOLDERS TO PROTECT THE PHYSICAL PROPERTY OF THEIR COMPANIES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT SCHEME?
A. Yes, as the Insurance Companies cannot jeopardize their financial strength by undertaking so unpredictable a risk—and as consequently it has become the Government's obligation, it is surely unwise for Directors to jeopardize their own assets by inaction on this important matter.

Q. THEN THE SAME INJUNCTION WOULD APPLY TO TRUSTEES AND GUARDIANS TO INSURE THE PROPERTY FOR THOSE WHOM THEY SERVE IN TRUST?
A. Yes, if they do not insure they might be wrong; if they do insure, they can't be wrong. You see no Country, or person, can foresee the future or be sure of immunity from enemy attack. The world-wide spread of war zones in the last twelve months proves this.

Q. I SUPPOSE ALL PROPERTY OWNERS AND CITIZENS SHOULD GET ADVICE FROM THEIR INSURANCE AGENTS RIGHT AWAY?
A. Yes—every Citizen should consult his Fire Insurance Agent immediately and get fully informed about the Government War Risk Insurance. There are definitions of property, exceptions, rates and so on, that cannot be dealt with in this space.

It will be seen from the above that, simple and direct as are the provisions of the Scheme, it is in the interests of every citizen to enquire how it affects him, or her, personally. Your Fire Insurance Agent or Company will gladly acquaint you with details.

The information given above is not intended to be a complete resumé of the Scheme. Full information regarding conditions, exclusions, etc. is available elsewhere.

MADAGASCAR VICHYITES CALLING FOR CEASE FIRE

Stalingrad Wavers But Hangs On

MOSCOW, Sept. 16 (AP)—The indomitable defenders of Stalingrad, under a grinding assault by land and air, wavered slightly but held their lines firm today, the 23rd since the German besiegers lunged at the Volga city with every weapon at their command.

The Soviet command said heavy concentrations of Nazi tanks and infantry, preceded by large air forces, had inched ahead slightly in a narrow sector on the west of Stalingrad's defence wing.

Other advices said the gain probably was no more than a few hundred yards and that defiant Red army lines apparently were intact. It was the only change reported in 12 hours.

The Germans' dive-bombing was some of the heaviest of the war, and Red Star, attributing most of the enemy successes to its air might conceded the gravity of Stalingrad's plight because of mass bombing raids.

But Russia definitely felt the first bite of Winter. In Moscow, the inhabitants donned overcoats because of the coolest Autumn day so far. Virtually the same weather prevailed at Stalingrad.

Railways of Stalingrad are under constant attack, but they operate on a 24-hour basis even when bombing requires frequent halts, Red Star said.

Battlefront reports said the Germans lost 3,000 men in a single sector where they attempted in attack after attack to capture a hospital building in an outlying section of Stalingrad. The fighting there lasted for hours Red Star reported.

Arms Factories Sweat On.

Armament plants were reported maintaining production and smoke from their chimneys blended with the fumes from bomb-blasted areas of the Volga river industrial city.

It declared:

German troops were thrown from two settlements in the Mozdok area of the central Caucasus; the invaders lost 1,000 men and seven tanks in an attack upon Russian positions in the upper Don Basin south of Voronezh; tank-borne Nazi infantrymen in Red Army uniforms were detected and routed as they sought to move to the Red Army rear on the central front; Soviet patrols derailed three German railway trains.

2 Destroyers Lost Off Tobruk

Most Off One Saved Think Many On 2nd Got Ashore

LONDON, Sept. 16—(CP).—Loss of the destroyers Sikh and Zulu in recent operations off Tobruk was announced today by the Admiralty.

Most of the crew of the Zulu have been saved, the Admiralty said, and it expressed the hope that many of the crew of the Sikh had been able to reach land safely.

(If survivors reached land they probably were taken prisoners of war. The Rome and Berlin high commands announced the capture of 576 prisoners in Sunday night's raid on the Libyan base.)

The Zulu and the Sikh were 1,870-ton sisterships, completed in 1938. They carried normal complements of 190 men each and were capable of better than 36 knots.

Both were in Britain's Tribal class, a destroyer type which has been in heavy combat service. The Zulu was cited by Prime Minister Churchill—then First Lord of the Admiralty—in a report to the House of Commons April ... 1940, for the sinking of a German submarine off the Orkney Islands. This was in the naval action during the Nazi invasion of Norway.

Brazil Mobilizes

Brazil declared war against Germany and Italy August 22 after incurring heavy losses from Axis attacks on her merchant shipping. Since then Brazilian sea and air forces have been helping the Allies combat the enemy sea menace. The general mobilization etxendssteps already taken by the Brazilian Government which have put the nation on a military basis. Brazil could place 250,000 trained infantry in the field.

Yorktown Sunk At Midway U.S. Now Admits

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) — The Navy announced today that the United States aircraft carrier Yorktown had been sunk after the battle of Midway as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks.

Loss of the 19,900-ton carrier, with very few casualties, had been a well-kept naval secret.

The department said that destruction of the ship apparently was not known to the enemy and that the knowledge was vitally linked to the operations which have been in progress in the south Pacific since early August.

The Yorktown first was successfully attacked by enemy aircraft with bombs and torpedoes on the afternoon of June 4, after the battle of Midway Island had reached its full fury.

The vessel, which had a normal complement of 85 planes and 2,072 men and was only five years old, was put out of action at that time.

Tugs and salvage vessels succeeded, however, in getting her under control and she was removed, slowly but surely, from the battle zone.

Presumably the withdrawal was eastward toward Pearl Harbor. The Navy said in its communique reporting the loss today that by the morning of June 6 the prospects of saving the great ship "appeared brighter."

They had been slender at first for the vessel had listed heavily, and, abandoned by her crew, was in imminent danger of capsizing.

2 Torpedoes Finish Her

But shortly after noon on June 6, an enemy submarine suddenly attacked the stricken carrier, scoring two torpedo hits amidships.

The sub put two more torpedoes into the United destroyer Hamman which was escorting the Yorktown.

The Hammann, loss of which had been reported by the navy department on June 14, sank shortly after being hit and the condition of the Yorktown "became critical," the navy said.

Early next morning, June 7, the Rev. Dr. Cochrane To Pensions Post

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 16 — (CP). — Pioneer veteran of the northern mining missionary fields, the Rev. Dr. J. C. Cochrane, of North Bay, secretary of Home Missions in Northern Ontario, was elected Secretary of the Board of Pensions by the United Church General Council to-day. He succeeds Dr. S. W. Dean, Toronto, who retired on pension.

Dr. Cochrane received a 50 per cent majority over the Rev. C. H. Adair, Rev. H. E. Horton, Rev. R. C. Copeland, and a layman Amos Vipond, Toronto. A ballot vote was taken.

Dr. Cochrane in a brief address thanked the Council or the honor accorded him. "I will do my best for the Church," he said. "I will not let you down."

In his younger days Dr. Cochrane made history at Victoria College by winning the Fawcett Prize for oratory.

Later he became well known in the mining fields of Northern Ontario where he worked in the Shining Tree district of the Gowganda district. He travelled by dog and sled throughout the North, visiting far-flung mining camps in the early years of the century.

Police Reinforce Border Points And Prison Guards

BELFAST, Sept. 16 —(CP)—The core of the I.R.A. propaganda organization in Northern Ireland was discovered today by Belfast police who seized the forthcoming edition of "The Republican News," I.R.A. newspaper, as well as the printing machines and other equipment of the plant.

Fearing fresh outbreaks in Northern Ireland, police have reinforced strategic Ulster-Eire border points and bolstered the guard at Belfast prison where nearly 400 political agitators are interned.

All police barracks were closed to visitors and kept under double guard. At police headquarters, steel shields were furnished gate guards.

Dublin Convicts Two

DUBLIN, Sept. 16 —(CP)—Two men were convicted here today on a charge of concealing a large quantity of ammunition and a number of machine-guns.

Joseph Gallagher was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and Michael Geraghty to a seven-year term. Geraghty also was convicted of membership in the outlawed I.R.A.

Police said the arsenal, seized recently during widespread I.R.A. disturbances in Northern Ireland, included 92 submachine-guns, 18 bombs and 109 rounds of ammunition.

Driver, Child 7 Killed In Crash

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 16 (CP)—William Carrey, 24, of Sudbury and Harry Oliver, seven, of Whitefish Falls, Ont., were killed and four others were injured last night when the car Carrey was driving collided with a truck on the highway between Little Current and Espanola.

Frank Halcrow of Sheguindah, Ont., driver of the truck, escaped with minor injuries. The Oliver child and the four persons injured in the crash were all occupants of Carrey's vehicle.

Those injured were Mrs. Fred Oliver, Adelard Oliver, nine, and Reginald King, 15, all of Whitefish Falls and Jerry King, Bigwood, Ont.

Warships Shell Marines As Landing Parties Attempt To Storm Lost Guadalcanal Drome

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP).—Japan's expected grand-scale drive to recapture the Solomon Islands and again point a dagger at the Australian lifeline appeared to be developing with do-or-die fury today.

American forces were fighting back savagely and thus far successfully.

The navy said last night that "heavy fighting" has been in progress by land, sea and air since Saturday night and that while details are lacking "reports received to date indicate the marines are maintaining their positions."

Creation of a new air command for the United States Pacific fleet and a shift in command of the southwest Pacific Allied air forces indicated a tightening of grand strategy as the battle began to join.

The changes in command gave weight to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's warning: "Do not for one minute assume that we have the Japanese on the run."

Decorating 25 officers and men at Pearl Harbor yesterday, the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet said the Japanese are "dangerous antagonists," but "they have learned by now that we also are dangerous antagonists who are willing and know how to fight."

Despite counter-attacks on Japanese bases to the north and northwest of the main American stronghold on Guadalcanal Island, the navy said the enemy is bringing pressure to bear with apparently increasing force, and has succeeded in landing small detachments of troops who tried vainly to recapture the Japanese-built airfield under cover of shelling by surface craft off shore.

21 Jap Planes Downed

In its report on the development of what is becoming the second battle of the Solomons, the navy listed the destruction of five enemy bombers, 13 fighters and three seaplanes since the attacks on Guadalcanal were stepped up. Total Japanese plane losses since the Solomons campaign began with the Marine invasion Aug. 7 rose to 165.

In addition, an enemy warship was damaged when Marine shore batteries replied to its shelling on the night of Sept. 12-13, making at least 20 Japanese ships sunk and

Firm Faces Fraud In War Contracts

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP)—Hugh O'Donnell, K.C., of Montreal, has been instructed by Justice Minister St. Laurent to confer with the Quebec Attorney General's representative with a view to taking criminal action against some officers and employees of a Montreal firm on charges of fraud in connection with subcontracts for the Munitions and Supply Department, the Justice Department announced in a statement issued today.

Mr. O'Donnell also has been authorized to take such civil actions as he deems necessary to recover any losses sustained by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

The departmental statement said: "Following representations made to the Minister of Munitions and Supply (Hon. C. D. Howe) by Mr. L. A. Forsyth, K.C., after a prolonged investigation the Minister of Justice (Hon. Louis St. Laurent) has instructed Mr. Hugh O'Donnell, K.C., of Montreal to confer with the representative of the Provincial Attorney-General with a view to introducing criminal proceedings some of the officers and employees of a Montreal company charged with frauds in sub-contracts for the production of certain war supplies.

"Further Mr. O'Donnell is instructed to take such civil proceedings as may be deemed advisable for the recovery of any losses sustained by the Department."

On Saturday a report was published in Montreal telling of the investigation Mr. Forsyth had made and of allegations that a Montreal firm had padded its payrolls, given gratuities, and by other activities increased the costs o goods produced for the munitions department.

New Japanese Tune

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(AP). — Sounding what may be the theme of Tokyo's propaganda during the next phase of the war, a Japanese government spokesman declared today that Japan did not seek to conquer America but was fighting only to break Occidental control in East Asia.

This theme was voiced by Tomakazu Hori, spokesman for the Cabinet, in commenting on a speech last night at Bridgeport, Conn., by Joseph C. Grew, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan.

Governor Asks Negotiations As New British Landing Cleans Up Fight In North

Annet Asks Terms, British 100 Miles Off His Inland Capital Tananarive Blocked Roads Only Major Barriers

LONDON, Sept. 16—(CP).—A new British landing on Madagascar has caused the surrender of remaining Vichy French forces in one northwest coast area, British East Africa headquarters announced today, as radio reports from the Vichy-controlled island, still lacking official confirmation, said its governments is seeking terms with the British command.

The Governor - General Armand Annet, the reports said, has asked for a cease-firing order and terms to end the hostilities.

This was not mentioned in the British communique, which reported the invading troops proceeding steadily toward the island capital with more than half the distance covered.

Of the new landing, it said only: "On the northwest coast, the pressure of our column moving down from Ambanja, combined with a further successful landing from the sea in the Maromandia area further south, has resulted in the surrender of remaining French forces between those two places."

Maromandia is 35 miles south of Ambanja, northernmost of the British landings last week on the west coast of the island.

Blocked Roads Chief Snag

The communique described obstructed roads as the principal barrier to British penetration which, it said, has reached Andriba, about 100 miles northwest of Tananarive, inland capital.

The reports of the intended French capitulation were heard by British stations at captured Diego Suarez, Madagascar, and at Port Louis, Mauritius. Military circles said such a French move was not unlikely.

(German broadcasts denied that Madagascar authorities had made peace overtures. Vichy itself was silent.)

There was no indication of the size of the new British landing.

Informed British sources said the landing forces probably came from ships which had been held in reserve.

British forces, he said, had captured the village of Antsiafabositra after ocupying Maevatanana, 150 miles by road from Tananarive, the capital.

The British landing on the island was made last Thursday. One column drove southeast from Majunga and captured Antsiagabositra.

Another column headed northeast from Morondava, 350 miles south of Majunga. Still a third landed on the northeastern shore of the island.

British Closing In

VICHY, Sept. 16.—(AP).—The situation in Madagascar is one of "extreme gravity," Armand Annett, Governor-General of the island advised the Vichy government to-day as British columns drove closer to Tananarive, the capital, and now are in difficult mountain terrain.

Annett said a South African motorized column pushing southeast from Majunga, its landing place, had captured the village of Antsiafabostra after occupying Maevatannis, 150 miles by road from Tananarive.

Labor Demands A Wagner Act Used In Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP).—Immediate enactment of federal legislation corresponding to the Wagner Act in the United States—outlawing company unions and making collective bargaining compulsory—is proposed by the Canadian Congress of Labor in a resolution which received unanimous support of the annual convention today.

Most spirited discussion of the morning session concerned the appeal of the United Steel workers of America employed at the Algoma Steel Co., plant at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to the Ontario Regional War Labor Board for a basic hourly wage rate of 55 cents.

Berlin Muddled On 'Mary' Allen

LONDON, Sept. 16 (CP)—German propagandists got twisted in their accounts concerning Larry Allen, Associated Press war correspondent reported captured at Tobruk, and America was lectured today for sending a women to the front.

The name Larry apparently was heard in Berlin as Mary, and the German radio in a program beamed to Portugal today gloated that "she" will have no story for the American press.

"It's hardly probable the United States newspapers will receive much news on operations at Tobruk to feed American sensationalism," a German commentator said.

"A woman correspondent, Mary Allen, has fallen into Italo-German hands. That she was the only representative of the Anglo-American press to attend such an unladylike affair indicates that we have here one of the results of the Dieppe defeat.

"Some of the correspondents who took part in the Dieppe landing returned so well tutored that they swore not to come back on any other adventure of this sort.

"This time they sent a woman to Tobruk. As you can see, it's hardly courteous, but very American."

3 Torpedo Planes Get Yorktown June 4

Yanks Down 12 Of Squadron On Way In After Carrier Beats Fire Of Earlier Bombs

By WENDELL WEBB
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE U.S. PACIFIC FLEET, June 4 (Delayed)—(AP)—The aircraft carrier Yorktown is a lonely blotch against the western sun tonight, and there is a lump in many a throat. The fleet is moving on.

We hold slight hope of ever seeing the Yorktown again. She is wounded, badly, and she is far from home. At best it will be days before she can be towed to safety. And these are dangerous waters now.

It was only this morning, June 4—although it seems like years—that the Yorktown and her sister ships launched their great broods of planes which already have slashed to bits the Japanese strength hurled toward Midway.

Hour after hour the attacks went on. Suddenly, early this afternoon, the enemy struck back. A little distance away I could see shell bursts in the air, flaming planes falling into the sea, wisps of smoke marking the graves of enemy pilots. The Yorktown was being dive-bombed.

Then came a great ominous belch of black smoke. Bombs had hit their target.

This cruiser steamed at full power toward the wreckage of planes, life rafts, splintered boxes, oil slicks and debris of all kinds.

What was left of the enemy had gone as we approached the smoking ship. The flashing signal light showed there still was light on the bridge. We circled, waiting and hoping while desperate efforts were made to get the fire under control. The Yorktown lay dead in the water.

Slowly the smoke lessened. We could see several planes still on the Yorktown's deck which apparently had only been nicked. Other planes were criss-crossing overhead. The ship appeared on an even keel, and hopes grew.

"Look the Yorktown's moving." The gunners around me were jubilant.

Within another few minutes the entire Fleet was under way.

Then there came a quick report: "Enemy planes."

Every gun was manned and the Fleet was set for action.

"Enemy planes. Closing fast."

The Yorktown had sufficient speed now to launch her remaining planes and they were roaring off the flight deck.

"Enemy planes to port."

There were two waves of them, torpedo planes coming in low and dive-bombers far above. It was a combined attack—the last, desperate assault of an already beaten enemy.

F.D.R. Hesitates On Seaway

Debates Advisability Of Using War Materials Now

By J. F. SANDERSON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(CP). —President Roosevelt today weighed the desirability of undertaking the St. Lawrence River power and navigation project against advisability of using war materials the development would require.

The President long an advocate of the inland waterway development told a press conference yesterday the project would take three to 3¼ years to finish and that he is studying the matter to see whether it is desirable to start it. He assumed, he said, the war will last the same length of time, but added later that was just a guess.

Describing the proposed development as much needed, Mr. Roosevelt recalled he had asked Congress several times to authorize the project. Canada and the United States signed an agreement in Ottawa on March 19, 1941, which has been held up before the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives.

A power shortage now exists in Eastern Canada and the President predicted one for New England and New York States. The development would generate 2,200,000 horsepower to be divided between the two countries.

Estimated cost of the project which would provide a 1,300-mile deep-water seaway from Montreal to the head of the Lakes, is $285,000,000.

If Russia Holds A Few Weeks

Lyttleton Sees Tide Swinging In That Time

SHEFFIELD, England, Sept. 16—(CP).—Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of Production, told war workers here today that the Allies are approaching "the breathless moment when, if Russia can hold on to her present positions for a few more weeks, the balance will begin to swing in our direction."

"The gathering force of the greatest alliance which the world has ever seen is going to give us the first evidences of victory," he said.

Answering what he called "a feeling in the United States that we are carrying on the war with weapons supplied by them and marking time until American forces gather in a successful offensive," Mr. Lyttelton went on:

"The total production of weapons of war produced in this country during the past three years far exceeds the total volume achieved in the United States. The output per man is far above what it is in the United States.

"But they are catching up: they have already surpassed our current production and their vast resources will soon change the whole complexion of the Anglo-American balance sheet."

The alliance between Britain and the United States is far closer than in the last war, Mr. Lyttelton said, and "will, I believe, survive the actual struggle in which we are engaged."

1,235 MEN FROM ONTARIO IN CASUALTY LIST AFTER DIEPPE RAID

3 Battalions Bear Raid Brunt

Canadians Five-Sixths Of Attackers In Nine-Hour Test

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 — (CP). — Announcement by Defence Minister Ralston that Canadian losses in the Battle of Dieppe totalled 3,350 and publication of a National Defence Department casualty list containing names of 2,519 officers and men missing as a result of that bitterly-fought engagement yesterday brought home to Canadians the human cost of the frontal attack on enemy-held territory last month. Ontario's losses ran the highest.

It was exactly a month ago to-day that the attack on Dieppe took place with Canadians making up five-sixths of the attacking force. The operation lasted nine hours.

It was Canada's most costly war operation of the Second Great War to date. Canadian newspapers printed columns and in some cases pages of caualties reminiscent of the heavy land-fighting of the First Great War.

The two lists together brought to 3,537 the unofficial total of men reported killed and missing since the war began. The count is subject to a margin of error because of repetition of some names in successive casualty lists.

Last night's list—the Army's 154th of the war—named one man previously reported missing as safe. He was Pte. William Cassidy of Windsor, Ont., of the Western Ontario Regiment. One was listed as previously reported killed in action now missing. Seventeen were listed as missing and two as previously reported wounded, now missing.

Col. Ralston's announcement yesterday said that Dieppe casualties included 170 killed, 633 wounded and 2,547 missing.

The discrepancy between the number listed as missing in the day's lengthy casualty list apparently was due to changed categories and because names of some missing had previously been announced. Prior to yesterday's list some 120 men had been posted as missing after the Dieppe operation. Some but not all of these men were listed again yesterday.

Ontario Takes Major Loss

Tabulation of yesterday's list showed that Ontario, with three battalions participating in the Dieppe attack, suffered the heaviest casualties of any province. Ontario had 66 officers and 1,169 non-com-

3 Torpedo Planes

Our fighters were tearing into both groups. Few of the dive-bombers ever got through, and no one was paying much attention to them anyway— we were watching the flashing torpedo planes there appeared to be 15 of them. Some fell away in flames, in spirals of smoke, in weird tumbles. Our fighters were taking a heavy toll.

Nine of the attackers kept right on coming. They apparently were aiming straight for the carrier. This cruiser stood between. As they came within range, the whole fleet's anti-aircraft opened up with such a din I don't remember a thing after the first second. The attackers tried to dive beneath the barrage. More planes fell. Our own planes, too, were all mixed up in the dizzy aerial whirl.

Every Gun Blazing.

The most distinct memory I have of the moment is that every gun on the Yorktown was blazing. She was putting up a scrap if any ship ever did.

At the same moment, another enemy craft was slashing over our bow through a veritable wall of shellfire. His machine-guns were pounding straight toward us. Across the bow, he went into a steep glide and let his silvered load plop into the water. He died within 10 seconds in a mass of flames when the last plane to roar off the Yorktown cut him to pieces. The attack was over.

The sudden stillness was stifling. Our own fighters now were far away chasing the few remaining enemy planes. Every eye was on the Yorktown.

The huge water spouts sent up by the torpedoes had died. The ship was listing badly. Two planes clung like struggling beetles to her tilting deck. It was a sickening sight.

Men were sliding down ropes and dropping into the water. Destroyers were pulling alongside and picking them up. The signal went up—I am abandoning ship."

Hundreds of survivors took to life boats and rafts and were taken to several nearby ships. Hundreds of bobbing heads found safety with the lifebelts tossed from all tides. Men were working fast, but it was an orderly abandonment—if any such drama could ever be so described.

An hour went by, two hours—hours that seemed like a bad dream. We watched silently from a few hundred yards away. All this time the enemy never came back—and we knew suddenly that the Battle of Midway had been won.

Bacon For U.K. Or Canada Up To People

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP).—Canadians have the direct choice of bacon for Britain — which needs it urgently—or for their own breakfast tables, J. Gordon Taggart, chairman of the Canadian Bacon Board, said yesterday.

"We are well aware that Canadians can't get all the meat they want, but they can get all they need for health," said Mr. Taggart, who also is Foods Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"In Britain, however, bacon is a principal item of the food rations. People there cannot obtain eggs or cheese, turkeys or fowl or fish to take the place of meat in their diet as readily as we can."

If people postpone pork purchases for seven weeks Canada will be able to meet its present obligations for the shipment of bacon to Britain, Mr. Taggart said.

Author Enters Public Life

Another woman to go far in public work is Clare Boothe Luce, who has just won the Republican Congressional nomination from the Fourth Connecticut District. Although this is her first active foray into politics, she is the authoress of many successfulstage plays one of the most brilliant of which wa "The Women." She has also been a war correspondent and she toured Europe shortly before the fall of France and upon her return wrote "Europe in the Spring," one of the most successful war books of the year.

This thirty-nine-year-old woman is almost the last person to be expected to launch into active politics. Rather, her appearance would lead one to expect to see her gracing some drawing room interesting herself only in social affairs. She is small and slender with fair hair and blue eyes, and one of the keenest minds in the feminine field to-day.

She is extremely interested in people and she has a shrewd and sharp method of appraising people and situations that is of great value in her work, where quick, sure judgments must be made most of the time. Not only is she a prominent figure in the literary field, but her husband, Henry Luce, is the editor of Time Life and Fortune magazines.

This particular nomination has had considerable interest as two career girls, both feminine to the core, were in opposition to each other. Miss Vivien Kellens, vivacious Westport woman industrialist, was her most dangerous opponent, and four others trailed behind. Miss Kellens has the same brilliance and sharpness of intellect that Mrs. Luce possesses and they were a well matched pair. What is more interesting to note, is that the two women both anxious to succeed, refrained from any mud-slinging that is all too often found in the political fray.

Should Mrs. Luce succeed in capturing the November election against Leroy Downs, Democrat, the Norwalk publisher and sitting member who is this far unopposed for re-nomination, she would be the first woman member of the House of Representatives from Connecticut. She would also occupy the seat once held by her late stepfather, Dr. Albert E. Austin.

were the only United States ships lost at Midway while the Japanese had at least 10, including four aircraft carriers, sunk and at least 13 others, including three battleships, damaged.

The Yorktown was the second aircraft carried lost by the United States, the first being the Lexington which blew up and sank in the Coral Sea after being attacked by Japanese dive bombers and torpedo planes in the great battle in those waters a month before the battle of Midway.

Five Still in Action.

The destruction of the Yorktown and Lexington leaves the United States with five of the seven carriers with which it entered the war —the Enterprise, sister ship of the Yorktown; the Saratoga, sister ship of the Lexington, and the Wasp, Hornet and Ranger.

While the Japanese began the war last December with a force of carriers believed to have been four or five more than America's seven, their losses have been heavier and presumably their main carrier strength now is numerically no greater than that of the United States Navy and qualitatively inferior.

The Japanese losses at Midway were particularly hurtful in this respect since the carriers Kaga, Akagi, Soryu and Hiryu were among their best.

The Navy showed in a summary of its reports of Japanese losses due to naval action that six aircraft carriers had been sunk, one probably sunk and four damaged. In all the Navy reported that 134 Japanese combatant ships and 124 non-combatant ships—a grand total of 258—have been sunk, probably sunk or damaged.

American naval losses due to enemy action in the Pacific were summarised at 32 ships lost by enemy action, nine destroyed to prevent their capture, and 12 damaged— a total of 53 vessels.

The American losses included one battleship sunk and one damaged, two aircraft carriers sunk, one heavy cruiser sunk, two light cruisers damaged 10 destroyers sunk, one demolished and six damaged, two submarines sunk, and one demolished, two motor torpedo boats sunk and one demolished and a variety of small boats and auxiliaries, including nine vessels, patrol ships, and tugs tankers and tenders of various kinds.

The Navy said that at the time of its sinking the Yorktown was commanded by Captain Elliott Buckmaster, 52. He has since been assigned to command the naval air station at Norfolk, Va.

The Hammann was commanded by Cmdr. Arnold Ellsworth True, 41, who now has a command at sea.

communique continued, "the Yorktown capsized and sank as the result of the cumulative damage from aircraft bombs and torpedoes on the fourth, and submarine torpedoes on the sixth."

Before the end came, however, the navy said the submarine which had delivered the fatal attack was hunted down by American destroyers in the Yorktown's escort and repeatedly attacked throughout the day.

The results of these depth charge assaults, the navy said, "indicated that the submarine was certainly damaged and possibly sunk."

As for casualties, the navy said, they were few and had been included in the total personnel losses previously announced for the battle of Midway as 92 officers and 215 men.

damaged in the campaign to date.

"During the past few days the Japanese have increased the intensity of their bombing attack by aircraft and the bombardment by surface vessels," the communique reported.

Army bombers carried the fight into enemy territory when they strafed shore installations on the island of Gizo last Friday and again Sunday when they attacked seaplanes on the water at Rekata Bay, about 140 miles north of Guadalcanal on the northwest shore of Santa Isabel, destroying one plane and damaging a second.

Thirty States To Have Fuel Oil Rationed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Fuel oil rationing—possibly 25 per cent. below normal use—has been ordered in a 30-state area for the coming heating season.

In addition to the 17 United States Atlantic seaboard states in which gasoline already is rationed, supplies of fuel oil will be curtailed in these 13 middle western states:

In an order last night authorizing fuel oil rationing, Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said the shortage of oil "remains serious," despite shifts in transportation and conversions to coal.

Two additional states, Tennessee and Oklahoma, were considered for rationing, but passed over because of their small number of oil burners.

Under a coupon system to be set up by the office of Price Administration rationing will vary in different regions. Details will not be announced until the O.P.A. has completed plans.

Only Homes to Fill Up

During the period Sept. 16-30, fuel oil deliveries in the rationed area will be under control. Any fuel oil tank used for heating, cooling, or water heating equipment in a private dwelling (one designed for the occupancy of fewer than four families) may be filled to capacity, provided the tank does not exceed 275 gallons. In other than private dwellings, deliveries will be limited to 50 per cent. of capacity.

Beginning Oct. 1, no deliveries may be made without the written guarantee of the person receiving oil he will surrender coupons when issued.

Nelson said rationing might reduce normal winter use "as much as 25 per cent.," but he added that a severe winter, transportation difficulties, or other unpredictable developments "might even increase that figure substantially."

The rationing system will make provision for supplementary allowances in emergencies and in cases of unusual hardship, but persons able to convert to the use of coal and omit to do so will not be eligible for extra rations.

Labor Demands

Marie, clashed during the discussion.

Mr. Robson said the Steel Workers' case was a difficult one to support before the board, and their dispute was primarily with the company. Mr. Daldymple said Mr. Robson was "taking the easy way out."

The case of the steelworkers came before the convention when a resolution was under consideration calling on the Government for adequate minimum wages, elimination of delays in handling cases before the War Labor Boards, public hearings of the boards and suhmission of applications to the boards only after collective bargaining efforts had failed.

Some delegates proposed that Congress representatives on Labor Boards should resign until recommendations for reorganization of the boards were adopted.

President A. R. Mosher, chairman of the Congress and a member of the National War Labor Board, opposed this suggestion.

Representation for Labor had been sought repeatedly, and it would be bad policy to have labor representatives resign merely because they did not get their own way.

"Workers who come before these boards do not always make a good case," he said.

Obituaries

CPL. GEORGE R. EBBS

The funeral of the late Cpl. George Ebbs, which was private, was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the Comstock Funeral Home, the Rev. George J. Bousfield conducting the services. Beside the family, there was a military party, composed of officers and men from the Training Centre, in attendance at the funeral.

The death of Cpl. Ebbs occurred after a short illness of two weeks duration at No. 1 O.T.U. R.C.A.F., Bagotville, Que., on Saturday, and was a great shock to his family and friends. Born in this city, he had lived here all his life prior to enlisting in the Air Force, and was a member of St. Luke's church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Myrtle Deyell, who has been living in Brighton, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ebbs, Peterborough, two sisters, Mrs. Douglas Miller, Peterborough, Mrs. J. A. Woodburn, Ottawa, and two brothers, Dr. Harry Ebbs, Toronto, and Arthur Ebbs, Peterborough.

Pallbearers were Ellsworth Deyell, Alfred Woodburn, Roy White, Arthur Ebbs, Douglas Miller and William Constable. The last two named are members of the R.C.A.F. and William Constable accompanied the body home from Bagotville.

VICTOR FRANCIS HUNT

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 16.—(ENS)—The many friends in this vicinity of Victor Francis Hunt, will regret to hear of his death on Wednesday in Hespeler with interment Friday in the Hespeler cemetery.

Mr. Hunt was born in England. For many years he was connected with Hydro Electric work and lived in Toronto and Gravenhurst before assuming his duties as superintendent in Hespeler in 1926. He was a member of the Masonic order and a life member of the Scottish Rite lodge of Barrie; a member of the Royal City lodge of Perfection at Guelph and of the Scottish Rite Club of Preston. He was past master of the order. A keen sportsman, Mr. Hunt was active in hunting and fishing an a member of the Hespeler Kinsmen Club and of the Gun Club. He was a member of the select vestry of St. James' Anglican Church and for some years served on the board of directors of the Freeport Sanatorium. In electrical circles, Mr. Hunt was a member of the Niagara District Electrical Association while he represented the town in its membership in the Municipal Electrical Utilities Association.

His widow, formerly Agnes McCulloch; a daughter, Mrs. H. A. Borden of Preston; and a son, George, of Hespeler; three sisters, Mrs. A. C. McKenzie of Montreal; Mrs. Franch Dench of Kingston and Mrs. Bulteel in England and two grandchildren survive.

Mr. Hunt is well known in Gore's Landing, Cobourg and Peterborough, as he spent many summers around Rice Lake as a boy and for some years was a resident of this village. His mother was the late Mrs. Hattie Hunt (nee Gore) a daughter of the founder of Gore's Landing. The Gore family came from Goremont Co., Antrim, Ireland. Mrs. Hunt's mother, Mrs. Gore, was married twice, her second husband being Mr. Barron, headmaster of Barron's school for boys which was established at Glenavy, Gore's Landing. Mr. Barron at one time was stroke oar for Cambridge. Barron's school was a well known academy in the '70's and many of the best known men in Canadian history were educated here.

Merchants Alter Store Hours

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 16.—(ENS)—The Port Hope Business Men's Association held a meeting of the retail merchants on Tuesday night to discuss the enforcing hours of closing.

T. Whetstone was chairman and Art Smith secretary. Letters and extracts were read by Mr. Whetstone from trade magazines and newspapers dealing with shorter hours and Hydro shortage.

After much discussion the following motion moved by A. Smith and Mr. Buckley that this meeting suggest to Prices and Trade Board that retail stores be closed 5:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Fridays, Wednesday at 12 noon and Saturday at 9 p.m. was passed but after much discussion on Saturday night closing the hour of 10 p.m. was decided on by ballot.

Woman Gets 30 Days As Drunk Driver

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 16.—(CP).—Mrs. Helen Staff, 27, was sentenced to 30 days in jail when she appeared in court here to-day on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

She will be sentenced on a second charge of reckless driving when released.

"There is no reason why the usual 30 days should be reduced in this case—the fact that we are dealing with a woman makes no difference," Magistrate H A. Burbidge said.

Mrs. Staff was forbidden to drive a car for 18 months.

From a Pearl Stone

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 16—(CP).—A peach stone casually thrown into his Edwin street garden by a Guelph resident a few years ago has developed into a fine tree which this year produced 17 baskets of peaches. The limbs were so heavily laden with fruit that two of them were broken off, and will have to be cut down.

For Thursday, September 17

A lively and possibly exciting day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations, but with possibly various disruptive, confused and unsatisfactory denouements, and perhaps losses of financial nature as well as other mishaps or disappointments. The judgment may not be able to cope with annoying situations or to form profitable conclusions, neither may assistance be counted upon from elders, superiors or those in influential positions. Be wise as to speculation or litigation.

If This Is Your Bithday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively year, but one with reversals, annoyances and unsatisfactory experiences, this affecting the private as well as the business and financial life. It may be difficult to come to wise decisions because of an unsettled or chaotic state of mind and elders, superiors or those in influence may not be depended upon to give the needed advice or substantial cooperation. Shun speculation and legal entanglements.

A child born on this day should be versatile and clever, perhaps in an artistic or intellectual career, although its judgment may not be entirely clear or decisive. Neither may the wise counsel of friends be satisfactory.

States Warns Vichy On Labor

Transfer To Nazi Factories Breach Of Her Obligations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) — The pro-Axis Vichy government of Pierre Laval has notice today that any wholesale transfer of French manpower to Germany's war factories will be regarded by the United States as aid to the enemy and violation of France's obligations under international law.

Notifying the Vichy Ambassador to this effect yesterday, State Secretary Cordell Hull also took occasion to express the United States' unqualified condemnation of mass deportation of Jews from unoccupied France.

Text of his remarks to Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye was not made public, but Mr. Hull bluntly told reporters the attitude of the United States and added emphasis to his statements by authorizing direct quotation.

He characterized the mass deportation of refugees as "revolting and fiendish," pointing out it involved "delivery of these unhappy people to enemies who have announced and in considerable measure executed their intention to enslave, maltreat and eventually exterminate them under conditions of the most extreme cruelty."

In the language of diplomacy such adjectives as "revolting and fiendish" are seldom applied to the measures of any but an enemy government.

No Immediate Break

Nevertheless his strong language was not unanimously interpreted as an indication the United States will shortly break off diplomatic relations with Vichy.

Observers familiar with the turbulent course of these relations are inclined to view Mr. Hull's bluntness as one more challenge to the pro-Axis chief of government to break off relations with the United States if he dared.

Information available here from Vichy indicated that for Laval to take upon himself such a responsibility would involve grave risk of internal disorder. The recent protest of former Premier Edouard Herriot against the Laval government's drift toward war against the democracies was regarded as one indication of this risk.

In any event it is doubly clear the United States government is making no effort to protect Laval's regime from loss of "face" in his own country. Yesterday's denunciation came scarcely a week after the United States blunt rejection of Vichy's protest against American air raids on Rouen, and only five days after its wholehearted approval of new British military action against the Vichy French in Madagascar and its reiteration of a pledge to help British forces there with ships and troops if necessary.

Firm Faces Fraud

This report said the implication was that these increased costs were introduced with the object of boosting the profits of the firm, which was being paid on a cost-plus basis.

Mr. Howe's office at that time stated it had received Mr. Forsyth's report but declined to comment on it as it had been turned over to the Justice Department. The Justice Department has since been studying the representations made in the report.

Bob-Tailed Calf

GALT, Ont., Sept. 16—(CP).—A bob-tailed calf has been born on the farm of Comer McCauley, near Caledonia. One farmer said the animal was the first of the kind he had seen in 50 years of farming.

Charge Church Publishing House Head Lax

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 16 — (CP). — United Church Commissioners yesterday referred a report of the Board of Commission of the Publishing House which charged "serious inefficiency" on the part of the Rev. C. W. Dickenson, Toronto. United Church Publishing House head, to the new incoming Board.

The report also charged the Publishing House had shown "substantial losses."

Mr. Dickenson in defence of the House and staff stated that the Commission had taken the auditor's report, "written by one man," as its own and added the "report is not comprehensive enough to give the General Council a true picture.

"Any firm that shows a profit of $30,000 with a turnover of one-half million dollars is not guilty of 'serious inefficiency,'" he said.

The report stated that the book stewart, Mr. Dickenson, should study reports made from time to time by auditors to the Commission on observances made by the auditors.

"Am I to be an office boy between the auditors and the Commission?" Mr. Dickenson asked. He wanted to know if the Publishing House had to be policed.

The Rev. E. M. Howse, Winnipeg, told the Council that "if this report is correct, it should have recommended a new manager."

G. D. Mason, K.C. Toronto United Church legal adviser, urged a complete investigation into the reports. The Commission based its report on the finding of one man "who may be wrong."

"We should not join in the condemnation of these people until they have had an opportunity to present their case."

Presentation Is Made Lt. Charles Jeffs

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 16 (ENS) —A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Potts on Tuesday evening in honor of Lieut. Charles M. Jeffs, who is home on leave prior to being transferred to the east coast. Lieut. Jeffs, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jeffs, George street, has been on active service in Canada for the past year and was on the Bank of Montreal staff here prior to his enlistment. Highlight of the evening was the presentation of a purse of money on behalf of friends and relatives by Mr. Alfred Potts. Lieut. Jeffs responded appropriately voicing his appreciation for this gesture of friendship and goodwill.

CAMPBELLFORD EGGS

Egg prices continued to advance at Campbellford with produce dealers offering the following for ungraded eggs delivered—A large 38c; A medium 36½c; A pullet 30c; B grade 27c; C grade 23c; Peewees 16c. These prices show a gain of one half cent on medium and a full cent on B grade over Saturday's quotations.

The new Women's Auxiliary Ferrying squadron of the Air Transport Command will be headed by Mrs. Nancy Harkness Love of Boston, ABOVE, according to the announcement by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. The women will fly warplanes to the battlefronts of the world as men now are doing

Young Woman Is Guilty Of Forgery

COBOURG, Sept. 16 — (ENS).— Mrs. Virginia Bowen, age 17, of Baltimore was allowed on suspended sentence on her plea of guilty yesterday to two charges of forgery. The young woman forged two cheques each for $10.50 on August 31, which were cashed in Cobourg, one of them in Ewart's Tobacco Shop and the other at the Eaton Order Office. A small amount of merchandise was obtained in each case, the remainder coming in change.

In asking for suspended sentence T. F. Hall, K.C., solicitor for the girl, told the court that if the costs were waived, it would be possible to make restitution. One of the parties who cashed one of the worthless cheques had told him that he would rather do without the money than have the girl go to jail. Mr. Hall pointed out. Defence counsel also stated that apparently it had not been her desire to issue the cheques.

Her husband was in the Army and the girl intended going back to live with her father. Mr. Hall added. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman concurred with the suggestion of suspended sentence. As far as the costs were concerned, Chief W. J. Carey was waiving costs.

"I don't think you appreciated the nature of the offence," stated Magistrate R. B. Baxter to the girl. "I am going to allow you on suspended sentence for one year and you will understand that if you don't behave yourself during that time you will be brought back and sentenced on this charge. As far as the costs are concerned, the only costs I will impose will be the one dollar for the Justice of the Peace on each charge."

The amount of the forged cheques was paid in as restitution.

Few Infectious Cases Here During Summer

"In the months of July and August there were very few cases of communicable diseases in the city," Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H., reported to the Board of Health last night. "These included two cases of paratyphoid fever in July, both of whom made good recoveries. In neither case were we able to ascertain the source of infection."

Two special immunization clinics were established for the school vacation months of July and August. They were held weekly in the Queen Mary and Immaculate Conception Schools. Sixteen clinics were held with 121 children in attendance.

Dr. Avison reported the clinics as of two classes, one special immunization and the other child welfare. At the special clinics 639 treatments were given and 141 immunizations were completed. In the child welfare there were 282 treatments with 109 immunizations completed.

Treatments in the combined clinics were listed as follows: Diphtheria 267, scarlet fever 423, whooping cough 134, smallpox 97, total 921.

Completed immunizations, combined special and child welfare: diphtheria 95, scarlet fever 78, whooping cough 24, smallpox 83, total 250. The unfinished cases will be completed at the child welfare clinics.

Dairy Farms Inspected.

Dr. Avison's report continued: "Despite the time given to four weekly clinics, the relative absence of communicable disease made it possible for me to visit 56 dairy farms in company with Sanitary Inspector MacPherson. Two things pleased me greatly: (1) The remarkably good sanitary conditions of the farms visited, and (2) the cordiality existing between Mr. MacPherson and the farmers, and the readiness of the latter to accept any suggestions. Speaking of Mr. MacPherson, I was gratified to hear Dr. L. A. Clarke, my predecessor here, state that he was probably the best sanitary inspector in Ontario. I feel that we in Peterborough are fortunate to have a man who combines so much conscientiousness to duty with the tact necessary for a difficult task."

"We were fortunate in having the services of Miss Madonna Hurtubise, public health nurse, to assist us during July and August. She proved capable in every way and we wish her the best of luck in whatever work she assumes in the future."

"In the office we employed the services of Mrs. Ernestine Picard during Miss Blanchard's vacation. Mrs. Picard proved fully as capable as I had been led to believe."

"The nurses had three weeks' vacation and Mr. MacPherson two. The Sanitary Inspector was also away at camp for two weeks of military training with the reserve army. Home conditions made it impossible for me to get away for more than five days. I had the occasional half-day off and may take a few more days later if conditions permit. Dr. W. J. Gordon assumed responsibilities as acting medical officer of health during my absence."

Dr. Harold Worton, V.S., took Mr. MacPherson's place for nearly a month.

Dr. Avison mentioned that the Canadian Public Health Association considered his paper read before the Local Council of Women on "A Unified Health Service for Peterborough" of sufficient interest to publish it in the Canadian Public Health Journal. It will appear in this month's issue.

Dairy Farms.

Mr. MacPherson's report extensively reviewed the department's work throughout the summer, relating especially to the milk supply, pasteurizing plants, dairy farms, restaurants and refreshment booths, inspection of dwellings and other phases of his work.

He said that he and Dr. Avison were impressed by the manner in which the producers of milk, in spite of a drastic shortage of labor, were maintaining a high standard of cleanliness and sanitation. "The majority of the stables were clean and whitewashed, yards tidy, herds well looked after and milk-houses in very satisfactory condition. Only a few instances were found where things were not as they should have been, but in each of these cases there were extenuating circumstances. On one farm we visited, a man well over sixty was endeavoring to take off a very heavy crop with two young boys as his only assistance. Some consideration was necessary in several such instances, and I feel certain that these few will put their premises in order just as soon as they possibly can. Five new permits were issued to producers following inspection and the arranging of premises to meet requirements."

Bakeries, beverage rooms and hotels were visited, and "presented no particular problem."

"Some of the fowl purchased on the market were referred to us for examination and were found unfit for human consumption. Fowl tuberculosis, black leg and improper chilling causing premature spoilage were the main causes of condemnation. I might add that the number was not in excess of any other period of the year."

Another Chinese Win

CHUNGKING, Sept 16—(AP). —Chinese forces recaptured Wuyi, about 20 miles southeast of Kinhwa in Chekiang province, yesterday, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

The Chinese had forced the Japanese out of the city Aug. 31 in their sweep north from southern Chekiang province, but lost it the next day, the spokesman said. Wuyi is about 30 miles north of Lishui, an important air base recently wrested from the Japanese.

Cobourg Briefs

At a meeting of the salvage committee in connection with Cobourg's rubber collection campaign it was decided to continue the campaign, and the salvage depot will be open until further notice.

Three quarter section of the wing of an Anson bomber was brought to Cobourg yesterday and stored in the market building. It will be used for instruction purposes in connection with the local air cadets. The rest of the plane, with the exception of the engine, will arrive later.

Registration of women in the 20-24 group at Cobourg was slow during the first two days, it was revealed yesterday. The women are registering at Trinity Sunday School Hall. A total of 33 had registered by three p.m. yesterday afternoon, of which 20 had registered the previous day.

Shot Pierced 'Phone Cable

COBOURG, Sept. 16 (ENS) — Wilfred Burley of Castleton was committed for trial yesterday in police court when he appeared on a charge of destroying telephone communications at Newcastle on September 2. Harry Deyman acted for the Crown and T. F. Hall, K.C., for the defendant.

Burley was arrested by Provincial Constable David Adair last week and on his appearance in court elected to trial by judge and was remanded until yesterday for the preliminary hearing.

Miss L. Lane, telephone operator at Castleton, testified that the cable leading to the telephone office had been shot around 9.30 p.m. on September 2. A chivari had been held at the residence adjoining the telephone office around that time, witness said.

"I saw Burley around 9.30. It was dark but I could see him point something in the air and then there was a noise. I think it was a gun but it was too dark to make it out clearly. He was standing right by the door. I went on duty at 7.30 the next morning and there were several telephone lines out of order," Miss Lane testified.

George Yardy, lineman and manager of the telephone company at Castleton, stated that the main trunk line, consisting of a cable with 150 paper-covered copper wires inside had been perforated with a shot at a point about seven feet from where the cable entered the telephone office. Witness identified a piece of flattened lead cable, bearing several holes, as part of the cable in question. So[illegible] lines were grounded and some [illegible] disrupted entirely, Yardy said. Service was interrupted on some lines from 9.30 on September 2 to 6.30 p.m. the following day, witness said. Some lines were still not repaired but emergency lines had been set up. Damage to the cable was from $200 to $300 as it was a costly repair job requiring an expert.

Provincial Constable David Adair told of arresting the accused. The constable testified that Burley had admitted firing the shot gun and damaging the cable.

LAKEFIELD

Hint Second Half Holiday In Week For Merchants Under Hours Curb

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 16 (ENS) — The village council's little flurry over disposing of the park died down at Monday night's session with not a mention, apparently due to the fact few complaints had come in during the past month.

Only reference to park matters was some discussion as to whether it was necessary to give the park caretaker, William Watson, seven days' notice when he had been hired for the summer, his term to expire September 15, the hiring being done and term set before the new seven-day notice law came into effect. It was decided to play safe and comply with the new regulation and give the caretaker other employment for the ensuing week.

Clerk Harry Hill reported the park tables were stacked, William Stabler having made a roundup of the park accessories in the past few days, the clerk also reporting the grounds clear of campers.

A petition of the merchants for continuance of the Thursday half holiday for the whole year with the exception of the month of December appeared agreeable to the council and the amendment to the present bylaw will be drafted ready for passage at next session in October. The petition was signed by all except one merchant.

Reeve Tanner mentioned the possibility there might be a second half holiday in the week made necessary under the new restriction in shopping hours due shortly. He also pointed out it might be necessary to keep the stores shut on the usual open Wednesday night in order to conserve electricity due to the pressing power shortage for war plants in southern Ontario.

Councillors commented on the ban due Sunday night calling for dousing of outside sign lights and illuminated store windows, visioning a very dim main street. Councillor George Graham favored cutting off every other street light to aid in saving the 20 per cent in that line. Not all members favored this idea, however, as in many cases there would be lengthy pitch black stretches where residences were scattered, and they figured the saving would be too small against the risks involved.

E. W. Bailey, Canada Cement Company superintendent, wrote asking that a ditch running past the company office be cleaned this fall as last spring an overflow due to the ditch being full of weeds had flooded the office cellar.

Councillor G. H. Charlton agreed that the ditch needed cleaning and revealed three other drains flowed into it easily causing flood conditions in the freshet time if the main channel were plugged. A couple of men will be hired to clean it and it is expected the job will take two days or so to complete.

New Sidewalk Laid

The clerk reported that 80 feet of new sidewalk had been completed on Dean street from Concession street east, mainly in front of the Lennox residence. Nothing has been done on Strickland street.

Patching will be speeded on the various streets before cold weather sets in, and the sand ordered for sanding sidewalks in winter. Some proper storage place for this will be set up under cover as salt will be mixed with the sand this year for a better job. Clerk Hill reported the sidewalk plows painted ready for the first snowfall.

A request came from the Fire Department for a new tire for the small pumper, and Reeve Tanner and Councillor Millar thought it was about time a whole new set be obtained the old ones having served for the past twelve years.

Scarifying the river road from Moore's lumber yard to Glavins was discussed but no action decided pending obtaining someone to operate the grader.

On Councillor Lawrence's inquiry, dog taxes were reported coming in more plentiful since the warning in the last tax bills with all but two property owners having paid up.

Councillor Charlton reported the Wool Company had asked a fire stand be fixed up at the river to facilitate safety measures for the thousands of dollars worth of Australian and New Zealand wool now being stored in one of the Cement plant buildings. This wool is reported specially treated, in 500 pound bales and worth $1 a pound. The council will build a pumper stand at the river south of the plant pump house as a result of this request.

A communication from the Metallic Roofing Company stated no further metal signs would be available for the duration due to the shortage of metal.

Besides Reeve C. S. Tanner, Councillors Fred Lawrence, George Graham, D. B. Millar and G. A. Charlton were in attendance and affairs were wound up in speedy fashion about 10 o'clock, indications afloat that several members planned early rising for the opening of the duck season Tuesday.

The following accounts were passed:—

Paysheet No. 14, wages, $66.95; Mrs. Stephen Alford, Park laundry, $7.30; T. W. Chaplin, stamps, $5.00; Lakefield School Board, balance rates, $1,500.00; T. W. Chaplin, money order for book, $3.10; J. Ryan, balance refund re trans. lic., $23.00; Paysheet No. 15, wages, $96.30; Bell Telephone Company, No. 94, $7.90; Margaret Tanner re siren contract, $75.00; James McManus (Bregetta Leonard) lumber sawing, $6.00; J. T. Miller, relief rent, $5.00; Lakefield Public Library Board, balance rates, $358.50; Clarence M. Duff, insurance on cabin, $3.30; William Edwards, sanitary work, $18.00; William Edwards, hauling wood, hall and rink, $9.00; Walter Madill, repairs to water system, $3.07; C. W. Payne, charity groceries, $20.30; W. W. Leonard, supplies, $11.32; E. H. Northey, drugs $2.00; Lakefield Hydro Commission, hydro, $152.14; National Stationery Ltd., stationery, $15.90; Whillier and Company, stationery, 60c; W. H. Peacock, meal and room for transient, $1.00; Simpson's Repair Shop, sharpening saw, and forge plate, $1.00; A. E. Jupp Construction Co. Ltd. oil, $61.20; Herbert Brown, sawing wood, $8.00; Theodore Crawford, rubber boots and insoles, $2.84; total, $2,540.62.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 16 (ENS) —Prior to his departure for Petawawa following a week-end visit with his wife and other relatives Gnr. Leonard M. Begg was honored at a farewell gathering. During the evening friends and relatives took advantage of the occasion to present him with a fine wrist watch, for which Gnr. Begg expressed his sincere thanks in a few well chosen words.

Ask Shoe Plants Make 75 p.c. For Army Needs

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP).—Several large shoe manufacturing firms have been instructed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to turn over 75 per cent. of their production for the next four or five months to the Government for military needs in Canada and among Allied nations, it was learned yesterday.

Prices Board officials refused any statement on the instructions said to have been sent by letter to the various companies. The board has control over production of goods for civilian purposes, and was understood to have told the companies concerned that, until requirements of the forces have been met, only 25 per cent. of their production may go to civilian purposes.

Informed sources said it seemed probable that the sudden urgent requirements for more shoe production came, not from Canada, but from her allies. Under the mutual-aid agreements between the United Nations, any country with sufficient supplies and producing machinery is liable to be asked to assist in some particular sphere, and such assistance is being given even if some inconvenience may be caused the civilian population as a result.

No comment was forthcoming on the possibility of rationing of shoes in Canada, but officials said that waste in leather must be avoided everywhere if the demands on the available supply are to be met with or without rationing.

Release The Plebiscite Lists!

It will not be long before canvassers are at work upon the sale of the new issue of War Bonds. For several reasons, all of which will be clear to the reader, their task will be harder this time than it has been on the two previous occasions. Everything which can be done to help them should be done at once; the raising of the loan is vastly important and the canvassers should not be expected to work under needless handicaps.

As things stand at present the canvassers will compile their lists of names of people to be visited from municipal voters' lists, public utilities lists, and similar sources which, as they are either old or incomplete are not efficient or satisfactory. In the past two years there has been a great deal of shifting about in the population and a list which would do well enough in 1938 or even in 1940, is full of errors now.

Would it not be sensible then to make the voters' lists compiled for the recent plebiscite available to the canvassers? They include everyone over 21 years old, and they are the most recent lists in the country. They cost the country a great deal of money to make and we should use them while they are still reasonably correct.

In order that these lists should be made available to local committees working on the new campaign, it is necessary that a court order be procured instructing the Chief Electoral Officer to hand them over; without such authorization he is powerless to do so, however anxious he may be to help. Would it not be possible for Mr. Ilsley, who is the highest Government official directly interested in the matter, to see that this court order is forthcoming as quickly as possible?

The matter seems perfectly simple. The canvassers need the most accurate lists that exist which will tell them whom they may find in their canvassing areas, and where these people may be found. These lists are the plebiscite lists; if they are used for this work they may be said to have lessened their great cost to some extent. All that is needed is a general order to electoral officers, and Mr. Ilsley is the man to ask for such an order. This should be done as quickly as possible for time is short.

Black Market In Peterborough

A certain amount of evasion of the regulations governing the sale of meat is going on in this, as in other districts in Canada, and this evasion constitutes a Black Market of a kind which cannot be tolerated. Animals slaughtered by their owners are sold surreptitiously to vendors in a small way of business, and in this way meat is available to the public which the Government has explicitly asked us not to buy. The customer cannot be blamed for buying what he sees exhibited for sale; the vendor, however, and the producer who supplies the meat, are both working contrary to law and are likely to meet with very heavy penalties.

There are excellent reasons why this Black Marketing should be checked at once. The first is that Mr. Taggart has asked us not to buy pork, in order that we may fulfil our obligation to Britain; meat is needed there desperately, and it can only be sent there if we deny ourselves. Consumers can check the Black Market by deciding not to buy pork even when they see it for sale. The second reason for checking this traffic is that meat so obtained may not be free from infection. No butcher who values his reputation will offer bad meat for sale, but his experience may not enable him to say whether a piece of pork is infected or not. That is why proper inspection of slaughterhouses is carried out; the inspectors are able to detect infections which are not visible even to the most scrupulous butcher. It is in the interest of public health that all meat offered for sale be approved by qualified persons. Black Market meat carries no such guarantee.

Finally, the existence of a Black Market will drive the Government to ration meat, and rationing is an expensive, troublesome process. Admittedly the Government has bungled the beef situation, and it looks as though they had failed to take steps to conserve pork at the proper time. But two wrongs do not make a right, and although self-rationing of meat may require an irksome exercise of self-control, it is better than the dangers which are inherent in the existence of a Black Market.

Losses At Dieppe

It has long been realized that our casualty lists, when they came, would be hard to bear. We lost 1,900 of our men at Hong Kong, and the latest report tells of 3,350 dead, wounded and missing from the Dieppe Raid. These numbers are large, and they are not lessened when we realize that there are mourners, or hearts sorely tried, for every man dead, or hurt, or lost.

In this respect things will be worse before they are better. The cost of victory will not be one which we can compute in any currency known to this world. It will be estimated in lives lost and lives marred. That is the real horror of war, which continues long after a decision has been reached.

We knew when we made our choice three years ago that the cost would be heavy, and we decided as we did because we knew that the price, great as it was, was not too great to pay for freedom; but the reckoning must always be hard.

Show Us Ourselves

At a recent meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association in Ottawa a spokesman for the CBC asked Canadian writers to turn their minds to writing plays for production on the air. So far Canadian work in this line has been undistinguished, and the standard of production has been far below that existing either in Britain or the U.S. It would be a very good thing for Canada, which enjoys the good things of the professional theatre only in two large cities, if a lively radio drama could be developed.

Recently, as a species of salute to Russia, the Montreal studios of the CBC have produced two great Russian plays, The Three Sisters by Tchekov and The Inspector General by Gogol. Both plays have to be seen to be appreciated fully, and Tchekov's masterpiece does not squeeze comfortably into an hour program. Nevertheless, much of the true spirit of these plays was apparent in the radio performances, and might serve as inspiration for any aspiring Canadian playwright who heard them. Climate has its effect on character, and there is a likeness between the Russian and the Canadian climate which is significant; with a few changes of detail The Three Sisters might be a drama of Canadian life.

But an essential of great art is self-knowledge, and we shall have no great Canadian drama, on the air or anywhere else, until we learn to see ourselves as we really are. At present we tend, in our literature as well as everywhere else, to claim credit for being some things which we are not, while neglecting a variety of excellent characteristics which are strong in our national life. We need great writers to see us as we are and show us ourselves. Our present conception of Canada and Canadians is at once widely different and less interesting than the reality.

The Zoot Suit

We do our best to keep in touch with what is happening in the world, in all the ordinary regions of interest, but now and then something escapes us for months. Take the Zoot Suit, for instance. Apparently this fashion has been enjoying considerable popularity for almost a year, and we heard of it only last week! No Zoot Suits have appeared in town yet, but we are waiting with bated breath.

A Zoot Suit is a form of dress which goes with "swing" music, much as a dress suit goes with symphonic music. You cannot really appreciate the one unless you are wearing the other. The Zoot Suit is characterized by exceedingly wide shoulders (anything from 3 to 6 inches of padding on each), a coat which hangs almost to the wearer's knees, and trowsers which are 32 inches wide at the knee and as narrow as possible at the ankle. The Zoot Suit may be ornamented with large pearl buttons, and a string bow tie is recommended to go with it. So also is a pork-pie hat with an exceptionally wide brim. It is in this outfit that the true hep-cat attends his sessions of jam and jive.

Somehow we doubt if the Zoot Suit will ever be widely popular. Clothing restrictions have already modified the pattern, we learn, but our fashion informant says that "detail will be wackier and colors louder" in future. We are all for brightening up male dress but we cannot stomach the Zoot Suit; fantasy is an admirable thing in dress, but there is a rowdy quality about those drooping pants which we cannot endorse.

The CBC Makeshift

From
THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

THE outstanding point brought out in the proceedings and report of the radio committee was that divided control—and lack of control—had become a serious handicap to the CBC. This state of affairs had arisen because of the difficulties which the board of governors had experienced in setting proper limits to the activities of the general manager. The committee therefore reported to the House of Commons its belief that a new general manager should be appointed and that the existing occupant of that post should be made use of in some other capacity. Pursuant on this the board, at its first meeting, recommended the apointment of Dr. J. S. Thomson as general manager and the transfer of Gladstone Murray to a new post as director-general of broadcasting. This decision was unfortunately given premature publicity, which is hard on everyone concerned, especially since it has been discovered, as our Ottawa correspondent now reports, that the Government is hesitating seriously before accepting the board's recommendation.

The hesitation is fully justified, for the proposed new set-up, as it reveals itself, bears every sign of being not a solution of former ills but an exaggeration of them. The administrative difficulties so fully exposed by the committee are now likely to multiply themselves. In the old days the general manager was supposed to direct the affairs of the CBC both as to administration and finance and programs. Under him there was a director or supervisor of programs, a skilled and imaginative broadcaster working with a team of associates. As proposed now, a director-general of broadcast is interposed between the general manager and the program staff. One extra boss has been added, and how it can be expected that this will increase efficiency it is difficult to understand unless the new general manager abdicates the chief duties which he is expected to perform. This is most undesirable.

THE committee made it clear that it wanted a general manager who was a general manager in fact. It recommended the removal of Mr. Murray from that post because he had been proved unfit to exercise its full and highly paid functions, and it is strange indeed to find that the board's answer to this cogent and proven criticism is to recommend a new general manager while retaining Mr. Murray with apparently almost equal status and at an almost equal salary in a position in which his admitted weakness in financial matters will have full play over the large program budget of the corporation. When the board removed certain functions from his control in 1941 he was left with control of a small "unallocated" budget of some $50,000. Under the proposed set-up he will be handling a budget ten times that size; and at the same time the diffusion of authority between the general manager, the assistant general manager and the director-general of broadcasting will led to added uncertainty and confusion.

This is certainly not what the committee wanted. It is small wonder that the Government hesitates. An additional cause for second thought is that the proposals of the board involve the appointment by order-in-council of another high official. This means that he cannot be removed by the board. Only Government action can do that, and this increases the danger of direct political influence over the CBC, the very thing which the Broadcasting Act of 1936 was drawn up to avoid.

THE record of the radio committee very clearly showed that the board, as at present constituted, is averse to dealing boldly and frankly with difficult situations. It made repeated efforts for almost two years to build around difficulties instead of removing them, as witness the gradual shearing off of the duties of the general manager as experience revealed his limitations. The board, in attempting to deal with the crisis which faced it when the radio committee report was brought down, exhibits precisely the same weakness, and has produced a makeshift plan that simply cannot work. It is animated doubtless by the best of motives but it seems to be unaware that it is seriously hurting, instead of helping and strengthening, the cause of public broadcasting in Canada. It is also being grossly unfair to its own appointee, the new general manager, who will find himself in a position from which it will be most difficult to operate with any degree of freedom and efficiency.

The CBC needs a fresh start badly, but the recommendations of the board of governors do little to bring about that happy result.

Unconsidered Trifles

When a man leaves his wife, says a magistrate, it's usually the woman who is to blame.

Which one?

"Neither do I," the wife replied, "but he's kind to the children."

The thrifty wife had persuaded her husband to buy a small cask of beer instead of going each evening to the local pub.

When he had drunk the first glass his wife said, "Now, John, lad, you can reckon you've saved a penny."

"You're right, lass," replied John. "I'll draw another one and make it twopence we've saved. At this rate I'll soon be able to buy thee a fur coat."

JUST A SAMPLE

Tobruk Opener for Attack

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

ALTHOUGH the battle of Stalingrad holds the spotlight in the war news, developments in the Atlantic, in Egypt and the Balkans have definite significance.

The British Commando-type raid on Tobruk, Marshal Rommel's major advance base and probably the site of his chief tank and truck repair operations, points strongly toward an impending British counter-offensive in Egypt. Coupled with the simultaneous landing raid operations at El Daba behind the Nazi sea flank, the Tobruk operation looms as a prelude to a formidable British attempt to drive Rommel out of Egypt before he can recover from his recent repulse.

By every indication Anglo-American tank power as well as air power now surpasses that of the Axis in Egypt. The time seems right for an attempt to crush Rommel before Hitler can spare planes from Russia. Egypt has seemed to this writer to hold out more imminent Allied second-front possibilities to take some strain off the Russians than any other sector.

RAID ON PLOESTI

Another development which catches attention was the whipsaw Anglo-Russian air offensive against the Ploesti oil field in Rumania. Moscow reported many fires started at that nerve centre of Nazi oil supplies. It has not been similarly bombarded since the fall of Greece drove British bombers back beyond the Mediterranean except for a recent surprise American attack of limited scope.

Ploesti is far remote from any Allied air base now. The nearest possible area in Russian hands from which bombers could have taken off to attack it would be the Black Sea coast of the Caucasus, 600 miles distant as the crowd flies.

Assuming that Russian bombers took off from there, it is to be recalled that Britain has created a new army in Russia and Iraq to back Russian defense of the Baku oil field at need. British or American planes assigned to that army could use the same bases in the Southern Caucasus, well supplied with gasoline from Baku refineries, to supplement the Russian oil attack when the planes are available. The Russian bombardment of Ploesti may be a foretaste of what is to come in the Balkans as American heavy bombers enter the struggle in ever increasing numbers on all fronts.

U-BOAT CENTRE SHIFTS

Another development of note is Nazi confirmation of a recent British statement that the German U-boat attack centre in the Atlantic was shifting northward and eastward. Berlin claims a damaging assault on a convoy in the "middle" North Atlantic costing the Allies a score of cargo and naval craft out of a westbound sailing. Canada has announced sea losses in near-by waters.

The changed Nazi scene of action was due in part, Admiralty officials said, to increasingly effective American protective measures in the Western Atlantic and Caribbean, now supplemented by experienced British air patrols, in part to the sustained British bombing of Nazi submarine construction centres, bases and Bay of Biscay routes to Western hunting grounds and in part to growing U-boat losses.

Two things about the Berlin claim tend to support that British explanation. It was a westbound, not an eastbound convoy picked for attack. Returning empty ships are less heavily guarded than eastbound troop transports or supply craft. Berlin also paid tribute to young U-boat crews said to have been engaged. Serious attrition among seasoned undersea personnel is suggested.

Lucubrations of Mr. Herridge

(FROM THE TORONTO TELEGRAM)

FROM a stance behind the luncheon table of an Ottawa club William D. Herridge, K.C. has favored the country with another of his periodic hortatory utterances. This time the offspring of his lucubrations concerns not Canadian leadership, no; nothing less than the leadership of the English-speaking world, and doubtless with recollections of his ministry to the New Deal a decade ago he nominates Franklin D. Roosevelt for the job. Speaking as a Canadian and a British subject Mr. Herridge puts it up to Prime Minister Churchill to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the leadership with dictatorial powers and a great general staff.

It is a glittering proposition—just what might be expected from the Napoleonic mind of Mr. Herridge. The erstwhile leader of the New Democracy in Canada has given up democracy as a bad job. He says it has produced no real leaders; so overboard with democracy and "hurrah for dictatorship!"

Of course Mr. Herridge does not contemplate the possibility that Mr. Roosevelt might be embarrassed by the offer of the job or that he may think as President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Army and Navy that he has enough work to keep him busy 24 hours of the day, or that there might be complications in an American civilian undertaking to boss all the military and naval commanders of the English-speaking world. We have no doubt that Mr. Herridge is quite certain were he in Mr. Roosevelt's place that he could handle the extra work—so why should the President have any inhibitions?

Anyway, Roosevelt is not to have much say in the matter. It is up to Churchill, or rather "it is for us to say" according to Mr. Herridge. All the people of the Empire have to do is to tell Winston and "he will do as the people will him to do." Mr. Herridge has it all figured out except the method by which the people of the Empire are to make their decision known. Mr. Churchill might borrow Mr. King's plebiscite machinery. Mackenzie would be willing. Anything that will help Franklin, you know.

To some people it may seem incongruous that in one after-luncheon address the speaker of the day should demand a military dictatorship which will "purge democracy of its weaknesses" and tell the public nothing, and then turn around and insist that information of military value be given to the world.

It does seem a little strange. But apparently not to William Herridge.

Mr. Coldwell Slanders the Press

(FROM THE SYDNEY POST-RECORD)

M. J. COLDWELL, M.P., leader of the Parliamentary C.C.F. group, has incurred the wrath of the Moose Jaw Times-Herald, a Liberal newspaper, by the insinuation that the Liberal newspapers of Saskatchewan are kept alive by financial support extended to them by the Liberal party. Addressing a C.C.F. party meeting at Saskatoon last month, Mr. Coldwell, as reported by the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, rounded out one of his periods with this assertion: "If evidence were lacking, it would be found in the bitter attacks by newspapers whose existence has depended upon the assistance of the Liberal party."

The Moose Jaw paper says that Mr. Coldwell knows it to be untrue that Canadian newspapers are subsidized by governments or political parties, but yet he does not scruple to give the impression, "by innuendo and suspicion" that the papers which criticize him and his political group cannot do otherwise, because their editorial opinions are bought and paid for.

But possibly Mr. Coldwell believes what he says,—or rather what he insinuates,—showing that he belongs to that ill-informed minority who persist in thinking that the press of this country is in the pay of one or other of the political parties. Whether a newspaper exists anywhere in Canada today which is subsidized by the Liberal or the Conservative party is doubtful. What is not doubtful is that to direct such a criticism against the press, as a whole, or against any newspaper of recognized standing in any part of the Dominion, is sheer slander, of the silliest and cheapest kind. Party "organs" ceased to exist in this country decades ago. Perhaps too many Canadian newspapers are still tainted with partisanship, although even that defect is rapidly disappearing, but it is doubtful that 5 per cent of them are tainted with venality. Indeed even 5 per cent is probably a big overstatement. There is no country in the world where the newspapers are more free from party control, or even political influence, than in Canada, or where they render more disinterested service to the people.

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.... Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature ....And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly things, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover....

And they went forth and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.—Mark xvi, 9, 14, 15, 17, 18, 20.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Hundreds of acres of potential forests are harvested from the city streets each autumn, and dumped in the incinerator, or used to fill in low spots in the terrain....overhead these days they hang in clusters, ripening for the fall when the first sharp frost smites the great maples and the crop of maple keys fall to the streets.

Not since 1938 has there been so heavy a harvest of these keys, and many may remember how the gutters were filled with them....Every one of these keys would if given a bit of mother earth on which to lie until the upsurge of spring arrives, spring into life, and send up the beginning of another maple tree....One poet has sung of the great oaks which from little acorns grow, but none has grown lyrical about the equally great maples, which sprout from the still smaller seed keys. So they are left for the nimble, thieving squirrel to feast upon, until the city trucks arrive....load them up and take them away to destruction....We are thinking a great deal about waste in all lines during these war days ....and here is a sample of waste, whereas these seeds could be harvested, taken away to empty acres of waste land and there scattered broadcast. There in a very few years those acres would be clothed with young forests of maple trees, and maples are getting scarce in old Ontario....I am thinking of the country along the No. 28 highway beyond Burleigh Falls where there are fields paved with stones, and with tufts of grass growing between....further on, in the vicinity, and north of Apsley there are many acres from which timber of all sorts was cut many years ago....nothing but wild wirey grass is growing there, and offer an ideal bed for the sowing of maple keys. Here is an economical method of reforestation....let the townships send their trucks to this city, bag up the keys when they are fallen and sow them as the pioneer scattered his grain, by hand. In ten years the results would be amazing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP)—Army and navy "brass hats,, were accused in the United States Senate today of sending some United States pilots out to meet the enemy in slow-moving, inferior planes, including one navy ship which Senator Wallgren (Dem., Wash.) said he regarded as "a joke."

The bristling debate was touched off by Chairman Harry Truman of the Special Defense Investigating Committee, who criticized not only fighter planes used by the United States, but steel distribution, the handling of the rubber program and the alleged failure to eliminate "waste" in construction of army camps and war plants. Truman blamed "perfectionists" in both the army and navy for the delay in producing better fighting planes, as well as ships and landing boats.

Something has to be done to shake up the brass hats, get action, and obtain the best planes obtainable, even if we have to go to some other country to get them," Truman said, in explaining why his committee approved his bringing the matter up for debate.

Alleges Fighters Poor

Senator Scott Lucas (Dem., Ill.) said he found it difficult to understand "why they send boys out in a plane which can fly only 120 miles an hour to fight against better planes."

Wallgren, a member of a Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee which recently investigated Alaskan defenses said a plane of that type was sent out to bomb the Japanese at Kiska. Wallgren said the United States had "the world beaten" with respect to bombers and interceptors, but discriminated against fighters.

Wallgren said the Japanese are using a Zero fighter equipped with pontoons which is forcing United States bombers up to an altitude of 20,000 feet, where they lose effect. He said the United States fighters have better armor protection, but it makes them less manoeuvrable.

"Our pilots are asking for a better plane," he declared. "The navy is using a plane today in Alaska which to my mind is a joke, not being able to do better than 120 miles an hour."

Not Equal to Spitfires

While he said Americans have some "good planes," such as the P-39, P-40, the Mustang and the P-38, "none of them seem to measure up to the fastest planes which England is producing."

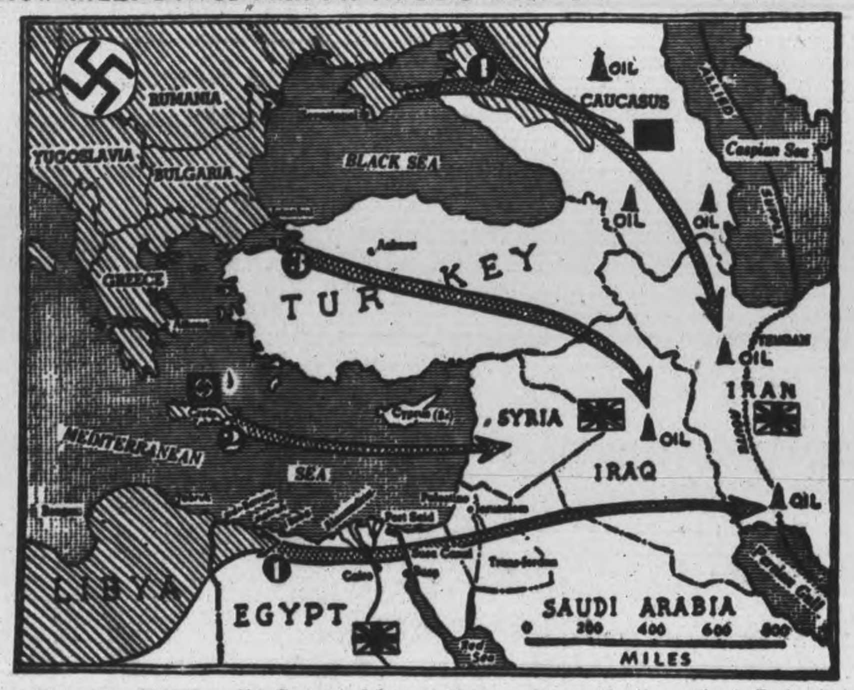
Senator George Norris (Ind., Neb.) said he saw no reason why "Great Britain should not be supplied with Spitfires made in this country and no reason why our boys should not have them to fly."

Truman declared the War Production Board's "faulty distribution" of steel was "imperilling the whole war program," and declared W.P.B. Chairman Donald M. Nelson should appoint "a two-fisted, competent man" to remedy matters. He said the report by the subcommittee indicated a lack of a unity of command in Alaska, "in particular."

Fewer Exhibits Shown At Apsley's Fall Fair

APSLEY, Sept. 16—(ENS).—The Apsley fair is over once again. While the exhibits in the hall were not as numerous as in former years they were of the same good quality. The outside entries were abut as usual. Every one, especially the children enjoyed the Kansas Farmer and His Hired Man. They also furnished music for the dance at night and put on a floor show. The dance was particularly well attended and was one of the most orderly and quiet one given here in years.

How Nazi Drives Aim At Middle East Oil



This map shows how the German drives in the Caucasus and Egypt are aimed at the all-important oil of the Middle East. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's new offensive in Egypt (1) has begun only to be met by fierce Allied resistance and counter-blows. Up north, the valiant Red army blocks the Nazi thrust in the Caucasus (4). Tentacles coming from (2) and (3) show possible new attacks by the Nazis. At (3) the Germans would have to march through neutral Turkey but they never permitted neutrality to bother them.

Charge Official Held Up Gun For Over Year

GRANTHAM, Lincolnshire, Sept. 16—(CP Cable).—A high government official held up for 12 months a scheme of the production of a new gun, W. D. Kendall, independent Member of Parliament for this district and managing director of the British Manufacturing and Research Company, Ltd., charged in a speech here Monday.

He was replying to published extracts from a blue book containing evidence on which the Public Accounts committee criticized his firm among others, the principal complaint being concerned with alleged excess profits.

Mr. Kendall said he visited the United States with official approval and produced a plan for gun production there under which the United Kingdom was to receive the total output of certain plants for 12 months and 50 per cent. of the production thereafter. Plans also were made for the production of the same gun, in smaller quantities, in Canada.

"By some members of the ministry this scheme was received with the same kind of enthusiasm that the United States government and the British Purchasing Commission in New York had for the plan, but a very high official of the (British) government scrapped the plans," Mr. Kendall said.

"I was not informed officially why they were scrapped but I know unofficially that the American and Canadian governments were told by this same high authority that the requirements of guns was still undecided and, further, that the permits of the guns were still in great doubt."

Mr. Kendall added that the American government went ahead manufacturing the guns and large quantities of this weapon now are being shipped to Britain.

Citizenship Talk Features Havelock W.I.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 16—(ENS). — Mrs. Everet E. Birdsall, the Dominion federated member, of Westwood, was the guest speaker at the September meeting of the Women's Institute on Monday afternoon. Her subject was "Citizenship."

She explained that to be a good, loyal citizen one had to have a good knowledge of loyalty, and how to be loyal to your country, town and community. She advised also to be familiar with the laws of our country so one can obey them. She explained that citizenship really begins in the community, that to be a good neighbor is one of the important things of a citizen. Mrs. Birdsall urged that the adults and parents take interest in the schools and children and see that they are being taught the lessons that help people be good citizens.

In closing Mrs. Birdsall conducted a race that dealt with things that make a good citizen. The winners were Mrs. Harry Pollock and Mrs. A. McMullen, the prizes being gold citizenship pins.

The treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Rice, reported a bank balance of $26.50.

Mrs. S. Southward and Mrs. H. Pollock were appointed to act on the salvage committee. There was a splendid attendance and the roll call was answered by "Duties of a Citizen." The program convener, Mrs. Woodbeck, took charge. Mrs. William Smith gave a reading entitled "My Ten-Acre Farm." Mrs. S. Southward sang "The Perfect Day," accompanied by Mrs. Wilkinson on the piano.

An attractive feature on the program was a display of fancy plate salads. They were on a lace-covered table with cut flowers in a silver basket. These tempting salads after being judged by Mrs. H. Wing and Mrs. (Rev.) Wilkinson, were served during the luncheon period. They chose a most delicious salad made by Mrs. Fred McKenzie as winner.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Southward, of Orillia, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. S. Southward and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dafoe, Harold and Frank, visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Everet Davis, Stoney Lake.

Miss Loretta Southward and Miss Helen Clarke returned home after spending a week with the former's aunt, Mrs. W. Snare, Jordan, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arnell, of Napanee, visited Sunday with Mrs. Brad. Simpson.

Nurse Fractures Arm In Tumble

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16—(ENS).—The many friends of Miss Blanche Clarry, Reg. N., of New York city, who has been at the homestead here for the summer months, will be sorry to learn that she had the misfortune to fall while working in her flower garden on Thursday morning, fracturing her right arm at the wrist. The stone flagging was slippery and apparently the cause of the accident. Dr. M. E. Hobbs gave the necessary medical attention, X-rays being taken at the Standard Clinic, Peterborough, under direction of Dr. F. C. Neal. Mrs. Maxwell O. Cameron, of Ottawa, is with her sister at the homestead, Park Roadway.

Lieutenant George Gray and his bride, of Windsor, are spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Wentworth Gray, and other relatives locally, arriving on Sunday morning.

Miss Flossie Stewart, Reg. N., of Brantford, who has been holidaying with her mother, Mrs. James Stewart, and other friends, for the past three weeks, returned to her professional duties at the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thorndyke, of Toronto, are on two weeks' vacation, spending part of the time with their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thorndyke and Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham.

Rev. C. W. Barrett, of Colborne, took the service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, who is attending General Council at Belleville. Rev. Walter Patterson, the newly-inducted minister of Millbrook and Centreville Presbyterian churches, was in his pulpits for the first time on Sunday, large congregations gathering for the hervices.

Miss Leitha Edworthy left on Monday for Toronto to take her basic training as a member of the C.W.A.C. Leitha's father is Sergeant F. L. Edworthy of the Trainees' Camp, Peterborough, and a veteran of the last world war; and she has one brother, Private Earle Edworthy, with the Canadian forces overseas.

Reception Held For Harwood Girl

HARWOOD, Sept. 16—(ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Rosevear held a reception for their only daughter (Ina), Mrs George Lamb of Niland, California, on Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Rosevear received their guests with their daughter. The pretty bride was attired in her wedding dress of turquoise blue taffeta with lace trimming and head dress of tulle and pearls with a corsage of roses. Mrs. Rosevear wore a rose crepe dress with a corsage of roses.

The drawing-room was decorated in mauve and yellow with an array of beautiful wedding gifts. Miss Reta Bell presided over the guest book in which some 150 guests registered.

The dining-room was artistically decorated in pink and white, and the tea table in pink and white, with tall candlesticks with pink and white candles and the lovely wedding cake. Mrs. Thomas Davidson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Arthur Jamieson, aunt of the groom poured tea. Those assisting at the reception were Misses Barbara Zufelt, Lettice and Shirley Drope, Mrs. Clarence Brooks, Mrs. William Maughan, Mrs. Wallace Bell, Mrs. R. E. Drope Mrs. A. Lawton, Mrs. H. Graham, and Mrs. E. Lee.

Not Worth It

MONCTON, N.B., Sept. 16—(CP)—Retail merchants here will discontinue the sale of milk after next Saturday, it was announced last night by a special committee representing the retailers. Previously the grocers had declared that a profit of one cent per quart, reduced from two cents by order of the New Brunswick Dairy Products Commission, was insufficient to warrant handling milk.

Unlikely To Move Farm Women

OTTAWA, Sept. 16—(CP).—Farm women are not likely to be directed into other occupations because the work they now are doing has a high priority rating, Mrs. Rex Eaton, assistant director of National Selective Service, said yesterday.

Farm women from 20 to 24 years of age, inclusive, are required to register this week with other women in the same age group. This registration is compulsory. Postmasters have been authorized to act as registrars in rural districts.

Women now working on farms will be registered as "farm women." But this does not mean that they will be "frozen" in their present jobs, Mrs. Eaton said. Farm work usually tapers off during the winter, and Mrs. Eaton urged that young women who are free to turn to other work in slack seasons do so.

Such farm women would be encouraged to get permits for industrial work when this employment would not take them from busy farms. They might take any type of work without permits for periods of not more than 30 days, if farm production were not affected by their absence.

But Mrs. Eaton stressed that farm women who take other work in off seasons must not count on staying in the cities. They were needed on the farms when work there was urgent and any permit to go into war industries would be of a temporary nature.

QUAKER TENNIS CLUB CLINCHES SERIES WITH THE LINDSAY CLUB

Captures Four Of 6 Matches In Final Play

On familiar (but rather greasy) home courts, the Quaker Tennis Club eked out a hard earned decision in inter club tennis competition by copping four out of six matches in the final bout with the St. Mary's Club of Lindsay last night. This concludes the schedule in which the locals were victorious in four out of six tournaments waged between the St. Mary's group, the Queen Street United Lindsay Tennis Club, and the Quakers. Three of the wins were snatched from the former club, and the Queen Streeters surrendered the other.

Each club gained a point in the men's doubles division but the Quakermen gained the edge in three out of four mixed doubles matches. For the first time in three tourneys the locals were able to break through Lindsay's defence in the men's doubles, and the honors went to Ralph Charlton and Roy Johnston, who turned the tables on Jack Callaghan and Rhys Williams in straight sets 6-2 and 6-2. Charlton and Johnston made good with the expert use of chops and base-line drives calculated to upset the steadiness of the Lindsay outfit. On Monday night the two Lindsay clubs held a meet and during it, Williams and Callaghan defeated Russ Taylor and Laverne Gamble 1-6, 7-5 and 6-1. Previous to this the St. Mary squad has disposed of two Quaker teams namely: Horace Fisher and Al Conlin, and Warren Trotter and Roger Barrie.

Strong Doubles Team

Quakers George Scott and Howard Macdonald were unable to defeat St. Mary's top-seeded team of Jim Doran and Joe Baker, who finished off the locals in two sets 6-3, 8-6. Quakers nearly evened matters up in the second set by placement shots and lobs but the comeback was made too late in the match to make any material difference. Doran and Baker trounced the strong Queen Street team of Harold Holden and Keith Smith on Monday night 2-6, 6-3 and 6-4. Holden and Smith in turn have defeated the Quaker teams of Jack Miller and Al Conlin, and Ted McAlister and Ralph Charlton, in former struggles, and have been defeated only by Jack Miller and Ralph Charlton of the locals. All of which indicates the quality of the Lindsay doubles team.

The first mixed doubles team of Dorothy Weese and Walker Jones gave a tight match to Eleanor Meehan and Jim Doran with scores of 7-5 and 6-4. Rain hurried the match to its conclusion but not before the visitors had displayed superior tennis that just overbalanced the odds between the two teams. This was a hard hitting contest with the Saints using deadly accuracy to outwit the locals in play.

Win in Straight Sets

Lucy and Jack Callaghan were nosed out by the greater power of Dorothy Sullivan and Horace Fisher who romped away with the match in two sets 6-1, 6-2. This victory followed close upon Callaghan's previous wins and the blow was softened by this.

Quakers' Peggy Lawless and Al Conlin took May Meehan and J. Sabourin in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. The locals were stronger at the net and in their driving, but the Lindsay crew disputed each point hotly before they were forced to retire. This St. Mary's team was defeated by Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson of the Queen Street Club on Monday night 6-2, 6-2. The Hutchinsons themselves were previously defeated by the Quaker line-ups of Peggy Lawless and George Scott, and Al Conlin and Miss Lawless. This leaves the Quakers on top in this combination.

In the last match Helen Hennessey and Guy Mills put up a losing fight before the two unrelated Duncans—Mary and Gordon, who gained the odds after three exciting sets. The Quakers had a poor start but tightened up in time and took the match 4-6, 6-3, and 6-1.

This match tipped the scales in favor of the Quakers and both teams realized the importance of the contest, but it remained for the locals to come from behind to sound the doom of the Scugoggers.

Saints Retaliated

The St. Mary's Club has had two tourneys with the Queen Street organization, with the latter club taking the first meet decisively with wins in all of seven matches, but the Saints retaliated Monday night by capturing four out of seven matches. The Quakers are also tied at one tourney apiece with the Queen Streeters.

Refreshments were served in the Quaker Club house and a short dance brought the evening to a close. Howard Macdonald offered a vote of thanks and mutual appreciation on behalf of the Quakers, and Guy Mills replied for the visitors.

Now for the facts and figures we promised you at the beginning of this column. Of the six meets the Quakers took four, and this series represents a total of 41 matches with the locals getting the honors in 28. After breaking these down by a new milling process just discovered, they are found to contain 95 sets in which the Quakers won out 52 times. By further exhaustive research we hasten to calm your fears and doubts by flashing this dizzy number at your cranium—a number that is guaranteed to convince you of the supremacy of the Quakers, even if your motto is "I'm From Missouri!" Nine hundred and nine games were played in the course of the 95 sets and of these the locals were tops in 484—leaving but 425 for their opponents. As a final gasp it is our considered guess that there were about six to seven thousand points contested for in these games, sets, matches, and tourneys. This prove a great deal of nothing, but the curious may find some satisfaction in this treatise.

The Quaker Tennis Club singles championships are rapidly approaching their climax. With the announcement of the ladies' and men's champions, the Quakers will probably retire from the news until next season.

Joe is in Detroit for a brief visit before heading east, where he boxes Billy Conn for the championship on October 12.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Remember tonight's mixed tournament. Draw made at 7.30 p.m. Phone your name in and then be on time There'll not be many more of these tournaments.

Besides the regular games for tomorrow night, the following games will be played.

H. Freeman vs. J. Harrison.
C. Renaud vs. R. Kerr.
C. Williamson vs. R. French.
R. Hendry vs. J. Skinner.

We have no report from the ladies who went down to Oshawa yesterday Maybe we'll have some news tomorrow.

It will be H. Girven and J. Cullen for the finals in the club singles competition. This game will be played some night this week.

The second round of the ladies' playoffs for third place will take place tomorrow evening between rinks skipped by Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. J. Coursey.

Word came through yesterday that C. Renaud and H. Darling were unfortunately left off the prize list of the Loblaw doubles. They were well up among the two-game winners.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The sudden death Tuesday of Arthur T. Johnston, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, will recall to older fans many memories of the colorful part he played in baseball in Peterborough 35 years ago. Arthur Johnston had played ball in Toronto before coming to this city early in the century and he continued his interest in the game in Peterborough, giving this community a series of strong clubs in the old Midland League, the fore-runner of the Central Ontario loop. There was no residence rule in those days and Johnston imported a host of players, most of them from Toronto to strengthen the local organization. Among the first arrivals was Harry Burridge, a hard-hitting catcher who was soon picked up by Youngstown, O. "Red" Cheatham and Haliburton, infielders and the late Connie Murphy who after several years with Peterborough played professional ball in the old Canadian League and Corney Burns, pitcher and outfielder. That first team skippered by the hotel proprietor made a good bid for the league championship but was finally beaten out by Port Hope who imported the entire Toronto Wellington semi-pro club for the final game, a sudden death affair played in Cobourg. The Petes ran a special train to the Lakeshore town but their hopes were dashed when out trotted the Wellingtons in Port Hope uniforms with the redoubtable Fred Hickey doing the pitching.

* * * * * *

Next year—1908—Mr. Johnston decided that he would have to do something about that kind of thing so he assembled a practically whole club of imports and they proceeded to clean up the league. It was possibly the strongest so-called amateur ball team that ever wore Peterborough uniforms for two or three of the outfit graduated into professional ball and several others might have made the grade if they had elected to do so. Jerry Edmunds a catcher who afterwards played in the pro ranks for years was behind the bat and the pitchers were Hawkins and Freddy Clements, two of the best Toronto heavers of their day. On first base was lanky Dave Lawson, with little Micky McDermott at second and Fritz O'Brien at third. The star of the infield was shortsop Schiltz Maddocks, whose father had been ground-keeper for the Cleveland Indians. Maddocks grew up on the Cleveland park and was a protege of Napoleon Lajoie and he had all the grace and style of the best big leaguers. Later Maddocks played shortstop for the all-Canadian army team overseas. In the outfield were Connie Murphy, Corney Burns and the writer of this column, who happened to be the only Peterborough player in the lineup.

* * * * * *

That club had a great season despite the fact that the absence of any residence requirements made it indefinite as to just who the opposition might have. Cobourg had a habit of importing a battery from Rochester and on one occasion they brought in an International League battery in Earl Barry, big Providence pitcher and Jack Toft, veteran Toronto Maple Leaf catcher. The Petes beat Cobourg that day and it was a high light in the baseball career of Art Johnston. The latter continued his interest in baseball for a number of years and he showed it by his willingness to umpire school league games. He officiated in that capacity for a number of seasons and although he was handling kids' games he acted as if he were dealing with professionals. His work always made a hit with the youngsters. Art Johnston played a big part in local sport for a considerable time and oldtimers who remember his contribution will be grieved at his sudden death and will extend sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

As Preston Saw It

Praise for Tommy Bullock features the Galt Reporter's story of the two games played Saturday by the Westclox girls against the Rivulettes in Preston. Here is the story: "The second game was named as a replay of the first contest and it provided the smartest brand of ladies' softball which has been witnessed in Bill Duff's backyard this season. Edie Ernst, veteran local mound performer, pitched her teammates to victory when she limited the hard-hitting Peterborough club to a scant five scattered hits including a double by M. Watson. Ernst, who had pitched four innings in the first game, pitched the eight frames in the second fixture and was never in trouble as the Rivulettes, showing a distinct reversal of form and the style of play which which has carried them so far in quest of the Ontario honors, played "heads-up" ball behind her hurling efforts. Ernst struck out seven and issued only three walks. In no one inning did Peterborough secure more than one hit, while their only tally of the game came on a local error. I. Bullock, Peterborough, was easily the star of the visiting club. Starting in the catching role Bullock took over the pitching duties after one was out in the first inning of the opening game and twirled nine and two-third innings then, followed by another seven innings in the second game. Preston, while unable to solve Bullock's slants in the first game, fell more heavily on her tired offerings in the second game, bunching six of their 10 hits in two innings to record their win."

Whatever else may develop in the hockey situation during the coming winter the expected scarcity of hockey equipment is not likely to materialize. At the end of the last campaign there was a somewhat general impression that no more skates or other accessories would be available but the present outlook, indicates that so far as these things are concerned there will be ample supplies available. The only difference will be that there will not be as much choice in the selection of hockey material as there was in the piping days of peace. There will be only a few lines of skates, hockey sticks will be rationed to the extent that sizes have been set and the field of selection will be smaller and the same conditions apply to pads and other accessories. It sounds like a break for the dealers. Hockey players are usually choosey about their equipment but now they will have to be satisfied with what is available. There will be ample supplies in a limited field of selection dealers report.

The Ladies' City Bowling League has called an organization meeting to be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Holt, 469 Water street. All clubs and organizations wishing to enter teams are asked to send representatives to this important meeting or if this is impossible to notify Fred Whatley, at Duffus Alleys, of their intention to enter the loop. There were eight clubs in the league last winter and a most successful season was held. This year it is expected that more teams will line up.

Making Them Battle

The honesty of baseball is illustrated by the battle that the Philadelphia Phillies have been giving the Cards in the series just closed. If the lowly Phils had been free to do what they liked they would probably have been glad to see the Cardinals sweep the series because the Dodgers by their habit of riding all and sundry have earned the dislike of the whole loop. But baseball is not played that way and so the Phillies made it plenty tough for the St. Louis club, taking one game and making the rest close. Yesterday they forced the Cards to go fourteen innings to beat them 3 to 2 and go two full games up in the pennant race. Old Si Johnston went the full route for the Phillies and gave the winners a real battle for the honors. Mort Cooper, gunning for his 21st win failed to turn the trick and was finally lifted in the ninth for Murray Dickson and the relief pitcher got credit for the win. He earned it, too, with smart pitching and a timely double that built up the winning marker. Today the Cards tackle the Braves while the demoralized Dodgers start a series with the Pittsburg Pirates.

According to Bill Walshe, the Kingston Combines are deserting the O.H.A. this season in favor of the Ottawa City League. Says Bre'er Walshe: "Kingston made an official entry into the Ottawa City Hockey League this week and, according to reports, although there has not been an official reply to the application, the Combines' bid will be favorably received. The move to the Ottawa district was forced by the transportation difficulties.

74 Of National League's Men In Uniform

By VERN DeGEER.

TORONTO, Sept. 16. — Seventy-four players listed as the property of National Hockey League clubs are now on active service, it was announced here yesterday by President Frank Calder. Most of this number are registered with one of the three military services in Canada.

The league conceived during the First Great War, has sent some of its outstanding players to wear the colors in the present conflict. Every club is represented on the list.

None of the major professional hockey's wartime enlistments is overseas at the present time. Most of the players have gone into uniform since the close of the 1941-42 season. First of the enlistments from the N.H.L. was Murray (Muzz) Patrick of the New York Rangers, serving with the United States Army for almost a year now.

The N.H.L.'s overseas delegation is comprised of three former players, Stew Adams, Teddy Graham, and Joe Lamb. Frank Frederickson, former Victoria, Boston, Detroit and Pittsburg star, is flight-lieutenant in charge of an R.C.A.F. elementary training school at St. Catharines. He served with distinction as an airman in the last war and volunteered for duty early in the present struggle.

Conn Smythe, former general manager of Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens and the Toronto Leafs hockey club, is now Major Smythe of the 30th Battery, an anti-aircraft unit recruited largely from Ontario athletic ranks. He obtained leave of absence from the Gardens last winter to go on active service. He was first in the artillery and later the Air Force in the 1914-1918 conflict.

Detroit Sends Nineteen.

Detroit Red Wings have lost 19 of their strength, while Montreal Canadiens are the second hardest hit club with 15 of their players enlisting. Boston and Toronto have lost 13 and 10 players, respectively, while 10 of the Brooklyn Americans are with the Canadian armed forces.

New York Rangers have four players in the American Army, while Chicago's ranks are depleted by the loss of Goaler Sam Lo Presti to the United States Navy and Rookie Roy Hawkey to the Canadiatn Army.

Following is a list of the enlisted players and branches of the service to which they belong:

Rolfe To Become Cage Coach

The end of the 1942 world series will see the finish of the major league playing career of Robert (Red) Rolfe, for many years ace third-baseman of the New York Yankees. Rolfe has been named baseball and basketball coach at Yale University, succeeding Joe Wood and Ken Loeffler, respectively. Rolfe is shown here as he "talked shop" with Ray Meyers, new basketball coach at De Paul University.

NATIONAL DOGFIGHT ON AGAIN AS BROOKLYN CHASE ST. LOUIS

Dodgers' Fading Baffling Even To Selves

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—A thing so strange and baffling that it almost defies description has happened to the once-debonair Brooklyn Dodgers in the closing stages of the National League race. They look tired and bewildered and the fight seems to have gone out of them in the face of the Cardinals' remorseless drive.

The reason, a member of the Dodger family explained weakly, is that it is somehow numbing to see a thing slip away day after day and feel powerless to prevent it. After a time you begin to feel dazed, he said.

"I remember the night we started our last western trip," he quavered. "We had the pennant won. We even celebrated to the extent of a tub of beer on the train, because it was through Pennsylvania, which is dry a Sunday and we were passing on Sunday.

"Not that anybody over-drank. How is a whole team going to break training on one tub of beer? But, I mean, that's the way we felt. World Series, here we come! Sure, we were in a little hitting slump, but we had a seven and a half game lead over the Cardinals, so what did a little slump amount to?

"I still can't believe it's happened. Even when they cut us down to a three or four-game lead we kept thinking any day now we'll get start- when a thing like this is happening when a think like this is happening every break goes against you. Did you see that third strike Barlick called on Camilli Sunday with two on base? Things like that."

No Sleep, Feels Terrible

He said, finally, that he hadn't had more than an hour's sleep the previous night and didn't anticipate any better luck on the night in question. He looked terrible.

All the Dodgers look more or less the same. Manager Leo Durocher is subdued and Larry MacPhail virtually has conceded the pennant to the Cardinals. After the two games Cincinnati won at Ebbets Field last Sunday, Secretary John McDonald said, morosely, that he believed that had done it. It was as though a catastrophe that had long been dreaded finally had happened and there was nothing further to worry about.

The town is full of theories about what caused such a good ball club to lose an apparently impregnable lead. Those who have followed the Dodgers closest say they simply began getting tired about a month ago; possibly because they began training long before the other clubs last spring, and because they trained in Havana, where the sun is supposed to be especially sapping. But more probably because a lot of the Dodgers are veterans, approaching the fag end of their careers, anyway.

Red Cross Balks At World Series Receipts

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—(AP)—The opening game of the 1942 World Series will be played September 30 and October 1, either in Brooklyn or St. Louis, K. M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, announced yesterday.

Landis also disclosed the American Red Cross has rejected baseball's offer to share in series receipts and as a result the entire sum to be given away will go to the United Service Organizations.

If Brooklyn Dodgers win in the National League so that the series is between the Dodgers and New York Yankees, the first six games will be played without a day's rest. In the event of a St. Louis Cardinal victory, an open date would be inserted each time the series shifted sites to allow for travel.

Under the original World Series cash splitup announced by Landis August 27, a major share of receipts would have been divided between the Red Cross and the U.S.O. The Red Cross, however, does not participate in benefits where it shares the income with any other group.

Hence the U.S.O. will receive an estimated $357,544 if the series goes four games, $518,275 if the series goes six games, and $697,006 if it goes the seven-game limit.

Red Cross headquarters in Washington explained that it has been the policy to accept only gross receipts of benefits given in behalf of the Red Cross. Expenses are met by sponsors of the benefit.

Schedule of Dates

If the Dodgers win the National League pennant, Landis said the following dates will be in effect for the series:

September 30, October 1 at Brooklyn; October 2, 3, and 4 at Yankees Stadium; October 5 at Brooklyn; October 6 open to permit ticket distribution for the final games: October 7 at Brooklyn.

If the Cardinal win, this schedule will be as follows:

September 30, October 1 at St. Louis; October 2 open for travelling; October 3, 4 and 5 at New York; October 6 open for travelling; October 7 at St. Louis; October 8 open for ticket distribution; October 9 at St. Louis.

All games will start at 1.30 p.m. except in the event of Sunday games in New York or Brooklyn which would begin at 2:05 p.m.

Landis said if any game were postponed it would be played off on the field originally scheduled before the next regular game was played. In the event of a tie game, the game would be played off following the seventh contest on the field where originally scheduled.

The ticket scale will remain the same: In Brooklyn and New York, box seats $6.60; reserved general admission, $5.50; unreserved general admission $3.30, bleachers $1.10. In St. Louis $6.90, $5.75; $3.45 and $1.15. Certain local taxes make the rates higher in St. Louis.

Umpires will be appointed later, Landis said.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—(CP).—An Australian airman, W. L. (For Something) Webster, Toronto, turned out last week for practice with the R.C.A.F. team in the Winnipeg City Senior Football League. He had been a rugger star in Australia, and a good light heavyweight boxer. He was stocky and tough, and perhaps because of that his approach to the game was unusual.

First, he thought all the armor other players wore was nonsense. He didn't think the game was that rough. He also thought the way to go through a line was heads-up, see-where-you're-going. He scorned the necessity of detouring around an enemy tackler. His alternative was simple; just run right over him.

He revised his ideas about armor after his first tough scrimmage. About the same time he decided that one should save one's head for the war effort, instead of having it knocked off going through a line. So he started to tuck it in when he plunged. And a little later he found out about tacklers. They really were worth eluding. About that point, the Australian was becoming quite a football player.

Last night, about a week after his introduction to football, W. L. Webster wore heavy padding, kept his head down when he hit the line, treated tacklers like social outcasts, and scored the only touchdown as R.C.A.F. beat Winnipeg Bombers 6-0 in the first game of the 1942 Canadian football season.

Incidentally:

LAC. Dave Castilloux gave the boys a little lesson in sportsmanship the other night in Montreal... He refused to be introduced to a fighting crowd at an outdoor boxing show because Lightweight Johnny Greco, also of Montreal, wasn't given the same invitation....Greco has been bowling them over in the United States, is a likely contender for Castilloux's Canadian lightweight crown....Sqdn. Ldr. Lionel Conacher is charming the western populace these days....His reception has been warm everywhere since he started his jaunt to survey hockey prospects....His word on the aim of R.C.A.F. sport is enlightening and encouraging: "There are 160 former professional hockey players in the R.C.A.F." he told Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell. "We are not worried about the morale of civilians. We want these boys to play for the entertainment of the troops—the airmen themselves."

If there is a shortage of football players in the country, at least two eastern coaches won't believe it....FO. Lew Hayman had 100 candidates attend the first workout of his Toronto air force team....Coach Fred Veale combed over 50 at Hamilton Wildcats' first practice....Plans are being made for two Royal Air Force soccer teams from Saskatchewan air stations to visit the Pacific Coast for exhibitions.

Cards Now 2 Up, Shade Phils In 14 Innings

By JUDSON BAILEY,
Associated Press Sport Writer

The dogfight in the National League became a two-ring circus again today as Brooklyn Dodgers took up the chase of the St. Louis Cardinals after two days of idleness during which the Redbirds managed to entrench themselves in first place by two full games.

There was a possibility the open dates might favor Brooklyn in the long run because the fiercely-fought series in Philadelphia took so much out of the Cardinals that they appeared groggy yesterday even though they dragged down a 3-2 victory over the Phils in 14 innings.

Morton Cooper winner of 20 games, was on the mound, but did not have his customary wares. His teammates gave him a two-run lead in the third inning and ordinarily this would have been enough for the husky right-hander. However, it wasn't yesterday. Cooper was behind almost every batter, allowed the Phils to tally once in their half of the third, to tie the score on Nick Etten's homer in the eighth, and finally retired under fire with no one out in the ninth after he had given up 10 hits.

Murray Dickson took charge and pitched six scoreless innings after that. But the Redbirds were so feeble Dickson himself had to set off the winning spark by hitting a double after two were out in the 14th. Jim Brown then brought him home with a single.

The Red Birds obiviously were in a hitting slump as they moved into Boston to close their Eastern campaign with two games against the Braves today and tomorrow. They were outhit in three of their four games at Philadelphia and were moving in low gear even before they reached Shibe Park.

Besides the Cardinals' contest the only other major league game yesterday brought together Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox in the American League, but weather halted play in the fourth inning, forcing cancellation of the game. Chicago was leading 4-3 at the time.

Giants Surprise Bears, Taking Them 3 In Row

By The Associated Press

International League baseball fans probably are wondering if somebody isn't kidding them, now that the pennant-winning Newark Bears have lost three straight games in the semi-final playoffs and have scored only two runs in that time.

They began the Governors' Cup playoffs in grand style, walloping the fourth-place Jersey City Giants in the first two encounters but since then the Giants have beaten them, 3-0, 3-1 and 3-1 again yesterday.

Meanwhile, Syracuse was handling Montreal in similar fashion, pounding out an 8-1 triumph for the Chiefs third victory in a row.

Ken Jungles survived a shaky first inning to hang up his first victory in the playoffs and his third of the season over Newark. Bill Johnson started the fireworks with a double and score on a single by Hank Majeski. That was all the scoring the Bears did.

Jersey City tied the score in the third on Buddy Kerr's single, a sacrifice by Jungles, a wild pitch and a long fly by Johnny Rucker. Tommy Byrne, Newark hurler, handed the Giants the contest in the sixth by loading the bases on walks to Connie Ryan, Gibby Brack and Sid Gordon and then allowing Hugh Poland to single in two runs. The Bears outhit the Giants, 9-4.

Jersey City moves back to the scene of all its defeats as it engages the Bruins at Ruppert Stadium for the sixth contest today.

Charles (Red) Barrett notched a five hit 8-1 triumph as his Syracuse mates pounded Chet Kehn, Bob Chipman and Ed Spaulding for 11.

Barrett had a three-hit shutout until the ninth when he lost it on an infield hit, a walk and a run-scoring single by Alex Kampouris.

Wildness on the part of Pitcher Kehn and three mechanical errors and a few mental ones by Montreal helped the Chief cause greatly.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP). — Frank Frisch, whose Pirates may be the ones to knock Brooklyn clear out of the pennant race, figures the Dodgers still have a good chance if one hitter can get hot enough to bring the rest of the club to a boil ....But apparently the only place the Dodgers are hot is under Larry Macphail's collar....Canada's green light (with reservations) for pro hockey gives Americans an idea what to expect in baseball next year ....By the time players eligible for military service and those useful in the war effort have been eliminated the teams likely will be made up of creaky-kneed old timers and young, inexperienced kids....But don't look for much minor league hockey—except that played by major league teams.

Working overtime:

When the baseball team of Local 592 Teamsters' Union won a triple-header (yeah, that's right) from Highland Springs in the Virginia Intercity Semi-pro League the other Saturday. Linwood (Pippy) Lacy pitched and won the first two games to give him a record of five victories in seven days....He had won a double-header the previous Sunday and a single game in mid-week ....Pippy wanted to go right back to the mound in the third game, but Manager Oscar Fary argued: "No, save yourself for the playoff."

Sportsmention:

When Mike Jacobs took over fight promoting at Madison Square Garden five years ago come October, the first scrap he arranged was between Hank Armstrong and Petey Sarron for the featherweight title. Next week's Chalky Wright-Lulu Constantino bout will be the first 126-pound championship fight in the Garden since then — which might be Mike's way of saying: "This is where I came in."

A clean sweep:

Latest report from tub-thumper Joe Sherman: "Clemson College Athletic Association losses to the armed services to date are: Five lettermen, three coaches, one stenographer, and three janitors."

Road gangs made up of men have a tough job ahead. It was difficult to imagine women doing this rough work on the railways...but that's what they are doing now in Britain and intend doing for the duration. Female surfacemen are jacking up and packing the railway lines.

Damage Suit For $20,000 Follows Crash

The Laidley-Hockaday case, a claim for $20,000 arising out of an auto accident on Water Street North on November 8, 1941 went into its third day of evidence at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario before Mr. Justice Wilfrid Roach at the Court House this morning.

Mrs. Lily Laidley, the plaintiff, who is represented by Isadore Levinter, K.C., of Toronto, suffered fractures of both legs below the knees in the mishap as she was walking across Water Street at Anson to get on a north-bound bus. Before she reached the bus stop she was struck by a north-bound car driven by Percy Hockaday, Smith Township farmer. It was raining at the time of the accident. Mr. Hockaday is being defended by Cecil G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay.

Mrs. Lily Laidley, the plaintiff, was the first witness when court opened on Tuesday morning and she gave her age as 66.

She stated that prior to the accident she did all the housework and besides that nursed her husband, who was in poor health. He died in March of this year.

On the night of the accident she left her home on Hilliard Street and proceeded down Anson Street to the bus stop on Water Street.

"I visited Mrs. Nesbitt and M. Bebee and the three of us walked down the hill to Water," Mrs. Laidley said.

"We waited on the north-west corner of Water and Anson in the rain until we saw the bus coming," she added. Mrs. Laidley told the court it was necessary for her to travel south-easterly to the east side of Water Street to catch the bus.

"I don't remember anything after I stepped on to Water Street."

"Do you remember being hit by the car?"

"No."

"How long were you in the hospital?"

'Until the last day of May."

Two Other Accidents

During the afternoon Traffic Officer Clair McGillen of the Peterborough City Police Force was called and he gave in detail evidence concerning his call to the accident. He said in part that there had been two other accidents earlier in the evening and that it was raining when he drove from Nicholls Hospital to the scene of the accident with Hockaday.

"There was no evidence of liquor on Hockaday and his car was in perfect running order," McGillen said under examination by Mr. Frost.

The traffic officer was the first witness for the defence, and was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Isadore Levinter, but came through the examination to the satisfaction of the court, even to the point where he was advised by Judge Roach not to answer one or two of the questions which were put by the defending lawyer.

He was followed by Percy Hockaday, the defendant in the action, who stated he had left his sister's home on Water street to go home, and had his 9-year-old daughter with him. Before he reached Hilliard street he stopped and picked up a young chap named Dineen who was trying to thumb a ride to Nassau. The daughter got into the back seat to make room for the hitch-hiker he said.

Following Hockaday, Louis R. Park, photographer, was called to identify pictures made by him at the scene of the accident.

Justice Roach interrupted proceedings to receive a report of inspection of county institutions from the Grand Jury, and during the course of his remarks stated he would charge them regarding their duties on criminal cases early on Wednesday.

He said after hearing the report read: "This is a very gratifying report. In searching my recollections I cannot recall having heard a finer report from a Grand Jury. The people of the county are to be congratulated on your thoroughness."

The report as tendered by Max Swanston, foreman of the jury, was as follows:

Grand Jury Report

In accordance with our duties and as instructed by Your Lordship we have visited the following institutions—St. Joseph's Hospital: which we found in good condition throughout, the patients well cared for, with the exception of insufficient light in the basement corridors due to the desire to conserve power.

Children's Shelter: Due to the present policy of encouraging distribution to private homes, the present number of children, namely 5, is smaller than usual, the Children's Shelter acting now as a clearing house. All buildings are in excellent condition and the children appear very contented. We would suggest furnishing the playroom in the Shelter—the playbarn has insufficient ventilation and some equipment for the children to play with should be provided.

St. Vincent's Orphange: Found the children happy and contented due to the excellent administration of the Mother and her very efficient staff. There are at present fifteen children. Those of school age are all attending outside schools.

County Buildings and Jail: In the jail we found everything in very satisfactory condition under the able supervision of Col. T. D. Johnson. The general conditions of the buildings are very satisfactory.

Nicholls Hospital: The buildings were found to be in very good repair. The new wing was found to be very helpful, but their most severe problem is still insufficient accommodation.

Isolation Hospital: When the present program of redecoration is completed it should be in first class condition. We suggest having more secure footing for the visitors' ladders.

House of Refuge: The County Council should be congratulated on the appointment of the present superintendent and matron who are performing splendid work under the handicap of present lack of competent help.

We, as members of the Grand Jury, would like to express our appreciation of the help given us by Your Lordship in your direction to us in the discharge of our duties.

Soviet Bombers Keep Hun Jittery

LONDON, Sept. 16 (CP)—Radio stations in central Europe went off the air last night, indicating that Russian bombers again were active or that air defence authorities in the Nazi domain were becoming increasingly jittery about the two-way British-Russian bombing schedule.

Early today there were no reports from any source of actual air raids on the continent. The customary early-morning report of R.A.F. activities against Germany was not given, indicating that bad weather had kept the bombers at home.

There was an air-raid alarm in Budapest after the Budapest radio left the air, but no report of bombs dropped. Subsequently radio stations at Bratislava, Luxembourg, Bremen, Breslau, Kalundborg and Calais closed down and the Bucharest station wound up its program earlier than usual.

Monday night the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. gave one of its powerful jolts to the German naval base and shipbuilding centre of Wilhelmshaven. Yesterday afternoon R.A.F. bombers escorted by fighters attacked shipping at Cherbourg in occupied France and other aircraft raked factories, railway yards and other targets in northern France with gunfire.

German planes raided the coastal districts of eastern England last night, but it was authoritatively stated that only a few bombs were dropped, causing but one fatality and damage.

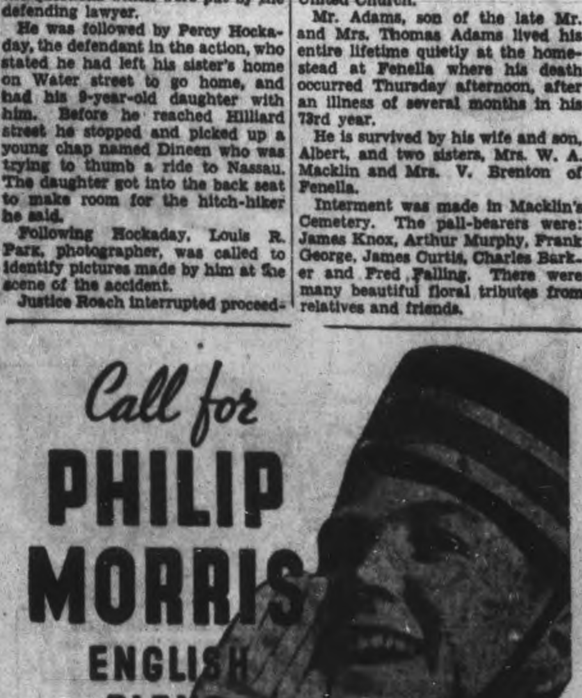
SAMUEL ADAMS

FENELLA, Sept. 16. — (ENS)— Funeral services for the late Samuel Adams were held on Saturday afternoon at his residence and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Both services at the house and graveside were conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. Unstead of the United Church.

Mr. Adams, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adams lived his entire lifetime quietly at the homestead at Fenella where his death occurred Thursday afternoon, after an illness of several months in his 73rd year.

He is survived by his wife and son, Albert, and two sisters, Mrs. W. A. Macklin and Mrs. V. Brenton of Fenella.

Interment was made in Macklin's Cemetery. The pall-bearers were: James Knox, Arthur Murphy, Frank George, James Curtis, Charles Barker and Fred Falling. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends.



BENSFORT

Florence Beebe Honored At Jolly Shower

BENSFORT, Sept. 16 — (ENS).— On Friday evening about two hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Beebe in honor of their eldest daughter, Florence, whose marriage to Mr. Jack Staples of Bobcaygeon takes place on Tuesday.

The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts including flannelette blankets, several pieces of pyrex, lace and linen cloths, towels, pictures, electric lamps, china, cushions and many other gifts. The Rev. Mr. Rowland kindly acted as chairman for the short program. Mrs. N. Thompson and Eilleen Thompson sang a duet; Ferne Gainor gave a piano solo; Miss Hilda Thompson gave a reading, and Mrs. Joe Edgerton, a piano solo.

A special item on the program was the presentation of an end table and reflector from the pupils of Lakeview School where Miss Beebe taught last year. Sylvia Pengelly read the address and Marilyn Barnard and George Caldwell made the presentation. Little Helen Caldwell presented the bride-to-be with a bouquet.

The main address of the evening was read by Miss Grace Finnie, to which Florence very graciously replied. All joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Lunch was served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dawson were visitors to Hamilton this week. Miss Ida Dawson is spending a few days there with Miss M. Dawson.

Schools reopened on Tuesday with Miss L. Varty as teacher of S.S. No. 2. Miss M. Winsow at No. 3, and Miss E. Van Allen at No. 4

Mr. Bruce Fisher recently spent a week in the vicinity of St. Mary's and Niagara.

Mrs. Harold Beebe and Shirley spent a few days in Toronto recently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lord and family of Springville were visitors here on Friday.

A well attended patching bee was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Morrison for Red Cross on Wednesday afternoon. A large amount of work was accomplished, several tops for quilt being started and some being completed.

missioned officers and men missing. Majority of them were from the Essex Scottish, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Royal Rifles of Toronto.

Quebec had 32 officers and 460 other ranks missing, chiefly from Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal and the Black Watch.

Manitoba had 14 officers and 203 other ranks missing, bulk of them in the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg.

Saskatchewan's total was 128, made up of five officers and 123 other ranks.

Alberta had 11 officers and 106 other ranks lost.

In 149 cases next-of-kin were listed as living in the United Kingdom or Ireland, and in 68 cases in the United States.

Four battalion commanders were listed as missing. They are Lt.-Col. John G. Andrews of Barrie, Ont., commander of the Calgary Tank Battalion; Lt.-Col. Charles C. I. Merritt of Belleville, Ont., of the South Saskatchewan Regiment; Lt.-Col. Fred K. Jasperson of Windsor, Ont., commander of the Essex Scottish (who was reported believed killed), and Lt.-Col. D. E. Catto of Toronto, O.C. of the Royal Regiment.

Poultry Raisers Smiling As Demand Leaps

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.(CP).—With a few pithy remarks about "it's an ill wind...." Canadian poultry raisers to-day could view the prospect of a lively demand ofr poultry meat and supplies with which to meet it.

Beef shortages continue in several Canadian areas, and plentiful supplies are considered unlikely for some time by authorities. The Bacon Board has asked consumers to do without pork for about seven weeks in order that British bacon requirements can be met.

And so the trend has been to poultry.

Agricultural Department officials said quantities of poultry meat have been increased largely by the campaign to produce millions of dozens of eggs for Britain. Farmers enlarging their flocks of laying birds are feeding the males and marketing them as soon as possible.

Stocks of poultry in storage on Sept. 1 were 5,924,894 pounds against 2,842,467 pounds on the same date last year. Turkeys made up a large proportion of the holdings this year, being 3,641,431 pounds against 1,234,886 a year ago, but during August turkeys in storage were reduced by about 900,000 pounds.

The short supply in other meats has brought a heavy demand for poultry, officials said. Both Montreal and Toronto reported that in spite of heavy receipts of both fowl and chickens the arrivals were not sufficient to meet the demand and prices tended to strengthen.

"Stocks of poultry in the country to be marketed are extremely heavy, and it is questionable whether the killing and packing facilities either on the farms or in commercial establishments are adequate to take care of the volume if it is all left for marketing during a few weeks in November and December," an official said.

"The fact that this poultry meat is needed now should encourage early marketings which will help relieve a congestion which otherwise will come in November and December."

Convict Soldier "Act Of Affray"

BEAVERTON, Sept. 16 — (CP).— Magistrate K. A. Cameron, of Barrie, yesterday convicted and placed on suspended sentence an Orillia soldier, Francis Gordon Tunney, charged with committing an "act of affray" in a riot in a Brechin beverage room and nearby dance hall, and reserved judgment for two weeks in the cases of Boyd Balkwell, Garnet Mathieson, and Manley Snache, all of Orillia, charged with obstructing and causing damage.

Norman Tunney was acquitted of the same charge, together with another Orillian, Robert Schultz. Two other soldiers, Kenneth Mix and William Waters, were convicted of obstructing and causing damage and judgment reserved in their cases.

The case against Morley Belyea, Orillia civilian, was adjourned two weeks. Mary Thompson was given suspended sentence when found guilty of obstruction and damage. A conviction was registered against Leonard Tuckey, Orillia, and he was remanded for sentence.

Judgment was reserved in the case of Robert Gordon, Orillia civilian. Gordon Ainsworth, a soldier was convicted and remanded for sentence. Judgment was also reserved in the case of Charles Lehay.

Seventeen defendants appeared to answer charges in the case.

7 Missing On Plane

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 16. — (AP).—Seven men, five officers and two enlisted men, were aboard a United States army bomber which has been missing four days from Geiger Field, the public Relations officer of the base said Monday.

He said the next of kin have been notified that the men are missing.

KEPT FROM WORK BY BACKACHE

Suffered for 3 Years

Backache may be just bothersome; on the other hand, it may creep on and become chronic. Such was the case with the man who wrote the letter below—until he was induced to try Kruschen. To-day he has a different tale to tell:—

"For three years I was badly troubled with my kidneys. They caused me such severe pain in the back that I had to quit working. I tried many prescriptions, but they did me no good. One day I saw a Kruschen Salts advertisement. After using three bottles, my backache was entirely gone, and I can now work as well as ever. I shall never be without Kruschen Salts again."—J.E.

Unless the kidneys—or body filters—function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms; rheumatic pains for one, excessive fatigue for another. Kruschen Salts is one of the finest diuretics or kidney aperients available for assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

Stubborn Spots Vanish—Safely!

YOU, TOO, WILL BE ASTONISHED to see how much brighter and sweeter-smelling clothes come washed the Sunlight way. Grimiest work clothes, the most soiled towels, play suits and bed linens turn out spotlessly clean when you put a touch of Sunlight to them. Yes, just a touch of this amazing soap on the most soiled parts does the trick. For Sunlight instantly leaves a film of soap where it comes in contact with the dirt . . . and as you wash, Sunlight whips up into the richest, deepest-cleansing lather you ever saw!

No rubbing needed

THINK OF IT! There's no hard rubbing needed when Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" gets to work on grimy spots. That saves the clothes—and you, too! And best of all, clothes come brighter all over. No danger of anyone saying your clothes look streaky or "half-washed" when you use the Sunlight method. Sunlight is all pure soap—safe for colors. Get Sunlight today!

SPEEDIEST, EASIEST DISHWASHING EVER!

• The moment you touch Sunlight Soap you can feel how much more soapy it is. This "extra-soapiness" makes quick work of grease and stuck-on food particles. So use Sunlight for dishwashing and all cleaning, too. See how dishes, silver, glasses sparkle! And Sunlight is so kind to hands.

12 Men From This District Missing

THESE ARE PLENTIFUL

People contemplating alterations or additions to their homes this autumn may be assured that there is no shortage of paint, wall boards or even hardwood flooring. With certain types of roofing, however, it is another story.

HOLIDAY FARE.

From one of the military headquarters in this district comes an authentic bit of news that when the beef supply ran out, and none was available for several days, the officer in charge of the commisary went out to a farm and bought enough turkeys to fill the bill until deliveries of beef caught up with that camp.

FIRE DESTROYS CROP

A fire of unknown origin that swept through a barn belonging to Fred Lewis on the East Quarter Line between the 7th and 8th concession of Cavan, Tuesday evening, destroyed his whole crop. Besides the crop lost, there were the implements, along with some stock and fowl destroyed. The total loss has not been ascertained.

CARS DAMAGED

Cars owned by A. E. Pavey, 167 Lansdowne street and W. J. Peters, 296 Margaret Avenue, were damaged in a traffic accident at Hunter and George streets. Pavey was travelling north on George street and was about to cross Hunter street as Peters moved his car out from the east curb where it had been parked.

FARMER IS FINED

After it had been revealed that he did his drinking in an automobile John Gordon Welsh, Asphodel farmer, who pleaded guilty in police court this morning to consuming liquor while on the interdicted list was fined $20 and $2.50 costs or 25 days in jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. The fine was stepped up when Provincial Constable Price Morris stated that a car was involved in the case.

CHARGED WITH SELLING

As the result of a recent raid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling upon a Havelock residence, Harry Baker, was charged in police court this morning with illegal sale of liquor. W. J. Arthur Fair who appeared for the accused told the court that the case would be defended. It was adjourned until September 23.

RETURNS TRUE BILL

The Grand Jury at the Fall Assizes before the Hon. Mr. Justice Wilfrid Roach in Peterborough today returned true bills on three charges of fraud against Donald Lloyd of Lakefield. His Lordship dismissed the Jury following this report and proceeded with the civil action of Laidley vs. Hockaday for $20,000 damages. The Lloyd case will probably get under way Thursday.

ATTENDANCE GOOD

After nearly two months in operation the Peterborough Blood Donors Clinic is running along smoothly handling on an average of 50 donors a day. Those at the Clinic paid tribute to the local factories for the way in which they are co-operating and giving their employees time off to come and give the transfusions. The medical men giving their services at the Clinic today were Drs. Prust, D. B. Avison, and R. S. Chenoweth. The ladies of St. James' church and the Jeanette Scott Chapter I.O.D.E. were again on duty. There have been quite a few men on holidays in the district who are regular donors at their homes, who when their time comes around drop in at the Peterborough Clinic to give their blood.

FAIR ON THE AIR.

CHEX will broadcast from the Lindsay Exhibition Thursday at 2 p.m.

1,030 IN CAMP.

The present roll call at Morrow Park military camp counts the names of 1,030 men.

WRONG PLACE

Girls eligible for the Selective Service registration are asked to note that the Selective Service office is on the second floor of the Barrie Building on George street. Postmaster Charles Lacheur reported to the Examiner this morning that there has been quite a steady stream into the Post Office of people who thought that was the registration point.

Fall Plowing Made Easier

The keynote of the county crop reports for the week ending Monday was a general reference to rains that fell throughout the province.

"Fall plowing has been made easier" in Hastings "and pastures have improved as a result of the heavy rains. The north of this county has had a heavy frost."

Peterborough expects less sowing of fall wheat than last year, and Prince Edward says apple picking will be general during the coming week. Tomatoes have been ripening rather slowly; threshing is about completed.

Rains in York have held up completion of harvest operations, "but they were badly needed for corn, roots and potatoes, and will result in a marked increase in the acreage of fall wheat."

Carleton says the rain fall was 3.17 inches in 36 hours, nearly twice as much as the precipitation in Peterborough. The corn crop is heavy.

Another recurring note is reference to the cutting of corn and the filling of silos. About 10 per cent of the grain is still in the stook in Renfrew.

Huron estimates a decrease of more than 25 per cent in this season's wheat acreage as compared with the work of 1940. However, Waterloo farmers are going to plant more than the average of wheat acreage.

Brant says very few feeder cattle have been bought, and the number on grass is only about 60 per cent of normal. In Lincoln the demand for whole milk and cream exceeds the supply.

Tom MacDonald Buried In Gaspe

The funeral will take place Thursday at Gaspe, Que. A telegram received at the MacDonald hometoday brought this information: "Regret circumstances in Gaspe make it impossible to permit the removal of the remains of Thomas MacDonald to be sent home. He will be buried with full naval honors in the Protestant cemetery at Gaspe tomorrow."

Petty Officer MacDonald's mother and sister have been visiting at Niagara Falls, and were reported today to be on their way home to Peterborough.

Soldier Is Charged Careless Driving

As a result of a recent accident on Highway 28, a short distance west of Peterborough, Pte. Gordon Peck of the headquarters staff of the local Military Training Centre faced a charge of careless driving before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Peck was defended by Lieut. B. C. Grant of the Training Centre and the prosecution was conducted by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure who laid the charge.

Roy Ballantyne, 18, Cavan township, swore that he was driving his car west at 5 o'clock in the morning on Highway 28 and saw another automobile approaching in an easterly direction. When this second car was 150 feet away, he said, he noticed it veering over to his side of the road. He accordingly pulled his car over until its right wheels were on the shoulder of the road. In spite of that he said the other vehicle struck the left front corner of his machine and as a result his car went into the ditch.

It was the rear of the other vehicle that struck his, he swore. No one was hurt in the accident, he said.

Albert Bendelow, Cavan, and William Edgerton, 130 Park street, who were at the scene of the crash soon after told of seeing skidmarks on the right hand side of the road and similar evidence was given by Traffic Officer McClure who said that a pile of dust two or three feet from the right edge of the road, indicating the scene of the collision. Officer McClure said that Pte. Peck had admitted that he was driving the other car at the time of the accident.

The case is proceeding.

SUMMER GARDENS

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

Sept. 16, 1917 —French airmen raided towns in Wurtemberg and Rhenish Prussia. Austrians air-raided Venice, but four counter-attacks on the Bainsizza Plateau failed. Threatened revolt of Russian Cossacks checked, and Gen. Kaledin resigned his leadership to Premier A. F. Kerensky.

Casualty List Of Twelve In Dieppe Raid

Twelve men from the Peterborough district are listed as missing in the complete casualty list of the Canadian Army overseas following the Dieppe raid on August 24, but none have been classed as killed in action, and just one is reported as wounded. He is Lt. Leslie England of a Western Regiment whose father is employed as a barber with Ray Bacon on Charlotte street.

The Peterborough district list is as follows:

WRIGHT, GEORGE DERLAND, PTE., Mrs. Eileen Wright (wife), 553 Parliament street, Toronto, formerly Marmora.

Pte. Charles Haggerty of Havelock is the youngest brother of Mrs. German Ellis, and he enlisted at Toronto in April, 1940, when just 20 years of age. He spent from June until November of 1941 in Iceland. He was born in Havelock and received his education in the village.

Pte. Leonard Rashotte of Tweed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rashotte. He was a noted boxer and athlete an enlisted with the Mount Royal Fusiliers.

Pte. George D. Wright enlisted in September, 1939, at Hamilton with the Royal Light Infantry and went overseas early in 1940. He is the youngest son of Isaac Wright formerly of Marmora and now residing in Madoc, and he was born in Marmora. For a few years previous to enlistment he had resided in Hamilton. His home address is now given as 553 Parliament street, Toronto.

Pte. Carment Ernest Post, reported as missing served with the Essex Scottish and enlisted at Windsor, Ontario, where his mother was living. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Post, former residents of Havelock, where this boy was born. He is 21 years of age.

Donald Stringer is the youngest son of Deputy Chief Ranger William Stringer and Mrs. Stringer of Lake St. Peter, up north of Maynooth, and he is well known throughout Hastings county. Four other brothers are serving in different units.

Sgt. John Wilce Dudley is one of the best known of the younger crowd in Warkworth village and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dudley, who operate a grist mill. He enlisted with the 14th Field Battery at Cobourg, and later transferred to the 2nd Field Battery.

Robert George Fickling is the son of Mrs. Winnifred Fickling of Millbrook. His mother is a widow. Fickling is 21 years of age and was working in Toronto when he enlisted with the Royal Regiment. For some years the family lived a few miles west of Millbrook later moving into the village.

7 Sons Of Rabbi Are In Uniform

Staff Sergeant Sam Maser of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, at Morrow Park military camp, is one of the seven sons of an Ottawa rabbi who are in uniform. Their father is Rabbi Max Maser. Five of the boys are on active service, two in the Reserve Army, and their sister, Dorothy, recently married LAC William Segal of the R.C.A.F. Another brother has applied for enlistment in the Reserve Army and the youngest, twelve years old, is a Boy Scout.

The brothers are: Lance Corporal A. Maser of the Army Service Corps; Corporal David Maser is with the Ordnance Corps, Ottawa; Corporal Normal Maser with the Canadian Dental Corps; Sergeant C. H. Maser with the Ordnance Corps, training at Kingston; AC-2 Gordon Maser, Rockcliffe; Private Dan Maser of the Ordnance Corps (R.F.); Staff Sergeant Sam Maser. Their brother-in-law is LAC William Segal of R.C.A.F. at Bagotville, Que.

Killed In Action

Sgt. Gunner Lloyd Gordon Harvie, 306½ Louis Street, Peterboro, was wounded in action over enemy territory following a raid on July 31. He died August 1, one day before his 21st birthday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harvie, and his father is serving with the Veterans' Guard of Canada at the Canadian Legation in Washington.

Peterboro Flier Killed In Bomber Raid

Seventh Peterborough city flier to die on active service is a boy who enlisted two months after graduating with his senior matriculation from the Peterborough Collegiate and the sad news of his death was conveyed to headquarters in Ottawa by the International Red Cross at Geneva, Switzerland.

This casualty is Sgt. Air Gunner Lloyd Gordon (Laddie) Harvie, R.C.A.F., the only son of Pte. Hampdon H. Harvie and Mrs. Harvie, 306½ Louis street, Peterborough, and he died of wounds in Europe, the day after he set out in a Wellington bomber to attack an enemy target.

Sgt. Harvie would have been 21 years of age on August 2 of this year, one day after he died on enemy soil. He took off with the crew in a Wellington on July 31, and was posted as missing. A week ago, Red Cross officials sent word that he had died on the day following his departure from England, and had been buried in an occupied country.

He was a brilliant student, and graduated from the Peterborough Collegiate in June, 1940. In August he applied for enlistment with the air force, and was accepted but did not get his call for training until the following December. During the interim period he obtained employment in the Quaker Oats office. He graduated as a fully qualified air gunner at Fingal in November 21, but contracted a serious illness and was not able to proceed overseas with his unit in December.

He did however reach England in February and was on the transport ship that narrowly missed torpedoing on the Atlantic. It will be recalled that a destroyer moved quickly into position, into the path of two torpedoes launched at the troop ship, and intercepted both charges, which saved the troopship, but the destroyer was lost. He arrived in Britain on February 20 of this year.

The family moved to Peterborough from Woodville six years ago, and the father was employed as a barber with Archie Campbell. Now he is serving with the Veteran's Guard of Canada at the Canadian Legation in Washington. He is a veteran of World War 1, having enlisted with the 109th Battery at Lindsay and transferred to the 21st Battalion.

Surviving are his parents and one sister, Yvonne, a third form student at the Collegiate. Frank Harvie of Burnham street is an uncle, and another uncle, Royal Harvie is serving overseas with the S.D. and G's.

Family Hookup

HARROWSMITH, Ont., Sept. 16 (CP)—Because of the shortage of teachers, a mother has succeeded her daughter in the Junior room of Harrowsmith public school. Miss Miriam Goslin has now taken charge of the senior room, and her mother, Mrs. Archie Goslin of Hartington, has taken over her former post.

Y Worrie Club Makes $30 For War Victims

Some time ago the Y Worrie Club —a group of ladies with Mrs. W. M. Wood as president and Mrs. H. Turner as treasurer — turned in the results of a fine effort which raised the sum of $50.00 for the victims of air raids in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, and at that time they promised to come again with further help for the same cause.

Their latest venture was the holding of a draw on a Boston terrier which had been donated by their president, and from this their treasurer has turned in the nice sum of $30.00, which is listed to-day in the receipts acknowledged for the fund.

The draw was made by Bob Hotrum of the Canadian Legion, and the award went to Mrs. Cross of East City.

The members have now set themselves the task of further augmenting this latest donation, for which purpose they will hold events among the group itself and expressed the hope tha they can at least bring it up to $50.00.

C.G.E.-Genelco Workers.

From all sections and employees in the Canadian General Electric Company Ltd. and its subsidiary, Genelco Ltd., has come a steady flow of help for the people of Britain since the fund was instituted, which in the aggregate has amounted to a goodly portion of the amount collected to date.

Last Saturday a committee of C.G.E. and Genelco workers held a dance in the Co-operative Hall, from which the surplus that was made has been turned over to go on its mission of mercy in relieving the sufferers from air raids over Britain. A feature of this dance, which proved to be quite popular, was the free admission to all men of the forces serving their country, and plans are being made to continue these events under the same auspices, and in the same manner.

The surplus realised $19.77, and this was handed in by Bert Stuland, bringing the fun within less than $100 of passing another thousand dollar mark.

Sporting Event of Note.

Very seldom does an opportunity present itself to the sporting world of this community as will be offered at Riverside Park on Saturday, October 3 at 2:40 p.m., when two first-class teams, one each from the Royal Air Force members serving at the R.A.F. Bombing and Gunnery School at Picton, and R.A.F. No. 33 Navigation School at Mount Hope will meet in a game of soccer. All these players come from the Motherland, and included in the line-ups will be some who have served on professional teams in the British Isles, where the game is national in character, and undoubtedly the most popular.

These teams are coming here for the express purpose of raising money for the fund, and in almost a direct way to help their own kith and kin in those Islands which they are proud to take their part in defending and call their home. Tickets are now on sale at 25 cents each and may be procured from interested workers in the industrial plants as well as from members of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club, or at the Examiner office. Children of school age will be admitted for 15 cents payable at the gate.

Surplus from dance sponsored by committee of C. G.E. and Genelco workers in Co-op Hall September 12, per Bert Stuland	19.77
Proceeds of draw on Boston terrier donated by Mrs. W. M. Wood, sponsored by Y Worrie Club per Mrs. H. Turner	30.00
Total to date	$45,912.48

Damage 6 Axis Planes

CAIRO, Sept. 16—(AP).—British fighter planes damaged at least six Axis aircraft in four minor engagements over the El Alamein front yesterday, but land activity was confined to artillery exchanges in the southern sector, British headquarters announced today.

During the previous night, the bulletin said, British patrols harassed enemy position and working parties in the northern and central areas.

Amendment To City's Building Bylaw Is Sought

That every household unit, separate dwelling or apartment, shall be equipped with at least one basin, toilet and bath, and also a kitchen sink, is the substance of a recommendation from the Board of Health Tuesday night to the legal committee of the city council.

"Baths are not required now under the bylaw," Sanitary Inspector MacPherson said.

"The people of Peterborough have always felt that the general class of lower cost houses were at least properly equipped," Mayor Hamilton commented. "Looking through the building bylaw lately I felt that it is not all it should be in regard to sanitary conveniences in houses."

The deficiencies of the bylaw were discussed in connection with a report by Mr. MacPherson about housing conditions. One apartment combined the toilet and lavatory accommodation into one room available to the several families. In another house six persons were occupying one room, and in another place four persons were "sleeping, eating, etc." in one small room. "One trailer occupancy within the city limits was quickly removed when it was brought to our attention."

A detached house had no conveniences at all except "one kitchen sink and this was drained through a galvanized iron pipe into a clump of bushes."

Mr. MacPherson said the Medical Officer of Health had put a stop to the two and three family use of one toilet outfit.

Permits Delayed

"The weakness as I see is this that often the work on a house is undertaken and advanced before a permit is taken out," said Alderman Dutton.

"We should demand that no plumber shall begin work on a dwelling without the approval of the building inspector, City Engineer Parsons," Mayor Hamilton suggested.

Alderman Dutton said responsibility should be distributed not only the owner and the builder but everybody concerned in the work.

"If somebody gets a house half finished it is not an easy thing to do to come along tell them to tear it down," Alderman Dutton remarked.

"Let's do something about it then," was the attitude of Mayor Hamilton. He moved a resolution, seconded by Alderman Sullivan, that the legal committee of the council be requested to amend the building bylaw to require the minimum of the three-piece bathroom, also a sink in the kitchen, and further that prior to the undertaking of the work the proposed plumbing units must have the aproval of the plumbing inspector.

It was stated in the discussion about permits that houses have actually been finished before the owner or builder obtained a permit as required by the bylaw.

Given 15 Days For Theft Of $7

Aldon Lawrence Freeman, formerly of Lindsay, who pleaded guilty last week to stealing $7.15 from E. H. Dulmage, Otonabee service station operator, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to fifteen days in jail.

Provincial Constable Price Morris told the court that the accused's previous record had been clear, with the exception of a sentence in the Bowmanville Boys' School at the age of 12 years. He had been in the army, the officer said, but had been discharged for physical reasons.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling, who arrested Freeman said that the accused had admitted taking the money, stating that he had taken it while Dulmage had left the service station to wait on a customer.

Volunteer Firemen Needed For A.R.P.

The second basic lectures in the sixth and seventh series of the A.R.P. course will be given Sunday at 2.15 p.m. and Monday at 8 p.m. in the Lyceum. The speakers at both meetings will be R. L. Dobbin and Capt. Hubert Eastwood discussing public utilities and a talk on elementary first aid by Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H.

Volunteer firemen between the ages of 30 and 50 are needed, also owners of cars and light trucks for transport purposes. Men and women are invited for the transport service. Wardens and fire watchers are also wanted and a few boys of sixteen for messenger duty.

Lt.-Col. M. R. Sloan said today that the public is urgently requested to take up A.R.P. duty. Volunteers will be taken on at the Sunday and Monday meetings.

Three Blasts On Factory Whistles Warn Port Hope Citizens Of Power Shortage

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 16.—(CP)—Port Hope public utilities commission have set up a plan whereby citizens will be warned of an impending power shortage by three signal blasts on factory whistles in the town, it was announced today.

This will be the signal for shutting off every electric appliance in use, except those absolutely necessary. When the power goes back to normal, a series of two blasts on the whistles would signal the "all clear."

Failure of citizens to co-operate might mean blackout of sections of the town until the power shortage has been cleared up, the commission warned.

Reported Missing

Pte. Charles Haggerty of Havelock, brother of Mrs. German Ellis, has been reported missing since the Dieppe raid, and no further information has been forthcoming. He was serving with the Royal Rifles of Toronto.

Officer Cadets Demonstrate On Live Shells

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 16.—(CP).—Cadets at the Brockville Officers' Training Centre demonstrated yesterday to 134 reserve army commanding officers, officers, and non-commissioned officers just how deadly are the weapons carried by an infantry platoon.

A platoon of cadets used live ammunition to demonstrate the methods of attack in battle drill, and displayed the full fire-power of a platoon, using all platoon weapons, supported by the battalion three-inch mortars, also firing live ammunition.

It was a realistic display of modern battle drill staged by Lt.-Col. Edmond A. Blais, chief instructor and acting commandant, in the absence of Col. Milton Gregg, V.C., of Ottawa, on holidays.

The reserve army officers and N.C.O.'s were members of the instructional classes being held at Kingston, Ont., to train officers and instructors. They were led by Col. L. W. W. Slack, of Ottawa, commander of the 33rd reserve brigade group, Maj. P. B. Francis, of Ottawa, brigade major; and Capt. W. R. Howard, of Kingston, training oficer.

In direct charge of the demonstration which was planned by Col. Blais was Maj. Hubert Jones, chief instructor, who was assisted by Capt. Edward Maxtel, of Toronto, training officer.

Doing Over 40 m.p.h. Motorist Fined $15

Driving faster than 40 miles an hour, in violation of the war-time regulations cost two motorists, Francis Heffernan and William Bound, $15 and $2.50 costs, when they entered written pleas of guilty in traffic court this morning.

K. Johnston who admitted driving faster than 30 miles an hour within the city limits, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

Various offences under the city's parking by-law resulted in fine of $2 and $1 costs for the following who entered written pleas of guilty: Wilbert Succee, K. M. Sine, Clifford T. Willis, I. Mansfield, Edgar Miller, James Wilson, Joseph Hemphill, A. Buott, O. B. McIlvenna, William Floyd, Jas. W. Cruikshanks, Gordon Hudson, Raymond Wragg, Clayton Kidd, J. J. Daniels and Kenneth Hughes.

Arthur Johnston Hotelman Dies Age Of 69

Proprietor of the Windsor Hotel for 36 years, Arthur T. Johnston died suddenly Tuesday evening, following a heart attack. He was apparently in his usual health until he was stricken, death ensuing a few minutes afterward.

Mr. Johnston was 69 years of age and was born in Toronto, where his father, the late Thomas Johnston, was head compositor on the old Mail and Empire. He himself served his apprenticeship as a compositor on the same paper.

He purchased the Windsor Hotel in 1906, began operating it on August 1 of that year, and had been in charge of the hotel ever since that time.

Soon after arriving in Peterborough, Mr. Johnston, who had been an amateur ball player of note in Toronto, interested himself in baseball here and for a number of years he was manager of the Peterborough Midland League club in the days when that loop was a powerful organization, with no residence rules and players were imported from here, there and everywhere, at short notice. He provided Peterborough with a series of colourful teams. Mr. Johnston, in those days, too, took an interest in junior baseball and for a number of years he officiated as umpire in Public School League games, handling them as if they were big league fixtures.

Baseball was his early love and before coming to Peterborough he was the friend of Buck Freeman, Bill Dineen and other big league celebrities of that period.

In later years horse-racing took the place of ball in Mr. Johnston's regard and he followed the sport with keen interest. He owned a number of race horses himself, including Armadale, one of the best known harness horses in the country.

Mr. Johnston was widely known here and throughout the district. His was a genial personality and he had a host of friends, who knew how often a helping hand was extended by him to those who needed aid.

Surviving relatives are his widow, two sons, Arthur M. and Edward in Peterborough, a brother, Frank Johnston in Cleveland, and a sister Mrs. (Dr.) McIntosh, in Toronto.

The funeral service will be held on Thursday evening at eight o'clock at the Nesbitt Funeral Home on Charlotte street with interment being made in Toronto.

Missing After Dieppe

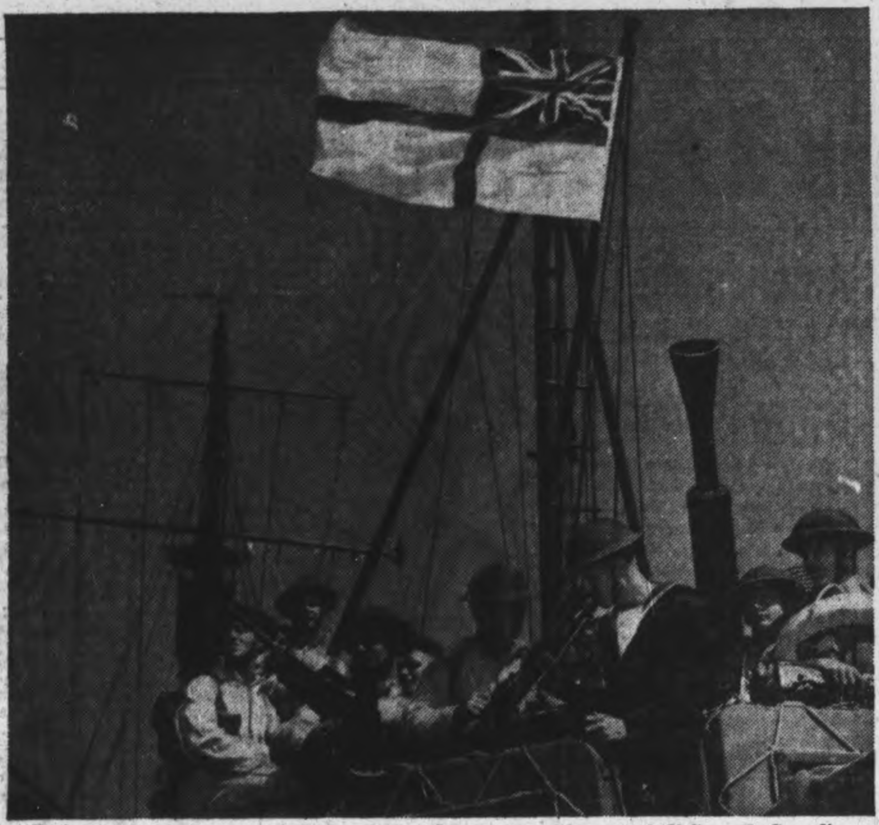
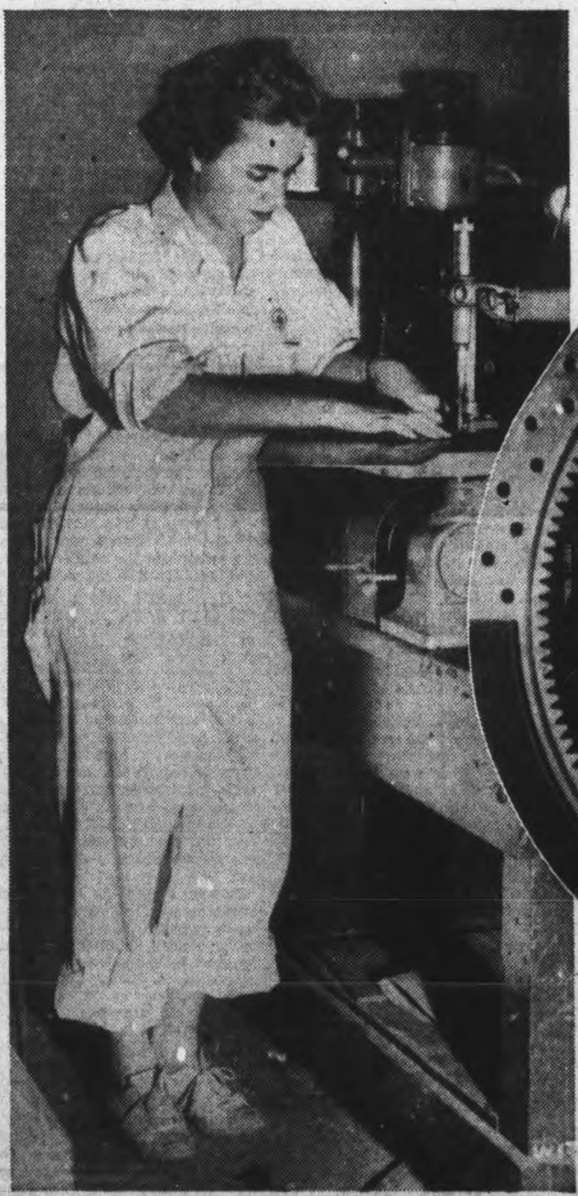
In Three Years of War the Canadian People Have Become a Nation of Warriors



Canada's ships bear great share of all convoy work, patrol U.S. and Canadian coastlines. A navy of 450 ships and 41,000 men, it started with 15 ships and 1,800 men in 1939. Photo shows ship carrying troops on a combined operation.

Food for fighting men, for munitions workers and other Victory Bond purchasers is produced by 1,250,000 farm workers. If Britain were cut off from her munitions supply she could carry on for some time, but not if Canada's food convoys were blocked. This year's bumper grain crop assures Britain of plenty. Courageous merchant seamen are also carrying more cheese, fish, pork products across the sea.

The Army is not "going to sit back of the ditch that's called the English channel", says Gen. McNaughton and 350,000 soldiers at home and abroad cheer his words.

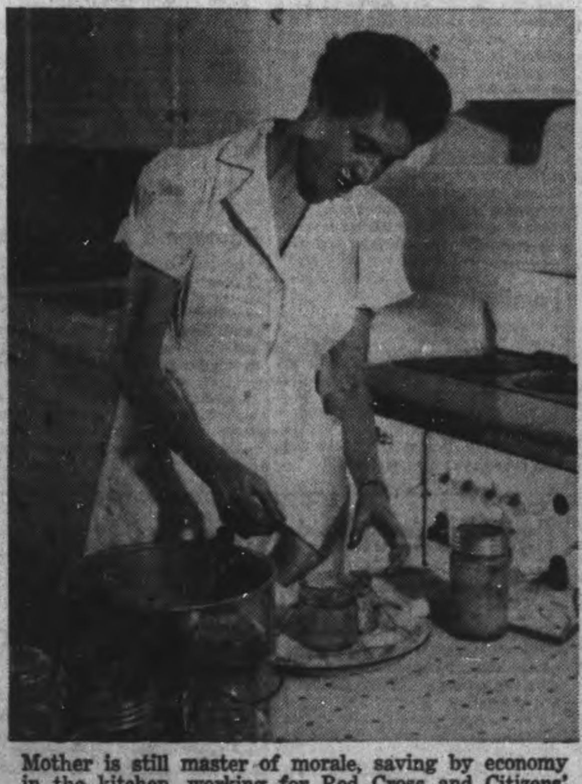


In all future expansion of war industry, Canada must rely upon womanpower, now 145,000 strong in munitions and related factories. They'll be registered Sept. 14.

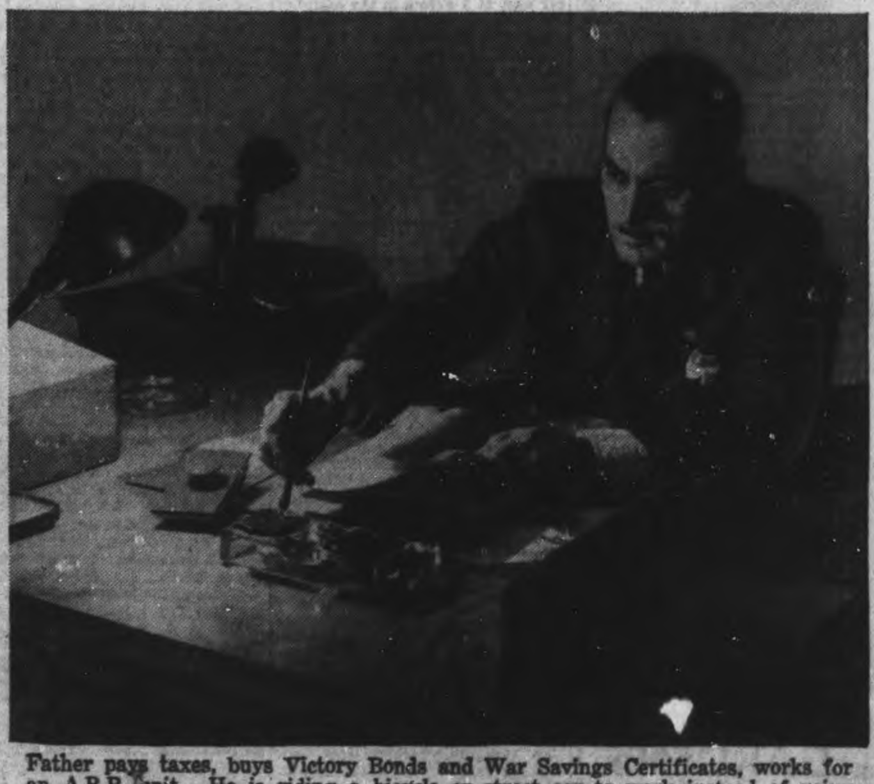
Ships, tanks, planes, guns—all the tools of war are pouring off our production lines, fashioned by 900,000 skilled workers, mostly trained since war's beginning.

On top of taxes and compulsory savings, $1,200,000,000 must be loaned this year to finance the war. Most of us are buying certificates and bonds, must buy more.

Proud of Dad's new wings is the warrior's son. R.C.A.F.'s 125,000 fighting airmen have distinguished themselves in action in Britain, the Middle East and Ceylon. Training Plan schools thousands of R.A.F. and Australian fliers.



Mother is still master of morale, saving by economy in the kitchen, working for Red Cross and Citizens' Service Committees, keeping the home fires burning.



Father pays taxes, buys Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, works for an A.R.P. unit. He is riding a bicycle or street car to work instead of using his car, operating his business in spite of shortage of manpower and materials.

Gray-McKenzie Vows Taken In Walkerville Ceremony

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16.—ENS)—A pretty wedding of local interest, was solemnized at Chalmers' United Church, Walkerville, on Saturday at 1 p.m., when Mary Margaret McKenzie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ross McKenzie, was united in marriage with Sub-Lieutenant George C. E. Gray, R.C.N.V.R. of Windsor, son of Mrs. Wentworth Gray and the late Mr. Gray of Millbrook, the Rev. C. F. McIntosh officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length dress of white brocaded satin, made on princess lines, the skirt extending into a short train, the fitted bodice having sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves coming to a point over the hands; the veil of fine tulle was of three-quarter length, arranged in halo style, and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses, blue forget-me-not. A single strand of matched pearls was worn, and white satin sandals completed the becoming ensemble.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Jean McKenzie, of London, Ontario, who wore a floor-length dress of powder blue taffeta with square neckline outlined in petal effect, bracelet length sleeves, and a wreath of petals and net in her hair; also by an intimate friend, Miss Betty Leighton, of Windsor, whose dress was of fresco rose taffeta, made on similar lines, with silver slippers completing the bridesmaids' costumes; each carried a Colonial bouquet, the former with yellow roses, and the latter with blue cornflowers, predominating. The bride's uncle, Mr. John McKenzie of Windsor was groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Gordon Marshal, of Windsor and John McKenzie, R.C.A.F., of Lachine, Quebec.

Previous to the entry of the bridal party into the church, Mr. Ray Moore of Windsor, sang "Through the Years," and during the signing of the register, "Because"; Miss Muriel Bennett, an intimate friend of the bride, played the wedding music.

Following the church ceremony, a reception was held at the Essex Golf and Country Club, attended by over one hundred and fifty guests. The bride's mother, Mrs. Byron Ross McKenzie, received wearing a floor-length dress of blackberry Chantilly lace with matching hat and corsage of pink glomelia; also the groom's sister, Mrs. Lloyd Acton, of Detroit, Mich., who wore a dress of deep orchid crepe, with flared skirt and gold belt, matching hat, and corsage of yellow glomelia.

Linen Shower

Miss Florence Scott, a recent bride, was honored by a group of friends, prior to her marriage. A linen shower was held at the home of Miss Margaret Burgess at her home in Norwood, at which the bride and her friends spent an enjoyoble social evening.

During the evening a telegram received by Miss Scott instructed her to follow the attached string to find the hidden treasure, which was a decorated tea-wagon laden with attractive parcels. After opening the gifts Miss Scott expressed her thanks to her friends.

Those present were: Misses E. G. Young, Margaret Beavis, Christina MacEacheran, Ruth Buyers, Helen McGee, Ruby Preston, Lila Burgess; Mesdames J. Stewart, E. Hamblin, K. Tedford, R. Stewart, A. Atkinson, Jeffery, R. Patterson, R. Scott, E. Edmondson, H. Morgan, H. Clarke.

Helen Cheyne Wed To John Polly

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 16 —(ENS).—The wedding of Miss Helen Cheyne, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cheyne, to John Polly was solemnized in Leaside United Church, Toronto, Saturday afternoon at 1.30. Rev. Harry Mellow, a former minister in charge of the Bethesda-Gore's Landing-Plainville circuit, performed the ceremony, and Mr and Mrs. Harold Minifie, the bride's sister and brother-in-law, were the attendants.

The bride was gowned in white sheer with shoulder-length veil and the matron of honor in rose satin dress. After the ceremony, the bridal party motored to the home of the bride at Gore's Landing for a wedding reception. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Polly left for a honeymoon in Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a flowered dress, blue coat and brown hat, shoes and bag. They will reside on University Avenue in Cobourg.

YOU GIRLS WHO SUFFER Distress From
PERIODIC FEMALE WEAKNESS
And Want To Build Up Red Blood!

Take heed if you, like so many women and girls, have all or any one of these symptoms: Do you ever suffer cramps, headaches, backache, distress of "irregularities", feel like fainting or are weak, nervous, depressed—due to functional monthly disturbances?

Then start at once—take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound TABLETS (with added iron)—made especially for women.

Pinkham's Tablets not only relieve monthly pain but also weak, nervous, rundown feelings. This is because of their soothing, helpful effect on ONE OF WOMAN'S MOST IMPORTANT ORGANS. Taken regularly—Pinkham's Tablets help build up resistance against such symptoms. Thousands upon thousands have reported benefit.

Pinkham's Tablets help build up red blood to give more strength. They are also a fine tonic for the stomach! Made in Canada.

Couple Wed In Norwood To Live In Peterborough

The wedding of Florence Muriel Scott, Reg.N., younger daughter of Mrs. Annie Scott and the late John Scott of Norwood, to Pte. Kenneth Norman Irwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Irwin of Lakefield, was solemnized on Saturday, September 12, in Norwood United Church, with Rev. Mr. E. G. Pugsley officiating. The church was decorated with baskets of autumn flowers, and Mr. Wesley Wildman of Trenton played the wedding music. Before the ceremony and during the signing of the register Miss Helen Glover sang 'O Perfect Love" and "Abide With Me."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Max Scott, the bride looked charming in a gown of white embossed organza made with a long torso and a very full skirt, puffed sleeves and a Peter Pan collar. Her only ornament was a cameo brooch, gift of the groom. Her fan-shaped finger-tip veil of fine white net and carried a nosegay of red and white roses and blue delphinium tied with red, white and blue ribbons, adding a patriotic note.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Margarett Burgess, Reg.N. who wore white-embossed powder blue organza on lines similar to the bride's gown, with a match Dutch cap and a nosegay of pastel shaded roses, glads, and baby 'mums tied with pink and white ribbon. Mr. Earl Powers of Peterborough was best man, and the ushers were Sgt. Bruce Scott of Kingston and Pte. Trevor Robb of Cornwall.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where she received the guests in a gown of black crepe with a matching velvet hat and a corsage of American beauty roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of rust crepe with a fox fur and black felt hat and a corsage of talisman roses.

Later, the bride and groom left to spend a week at the groom's cottage, the bride wearing a two-piece turquise wool dress, a black felt hat and matching accessories. They will live at 710 Water street, Peterborough.

DEPRIVING CHILD OF FATHER'S INFLUENCE IS CALLED UNJUST

Parents Should Work Together to Bring Up Youngsters in Right Way.

WHY is it that we hear so much about mothers' influence and so little about fathers'? Reams are written about mothers sacred influence. A mammy song is a sure tear jerker in any night club. Mother is credited with being the potter who forms the character of every man and woman who makes good in the world; but father is rarely mentioned as being of any importance in the family circle. Apparently, except for biological reasons and as a badge of respectability and for paying bills, children might as well not have fathers.

This is a point of view with which the majority of mothers heartily agree, and so sure are they that they know better how to rear their children than their fathers do and that only their influence counts, that they refuse to let their husbands have any say so whatever in the upbringing of their offspring.

Rare, indeed, is the woman who realizes that her husband loves children just as much as she does and is as anxious for their well-being, and may have a few ideas about child culture that are worth consideration.

On the contrary the average woman, who believes the birth of a child miraculously turns her into a female Solomon, pooh poohs her husband's every suggestion about rearing the infant. That's her job and she makes a monopoly of it. She forms its tastes, habits, manners and morals, and from the time Junior is born until he casts his first vote he is exclusively mother's product. Her stamp is on him from head to foot; but father has had no part in making him what he is.

Shutting Out Father Is Wrong

Now in shutting their fathers out from their children's lives and depriving the children of their father's influence, women do a great wrong to all, for it deprives the father of the reward that is justly his. He has spent years of toil and sacrifice in bringing up and educating his sons and daughters. And if, in the end, they have been spoiled by a weak and foolish mother, or if he cannot glory in them as his handiwork then his labor has been in vain. He is merely the "old man" who has signed the checks.

It's a great injustice to the children to deprive them of a father's influence because God knew what He was about when He ordained that they should have both a mother and a father. Neither one alone suffices. It takes the two of them working together to bring up a child in the way he or she should go. The most loving father cannot give to his children the cuddling, the patience, the understanding that a mother can. The strongest woman cannot give her children the sense of authority, nor the discipline, nor know how to handle them as a father would.

That's the great and unarguable argument against divorce. It robs children of their birthright to have both a father and a mother. It makes them poor little half-orphans. It takes away from them during their formative years the influences they need to develop them into fine men and women.

They Outgrow Mother

No matter how much children love their mother there comes a time when they feel they have outgrown her and when they laugh at her opinions and flout her authority. Later on, when they have acquired wisdom, they may look back upon her as a seer and saint, but for the time being they regard her as only a woman who has lived a shut-in life, who knows nothing of the modern world and whose ideas belong to a prehistoric age. So when mother tries to talk to them about the temptations of life and to warn them about the pitfalls they are likely to stumble in, they laugh at her. "Poor mother!" they think patronizingly. "Fancy her trying to tell us anything."

Fathers are not supposed to have the influence over their daughters that their mothers have, but when they do have, it is greater. A father can do far more to keep a girl toeing the line than a mother can because he can tell her what men think of girls who are not particular about their conduct or their dates. He can do more than her mother can to keep Marybelle from making a foolish marriage because he can show her just what sort of a cad the lad is she thinks she is in love with. And he can do more than anyone else to broaden her mind. I have never known a catty woman who had been pals with her father.

Campbellford Girl Is Married In Belleville

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 16 (ENS)—In St. Michael's rectory, Belleville, on Friday evening, the marriage was solemnized of Ione Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald MacPherson, Campbellford, to LAC John James Henry, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Henry of Vancouver, B.C. The bride wore a turquoise wool suit with black accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses and heather. She was attended by Mrs. Kenneth Wellman of Trenton who chose a blue dress with beige redingote and black accessories. Her corsage was similar to that worn by the bride.

The groom was attended by LAC Marcelle Pierotte of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry will make their home in Trenton.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal—a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Don't you take chances—look at your child's tongue and check the breath every day! And at the first sign of bad odor on the breath or a coated tongue, give Children's Own Tablets. Small, pleasant-tasting tablets made especially for youngsters from runabout age to 15 years, they are wonderfully effective in helping to clean out harmful wastes and sweeten sour, upset stomachs. No drastic weakening flush-out action like many old-fashioned laxatives have.

Get a package of Children's Own Tablets—only 25¢—today from your druggist. Made by the makers of Baby's Own Tablets—your guarantee of a reliable product. Liberal trial sample FREE to Mothers. Address Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

Married In Peterborough

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Turner, whose wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother at 550 Aylmer Street. Mrs. Turner was formerly Miss Irene Cox, daughter of Mrs. Cox and the late Mr. W. T. Cox of Peterborough, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Turner of Orangeville.

Investigations Increase Work of Children's Aid

The September meeting of the board of the Children's Aid Society was held in the City Buildings on Tuesday afternoon, with the chairman, Mr. J. Dutton, presiding.

In her report, Miss Rachael Young stated that the investigation work for the Dependents' Allowance Board and the Dependents' Board of Trustees has become increasingly heavy, there having been 68 such investigations during June, July and August. The society has had already in September applications for 23 of these investigations.

The family situation is becoming increasingly serious, with evidence in several cases pointing to the fact that mothers are deliberately neglecting their children in the hope that the society will relieve them of the responsibility. The society is also receiving, directly or indirectly, numerous requests from men overseas to visit their wives and children.

All wards of the society who are over 16 were employed during the summer, and two boys of 14 have earned their way by assisting on farms. Four girls enjoyed holidays at the "Y" Camp and some of the foster mothers arranged for children of one family to visit each other. Eleven children from four families have been in the shelter for short periods but have now returned to their parents. One infant, whose mother was unable to care for him has been placed in a foster home and wardship action is being taken. Nine applications for adoption were received.

The society is now dealing with 16 cases under the Unmarried Parents' Act. Because the girls can get work so readily, many prefer to assume the financial responsibility for their child. Some wish to place the baby in a foster home and once again a saturation point seems to have been reached with regard to foster homes. Miss Young expressed the society's appreciation of those mothers who are not anxious to take a baby, but will do so to help out.

The C.W.V.S. have given assistance and transportation.

A deputation from Harvey Township visited the meeting to discuss the case of a mother and three children dependent on Harvey township and to discuss the possibility of the society's taking over the responsibility.

BLACKOUT SANDWICHES
Emergency Food For Hungry Families

ALL the family will praise your sandwiches if you will just avoid "flat taste" by the addition of H. P. Sauce. This is the secret to appetizing sandwiches.

"Blackout" Sandwiches are the latest wartime "newey". To make them, whip together ½ lb. of cream cheese with 1 tablespoon of H. P. Sauce and ½ tablespoon of horseradish; then sauté a 3½ oz. can of chipped beef and a tablespoon of butter until frizzled. Break up fine and add to cheese mixture. Spread on buttered brown bread.

H. P. is a fine old English type, thick, fruity sauce. It is economical because it is concentrated. Try it on meat, fish, fowl, salads, soups, stews, etc. You'll be surprised at the wonderful flavour it gives foods.

ENJOY your food ... but plan for food value, too

EAT the foods you like. It is important to enjoy your meals—but also plan to get the utmost benefit from them. POST'S BRAN FLAKES are a delicious, ready-to-eat cereal ... they also have valuable food properties.

1 Crisp, golden-brown flakes—nourishing—with a delicious, nut-like flavor you'll really enjoy.

3 Supply useful quantities of iron and phosphorus—minerals your body needs.

Post's Bran Flakes are equally delicious and effective as a cereal or in bran muffins. Muffin recipe on Regular Size and Giant Economy Size package.

Nurse Exchange

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (CP).—Lt.-Col. Elizabeth Smellie, matron-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Monday forecast the possibility of a wartime lend-lease exchange of nursing personnel with the United States.

Lt.-Col. Smellie is here for conferences with the sub-committee on Nursing of the office of Defence Committee on Health and Welfare Services, which is headed by Paul V. McNutt, United States Manpower Director.

Miss Smellie's forecast was echoed by Miss Alma Haupt, executive secretary of the sub-committee on Nursing, who said it was one of several co-operative plans under discussion.

Close Deducting

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 16—(AP).—The dog that didn't bite the burglars solved a robbery case today. It was all clear to John O'Connel when he found his house ransacked and the family terrier sleeping peacefully. He figured that if the dog had made no commotion the burglars must be nearby residents. He was right—two neighborhood boys, 14 and 16, admitted the robbery.

Kingston would have liked to continue in the O.H.A. senior ranks with Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Toronto, St. Catharines and any other senior club that might be formed in that area but it is impossible to make those long distant drives now. Kingston Combines made the cross province trips last year by motor car, often leaving home early on the morning of a game and returning about breakfast time the following day. The trips to Ottawa are not so tough and should give Kingston senior class hockey again. Kingston is in a bad location for good hockey groupings, being the only city between Ottawa and Oshawa with an artificial ice rink and the only city in Eastern Ontario with a senior class team. Further information on Kingston's application for an entry in the Ottawa city league will be known next week. A Kingston delegation plans to visit Ottawa and there will likely be a decisive meeting. All communications with Ottawa puck powers regarding a Kingston entry have been favorable."

Efficient Typing Studied at Home

Poor Typing Business Handicap

You can't hide poor typing in business! Your mistakes tell everyone you're not trained, you haven't learned the touch system.

As you can learn it at home—why handicap yourself? With a learner's keyboard chart and a few simple instructions, it doesn't take long to be a good touch typist.

Tested by an employer on business-letter rules you'd have them down pat! No abbreviations, except "Mr." You'd spell out "President," "Street," "Company," "Illinois."

Where an abbreviation is allowed, like "C.O.D.," you wouldn't divide it at the end of a line or put spaces between letters and periods. Nor would you divide a word like "amount"; one-letter syllables look odd.

You'd avoid amateurish mistakes—such as spacing before commas and colons! If you did make an error, you wouldn't type over it. You'd erase it neatly first.

You can make your typing win a job! Our 32-page booklet shows how to touch-type according to modern business requirements. Has learner's keyboard chart, exercises and speed drills; rules for typing business, social letters; can serve as a foundation for a business college course.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "Teach Yourself Touch Typewriting" to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SELECT YOUR RISK

IN PLANNING the play of a hand, you usually have to take a choice among two or more different risks. That is, unless it is one of those rare deals in which you have no hazards at all, even of the most remote nature. If there are several possible dangers, the thorough planner decides which he would rather go up against, in his efforts to make the contract. If he can guard himself against a couple of dangers and chance only one, he usually is planning soundly.

North: ♠ K J 9 7 ♥ A Q 7 3 ♦ 6 5 ♣ Q 9 2

West: ♠ 6 5 4 3 ♥ J 9 5 4 ♦ J 10 9 7 ♣ 3

East: ♠ 2 ♥ K 10 8 6 ♦ 8 4 3 2 ♣ K J 10 8

South: ♠ A Q 10 8 ♥ 2 ♦ A K Q ♣ A 7 6 5 4

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass

Perhaps sounder bidding would have been for North to bid spades on his first turn, which would have made him become declarer, but that is a simple point, whereas the playing problems were more complex. This deal may be played three different ways. Try to decide which is the sounder, after West leads the diamond J.

One method is to try for a 3-2 in clubs. By this, South, after winning the first trick, drops trumps and then leads toward the club Q, hoping to find West with the K. Suppose the K lies wrong, but East has two or three clubs. South can win the return with the A, discard dummy's last club on a diamond, ruff a club to establish the suit, and return with a heart ruff to finish with clubs.

Another method is to count on diamonds being divided no worse than 5-3. By this, he wins the first trick, leads three diamonds for a club discard, cashes the club A, gives up a club trick, then finishes with the heart A and three ruffs each of clubs and hearts. But this fails if the diamonds are divided 6-2. It stakes all on that suit's division.

A third way is, after winning the diamond lead, to put forth a small club at once. If West has the K, you are home right there; if East, you still are okeh for a cross-ruff; that is, unless the K holder has four clubs, so that a ruff sets the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A K Q 6 5 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ A 9 7 ♣ 9 6

West: ♠ J 9 7 4 ♥ J 9 4 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ J 3 2

East: ♠ 8 3 ♥ K Q 8 ♦ K J 10 3 ♣ A Q 10 4

South: ♠ 10 2 ♥ A 8 5 2 ♦ Q 8 2 ♣ K 8 7 5

Finds Fighting Japs Like Hunting Tigers

By MURLIN SPENCER

MELBOURE, Australia, Sept. 16 (AP) — Australian veterans who fought the Germans at Tobruk and the Japanese at Milne Bay agreed unanimously today that the Japanese soldier is a wily fighting man more dangerous than any Hitler threw at them.

"It was like fighting tigers down in that jungle and it was a question of kill or be killed," said one Aussie who got a bullet wound in the neck at Milne Bay, in southeastern New Guinea.

"There was no quarter given and no prisoners taken on either side."

He was among the first wounded to arrive in Australia from the Milne Bay action which started August 26 when a Japanese convoy moved in a naval landing force under cover of darkness in a pelting rain.

One Australian unit clashed with the invaders about 3 a.m. and by afternoon had driven the enemy more than a mile back toward their landing place.

Trumpets and Firecrackers

This is the story one of the wounded told:

"The Japanese noise tactics were alarming, to say the least, during the first engagements. They set up a hell of a clatter and chatter, blew trumpets and whistles and set firecrackers to popping.

"Many of the crackers appeared to be a kind of delayed-action grenade which was lobbed behind the lines and caused a racket that gave the impression we were surrounded.

"And how those babies could talk English!

"You'd be on patrol and a voice in the clearest fashion would greet you with 'Hey Bill, is the Corporal there?'

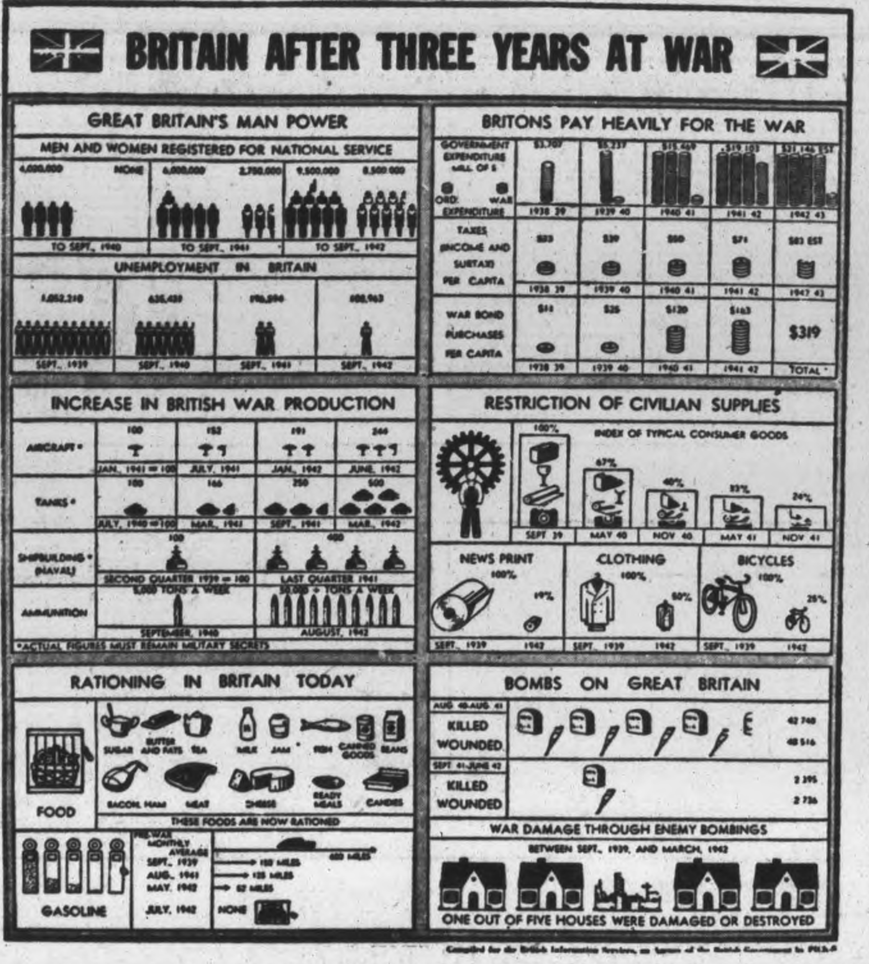
"Some of the boys fell for it. They lifted their heads and were shot to pieces.

"If a dozen of us were moving toward a single Jap he'd stand there and be shot and he'd just as likely get one or two of us before he went down.

"His parties working through the jungle sent one or two men forward to draw fire and be killed just to discover where our machine-guns and other weapons were hidden.

"If we fired a shot we'd be plastered by half a dozen tommy-guns from point blank or even behind."

One favorite Japanese trick, he added, was to play dead among the wounded, wait for advancing Allied troops to pass, then shoot them from behind.



Pretty Songster Wows British Desert Troops

By HARRY CROCKETT.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE WESTERN DESERT, Sept 16 —(AP).—A pretty American singer, Mary Ellen Hughes — stage name Marilyn Williams—is "wowing" British desert fighters and winning their praises for courage under fire.

A tall slender brunette, 22 years old, and a native of North Carolina, Miss Williams is the daughter of the former Hollywood and New York singer Marion Harris, who now is in London. She is a direct descendant of the President William Henry Harrison.

After training in New York and winning a talent contest there, Miss Williams went to London in 1938 and, with Enblish actresses and actors, she volunteered to help entertain soldiers. Within 24 hours she was on her way to Egypt.

She is the only American entertainer here and is believed to be the only American woman ever to entertain soldiers right up at the front. The soldiers are singing her praise for conducting recently during a performance at Tel el Eisa Ridge—"Hill of Jesus."

She was doing a duet with Hugh French—who has a post-war Hollywood contract—within three miles of the German lines when the daily shelling began.

"One shell hit about 100 yards in front of us," she said. "Then another one hit behind us and then British shells screamed over our heads into the German lines. The soldiers instinctively looked for trenches and I didn't know what to do. I w^s scared to death but I didn't want to show it so I started singing 'America I Love You.' Hugh said 'It's all right lads. Sit down' and they did."

New 23 Million To Help Pay War Taxes In US

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP).—A record-shattering revenue bill dipping directly into the pockets of more than one-third of the United States citizens for money to help fight the war went to the technical draftsmen today with mixed approval and criticism from members of the senate finance committee.

About 23,000,000 persons who previously did not pay federal income taxes will join 20,000,000 old taxpayers and the corporations to provide treasury collections estimated unofficially at more than $25,500,000,000 annually under terms of the measure as it was approved by the committee last night.

The new levy, superimposed on the regular income tax, would collect five per cent of earnings above $624 a year, the assessment being taken out of the pay cheques of wage earners.

At the end of the year, credits of 25 per cent of the tax would be available for single persons and 40 per cent, plus two per cent for each dependent, to married persons. These could be taken up in debt and insurance deductions or made in the form of post-war debates by the treasury.

This levy stayed in the bill despite a last-minute effort by Senator Harry Byrd (Dem.-Va.) to force across a sales tax, linked with increases in income rates and lower exemptions. Byrd's motion lost, 8 to 11, and a companion motion to up the victory levy for higher income taxes without the sales tax, lost by a 9-to-10 vote.

40% of Corporations Earnings

The committee lowered to 40 per cent the house-approved rate of 45 per cent on normal and surtax earnings of large corporations, an operation that removed $127,000,000 of the Bill's potential revenue. The comparable rate in the present law is 31 per cent.

At the same time, however, the committee ruled that a proposed post-war rebate for Corporations should be limited to 10 per cent of the excess-profits taxes they paid, instead of including also their surtaxes.

Corporations thus were provided with $700,000,000 potential rebates, accompanied by $1,100,000,000 to be repaid to individuals under the Victory tax. This represented a $1,800,000,000 annual loan that would be collected by the treasury in addition to the $23,774,000,00 estimated return in direct taxes. This compares with $17,000,000,000 annual revenue under existing law.

Despite this huge total, the bill still was nearly $2,000,000,000 short of the amount Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau said was the minimum that should be raised in direct taxes.

As placed in the hands of draftsmen for 10 days of work in writing technical revisions, the Bill made these other major changes in existing law.

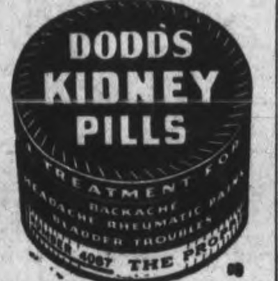
Increased the normal income tax rate from four to six per cent and boosted surtaxes from the present range of six to 77 per cent to a new level of 13 to 82 per cent.

Reduced personal income tax exemptions from $1,500 to $1,200 for married couples, $750 to $500 for single persons and $400 to $300 for dependents.

Allowed new credit against income tax for medical expenses in excess of five per cent of net income, with a maximum of $2,500.

Boosted excess profits taxes on Corporations from a 35 to a 60-per-cent range to a flat 90 per cent, changing bases for calculating levies.

Placed an over-all limitation of 80 per cent of Corporation income which could be collected in taxes.



Ontario Harvest Tops 1941, Less Fall Wheat

TORONTO, Sept. 16—(CP).—Harvesting of grain crops throughout Ontario was 60 per cent. completed by the first of this month with a good average yield reported, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said in its monthly crop report.

Total production of grain crops—fall wheat, oats and barley — was estimated at 121,041,000 bushels, compared with 90,325,000 bushels last year.

Pastures were in good condition in Western Ontario during August but dried considerably in both central and eastern Ontario. Excellent pasturage was reported at the lake head with the exception of the area between Nipissing and Algoma.

Production of hay, clover, alfalfa, alsike and sweet clover in Ontario was estimated at 7,250,000 tons, representing a 1,900,000-ton increase over last year's crops.

Fodder corn yield was variable due to late seeding and a slow start. Prospects for buckwheat and soybeans also were variable.

Acreage of corn for husking showed an increase from 245,400 acres in 1941 to 258,000 in 1942. Most of the acreage lay in southwestern Ontario.

Acreage of dry beans showed a considerable reduction this year at 62,000 acres compared with a 1941 acreage of 94,100.

The early potato crop was excellent in yield and quality. The intermediate crop, now being harvested, varied in yield from excellent to light while the late crop seemed irregular.

Ontario's tobacco crops made good progress in the last three weeks of August although wet weather detracted from leaf body, especially in the flue-cured crop. As a result, the yield will not be high.

Moisture and good weather conditions have been favorable to good sizing of apple crops in all parts of Ontario except in Georgian Bay area where some orchards suffered scab infection. Codling moth damage was less than usual in eastern Ontario but was on the increase in most districts of Western Ontario. Production was estimated at 492,000 barrels, 20 per cent below the 1941 production of 614,900 barrels.

Pears and plums have sized well and a heavy crop of good quality grapes was reported.

Douro Lawn Social Winners Announced

Bomber Gunners Eyes Of Crew, Call The Turns

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGAND, Sept. 16. —(CP).—These fellows who handle the guns in the giant two and four-motored bombers of the R.C.A.F. are mighty important.

They are much more than just bullet-tossers. They are the "eyes" of the crew and the general pepper-uppers when night fighters are about.

The pilot is the skipper of a bomber but there can be times high up in the darkness on the way to and from Germany in these big bomb-carriers when the gunners call the turns.

At this station in the Midlands the gunners of one Canadian squadron have three Nazi fighters to their credit. They are scored up on the wall in the gunnery leader's office for Sgt. Don Morrison of Sherbrooke, Que., who now is back in Canada, Sgt. C. W. Robinson of Moncton, N.B., and Flt. Sgt. Pat Murphy of Halifax.

These chaps are rear-gunners, tail-end Charlies. They sit out in the tail of a Wellington all by themselves with their guns in a revolving turret. They've got a good view there—but not much future.

Sooner or later somebody calls them "four-gun Joe" or Bob or whatever their name is. It's because out in the back there they are jammed in with just about enough space to take a deep breath and their four guns. The front gunner has only two weapons.

Want It Fast.

Most of the fellows want to complete their tour of operations as soon as possible. They don't care if they work every night just so long as they get their flying hours in a hurry.

It takes about 30 trips into Germany and back before air crew men are pulled off operations and given a stretch of instructing.

Some pictures in the gunnery leader's office showed a Nazi fighter swinging in on a bomber from the rear and on the port side. This is what the gunner would tell the pilot: "Jerry — 1,000 yards, port beam, 200 feet up—turning in for attack—900 yards—700 yards—prepare to turn to port, prepare to turn to port."

That's the time when the gunner is calling the turns. He's the "holler guy' of the team. He's got to be precise though, and quick, in what he tells the pilot and the rest of the crew.

"You see you've got to keep talking," said Sergeant Russell Harling of Winnipeg. 'There's a basic commentary we all use when fighters are sighted. You've got to let everybody know just what the situation is and above all you've got to keep talking. If you don't the boys will think you've 'bought it'."

That's just another way of saying the Nazi fighter has clipped the rear-gunner with a bullet.

Urge Bargaining Be Reconsidered

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 16—(CP). — Presenting the report of the United Church Publishing House to the General Council last night, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, Toronto recommended that the General Council again consider its stand on the question of "collective bargaining."

Dr. Dorey said the Council has made numerous pronouncements on collective bargaining and the rights of labor, but that it is not putting into effect the principles laid down. "It is the contention of he representatives of the Typographical Union which waited on the Commission that these recommendations have not been implemented," he said. "And that the Publishing House is not putting into effect the principles laid down by General Council from time to time."

Discussion on the report was deferred to a future date.

Madagascar's Governor Now To Fight

Terms Unacceptable He'll Resist To Extreme Limit

LONDON, Sept. 17 — (CP). — The Governor-General of Madagascar, who yesterday asked the British command for terms, has decided to defend the island "to the extreme limit," a communique broadcast by the Vichy radio said today.

The communique announcing continued resistance against British columns converging upon Tananarive, capital of the island, said the British terms of surrender "appear to be unacceptable to such an extent" that Governor-General Armand Annet "could not even consider them."

The French account said the British troops had driven slightly more than 10[illegible] miles inland toward the capital since their landings at dawn last Thursday, and declared that "all measures are being taken to continue the struggle despite the disproportion in forces and means."

US To Be 'All Out' In January '43

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP) — Donald Nelson, United States War Production Chief, said today that the nation now "is almost at a maximum" of production and that the output of war material in 1943 would be "much bigger" than the previous goal of $60,000,000,000.

He told the House of Representatives committee on Defence Migration, now studying methods for full utilization of manpower, that production would be in full flow in January and February.

"We are on the big upswing of production," he declared. The maximum was "dictated by the amount you can get out of certain materials" and also was governed by other factors such as shipping.

He said he had not studied the advisability of legislation to control manpower, which Paul McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, yesterday said was inevitable and essentially to maximum production.

EXTRA!

BERLIN—(AP)—The Berlin radio claimed tonight that "Stalingrad has ceased to be a solid block of resistance," that the Germans had driven a wedge through the city to the Volga and that parts of Stalingrad were "under complete control" of the attacking forces.

LONDON.—(CP)—Charles Vallin, vice-president of the old French Rightist Party, Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), and one-time mainstay of the Petain regime, has arrived in London and joined Fighting French.

Another Saboteur?

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 — (AP).—The eastern defence command announced today that a small raft had been found along the Atlantic coast of Long Island last night and that a shot was fired in an unsuccessful attempt to halt a prowler.

An army beach patrol, together with police and coast guard, later searched the vicinity but "discovered nothing unusual."

The announcement said the incident occurred at about 10 p.m., E.D.T.

Canada Objects To Nazis Deporting Jews

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 — (CP). — The Canadian Government has protested to Vichy against deportation back to Germany of Jewish refugees rounded up in unoccupied France, a spokesman for the External Affairs Department announced at a press conference to-day.

The Canadian representation was made through the Vichy Legation in Ottawa. It expressed the grave concern of the Canadian Government over reports that Jewish refugees were being sent to concentration camps in unoccupied France for the purpose of being deported to countries under German control.

The French Minister to Canada, Rene Ristelhueber, was asked to convey this representation to the Vichy Government.

"We can hardly credit here reports that the French Government would return to Germany refugees of German oppression," stated the note to the French minister. It asked him to express the strong hope of the Canadian Government that no actual deportation would take place and that those placed in concentration camps for deportation should be released as soon as possible.

Hepburn Boosts The Fall Fair

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP).—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn was tendered a civic reception in Lindsay to-day on his arrival here to officially open the Lindsay Central Exhibition this afternoon.

"There are many who feel that fall fairs are not necessary in wartime," Mr. Hepburn said in an interview on arrival "but I believe the fall fairs of the country have done more down through the years to improve live stock and agriculture than any other single factor. Anything that builds up rural life and aids in the betterment of farm conditions is a direct asset to our nation as a whole."

Raid At Dusk Flattens Wiesbaden

39 Fail To Return From Jolt To Industrial Heart

LONDON, Sept. 17 (CP) — A strong force of British bombers, including at least three R.C.A.F. squadrons, made a heavy attack on the Ruhr Valley during the night, following up a dusk attack by light bombers on Wiesbaden in the Rhineland.

Wiesbaden is the seat of the German Armistice Commission which deals with French armistice matters.

Thirty-nine planes were lost in the two forays. The attack on Wiesbaden meant the traversing of nearly 400 miles of enemy territory in daylight and this phase of the operations might have accounted for the large number of planes lost. However, there was no official indication of this.

If the usual five per cent loss ratio prevailed, as many as 800 planes may have been sent out. An authoritative source said specifically, however, that it was not a 1,000-bomber operation.

The R.A.F. ran its string of night assaults on the Reich this month to 10 by this attack.

Spitfire fighters meanwhile intercepted a group of high-flying German daylight raiders over the English Channel this morning and turned them back after they had tried three times to cross the British south coast.

Huns Claim Only 37.

A German broadcast said several localities in the Rhineland and Westphalia had been bombed. It claimed that 37 raiders were shot down.

Of the nine previous night attacks which the R.A.F. has launched against Germany since start of the month, all but one have been on a major scale and most have involved hundreds of planes.

The targets have included Saarbruecken, Karlruhe, Duisberg, Frankfurt, Duesseldorf, Wilhelmshaven and Bremen — which was raided twice.

Reflecting the tenseness created in Germany by this continuing offensive was a Berlin broadcast yesterday warning the German people to "see to it that the blackout was complete." The warning was repeated by all Nazi radio stations.

While R.A.F. was over Germany last night a few Nazi raiders dropped bombs at several places in East Anglia, but official reports said

Reds Begin to Grow Bitter

Claim 2nd Front Not Only Necessary But Feasible This Year

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP)—A foreign diplomatic source said yesterday that the Russians, disappointed over the delay of Britain and the United States in establishing a second front, are pressing for such a diversion quickly.

Moscow was said to hold the view that it not only is necessary to establish a second front in 1942, but also that it is entirely feasible.

(The source of this report cannot be named. But the nature of the source, plus its timing, lend renewed importance to what appears to be merely a restraint of a position Russia has held for some time, but on which there has been less agitation since Prime Minister Churchill's recent visit to Moscow.)

The feeling in Moscow, it was said by this source, was that the Russian people and the Red army were both led to believe by the communique issued in Washington after Premier Molotov's visit that they would get a second front this year. Delay of such help, it was reported, is viewed by the Russians as likely to have these unhappy effects:

1. Renewal of old suspicions between Russia and Great Britain and the United States.

2. Dampening of the morale of the Russian people and the Red army and possibly bad effects on on neutrals and the people of occupied countries.

3. Extension of the war "over a number of years."

No Talk of a Rift

It was said that there was no question of a great rift between Russia and her Allies, but that the situation would be most unfortunate if 1942 closed without a second front. For one thing, it was said, the Russians might find themselves so ex-

Japs About to Play Fool in Russia, India

See Pressure By Hitler Forcing Tokyo To Jump Hoping For Quicker End

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The world's big ears are twitching with the announcement by General Hata, Jap commander-in-chief in China, that "the East Asia war is about to take an important step in co-operation with the European war"—a statement calculated to convey the impression that Nippon is going to attack Russia or India.

Just what scheme motivates the devious Oriental mind in spreading this propaganda isn't apparent, although the odor of red herring is strong along the trail. Maybe the Japs are telling the exact truth—adopting Hitler's tactics of fooling the enemy by announcing his real intentions in advance. It's equally possible that Hata is just lying, for benefit of Mikado and country.

The probability are that Japan doesn't want to undertake either of these dangerous adventures. They would be illogical military moves, since her whole business now should be to consolidate her dangerously wide-spread conquests before the rapidly growing strength of the Allies overtakes her. She will be a fool if she attacks Russia or India.

Still, the importunities of the powerful Hitler may move the Japs to embark on new war in hopes that this may hasten the end of the Allies. The fall of Stalingrad would be impressive—and this industrial giant of the Volga today is shielding the strategic waterway with a body so torn from wounds that it will be a miracle if the Boche are thrown back. Should the Japs be beguiled into playing cat's paw for the Nazi all-highest, the fall of Stalingrad might turn the trick.

The perils Japan would risk in going after Siberia or India would be many. The most vital consideration is that in either case she would be seriously weakening her forces of all categories in the southwest Pacific, thereby making the Allied task immeasurably easier.

This would be particularly true as regards India. Overland invasion through Burma and across the towering mountain ranges isn't feasible on a big scale. The Japs would have to employ a great water-borne expedition. This would mean that at a time when they need every transport, warship and airplane for use in the Pacific warfare, they would have to make a heavy call on these already badly reduced arms.

In the case of Russia, the Nipponese would lay Tokyo and other great cities open to heavy aerial bombardment the moment the war began. The Reds have a strong air fleet at neighboring Vladivostok, and presumably have warplanes at other Siberian stations.

No Soviet Hint City Falling Though Reds Admit Nazis Have Air Superiority

Red Star Sees City's Fate With Russ Airmen
Documents Show Boche Using Planes From All Other Fronts—Battle Undiminished

MOSCOW, Sept. 17—(AP).—German and Russian infantrymen battled in the attics and cellars of a northwestern sector of Stalingrad today after the gates of the city finally had been opened to the invaders by massed tanks.

Bombs rained down without a letup upon the defending army—made up of soldiers, Red Marines and armed civilians—and buildings within the smoking city on the elbow of the Volga as waves of Nazi dive-bombers hurled themselves into the assault.

It was apparent from field dispatches that the German air force held a clear numerical superiority and was hard for Soviet fliers to meet.

"In the northwestern outskirts of Stalingrad, enemy automatic riflemen supported by tanks were repulsed by a Soviet infantry unit," the communique said. "Six tanks were disabled or set on fire by anti-tank rifle fire, hand grenades and incendiary bottles. The enemy automatic riflemen were surrounded and wiped out."

About 650 Germans were reported slain on other sectors of the Stalingrad defence zone in engagements which frequently developed hand-to-hand fighting. Nazi tanks, armored cars and ammunition trucks were brought under the damaging fire of Red army artillery.

Nazis Grab for Houses

Tremendous fury was reported in the fighting in the northwestern section, with the Germans swarming into every house they could seize.

Dispatches left no doubt the German air force was raining bombs continually upon the weary Russian fighters, cap[illegible]zing on a numerical superiority seldom if ever before attained in the German-Russian war.

The army newspaper Red Star said the sky over the city was swarming with both dive-bombers and high-level squadrons and declared the fate of the city depended upon the skill and courage of the available Soviet fighter pilots.

German planes were reported previously to have been rushed from many distant sectors, including North Africa, for the assault and the government newspaper Izvestia said documents found in the ruins of a downed Junkers transport showed it had been flown to Stalingrad from the Netherlands.

"The enemy is sustaining enormous losses," the Soviet radio said, "but is still pressing forward."

German tank groups were reported earlier to have cut into Red Army lines on the northwestern fringes of the Soviet nerve centre only to suffer extinction at the hands of Russian gunners and grenadiers still strike back powerfully in the 24th day of a fight to the death.

Announcement that armored detachments of Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's siege forces were hard upon the northwestern outskirts was contained in the midnight communique even though it emphasized the repulse of attacks.

(The Germans claimed there was street fighting deep in the city. The Berlin propaganda ministry was

Heaped Wheat Bins To Get Canada Meat

OTTAWA, Sept. 17—(CP).—Agriculture Minister Gardiner today announced a major agricultural program to make use of vast stores of grain now available and increse the output of animal products for Canada and her allies.

The minister outlined steps in the program as follows:

1. A new agreement will be signed with the United Kingdom for the provision of bacon, with the figure of 375,000,000 pounds mentioned as the possible export in the coming year, compared with 600,000,000 pounds in the contract year ending in about seven weeks.

Farmers will be urged to breed more sows from now on to ensure success for the hog production program.

2. As soon as possible pork will be restored to full volume on the Canadian market without interfering with British requirements. When this has been done, the adequate supply of pork for Canadian demestic needs will release beef for the United States market. This will permit the Americans to release beef from their home market for shipment to Britain.

3. A program will be undertaken to encourage the feeding of beef cattle until they are at least three years old, and to bring about an increase in the number of animals turned into beef.

20 Tires Stolen In Past 10 Days

TORONTO, Sept. 17—(CP). — Police said today 20 tires had been stripped from stolen cars in the suburban areas of Toronto within the last 10 days.

They said vehicles were removed from city streets and abandoned in the country.

Trailed by police to a downtown taxi company office last night, three Toronto men were arrested on charges of theft and of receiving an automobile tire. The men gave their names as Thomas Decarlo, 27, John Kayzuk, 25, and Lester Dick, 30.

Last night's arrest brought to seven the arrests made by police in the west end of the city on tire theft of tire receiving charges within the last 10 days.

Ruhr Fires Will Spread

Canucks Say Flames Wider Than In Cologne

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(CP Cable)—Canadian fliers returning from last night's raid on the Ruhr Valley said they encountered only lights clouds over the Ruhr Valley, but found that the industrial haze which is constantly over the district restricted visibility of ground detail.

At least three R.C.A.F. squadrons participated in the attack.

Sgt Benoit Levasseur of Clair, N.B., carried a 4,000-pound bomb in his plane but said he saw no flash when it fell.

"I was too busy getting away from the flak and searchlights but could see fires burning as I went in over the target."

"The fires were not so concentrated as in the 1,000-bomber raid on Cologne, but they covered a wider area," reported Flt. Sgt. Edward Murphy of Dorchester, Mass., a veteran of many raids. "The red glow from the fires was reflected by the clouds over the target."

Sgt. James Burton of Billings, Mont., said "the Ruhr Valley defences were extremely hot—they were pouring it up."

"Whenever a cone of searchlights focussed on a plane, the Germans sent up the whole works. We were caught in a beam once or twice, but we weren't coned."

Gas Depot Really Goes Up

Wilhelmshaven Blast Lights Sky For Miles

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP Cable).—Mystery surrounding a terrific explosion from the ground during the recent air raid on Wilhelmshaven was cleared up today when it was announced the blast was attributed to the bombing of a large gasoline depot by a seven-man Lancaster crew which included four Canadians.

The Canadians were Flt.-Sgt. Fred Kruger of Bede, Man., Flt.-Sgt. Daniel Robertson of Cornwall, Ont.; Sgt.-Gnr. Charles Trudell of Windsor, Ont., and Sgt.-Air Gunner Lorne Thompson of Toronto.

For days after the raid crews participating talked of nothing but the colossal, blinding flash that made aircraft stand out in the sky momentarily as they would in sunlight. British newspapers speculated on the nature of the blast.

"I have never seen anything like that explosion," Thompson said. "Instead of the localized flash of a bomb going off, we were shaken to the core by a tremendous explosion. Even at our height it lit up the interior of the aircraft like a photographer's floodlight."

JAPANESE MAKE FURTHER ADVANCES TOWARDS PORT MORESBY

Battle Rages 32 Miles Off Moresby

Main Bodies Clash As Japs Pour Across The Mountain

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 17 (CP)—The main bodies of the Allied and Japanese forces in New Guinea are locked in bitter combat today approximately 32 miles airline from Port Moresby, following a new enemy advance down the southern slopes of the rugged, densely-wooded Owen Stanley mountains.

The immediate scene of the battle is the tiny hamlet of Ioribaiwa, which the Japanese reached yesterday after pushing forward eight miles from Efogi, where they had been stalled for a week after crossing the summit of the mountains with the aid of their familiar infiltration tactics.

A communique from Allied headquarters said the Japanese are exerting heavy pressure and that "serious fighting" is in progress, but there is no indication of the turn it is taking.

It appears evident, however, the Japanese have been strongly reinforced during the last week and that they are throwing everything into a determined effort to reach Port Moresby, a vital link in Australia's outer defences.

An Allied spokesman said that despite the rugged nature of the terrain the Japanese brought up mountain guns and are employing mortars and machine guns as well. While the full strength of the Japanese forces is not known, it is believed their spearhead on the southern side of the mountains is composed of several thousand men.

Meet Main Body.

The Japanese advance yesterday brought them into contact for the first time with the main body of the Allied forces defending the approaches to Port Moresby, which also had been reinforced during the last week.

The invaders apparently were attempting to repeat their infiltration manoeuvres, which have resulted in the past in much fighting at close quarters, with frequent hand-to-hand encounters.

While Ioribaiwa is only 32 miles by air from Port Moresby it ordinarily takes two days to travel between the two points by land along narrow, tortuous trails.

Allied planes were reported giving the ground forces good support by continually strafing the Japanese from low levels, although the dense jungles provided the enemy with cover which made detection from the air difficult.

Horse Falls On Sulky Driver Is Injured

Mr. Hughes had his race horse out for a bit of exercise on a sulky, and was returning to his home on Monaghan Road when the accident took place. The horse balked at entering the yard where there was several cars, and reared on its hind feet. The second time it reared higher, and then instead of quietening down reared straight up and fell over backwards on the two wheeled sulky where Mr. Hughes was sitting.

The horse was rendered unconscious when it struck the ground, and the driver was knocked from the gig, and suffered a cut on the arm, and bruises on the body and legs.

hausted that the Germans would be able to stabilize the eastern lines and bring possibly 100 divisions westward to face their other foes.

Such a development, the Russians believe, would make a second front for the Allies more difficult in 1943 than in 1942.

Although Stalin's meeting with Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt's representative, W. Averell Harriman was perfectly cordial, it is believed that the United States and Britain then told the Russians so flatly that they were not prepared for opening an immediate front that the Russians were disappointed, particularly in view of the increasing difficulties at Stalingrad.

Ivan Maisky, the Russian Ambassador in London, is understood to have communicated this feeling of disappointment to Harry Hopkins when the latter was in London recently. The Russians also were said to be disappointed that the United States, owing to convoy troubles and exigencies of the war elsewhere, has been unable to fulfill her commitments in war supplies.

The Russians are grateful for United States and British bombing raids on Germany which were reported to be having an increasingly important effect on the German people and industry, but which they think are not yet enough in view of the seriousness of Russia's situation.

The Russians were said to take the view that the Canadian-led Dieppe raid, which they heartily approved, had established that landing on the continent was feasible. They are said to have made it plain that the Russians intend to fight on regardless of what happens, but they want action that will draw 40 or 50 German divisions off the Russian front.

A few state and district conventions and run-offs still are to be held in Rhode Island, Connecticut (Democrats only) and Louisiana.

In 1938 the Democrats lost four Senators and 17 House members. The Republicans lost none in either branch. In 1940, the Democrats counted four incumbent defeats in the Senate and the Republicans one, and House casualties were: Democrats eight, Republicans, two.

Isolationism versus Interventionism, a lively issue before the United States entry into the war, bobbed up here and there in this year's primary contests.

As in past years, roughly a score of the 435 House members did not run again.

Must Hold Price Ceiling Warns Ilsley

SEIGNORY CLUB, Que., Sept. 17—(CP)—Difficulties in maintaining ceilings on wages and prices and the duties of the Wartime Information Board were outlined to newspaper publishers and advertising men at a joint meeting of the directors of The Canadian Press and the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association here last night. Finance Minister Ilsley and Charles Vining, newly-appointed chief of the Information Board, were the speakers.

Mr. Ilsley said the press had an important role to play in winning the war "which is not an ordinary war, but the most important of all wars." It is up to the press to guide the people to the end that will do most good.

"The struggle to hold ceilings on wages and prices is becoming harder and harder every day," he said. "It is extremely important to hold those ceilings, especially now that the United States has adopted measures which were aimed to help us.

"We are well pleased with results so far," he added. "When the ceilings were first thought up and introduced, no one, including myself, thought they would work. Such a move had never before been attempted in a democratic country."

Mr. Vining said newspapers are a fundamental weapon in the war and "it would be folly on our part to attempt to weaken that weapon." It may be necessary for the board to "burglarize" men from newspapers to help in the job.

The deciding factor in winning or losing the war may be the state of mind of the people on the North American continent, he said. "If we do come to that stage, it may be the spirit of the people that will tip the scales in favor of victory."

"I do not look upon information as anything more artful and clever than a continued flow of daily news. As far as my new work is concerned, it is to assist in the flow of news."

The board is primarily to act as a representative of war departments and certain members of the board will act as personal representatives of certain ministers.

Casualty List Adds 20 Names

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(CP).—National Defence Headquarters last night listed eight members of the Canadian (Active) Army as missing and one previously reported wounded as missing.

The army's 155th casualty list of the war contained 20 names.

Four were listed as died, one wounded, three dangerously ill and three seriously ill.

There was no indication from National Defence Headquarters as to whether any or all of the casualties resulted from the Battle of Dieppe last August. But it was presumed unofficially that some of those listed took part in the grimly-fought attack on the German-occupied French port Aug. 19.

The list brought the unofficial total of Canadian army men listed as dead or missing since the start of the war to 3,550. The count is subject to a margin of error because of possible repetition of names in successive casualty lists.

through the Papal Nuncio at Vichy.

The information in the hands of the External Affairs Department is in line with that given in press reports—that a considerable round-up of Jewish refugees is being carried out under instructions of the Vichy Government. At first the round-up applied to Jewish people who had entered France to escape Hitler persecution after 1936 but the round-up since has been extended to cover refugees who came to France any time after 1933.

According to press reports and information to the Department these round-ups have been carried out with a great deal of cruelty, including the breaking up of families.

The refugees are being herded into concentration camps, the reports state, with the object of being deported to countries in which they would be under German control.

It is understood some of these refugees wished to come to Canada and the United States but that the Vichy Government has refused exit visas to enable them to do so, even if they were able to get passage on trans-atlantic ships—which is very doubtful.

they did little damage and caused no casualties.

Nine persons were killed yesterday, however, when German raiders bombed and machine-gunned three towns on the south and south-east coasts.

British fighters simultaneously made a daylight sweep over Northern France, patrolling the coast from Berck to Le Treport without challenge from German planes. On their return flight across the channel they encountered 30 German fighters and a dogfight resulted in which several Nazi planes were damaged and one British plane lost.

Russians Fight Stubbornly

These pictures tell the full story of the fall of Rostov, of the violence of the attack, of the dogged resistance; how every street was turned into a stronghold from which the Russians exacted heavy toll of the attackers and how finally they were overwhelmed by the sheer weight of metal. TOP ABOVE, a Nazi gun is being brought into the breach in the barricade to cover the next phase in the advance of German infantry. In the LOWER German infantry are seen crawling forward with the support of field guns, operating on the opposite side of the street. According to the German caption the fiercest resistance was encountered in the very heart of the town and the streets leading to the harbor.

Plane Hits Trees Two Fliers Die

DELHI, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP)—PO. James Gilmer Heath of Richmond, Va., and LAC. James Daniel Johnson, pupil pilot, of London, Eng., were killed yesterday when their two-engined Avro Anson plane crashed into a field six miles south of here.

Witnesses said the plane came in from the south, flew low over Fletcher Norwood's home at Lyndeoch and ran into a poplar hedge 30 feet high, clipping the tops of the trees.

Vernon Norwood, only witness of the accident, said the plane hit the trees, but did not see it land. He notified the Royal Canadian Air Force No. 5 Service Flying Training School at Brantford, Ont., from which the plane came, and the Delhi fire department.

Firemen, on the scene in 10 minutes, were unable to save the plane. A court of inquiry has been ordered.

R.C.A.F. authorities issued a statement, which said the aircraft was on a routine training flight when the crash occurred, and its cause had not been ascertained.

Enough for Real Program

Mr. Gardiner said that at last supplies of grain were sufficient to permit planning for a two-year program.

He made this statement to the press conference at which he announced the policy:

"If farmers conserve the fodder and feed grain grown this year it is possible to enter upon a two-year program of production of meats which in from six to twelve months' time, depending upon the product concerned, will result in our being able to supply our own people with reasonable supplies of dairy products and meats of all kinds, and at the same time supply Britain with the expected amounts of cheese and bacon and the United States with her supplies of beef cattle."

For two years the Agriculture Department, through wheat acreage reduction, prairie farm assistance and prairie farm income measures, assistance on freight on feed shipped east from Fort William and west into British Columbia, and assistance on fertilizer supplied in Eastern Canada, had attempted to get feed grain and fodder production up to a level where a long-time program of meat and dairy produce production could be "safely embarked upon," the minister said in a statement.

Cheese and Bacon

"During that period of two years we have encouraged farmers to produce in as great quantities as possible those commodities which Britain requires: namely, cheese and bacon.

"It has required the use of all surpluses of feed and a control of the consumption of these two products in Canada to make possible the shipment of the agreed-upon amounts to Britain.

"Last year, in order to obtain the quantities required, we found it necessary to prevent the shipment of feeds out of Canada.

"The creating by artificial means of a shortage of supply in cheese and pork has resulted in a run on other food products, particularly beef, until there has developed a temporary and artificial shortage in beef in certain urban centres."

US Meat Buying Slumps Sharply

By WILLIAM FERRIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 17—(AP). — Purchases of meat by the Agriculture Marketing Administration, government agency which buys for Lend-Lease shipment to other United Nations, have slumped sharply in the past several weeks, a compilation by the United States Department of Agriculture showed today.

Scaling down of the agency's buying, was a necessary result of the meat shortage, livestock experts said. The A.M.A., which formerly made heavy purchases weekly, now buys only every other week in an effort to make more supplies available for domestic consumers.

Actual shipments of meat purchased by the A.M.A. and sent to other countries are a military secret, and the total supplies held by the agency are not disclosed.

Prices of hogs, which are more influenced by A.M.A. buying than cattle, have declined recently, but livestock men attribute the slump more to the threat of ceilings and increased offerings than to the A.M.A.'s program. The top price of hogs yesterday was $14.40 compared with $15.30, a 22-year peak, in mid-August.

Purchases by the A.M.A. in recent months:

	Total Pork. lbs.	Total Beef. lbs.
June	202,929,000	750,000
July	178,836,000	395,000
August	86,514,000	75,000
September	13,311,000	65,000

Additional September purchases are scheduled to be made September 25.

54 Dogs Destroyed In Three Months

Fifty-four dogs were destroyed by the Humane Society during the months of June, July, August. There were 85 dogs picke up and 31 were returned to their owners. Thirty-eight cats were destroyed, there were various complaints investigated, and in all 155 warnings were given owners whose dogs were found at large.

One dog owner was prosecuted by the city, his dog having killed two cats belonging to neighbors. The owner pleaded guilty and was fined $1 an costs, total $6.

A boy on Downie street was reported using an air-rifle to kill birds. The mother was notified and the gun taken away by the police.

One dog was found killing hens near Jackson Park. The owner co-operated in every way and a stop was made to this practise.

A dog with a Lindsay tag was found tied in a junk yard where he had been left from Saturay evening until Monday morning without food or water.

The special officer delegated to look after dogs running loose was seriously bitten by a female dog which was at large on Elm street. The police department was called and the dog had to be shot.

The work of the Humane Society has been simplified to some extent since it took over the task of looking after dogs running at large in the city. It is hoped however that at some future date, the Township of Monaghan will have similar by-laws regarding dogs, when the work can be made even more effective.

Another problem has arisen for the Humane Society. The animal shelter at the rear of Dr. Thomas Johnson's property on Monaghan Road, in the Township of Monaghan, has brought complaints from neighbors, and the Humane Society is now arranging to secure another shelter in the city limits at a spot where it cannot inconvenience anyone, and which will be far more convenient for owners of animals in case of accident or death.

Aleutian Raid Sinks 2 Japs, Damages Six

Yanks Kill, Wound 300 Invaders; Hold Solomons

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Renewed American aerial assaults on Japanese invaders in the Aleutian and Solomon Islands left the enemy today with a loss of two ships, damage to five others and three submarines, and 500 troop casualties.

In the southwest Pacific where United States Marines hammered down a third Nipponese attempt to regain Guadalcanal territory, the navy reported that Marine and navy aircraft bombed and torpedoed enemy ships south of Choiseul Island and damaged two cruisers.

Almost simultaneously, the navy of striking savage new blows in the and Pacific fleet headquarters told Aleutians far to the north where army planes sank two Japanese mine sweepers, damaged three submarines, three large cargo ships and "several small craft," killed or wounded an estimated 500 troops, shot down six planes and fired storehouses and supply dumps.

The big Aleutians raid, centring about Kiska Harbor occurred Monday, the navy said yesterday in the first report on that area since Aug. 22 when an American submarine

Model Airplane Soars 40 Miles

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP)—A finely built model airplane that kept on flying in the arms of the wind after its motor stopped appeared yesterday to have set a record by covering forty miles non-stop after being released in Ottawa.

Kyle Thompson, 17, was a competitor in a model-flying contest on Sunday. His machine, powered with a small gasoline motor and with a six-foot wing span, flew high into the clouds at 3.30 p.m. and disappeared.

At 5.30 p.m. it glided down on a farm at Berwick, Ont., about forty air miles from Ottawa. It landed undamaged and has been returned to its owner.

The normal flight was limited to a few minutes and the plane descended gradually when the gasoline was exhausted. The young builder said he believed the model, now two years old, had been caught in the wind and carried the unusual distance before landing.

Kitchen Shower Is Given Millbrook Girl

MILLBROOK, Sept. 17 (ENS)—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Miss Betty Smith, whose marriage to Lloyd Jewison, of Bailieboro, takes place on Saturday, September 19, when a number of her school girl friends with a few others, gathered at the home of Mrs. B. L. Richards, her daughter, Miss Laureen Richards, joining her mother as joint hostess for a kitchen shower in honor of the bride-elect.

Under the impression that she was just going up to call on Laureen the guest of honor arrived after the others were at the home, Centre street, and busily engaged in games of various kinds, including cards, Chinese checkers, etc. The surprise of the evening was reached when Betty was seated centrally in the living-room under a group of inflated balloons, filled with confetti. A table of nicely-wrapped gifts was carried in by Laureen Richards and Beatrice McDowell, and placed by the chair of the bride-to-be, who had the pleasant task of opening the parcels, enamel ware in red and cream, breakfast dishes, pyrex ware, luncheon cloths, etc., making up the list of useful and pretty gifts.

After the guest of honor had voiced her thanks gracefully, Mrs. Richards and her daughter served a buffet luncheon, assisted by some other of the girl friends.

Father Who Sold Daughter For $75 Is Sent To Ontario Reformatory

BANCROFT, Sept. 17 (ENS). — John Boomhower, 60, found guilty on a charge of aiding and abetting William Kellar to have carnal knowledge of his 12-year-old daughter, was sentenced to six months definite and eighteen months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here Wednesday.

According to the evidence given by Constable S. Palmateer, the story of the father selling his daughter to William Kellar, 42, for the sum of $75 and an old overcoat was revealed in Police Court three weeks ago, when the evidence was heard. At that time, Constable S. Palmateer declared that, "William Kellar had admitted to me that he had a right to the girl as he had bought her from her father. When I questioner Mr. Boomhower, on the same day, he replied that he had sold his daughter for $75 cash."

Kellar was sentenced to two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory on a charge of carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years of age.

Kellar and the young girl were appearing at the town clerk's office to procure a marriage license when Constable Palmateer stepped in and arrested the man.

Mrs. Boomhower at the last court stated that she had no objection to the marriage if her husband was willing.

"After all, he is the head of the house," she declared.

According to notes found in the possession of the accused Boomhower, the contract for the girl was made about a year ago, and they were to be married when the girl became 13 years of age, which was last month.

The mother explained that the contract was made so that Kellar would take care of the girl and look after her. Kellar and the girl were to live with the Boomhowers after their marriage.

Kellar lived with the Boomhowers in a two-roomed shack east of this village.

Service Permit Not Needed By Civil Service

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP)—Under provisions of a new order-in-council just passed, the Civil Service Commission may switch an employee from one Federal government department to another without securing a National Selective Service permit.

The order also empowers the Commission to advertise directly in newspapers or by poster or other means for employees.

Under recently-promulgated manpower regulations, all other employers in Canada must seek employees directly through local offices of National Selective Service. Employers must obtain permits before hiring new workers and employees must obtain permits before they can change their jobs. The regulations give National Selective Service to direct workers into essential jobs, although it is understood this will be on a voluntary basis only, at least for the present.

The Civil Service Commission, under the new order-in-council, must notify the National Selective Service office in the district where a civil servant now is located if it desires to transfer him or her from one point to another.

It is further provided that if a government employee resigns to accept employment in another department, or elsewhere, he or she must give seven days' notice of separation and must apply for a permit to take the new position.

Missing Officer Is Known In Cobourg

COBOURG, Sept. 17.—(ENS)—Lieut. William Lang, of Winnipeg, who is listed as missing after the raid on Dieppe has a mother, Mrs. Liscar Lang in Cobourg, and a sister, Mrs. Norman Henderson also in Cobourg. Although he was born in Winnipeg he visited Cobourg during his vacation in the summer for some years. Lieut. Lang is a graduate of the University of Manitoba. Another sister, Mrs. C. H. Walker, resides in Kingston.

Cobourg Woman Killed At Fair

COBOURG, Sept. 17.—(ENS)—Mrs. Mary Hancock, Oshawa resident who was killed on Tuesday when her horse fell on her during a race at Oshawa Fair, is being buried here on Friday. She was born in Cobourg the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ellison and was a graduate of Cobourg Collegiate Institute. She always took an active part in sports and of more recent years she was very fond of horses.

At the time of her death she was 30 years of age. She is survived by her husband, her mother, two sisters, Mrs. E. F. Mooney of Kingston and Betty of Cobourg and a brother Frank in England. Deceased was a member of the Baptist Church.

Drowns From Boat

BERTHIER, Que., Sept. 17 — Adrien Marechal, 55, of St. Barthelemie, was drowned and two companions were rescued when a rowboat capsized in the St. Lawrence River, 80 miles below Montreal.

Harold Staples Dies In Cobourg

COBOURG, Sept. 17 — (ENS) — Word of the sudden death here yesterday of Harold Staples saddened the community. Linked with practically every worthwhile project here, he was an asset to the town and was highly regarded. Since 1911 he had been identified with the Cobourg City Dairy which he helped to found.

Mr. Staples was born in Halidimand Township near Grafton but had been a resident of Cobourg for some 55 years. He was 63 years at the time of his death. At one time he worked with a shipping concern in New Jersey, but later returned to Cobourg where he was engaged for some time in the local post office. After he left the post office he went into the dairy business.

Mr. Staples served in the town council in 1920 and 1921 and was during that period chairman of the parks committee. In 1936 when a parks commission was formed, he headed it as chairman. He was also a charter member of Cobourg Rotary Club, a prominent curler and was at one time president of the Community Rink Association. Back in the time of the old Central League, Mr. Staples was an active baseball executive. He was at one time secretary of the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce. Of recent years he devoted most of his attention, as far as sports were concerned, to the promotion of juvenile sports. By religion he was a member of Trinity United Church.

He was married twice, his first wife dying about 17 years ago. By his second marriage he is survived by his widow and one daughter, Blanche. A brother, William, resides at Grenville, Saskatchewan. Funeral arrangement have not been completed.

Port Hope Brownies Hold Weiner Roast

PORT HOPE, Sept. 17.—(ENS.)—Twenty-one Brownies of Pack No 1 and Pack No. 2 who are ready to move up to Girl Guides were entertained at the home of Mrs. Williams, Peterborough Highway, on Tuesday night to a weiner roast.

The Brownies hiked out the mile and a half from Port Hope after school on Tuesday and were quite ready to do full justice to the weiners and ice cream after enjoying games on the spacious lawns.

These groups of Brownies who are now ready to become Girl Guides at the important "flying up" ceremony next Wednesday were in charge of their leaders, Mrs. Howard Jordan, Misses Joyce Crissal, Grace Wanner and Madeline Jex.

Personal.

Mrs. Keitha Taylor of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs Bert Broadbent on Wednesday, on her return after visiting friends in Cobourg, Brockville and Napanee.

SNAKES—BUT HARMLESS

LONDON—(CP).— Superintendent G. M. Vevers of the London Zoo has assured the world the reptile house at the Zoo is open to visitors although all poisonous snakes have been destroyed because of risk of their getting out and mixing-up with the public during air raids.

English Line Circle Sets Egg Record

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17 (ENS) —The English Line Egg Circle, one of the largest farmers' co-operative organizations in the county, has already chalked up a record for the present year and according to the manager, Andrew Milne, by the end of October the Circle will be nearly thirty-five per cent ahead of 1941. By the end of July upwards of 200 members had brought in more than 170,000 dozen which was 22,000 above the entire year's shipments in 1941 and gives some idea of the tremendous increase in egg production in this district. If they reach the two hundred thousand mark as Mr. Milne predicts the Egg Circle will have exceeded by 36,000 dozen the biggest year in its seventeen-year history.

Cavan Boys Win Foal Club Class

The Durham County Foal Club Achievement Day was held at Orono Fair with seventeen of the nineteen boys exhibiting their colts. Twelve of the foals were sired by Percheron horses and the remainder by Clyesdales. The two breeds were judged in separate classes by Prof. M. W. Staples, O.A.C., Guelph.

The first four placing in the Percheron Foal class were Ernest Boyles, Orville Moncrief, Howard Coatham and in the Clyesdale class, George Lowery, Howard Forder, Boyd Ayre and Neil Moffatt. However, the total score and final standing was made up as follows: 30 points for foal, 100 points for judging competition, 100 points for questions, 100 points for showmanship, 100 points for attendance at meetings.

The standing on the aggregate score was:

Percheron Class

First, Ernest Boyles, Fraserville No. 1; second, Orville Moncrief, Fraserville No. 1; third, Claire Kellogg, Port Hope No. 1; fourth, Howard Bradley, Enniskillen No. 1; fifth, Elmer Hogg, Peterborough No. 5; sixth, Howard Coatham, Orono No. 1; seventh, Robert Coatham, Orono No. 1; eighth, Lloyd Kellogg, Port Hope No. 1; ninth, Ross A. Sharp, Burketon No. 2; tenth, Gordon Davidson, Cavan; eleventh, Howard Gillis, Cavan; twelfth, Ross Cryderman, Enniskillen, No. 1.

Clyesdale Class

First, Howard Forder, Blackstock; second, Boyd Ayre, Hampton No. 1; third, George Lowery, Millbrook; fourth, Neil Moffatt, Orono No. 1; fifth, Stanley Millson, Enniskillen No. 1.

The club was organized and supervised by E. A. Summers, Agricultural Representative with the assistance of the Durham Central Fair Board and the stallion owners. The prize money is paid on an equal basis by the Dominion Government, the Provincial Government and the Fair Board.

Havelock WA Cancels Anniversary Supper

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17—(ENS). — The September quarterly meeting of the W.A. was held in the church basement on Wednesday, with a good attendance. The devotional exercise was conducted by the West End Group. A solo by Mrs. Southward, "My Task," was rendered, and Mrs. Wilkinson favored the meeting with a piano solo. Mrs. Easterbrook took the chair for the business period. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $92.86. West End Group $19.85, East East Group $17.85, Centre Group $26.20.

Everyone in future will have to bring their own tea to the group meeting It was decided to cancel the annual dinner at the time of the anniversary and a collection will be taken instead. A 25c supper will be served at the annual meeting in the first week of December.

Blood Donors Are Sought By Otonabee

KEENE, Sept. 17—(ENS).— The Otonabee Red Cross Society is making an appeal for men between the ages of eighteen and fifty to become "blood donors," a number of names have been received by the president of the society, Rev. George Murray. We want to arrange a date for our donor to attend the clinic in Peterborough.

The Rev. H. L. Roberts of George Street United Church, Peterborough, will conduct the service at Keene United Church on Sunday at 11 a.m. The topic of the sermon will be "My loan to my country, my gift to my Church."

There will be no fowl supper at Keene United Church this fall owing to war restrictions.

Red Cross Branch Completes Two Quilts

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17. — (ENS).—A large attendance was reported at the second weekly meeting of the Campbellford and Seymour branch of the Red Cross held this month on Tuesday afternoon when two lovely quilts and a large amount of table sewing was completed. The secretary revealed that the appeal sent out to churches, clubs and other organizations for assistance in providing material for comfort bags for sailors had been generously responded to by all. On September 14 the following articles were sent to headquarters: 30 pair seamen's socks; 10 tuck ins; 5 pair mitts; 5 turtle neck sweaters; 15 sleeveless sweaters; 5 alternative sweaters; 10 helmets; 20 pairs gloves; 20 mother's gowns; 45 infant gowns; 15 wool blouses; 15 cotton blouses; 15 skirts.

PORK

(FRESH CUTS, BACON or HAM)

In order that Britain may continue to receive from Canada its shipments of bacon and ham, so urgently required for military and civilian needs, you are asked not to buy pork for the next few weeks. This sacrifice is not hard to make.

Just think—in Canada, our dinner-tables are still abundantly provided with a rich variety of nourishing foods. But the tale is different in Britain today. There, luxury foods are unknown and most staples are rationed.

Yet the strain of war on the British people makes complete, nourishing food more and more important to them. Proper diets can only be maintained by steady shipments of essential foods—and one of these is pork from Canada, in the form of bacon and ham.

Do not buy pork. Choose from the wide variety of other foods that we Canadians can buy. Let Canada continue to send full cargoes of bacon and ham to war-torn Britain.

You can help by using any of the following:-

CHEESE • BEANS • CHICKEN • TURKEY
EGGS • FISH • FRESH VEGETABLES • CEREAL

You may buy the following pork products as they are not needed for export to Britain:-

PORK TENDERLOIN
HEAD CHEESE
PIGS' FEET
PIGS' KNUCKLES
PORK SAUSAGE

We Want a Bus Depot

Peterborough needs a bus depot and has needed one for some years. At present the buses which serve the towns and villages of this district collect on Charlotte Street opposite the market, sometimes causing considerable confusion of traffic while they set down passengers and take them up, unload packages and manoeuvre themselves into parking positions. The present arrangement is unsatisfactory and untidy, and the establishment of a central depot with plenty of space for the buses and a waiting-room for the passengers is badly needed.

It is fortunate that a piece of property well suited to this purpose is now vacant. The Grand Opera House has been torn down and its site has the advantage of being near the business section of the city and the market. The Examiner has expressed itself before on the necessity for planning such a city as Peterborough in a logical manner, instead of allowing nature to take its course; this seems an excellent opportunity to get something which we need established in a place well adapted to it. Would it not be possible for the City Council to put this matter squarely up to the proprietors of the bus services? At present a section of a city street is serving as a free bus terminus, and this canot go on forever. Let us establish our bus terminus at a time when we can put it in the right place, and not later when it may be forced upon a less convenient site.

"Credit" And The British

One of the reasons advanced by the Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Defence for Air, for the "Canadianization" of the boys from the R.C.A.F. who are now flying with the R.A.F. in Britain was that under such an arrangement they would receive "credit" for any honorable exploits in which they were engaged. Some newspapers have dealt very severely with Mr. Power on this score — perhaps more severely than was deserved. We doubt if he meant to imply by his remarks that Britain would knowingly withold credit from the Canadians for anything they did; we think rather that his idea was the result of the typically North American notion that getting credit for doing something is the chief reason for doing it. With us, as with our neighbors to the south, the desire to shine before the eyes of all men sometimes overweighs our common sense. It is, of course, pleasant to get credit for good work, but in war it is the work and not the credit which is important; Mr Power is dealing with an Air Force and not with a football team.

During the last war it was the custom of the British information service to give credit for important actions to Empire troops whenever that was possible. It was felt that this was good policy as it helped to dispell that feeling of inferiority which many Empire soldiers, quite wrongly, experienced when in Britain. It is always difficult for men from very young countries to go to very old countries without developing either a painful sense of insufficiency or a bumptious sense of superiority. This is especially true of Imperials visiting England. Because the British are quiet and somewhat frosty in manner Canadians and Australians sometimes feel that they are being high-hatted when they are in England. This is not true. And in order to overcome any such belief, the British in the last war never missed a chance to praise the good work of Imperial troops.

It looks as though they were doing the same thing this time. We have heard much about the Australians in the Middle East, and there is no doubt that they are great fighters, but two-thirds of the men in the 8th Army are British. The British Empire casualties on all fronts to date have been 200,000 in number, and of these more than 140,000 are British. We have savored the sweet assurance that the Canadian troops in Britain are "a dagger pointed at the heart of Berlin"; we have even claimed that the Canadian troops were all that kept Hitler from attempting an invasion in 1940. But let us not forget that the Battle for Britain was fought by British civilians, and that in that island 2,600,000 homes—that is, one in every five—has been damaged or utterly destroyed by enemy bombing. Let us not forget that at this moment 55 per cent. of the population of Britain are directly engaged in war work of some kind. These are things which the British have done and are doing, and we have heard no worried British voice asking if the rest of the world is giving them the proper amount of "credit."

The desire for "credit" is a sentimental and not particularly adult desire for a country at war. Perhaps we are a little inclined to over-dramatize ourselves and our war-effort, and if so we should stop at once, for it is a waste of time. The film *Mrs. Minive*r, which is leaving a trail of sodden pocket-handkerchiefs across this country, has been condemned in Britain as an over-sentimental, rather foolish presentation of British life in war-time; and yet that film was made to give 'credit' to Britain.

If our forces and we on the home front acquit ourselves honorably in this war we shall receive all the "credit" that is necessary from posterity. "Credit" which has to be worried over and intrigued for is scarcely worth having. And the British will give us all the credit we deserve, never fear. Have they not already done so in the instance of Dieppe? But let us win our credit fairly, and not be regarded by the Mother Country as a sulky child which will pout if it is not praised.

Quarter Century Of Service

This month marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of that news-gathering and news-distributing organization called The Canadian Press. Whenever in your newspaper you find an item which, after the place and the date have been stated, has the initials CP in parenthesis, you are reading something which has come from The Canadian Press service, and those initials are your guarantee that the news is faithfully reported and honestly presented.

Canada is fortunate in possessing such a news service. Canadian Press is the co-operative effort of the majority of the daily newspapers in this country, but its membership is necessarily small; about 90 dailies comprise it. But Canadian Press operates under an agreement with the Associated Press of the United States, involving mutual service, and this arrangement increases the scope of Canadian Press very materially.

It must not be supposed, however, that Canadian Press is in any sense the tributary of the Associated Press, or that the benefits of the arrangements are all one-sided. Canadian Press reporters have shown themselves ingenious and daring for a quarter of a century, and never more so than in the present war. The magnificent first-hand account of the Dieppe raid was the work of a Canadian Press reporter who accompanied the troops on that expedition, and there has been little better reporting anywhere in the war. Readers of Canadian papers have been indebted to the London agency of CP for fine accounts of great Imperial events, and the dispatches on the great Jubilee, the death of King George V., the Abdication, and the Coronation of our present sovereign were high spots of fine reporting. The CP agency in Washington is our principal journalistic link with the U.S.

The news which reaches Canadian readers is at unbiassed and as full as any distributed in the world, and a great deal of the credit for this must go to Canadian Press. Congratulations on this anniversary are in order, and the Examiner is glad to express its indebtedness to that organization, and to wish it every success in its next quarter of a century.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It's not fashionable to keep up with the Joneses any more. The best people are keeping down with them.

The U.S.A., as a war measure, has cut its speed limit to 35 m.p.h. There is something to be said for "Hasten Slowly" as a wartime motto for drivers.

There are plenty of hidden taxes these days, but things are getting harder and harder for the hidden taxpayer.

A Chinese commander who was reported dead has turned up in the midst of the Chekiang battle. Let's hope he is living up to his obituaries.

The Government is advertising for office-girls who have "at least some High School education." Any girl who goes for a job without all the High School education she can get is handicapping herself for life, and even for her marriage prospects. The vogue of the dumbell wife went with unlimited gasoline and double-dip ice cream cones.

More About Belden's Atlas

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IN MY article of Tuesday last I promised today to continue a a description of Belden's Atlas of the United Counties, published in 1878. Quite apart from its value as a topographical guide, it gives us a lively picture of life in rural Ontario during the last quarter of the nineteenth century. I have already spoken of its plates of the houses, gardens and farmsteads of prominent citizens. For merchants it does even better. For instance not only the home, but also the mill and store belonging to Mr. H. Elliott of Hampton, in Darlington Township are shown to excellent advantage. A great number of these local mills have vanished, and the countryside is the poorer; they were picturesque buildings, tall and characteristic in appearance, and necessary parts of the small, self-contained communities of the past. An Ontario boy who has never played about a mill has missed one of the good things which life in this part of the world has to give.

Stores in the 70's seem to have had more character than their modern descendants. They were not so hygienic, and they were probably not so well stocked, but they were more interesting. Mr. Elliott's store, for instance, has nothing to boast of in the way of show-windows. But it has a verandah the roof of which extends over the sidewalk, and it has an ornate second-storey gallery. It is a capacious building, for in those days stores were meeting and visiting places; gossip, as well as sugar and soap, passed over the counter. Turning over a few pages we see a picture of the shop-front of Aaron Buckler, a watchmaker and jeweller of Bowmanville; his window display is comparatively elaborate; before his door a man is holding the head of a smart horse, while his wife considers the epergnes, cruets and wax flowers under bell-jars which appear to comprise the jeweller's stock. Bowmanville seems to have been quite a centre for jewellers; there is a picture in the Atlas also of the interior of Cornish's Jewellery Store in which two ladies are considering the purchase of what looks like a giant egg-cup. The Ruebottom House may be examined in these pictures also; it seems to be a large hotel, with a station wagon, a bearded clerk at the door, and a group of those loungers without whom no hotel, large or small, would be able to do business. The front of the Port Hope Evening Guide office is shown also, with a gentleman in a top hat leaving it after, we hope, paying up his subscription for another year.

WITH every picture of a farm or a store there is a picture of its owner, and sometimes of his wife as well. Looking at these portraits we cannot help wondering what has happened to the human face during the past sixty years. It is not that these people are beauties—far from it—but there is something in their appearance which can only be described as character, and which is lacking in most faces today. It is not, of course, possible to tell a great deal from a face and a look of determination may be the result of ill-fitting false teeth (as with George Washington), and a look of spiritual intensity may be caused by defective sight (as with Cardinal Newman). But however skeptical we may be we must admit that the men and women in these pictures are more interesting in appearance than a similar group would be today.

For the men, of course, whiskers did a great deal. The 70's were a great age of whisker cultivation and the United Counties had their experts in the art. Whiskers are a personal taste; some people like them and others cannot endure them. I confess to a sneaking fondness for them; a man without his beard is like a horse with a docked tail — smarter and more efficient, no doubt, but lacking that noble wildness which nature intended. In Belden's Atlas the forked beards, the prophetic beards, the galways and the wild, irregular, unclassifiable growths of the United Counties are captured forever to be the admiration, the wonder, and perhaps the envy of succeeding generations of smooth-faced, mass-produced posterity.

THE ladies, who have no whiskers, seek to amaze us by the elaboration of their caps. There can be no doubt that caps will become the fashion again soon; they are too decorative, too good an outlet for the ingenuity of the female sex, to be neglected long. The Atlas was made at a time when caps were usually black, ornamented with jet butterflies, flowers and ribbons, but even with this limited material some remarkable results were achieved.

There is no space to speak of the variety of equipages which are shown in the pictures of the Atlas. A buggy, these days, is rarely a thing of beauty; in the 70's it was a miracle of delicacy. The trade of the carriage-maker often rose to high art. The hearses were particularly fine—almost fine enough to warrant dying in order to take a ride in one. Light yet grandiose, they were mounted on high wheels, with a handsome box for the driver, covered with an appropriate sable hammer-cloth. At the four corners of the hearse were ornamental urns or bunches of black plumes. The finest of motor-hearses can never recapture their funereal elegance.

Unconsidered Trifles

I once loved a girl who made a complete fool of me."

"What a lasting impression some girls make."

The chorus girl was telling the other girls in the dressing-room all about her birthday party.

"You should have seen the cake," she told her companions. "It was marvellous. There were seventeen candles on it—one for each year."

There was a disbelieving silence for a moment or two, then her best friend smiled.

"Seventeen candles, eh?" she purred. "What did you do—burn them at both ends?"

With determination in his eyes, a man tackled the manager of an engineering shop.

"I'm looking for a job as mechanic," he said briefly.

The manager studied him for a few moments, and then said:

"But aren't you the chap we fired yesterday?"

"That's right."

"Then," asked the manager, "why have you come here looking for a job?"

"Why not," retorted the applicant truculently. "I lost it here, didn't I?"

Jap Threat Aimed at Russia

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

THE first cold breath of coming Arctic winter is sweeping the Russian steppes to encourage her gallant defenders and warn Hitler that time again is ebbing dangerous for him in the East.

From the Baltic to the Caspian, Moscow reports the coldest day of the season in the wake of autumnal rains. The drop in temperature apparently came earlier this year than last in Russia, even though it is only an advance showing for the six-month-long winter moving up behind it. By every portent there remains some weeks, but only weeks, before ice and snow again seal the Russian front and drive the invaders into winter quarters they have not yet attained along the Don or the Volga or on the flanks of the towering Caucasus range still guarding the Baku oil field.

In the circumstances a cryptic phrase from a broadcast by Japan's highest ranking army general in China, picked up by a British station, must catch attention first for its possible bearing on the crisis in Russia.

"Asia in co-operation with Europe is about to take simultaneous action toward realization of a new world order," General Shunroku Hata, was quoted as saying.

ATTACK ON RUSSIA

Short of a Japanese assault on Russia to help Hitler achieve his immediate aims before winter steps in to halt his conquest march, it is difficult to see what form co-operatve Axis military action in Asia and Europe could take to justify the Hata cryptogram. A Japanese attempt to invade India would not have the same signficance. Evolution into a major operation of the new Japanese effort to regain lost ground in the Solomon Islands torn from the enemy's grip by American forces would not.

Only Japanese aggression against Russia would seem to fill the bill unless Hata was talking about some new political gesture, not about military action. And it is northward, toward Russia, not southward against Australia or westward against India, that Chinese reports have consistently maintained that Japanese forces being withdrawn from Southeastern China were moving.

It is against Russia, too, that Japan is offered the shortest and best protected route for expanding her campaign of conquest. It is only 600 air miles from Tokyo to Vladivostok, and reinforced Japanese armies in Manchukuo are in be shaping up.

What seems more likely as yet is that Tokyo has authorized its commanders in the Solomons face-to-face contact with the Russians on the Siberian border. By contrast, mounting an invasion campaign against either Australia or India would involve stupendous long-distance transportation difficulties.

SOLOMONS ACTIVITY

As this is written, news from the Solomon Islands battle still is too meagre to indicate its scope. Whether the second Japanese attempt to drive out American forces which ousted them from important sectors in the southeastern section of the great group is a local action, a screening operation or the beginning of a pitch-battle test of American ability to retain control of the Southwestern Pacific is yet to be revealed. It could be any of these in strategic concept.

Intensified Japanese reaction to the first American offensive move of the Pacific war was to be expected. Military prestige and the reputation of the Japanese commanders, army and navy, in that area urged it if nothing else. If it was ordered by Tokyo, however, and has been or is to be backed by mass movement of air power, fighting ships and troops southward to support it, a crisis in the Pacific is impending. The greatest sea-air conflict of the whole war could area to use their available reserves in an attempt to restore the close threat to American-Australian communication lines. Certainly if, as the Hata statement hints, Japan is about to attack Russia, it would be logical to engage American attention at some point in the Pacific too remote to permit quick aid for the Russians.

BRITISH POWER GROWS

The same thing would apply in the event India is to be attacked by the Japs, but to a lesser extent. British sea and air power in the Indian Ocean, now apparently further entrenched on Madagascar, is the prime factor Japan must consider if an invasion of India is her purpose.

The Hata remark is so timed as to recall what happened in Europe and Asia last winter. Hitler reached the peak of his Russian offensive that year at Rostov Nov. 22. He surrendered it again a week later and the German retreat to winter lines was on.

That was clear to everybody by Dec. 7, and that "day of infamy" Japan struck at Pearl Harbor and Singapore and Manila and Hong Kong and the global war of Hitler making was an accomplished fact, involving all major powers except for the strange truce between Japan and Russia, a truce that seems doomed to early collapse on Japanese and Axis initiative by every sign.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 17 —(CP)—Capt. Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son and a member of parliament in his own right, created quite a stir among other M.P.'s and leading politicians with his speech hinting at emergence after the war of a new "centre party."

"Conservatives, and he is one himself, didn't take kindly to his reference to their "retrograde and selfish associations," while members of other parties wondered whether he was speaking for himself or reflecting views which might have parental endorsement."

A party of Canadian newspapermen now visiting Britain gave the official reception committee which welcomed them to London some uneasy moments. The Canadians were scheduled to arrive in London at 9:30 p.m. But after standing for two hours in a crowded train they transferred to another train which arrived here two hours earlier.

The official greeters, unaware of the change, weren't at the station to meet the party. The newspapermen, who didn't know they had arrived ahead of schedule, were surprised there was no one to welcome them, but made the best of things and checked in at a hotel—not knowing that rooms had been reserved for them elsewhere.

Telephone lines hummed for the next hour as guests and greeters caught up with one another and before the night was over the newspapermen had been welcomed officially and transferred to their pre-arranged quarters.

More than 130 names, including those of 18 members of parliament, appear on a manifesto calling for organization "on as wide a front as possible" of all "who are not actuated by bitter and unreasoning hatred of the German people" and who desire "a just and lasting peace on a socialist basis."

The manifesto denounces "the shallow and twisted histories of those who follow the lead of Lord Vansittart (outspoken anti-German) and others in high places who think like him" and urges that in order to exercise "any progressive influence aboard we must put our own house in order."

A sub-committee of the Liberal party created a stir in political circles by recommending in a report to the party that the civil service be removed from treasury control. The service, it is proposed, should be made directly responsible to a minister without portfolio, who should be the deputy prime minister.

Lord Winster, former parliamentary secretary to the first Lord of the Admiralty, and now a critic of the government in the House of Lords, described the authority of his former chief as purely "nominal," in a pamphlet on shipping and shipbuilding which he calls "The war on our doorstep."

Clement Attlee, Dominions Secretary and Deputy Prime Minister, is rebuked in the pamphlet for "slightly underrating our intelligences, as a clever man is often likely to do," while other unspecified ministers are condemned as "the men of tried and proved initiative."

Hard To Believe How Time Flies

A Bible Message For Today

And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent? Or if shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?—Luke xi, 1-4, 9-13.

New Zealand's Premier

A New Zealand parliamentarian once shouted in a debate, "at least I was born on the land."

"A sheep could say as much," replied his opponent, a tall, grave Scotchman, with a rhetorical mule-kick when he chose to release it.

He was Peter Fraser, now Prime Minister of New Zealand.

Born in the Scottish highlands, he made his first political speech from a soap box, in Hyde Park, London. He removed to New Zealand in 1926 and rose in politics in the ranks of the labor party—in parliament in 1918, Prime Minister in 1940. He has held several important cabinet posts and is known as a conservative Labor leader, opposed by the left wing of the party.—Lemuel F. Parton, in New York Sun.

Girl Babies Can't Fight

The Nazis don't hold women in particularly high esteem. They are considered definitely inferior to men. Men, after all, are the warriors, and warriors are revered above all else by the Nazi mentality.

So a Nazi soldier, killed on the Russian front, in his will urges his wife, who is still young and healthy, "to marry at once in order to bear sons for the Fatherland."

And then the Nazi soldier provides that, if the child even then expected by his wife should not be a son, then his worldly goods should be given to the National Socialist institute at Koslin.

What a civilization these German throwbacks are trying to impress on the world!—Milwaukee Journal.

Hidden Health Move

Weaker tea with less sugar should be beneficial to health, for any doctor will tell you that too-strong tea is bad for the nerves. We are not suggesting that Ottawa is working a hidden health campaign; but the combination of rations may turn out to be just what we needed. Sometimes when we are disposed to run a bit wild the strings have to be tightened for our own good.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

Cooking was the young wife's hobby, and what she lacked in skill she made up in zeal.

One day, when a neighbor's small boy ran an errand for her, she rewarded him with a generous piece of jam tart which she had made with her own fair hands.

A few minutes later the youngster was back again.

"Thank you very much for the jam," he said with shy politeness. "Here's your bit of board back!"

Visit To Camp Borden Reveals Both While On Duty And Off Soldiers Given Best Of Care

(By JEAN STENTON)

Sunday is the one time when visitors are permitted to come and visit their relatives in Camp Borden, the largest military camp in Canada, where boys of all nationalities are serving, and at the present time, there are a number of Peterborough men stationed for training. To anyone accustomed to the Military Training Centre here, Camp Borden has to be seen to be believed. It has been constructed and operated on a gigantic scale and runs with the smooth efficiency of a well-oiled machine.

To be sure things are supposed to be pretty quiet at the camp Sunday, because operations are reduced to a minimum and many of the boys are out of camp for the day. But the visitor is apt to find things not entirely devoid of excitement. There are not many tanks in operation then, but the odd one plunges along the road and for the wide-eyed motorist driving along, the sight of one of these monsters rolling along like a juggernaught in the centre of the right-of-way gives the motorist one idea, that of getting out of the way in the shortest space of time. The boys doing the driving in the machine may have no evil intentions, but the visitors are taking no chances on finding out what it is like to tangle with this armored equipment bearing brightly painted names like "Thunder," "Tornado," and "Typhoon." They are perfectly satisfied to leave that to the Germans.

The camp is open to visitors from 12 a.m. to 8 p.m., and the boys get a big kick out of showing the folks from home around. There is never a dull moment and usually there are band concerts going on in different parts of the area. There are five permanent bands in the camp. These bandsmen are no mean musicians, and it is a common sight to see the boys and their friends relaxing on the lawns (yes there are lawns in spite of the tremendous amount of sand) and listening to the fine music.

Another fine service that is given to visitors by the Y.M.C.A. is the meeting of the "Guest Train." The "Y" meets it and greets all the guests, and takes everyone who wishes, to visit patients in the hospital. Those who have had to come and visit relatives there are unanimous in their praise of this service which makes things so much easier for them.

A New Bardia.

Borden is equipped with two swimming pools, an indoor and an outdoor pool. The outdoor pool has a lovely location and the cool, green water against its white background makes a charming contrast to the uniform rows of buildings in its vicinity. The indoor pool for some ironic reason has been given the name "Bardia," which is flauntingly displayed right at the front, in very artistic letters.

Another fairly recent innovation of which the Camp members speak with considerable pride, is the model German village which has been set up on the battle range where the boys simulate actual battle. Tanks take part and the men undergo street fighting. The tanks plough up and down firing at moving targets that pop up and down, and there is an obstacle course, all of which makes this training similar to Commando work in simplified form, without spurting blood bags.

The four national services carry on a wonderful work in the camp and the Auxiliary Services Branch acts as a liason between the army and the National Service groups. One man described the functions of the four as follows: "The Y.M.C.A. is interested in spiritual guidance and sports; the Knights of Columbus perform just about the same functions; the Legion handles problems relating to the soldiers and their families, problems such as the dependents' allowance and rental control; and the Salvation Army, last but not least takes care of morale and morality."

Camp Is Zoned

Each of the organizations has movies and shows four nights a week, and they have sing songs and quizz games and the usual ping pong and other similar games. There is a camp sports officer and staff, but the camp is divided into four zones, each of the nation organizations looking after the sports in its own zone. There is a central gymnasium, a bowling alley where the charge is very nominal and where the profits go to buy or build other features fr the troops, the two large pools are equipped with filtering machinery, a large central sport ground which is equipped so that volley ball, cricket, football, baseball and races can all go on at the same time if it is so desired.

There is a ¼-mile single race track in the new sports ground which was fixed up within six weeks and opened July 1. The cinders were the gift of the two railways which run right through the camp.

The camp has also been given a splendid library containing over 5,000 books and two educational service buildings. Here the Canadian Legion and the Army Educational Services are responsible for instruction and study. There are voluntary and compulsory courses, and for certain boys selected for the administrative staffs, typewriting, shorthand and orderly room procedure have to be taken.

A Dagger Is Their Crest

There are rows upon rows of armored vehicles to be seen. The 2nd Armored Tank Brigade has its insignia painted on some of the tanks and the crews wear the same insignia on their uniforms. It is a white dagger somewhat similar to that which appears on the French crest. In some of the tanks, the crews number between four and six men, and the driver receives his directions for driving from a system somewhat like the inter-communication used in planes.

The Salvation Army hold a regular church service in its auditorium in the central building every Sunday night. Music is supplied by volunteer soldiers in the camp who were previously Salvation Army bandsmen before joining the army. This central branch is equipped with a lovely small chapel which contains an organ. The main hut is supposed to be one of the largest Salvation Army huts in the country, and while each of the three other services has only one centre, the Salvation Army has four. Three of them are about the same size as the one in the Peterborough Training Centre.

Own Papers

"The Bullet" is a very popular paper of Military District No. 2 which contains news of interest about the various camps. It was born in Camp Borden and started off as an entertainment and sports circular. From this it rose to a mimeographed sheet and finally became the camp paper. It was found to be so useful that it was made a district paper, including all the camps and training centres in the district. The circulation amongst the soldiers is about 18,000, and they receive free copies. The paid circulation amounts to about 1,500.

Another magazine which appears in the camp is "Tank." This is written and published for Armored Division personnel and contains technical and other articles of wide range to interest the men in this branch of the service. The magazine appears once a month at 10 cents a copy, and the money made above the expenses is turned over to a ladies' auxiliary league in Barrie to buy cigarettes for the men overseas.

Some of the Sunday visitors who had had a chance to get some idea of the great number of armored vehicles, which, by the way are always "harbored," never parked, were heard to remark, "Now we know where our Victory Bonds go." That is an extremely pertinent thought because a visit to a place like Borden is an eye-opener to the uninitiated.

Bayonet Training.

Among other items of interest around the camp is the bayonet training course. Here there are rows and rows of wooden frames fitted up with dummies where the boys get in trim for the job they are going to do on the other side. There are more modern and up-to-date dental clinics than you can shake a stick at. There is no doubt about it, that from the number of these clinics scattered about the place the Army is certainly looking after the boys teeth.

While the National Service groups each have their own auditorium, there is a large theatre operated by the military authorities. It's maximum capacity is 8,000, but to date there has never been a larger crowd than 5,000. It is an enormous building and makes everything inside seem very small by comparison. This building is used mainly for shows and it was from here that the big radio broadcast "Cheers from Camp" took place a while ago.

R.C.A.F. Separate From Army.

There is an R.C.A.F. station at Camp Borden, but it is an entirely separate establishment from the rest of the camp. It has its own entrance and all its own facilities and is a compact unit. Visitors are only allowed in a very restricted area in this section, but the quarters that can be seen in this part are very attractive. On approaching near the two camps from Barrie there is a large sign giving directions for reaching the air station, but absolutely nothing to make visitors sure they are heading in the right direction for the Army. One person on Sunday offered the explanation that perhaps they didn't want to take any chances on Hitler locating it. Could be, could be.

Men of every nationality are stationed at the camp and some have had some interesting experiences. One officer mentioned that there was a young Czech boy who had escaped from Czechoslovakia the day before the Germans crossed the border into the district near his home. There is also a Polish lad with a similar story and many others from all over. Perhaps some day the story can be told of the hair-raising adventures and perils and hardships that many of these soldiers have endured that they might reach a land where they could continue to fight for the ideals of freedom in which they believe so strongly.

For those Petterborough families who have sons, husbands, brothers and sweethearts at Camp Borden, they can rest assured that everything possible has been and is being done for the welfare of their loved ones and a bird's-eye view of the camp convinces the civilian that it is one of the finest Army camps in the country.

Women Defence Cadets Mean Business

The leathernecks had nothing on these women defence cadets of America when they clashed with an "invading enemy" in a mock battle at Port Washington, L.I. The gals went to work on the invaders, played by members of the New York state guard, and pulled no punches. The ABOVE charge was one of the high-spots of the battle in which many an invader bit the dust.

Roosevelt Gives NorseSub Chaser

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(AP).—President Roosevelt turned over a new submarine chaser to the Norwegian navy here today, and Crown Princess Martha accepted it as a symbol of America's vast war production which means, she said, that "We cannot fail."

The ceremony transferring the sleek, gray, 173-foot ship was held at the Washington Navy Yard. The President and Norwegian Crown Princess heard the national anthems of their countries and saw the American flag hauled down and the Norwegian flag raised, while the old and the new crews stood at attention.

Mr. Roosevelt praised Norway's democratic ideals, fighting spirit, and contribution of vital sea forces to the United Nations' cause.

"The combination of treachery and brute force which conquered Norway," he said, "will live in history as the blackest deed of a black era."

In turning the new sub chaser over to the Crown Princess under Lend-Lease arrangements, Mr. Roosevelt voiced a hope that the day would come when the vessel would carry the Norwegian flag into a home port in a Free Norway.

Compulsory Bargaining

An Open Letter---

OFFICE OF THE TRANSIT CONTROLLER

DEPARTMENT OF MUNITIONS AND SUPPLY
255 Bay St., Toronto, Ontario

August 28th, 1942.

An Open Letter to Municipal Authorities, Local Transit Operators, and to the Public.

The time is appropriate to draw attention to the critical nature of the transportation emergency which will develop during the next few months.. Loading on urban transit facilities declines seasonally during the summer months and this factor has modified the effect of gasoline rationing and the tire shortage. The full impact of the restriction in private car use will register in the fall when people return to their homes from holiday resorts, when schools re-open and when inclement weather forces people on to the buses.

The decrease in the use of private automobiles is already apparent on the highways and on city thoroughfares, and further curtailment in the use of gasoline has already been announced.

War industries are expanding rapidly and manpower is being supplemented by woman-power. As the load on public transit grows, the ability of the facilities to meet the increased demand is seriously hampered by shortages of critical materials, equipment and labour. The source of supply of new buses will be practically dried up at the end of the year.

City transit services are carrying from 50 to 100 per cent more passengers than before the war and the rate of increase is rising steadily. It is obvious that if the present pattern of daily riding is not changed, the passenger facilities will not be able to carry the people who wish to move during rush hours.

The problem is not new, but is becoming so critical that it is no longer just the responsibility of the transit operator. The Transit Controller requests co-operation of Peterborough Bus Lines, Municipal Authorities, Industry, and the public in an effort to obtain the maximum use and efficiency from passenger facilities.

Much credit must be given to the operators of transit services for their resoureefulness and ingenuity in stretching their facilities to meet the unprecedented conditions which faced them. But the services are bound to reach a point where the task becomes impossible, unless adjustments are made in the travel habits of the public. The facilities can only do the job required of them if all concerned will co-operate to improve the conditions which limit the efficiency of the service.

(Signed) GEORGE S. GRAY,
Transit Controller.

GSG:H.

This is the first in a series of seven advertisements which will appear each Thursday in the Examiner. Each of the next five will show a Peterborough Bus Route with its time schedule.

These advertisements are being sponsored by the Peterborough Bus Lines to show citizens how serious the transportation problem is...and with the hope that citizens will co-operate with them by shopping in non-push hours ...thus leaving room on buses for the transportation of war workers to and from their work...on time.

Cooper Wins 20th Hard Way

Pitcher Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals proudly displays the numeral 20 on his shirt, symbolic of his 20th victory of the season, won the hard way, for he had to lick the at that time, league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers to do it. Mort is being admired by his brothers, Catcher Walker Cooper of the Cardinals and Jim Cooper of the United States navy. Since winning his 14th game, Cooper has worn the numeral 20 in high hopes of attaining that figure. Cooper's victory reduced the Dodgers' lead over the Cardinals to one game in the torrid National League pennant race and the Cards are now on top.

Close Finishes At Tillsonburg

TILSONBURG, Sept. 17—(CP)—Although there were small fields for the trials of speed at the Tillsonburg Fair because of nine fall fairs in progress in Ontario this week, the quality of racing was very high and the 8,000 fans present roared themselves hoarse at the thrilling finishes.

Florence Powell, driven by W. Jones, in the second heat of the classified pace made a new record when she crossed the line a nose ahead of Fletta Silk in 2:09¾, the last half being paced in 1:07. The classified trot provided three different heat winners, and Pete Miller of Tillsonburg, behind Mrs. Van, won in a story-book finish in the last heat when he pushed the good horse past the wire by a nose to beat Manchester Admiral. The last half of this heat was made in 1:08¾.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 17—(CP)— The word that Annis Stukus will coach Toronto Oakwood backfielders in the Ontario Rugby Football Union's senior group this season is almost too much for most of us to bear.

This large and loquacious member of the Lithuanian family Stukus is a refreshing type of athlete. He is one of Canada's best backfielders, but only the public takes him seriously. Stukus himself can't be bothered.

He was one of the few on Lew Hayman's Toronto Argos who didn't go for Hayman's famous fire-talks — words that always made rookie brows steam with anxiety and sent even some veterans into the fray anaesthetized against any sensation but the game ahead. Stukus never steamed. He never was anaesthetized. He often wise-cracked the spedd away, and Hayman resented that plenty.

Stukus is Canadian football's sage of the drawing rooms. He is something of an actor in this regard. He is big-boned, big-muscled. He looks like the movie conception of the halfback who runs the wrong way on the crucial touchdown play. He knows this, and acts it out. He gives his audiences, which are always large, and largely female, what they expect—serious discourses on how good he is. He gives them the works in rugged English, and they love it.

I refuse even to attempt to imagine Stukus giving his Oakwoods a pep-talk, although they'll probably need plenty, plus a Bren gun, brass knucks and blackjacks to get anywhere in the O.R.F.U. But I can see him now in a throng of rapt women, playing the part of the studious, but maligned coach; giving them the wherefores of that important play, and lurid background on the perfidious opposition.

There was once, on a football trip, when Stukus took himself seriously. The boys were in a night spot, and a Salvation Army girl came in selling the War Cry. She got a rude reception at a few tables. Stukus and his pals rose. They approached the girl, took her bundle of papers, and started around among the tables.

"You want it don't you?" he would snarl.

The patron would take one look at the vendor, and develop a burning desire to read the War Cry. He would reach into his pocket. If he produced a nickel, he got it for a nickel. If a half-dollar came out first, the price was a half. It cost some of the heathen dollar bills.

The papers were all sold in five minutes. Stukus and the boys handed the Salvation Army girl a quart of silver and a few bills. Then they went back again to not being serious.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Some baseball commentators seem to believe that the Brooklyn Dodgers are ready to fold up and that the St. Louis Cardinals are now a shoo-in for the National League honors. This column does not believe that but we do feel that this is the Cards' year and that now they are in front they have the ability and the drive to stay in the van for the next two weeks and cop the flag. Incidentally, too, we are of the opinion that the Cards are more likely to give the Yanks a real argument in the world series than the Dodgers would be. The St. Louis team has fight and speed and pep, a great pitching staff, one of the greatest outfielders in baseball in Terry Moore and a knack of coming through with hits when they mean runs and of pulling games out of the fire in the final stages. If it were not for the fact that they have been under constant pressure for a month and that it will continue probably right up to the world series we would go out on the limb and call for them to beat the Yanks. As it is they will be plenty tough when the blue ribbon classic gets under way.

* * * * * *

There was no change in the National League situation yesterday. Both the Cards and the Dodgers won and the St. Louis outfits are two full games in front. Brooklyn came back savagely after a two day layoff and used their bats to excellent effect, getting nineteen hits off a whole parade of Pittsburg pitchers and taking the decision in hollow fashion 10 to 3. Dolph Camilli led the onslaught with two home runs and Whit Wyatt pitched steady ball to hold the Pirates in check. St. Louis won about as easily over Jim Tobin and the Boston Braves. The final count was 6 to 2 with young Ernie White pitching fine ball for the winners. Enos Slaughter had a home run for the Cards and Schnozzie Lombardi pounded out one with a teammate on the bases to give the Braves their only runs. Paul Derringer pitched a four-hitter to enable the Cincinnati Reds to defeat the New York Giants 3 to 1 and the Cubs and Phillies split a double-header.

* * * * * *

The American League doings were featured by one of the best pitching efforts of the season on the part of Marvin Breuer of the New York Yanks who held the Detroit Tigers to two hits as the 1942 champions won from the Bengals 5 to 1. Priddy paced the Yanks thirteen-hit attack off Newhouser and Wilson with a home run. For the second game in succession the Boston Red Sox had the tough luck to be whitewashed. St. Louis Browns, with Johnny Niggeling, usually a Boston jinx keeping seven Red Sox hits well spaced out. Dobson was the losing pitcher. Dick Fowler of Toronto helped the Philadelphia Athletics win a 4 to 2 decision over the Chicago White Sox, relieving Harris who started the game and Jim Bagby pitched fine ball, holding the Senators to five hits as the Cleveland Indians grabbed off a 5-1 win.

The Pros Go Ahead

The National Hockey League has been given go ahead orders by the Canadian Government with the approval of United States authorities and professional hockey will flourish, if not as usual, at least in a pretty fair imitation of a normal season. The understanding is that men wanted for military purposes will have to answer when called but beyond that the authorities have placed no handicaps upon professional hockey. As a matter of fact the official attitude toward the cash-and-carry brand as compared to the amateur hockey organizations is decidedly encouraging. To the amateurs they point out that players must be usefully employed and that schedules must be drawn up so that there will be as little time lost from work as possible. That is a sensible order but there are no such commands in the case of the professional players. In their case there is no insistence upon useful jobs. They are free to devote all their time to playing hockey and once again there will be a lot of folk who will fail to understand why the boys who play hockey well enough to command big salaries get all the breaks.

* * * * * *

Incidentally the New York News had a somewhat sensational story the other day about professional hockey prospects. The yarn did not ring true and of course has been discounted by the announcement from the Government that N.H.L. clubs are now in a position to go ahead with plans for the coming season. The News' story was to the effect that the National Hockey League was planning an all-American circuit for the coming season "because Canadians will likely not play and there is also trouble taking players across the border." According to the News, Buffalo, Philadelphia and Cleveland might be added to the circuit with Chicago, New York, Detroit and Boston. Adds the Detroit paper, "There will be players enough for only one league so the minor league is not apt to start." Just where all these players to fill up a league were coming from if Canadians were not going to play the News does not say. Our own guess is that while there will be some gaps in the ranks of the N.H.L. clubs the loop will function about the same as usual this season, with the best of the junior crop sought by the pros to fill in the vacancies, caused by the drafting of some of the stars. However anything can happen.

* * * * * *

A Big Event

The visit of the Picton and Mount Hope R.A.F. soccer teams to Peterborough on October 3 to play a game in aid of the British War Victims' Fund promises to be the biggest sporting event of the season. Tickets for the big game are now on sale and are in ready demand. Riverside Park will be crowded when the two fine teams trot out on to the field. All the old soccer fans in town are excited over the prospect of seeing a game by two of the strongest teams ever assembled in Canada and by the same token scores of Peterborough folk who have seldom seen soccer played are planning to watch this battle, recognizing it as a rare opportunity. The two R.A.F. squads comprise in their membership a number of professional players and they are both strong in every department of the game. They are very evenly matched and the tussle between them should be a colorful contest, soccer at its best.

* * * * * *

It looks like a fourteen-team loop for the City Bowling League this season and the prospects are for a most successful campaign, if the interest and enthusiasm being shown in the preliminary stages is an accurate guide. At the meeting of the league held last night thirteen teams entered and several more are in the offing. It was decided to confine the membership this season to fourteen clubs so that the first organization desiring to enter a team who makes application to President Vince Fitzgerald or Secretary Frank Wood, phone 8829 will get the call. Most of the teams of last season are lined up again. Last night's meeting decided to revive the annual banquet at the end of the campaign, a function that has been dropped for several seasons and it was also decided to adopt a new system of dividing prize money, along the lines followed in the Toronto major bowling leagues.

Madigin Dies Fort Erie Track President

By APPAS TAPPAS

TORONTO, Sept. 17.— John H. Madigin, president of the Niagara Racing Association, operators of the Fort Erie race track, died suddenly yesterday morning at his home in Houston, Texas

News of the death of the well-known racing man and breeder of game birds was received last evening by John P. McInerney, well-known racing official and steward at Thorncliffe Park.

Funeral To-day.

Mr. Madigin had been in apparent good health. He remained on his farm adjoining the Fort Erie track after the close of the fourteen-day race meeting. On learning of the sudden illness of his wife, he left for his home. Just what was the cause of his sudden death was not made known. The funeral will be held this afternoon in Houston

For more than thirty years the late Mr. Madigin had been one of the owners of the Fort Erie track. A number of years ago he raced horses, owning such good ones as Simcoe and Ellicott, which won races at the old Sheepshead Bay track in the United States. His trainer was Doc Greydon of London, Ont.

Mr. Madigin was 79 years of age. He was a Canadian by birth. Born in Simcoe, Ont., he was a telegraph operator in his youth. He lived in Mobile, Alabama, for years before moving to Texas. Some of the finest gamecocks in the United States were bred on the Madigin farm. The Clarion strain of fighting birds was developed by the well known sportsman.

The horse Simcoe was one of the first to race in the Madigin racing colors, and the racer was named after his owner's home town. Judge McInerney was deeply shocked on learning of the death on an old friend and one wtih whom he had been long identified in horse racing. Besides his widow, the deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. E. H Andrews of Houston.

Two years ago one of the most complete books on racing in America were removed from the library of Mr. Madigin and presented to the I.C.R.A.

New Grid Year, Old Football Pose

It's a new football year, but here is an old football pose staged by the Loyola University, Los Angeles, Lions. The players are Vince Pacewic, passing; Carl Sweeters, tackling, and Fred Beyrouty, blocking. Canadian football is to be slim this year because of the war; however, R.C.A.F. teams in the west and the east are already shaping up.

FERDINAND FIGGERS ST. LOUIS CAN WIN PENNANT ON .500 BALL

Hold Their Lead As Dodgers Waken Clip Phils

By SID FEDOR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ferdinand the Figger Filbert popped out of his hole today, right smack into the National league party, and threw a scare into the folks in Brooklyn.

Ferdinand the Filbert, in case you've forgotten him, is the little guy with an adding machine for a head and a percentage table for a heart, and when he starts counting. . . .

The way Ferdie has it figured out right now, what with St. Louis Cardinals two games in front of the Bums and moving right along, the layout looks tough for the Daffiness boys.

Naturally, you'll point out that the Brooklyns broke out of their hitting slump yesterday. They turned loose a 19-hit bombardment that tore the feeble Pittsburgh Pirates apart 10-3 and ended their five game losing streak in a game marked by a brawl in the stands among some fans, a couple of ushers and Dixie Walker and Mickey Owen. No one was "hoited."

But the Cards bowled over Boston's not-so-Braves 6-2—at the same time and are still in there winning. And those festivities caused Ferdinand to point out that if the Cardinals should lose even four of their remaining nine games, the Dodgers would have to take nine of 11 to win. Or, the Cards can even go under the .500 mark—say win four and lose five—and in that case, the Gowanus Gallants would have to grab eight and lose only three. And if the sons of St. Loo should fall apart and drop six out of nine, Durocher's Darling still would need seven of 11 to come home on the bandwagon.

As both outfits went back to work today for more target practice at the same business here's the way the layout lined up:

	W	L	GB	GTP
Cardinals	98	47	-	9
Dodgers	95	48	2	11

Better than 100 to 1

However, the Dodgers still are better than a 100-to-1 shot. Certainly, the manner in which they came back after their two days in drydock for repairs did them no harm.

Meantime, the Cards combed Jim Tobin for only nine hits, but they put five of them together for a winning four-run rally in the sixth.

The pitching job of the day, however, was turned in by Marv Breuer in twirling New York Yankees to a 5-1 decision over Detroit Tigers. For seven innings he had a no-hitter and he wound up by giving up only two for the afternoon.

Paul Derringer also tossed a four-hitter that gave Cincinnati Reds a 3-1 decision over the Giants.

Just in case you're interested, Chicago Cubs climbed over the Pirates into the National League's fifth place by splitting a twin bill with the Phillies, losing the first 3-1 to Johnny Podgajny and taking the nightcap 4-1 behind Herman Bithorn.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

For tomorrow night's tournament it will be men's rinks. Draw from the board at 7:30 p.m. All other details to be the same as usual.

We are asking our bowlers to pay strict attention to the following notice: There will be no tournament on this coming Saturday night, but instead there will be a mixed tournament on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. Draw from the board. Fee 15c.

There were twenty-two mixed rinks, from all over this district entered at Port Hope yesterday in the annual tournament for the Dr. Daley trophy. Seven rinks from our own club helped to swell the entry.

We understand that H. Rosevear of Port Hope, the dean of lawn bowlers for Eastern Ontario, piloted his rink through to take first place and the trophy.

Our representatives did fairly well, two rinks reaching the money.

Peterborough, high for two wins: Miss G. Patterson, T. Donaldson, Mrs. J. Coursey, J. McDonald, skip.

Second for two wins: Mrs. R. Burns, E. L. Sackville, Mrs. A. Heckman, R. Burns, skip.

In conjunction with the regular games scheduled for Monday night the following postponed games will be played: Dr. Long vs P. McFadden; R. Payne vs J. McDonald; E. Wall vs H. Clegg; G. Gimblett vs F. Dearborn.

There was a nice turnout on our local greens Wednesday night. It was a grand night to bowl. The winning rinks were skipped by R. Hendry, T. McMillan and H. Martin.

4 Fans Love Cools For Dodgers In Night Court

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17.—(AP). — Four brave men, but bad, stood between hundreds of loyal Brooklynites and Magistrate Charles Solomon last night and said coolly their love for the Brooklyn Dodgers was positively dead.

They weren't sad so much because they were being arraaigned on disorderly conduct charges growing out of a tussle at Ebbets Field between fans, ushers and ball players It was more because, they said, they no longer had a team to root for.

Their resignation from Dodger fandom brought grunts of displeasure from the shocked audience — men, women and children — and some even turned and walked from Brooklyn—Queens Night court.

The four men—James Vigilante, 28; his brother, Michael 33; Michael D'Guisseppi 23 and Anthony Fischetti 22 — were paroled for a hearing Oct 4 when the baseball season will be over.

Complaints against them were signed by Greer Casey, chief usher at the Dodgers' home field who charged they had disturbed the peace at the diamond shortly before the start of yesterday's game with Pittsburg Pirates which the Dodgers won, 10-3, leaving them two games behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

An additional charge of simple assault was brought against the elder Vigilante by Usher Chester Breves, who said two of his teeth were chipped during the melee

Three Other Complaints.

Counsel for the defendants said they wanted to press charges against Dodger Manager Leo Durocher, Catcher Mickey Owen and Fielder Dixie Walker. The lawyer said the athletes assaulted two of his clients while the battle raged.

Magistrate Solomon told him to come back in the morning

The fight started in a box directly behind the dugout when ushers urged the defendants to leave the seats here.

The now ex-Dodger rooters said they had gone to the box to get the Dodger team to autograph photographs which hung on their club walls. They said Whitlow Wyatt, star hurler, and Walker had signed when the ushers started to throw them out.

The ushers gave ground and ball players took up the fight, while team mates surrounded the combatants and the Pirates stepped forward to look on.

Marv Breuer, Yankees—Handcuffed Tigers with two hits for 5-1 victory.

Dolph Camilli, Dodgers—Hit two homers, two singles, drove in five runs in 10-3 victory over Pirates.

Stan Musial and Walker Cooper, Cardinals—Each drove in two runs in 6-2 victory over Braves.

Jim Bagby, Indians — Muffled Senators with five hits for 5-1 decision.

Johnny Podgajny, Phillies and Bob Sturgeon, Cubs — Podgajny downed Cubs 3-1 in opener with six hits. Sturgeon's double and single drove three runs across in 4-1 Cub nightcap victory.

Bob Johnson, Athletics—Collected three hits, drove in one run in 4-2 triumph over White Sox.

Giants In Finals Trim Bears; Royals In Too

By the Associated Press.

For the first time in the 10-year history of the International League's Governor's Cup playoffs, Jersey City Giants have reached the final round.

The Giants accomplished this trick yesterday by defeating the pennant-winning Newark Bears 6-2 to gain the preliminary series four games to two. Montreal Royals, second to Newark during the regular season, staved off a similar elimination when they whipped Syracuse Chiefs 4-2 last night for their first victory in four games.

Since the playoffs were established in 1933, Newark has finished on top during the regular season six times but only twice has escaped the letdown that often follows. Jersey City encountered the same difficulty in 1939, its only pennant year, being eliminated in the first round.

Thus it was more or less according to "form" that the Little Giants who finished this year's main campaign in a third-place tie and then lost a one-game playoff to Syracuse, should come through against the champions in the cup series. But the Jerseys did it the hard way After dropping the first two games in Newark they won three straight in their home park then returned to Newark to win the deciding contest.

Koslo the Star.

Dave Koslo's pitching, and to some extent his hitting, was the big factor in yesterday's deciding game Dave limited the Bears to nine hits and might have had a shutout but for fielding by his mates. Manager Bill Meyer of the Bears tossed in 19 players, including six pitchers, in a futile attempt to turn the tide.

The Giants won the game in the third inning when they scored four runs. Koslo started things off with a single and after Johnny Tucker popped out, Pitcher George Washburn of the Bears lost control and walked three men to force in Koslo with the first run. Hugh Poland singled home two more runs and Joe Orengo drove in the fourth.

Montreal called on the veteran Schoolboy Rowe to halt the Chiefs' six-game winning streak and he did it with a neat seven-hit job. He applied the whitewash until the final inning when two hits a walk and an error gave Syracuse its runs.

The Royals did all their scoring in the first off Nate Andrews who gave up two hits and two walks without retiring a man. Tom Delacrue, who relieved him after two runs had scored, managed to retire the side only after the other two men came in, but pitched near-perfect ball the rest of the way. He was nicked for only three hits in nine full innings.

The fifth game will be played at Syracuse to-night.

Cards Set Two Ticket Limit

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17.— (AP).— Figuring on a brisk demand for world series tickets if they win the National League pennant, the Cardinals have established a two-to-the customer limit for reserved seats. Mail applications for grandstand seats will be accepted beginning to-day, but none will be made for more than two blocks of tickets.

As usual, tickets will be sold only in blocks of three, covering the three games to be played here. All box seats already have been sold to holders of season boxes.

Alexander Ready To Clean House; Tobruk Smash Held 'Muscle-Flexer'

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

If one were inclined to bet on hunches it wouldn't be a bad idea to wager a few coins that the Anglo-American assault on Nazi Marshal Rommel's supply base at the port of Tobruk was the fore-runner of the anxiously and not altogether patiently awaited Allied offensive to liquidate the Axis threat against Egypt.

I'm sufficiently psychic to be able to suggest that Britain's New Middle East Commander, Gen. Alexander—a fighting Irishman of great capabilities and hard-boiled characteristics—is manoeuvring in preparation for a house-cleaning. This destructive operation by sea, air and commando forces was a heartening exhibition of initiative in the midst of the enemy camp.

This means that the British 8th Army, which is drawn up opposite Rommel's forces in the narrow confines between the Mediterranean and the great Qattara Depression in the flaming desert, has passed from the stage of back-to-the-wall defence to aggressive initiative. Alexander is flexing his muscles.

It doesn't necessarily follow that the British forces intend to launch a drive within the next 24 hours. It wouldn't be surprising to see it come before long, however. Maj.-Gen. H. S. Sewell, British military expert, remarks with customary reserve:—

"Morale is high and the soldiers of the desert army are thinking in terms of attack."

Well, soldiers don't think in terms of attack without good reason. The indications are that the British forces are either set for action or rapidly nearing preparedness. It's no secret they have been receiving reinforcements and supplies.

With the fighting in the Caucasus in such a critical state, it's vital that Britain break off the Libyan claw to the pincers which Hitler is trying to close about the whole Middle East. It can't be over-emphasized that Egypt is the keystone of Britain's control of the Eastern Mediterranean, and that the loss of that country might spell Allied disaster.

Air activity over the El Alamein battle area of the Egyptian desert increased yesterday, one Axis fighter definitely being destroyed and five others so damaged they probably did not reach their bases, a joint British Headquarters—R.A.F. communique said today in Cairo.

Axis patrols and working parties were engaged by Allied forces, but there was nothing to report from the land front which has been quiet since Marshal Rommel's stab at the British lines was halted and turned back, the communique reported.

Changing To Lidice

FRELIGHSBURG, Que., Sept. 17 (CP)—This municipality, with a population of 531, about 40 miles south of Montreal will soon change its name to Lidice in homage to the Czecho-Slovakian village savagely razed to the ground by the Nazis last July. Necessary legal steps have been taken and although still unscheduled, ceremonies will soon take place here.

Russia's City Of Blood And Steel

Primaries Show Few Upsets; Sen. Lodge Back

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Returns from Primaries in five States showed today relatively few upsets with most incumbents winning party renomination, including Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (Rep.-Mass.) and apparently Republican Governor Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin.

Yesterday's balloting which virtually completed the United States' pre-election voting also gave Judge Homer Ferguson of Detroit a sizable lead for the Republican Senatorial nomination over Gerald L. K. Smith, former Lieutenant of the late Huey Long and an advocate of "tires for all."

The Massachusetts Democratic Primaries brought almost certain victory to Representative Joseph E. Casey and Mayor Roger Putnam of Springfield for the Senatorial nominations. Putnam held a fairly wide lead over the former Lieutenant-Governor, Francis E. Kelly, while former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Boston, conceded the Senatorial nomination to Casey.

Former Governor James M. Curley staged a comeback after four straight political setbacks to capture the Democratic Congressional nomination in the 11th district.

On the Republican side, Governor Leverett Saltonstall was unopposed for renomination. The party's only state-wide contest resulted in a landslide for Lodge over Courtenay Crocker, Boston.

Ferguson Well Up

Unofficial returns gave Ferguson a lead of nearly two to one over Smith in Michigan's Senatorial contest with a third candidate, Elton R. Eaton, Plymouth Weekly Newspaper Publisher, far in the rear. In the Nov. 3 election, the winner will face Senator Prentiss Brown who was renominated on the Democratic ticket without opposition.

Representatives Paul W. Shafer, Clare E. Hoffman and Bartel Jonkman, Republicans, termed pre-war Isolationists by their opponents, took early leads for renomination. Democratic Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and Harry F. Kelly, Republican, were unopposed for their parties' nominations.

In New Hampshire, Senator Styles Bridges obtained the Republican renomination by an overwhelming majority. Francis P. Murphy, twice Republican Governor of the State who shifted allegiance to the Democratic party last June, appeared to be the nominee to face Bridges election day.

Mackenzie Sees Post War Period Fruitful

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP)——Canada must be prepared with a program to help the million or more workers who will have to turn to new jobs after the war, Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie said in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club today.

"Our target for tomorrow is, first to win the war; second to win the peace," he said.

"The spirit we need to win this war is one of confidence, determined aggressiveness, of faith in our cause, of loyalty to our leaders and trust in each other."

So far, success had rested chiefly on the banners of the enemy, but Canadians had reason to take pride in the war effort of their country, he said reviewing the growth of the armed forces, the mounting expenditures for war purposes and the increasing industrial output.

"Get over your inferiority complex, keep a watchful eye open for weakness, but be proud of your country's record," he urged.

The sudden transition from a war economy to a peace economy might come in a single day and would bring problems on the home front as well as on the international front.

40 Per Cent People to Need Jobs

"How many people realize that with the end of hostilities at least 40 per cent of our employable people, new engaged in the armed forces or in war industry, will have to find new jobs," he continued. "A million, perhaps as many as two million Canadians looking for work. You know and I know that they will not spend much time idly waiting for something to turn up. Those days are gone forever."

The miraculous transpormation of a peaceful land into a nation in arms would have to be reversed, and even more rapidly.

"I believe that we can make of our reconstruction period one of the most fruitful eras of economic progress and social advancement that our country has ever known," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"The vast majority of these people will have new skills and degrees of skill that they did not formerly possess, skills acquired in our modern mechanized forces and in our newly-created industrial plants.

"We in Canada have witnessed in the past three years the greatest industrial expansion in our history. Hundreds of millions of dollars of new capital have been poured into plant expansion and in the creation of new plants. If we but apply forethough it should be possible to adapt this new industrial productive capacity to our peacetime requirements."

Vast markets would be opened by the needs of war-torn Europe and the deferred replacement of a wide range of goods in Canada.

With the benefit of past experience Canada had made broader and much more enlightened provision for the re-establishment in civilian life of its young soldiers, sailors and airmen than was made after the First Great War.

'No other country has surpassed Canada in the breadth and scope of the program which is already in operation in this country," the minister said.

They Mean Business

London, Sept. 17 (CP)

A BRITISH convoy in the Atlantic has been under heavy attack by German U-boats, an authoritative source said today, but no indication of the Allied losses was given.

The German high command has claimed the sinking of 19 ships from a convoy.

Authoritative quarters said the German report that Capt. Rolf Muetzelberg, commander of a German U-boat, lost his life in the attack while his craft continued operations indicated the U-boat had been forced to make a crash dive while the officer was on deck.

"This means that the convoy escort was on its toes."

Bomb Lifting, Ticklish Business

An R.A.A.F. bomb disposal crew, using a windlass, digs out and defuses an unexploded bomb from the runway of an airfield of an advance Allied air base somewhere in New Guinea. The bomb went straight down for 12 feet, then flattened out and went down six feet more. This shaft was dug beside the bomb, then the warning sign was put in the bomb hole.

Six Girls Invade Ship Industry; On Destroyer Job

By FRANK LOWE

HALIFAX, Sept. 17 — (CP). — pretty ribbons will relieve the grim outlines of Canada's two Tribal class destroyers when they finally splash in the water here, but that feminine touch will be there.

Responsible will be six comely girls who this week invaded the two-fisted world of shipbuilders in Halifax and immediately went to work helping make the pattern for what some day will be the newest and biggest fighting craft in Canada's scrappy navy.

Manager R. J. R. Nelson of the Halifax Shipyards, Limited, where the hard-hitting ships are taking shape, admits the hiring of the girls was "an experiment" and in violation of the old superstition about women and fighting craft not mixing, but says so far they "are shaping up well."

But it took a war to allow the girls to get by the guards of the yard as anything but stenographers. When help became scarce at the shipyards the cry went up for bright young men. However, most bright young men preferred uniforms to overalls, and no applicants could be found. It was decided to give the girls a try.

Picked by the Selective Service Bureau, the skirted recruits turned up this week for the jobs. All had high school educations and had been carefully selected for the experiment.

Only one with defence industry experience was Mrs. Madeline Gilroy of Montreal, a blue-eyed brunette who formerly worked with a munitions plant in Verdun, Que.

For the others this was their first excursion into what was once looked on as a "for men only" industry. Evelyn Amiro of Pubnico, N.S., forsook housework to try her hand at helping to win the war, as did Margaret Long of Richibucto, N.B.

Gertrude Comer and Rita Gallant, both of Dartmouth, N.S., previously earned their livings by sewing while Betty Budd of Digby, N.S., worked in a textile mill before coming here.

No Japs Wanted

KAMLOOPE, B.C., Sept. 17 (CP) —The Union of British Columbia municipalities in annual convention here yesterday adopted a resolution calling for the sale of all Japanese-owned lands and for the repatriation of all Japs at the end of the war.

Featherbed?

Benjamin Folsom, Jr., U.S. army tankist, beds down for the night in the western desert. He uses his tin hat for a pillow and a slit trench for a bed, just in case there should be some enemy shrapnel flying around. All the men must dig in and sleep in their clothes. Folsom, like many another American wears British shorts in preference to trousers in the desert where it is hot in the day and very cold at night.

Farmer Injured In Fall Off Roof

FAIRMOUNT, Sept. 16—(ENS) While cleaning straw from the barn roof after threshing, Morris Magee had the misfortune of slipping and falling a distance of 20 feet, injuring his spine. He was taken to Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. McArthur and family spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fee of Omemee.

Mr. L. Graham, Garnet and Edith of Peterborough spent the week-end at their home here.

Riggers, Fitters, Armorers In Key Roles

By ALAN RANDALL.

WITH THE R.C.A.F., SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 17—(CP). — You've got to talk to the men who fly to appreciate the job the men on the ground do in servicing the bombers that Canadian crews fly to Germany night after night.

At this Royal Canadian Air Force station in Bomber Command, just like all bomber stations, the ground men work in crews, so many riggers and fitters to each plane.

Riggers take care of the outside of the plane. Fitters look after the inside. Armorers such as LAC. George Plumb of London, Ont., take care of guns and bombs and kindred things.

The squadron engineer officer, FO. Bob Scott of Toronto and Ottawa says there can't be too many nice things broadcast about the ground men. Without them there just wouldn't be any flying.

Douglas Moores of Coleman, Alta., moaned the loss of a plane called "R for Robert." He worked on that plane a long time. It came back from Germany all right, but it did not pan out so well and they sent it back to the factory.

Grease-covered but smiling, Doug tucked his screwdriver into his belt and climbed down from the trestle where he'd been working on the engine of a Halifax bomber. The new "R for Robert" was all set to go to Saarbruecken.

14 Trips to Boche Land.

But about the old "R for Robert." That plane made 14 trips into Germany and back. The ground crew painted a rocket locomotive on the fuselage and they added a bomb-filled freight car for every trip.

Doug looked at the bare face of the new plane and said his crew were thinking up something new in the way of insignia. They'd thought of drawing William Tell and adding a new arrow for every trip. But the plane's skipper didn't like that idea much.

Moores explained there were aero-engine mechanics assigned to each Halifax, air frame mechanics, a corporal rigger and a sergeant fitter to push the gang. Toughest job for the fitters is when there is need for a complete engine change.

Then there are others among the "men behind the men who man the guns" who go on day after day doing such prosaic things as driving trucks and tractors and nobody ever hears anything about them.

They are men like Julian Scheeler of Strome, Alta., a big happy farm boy. He's only an AC1, but if fellows like Julian weren't around to drive a tractor for the R.C.A.F. those long trains of bombs just wouldn't get from the bomb dump to the belly of a bomber—and eventually to Germany.

Want More Lumber

EDMONTO, Sept. 17—(CP). — Timber Controller A. S. Nicholson said in an interview here yesterday maximum production of lumber and timber products now constitutes one of the main national necessities in the prosecution of the war. He said the lumber and logging industry will be classified as an essential war industry.

Wounded Hero Removed To Safety

Capt. Frank B. Bender of the U.S. army air corps is shown on a stretcher as he was put on a plane somewhere in New Guinea to be taken to the mainland for treatment of a leg injury suffered, when he was flying a bomber over Buna and was attacked by Jap Zeros. His plane caught fire and after ordering his crew to jump he tried to escape through the pilot's emergency hatch but it was jammed. Before the trapped pilot could free himself his plane exploded and he was blown through the hatch. He didn't lose consciousness and landed safely by parachute. Comrades carried Bender 16 days to an American base while Japs snapped at their heels.

HAVELOCK

Seeks License For Hotel

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17—(EUS).— Unless a beer license is granted to Mrs. Thomas Poulos of the Havelock Hotel, the hotel will be closed and wrecked, according to statements made Monday night during the September session of the Council.

Mrs. Poulos said that if the license was witheld, it would be impossible to carry on there, and she was told that if she did not stay, the building would be torn down.

It was moved by Councillors Martin and Kitchen that no action be taken by this Council to obtain a beer license unless a proper petition be brought before the Council. That is unless a certain number of ratepayers sign a list asking for a vote on the question of granting the beer license to the hotel.

T. P. Lancaster addressed the C uncil regarding the metal salvage compaign this fall, and the clerk was requested tc arrange through Ray Patterson for a storage lot on the corner of Ontario and Quebec streets.

By-law No. 501, granting the Bell Telephone Co. permission to make certain repairs as outlined on their map, was passed. By-law 502, confirming the appointment of Miss K. Anderson and Miss E. Wright as auditors for the 1941 records was also passed.

There was a motion by Councillors Sanderson and Leeson, that the reeve issued a warrant for the sale of the following properties: Lots—Pt. 262, 277 and 279 Concession street. Lot—Pt. 116, corner of King, and 21-22, west side Concession street. Loe—Pt. 116, corner of George and Oak street. Lot—Part 174-175 east side Quebec. Lots 7-13-14, south side Ontario street. Lot —21, corner of Quebec and Ottawa streets. Lot No 4, Ontario street south side.

On a motion by Councillors Martin and Leeson, a drain will be built from the south side of the C.P.R. track in Mr. Rylott's field to the creek in order to let the water drain out of this basin.

Councillors Sanderson and Ketchen moved that the reeve arrange for the county grader to go over the village streets and that the holes on George street be filled with mulch.

On a motion by Councillors Martin and Sanderson, the relief officer's report was received and accounts paid.

On a motion by Councillors Sanderson and Leeson, the following accounts were passed.

General Accounts.—W. J. Aikens, salary, phone, postage, $78.15. D. L. Miller, advice re Bell Telephone Co., $2; George Jones, street cleaning, $1.35; D. J. Johnston, gravel for streets, $1; George McKay, cuttings weeds, etc., $8.10; Harry Tinney, cutting weeds and drain work, $16.95; Bank of Toronto, Hydro, $8.55; Wm. The Flying Fortress that flew Gen. George H. Brett, commander of the United Nations' air forces, from Australia in record time recently is back in Seattle where she was born. Gen. Brett is shown in the plane's cockpit. While it was his personal plane, it was called "Alexander the Swoose," and hung up more flying hours than any other was plane in the U.S. air forces. Riddled with bullets it is still in fighting trim. It never had a fighter escort while in battle zones

Norwood Mission Societies Hold Sept. Meetings

NORWOOD, Sept. 17—(ENS). — The regular September meeting of the United Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday School Room with Mrs. Ed. Scott, vice-president, in the chair.

Mrs. Franklin Webster gave an interesting and profitable reading on "Christian Stewardship and Finance." Mrs. David Starke group leader had charge of the program. Mrs. William Barrie contributed the topic for the afternoon "The New Canada We Seek." A solo was sung by Mrs. J. E. Munroe.

St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society held its September meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Rork. Mrs. William Robb vice-president, conducted the meeting, which was well attended. Miss T. Robson opened the devotional part of the program, and gave the Bible reading. The circle of prayer was led by Mrs. Robb and Miss J. Clysdale. Mrs. Goheen read a very interesting letter from a medical missionary in India regarding hospital work.

Gas Rations Set Stage For Boom In Men's Apparel

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—National gasoline rationing will mean increased sales of wrap-around mufflers, mittens, gloves, hats and other male attire items, according to manufacturers and distributors who are holding a wartime emergency market and clinic in Chicago's Merchandise Mart.

Chief contributor to the expected shift to heavier lothing will be the passing of the closed car form of transportation in favor of bicycles, street cars and just plain walking.

Knit mufflers, which double as stocking caps of a type popular in the Victoria era, are on their way back, it is thought. Almost two yards long, the revived muffler is open at one end so that it may be stretched over the head, while the rest of the yardage can be wrapped around the neck.

Mittens and gloves for men and boys, falling in popularity in late years, are likewise coming into high favor again in heavier weights, exhibitors think. In gloves, Government orders and curtailment of South American shipments of peccary pigskin conspire to create a shortage, although it is not apparent now.

Influenced by keep-warm considerations, the hatless vogue, never very strong, will progressively weaken. Rims of the newer hats are narrower and a tendency tc adopt military colors is noted. Somewhat lighter in color than last year's styles, fall and winter hats are appearing in Commando tan, salute blue, victory brown and gun grey.

Salvage Drive Greatly Helped By Rural Mail Men

More than five tons of rubber collected by the rural mail carriers of Campbellford seen in this pile (at RIGHT) in front of the post office will go into Canada's war effort. Most of this scrap came from the rural areas surrounding the town, while local citizens boosted the pile by 3,477 pounds of rubber from garages and attics. There are over 300 auto and truck tires in this pile (at LEFT) in front of Campbellford's post office and they will add well over three tons to the nation's rubber stock.

Corn Roast Held By Fairview W.A.

FAIRVIEW, Sept. 17—(ENS). — Fairview Church anniversary services which were held last Sunday proved most successful. The church was filled to capacity both morning and evening. Rev. C. C. Miller of Bobcaygeon, a former minister, was the special speaker and delivered very stirring addresses. The choir provided excellent music at both services. The church was prettily decorated with a profusion of fall flowers.

Corn Roast.

Monday evening was the scene of a very jolly event held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fowler, when they graciously lent their home and lawns to the Fairview Women's Association for a corn and weiner roast.

Grandmothers' Day.

The Women's Association held their annual grandmothers' meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Fred Brown, on Tuesday afternoon, with a splendid attendance of 35 ladies. A number of grandmothers took part in the program, which was in charge of Mrs. Wesley Bell.

The president, Mrs Brown, conducted a short business period. The ladies decided to withdraw the annual fowl dinner and to have a special offering instead.

Rural Mail Carriers Collect Over Five Tons Of Rubber

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17 (ENS) The collection of scrap rubber in the Township of Seymour and Campbellford yielded results far in excess of all previous estimates, according to the local Postmaster, J. M. Ferris, under whose direction rural mail carriers conducted the most intensive campaign yet held for salvage. The far reaching plan instituted by the Postal Department, was designed as test in Ontario and Quebec, and the results here will not doubt determine future policy throughout the rest of the Dominion. Surveying the pile of rubber which stood conspicuously in front of the post office, Mr. Ferris commented, "I never thought we'd get so much since the I.O.D.E. collected more than five tons in their campaign a short while ago." He declared all of the credit for the present collection was entirely due to the rural carriers who brought in 6,803 pounds from the five routes which embrace practically all of Seymour Township. Biggest share of the salvage come from R.R. No. 3 comprising the Menie area which yielded 2,023 pounds. R.R. 1 provided 1,723 pounds; R.R. 2, 629 pounds; R.R. 4, 829; R.R. 5, 1,599. Main reason for the small contribution from Nos. 2 and 4 was that the I.O.D.E. had carefully sifted this area as had the schools in that section. There were over 300 tires in the pile, and the total weight of them and the miscellaneous items amounted to 10,280 pounds, of which Campbellford citizens who daily passed by contributed 3,477.

White Woodchuck Is In Captivity

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17. — (ENS).—When Mrs. George Beggs, Centre street, looked out from her back door and saw a small white animal running around she thought immediately that some boy's pet rabbit had escaped, and called on one of her neighbors to help catch it. Great was her surprise, however, when on getting a closer look at the pure white animal she discovered it didn't have the right kind of ears to be a rabbit. In fact it wasn't a rabbit at all, but a distant cousin, the woodchuck. And being so much different from all his brothers, by reason of his pure white coat, Mr. Woodchuck had either been ostracized from the rest of his family or had just taken it upon himself to make his home in Mrs. Begg's garden.

When her husband arrived home she told him about it and he decided it might make a nice pet for the children, or at least that it would bear closer inspection if it was put in a cage. Using apples and a bit of fresh cabbage as bait, Mr. Woodchuck was enticed into a small wire cage, where he is now living rather moodily since he doesn't seem to want to become a pet Mr. Beggsc has decided that if he can not find a zoo or other suitable place for his captive he will have to find some other means of getting rid of him as he is convinced the albino doesn't want to be a pet, although it is attracting considerable attention from school children and neighbors in that part of the town.

United Church Meeting Its Objectives

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 17. — (CP).—The General Council of the United Church of Canada in session here, was told by Rev. W. G. Martin of Winnipeg, that the church was meeting the responsibilities of wartime conditions.

Despite numerous appeals for many objects, the contributions of "our people for the maintenance of our work and for the removal of the deficit have been excellent," Mr. Martin said.

The financial objective for missionary and maintenance promotion during 1943 was set at $1,510,000, this being apportioned to the conferences as follows: Newfoundland $20,000; Maritime $150,000; Montreal ond Ottawa $210,000; Bay of Quinte $120,000; Toronto $335,000; Hamilton $185,000; London $180,000; Manitoba $98,000; Saskatchewan $62,000; Alberta $60,000; British Columbia $90,000.

In placing the budget before the council, Rev. Charles Endicott, secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance committee, said it meant five cents per capita per week for the 700,000 members of the church. "We should give five millions," he said. "So we can work and place in the hands of the coming generation the tools to fashion the new world order."

General Secretary Dr. Gordon A. Sisco said the General Council of the church was not in a position properly to define collective bargaining. The commissioners named a special committee to meet representatives of organized labor and clarify the definition as it affects the church's publishing house.

Commissioners of the General Council defeated a motion of Rev. A. Lloyd Smith of Montreal, to elect two moderators with tenures of office to run one year each, consecutively. No nominations were made.

General Council decided to maintain the status quo of the eight United church theological colleges in Canada and endorsed a motion by Principal E. A. Kerr, Pinehall College, Halifax, N.S., that present grants to the colleges be continued.

Jewelled Clip

As a change from collars, try a jewelled clip or clips at the neckline of your plain black dress. You'll be surprised how distinguished it'll look and people will probably think the whole dress is new. They come vividly colored or in gold and brilliants, or you can have just plain gold or silver or plastic, according to your taste.

Arrested

Robert Bailey, 21, a U.S. army deserter is shown as he was questioned by police at Santa Maria, Calif., regarding the murder of two Wisconsin social workers. Bailey was picked up 2,000 miles from scene of the crime, driving the murdered girls' car. According to police Bailey has now confessed to the crimes.

Rev. J. D. Piper Concludes Pastorate

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17 (ENS) —Large congregations gathered on Sunday at the Glad Tidings Tabernacle to take part in the farewell services to Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Piper who have faithfully ministered here for the past two and a half years. At the evening service Rev. and Mrs. Piper were heard in two lovely and appropriate duets, "We Shall Know Each Other Better Over Yonder" and "When I Make My Last Move." Taking as his text Eph. 6:10, "Be strong in the Lord and the power of His might."

Nab N. York Jap With Maps Of Water Works

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—(AP)— A Japanese who had made maps of the New York City water supply system and statistics on United States war areas was one of 10 enemy aliens apprehended in this area by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, P. E. Foxworth, assistant director of the F.B.I., said yesterday.

The aliens, all arrested for refusing to serve in United States military forces, included also seven Germans and two Italians.

The Japanese is being held at Ellis Island for interment after the maps and notebooks were found in his apartment. The others will be investigated by the United States Attorney's office for possible prosecution, Foxworth said.

Foxworth said the Japanese' notebook listed vital statistics relating to the Netherlands East Indies, New Zealand, Australia, Guam, the Phillippines, the Panama Canal zone, Puerto Rico, Alaska, Burma, Bermuda, Indo-China, Hawaiian Islands, Russian Islands near the Aleutians, and other military objectives.

The Japanese, whose name was not revealed, was a 42-year-old kitchen helper in a hospital. He came to the United States in 1916, and annually, until four years ago, reported to the Japanese Consulate where he enrolled for military service and swore allegiance to Japan.

Also in the apartment, F.B.I. agents said they found radio-television textbooks.

Agents said they found in the room of one German, who taught Nazi principles in a German labor camp, but was rejected by the German army for physical disability, two cameras and several negatives, including pictures of the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco and Panama Canal locks.

Manvers Couple Golden Wedding

FLEETWOOD, Sept. 17—(ENS). —About one hundred friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Staples of Fleetwood gathered at their farm home where they reside with their youngest son Edmund to celebrate with them the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Monday from 3 to 5 and 8 to 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Staples before her marriage was Miss Minnie Lathangue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lathangue of Lifford, where they were married by Rev. Oswald, at that time in charge of the Janetville, Ballyduff and Pontypool circuit.

Their bridesmaid was the bride's sister Annie (Mrs. Robert Bell) of Burgeton, whose sudden death took place four years ago while she visited her son at Ottawa. The groom was attended by Thomas Shea who still resides at Fleetwood and is the father-in-law of Mrs. Eld. Shea, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. Staples came to their present home as bride and groom and have spent their entire married life there engaged in farm work. Mr. Staples operated a threshing machine through Manvers Township for a long period of years. They have five sons, Nelson of Toronto, Sidney of Scugog, and Ernie, Vertie and Edmund of Fleetwood. Their only daughter Lorena (Mrs. Shea) also lives at Fleetwood.

During the afternoon many photographs were taken of the gathering and of the bridal couple.

A beautiful three-storey wedding cake handsomely decorated and ornamented by a miniature bride and groom occupied a prominent position and the many callers during the afternoon and evening partook of the cake as part of their dainty luncheon which was served by the immediate relatives of the family.

Chris Cummiskey, a family friend formerly living at Fleetwood, and now township treasurer at Bethany, was the capable chairman for the occasion and offered congratulations to the bride and groom. An appreviative address was read by Sidney Staples, eldest son of the groom, expresing the sentiment of those present and the extreme pleasure the observance of this particular anniversary afforded to all present.

The groom made fitting reply on behalf of himself and his bride and heartily thanked their friends for the presentation of two beautifully upholstered chesterfield chairs.

Others making short speechs included Albert Heaslip, Louis Staples and Jim Staples.

The farm home was tastefully decorated with a host of gay summer flowers, the bride herself wearing a handsome bouquet of gold flowers with a becoming gown of navy blue.

Among those present who were at the marriage fifty years ago were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Weatherilt, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Mitchell, of Lifford, Louis Staples of Bethany, Herbert Lee of Fleetwood, Albert Heaslip and Mrs. Heaslip of Janetville, and Miss Annie Johnston of Janetville.

Those from Toronto present were Mrs. William Patterson, sister of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Staples and Pat. Mr. Staples son of the bride and groom was teller in the Bank of Toronto, Bethany, before going to Toronto for promotion.

Two Girl Chums For Years Now Serving In Air Force

AW.-2 PHYLLIS HARRIS (R.) CPL. MYRTLE BOREHAM (L.)

Two bosom friends, who grew up together, are now serving their country in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. Cpl. Myrtle Boreham was the first Peterborough girl to sign up in the Air Force and was the first Peterborough girl to land in England a few weeks ago. AW.-2 Phyllis Harris, who enlisted some months atfer her friend, has just recently graduated and posted to Fingal near St. Thomas.

Cpl. Myrtle Boreham and AW2 Phyllis Harris have been bosom chums since they were small kiddies going to Queen Mary School and now both girls are serving in the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Cpl. Boreham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Boreham, 476 Donegal street, and AW 2 Harris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harris, 478 Donegal street.

Cpl. Myrtle Boreham signed up with the R.C.A.F. in November, 1941 and was the first Peterborough girl to join the Air Force. Up to that time she worked in the law office of Peck, Kerr and McElderry. She trained and was stationed at Dunnville and then was posted to Rockcliffe, when she was one of the few girls chosen to go to Ottawa to act as a stenographer at the Empire Air Training Conference in the spring. Her latest achievement is that she is the first Peterborough girl in the R.C.A.F. to have landed overseas in England. Mr. and Mrs. Boreham received word by cable that their daughter had landed safely in England August 31.

AW 2 Phyllis Harris started her training August 1 at Jarvis street, Toronto and while she was home last week-end on leave she learned that she had been posted to Fingal, near St. Thomas as a postal clerk.

Before entering the service of her country, this young woman worked in Hall's store and the Canadian General Electric Company. Mrs. Harris said that her daughter was so excited about being posted to her new job that she could hardly wait for her leave to be finished so that she could catch the train.

Both Myrtle and Phyllis went to Queen Mary School and the Collegiate Insttiute together and both were members of Trinity Church and had pretty much the same interests and activities. The two girls were a striking picture when seen together. AW 2 Harris is small and dark and her pal, Cpl. Boreham, is little and fair. Both have dancing eyes and get a lot of fun out of every situation that arises. When Phyllis was taken ill for a short time after she went to Toronto, she wrote home saying that while she didn't want to stay in bed it had some advantages because the other girls were polishing up the buttons on her uniform an seeing that she got the best of everything. The two girls eat, drink and sleep their job and can't bear to think of anything else.

Peterborough can be justly proud of the record of two of its Air Force girls who seem to be going places in a hurry and the best wishes of all go with them.

Corn Roast Held By Millbrook W.A.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 17—(ENS).—The Junior W.A. of St. Thomas' Church enjoyed a corn roast at the week-end, under the direction of its superintendent, Miss Bella McCorry, and with the boys of the Sunday School, the superintendent, E. H. Barnes, and the principal of the Public School, Percy Hamilton, included among the guests.

Unfavorable weather compelled holding the event in the parish hall, but games and contests were thoroughly enjoyed, and musical selections also had a place on the program. Other invited guests were Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, president of the Senior W.A., the rector and his wife, Rev. C. E. and Mrs. Chevis, Miss B. M. Turner, and A. A. Needler, assisting the superintendent in serving the hot, buttered corn, and other good things provided, were Mrs. Percy Handley and Miss Rose Macnamara, secretary of the Senior Auxiliary. Brief speeches of thanks for the enjoyable social hour were voiced by Mr. Chevis, and others among those invited for the occasion.

Fraserville News

Mrs. J. Bothwell, Ray and Percy visited friends in Millbrook on Sunday.

Among those from here who attended the shower for Miss Florence Bebee at Bensfort on Friday night were Mr. and Mrs. R. Finlay, Mr. and Mrs. W. Waterman and family, Mr. and Mrs. P. Moncrief, and Miss Jean Staples.

Mr. Bruce Cunningham has accepted a position at the C.G.E. in Peterborough.

Mr. Stanley Reesor of Claremont was a recent visitor to the home of his sister, Mrs. F. Lackey.

Miss Marion Whitfield is in Peterborough, where she has been taking a two-weeks' course in connection with the C.G.E.

Misses Dorothy Moffatt and Elinor Pue spent the week-end at their respective homes.

Mrs. William George, Mr. and Mrs. C. Childs and son visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harrison George and Viva of Morganston.

Mrs. F. Down, Mrs. B. Macklin and Mrs. C. Leach attended the bridal reception for Mrs. George A. Lang, formerly Miss Ina Rosevear, at her parent's home, Harwood, on Saturday afternoon.

Much sympathy is felt for the family of the late Mr. Samuel Adams whose funeral took place Saturday afternoon. Among those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. James Waldie and children, near Trenton; Mrs. James Bradbury and family of Cobourg, also relatives from Academy Hill, Roseneath, Plainville and Centreton.

Trim Tailored Tweeds Popular

If you're shopping for a coat this fall, you'll find an abundance of the ever-popular English and Scottish tweeds made up in the trim tailored models that are always popular. Straight lines are the general rule, although there are many semi-fitted styles, with back-belts or full belts.

Tailored camel hair coats straight or belted, are being shown in many stores, and this is the kind of coat that never seems to lose its smartness. Bold plaid in loose wool and wool mixture weaves are made into box-style coats with fluffy full collars.

Because there is no restriction on the use of fur its use on coats will probably increase as time goes on. Right now the fashion seems to be the soft, fluffy or shaggy furs on casual all coats, although some tailored coats with lapels of flat fur are being shown.

War Refugees Want To Get Stamps

Child war refugees in England and different parts of the British Isles are clamoring for stamps, used American and Canadian stamps of every description according to a letter received by Bob Everett, of the Empress Hotel a short time ago.

The letter came from Mrs. Archie Oakes, 229 North Ellsworth, Naperville, Illinois following a request from Chicago that she assist in sending stamps to the children. The stamps should be addressed to Mrs. C. Hailey-Williams, c/o British Philatelic Association, Imports and Exports Control, Board of Trade, 3 Berners street, London, England.

Bob Everett had quite a hobby a few years ago when he was employed at Hotel London in Ontario. At that time he received a request from a Canadian missionary in China asking that he forward all his used Christmas cards. The missionary inscribed Biblical messages on the back of the cards and distributed them to the Chinese children. Mr. Everett got a little publicity on the program and collected more than 150,000 used Christmas cards which he shipped to China.

Knowing of this the American woman in Illinois is enlisting his aid to send stamps to the children of Britain, and he proposes to send all that he can obtain. Is seems that if the parcels have the words "Used stamps only" on the outside they are allowed free delivery to Britain.

Some people are sending scrap books and used Christmas cards to these war refugees in Britain but whether or not the policy of sending cards is a desirable one has not as yet been ascertained. At any rate everyone who cares, to cut stamps off envelopes can be assured that the children in Britain want them.

It is a simple thing involving very little labor, and who knows but that the hundreds of little children, sent to country places where danger of bombing is reduced, may get worlds of pleasure from receiving the stamps that to Canadians mean little or nothing.

Harwood United Church Marks Its Sixtieth Anniversary

HARWOOD, Sept. 17.—(ENS)—The sixtieth anniversary of Bethesda United Church, Harwood, was fittingly observed on Sunday, September 13. The ministers and congregation of Bethesda, with their hosts of friends were blessed with the gift of perfect Autumn weather for the occasion.

The Rev. M. C. Fisher, B.A., Gore's Landing, was in charge of the services and the Rev. Thomas McNaught, B.A., of Russel, Ontario, was the special preacher at both services. Rev. Mr. McNaught is an outstanding preacher, and was in charge of Bethesda and Roseneath (then Presbyterian) during and after the First Great War. His former congregation at Roseneath attended en masse, for it may well be said of him, "the beloved pastor."

The attendance from Cobourg, Roseneath, Fenella, Warkworth, Baltimore, Gore's Landing, Plainville and Harwood bespoke the esteem in which Mr. McNaught was held.

In the morning Bethesda choir sang, and sang two beautiful anthems, "All for Him" and "Thou Art Mine." Mrs. Garnet Isaac sang very beautifully "More Love To Thee."

Before the sermon Rev. M. C. Fisher gave an historical sketch of sixty years as follows:

Names of Bethesda ministers and length of their pastorates:

1863-1881—Rev. Wm. MacWilliam, 18 years.

1902 (Oct.)-1907 (June)—Rev. W. R. Johnson, 5 years.

1907 (June)-1909 (Jan.)—No minister, 1½ years.

1914 (Feb.)-1916 (June)—Rev W. R. Alp, 2½ years.

1917 (May 30)-1921 (April 24)—Rev. Thos. McNaught, 4 years.

1921-1926—Rev. Thos. McCord, 5 years.

1926-129—Rev. Robert Barbour, 3 years.

1929-1934—Rev. James Leach, 5 years.

1940—Rev. M. C. Fisher.

"Congregational meeting held the 29th day of January, 1860. Moved by James Skinner and seconded by James Kennedy that the minister be paid at the rate of eighty pounds for this year. Carried.

Moved by George Isaac, seconded by James Skinner, that the debt of the church be left over for one year. Carried.

Moved by George Isaac, seconded by James Skinner, that the deacons be empowered to deal with Mr. Halstead and Mr. Harriet likewise with the township council regarding the site of the church and graveyard and make the best of it they can. Carried. Signed by P. McDermid, chairman; A. Campbell, secretary.

Nov. 11, 1863—Committee reported they had agreed with Mr. George Isaac for 3 acres of land at the rate of $40 per acre for the purpose of a glebe and building a manse thereon.

A committee was appointed to build a manse with power to call on the congregation to attend a bee and to sustain them to the amount of $1,000.

January, 1863—A committee appointed to get up a chart and stake out a burial ground.

1882—Money for Bethesda Church, Harwood:

Subscription	$1,362.40
Tea meetings	253.39
Borrowed	1,460.00
	$3,068.36
Paid out	$3,031.00
Balance	$ 37.27

Contracted W. W. Fitzgerald to have the church built for $2,528.75. Other items brought the total to $3,031.

Subscriptions to building fund continued in 1883, 1884. The deed in Mr. Deyman's office is dated 1883, and was registered in 1891.

The Y.P. Christian Endeavor Society was inaugurated on February 12, 1909. Mr. Mann appointed the first president. Miss M. McCulloch, the first vice-president, Miss Lillie Isaacs the first secretary-treasurer. Meetings were held Sundays at 7 p.m. and they were reported very good.

Fifteen persons who were present sixty years ago stood at the morning services as follows: Mr. George A. Black, Toronto; Mr. Frank Black, Twing, Michigan; Mr. Fred Black, Twing, Michigan; Mr. Frank McCulloch, Harwood; Mrs. John Sandercock, Camborne; Mrs. Peter Thompson, Keene; Mrs. William Brisbin, Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. James Caruthers, Camborne; Mr. Andrew Carruthers, Harwood; Mr. James Buttars, Harwood; Mr. Chas. Buttars, Bewdley; Mr. William Buttars, Coldsprings; Mr. William Sandercock, Fenella; Mr. Robert Buttars, Bewdley.

At the evening services, the choir from Roseneath United Church were in charge of the music. They rendered one anthem, a male quartet composed of Ambrose Atkinson, Warren Atkinson, Douglas Coyle, Fred Lewis. Also a beautiful trio by Gwen Varcoe, Clarice Atkinson and Betty Atkinson.

sank an enemy merchantman. A Pacific fleet headquarters' communique said the action occurred Tuesday but both agreed on all substantial facts.

Enemy resistance with fighter planes and anti-aircraft fire was weak over Kiska, enabling American forces to carry out what the Pacific fleet headquarters termed a "most successful attack." Four "Zero" fighters and one small plane were brought down and a large Japanese patrol plane was smashed while on the water.

Stick to Guadalcanal

At the other end of the Pacific battle theatre, the Marines still clung to their Guadalcanal base, as the navy announced the intensity of the fighting had decreased. Marine patrols, meanwhile, still sought to drive enemy units from the interior of the island.

A Japanese cruiser and destroyer force was spotted yesterday by planes off Choiseul, the navy said. One cruiser was damaged by a bomb and the other by a torpedo in the action about 200 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

A day earlier, the communique added, a bombing attack by two Boeing Flying Fotresses set shore installations afire at the Japanese base on Rekata Bay about 140 miles northwest of the American Guadalcanal airfield.

The hits scored on the two cruisers boosted the toll on enemy shipping in the Solomons to more than a score sunk or damaged. In the Aleutians, the Japanese have had 32 ships lost or damaged to date as a result of the latest air attack.

quoted in a dispatch relayed via Zurich, Switzerland, late yesterday as saying that Hitler's headquarters would issue a special announcement—expected to deal with Stalingrad—within 24 hours.

A change of pressure was noted in the Nazi assault tactics in the sweep against the bomb-ravaged and smoking city from the northwest, for recent emphasis had been upon the west and southwestern fronts.

"On one sector individual groups of enemy tanks drove wedges into our defences, but they were wiped out in the heavy fighting that ensued," the midnight communique said.

Rumanians Routed

It noted the rout of a Rumanian rifle regiment, the annihilation of a German infantry battalion and the destruction of 13 Nazi tanks and 34 motor vehicles in other areas of the defence arc anchored on the Volga. Soviet fighter planes were declared to have shot down 32 German aircraft.

Again the Soviet Information Bureau reported that German reserves were moving up to join the offensive, intended to wipe out one of Russia's largest remaining industrial cities, split her central and southern forces and sever Caspian Sea supply lines.

German troops harassed by Soviet fire south of the Trek River, in the Mozdok area of the Central Caucasus, launched counter-attacks, but were repulsed with heavy losses and the Russian recaptured a tactically important settlement, the communique announced. It said about 30 tanks were crippled or burned.

Loot on Mozdok Front

Elite Soviet Guards were reported to have captured a German tank, two guns, four trucks, 28 machine guns, 3? cases of mines and a document-laden staff car in the Mozdok area.

Russian troop probing invasion lines on the Central front captured a fortified position and killed about 900 Germans, the communique said. Soviet artillerymen were credited with destroying 10 dugouts, 26 blockhouses and five field guns.

The army newspaper Red Star said a Lt.-Gen. Rittau, Commander to the German 129th Division, had been killed in action near Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

The see-saw fighting in the upper Don Basin south of Voronezh persisted and the Russian said about 500 invaders were slain in a two-day engagement.

Far to the north, Red army men were declared to have captured a fortified position and wrecked four Nazi tanks in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov River front.

Several hundred thousand troops—"several tens of divisions"— were declared by Izvestia to have been concentrated by the German command for the push that broke into the outskirts of Stalingrad.

Transport planes brought up fresh forces and poured them into the battle. Plane landings this close to the front indicated the Germans were able to establish landing fields immediately outside the city.

Red Star said 5,000 German were killed during a counter-attack in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov river front and fighting flamed on the central front, in the upper Don basin and along the Terek River Valley of the Caucasus.

Major attention, however, was commanded by the Battle of Stalingrad.

OBITUARY

WINFRED SIMPSON.

NORWOOD, Sept. 17—(ENS).—Death occurred suddenly at his home here of Winfred Simpson, second eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Simpson, in his 66th year. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife the former Sarah Rusaw, also two daughters, Alma and Beatrice of Toronto, two sons George of Maynooth and Gordon of the Midland Regiment, four grandchildren, and one sister (Pansy), Mrs. George Wheatley of Grafton.

The funeral service which was largely attended, was conducted at the house and the graveside by the Rev. E. Ferns of the Baptist Church. The choir sang "Abide with Me" and "Rock of Ages." E. J. Rutter sang solo, "The Old Rugged Cross." Interment was made in Norwood Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Alfred Bongard, Robert Martin, William Montgomery, Cecil Patterson, William Gratton, and J. J. Rogers. The flowerbearers were Kenneth Chamberlain, Garnet Wheatley, Frank Rusaw, Edward Slater, and Alexander Innes.

There were many beautiful floral offerings from family, frineds, and neighbors. Those attending from a distance included Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rogers, Lily and Helen, Mrs. K. A. Chamberlain and family, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheatley, Garnet and Madeleine of Grafton, Mr. and Mrs. George Rusaw of Colborne, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rusaw of Hastings and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Williamson of Roseneath.

100 Young Women Are Registering Daily For Selective Service

Young women between the ages of 20-24 have been registering at the rate of 100 a day in the Selective Service office in the Barrie Building. William Mellis, manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said that all of the women were quite willing to help in any way that they could and were quite matter of fact about the whole thing. Most of them with children went further and said that they would gladly help out if they knew that their children would be given proper care and supervision. Cities like Toronto and St. Catharines have started day nurseries and there is to be a training school established in Toronto for training personnel for cities all over Ontario.

The office is open for registration from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. up until Saturday and those in charge said that to date most of those registering were married women with children. The smaller number of single girls registering were mostly girls doing housework and nurses-in-training. According to Mr. Mellis so far there have been very few young women teachers registering and he urged that all who were eligible for this should not delay too late in the week.

The four women who are handling the registration for Peterborough and district are Mrs. C. R. Banks, in charge, Mrs. R. B. Harle, Mrs. C. MacDonald and Miss Jean Thomas. One thing these ladies have not gotten used to yet is the fire alarm that goes off every morning after 10 o'clock, and more than one applicant has had quite a shock on hearing the gong.

When the forms are being filled out the women are given an opportunity to state their preference in the matter of the work they would like to do. They are asked if they are prepared to change their present occupation, if they would like a part-time or full-time job, and all they are required to do is answer yes or no. The questions asked are quite similar in scope to those asked at the registration two years ago.

The authorities said that they felt a number of girls had the idea that the registration cards they received two years ago were all that they needed and so were not reporting. This is not the case. All girls who are not working steadily between the ages of 20-24 must register before the week is out. It has just been announced that "severe penalties can and will be enforced on women who fail to register. This is not a voluntary registration. It is something that must be done and the penalty will be a $250 fine or six months in jail for those who fail to comply," a Selective Service Board Director said.

"We have absolutely no intention of going ruthlessly into the house and asking the woman responsible for the stability of the home to take a war job. A mother with a family is ten times more important in the home than out in a factory," Mrs. R. Eaton, Director of the Women's Registration, said.

Ear Rings Still Popular

Ear-rings have really boomed into popularity for some reason or other, during the past year, and they come in the cutest and most surprising designs. One of the most attractive is a plain gypsy ear-ring that simply clips on to the ear and stays there. Another is a pair of tiny birds, their wings exactly the curve of the ear.

LEAVES TO JOIN UNIT

Lieutenant Lorne Bateman who is connected with the Prince of Wales Rangers left Wednesday afternoon to join his unit on the west coast. For the past five months Lieut. Bateman has been taking qualifying courses at Gordon Head and Camp Borden.

JUST A RUMOUR.

Enquiry at Military Training Centre No. 32 to-day failed to verify a rumour that Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., camp commandant, was being transferred The rumour indicated he was to take over Long Branch camp, but this may have started because Colonel Keeler is at present taking a special two weeks' course at Long Branch along with other camp commandants across Ontario. He is scheduled to be back a week from next Sunday.

USE FERTILIZER.

Use of fertilizer on meadows this month was recommended by Prof. E. N. Ruhnke of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, in a brief comment to the Examiner yesterday. He was in Peterborough on some general enquiry throughout eastern Ontario.

A $4,600 HOUSE

A new brick house at the southeast corner of Stewart and King streets has just been finished by Oliver Hayward. It was built for William C. Clegg, and cost around $4,500, possibly $100 more than that. This house represents the present money values in terms of bricks and roofs and so on, modernly designed and equipped, and it provides evidence that building materials are available, and that houses are being built.

GOOD INCREASE

Bank clearings for the week ending September 14, 1942, total $901,528, an increase of $180,131 over the amount for the same period in 1941, which was $721,397.

MILK FOR BRITAIN

The sum of $10 has been received from J. A. MacDonald of the Royal Bank, treasurer of the Milk for Britain fund from the Plaza Softball Club. Instead of playing a final game out of the city the team decided to forego the expense and voted $10 to the Milk for Britain Fund.

Previously acknowledged	$6,419.46

RECEIVES HIS WINGS

Word has been received here that Sergt. Max Parnell of the Prince of Wales Rangers has been presented with his paratroop wings on the successful completion of a paratroop course at Fort Harrison, Helena, Montana.

REGIMENTAL NUMBER WANTED

At the cigarette bingo in the Canadian Legion Hall the other night some one left a name in the box to be listed for cigarettes and forgot to add the regimental number. Bob Hotrum is anxious to have the number to complete his lift. The name is that of L. M. Williams, 400th Squadron, R.C.A.F.

BANANAS ON SALE

Mexican bananas were noticed in some of the fruit stores today The bunches are comparatively small, averaging around 25 pounds. They were brought in under an arrangement with the government that permits their sale at a ceiling of 17 cents a pound. These were the first bananas received here in two or three months. In normal conditions supplies come from the West Indies but the German U-boat war has cut communications with the islands.

THE HEAT WAVE

Peterborough's official temperature at noon today was 83 degrees, according to A. O. Phillips, official weather observer. That was two degrees higher than Wednesday. Herb Routley's barometer pointed to change today, and The Canadian Press probabilities said something about showers. Down at the Routley store they say Frank Hughes has a lot of faith in the indicator. In fact whenever he gets the notion to go fishing he first consults the barometer and other auguries including the almanac. That's the story, but whether it is exactly true or not, it is a fact that Mr. Hughes does give the barometer a peek for the odd fishing trips which have been infrequent this year.

HEAVY FOG

Bus drivers in the city reported today that there was a heavy fog this morning. It was so dense in Ashburnham that they had difficulty seeing on the early runs around six o'clock.

MORE MONEY ON THE MOVE

A comparison of bank clearings for June, July and August of 1941 as against a similar period this year reveals that there is considerably more money in circulation, during the most recent period. Total clearing for the three months in 1941 were $9,559,668 and in 1942 the total was $10,310,868.

BUILDING NEW HUT.

Work is underway at Military Camp No. 32 on a 68 bed hut for members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, but it is not known when the women will be sent to the new quarters. The general policy appears to be to send sufficient women to each camp to relieve the soldiers of all orderly room, and stenographic duties, thus channelling more men into the fighting ranks.

STARTLING

Some of the residents on Chamberlain street between Monaghan road and aPrk stree got rather a shock Wednesday morning when they saw a fox in their neighborhood. This ranks on the same par as the racoon that was found a few weeks ago at the back of Barrie's fur store. Peterborough seems to hold some attraction for the wild life of the district.

WILL RE-OPEN

The Canadian Women's Voluntary Services office, Hunter street, will be closed for a week pending reorganization of the unit, Mrs. James Wharry, C.W.V.S. head, announced today. In a few days an announcement will be given out explaining the new duties and scope of the organization.

CASE GOES TO JURY.

The Laidley-Hockaday case in the Supreme court will go to the jury sometime this afternoon. It is an action to collect $20,000 damages and arises out of a motor accident last November 8. At noon C. G. Frost, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Laidley, had completed his address to the jury and Isadore Levinter, K.C., counsel for Percy Hockaday, will complete his address shortly after court reconvenes at two this afternoon.

THE MASTER TOUCH.

Howard Shimer of the Kinsmen club is a great lover of carnations, and this year he set out some plants. They were not supposed to bloom this year, but to his surprise, on one plant he has a cluster of flowers, three shell pink blooms and one pure white, all on the same stalk. It must be the touch of the master gardener.

WOMAN FINED.

An Indian woman who pleaded guilty in police court to-day to a charge of having been drunk on George street a few days ago was fined $10 and costs. She has refused to tell us where she got the bottle of liquor she smashed in an hotel, Chief Newhall said. "She has been a nuisance on a number of occasions and the worst of it is that a fine only comes out of the pocket of her husband, who is a hard-working man."

Land 3 Salmon In Two Hours

Rufus Gibbs, former Peterborough man and brother of J. A. Gibbs, local realtor, not only makes fishing baits and spoons in Vancouver but he evidently knows how to use them. The Vancouver Sun recently published a picture of the former local man in company with three huge salmon. The legend under the picture reads: "At least once or twice a year Rufe Gibbs, the fishing tackle man and prominent member of the Vancouver Gun Club makes a trip to Vancouver Island in search of Tyee salmon. And he never comes back empty handed. Here he is shown with three he took last weekend in Comax Bay. Their weights are 46, 40 and 31 pounds. Rufe took his fish between 5 and 7 in the morning and lured them on to his line with one of his own spoons, a number 5."

Dairy Farms Found To Be Kept Clean

Acting Sanitory Inspector nearly a month, Dr. Harold Worton, V.S., reported to the Board of Health that he had made a thorough examination of a number of dairy farms. "It was noted that farmers, although busy with large crops and scarcity of help, had not neglected the handling of milk. Several producers were advised to screen milk houses."

The market—"General cleanliness was good and produce was clean and wholesome. Fowl were apparently healthy and well prepared."

Sanitation of slaughter houses was satisfactory. "The handling of milk and other food products and the general sanitation in the city were good. It is noted in comparison with last year while working in the same capacity, that complaints had decreased. This, in my opinion, reflects the diligence and supervision of the city's Health Department."

Doctors, nurses, those having taken Red Cross Home Nursing War Emergency Courses, St. John's First Aid, and other who are interested are urgently requested to attend.

Service Corps In Need Of 100 Women

One hundred women between the ages of 16 and 45 can be accepted in the Peterborough Women's Service Corps which opened the autumn training program at the Armouries on Wednesday evening. This unit is not exactly a branch of the Reserve Canadian Army. but rather a unit which trains girls to take over emergency jobs should the far-reaching tentacles of war make it necessary. There is no compulsion for any member to go active. although more than 50 former members are now serving with the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and the majority have won promotions.

Miss Florence Mitchell Chief Commandant of the unit, had 18 girls on parade on Wednesday evening, and she spoke with pride of the fact that the girls who trained in this unit have done so well on active service.

The girls here train one night a week, on Wednesday starting at 7:30. and are taught foot drill. military phraseology, army correspondence orderly room practice, home nursing dietetics, St. John Ambulance first-aid course. and possibly motor mechanics. Besides the above mentioned courses the girls are given some rifle practice with .22 calibre rifles on the indoor rifle range at the Armouries.

Many girls who were afraid to even hold a rifle. now are completely at home with one, and are hoping to do a little partridge, rabbit or groundhog shooting this fall because of the training they received. Other members are attracted by the home nursing course which is applicable in every day life, while others want to be ready should a need arise for such trained personnel.

Any information required by any woman who is anxious to learn all about the corps may be obtained by telephoning Miss Mitchell at 8804 between the hours of 6 and 8 in the evening or by telephoning Mrs. R. R. Stewart at 7013. Mrs. Stewart is a company commander in the unit.

Alex M. McLeod Is Laid To Rest

The funeral of the late Alex M. MacLeod, the well-known contracting roofer, who passed away on Monday morning at his late residence, 120 Hunter St., East was held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bethany Tabernacle, where an impressive service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Wm. McArthur, assisted by the Rev. G. A. Chambers. Many friends attended the service and there were floral tributes. A private service was held at his late residence at 11 a.m. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. A. McKone, Inspector Jas. Reid, Ernest Warne, A. A. McIntyre, E. G. Taylor, W. H. Moore.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, four daughters and one son. Interment was made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Larger Attendance For City Schools

The city's increased birth rate is developing a school problem for the Board of Education, City Clerk Outram commented at the Board of Health meeting on Tuesday night.

David G. H. Melton of the Board of Education has mentioned the slow flux in school attendance and pointed to the increase of 150 in the Public Schools of the city as compared with the aggregate for September last year.

"In a few years the school population is going to be substantially increased," Mr. Outram said "It used to be around 50 births a month —lately it has been nearer 100."

The Martian children. born of the large number of wartime marriages as contrasted with the depression period, have been just about the prospective school population six or seven years hence. One hundred births a month, or thereabouts, means 1,200 a year, as against 600 and less in the lean period left behind. Some of them are the children of workers in the war industries and probably would disappear from Peterborough's midst and the schools shortly after the war ended.

Mr. Melton briefly spoke of the likelihood of a decline in the commercial courses when the Collegiate Institute opens next week.

Deyell Farm Chosen For Plowing Match

The only rural event of any account in this district for the rest of the season is the county plowing match to be held October 14 on the Deyell farm in Smith, a mile south of Fowler's Corners.

Plowmen last night decided to split the match into twelve classes, and Art McIntyre's grounds committee was asked to look around for another field, if it be needed.

Intimations are that no new machinery may be demonstrated at this match, according to a regulation that was passed this year applying to all such affairs.

250 Attended Chicken Dinner

Two hundred and fifty people flocked to Buckhorn Lodge on Wednesday evening for the chicken supper put on by the women of Buckhorn and district, for the purpose of raising money to send Christmas parcels and smokes to the boys of the district now serving overseas.

It was a complete success, and the crowd was so large that the women had to hustle out and purchase some extra chickens and cook them to meet the demand. The women realized $155.30 from the dinner, and the chickens and other items of food were donated by the women of the village and vicinity.

Mrs. Charles McCaffrey, manager of Buckhorn Lodge, donated the hotel, and all the dishes and cutlery required for the dinner which was a great help to the women. There is a possibility too, that the women may hold another chicken dinner because a great many people could not attend, and it was an ember day for members of the Catholic faith which reduced the number attending by quite a number.

During the dinner, the Buckhorn Women War Workers arranged to have W. A. Atkinson of Pittsburg, unofficial mayor of Buckhorn, make the draw for the sweet pea pattern quilt, on which tickets had been sold. This quilt was won by Mrs. N. Nicholls of Peterborogh. The sum of $35 was realized on the draw.

4th Battery Needs 44 Men

Forty-four more recruits are needed to bring the 4th Field Battery, R.C.A. (Reserve) up to strength, because of recent active service enlistments, and this popular unit trains on Mondays and Wednesdays starting at 7:45.

On Wednesday evening more than 100 men paraded and then switched into groups for the various items of training, which includes rifle, machine-gun, Bren gun, sub-machine gun. training along with the field gun drill. map reading and the usual foot drill.

Any information concerning this Reserve Army unit may be obtained from Bill Ovens at Campbell's Dairy, Bill Fanjoy at the Engineering Department C.G.E., from Jack Dobbin of Adamson & Dobbin, or from Orville Martin, Whitty Thirnbeck. or Fraser Watson at the Western Clock Company.

A bowling league consisting of four teams is being organized and should get under way at an early date.

OBITUARIES

MRS. ALICE A. BLODGETT

Friends will be sorry to learn of the passing of Mrs. Alice Blodgett, formerly of this city, who spent some 69 years here. She died at the House of Providence in Toronto, Wednesday evening, after an extended illness in her 74th year.

While born in England, daughter of the late John Carey and Ann Whitelaw, Mrs. Blodgett came to this country in her infancy and spent most of her life in this city where she had many friends. Before going to Toronto, she resided at 617 Downie street. Her husband, Thomas Blodgett, died in 1936.

The late Mrs. Blodgett was an active member of St. Peter's Cathedral parish for the greater part of her life and also belonged to the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Phillip Russell of Toronto, Mrs. Frank Peters and Mrs. Louis Thompson of Peterborough, twenty-one grandchildren and sixteen great grandchildren.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 8.45 from the Bert Duffus Funeral Home to the Church of the Sacred Heart for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

MICHAEL MOLONEY

MARMORA, Sept. 16—(ENS). —The death occurred in Kingston on Saturday of Michael Moloney, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Moloney, pioneer residents of Marmora Township.

Mr. Moloney, who was in his 78th year, spent the greater part of his life on his parents' farm in Marmora Township. He was of a quiet disposition and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He is survived by two brothers: James, Toronto; and Patrick, Peterborough; and three sisters, Mrs. John Nolan, Toronto; Mrs. Ed Shannon, Calgary, and Mrs. John Bibby, Edmonton.

The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of his niece, Mrs. S. Stephens, Forsyth street, Marmora, to Sacred Heart Church, where high requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father H. J. Farrell.

Interment took place in Sacred Heart Cemetery. The pall-bearers were George Forestell, Dan Shannon, Fred Johnston, William Flynn, Bert Crawford and Hugh Moloney.

VADA COOKE

BONARLAW, Sept. 17.—(ENS)—It was with great sadness the many friends in Rawdon Township of Miss Vada Cooke learned of her sudden death at her home in Belleville on Sunday. Though she was ailing for about a week, death occurred suddenly.

The late Miss Cooke was born 21 years ago at Harold and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Cooke. For the past year she had resided in Belleville and was employed at a waitress at the Esquire Cafe.

In religion she was a member of St. Thomas Anglican Church.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Cooke, Harold; two sisters, Violet and Doris of Belleville and one brother, Lorne, at home.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home until early Monday evening the remains were brought to the home of her parents, Harold. The funeral was held on Tuesday and burial was made in Stirling Cemetery.

Mother Of Eight Given 2 Months

A 32-year-old woman who is the mother of eight children was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to two months in the county jail on a charge of vagrancy to which she had pleaded guilty three weeks ago. She asked that the three weeks she had spent in jail should be taken into consideration and Magistrate Langley consented, after Chief Newhall had asked for a "short sharp sentence." Magistrate Langley warned the woman that if she ever came back again on a similar charge she would be sent to the Mercer Reformatory for an indefinite term.

Alaska Road Job Calls Roy Brown; Stan Richardson Takes Over Post

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 17—(ENS).—Patrol Foreman for the Ontario Department of Highways over 140 miles of highway from Peterborough to Haliburton boundary and secondary roads in the northern section of the county for the past four and a half years, Roy Brown, ex-Warden of the county and well known citizen of the village and Apsley, has resigned his position and accepted one with the Alaska Highway project.

Stanley Richardson of Lakefield, who has served considerable time with the Department over the past seven years succeeds in the position, taking over his new duties on September 15.

Mr. Brown leaves next Tuesday evening for Dawson Creek, B.C., the end of steel, arriving the following Saturday afternoon and will become Warehouse Superintendent for the R. Melville Smith Company at a point somewehre on the 1,200-mile road.

Roy Brown's patrol from the city of Peterborough to the Haliburton boundary, some fifty miles via Apsley, a twenty-five mile stretch of the Catchecoma road from the turn north to the boundary, some 32 miles in Chandos, 26 miles of Highway 36, Burleigh Falls to Bobcayeon and 6 miles of the Mt. Irwin road in Cavendish bears an excellent record with the department and sets a high standard for his successor.

Wednesday night half a dozen members of his associates on the highway maintenance staff surprised Roy at the home of Stan Richardson and presented him with a flashlight and billfold as tokens of happy days together on the "Brown patrol."

It is understood Mr. Brown's contract is for several years.

The highway starts at Dawson Creek and will push through 1,550 miles into Alaska. To speed up the job contractors are opening up from the Alaskan end, also. The highway will be 24 feet wide. To facilitate the work a "tote" road, about 15 feet wide, runs parallel to the main road so that all working equipment, trucks, graders, etc. may travel along to the place where the work has progressed. This tote road, a military road, will be completed this fall.

Secure Permits For Want Ads In Some Classes

Advertising can still be done for help and employment if the following instructions are followed, William Mellis of the Unemployment Insurance Commission said.

First the advertiser must register his need for help or employment with the National Selective Service Office, 105 Barrie Building, Peterborough. Then if an advertisement is desired, two copies of the wording should be presented to the National Selective Service Office and after getting their O.K., one copy should be forwarded to the newspaper.

The above restrictions do not apply to female domestic help and employment wanted ads where not more than one servant is employed, not to advertisements for ministers, teachers, casual labor, part time subsidiary employment which is not a regular occupation, nurses, farm hands, hunters, fishermen, trappers, students at work after school or on holidays other than long summer vacation and any kind of "Help Wanted" advertisements from any provincial government. All such advertisements may continue to be published in the usual fashion and without approval.

A SENSE OF HUMOUR

Two married women, one a grandmother, were walking across Hunter street bridge to their homes in the Engleburn district a few nights ago when a car pulled up to the curb, with two men in it. One of the men leaned out and said "Would you come for a ride girls?" The two women chuckled to themselves, then one turned at the youth in the car, and said: "Better take another look, boys". The car kept on going and the mashers didn't bother the women again. They are probably still trying to figure out what the remark meant.

Owner Of House Is Fined $25

Pleading guilty to having received a rental or housing accommodation at 444 George street south greater than the maximum provided under the wartime regulations, Douglas Matchett, Otonabee farmer, was fined $25 and $6.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning.

Magistrate Langley in imposing the fine warned that offenders under these regulations must not think that the penalty in every case would be as low.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who appeared for the accused said that there had been a technical violation of the regulations. He stated that the property involved was owned by Matchett's wife. They had formerly lived at 444 George street south as tenants and paid a rent of $20 a month with the condition that they should do their own decorating and repairs. Afterward Mrs. Matchett had bought the house and after it had been extensively decorated it was rented to a tenant at $30 a month.

"I have no doubt that if they had gone to the Judge there would have been an order for the increase, under the circumstances," said Mr. Carley. "Matchett's part in the affair was to collect the rent if he happened to be in town."

W. B. Gordon who prosecuted the case said that he had found that Matchett had collected the rent for five different months. His understanding was that the accused had been present when the agreement was entered into with the tenant and knew all about it.

Mr. Carley, discussing the regulations, remarked that there was no doubt that there were tenants who were assisting in violating the regulations. They were so anxious to get houses, he said, that they offered more rental than was provided by rental ceiling.

Barn Is Destroyed Near Fraserville

The barn and driving shed owned by Fred Lewers, about one mile west of Fraserville, were completely destroyed by a fire of unknown origin, Wednesday afternoon, the total loss amounting to about $2,000.

After putting his horses out in the pasture, Mr. Lewers took the car and started off to pick up his children on the way home from school. After going a little distance he happened to glance back and saw smoke pouring from the barn. He immediately returned, coming up the road honking his horn furiously. His wife and daughter Audrey, in the house, heard the commotion but didn't know what on earth he was trying to do.

The fire burned so rapidly that the neighbors' efforts were practically useless and in about twenty minutes the barn and driving shed had been burned to the ground.

Having threshed a week ago, all his grain and three pigs and practically all his farm machinery in the driving shed were lost.

Convict Soldier In Traffic Case

Convicted of careless driving, after a trial that lasted nearly all day, Pte. Gordon Peck of the headquarters staff of the Military Training Centre was fined $5 and $12.55 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Wednesday afternoon.

"After hearing all the evidence," Magistrate Langley remarked, "I am convinced that the testimony of Roy Ballantyne (driver of the other car involved) was entirely consistent with the evidence of the marks that were seen on the road by other witnesses. I am not satisfied with the evidence given by the defence witnesses as to what happened and there will be a conviction. At the same time it is possible that one of the headlights of the other car may have been out, as alleged by the defence, and because of that I do not propose to make the fine more than the minimum."

Ballantyne's story was that he had pulled over to the right shoulder of Highway 28, but in spite of that Peck's car had veered over to the right side of the road and had struck the left front of his machine with the result that it had gone into the ditch.

Peck and two other soldiers who were with him at the time of the accident gave a different version. They claimed that their car was almost motionless at the time of the collision and that it had been struck by the other automobile.

In his argument Lieut. B. C. Grant of the Training Centre who defended Peck said that the marks on the highway were consistent with Ballantyne's car having run nearly off the road and then struggled back on to the highway in time to collide with Peck's automobile.

War On Starlings

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 17 — (CP). — Members of Brantford's Police and Fire Departments have been waging war on starlings which have been bothering residents for some time. Four new sharpshooters have joined the ranks of the regular squad in an effort to eradicate the pests.

J. Parker Total Nears $1,000 For War Victims

The story of how one family has contributed in a really fine manner towards alleviating the distress of air raid victims in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, has run through this column almost like a serial story, which is continued from time to time.

With persevering ardor, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker have sponsored one thing after another in aid of the fund, with a zeal that has been blessed with considerable success, for their total with the $22.05 standing in their name today is now getting close to the $1,000 mark, with the amount actually standing at $972.61.

This last contribution represents part of the proceeds of a draw which they are now sponsoring for three prizes: the first of which is a set of six coronation spoons; the second, a set of six knives and forks; and the third prize, a set of silver spoons, all of which they have themselves donated to help along the cause which they have so materially assisted in the past.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker live on R.R. 1, Norwood, and are to be found on market Saturday's displaying the prizes, where tickets at two for 25 cents are available to all who wish to assist the cause by purchasing them, with the chance of winning one of the prizes.

For the fifth time in about as many weeks, William A. Taylor of Crawford's Grove has turned over the sales money from the flowers in his garden to the fund, and with the $2.00 credited today has now made a total of $13 in this manner to help things along for those who need the lep in Britain.

Another regular contributor is also listed, with the penny box in Graftons Ltd. store yielding the sum of $4.25 when collected by the secretary of the fund on Wednesday morning.

The stall on the market is now booked for the next four Saturdays, with the farmers of Fraserville centre with Miss Jean Fairburn as convener supplying the donations of produce next Saturday, to be followed on September 26 with the farmers of Fairview centre with Mrs. W. Fowler as convener ,and then Stewart Hall centre on October 3 with Mrs. Harold Dawson as convener, and on October 10, the Gleaners' Class of Gilmour Church of which Mrs. Bruce Bell is secretary will be responsible for continuing the good work.

Tailored Suits In Demand For Fall Styles

If you haven't already got a tailored suit you'll probably be shopping for one this fall. There's nothing smarter or more comfortable than a smartly tailored suit for any and every occasion, and no costume is more versatile. With trim tailored blouses it's smart and neat for business, but a feminine froth of a sheer blouse, a dinky hat, and gay, different accessories, make it suitable for afternoon teas, parties and almost any more dress up occasions short of a formal ball.

Tailored suits are available this year in black, grey, navy and brown men's fine wool suitings, that will wear and keep their smartness longer than anything else. Slenderizing pinstripes, fine herringbone tweeds are also smart.

Shops are also showing suits for casual sports wear in scarlet or paddy green or dark brown corduroy velvet. These may be worn as a complete dress in themselves or with a blouse. They are wonderful for the teen age miss, or for the college girl, because of their youthful gayety and casual smartness.

Another useful suit is a skirt and a useful sleeveless Jacket, under which a long-sleeved blouse is worn. These are grand for wear under coats in rainy weather; much more comfortable than a suit with sleeves, which often feels lumpy and uncomfortable under a coat. They come in soft wool, alpine cloth, and corduroy velvet in a wide variety of colors.

IN STEP WITH FALL

Celanese crepe in a luminous shade of gray makes this tailored frock with its slanted pockets flanking front kick pleats, a fulled blouse line, and buttoned, push-up sleeves.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

INDIAN SUMMER is a hot one when it arrives...and wouldn't we feel gypped if that last heat wave skipped us? On those sultry days one needs a lighter weight frock with Autumn's tone, and in the crepe frock above, we have it.

The color is Canadian mist, a lovely color as you know if you've ever seen the fog roll in across the Bay of Fundy. All the game bird colors, so prevalent in fall accessories, look handsome with this gray, and it's becoming to a blonde like Candy Jones, above, or to the most vivid brunette's complexion. When your long winter coat comes out of the mothballs, this lighter frock will see another term of service, just right for church going or the Saturday luncheon and tea date.

Rayon Hose Are No Longer Baggy

Gone are the days when rayon hose were baggy, shiny, ill-fitting—worn not at all by women of discriminating taste. However, thanks to the miracle of test-tube ingenuity, rayon hose have acquired beauty and wearing qualities to make them take their rightful place among the different types of hosiery!

The new rayon hose are really flattering. They're sheer, dull-textured and with the proper care—will give you highly satisfactory wear.

Rayon hose offer much to the modern woman of fastidious taste. It is extremely durable when completely dry. However, since it is weakest when wet—great care must be taken in laundering, preferably as follows: Wash your rayon hose after each wearing, as soon as you take them off. Use only mild soap suds and lukewarm water—cake soap rubbed into your hose will weaken the fibres. Dry over a smooth rod, away grom sun or heat, after squeezing gently in a towel and allow 24 to 48 hours for complete drying.

Another very interesting feature of rayon is that it does not soil readily—due to the smoothness of the fibre from which it is woven. They may be had in a full range of rich colors, which are dyed to retain their permanence.

Crisp Trimming Of White At Collar And Cuffs Adds Smartness To Milady's Outfit

Smart, practical black is the leading color favorite in dresses for everyday wear this fall; black with a crisp trimming of white at collar and cuff. As a change from the sombreness of black, scarlet and paddy green will also be popular. Dark browns and greens and navy are smart, as well as a pretty blue that is somewhere between airforce and teal.

Government regulations, and the fashion dictators decision to practice war-time economy, have ruled our dirndl and all-round-pleated skirts for the duration. Skirts will be gored to a comfortable, but not extravagant fulness or softly draped at the front. There will be no more full and flowing sleeves to dangle in the soup or catch on the typewriter; three-quarter sleeves will be the most popular length, and they will be fitted on day-time dresses, instead of being full and open.

Economy forbids the use of buttons as a trim, and only one zipper per garment so plain and dignified smartness will be the rule. Milady will be expected to make one dress do the work of several by varying her appearance with changes of collars, cuffs, jewellery, and accessories.

Tailored and semi-tailored styles will be popular, with flattering, softly draped cowl necklines and plain V's also in the running. Skirts will be short, to save material, but not unbecomingly so, and pockets will be for utility, not decoration. Lavish tucking, shirring and pleating are out, and once more the plain dignity of beautiful fabric will be allowed to holds its own, unembellished.

Velvet is to be popular this year, apparently, for afternoon dresses and corduroy velvet for casual suits and sport clothes. Often the velvet is combined effectively with some lighter fabric, such as rayon jersey, wool jersey, or sheer crepe. Another popular material, and one that should prove practical, is soft, warm wool crepes. Tree-bark crepes and sheers will also be worn a lot and there are beautiful dresses of wool jersey in grey, beige, or black, that would be wonderful for office wear, and dressy enough for more fancy occasions.

Lift The Morale

Handkerchiefs are good for more than just blowing the nose in hay fever season. A wisp of fine Irish linen and lace can do wonders to lift the morale of last year's navy suit and a dashingly lowered bit of lawn is just the thing to tuck in the pocket of a tailored blouse or dress.

ZELLER'S
RETAILERS TO THRIFTY CANADIANS

THE COMING DAYS are prelude to a season that, in other years, found women making purchases at the dictate of Fashion; doing so with little regard to the serviceability of garments they already owned, should those have happened to be slightly outmoded.

BUT THIS YEAR loyal Canadian women will look over, carefully, the things they now own and will not give in to impulses to buy replacements simply because a "new fashion wrinkle" appeals to them.

In preparation for AUTUMN 1942, Canadian women will take an inventory of the clothes they own... will use cleansing fluids and sewing basket and ingenuity to give longer life to garments possessing utility-value. And the morale of Canadian women will be higher for their having, by extra carefulness, resourcefulness and diligence, helped to conserve.

The outstanding Fashion Note for Autumn 1942 is: "It's Fashionable (because it's patriotic) to conserve".

CONSERVATION SUGGESTIONS

The following few Conservation Suggestions have been tried successfully. Not all of them may be new to every one of our readers, but if they help even a few Canadian Women to make clothes last longer, we shall feel that the space devoted to printing these "hints" has been used to good purpose.

MAKE A DASHING CALOT. Remove trimmings and brim from an old Felt Hat. Turn the edge of the crown inward, on the wrong side; sew it down with small, neat stitches, using matching thread. If there was a ribbon band on the hat originally, freshen it by brushing and ironing; make into a bow and sew on at the side of Calot. For dress-up occasions, wear with a clip, brooch or feather.

GIVE LONGER LIFE TO SHOES by following these simple rules: Replace rundown heels without delay, to avoid twisting shoes out of shape. Keep wet shoes away from excessive heat; polish when dry. When shoes are not being worn, keep shoe-trees in them.

MAKE A JERKIN from an old sweater that is baggy at the elbows. Cut off the sleeves, about an inch below armholes. Fold remaining inch into armholes and sew around neatly, on wrong side. You will then have a smart Jerkin to wear with blouse-and-skirt outfits, or with tailored dresses.

DON'T THROW AWAY a worn Shirtmaker Dress. Simply remove the top, sew a length of belting around the waistline of the skirt, add hooks and eyes—and you will have a trim Skirt to wear with blouses or sweaters.

"It's Fashionable (because it's patriotic) to conserve".

MOST POPULAR SHOE MODEL FOR THIS AUTUMN IS THE 'FLATTIE'

Shoe Is Low Heeled And Dressy With Smartly Tailored Lines

One of the most popular models in shoes for the fall season is that known as "flatties." Now a flattie is a low-heeled dress shoe wtih smartly tailored lines that are slenderizing and very becoming, usually without very much in the way of any extra decoration. They may or may not have open toes, and while having that extra dash that makes for unique smartness, they are also extremly comfortable, and for those who have to walk a lot and wish to be able to wear dress shoes without crippling their feet, these are a splendid idea.

The three most prominent materials used in shoes this year are crushed kid, suede, and alligator leather, the first two being well ahead in the lead. The crushed kid is very attractive in the various styles and unlike other varieties does not appear likely to crush and crack easily. This material can be cleaned easily with the same shoe polish that is used regularly on other shoes.

Always A Popular Model

Suede, an ever popular model, pushes ahead ever more this season. There are many all suede shoes and also a lot of suede trimmed with alligator. This may appear on the heels and toes, the heels alone or in a strip in the front. Its a matter of preference as to which you take. In the dress pumps particularly, this combination of alligator and suede is prevalent and it makes for chic footwear.

There are also all alligator shoes, too. These seems to be gaining in popularity and when matched with a handbag they can give a new dress or suit a strikingly smart appearance. They appear in both the dress shoes and the flatties, with and without open toes.

Comfort As Well As Style

Women are at last beginning to realize that comfort counts more than looks and so there are a great number of the Oxford type of shoe this year. Low heels are definitely in. But don't worry, girls. The manufacturers have not sacrificed beauty for comfort in this year's shoes. They are just as neat and smart in appearance as the higher-heeled dress shoes. Next to the flatties the two most important styles are the military oxfords and the brogues. The military oxfords, that seem to come pretty well in the shades of black and military tan, are perfectly plain and are like the shoes that the army nurses and army girls wear. Very neat indeed. Then the brogues, which are also tailored in appearance have a design on the toes and up the front. They are found pretty well in black and brown.

While low-heeled shoes are gaining prominence, there are still plenty of those very high slender heels in the fall styles. Open toes are another very popular feature this season, and the Agnew Surpass store reported that the square-toed shoes, so popular in the spring, are only to be found in small numbers now. This is probably just as well, because girls with long, narrow feet suffered tortures with these when they wore them "to keep in style." Cuban heels, as they have always been for a good many years, are still good and for those who want something a little dressier than the low heels and yet don't want to get the really high ones, this is the answer to the problem.

Trimming is playing a big part on the shoes now. A great number of the shoes have big bows or little bows, tiny cloth rolls or some other little gadget to catch a yearning feminine eye. There are a number of these on the suede shoes.

Fewer Colors

Another type of shoe that is still good and has attained considerable popularity is the gabardine. Various smart styles are available in the pumps with any kind of heel desired. There are quite a few gabardine shoes in an attractive cocoa brown shade. Speaking of colors, ladies, you will have to accustom yourselves to restrictions in shoe colors, although this will not likely be felt, as it is in some of the other lines. The two main colors are brown and black with a few blues and tans and the odd wine thrown in. But these colors match almost any color that they might be combined with, so there is not much worry on that score.

There has been very little advance in shoes, in fact one merchant said that it was one of the most stable things on the market at the present time. To date good leather is still obtainable, but in the future it is possible that, as has happened with other things, the quality may be lowered. But no matter what style intrigues the feminine fancy, they are all smart and tailored to an unusual degree with very few extreme lines. Shoe designers have finally produced something that women have been searching for for some time and that is the combination of smartness and comfort, particularly in the larger sizes.

Big Purses, Girls

Leather purses are playing a prominent role this year, too, and one particular thing is very noticeable and that is the size. The men have commented a good deal on some of the peculiarities of women's clothing, and they are just about due for another shock. Purses this year are growing, and the masculine jeers at "the overnight bags women have taken to carrying" may have some justification. Some of the new purses are between 12 and 17 inches long and perhaps 6½ inches wide, and they are really big. They are the answer to a business woman's prayer, for they have sufficient space to carry necessary "utensils" without crowding.

Here again, the three most popular leather in vogue this season are patent, crushed kid and alligator. Black is particularly prominent, although there are browns, blues and the odd green, in all shapes and sizes. Some purses have little novelty decorations such as three dots and a dash—V. Accessories can so often make or mar an outfit, and one way to ensure a smart fall outfit this year is to buy shoes and purse of matching leather. All the fashion experts advocate it, and they ought to know.

Women Are Urged To Make Use Of Heat Stored In Elements

Housewives are being asked to cooperate in the matter of saving as much power as they can, since the Dominion Power Controller has said Canadians must use less electricity. But Miss E. Muir, home economist of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission doesn't think that housewives have to worry too much, because there are a number of ways in which the power can be saved without much inconvenience to anyone.

In her opinion, housewives should learn to make use of the heat that is stored in the elements and the ovens of electric stoves after the electricity has been turned off. It is quite possible to turn off the power as soon as the tea kettle begins to sing, for there is enough heat in the element to bring the water to a boil With the modern oven ranges, so well insulated, the heat can be turned off as much as 20 minutes before the food being cooked is expected to be done. There is no need to boil vegetables cooking on the top of the stove, violently; simply turn the heat to low when they come to a boil and the gentler heat cooks them even better.

Flat-Bottomed Pots

The most effective cooking utensils to use, Miss Muir suggests, are flat-bottomed pots with close-fitting lids. If a range has a well-cooker it should be used wherever possible, as it can be turned low sooner than ordinary elements, and it uses far less electricity even when turned high. "It is also important to use the small elements rather than the large ones, when you have only a small utensil."

Many housewives never think of making a special point of cooking the maximum number of dishes at once in the oven, but it is a good idea to cook the roasts, pudding (perhaps for two days), or some other meat substitute, and it cuts down heating time to perhaps half. There is also no reason, according to this expert, why something shouldn't be cooked in the bottom of the double boiler at the same time the top is being used.

If the whole meal can be cooked on one element, it is a great saving of power, and there are many recipes for this sort of meal, a few being vegetable medley, flank steak creole, vegetable noodles and a fruit cup, just rounds out the meal.

Other ways of saving power are to make sure there are no taps dripping, and never wash dishes under the running hot water tap because it wastes considerable power. Never go away and leave the refrigerator door open, and try and defrost the machine regularly so that never more than ¼ to ⅛ of an inch of frost accumulates. And, above all, do not load the refrigerator with cans and packages that would be quite safe on a shelf."

Work Clothes For Women Combine Style And Utility

The lady behind the lathe may have to wear overalls, but that doesn't mean she forgets all about line, fit and femininity in the process.

Work clothes for women have developed rapidly into first-line fashions, with a war to win. The vast numbers of women who have entered our war industries have demanded work clothes that will boost their morale—and more power to them!

Slacks—or rather "pants," are practically the unanimous choice, whether in separates, suit sets, or overall adaptations. Above ankle length has won favor with many workers, as a safety measure in plants where there is moving machinery close to the floor. These short slack are also cooler in plants of this type, where the floor is always bathed in heat from dynamos and motors.

Two piece denim overalls, with tapered pants having ankle button-straps are also a popular type. Concealed drop seats, and fly bodice closings to prevent buttons from catching in machinery, are practical features—and they also add to the trim finish for a tailored-look.

Slacks sets with in-or-out shirts are cool but sturdy, developed in navy or tan poplin. Bodice patch pockets with cuff tops having embroidered twin eyelets are an innovation worth considering. A badge or passport pin can be attached or removed quickly and easily—without damage to the fabric, or wear and tear on the nerves.

For bench workers, the jumper dress is just about right—because it is cool, allows the arms plenty of freedom, and can be worn with a change of blouse for freshening up. In fact, there are jumper dresses cut high enough under the arm to be wearable without a blouse on very warm days, or for work in hot places. And then there is the culotte dress, for workers who require freedom but do not necessarily have to wear slacks. The culotte has the advantage of looking like a dress, and being wearable to and from work quite inconspicuously.

Overalls are the answer, when the work is of a type that is likely to soil clothing. Overalls, like jumper dresses, have the advantage

BOWLING CHAMP

The fabric for this active sports or everyday tailored dress is a washable celanese rayon. It is made in various darker colors, of which the gray, above, is perhaps the smartest.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

HERE is a dress which ought to delight the legions of women bowlers. So good looking that it can be worn like any other tailormade to business or about the streets, it has a new type side closing which gives an action width for a great big stride by simply undoing a couple of buttons.

On the right hip is a large overlayed pocket, set on a slant, capacious enough to hold many odds and ends; there is a small breast pocket at the left of this shirt. A leather belt and bone buttons detail the dress.

Canadians Failing To Grasp Place In The Fashion World

In the opinion of Miss Margot C. Hare of Montreal, Canadian fashion adviser of one of the largest international pattern companies, the reason Canada is losing an opportunity to figure in the world of stylists and fashion makers—the centre of which has been moved from overseas to this continent due to the war—is not because Canadians lack talent in this field. It is rather because too many Canadians are cursed by an inferiority complex, and are convinced before they start that they could never hope to compete with the products of the world's fashion salons.

Miss Hare recognizes the fact that Canada cannot overnight win a niche in the halls of fashion, but she is convinced that if young Canadians with an eye for line and color and the urge for work put their hearts into the task they can secure for Canada a chance at the world's fashion business.

Chatting with friends while in the city recently, Miss Hare opined too many Canadians whose ambitions lie in this field want to start at the top. She declares it is a long, slow task to reach stellar positions but insists the heights can be scaled and that the climber who works in Canada will find when she reaches the top she does not have to met the tremendous competition which would be her fate in more fashion conscious countries, and that she can help the Dominion by developing here an appreciation and understanding of fashion creating.

A Preparation

Miss Hare herself prepared for her career by studying the field from the practical end as well as in the schoolroom, and she believes the would-be stylist who fails to get practical training is handicapping herself from the beginning.

Miss Hare attended public, high school and private school in Montreal, had a year at university and want abroad where she studied design in London and for two months in Paris. While in Paris she had the privilege of six weeks in the salons of Molyneux, and while she admits she did little but pick up pins during those weeks, she learned much from the atmosphere of the celebrated establishment, which she could not have discovered in any other way.

Back in Canada she obtained practical experience by an interval spent in selling and fitting exclusive costumes, creating much of the stock herself. Judging from her own experience she heartily recommends practical training for girls bitten by the designing bug.

Many Roads

In the big pattern companies, Miss Hare said, there are such a variety of departments that any girl with the talent and determination to succeed can find a springboard from which to launch herself.

For the purely creative type there is the designing department headed by the woman who actually creates the designs. Then there are the dressmakers, who produce the designer's dream in fabric; the artists who make sketches; the photographic department, with as many as 40 employees alone; the editorial department which describes the fashions and produces catalogues, etc.; the promotion department where models are trained and fashion shows are developed; an educational department, the business of which is to develop school shows, the head of one such department of one pattern company at the present time is an ex-teacher, a Smith College graduate; and the pattern factory, where the designs are turned out in volume and where draughtsmen, technicians of all sorts, secretaries and stenographers are needed.

Coats Slimmer, Durable, More Practical

Simplicity of design is the feature in the new fall clothes—carrying out the Government's fabric-saving order—with a good variety of color and trimming. Most of the styles are such as to produce a very slenderizing effect, and the materials are as lovely as ever, and make feminine hearts beat just a bit faster.

Coats are slimmer and more practical, because women are demanding that they have something that is durable. No longer can they afford to discard things after wearing them one season and so they are choosing their outfits with an eye toward something that will last. Both general-wear and dress coats are much befurred. There are big collars, yokes and plastrons and swirls down the front and across the fronts of coat skirts in unlimited amounts, and every variety of fur is being used, some in contrasting shades with the coats. For example, dark coats often have light-colored fur and the lighter coats are showing the dark fur.

Suits Softly Tailored

Suits are slim affairs, softly tailored with the shorter jackets the law requires and straight gored or shallow-pleated skirts, some with simulated pleats. Many of the suits have fur trimming around the jacket edges or across the front of the waist. Many of the dressier ones are being highlighted with velvet or braid.

Then there are the dresses. Many of them are in the new soft woollen materials and are being shown in all sorts of attractive light shades. Pretty greens and lovely variating shades of blue are two of the most prominent, although there is a lot of red being shown, too. Most of the frocks are slim and figure-moulding, lending themselves to much variation in the matter of trimming.

The three most popular new styles are the "peg-top," the "barrel skirt" and the "Tulip" silhouette. The peg-top effect is achieved with drapery at the side hipline, with jutting pockets, or well-placed gathers. These gathers by the way are playing a very prominent part in a wide variety of styles and they help to product the effect of softly moulding the dress tightl at the waist and then flaring out in a charming fashion in the skirt.

The barrel skirt is an unusually rounded waistline effect done with a series of unpressed pleats at centre front. The "tulip" silhouette has the hemline at each side caught up in several folds giving the skirt a narrow-tiered "petal" appearance.

Hats Are Smarter

Hats to match the chic gowns this season are smarter than ever. There are many versions of the beret and turban, the high "Papakha" or Russian Cossack, pill boxes, fedoras and high-crowned cloches.

There are also a number of intriguing little dinner hats to be worn with the new short evening dresses. Matching gloves and hats are quite the thing this season and they produce a very smart effect.

All-Wool Suit

Comfortable, smart, cheerful and practical. That's the description that fits this all-wool plaid suit, that comes in gay autumn colors and is suitable for any daytime occasion.

Proper Fabric Care

Cottons are sturdy, most of them are washable and all-around satisfactory; but they do appreciate care, and show their appreciation by lasting longer—and looking better in the process. White or fast-dye cottons take to washing machines just naturally; but it is always advisable to use a good soap solution to protect the fibres. Sheer cotton, however, last better if washed by hand; and if ironed before thoroughly dry. Loosely woven cottons, such as homespuns, also respond better to washing by hand, and usually need no ironing, if smoothed out while damp. The crinkle cottons, such as seersucker, are real labor savers—stretch them into shape when damp, and they are actually much better when not ironed at all!

DESIGNER OFFERS SOME ASTONISHING NEW AUTUMN CLOTHES

Smart Blouses Are Available In Many Practical Colors

If you've got a suit, you'll want to vary it with some new blouses. All the old standbys are here, as smart and practical as ever. Easily laundered, fresh-looking cotton broadcloth blouses, "Tailored by Tooke" are still available and still smart for everyday wear.

In addition there are tailored blouses of a new very fine flannel, which should be just the thing for those nippy mornings on which it is still too warm for a coat. They come plain in dark brown, hunter's green, scarlet and wine and blue; or striped in glowing autumn colors. Some have a trim of saddle-stitching or blanket stitch on collars and pockets.

The lovely soft, feminine sheer blouses are still popular for lending just the right air of femininity to a man-tailored suit. They come with a froth of ruffles at the throat; or sweetly demure with neat, lace-edged collar and cuffs, lace insertions in the front, and short puffed sleeves. Not so frothy, but still delightfully feminine are the blouses of white tailored sheer or crepe with long sleeves and high necklines; good wear for business or pleasure.

Sweaters are useful things to wear with a suit on chilly autumn days and there's nothing like making your own, if you can or if you have the time. If you can't make your own, there are lovely ones, in a bewildering range of colors and styles, to be bought. Plainness seems to be the vogue in sweaters, whether cardigan or pullover, this year, with all that peasant embroidery definitely out. The pullovers are high-necked, either round or square or scalloped, long or short sleeves, and are made in a convenient length for tucking in or leaving

MANNISH MODES MEET

This year more than ever before milady's wardrobe requires mannish tailored clothes that she will be proud to wear anywhere and to be even in style whatever the occasion.

TOPCOATS AND SUITS TAILORED TO YOUR MEASUREMENTS. ALL STYLES AND MATERIALS.

BIG BABY BUNTING

Cuffed pockets and sleeves, plus a revered neckline and double breasted closing, give a new style fillip to this camel's hair colored lapin fur coat, which is budget priced.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE rabbit is seldom classed in any way with the camel, but it can happen. The lapin coat (lapin is the fashion word for rabbit fur) pictured above is called camel's hair lapin because of its color, and for its cut which apes the familiar camel's hair polo coat.

Costing less than many a wool coat which would give the same warm winter protection, this particular model is youthfully styled and is swank enough to wear with both classroom and leisure moment frocks.

Get Odd Skirt For Sweaters

Don't wear your suit skirt without the jacket. The skirt always wears out first anyway, and now you've got to make it last as long as possible.

Get an odd skirt to wear with gay sweaters and tailored blouses. All round pleats are smart and are allowed in separate skirts. Some of the pleated skirts come in a soft wool jersey that would be very smart and warm and comfortable. There are any number of bright plaids and checks in separate skirts, straight cut, with two pleats back and front, that are fine for sports or for school and office wear.

There are smartly cut dark skirts in all colors that, worn with sheer or tailored blouses and a bright cardigan, would be just the thing for afternoons at the Red Cross, shopping tours or just around the house. Worn on warm fall days with one of the smart striped or plain jackets, they would be ideal.

Bias cut skirts, with a broad sweep, are being shown in some stores. They'll be grand for sports and very becoming to teen-age girls. They aren't too full to be out of place for office or school and yet they allow plenty of freedom of movement. In plain dark colors, they allow of all kinds of fancy blouses, sweaters and accessories.

Work Clothes

of being wearable with a blouse—and a blouse with button-tab epaulettes just about perfect. The overall straps can be buttoned under the blouse tabs, and will stay-put through thick and thin. And that is a nice little feature any active worker should appreciate!

Work dresses, simple styled, and made of sturdy fabrics are preferred by many women who wear large sizes—and they're usually suitable for these "large women" since their work is seldom of the very active type that would demand slacks. Also, many older women prefer the work dress to slacks—and here again it is usually a logical choice, since these women are also usually employed in less strenuously active jobs.

Whatever the occupation, the figure, the age or the problem, there are work clothes to be found that will stand up to the job at hand, while keeping an eye on good lines and becomingness. Women at work, and women at war are synonomous—and when Canadian women go to war and to work, they insist upon doing it efficiently and with the assurance of feeling "properly dressed for the occasion"—as always!

Rayon Hose

Rayon hose, like everything else, need a certain amount of care—and respond accordingly. They should, for instance, be washed in water at wrist temperature, with gentle soap flakes or suds. It is well to remove rings when washing stockings of any kind, to avoid snags. Rayon is weakened when wet—so it is only good sense to avoid ringing, stretching or rubbing too strenuously. Also, rayon generally takes longer to dry than silk—and to speed up drying, they can be rolled in a towel to soak up excess moisture; and then be hung over a rod, or laid flat. Rayon requires from 24 to 48 hours to dry.

Let Wardrobe Be Practical Is Suggestion

By MARGUERITE YOUNG
NET Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK.—Mainbocher, who used to be just Chicago's gift to Paris dressmaking but who now dresses the WAVES, has made some astonishing new Autumn 1942 clothers out of the ABC's of a practical American wardrobe—like this:

A—Twin sweaters. Mainbocher decks them heavily with braid or metal embroidery, unites them with a long skirt or even a short one, and sends them out for evening.

B—Skirts and pickets, two-for-one. Each is made to go with at least two others, sometimes several. It gets to be real fashion black-magic. The designer takes a slight, short black wool skirt, gives it a couple of sweaters, one black and the other gold...then he adds one short tweed boxcoat for an afternoon ensemble that is very haughty because the coat is spectacularly embroidered with golden, metal half-moons...then he changes the same coat into the top of a gala evening suit by subbing a long black skirt for the short one.

C—"One good black dress"—the basic-dress idea that some supposed perished last year, now is risen with glorifying trifles where-with it can become "the" dress for a big night.

Basic-Dress Idea

Mainbocher demonstrated, at the press preview of the collection, by sending out the long black dinner dress in the company of two maids and a tray. The model looked "little evening," quiet and dignified. The dress was a perfectly plain, straight crepe one, sleeveless, shoulders straight and shirred. Buckled around her waist was a narrow belt, delicately embroidered in gold and apricot, and she wore apricot-colored gloves and a tiny black head-dress.

The maids changed the model's gloves to a taffeta pair of the same color. The belt was supplanted by an apricot-colored taffeta one, to which was attached a front peplum.

And once again a change of matching peplum and gloves turned the dress's character; pink and green lame accessories suggested deliberate elegance. Then, instead of a peplum, a diaphanous net overskirt with alternating vertical panels of black and electric blue, was tied on, a demure bow in back. Sheer romance!

Finally, over the black dress a brilliant red long-sleeved velvet jacket was worn. It was highnecked, smooth to the waistline, and there was a red peplum....which made the model seem to be a warm, confident, confidence-giving sort of diner-outer.

Sweaters for Evening.

Those are typical of Mainbocher's painstaking elaboration of his chief ideas. He has an elfin love of turning the tables. But this year he was in earnest.

His sweaters are not exactly what you could run out and find at the corner. They are cashmere sweaters, and Mainbocher cuts them up, at time intricately, to produce his peculiar kind of a fit—never-tight, rather flat-bodied.

He showed some, among his evening clothes, last fall, included more of them last spring, and now develops the idea still further. Both contrasting and matching slipover and cardigan are used, always with a separate belt sharply defining the waistline. The embroidery is massed at the neckline or cuffs, or both; it is jet, or passenmenterie, or metal. One of his most luscious costumes, however, had none. It was a slim grape wood skirt worn with sweaters of a slightly lighter hue, a lovely mauve. The belt matched the skirt.

Besides that mauve, the collection stressed a gleaming golden yellow, a silvery grey, vivid reds and blues, but these after the magical black.

Daytime dresses were almost all in the silhouette Mainbocher made last fall—the slim, but loosely rather than tightly fitted dress, skirts hanging always from the waist rather than holding on to hips or veering in at the knees. Narrow yokes again on some skirts....outlined demurely with a narrow lace matching the fabric of afternoon dresses.

This type was abundant, and was made to go into the evening. Daytime dresses were chiefly of wool.

One distingushed new short jacket by Mainbocher fits like a bolero, but it is belted at the waist. This was part of a brown herringbone tweed suit, the skirt of which was duplicated in smooth brown wool. With the brown skirt, a wonderfully jaunty, chunky tweed Norfolk jacket, belted in back only, and lined with ermine. Thus, with a white satin blouse, tweed proved to be thoroughly adequate to a sumptuous afternoon party. That is—tweed plus Mainbocher's imagination.

There's a big, strong cue to the average American woman in the designer's collection....especially in his ABC's. Wearing her own choice of them in ready-made clothes, or those she sews for herself, the woman may not look exactly dressed a la Mainbocher. But she'll look pretty rightly dressed.

Attractive Ornaments

Brighten a dull costume with a sudden dash of color in the form of a fantastic bird of paradise in gold and enamel, or a spray of flowers or an amusing little animal or bird. These attractive ornaments come in fascinating variety at any jewellers and can give a wonderful lift to a costume or a morale. Wonderful for birthday presents, too.

Work In Slacks

Slacks for work, slacks for play. These smartly tailored slacks with tapered legs and the simple blouse with modified cuff bands took just 4¾ yards of material and is fashionably practical for workbench or sports.

Care Of Wool

Woollen garments should be brushed and aired frequently, and keep their shape best if they are always hung on hangers. Before storing a woollen garment it should be dry-cleaned, or brushed and aired. Store it in a sealed package or closet—use a reliable moth preventive. Do no unseal the garment bag until you are ready to use the garment again. Very often it is wiser to send woollen garments to the cleaners, than to wash them at home.

Women's Hats Untouched By Regulations

So far no government regulations have come out regarding milady's head-gear. Apparently none of the varied and astonishing things a woman puts on her head have any immediate interest for the War Time Prices and Trade Board, and so the little woman, who has dutifully bought or made herself a plain black dress, or a suit or some sensible tailored blouses, can forget her inhibitions and let herself run riot in the choice of something to put on her head.

Your new fall chapeau may be a bret, any one of a dozen different variations of that perennially popular piece of headgear. If it is a beret, it may sit perkily on the back of your head, defiantly over one eye, or straightly and squarely on top. It may be of plain felt, no trim and only a felt band at the back to hold it on; or it may be all dolled up with veiling and feathers; then again it may be all twisted and pushed out of shape until you have to stretch your imagination quite considerably in order to consider it a beret at all.

Johnny Jeep Hat

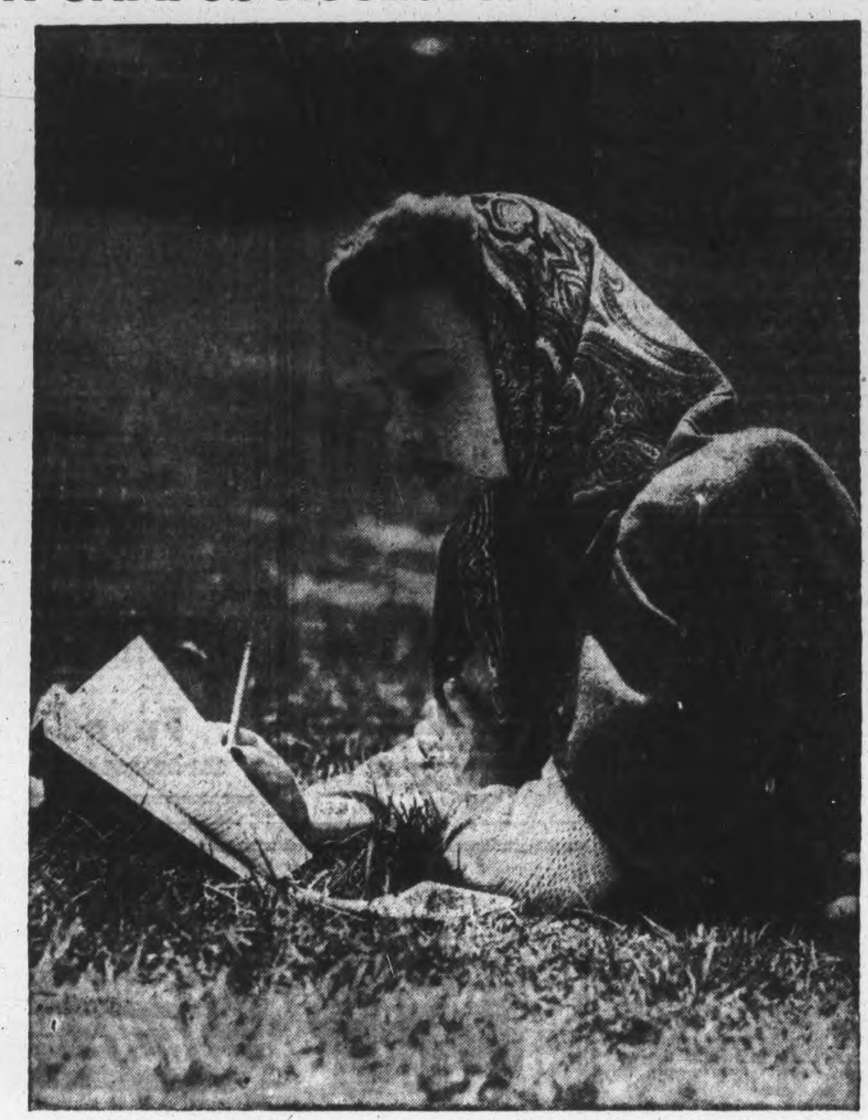
But maybe you don't like berets. There is the "Johnny Jeep" hat, issued by the United States Army and popular on college campuses. You to do the twisting and pulling yourself with this little number, and make the hat suit your particular style of beauty.

Are you the sedate and dignified type? if you are you'll like the smartly tailored felts shown this year with a piratical tilt to the broad brims and a Robin Hood slope to the crowns. These give a dashing air of adventure to any costume. Or perhaps you'd like a cut little velvet turban with a bunch of cock's feathers in front to peep over your pompadour, or curly top-knot.

But there are some hats that cannot be described. They have neither shape nor size, they sit on the head but do not protect it; they perform no tangible usefulness in the general scheme of things. But Boy! what a lift they can give to a girl's morale. And what wonders a felt pancake and a couple of feathers can work on the year before last's tailored suit and last year's sheer blouse!

Another type of hat that is apparently going to be popular this year, must have been inspired by events in the near east. It is a creditable reproduction of the Turkish fez in felt, with a long felt fringe hanging down one side. Fine for those it suits. The "Beanie," introduced a few years ago, is still with us in one or another of its various forms. It comes chiefly in felt now, with a button on top or feathers at the side.

A CAMPUS ACCESSORY



The brightly printed Paisley design is on a rayon challis square here shown as a head scarf. Edges are hemmed and the model is unmussable and easily cleaned.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

BONING away as Autumn swings in, many a girl is finding out whether she chose the useful clothes for campus life, or went off the deep end for the wrong items. Any knowing girl puts her problems into the hands of college shop experts whom big stores have on hand; girls who live away from the big shops can pore over national fashion reports and then order from the experts. Bet you every girl student has a big square scarf in her belongings ... or will get one if she missed it in her first clothes collection.

It serves as hair net or ear mufflers; as a pretty camouflage for curlers or setting combs; doubles as a neck scarf ... in the face of bad luck it can even cheer a patient with a busted arm, when used as a sling. Again, one can fold it narrow and flat and use it for a slacks belt, drape and knot it into a chic turban, tie it into a halter which looks mighty smart with a slacks suit in place of a vest. Paisley patterns, like that of the scarf pictured above, are a good, colorful choice, and they accent almost any basic color attractively.

Clamping Down On Material Favor To Women

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board really did the women a favor when they clamped down on the amount of material that could go into a dress, a suit or a nightie.

Gone, for the duration at least, are those voluminous dirndl skirts and all round pleated dresses, that used to add some much apparent poundage in the region of the hips. Instead we have a flatteringly slender silhouette, achieved by soft draping at the front, slightly gored skirts, or very few pleats. Skirts and dresses are slim enough to be economical and inconvenient. Eighty inches is the limit for the sweep of a hem on dress or skirt.

Gone too, are those long, bell-shaped sleeves that used to dangle into everything, get crushed and untidy under a coat, and were a general nuisance. The all-over shirring, tucking or pleating of a fabric, which reduced its width by half or more, and used up a tremendous amount of fabric unnecessarily, is forbidden. Elastic shirring of any kind is also forbidden naturally. The use of more than nine buttons or a limited number of pockets is also forbidden. All these restrictions make for plainness and simplicity in dress styles.

Robbed of Non-Essentials.

Those lovely, but highly unpracticable nightgowns with several yards of material in the skirt are out. Remember them? They were so beautiful it always seemed a shame to sleep in them. And can you picture yourself, tangled in five or six yards of flowered batiste nightie, trying to get out of the house during an air raid? Pyjamas, too, have been robbed of all their non-essential fancy touches. The use of double fabric for collars and cuffs is forbidden and there will be no pockets, belts or other unnecessary folderols.

There will be no more shadow-proof slips and no more ruffles on slips or nighties. Nor may you increase the full sweep of a dress by putting a ruffle round the bottom. Plain and simple is the law—and the fashion.

Big Enough Sweep Remains.

Those lovely romantic evening dresses with yards and yards of filmy net or lace or silk swirling about on the dance-floor have not vanished entirely. We are still allowed a four and a half yard sweep about the bottom of an evening dress, and anyone who has ever hemmed around that much evening dress knows that it is plenty. Flowing house-coats are out, but we are allowed a comfortable and practical 100 inches around the hem, which should be enough for anybody.

The use of elastic for clothing of any kind is rightly and properly restricted to the absolute minimum and milady will be expected to take even better care of her foundation garment than she ever did before, with a view to making it last just twice as long.

Makes History

Smart Blouses

outside your skirt. Some are knitted plain, others are ribbed, and still others are knitted in fancy patterns.

The cardigans, as a rule, button up to the neck and none of them are sloppy. All sweaters will fit this winter, which may turn us into a nation of Sweater Girls. They range in color from white and the most delicate pastel shades, through gaudy yellows and brilliant scarlets and greens, to rich sombre wines and dusky greens and brown. There should be one to suit everybody's taste.

Smart Necklaces

Seed necklaces from the West Indies and the Bahamas are smart and inexpensive. They add novelty and variety to a plain dress and look smart on sweaters or tailored blouses. They come in long strings to wind round and round your neck or in short necklaces that lie close against the throat and take the place of a collar on a plain black dress.

Glove Washing

Both fabric and leather gloves benefit by being washed on the hands; in rich, mild suds. They should be patted between towels, to remove excess moisture, and dried either flat or on forms. When almost dry, they can be coaxed into perfect shape—and dry up "good as new." Wet or dry, never (!) pull gloves on or off by the cuffs.

"Time-Off" Lounge Garb

From now on there'll be more stay-at-home evenings for tired women war-workers, more time to enjoy housecoats like this. The soft-hanging rayon crepe has been carefully pre-tested for service qualities. Its seam strength is good, it dry cleans like a charm and its colors "stand up" to wear. These are all-important fabric features in war days when clothes must last longer. Note that this design by a prominent Canadian couturier has a new inner fastener that does away with need for a zipper.

THE V. A. SELKIRK MEN'S SHOP

REDUCED VARIETY IN CLOTHES

Fewer Patterns Offered In Men's Shirts

Shirts are one article that the male section of the population is going to notice the war restrictions on, not that they are not attractive, but here are certain things that are not allowed any more. However, some fellows may be relieved to know that they are not going to have as many pins in the article to contend with as in former season—due to war restrictions once again.

The variety in shirt patterns is considerably less than it has been to date, and many of the well-known brands will be shown minus the usual breast pocket. Many of the style are stripes of various kinds, but plain colors will be quite popular too, it is expected. Blue is the strong color that the stores are banking on, and in expected order of popularity the other colors are greys, tans and greens. There may not be as many greens, but they are considered to be very good, particularly when there are going to be so many brown suits. These two colors together produce a very natty ensemble. Another thing that will be of interest to a large number of men is the fact that only staple collar styles are available in the latest models.

Women Conservative Buyers

According to Art Bacon, of the Men's Style Shop, most shirts that are bought, are gotten with the idea of choosing something that will contrast smartly with the suit with which it is to be worn. In his opinion, the reason that the majority of shirts shown are more conservative, blue and grey being particularly popular, is that it is usually the women who are doing the buying and they lean more to the conservative styles and completely shun anything extreme.

When the question of shirts is up for consideration, thoughts naturally veer to neckwear, because a poor choice of tie can mar a whole outfit. This year, stores report a larger amount of English neckwear in their stock than ever before, and there is a splendid range of color with which every man should be able to satisfy himself. "Foulards" are shown in small and medium figured effects, and there is also a large variety of paisley and English botany wool ties, both brands sporting an attractive variety of figured patterns. The English silk and wool poplins are making their appearance as in former years, with plaids and stripes and it is expected that there will be the usual demand for authentic Scotch tartans and the steady favorite, the polka dot. Ties, the experts agree, should always be chosen so as to be in contrast to the shirt they are worn with.

As for tie colors, by far the biggest demand is for red, followed by blue and green. Here again the green is unusually smart with tan shirts and brown suits. It makes an ideal accessory. Along with this, colored pocketwear for the breast coat is very popular. In choosing this, it should always be remembered that it should contrast with the suit and shirt, but match the tie, although it may no necessarily be the same pattern.

Socks Much The Same

Then there are the socks and in these there has not been a great deal of change. The solid shades are in strong demand, and wine shades are plentiful with colors ranging from the very dark to the very light. But greys, blues, greens and browns are the most popular stayles. The more prominent patterns will be the bold diamond, and the ever popular clock effects. There are practically no elastic tops left on the market and the new fall socks are all the regular type.

The public is better protected now than it has been in the past, because regulations strictly prohibit the misuse of false printing. So if there is a tag marked "all wool" on the purchase, the customer can be satisfied that such is the case. Similarly if the tag reads "woollen-cotton" he may know that the greater percentage is wool. In other words, those in charge are seeing that Mr. Average Man is through being gyped along this line.

Wider Brims Still Style.

Coming on winter, every man begins to think that it is time he got himself a new piece of headgear. This year medium and wider brims are still favored, with a trend toward slightly higher crowns. Snap brims are still the strong favorite and the demand is distributed between raw and bound edges. Take your pick. The binding on the hats will harmonize with the hat itself rather than the band. As with the suits, dark brown will be the leading color with an equal demand for medium and dark greys, blue greys, tans and greens. The dark homburg, popularized by Anthony Eden, will be in exceedingly good taste with dark shades of overcoats.

How has the war effected the hat situation? The fur felt supplies are not affected in any way, apparently due to the fact that they have practically no place in the war effort. Machinery in hat factories cannot very well be adapted to war needs, and in this country civilians still need head covering, so manufacturing proceeds as usual. To maintain the basic price, no fur felt hat under $4 will be lined, and the gold printing on the leather sweat band will be eliminated. Because people now have more money to spend, it is noticeable that there is a greater demand for the better quality of hat.

Japs Close To Port Moresby

With the greatest obstacle, the crest of the Owen Stanley mountains, behind them, Japanese forces have succeeded in advancing close to the Allied base at Port Moresby, New Guinea, as indicated on the ABOVE map. If the Japs should succeed in occupying the port, they would be only 375 miles from Cape York, nearest point on the Australian mainland.

83 Paralysis Cases

FREDERICTON, Sept. 17 (CP)—Two more cases of infantile paralysis at Saint John raised New Brunswick's total to date this summer to 83 with two deaths, compared with 260 cases and 12 deaths in the corresponding period last year. Saint John now has seven cases. Westmorland county was the hardest hit section of the province this season.

Leading Color Is Brown In Men's Suits

The fact that war restrictions have reduced the variety of materials and suits, may prove to be an asset to male customers, clothing merchants think, because their customers are always complaining that there were so many kinds of materials that they could never make up their minds as to what to choose. Now the matter has been taken out of their hands. With a reduced variety, they should not experience much difficulty in hitting the jackpot right away.

Brown is to be the leading color this year in men's fall suits. It has been a long time since this color has achieved such a prominent position, and there seem to be no halfway measures. There will be a wide variety of tweeds and Donegal—salt and pepper—and Donegal effects. The latter vary from the straight salt and pepper style of the original Donegal cloth. Along with this there will be multi-colored mixtures, particularly the green-grey and the blue-grey mixtures. In the tweeds, the herringbones and the overcheck design have made their reappearance with a slight trend on diagonal weaves. In worsted suitings, widespread stripes still predominate, and this should be good news for a number of men.

The materials to date are equally as good as they have been for the past two or three years, and reputable merchants have prices exactly the same as a year ago, due to the price control. Even with a smaller variety of stock, there is still considerable choice for materials and there is no danger of everyone looking alike.

Like Victory Suits

In regard to style, stores report that the men are quite favorable to the Victory suits, which are anything but freakish. The double-breasted suits have been eliminated and the single breasted suits are obtainable in drape or regular fittings. In the drape fitting, the features are more fullness in the chest and across the shoulder blades. The easiness of fitting allows more freedom and this is especially appealing to younger men.

Varieties can still be obtained in style and men can chose from two and three button models with notch or peak lapels. There is no change in pocket style, and many of the younger men prefer coat pockets without flaps, although this is not a war time restriction. Vests are more standardized and the one newcomer to the style parade is the "rounded points." It should be welcome because a great percentage of the men complain of the points on the regular vest curling up.

In the trousers a number of things have been eliminated, the pleats pleats and cuffs, high English backs, and the extreme width at the knee. In made-to-measure suits, ample consideration is given to the man who is built out of proportion.

New Styles Not Freakish

In summing up the details about the new suits, one of the merchants said that the new restrictions will not result in the apparence of men on the streets in freakish clothes, but just the opposite, the elimination of outlandish outfits. Extremes to which some young men have gone with clothes have now been prohibited. One other thing that is becoming more popular is the odd trouser purchase. Since two-pant suits can no longer be obtained, many men are buying tweed suits and a pair of the odd trousers, and thus they have a new smart ensemble. Merchants believe, that those in charge of the clothing restrictions have used a lot of good common sense in applying the regulations.

As for overcoats, loose fitting coats will still predominate. In this style the raglan coat popularity has given way to the fly front box coat styled with military collar. Fullness has been restricted to a certain extent, but a large percentage of men were always against the fullness of the body of most loose fitting coats. This style applies to both light weight top coats for fall and the winter coats.

Several Cloths

In the matter of cloths, there are fleece cloths, tweeds and elysians. The elysian is identified by a furrowed effect with a rich velvety finish, shown in navy blue and grey. It make an ideal dress coat. Fleece cloths are shown in light, medium and dark shades. Here again is a strong favorite. Lastly the tweeds. The herringbone effects predominate with the demand being equally distributed amongst blues, greys and browns, with a demand for green being still present.

All in all, what the well-dressed man is going to wear this season is quite on a par with past efforts in fact maybe even an improvement and he need not worry about whether he'll be able to get what he wants. There is enough variety to satisfy the craving of any man.

Foundation Facts

Foundation garments and girdles take to nice rich, luke-warm water and mild soap with the same degree of satisfaction as a duck taking to water. Hot water is definitely OUT (in either case!)—when it comes to foundation garments or girdles, it just isn't to be heard of these days. Hot water devitalizes elastic, and the rubber solution allows for none of that! Also, a mild soap is a necessity—to avoid damage to both elastic and fabric. Several rinsings, to remove soap deposits, are important—with handpressing in a towel as the last step. To dry, hang over a line, away from the heat—and if any ironing is necessary, it should be confined to shoulder straps and fabric panels with a warm iron—not a hot one.

Isabel Conroy Is Wed To John J. Hodson

The wedding of Isabel Conroy, daughter of Mr. W. Conroy and the late Mrs. Conroy, to John J. Hodson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hodson, was solemnized on Wednesday, September 16, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Peterborough. The Rev. Father J. Houlihan performed the ceremony, and said the nuptial mass during which appropriate hymns were sung by Mrs. C. Connelly, accompanied at the organ by Mr. J. Armstrong.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose an attractively styled dressmaker suit of powder blue wool crepe with which she wore black accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of red and white roses, with baby's breath and maidenhair fern. She was attended by Miss Teresa Torpey, who wore a two-piece frock of lime-yellow wool jersey with brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. The groomsman was Mr. Michael Conroy, brother of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at Hooper's Palm Rooms, at which only the families of the bride and groom were present.

Mission Band Meets

The Mission Band of Knox United Church opened its fall season on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was opened with a call to worship. The hymn, "Far Round the World," was sung, followed by a scripture reading by Lois Hutchinson and prayer by the leader, Miss I. Barrer. The theme hymn, "Children Who Walk in Jusus' Way" was sung, and the offering was received and dedicated. After a story by Miss Barrer the meeting closed with the Litany.

Isabel Conroy Honored

Mrs. John Hodson, Jr., formerly Miss Isabel Conroy, was guest of honor on several occasions prior to her marriage. Those who entertained for the bride were Mrs. J. Hodson, Sr., who held a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower at her home on Perry street; Misses Margaret Smart and Ella Meagher who were co-hostesses at a Pyrex and Flame-ware shower held at the former's home; Mrs. A. Porter and Mrs. A. Bryan who arranged a very interesting kitchen and pantry shelf shower; and Miss Teresa Torpey and Mrs F. Butler who were joint hostesses at an attractive miscellaneous shower. The bride was also presented with a walnut coffee table by her fellow-associates of the office staff of the De Laval Company.

Trinity W.M.S. Holds First Fall Meeting

The opening September meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held in the Ladies' Parlor of the church. The president, Mrs. H. T. Rehill, was in the chair. She gave a cordial welcome to all present and hoped they had returned with renewed enthusiasm for the society's year of work that lay ahead. "Lord of the Lands make Canada Thine Own" was the opening hymn, followed by the Bible reading by Mrs. Kearns and prayer led by Mrs. G. N. Moncrief. The society has been asked by the Navy League for volunteers to undertake the filling of ditty bags. The bags will be supplied and a list of articles desired.

A beautiful message in song was offered by Mrs. Mendell Braund, with Mrs. Shadgett accompanying her at the piano.

Mrs. Cunningham read recent excerpts from various daily papers that come to the hand of the people of Peterborough, dealing with the Government's growing awareness of the problem of intemperance. She commented that it was a long time since temperance had rated front page publication and was to be considered a step in the right direction and highly commendable.

Miss Tomlinson gave a very interesting and realistic report of her attendance to the Summer School session.

The study period was under the leadership of Mrs. Kimberly's group with Mrs. H. T. Rehill taking the study book. She dealt with the topic "The Chinese Church Comes of Age." showing the progress made in the last ten years by the Chinese people themselves, who were no longer content to sit and be taught. They were making great strides in assuming the responsibility for organizing and conducting their own work and training themselves to take over the work of the missionaries wherever and whenever they felt that they could manage it.

After the benediction all were invited to stay and visit with each other, even though tea had necessarily been dispensed with for the duration.

Otonabee Chapter Plans for Winter War Work

The first fall meeting of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. A. Leach, Stanley avenue, with the Regent, Mrs. P. L. Robinson, in the chair. Mrs. A. Leach, war work convener, outlined what had been done during the summer months and the comforts still needed for the armed forces and civilians.

Comfort bags for children, to be shipped in time to arrive for Christmas was a timely suggestion. They are made of bright cotton material, eight by ten inches, with a drawstring, and contain toothbrush, soap, face-cloth, hair clip, comb, pad of paper four by five inches, blunt scissors, pencil or crayons. A white name plate is attached to each on which the child's name can be written.

Mrs. B. W. Harvey, sewing and layette convener, gave a splendid report on the work that has been and is being done by the members. Not only layettes but little boys' trousers, blouse, sweaters and socks, soft cotton toys, and miscellaneous articles, are being made by the Chapter.

Plans were discussed for ways and means to carry on the work of the chapter. This is getting more difficult because of rationing. At the conclusion of the meeting the bales containing 12 finished layettes were packed for shipping. At the request of the regent and members of the Chapter, the serving of tea and refreshments by the hostess was not permitted. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Leach for the use of her home was made by Mrs. J. A. Robinson.

DOROTHY DIX

WIFE FEARS HUSBAND WILL BE UNTRUE AGAIN

A Cure for This is to Do Something That Demands All Her Attention

Dear Miss Dix: Is there any way of overcoming an obsessing fear? For three years my husband had an affair with another woman. I broke it up by applying for a divorce. When he thought he was going to lose the children and me he gave up the woman and settled down to become an ideal husband.

But I can't forget, I live in terror of his going back to her. I never see the mailman without shivering with fear that there will be a letter to him from her, calling him back. I never look out the window without dreading that I may see her walking up to our door. I even dream about her, and in my nightmares she is trying to break up our home again. My husband never speaks of her, never goes near her, so far as I know. He seems happy and contented and devoted to me now, but despite that I live in deadly fear of her.

What can I do to free myself of this black shadow that hangs over my life? Don't tell me to keep busy. I work from 5:30 in the morning to 11 or 12 at night. A mother with three children hasn't much leisure for idle thoughts.

WORRIED WIFE.

Answer: But she has. She has all the time there is for morbid brooding because the trouble with housework is that while it employs your hands it leaves your mind free to brood over any unpleasant thing that has happened in your life and to magnify it until you make a mountain out of a molehill. You don't have to concentrate on making beds and washing dishes and fixing the baby's bottle and patching Bobby's pants and darning your husband's socks; you have done the same things over so many times that you do them automatically.

Has Time Enough To Worry

So while you are going through your daily routine you can worry over why your husband always has to pick out a good-looking young girl for a stenographer instead of a homely middle-aged woman, or why Mrs. Jones didn't invite you to her party, or what would happen if John should lose his job—or any of the other million things people worry over who have an opportunity to do a good, consistent job of borrowing trouble. Maybe you have noticed how much more cheerful, easy-going and young-looking are the women who work outside their homes than are the women who work in them.

The reason is that a woman with a job has to concentrate on her work if she doesn't want to get fired. She has to keep her mind on her typing or her selling or her bookkeeping, or whatever it is she does. She can't indulge herself in nursing old sorrows, and in conjuring up imaginary new ones as can a woman who sits at home and rocks and broods while she sews her seam.

So your remedy, lady, is to get out of your rut or else you will end up in a nice padded cell. You are past the place where you can help yourself; you must have some outside assistance. The only way you can get this is by doing something so new, interesting and difficult that you will have to give it all your attention and won't have a minute to think of anything else.

You may say this is impossible; that you can't leave your children; that you cannot risk your husband's going back to the other woman in your absence; that you can't afford it. But you can. Peace and happiness and sanity are worth obtaining at any price. So have the courage to make the change that will bring your life back to normal. When a woman begins seeing the ghost of her husband's old love stalking her it is time to do something drastic. And do it before it is too late.

They Are Happy Though Married

Dear Miss Dix: My husband and I made a marriage that every one prophesied would end in disaster. Everything seemed against it. I was seven years older than he. We had no money. We belonged to different races and had different habits and tastes, but instead of our marriage being a failure, it has been unusually successful.

Knowing that we had different backgrounds we made an extra effort to adapt ourselves to each other. I learned how to cook the dishes he liked and to which he was accustomed. We have never interfered with each other's religion. We never argue; we talk things over on which we differ and one or the other gives in. Because I am older than my husband, I make a special effort to keep myself neat and well dressed! make it a rule to go out together at least once a week, even if only to take a walk. And we don't forget to treat each other as lovers even if we are old married people.

CLAIRE M. Z.

Answer: I think, Mrs. Z., you might well have ended your letter by saying: "Try this recipe for making a happy marriage and you will never fail."

The tragic mistakes of young people is in thinking the only thing that is necessary to make a marriage a success is love and that if they thrill to each other's touch and have palpitations of the heart at the sound of each other's footsteps, they are bound to live happily together ever after. But alas, in the nature of things, we cannot keep on thrilling and palpitating over a person we live with every day, and we get fed up on kisses and are bored with soft talk; we discover to our amazement that the tactics of courtship don't fit into the marriage pattern. And when this happens, too many youngsters in their disappointment and bewilderment over the wreck of their romantic dreams throw up their hands and quit.

Yet there are few marriages, perhaps none, that couldn't be salvaged by the use of a little common sense, a little forbearance, a little patience. For husbands and wives can adjust themselves to each other if they tried. They can refrain from quarreling and continue to be in love if only they will make half as much effort to be as agreeable and interesting and attractive at home as they do abroad.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been married about two years to a man whom I still love, but who, apparently, cares nothing for me. He never shows me any attention or affection. At home we sit for hours without speaking. We have no children. I am so desperately unhappy that I do not see how I can stand it much longer. What shall we do?

I. B.

Answer: Have a showdown with your husband. Ask him to tell you frankly why he treats you as he does and what he wants to do. He must have some reason for his conduct. If he does not love you and regrets his marriage, the only thing you can do is to leave him. You will find no happiness in keeping bound to you a husband who wants to be free.

Home and School Association News

HAVELOCK SCHOOL.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17.—(ENS). — "O Canada" opened the first Fall meeting of the Home and School Club on Tuesday evening in the principal's room of the High school. The president, Mrs. H Pollock, presided. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $26.27.

A prize will again be given to the room bringing in the most members up to the December meeting.

On July 11th, $18.27 was realized at the stand on Mrs. C. Taylor's lawn

The president welcomed the new teachers.

The program consisted of a reading by Miss N. Watson, 'The Way to Find Friends.' Community singing was enjoyed by all. Jean and Joan Quinn favored the members with a song, "All the World's Proud of England Now."

Mrs. Goheen was the winner of an advertisement contest put on by Miss N. Watson. A solo was rendered by Shirley Goreen, 'God Bless Our Soldiers.' Miss Miles' rom won the shield.

VARNISH AS BEVERAGE

EDINBURGH (CP)—"We'll tak a cup o' varnish yet, for the sake of Auld Lang Syne," remarked the sheriff when he fined Donald Cameron £4 ($18) for stealing two bottles of varnish. Reid said he liked a "wee drop" of varnish now and then.

Cyril K. Waters, Asphodel Boy, Wed In Calgary

A wedding of some interest locally took place in Calgary, Alberta, on September 8, when Miss Francis Crawford, Reg.N., daughter of the late Dr. Crawford and Mrs. Crawford, was united in marriage to Cyril K. Waters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Waters of Asphodel, Ontario.

The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Cathedral by the Rev. Father Butler. The bride was attended by Miss Joan Fitzpatrick and Mr. F. Moloney was best man. A dinner was served after the ceremony at the bride's home to a few immediate friends.

After a few days spent in Edmonton they will take up residence at Fort St. John on the Alaska Highway, where the groom is employed as superintendent of the power plant.

Leaders' School Reviewed for Mission Circle

Mrs. Cecil Searles, River Road, was hostess to the members of the members of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle when the September meeting opened their fall activities. "Preparing for Service" was the appropriate theme for the program which led with the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. George Martin.

A hymn, followed by a talk on Temperance by Jessie Martin prefaced the roll call and minutes. The Mission Circle fall rally was under discussion, the members decided in favor of an evening meeting instead of the usual supper meeting. The final decision was left to the committee in charge of the rally.

The report of the Sunshine Committee showed that cards and flowers had been sent to sick or bereaved members.

Constance Wagar in introducing the worship service, arranged by herself, announced the singing of familiar hymns and quiet music, which created a spirit of worship. In response to her call to worship the Circle sang "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee" after which Mrs. Ken Meredith led the responsive scripture reading. A devotional story, "The King's Garden" read by Miss Wagar brought a fine ideal for service as did the poem "Life's Mirror" read by Lottie Leggett. A prayer hymn was softly sung and the girls joined in the invocation led by Jessie Martin and Jean Hammond, "Hark the Voice of Jesus Crying" was the concluding hymn of the devotional period.

Dorothy Martin in her enthusiastic report of the W.M.S. summer school for leaders, emphasized the Mission Circle methods especially. Many new suggestions were gleaned to be tried out later. Another feature was the introduction of the new study book, "City Shadows" which was presented at the school under the capable direction of Miss Helen Day. Highlights from addresses of the outstanding speakers were touched upon and include those by Miss Stella Cheng, Mrs. W. L. Smyth, Mrs. R. S. Langley of West China, Miss Gollan of the Church of All Nations, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Harvey Forster, author of the W.M.S. study book, "The Church in the City Streets." A hymn and the benediction closed the successful first fall meeting.

During the social hour two clever contests prepared by Gladys Langton were enjoyed by all.

Despite War Work Time Found For Hospital Sewing

Because so many organizations and individual workers are so busy at war work of one kind and another, the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary has had difficulty in finding enough workers to do its hospital sewing. Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, however, has turned in a very fine report on the work done for the hospital by various organizations in and around the city.

Lakefield has turned in 75 finished articles, Lily Lake 130 St. John's Church 130, Junior Welfare League 130. All Saints' Church 120, Hadassah 10, St. Andrew's Church 30, Knox Church 30 Mark Street Church 30, Park Street Church 60, Kingsway Workers 120, Nurses' Alumnae 120.

The articles made by the ladies were sheets, pillow cases, pneumonia jackets, tea towels diapers, layettes and many other articles necessary in a hospital. Much of the sewing is heavy and difficult, and it is all very necessary. The ladies who do it are busy, as every one else is, with war work. They have done an excellent job, with a total of 1,005 articles to show for their labors.

Pickling Without Sugar Is Wartime Necessity

By MARY MOORE

If you had passed within a block of our house this month your nose would have known what Emem was up to—making pickles, and not only that but making pickles without any sugar.

Where a recipe called for sugar I judiciously used corn syrup in its stead, and while some experiments did not turn out as expected some were improvements on the sugar method and those improvements I am giving you today.

If your letters are any criterion of what you make, chili sauce is by far the most in demand and was the most worrisome—for if I added cup for cup of course it was not sweet enough; if I added extra corn syrup the result was too sticky sometimes. The following recipe is my happy medium and passed my strictest censor—my sister—with a wink of the eye, a nod of the head and "That's okay!"

1942 Chili Sauce (No Sugar).

Twelve cups peeled and sliced tomatoes, 4 cups finely chopped mild onions (if strong onions are used reduce the quantity), 1 large sweet green pepper chopped or sliced finely, 1 large sweet red pepper chopped or sliced finely, whole spices; (tie in muslin bag) two rolls or sticks of cinnamon, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice (whole berries), ginger root and black pepper berries are optional; 1 tablespoon salt, 1½ cups vinegar, 1½ cups corn syrup. Peel and slice or chop tomatoes, and let stand to drain while you prepare other vegetables and ingredients. Drain off as much of the tomato juice which flows to bottom of bowl as possible—I poured off one cup after they had stood one-half hour—this speeds boiling time. Tie spices in bag with long string. Mix all remaining ingredients and bring to boiling point, having string from spice bag hanging over edge of kettle, and boil at medium heat for 1 hour, then taste to see if it is spicy enough for you — I left the spice bag in for 1½ hours when chili sauce was done. Chili sauce will stick after it has been boiling 1 hour, so stir it often, but heat must be medium if it is to be cooked this quickly. Color of chili sauce is better the faster it cooks. When thick enough to suit your taste pour into sterile jars and seal. Color is good.

Pickled Beets.

For eight pints or 4 quarts pickled baby or sliced beets: 4 cups white vinegar, 2 cups corn syrup, 1 teaspoon whole all-spice, 1 roll or stick of cinnamon bark, 1 tablespoon white mustard seed. Make a syrup of the vinegar and syrup and spices, tying the whole spices in a muslin bag, and boil 5 minutes, then add the beets which have been scrubbed, boiled until tender, plunged into cold water, skinned, and either sliced, halved or left whole. Boil the beets in the vinegar syrup for 15 minutes gently, then lift beets out of syrup into sterile jars, cover with boiling syrup to overflowing, and seal. Process jars of beets for 20 minutes in hot water bath, and complete seal.

Sweet Gherkins

Two quarts small green cucumbers of uniform size, preferably from 2 to 2½ inches, 2 quart boiling vinegar, 4 cups corn syrup, 10 ½-grain saccharin tablets, 2 tablespoons whole allspice, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 2 tablespoons stick cinnamon, 2 tablespoons whole cloves, ½ cup white mustard seed. Dissolve 2 cups salt in 2½ quarts boiling water, and soak the washed and scrubbed cucumbers in this brine for 24 hours, then drain well. Heat the vinegar to boiling point and pour it over the cucumbers. Let the mixture stand for 24 hours, then drain it off, saving the vinegar. Add the syrup and the spices and the saccharin to the vinegar and boil for 5 minutes. Pack the pickles into clean, hot sterile, jars, cover with boiling syrup and seal.

Mustard Pickles

Two cups each 2-inch gherkins, quartered 4-inch cucumbers, small pickling onions, cauliflower flowerets, 1 cup each sliced red or green sweet pepper, yellow string beans, 6 cups vinegar, 2 cups corn syrup, ½ cup ground mustard, ¾ cup flour, 2 teaspoons turmeric. Make a brine of two quarts boiling water and 1½ cups salt, and pour it over the prepared vegetables and let stand 12 hours. Drain and wash vegetables. Mix together the mustard, flour and turmeric, and add 2 cups vinegar to them, to make a smooth paste, and stir until thickened. Add the drained freshened vegetables, and bring to boiling point, then simmer 10 minutes, stirring almost constantly to prevent burning, then pour into hot sterile jars and seal.

Bread and Butter Pickles

Twenty-five large cucumbers, 12 medium sized white onions, ½ cup salt, 1 pint white vinegar, 3 cups corn syrup, 2 tablespoons white mustard, 2 teaspoons ginger, 2 teaspoons whole cloves, ¼ cup horse-radish root (last 3 ingredients are optional). Let unpeeled cucumbers stand in water overnight—ice water if possible. Then slice cucumbers paper thin and onions as thin as possible, and place in pan with the salt, (no water). Let stand 1 hour, then rinse off salt, add vinegar, syrup, mustard seed, and other spices if used and boil all ingredients until skin of cucumbers turns yellow—about 30 to 40 minutes. Pack into sterile jars and cover to overflowing with vinegar syrup and seal. Let stand 10 days at least before using.

Corn Relish

Nine medium-sized ears of corn, 1 small cabbage chopped very well, 2 medium-sized white onions chopped finely, 3 sweet red peppers chopped finely, 2 green sweet peppers chopped finely, 1 quart vinegar, 1½ cups corn syrup, 1 tablespoon salt, 1½ tablespoons mustard, 1 teaspoon turmeric, 1 teaspoon white pepper. Put the corn into boiling water for 2 minutes. Remove and dip it into cold water, then cut off grains from cob at once. Mix the vinegar, syrup and spices. Bring to boil and add all the vegetables. Boil until vegetables are tender—about 30 minutes, stirring the mixture often to prevent scorching. Pour re-into into hot sterile jars and seal.

Write to me immediately if you want other pickle recipes without sugar, stating your wants clearly.

QUESTION: Please help me in regards to cooking a White Fruit Cake. Owing to uneven oven heat I have for some time steamed Christmas and wedding cakes—that is dark fruit cakes which proved very satisfactory. I steamed large layer 3 hours, second layer 2 hours and small layer 1½ hours, and dried in oven 1 hour. Do you think this method would be advisable for light fruit cake?—Mrs. A. J. Allen, Essex.

ANSWER: A recipe I have which contains 4 cups fruit, 2 cups flour and 3 eggs calls for 1 hour steaming and 1 hour baking at 250 deg. Fahr. This is a pretty good average time for steaming and baking light fruit cakes. If your recipe is heavier with fruit than these averages I have mentioned you may have to steam it a little longer—this cake is baked in average sized loaf pans. You will see that your steaming time for dark fruit cake would be shortened if light fruit cake were baked in the large, medium and small size tins your mentioned. However the light fruit can be tested, if it has risen and you can press it lightly with the fingers and it does not remain dented, you may transfer it to the oven to finish the baking.

QUESTION: Please send me recipe for fruit cocktail for about 125 people. Quantity is my problem.—Mary McDonald.

Fruit Cocktail (for 125 People)

ANSWER: You require 50 8-oz. measuring cups or 2½ gallons fruit cup or cocktail to make 125 servings —each serving being 1-3 cup measured in an 8-oz. measuring cup.

Two quarts each crushed or cubed pineapple—pulp and juice, cubed or sliced oranges, California grapes, 1 quart maraschino cherries, 1 quart bananas if available (if not substitute sliced apples for banana), 1 pint nuts or marshmallows, 1 pint (1¼ lbs.) sugar, or 1 pint 2½ cups) white corn syrup. The cherry flavor is quite essential but other fruits are variable—melon balls being very nice at this time of year if they are nicely cut. A little lemon juice or some firm chopped jelly made from packaged dessert is a nice addition when you want to make the fruit stretch.

Baked Peaches

(Contributed by Walsa Kole)

I call these a wartime recipe because I made them from windfall peaches, they were very ripe, and I wanted to make a change from pies and thought they were exceptionally nice.

Peel large peaches that are very ripe and cut in halves. Fill the cavity where the stone was with 1 teaspoon sugar, dot of butter, sprinkling of lemon juice and sprinkling of nutmeg. Do this to each peach half. Bake on glass pie dish, which has been buttered, at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. Serve hot with cream, or if you want to serve them cold whipped cream is nice if you have it and live on a farm. They are nice covered with a meringue an sprinkled with cocoanut, and baked slowly too.

Succotash with Grapenuts Crust

(Contributed by Mrs. James)

'I live on a farm and mix the over-ripe green beans with corn cut off the cob with some rich milk and salt and pepper in a bake dish and cover it with a crust of grapenuts mixed with a little butter and bake it until both the corn and beans are tender—about one hour in a slow oven.

Thanks for these seasonable suggestions—both sound and taste fine —the grapenuts were a very good topping on the casserole.

For Friday, September 18

Difficulty and confusion may prevail on this day, although it may be particularly lively and intriguing. There may be peculiar problems or erratic and unpredictable situations to unravel, by clear thinking, deliberate and decisive action and not tempest, turbulence and impetuosity. Avoid excitement, rash and violent scenes and passionate behavior; don't be swept off the balance by sudden and singular situations. The social, domestic, and emotional life as well as business interests are involved.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of excitement strange and intriguing situations to baffle the good judgment and decisive and self-contained behavior. Clamor, violent, impetuous and wild actions may defeat the possibility of benefit, gain and self-satisfaction. All this may affect the business as well as the private and emotional affiliations.

A child born on this day may have some erratic, singular and unfathomable traits of character, although affectionate, sociable and kindly.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP)—Instead of fining those unruly spectators, maybe Brooklyn should give 'em a vote of thanks . . . The Dodgers hadn't shown as much fight in weeks as they did in that pre-game brawl yesterday, and did you notice how they started hitting right afterward? . . . If they can only stay mad now, they may still beat out the Cards. . . . Dixie Walker only got credit for four hits, but that wasn't a bunt he hung on that fans jaw . . . Looks as if the Phils are the real beneficiaries of the close race. They drew 36,874 for the Cards series and will cut in on five games at Ebbets Field, including a Sunday doubleheader, as well as two home games against Brooklyn . . . Ordinarily at this stage they'd have about 300 fans rattling around in the park.

Sensible Solution

When Johnny Stojack, star back at Wells High in Steubenville, O., was charged with accepting pay for playing sandlot baseball during the summer, J. R. Townsend, head of the Ohio State Athletic Conference, came up with the ruling that Stojack could regain his eligibility by paying back any money he received for ball playing . . . He decided that Johnny had compromised himself innocently and that the Steel Company on whose team he played didn't know it was getting a grid star into trouble.

One-minute Sports Page

Washington Redskins have a club rule that players who eat in railroad diners have to leave a 25-cent tip each time—which makes them popular with waiters who have fed big league baseballers . . . Although the Seattle City Hockey League has lost a dozen men to the armed forces, plans call for a three-club league this winter—unless the big pro leagues send out too many calls for veterans like Roger Jenkins, Frank Daley and Dave Downie.

Arrangements for a Lovely Wedding

Details Settled in Advance

"Such a beautiful wedding!" They'll say that of yours if you plan it right! For, though the war forbids extravagance, it doesn't take money to have a lovely wedding.

The important thing is to know what's correct, to budget expenses properly—whether your wedding is formal or informal.

The formal bride looks lovely in her bridal gown and veil, but you may look lovely, too, marrying informally in suit and hat.

The groom's clothes are in key—cutaway and striped trousers for a formal afternoon wedding or business clothes for an informal one.

On the bride's budget will be invitations, refreshments, music and expenses at the church. The groom's will include the license and the ring, the fee for the clergyman.

Our 32-page booklet explains all the etiquette of expenses, describes every detail of correct formal and informal wedding dress for bride, groom, attendants and guests. Tells etiquette for ceremony and reception.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding" to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

UNSOUND TRUMP SUITS

IF YOUR side has only seven trumps—especially with only a four-card suit opposite three—you are in a pretty mean situation. Not only is there danger that the longer hand may have to ruff early, and so be cut down to only three while one defender has four, but there is the extra danger that they may take an unpleasant number of tricks by ruffing with their trumps, even if each has exactly three. At times, you have to strive with such a trump suit, but it will pay you to pick some other declaration, generally, if you can find a sound one.

North: ♠ A K Q 6 5 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ A 9 7 ♣ 9 6
West: ♠ J 9 7 4 ♥ J 9 4 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ J 3 2
East: ♠ 8 3 ♥ K Q 8 ♦ K J 10 3 ♣ A Q 10 4
South: ♠ 10 2 ♥ A 8 5 3 ♦ Q 8 2 ♣ K 8 7 5

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Dbl	Pass	2 ♦

Looking at that hand, you would hardly guess that North and South would get four tricks out of their trump holding, but they did. Private Phil Abramsohn, of the United States Army, sitting South, had as his partner in the North, Tobias Stone, one of New York's most brilliant young players, and they were taking part in the recent Nationals.

Naturally, the soldier led the 10 of his mate's spades. After the K and A won, the Q was ruffed by East's diamond 10 and over-ruffed by the Army man's Q. The heart A and 2 to the J put declarer into dummy, whence he sent through the club J to the K. Another heart, to the K, made declarer lead. He picked the trump K to the A, and North fired back a low spade toward the J. East discarded a good club, and the diamond 8 scored.

Next a club made East lead again. He had two trumps and a good club. He led the diamond J, hoping to drop the two missing ones, but North had both. He scored one on the twelfth trick, ruffing the club Q, and gave East the last trick with a spade to the diamond 3. The defenders put him down three, getting regular trump tricks with the A and 9, ruffs with the Q and 8, two spade tricks and one each in the other two suits.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J 10 9 7 ♥ Q J 7 4 ♦ A K 4 ♣ J 7
West: ♠ A 4 ♥ 9 5 ♦ 9 6 3 ♣ K 9 8 4 3 2
East: ♠ 8 6 5 3 2 ♥ 10 6 2 ♦ 10 8 2 ♣ 10 6
South: ♠ K Q ♥ A K 8 3 ♦ Q J 7 5 ♣ A Q 5

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

After South opens this deal with 1-Heart, what good reason might North have, in a match-match-point pair tournament, for failing to raise the suit with four trumps and preferring a bid of 1-Spade instead?

Sweeper Thrills Hit Hard But Scarce

ABOARD A MINESWEEPER IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL, Sept. 17 (CP)—The silver streaks of dawn shivered through an overcast, murky sky as the "Black Ensign" fleet crept silently from a harbor nestled among towering chalk cliffs. The monotonous daily task of sweeping the Channel clear of German mines had begun.

Sometimes, the vessels whose never-ending sweeps keep the Channel open for vital coastal shipping are attacked by German planes. Or these boats may pick up the trail of a submarine heading for the Atlantic from a French coastal base. Then there are plenty of thrills to satisfy the men for a month.

In this Canadian - commanded minesweeper, among the latest in service, Lieut. James Plomer of Saint John and Winnipeg, gloomily told how he had been sweeping the Channel for nearly a year and hadn't bagged a mine or been attacked. This sweep wasn't different from the others in that respect.

Outside the heavily guarded harbor the minesweepers, at a signal run up the halyards, dropped their sweeps and unravelled thick cables until the torpedo-shaped float was barely visible on the foam-flecked waves.

They try to bring any catches back alive, but more often than not mines caught by the sweep are exploded on contact.

"The Admiralty likes to get them to investigate whether the Germans are using any new wrinkles," explained the Canadian as he paced the bridge, now and then signalling changes of course to other ships in his group. "And besides they explode with such force that a minesweeper may be put out of action for more than 14 days. She has got to go into drydock and have her seams tightened and other damage repaired."

Back to Shovel Days.

Plomer and the crew didn't have to explain why the minesweepers are dubbed the "black ensign" fleet. All of them are coal burners. It's impossible to keep the white ensign from changing color.

Every man on board agreed that the toughest and most thankless job is in the stoke hole. Oil is needed for the R.A.F. raids on Germany, tanks and an army that moves on wheels. Many minesweepers have to make steam the old, back-breaking way.

It's hot in that devil's hole below decks. They took me from the fo'c'sle right down into that two-by-four bunker of heat, dirt and dust.

Black, greasy sweat ran in rivulets down the back and chest of the lone grimy stoker. It was easy to see why, as the crew had said, three stokers had been "killed" within a week down there. They mean, of course, they broke down in that stifling stoke-hole.

As the group headed for home in the gathering dusk and the sweeps had been pulled in for the day a nearby minesweeper caused a brief flurry of excitement. She darted ahead, chucked a pattern of depth charges overboard and then began to circle.

It looked like the real thing for a minute, but the men who raced to action stations on this vessel grinned sheepishly when a dory put out from another minesweeper and began to gather stunned fish. Tossing depth charges into the sea is just an easy way to get supper.

Posing For Royal Photograph

Prince Michael was born on July 4th and had President Franklin D. Roosevelt for a godfather.

4-Month Tour Of Middle, Far East Shows Canucks In Every RAF Unit

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON, Sept. 16—(CP).—Flt.-Lt. Burt Johnson of Windsor, Ont., back in London after a 22,000-mile flight through the war zones of the Middle and Far East, reported that morale of the hundreds of Canadian airmen serving on these fronts is "very good."

An ace photographer with the Windsor Star and now head of the R.C.A.F. photographic section at headquarters here, Johnson said he found Canadians in every R.A.F. squadron he visited during a four-month tour that took him to Egypt and the western desert, Palestine, Iraq, India and Ceylon.

"They are even serving in squadrons of the South African and Royal Australian Air Forces," said the desert-bronzed officer. "Of course, this is in addition to our own two squadrons, the Spitfire unit in the Middle East led by Sqdn. Ldr. Paul Pitcher of Montreal, and the Catalina flying boat squadron in the Far East under Wing Cmdr. Johnny Plant of Victoria."

Johnson made the flight east in Catalines flown by Sqdn. Ldrs. J. C. Scott of Galt, Ont., and Toronto, and L. H. Randall of Bristol, N.B. He spent two months photographing the work of Canadian airmen in the Far East and was attached to the Duke of Gloucester's party during his tour of Ceylon.

Live Well In Ceylon.

An able reporter as well as a smart photographer, Johnson prepared for the local newspapers a lot of material in connection with the visit and was instrumental in introducing to Cingalese many Canadians serving in Ceylon.

"The boys live in cocoanut huts with roofs and walls thatched with cocoanut leaves," Johnson said. "They eat lots of curry and rice, the native dish, and since there is no rationing they get plenty of fruit, meat and tropical vegetables. The airmen like the life even if they are very busy patrolling the Indian Ocean and the Bay of Bengal."

Johnson met seven Canadian fighter pilots with an R.A.F. squadron near Colombo. Among them were PO. Donald A. MacDonald of St. Thomas, Ont.; Sgt. Jack Hurley of Vankleek Hill, Ont., and Granville Murray of Penetanguishene, Ont.

They shared in the destruction of 27 Japanese aircraft during the Easter Sunday attack on Ceylon. Hurley got 1½ confirmed and a damaged. MacDonald one 97 bomber.

Johnston's tour afterwards took him to Bombay, where he arrived the day Gandhi and some of his followers were arrested, and on to Cairo and the western desert. He made the desert trip with Sqdn. Ldr. Don Patterson of Montreal, and R.C.A.F. welfare officer.

There were 45 Canadians in one R.A.F. squadron Johnson visited. They were out almost every night bombing Tobruk.

"I was within 30 miles of the front and could hear the guns rumbling night and day," Johnson recalled. "I spent several nights in slit trenches during air raids. But we didn't mind much because our men were twice as active over enemy lines as Jerry was over ours."

Johnston found desert life tough. "It was sand, sand, sand," he said, "but the food is good though, and the boys get lots of Canadian and American beer."

Morale in the desert was exceptionally good and most of the airmen spent their leaves in Alexandria or Cairo.

"They have to do that to get a good clean-up," Johnson explained, "because they are rationed on water in the desert. The flies are terrific. Everybody walks around with a stick with horse-hair at the end of it."

Planned Pruning For Canada's Industries Due

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP)—Canada faces a "progressive planned pruning" of industrials not essential to a minimum standard of living to relieve an acute manpower shortage which is deterring war production, Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service said in an address prepared for delivery today to the annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Mr. Little gave the convention most up-to-the-minute figures on Canada's manpower needs. Industry and the armed forces will require almost 200,000 men and women by the end of this year and an additional 100,000 men are required for logging operations, he said.

"Our war production is suffering right now because we have not dealt sufficiently ruthlessly with the situation," he said. "Our base metal mines, producing metals absolutely vital to our munitions production are far from adequately manned. We have an immediate need for thousands of additional men to work on defence projects in vital coastal areas and other strategic points in Canada...

"We must review the way in which we are using our manpower even in the most essential industries and reallocate our manpower so that it is being used more effectively. Increased efficiency in the use of our men and women is possible in every plant in Canada—and in some of our newer plants to a shocking degree."

Management and labor would have to pool their experiences to iron out production difficulties.

"If labor takes a perspective view of our wartime industrial development, I believe the attitude of labor will be increasingly constructive and that there will be less sniping and hostility between management and labor," he said.

Most unions, he added, were taking a broad view and being definitely helpful.

"In the reallocation of industrial manpower, basic surgical steps will have to be taken in the national interest," Mr. Little continued. "We are now at the stage where we no longer have any choice but must forthwith set out to reduce our civilian standard of living to the bare minimum necessary to maintain health and efficiency.

More Women Needed.

"From this time on the nation will see progressive planned pruning of industries which are not necessary to that minimum standard of life."

Unions would have to reconcile themselves to large-scale employment of women, not only in industry but also in services previously considered suitable only for the employment of men.

"We are past the stage where we only need in industry women who are working because they need the money," he said. "From now on as our armed forces expand and our munitions production grows accordingly, women who never had to work because of economic necessity should come forward and offer their services to industry in their own and the nation's interest.

"Not only will we need the single young women but also married women with the exception only of those with considerable family responsibilities."

Reviewing recent manpower legislation, Mr. Little said that while some "common-sense modifications" might be found necessary there was no intention to soften the applications of the principles. The regulations do not freeze labor and were not intended to interfere with the operation of any existing collective bargaining agreement.

Plans for new manpower boards which would be required in the transfer of military draft administration to selective service were not yet complete but it was possible that they would include representatives of labor.

Dealing with manpower advisory committees, on which labor will be represented, Mr. Little referred particularly to the construction industry where, he said, "a basic revolution in work planning may be called for." It was hoped that the advisory committee for this industry could devise methods of planning and operation by which the industry might operate throughout the year instead of seasonally.

Brigadier Swears In His Daughter

This is an unusual picture of a district officer commanding swearing his own daughter into the Canadian army. The officer is Brigadier W. W. Foster of Vancouver, now commanding M.D. No. 6 at Halifax. He is administering the oath to his daughter, Miss Jocelyn Foster, who has joined the Canadian women's army corps and who is now training at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que. Brig. Foster, formerly commanded M.D. 12 at Regina, and is one of British Columbia's most widely known citizens He has two sons in the armed services. Pictured ABOVE, from LEFT to RIGHT, are: Miss Foster, Lieut. Arnold of the C.W.A.C., and Brig. Foster.

Two Of Every Three Men, Women In British Army Or War Industries

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP).—Mobilization of manpower in Britain is at a peak never before reached in history.

Two out of every three men and women, between the ages of 14 and 65—22,000,000 out of 33,000,000—are doing full time war work, in the services or in vital war industry.

In addition there are at least 2,000,000 voluntary workers, apart from more than 1,750,000 home guards, more than 5,000,000 part-time civil defence workers and fire-watchers and 250,000 women working part-time in industry.

Between January and May, 1942, the Ministry of Labor and National Service placed 757,845 women in all forms of industry, including 387,000 in the munitions industry. And Britain is the only country in the world which conscripts women for its uniformed services.

More than 77 per cent. of the boys of Britain between the ages of 14 and 17 and more than 67 per cent. of the girls between the same ages are doing wartime work.

In the engineering trades alone more than 1,000,000 people are working for the Ministry of Supply in April, 1942. By February of this year the labor force in shipbuilding has been doubled since the start of the war.

In Royal Ordnance factories 60 per cent. of the employees are women, 32½ per cent. semi-skilled or unskilled men, and only 7½ per cent. skilled men.

And when Britons work they do work. Imprisonment of workers for absenteeism under the essential works orders at the rate of only one in every 50,000.

Monckton Sure Egypt Is Safe

By J. F. SANDERSON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(CP).—Sir Walter Monckton, former acting British Minister of State in Cairo, expressed confidence that Allied forces in Egypt will be able to hold the Germans from the delta of the Nile and eventually clear them from the whole of North Africa.

He said supplies from North America and from Britain have been pouring into the Middle East in sufficient quantities to warrant confidence and optimism in future military operations and, at the same time, Allied troops have gained sufficient experience in tank and desert fighting to overcome the initial advantages in training and weapons of Marshal Rommel's Africa corps.

Sir Walter will go to Canada within the next day or two on his way back to Britain. He will visit Moncton, N.B. (named after an ancestor of his who was a governor of New York) and also Toronto and Montreal.

Feels Like Different Person Since Syntona Built Her Up
Suffered With Stomach Gas and Acidity, Headaches, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. Was Underweight, Weakened and Rundown.
The great popularity of Syntona is not surprising, for this medicine actually does give grand results, as vouched for by the many grateful men and women who have used it. Compounded from no less than 12 of Nature's finest Medicinal Herbs, and not one harmful drug, it aids in assimilation of food and elimination of excess acids and irritating waste matter. Syntona is pleasant to take and many who have used it say that even after the first few days, the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and vigor. Read here, the experience of Mrs. May Hughes, 326 St. George Street, London, as reported recently.
"After a serious illness I found myself in a badly rundown and weakened condition. I couldn't seem to regain my strength and I kept losing weight until I was down to NINETY-FOUR POUNDS. My nerves were bad and my stomach was so upset that I couldn't digest my food properly. The food just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, acidity, and nervous headaches. My tongue was always coated, my complexion was sallow and my breath was bad.

MRS. MAY HUGHES
"I had tried different tonics without any success, but I wasn't taking Syntona long before I could tell it was really helping me. It rid me of that gas and indigestion, so my nerves became calmed, and I could get some badly needed sleep. I am free of those miserable headaches now, and in the few weeks that I was taking Syntona, my weight came back to one hundred and eighteen pounds. My complexion is back to normal now and I feel so much better in every way that I can hardly realize I am the same person."
Go to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out how Syntona can help you too. (Advt.)

225,000 A's To Have Cards Cut

Driving To Offices, Housewives Hit, Judging Each Case

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said today about 225,000 Canadians will have their category "A" gasoline ration books withdrawn after Oct. 1 and replaced with a smaller ration in the new category known as "AA".

The minister announced the new category, effective Oct. 1, in an address over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network last night.

The new category will provide 16 units for six months to the owner of a small car, about half the amount available to the holder of category "A" ration books.

The "AA" category will include all those who use a car for personal transportation and not for business. Housewives not employed in war plants, university and high school students, and owners of two or more cars are among those who will be affected.

Also coming within the new category will be those who use their cars chiefly for driving to and from their stores, offices and non-essential factories.

Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle said all category "A" applications now are being examined and letters are being prepared for those who may have to accept the lower category after Oct. 1.

"If we find that our information is insufficient we shall seek additional information before making any decision," he said. "Normally a housewife would not be entitled to a category higher than 'AA' but if we find she now has a job in war industry, is not provided with adequate public transportation, and is driving fellow employ-

Many Of Dieppe Missing, Captive

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP)—Three Toronto officers of the Royal Regiment of Canada, previously reported missing or missing believed killed at Dieppe, were reported last night prisoners of war in Germany.

Maj. Brian McCool, reported missing, believed killed was officially said by the International Red Cross a prisoner of war.

Lieut. John Graham Housser is also said in the hands of the Germans. He was reported missing.

Lieut. John Dargavel is a prisoner of war, after being reported missing in the Dieppe action.

Merritt, Prisoner

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 18—(CP).—Lt.-Col. Cecil C. I. Merritt, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, previously reported missing after the battle of Dieppe, is now a prisoner of war in Germany, his wife was informed today. Col. Merritt is of Vancouver, and his wife, the former Miss Grace Bone, is in Belleville with her two children.

(In a statement issued today at Ottawa Defence Minister Ralston singled out the exploits of Col. Merritt in the Dieppe raid as one of the "examples of the manner in which Canadian officers and men maintained the traditions of the Canadian army and the honor of their country.")

Look To Willkie To Loosen Soviet Reserve

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

Special Ambassador Wendell Willkie now in Russia would achieve a notable contribution to United Nations victory if he could find some way of breaking through a Muscovite reserve which at times forms a really formidable barrier to close co-operation with the other Allies.

What I'm getting at is that the Russians in many instances aret maintaining such a close-mouthed attitude about details of their war effort that John Bull and Uncle Sam often find difficulty in figurout just what the situation is. For instance, I believe you'd have to search hard to find a British or American staff officer who claimed to know just what the Red military position has been during the crucial fighting in the Caucasus this summer.

Now such a lack of information makes it difficult for Russia's Allies to know exactly what co-operation is needed in specific cases. No general staff is going to fling its forces into action blindly.

Of course, the Russians are by nature people of action and not too many words. Premier Stalin one of the outstanding leaders of our time, is such a notable example of this characteristic that he sometimes is referred to as the Sphinx of Moscow.

Short On Confidence

Still, the thing cuts a good deal deeper than that. There have been signs that Moscow might not have complete confidence in her Allies. If there is such lack, the situation hasn't been helped any by the feeling in at least some circles in Russia that the United States and Britain could have done more in the matter of opening a second-front. Unfortunately this suspicion must have been strengthened by the demand for a second front from uninformed and ill-advised people in both American and Britain.

Huns Retreat Streets A Shambles

Nazis Shove Up Hasty Forts In Outskirts, Reds Pour In Tanks

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Sept. 17—(AP)—Taking a stand with the precipitous banks of the Volga at their very backs, the defenders of Stalingrad have counter-attacked and wiped out two enemy wedges within the city in a supreme, last-ditch effort to save the great manufacturing centre from the Germans, the Russians said today.

The Germans precipitated this bitter and thus far successful Russian counter-action by rushing into the city proper from the north-western outskirts, and pushing almost to the cliffs overhanging the west bank of the Volga.

With no choice between counter-attack and surrender, the Russians took their stand.

A terrible battle flamed along the tree-lined avenue leading to the riverfront. The first German units which had speared through the city, pointed by tanks, were forced back. The struggle continued in mounting violence with the enemy trying to fortify himself in the north-western fringe of Stalingrad.

Two successive German efforts to take Stalingrad by storm reported repulsed in the last 24 hours.

Meanwhile the Red Army was credited with a new offensive in the Voronezh area, about 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said an artillery, mortar and aerial bombardment to soften the German positions and plow paths through the enemy minefields, barbed wire systems and firepoint was followed by an infantry advance in several sectors.

Hand-to-Hand Fight Rocks Hun

Canada Opening 3rd Victory Loan On Oct. 19

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (CP)—Canada's third Victory Loan will be opened Oct. 19 with an objective of $750,000,000, Finance Minister Ilsley announced today.

Denominations and maturities of the bonds to be sold, and the rates of interest to be paid, will be announced later.

The last Victory Loan, held in February, had a $600,000,000 nominal objective but was greatly oversubscribed.

In a brief statement released at the same time as the minister's announcement, G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee which organized loan campaigns, said:—

"The challenge and the opportunity presented to the Canadian people at this time in the form of the third Victory Loan may well prove to be a matter of consequence in the winning of the war.

"Canadian people have responded with alacrity in the past when the need was pointed out.

"That need now is increased to the degree that every thought, every effort and every penny must be devoted to ensuring the success of the forthcoming loan."

The $750,000,000 objective is the highest of any of the five loans since the war began.

The first was for $200,000,000, the second for $300,000,000; the third and fourth—first and second Victory Loans—for $600,000,000. All have been considerably oversubscribed.

The first loan was held in January, 1940, and cash sales amounted to $321,276,850 with an additional $50,000,000 in conversions of maturing issues.

The second was in September the same year, with cash subscriptions of $324,246,300 and conversions of $24,945,700.

Short-Wave Station Set For N.B.

Be Boon To Troops Aid British U.S. In Vital War Service

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—(CP).— The government has approved immediate establishment of a high-power short wave broadcasting station at Sackville, N.B., War Services Minister Thorson announced to-day.

The government will own the station, the cost of which, including installation, purchase of land and premises, and housing, is estimated at $800,000. The Dominion will also finance the annual operating, maintenance and program costs, estimated at $500,000 annually.

A special House of Commons radio committee said that only a few Allied broadcasting stations now reach the enemy-occupied territory, and that a Canadian station would strengthen and supplement the existing British and United States services.

The committee said a Canadian station would be particularly valuable if a British short wave station were damaged and would assist the cause of the United States in South America, while supplying the United Kingdom and other countries with information about Canada. During the war the station would bring their country and their homes closer to Canadian sailors at sea and Canadian forces abroad.

Help War Effort.

Mr. Thorson saiad the opinion of the Wartime Information Board on construction of the station was asked by the government. The Board saiad it would prove a "useful instrument in the dissemination of information about the war effort of the Canadian people."

The station establishment will consist of the two 50-kilowatt short wave transmitters, with three-idrectional antennae and associated apparatus.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will operate the sttaion, working in consultation with the External Affairs Department, "in view of the fact that short wave broadcasts will constitute a factor affecting Canada's relations with other countries of th eCommonwealth and with foreign countries," Mr. Thorson said.

The government considered the CBC the logical body to administer, operate, supervise and control the station and associated facilities by reason of its experience in radio broadcasting and associated programs. Many of its regular programs could be used for short wave transmission and special short wave programs could largely interlock with those on the national system, the Minister said.

1st Hop to Dieppe Pilot Plenty Scared

Writted For The Canadian Press By Flt. Lt. Malcolm Macleod.

WITH THE R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 18.—(CP).—They told me when I was undergoing training as a fighter pilot that on the first few trips over France I'd probably find things so confusing that I wouldn't see much of what was going on. Well, the first trip I went on happened to be a sea-level trip — to Dieppe, I saw plenty.

Our squadron was detailed early in the morning to escort Hurricane bombers to attack a position in the town. We crossed the channel right on the water. That started it.

About half way across, a Spitfire ripped through the haze in a vertical dive, right among the Hurricanes bombers and disappeared wtih a great splash. That jarred me no end, and I tried to see where it had come from and more important, what had shot it down. However, no enemy aircraft was near.

At the harbor entrance, the confusion was indescribable. A smoke screen obscured the northeast part of the harbor. Near the beach a Boston bomber was burning. Ships of all descriptions were undergoing a terrific pounding from the shore batteries, while aircraft milled about in a tight ball.

It's hard to describe the feeling I experienced for that half second as we pulled up over the cliff. However, it disappeared as I found the flak in that particular corner of hell wasn't very heavy. All around the horizon dogfights of every description were going on, while the burning buildings, shellbursts and other tokens of international discord added to my confusion— and my blood pressure.

One Goeis Down.

As we turned behind the town, a small flak post hit one of our aircraft. It broke in two, struck the ground with all the impetus of 250 miles an hour, and disintegrated. Then we were over the target, and as the Hurricanes went in to bomb two Focke-Wulf fighters dove on us from our left.

"Well," I thought, "my mamma done told me about these people."

Tom MacDonald, Peterboro, Victim Of Injuries In Battle To Save Convoy

Commander One Of Six Killed In Torpedoing During Action In Heavy Fog; Craft 2nd Canadian Loss Inside Week

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP).—Loss of the corvette Charlottetown by enemy submarine action, with her commander dead and five of her crew missing, was announced today by Navy Minister Macdonald. Three other ratings died of injuries.

It was the second Royal Canadian Navy loss reported this week. On Monday Mr. Macdonald said the patrol vessel Raccoon had been sunk with her entire complement of 38 officers and men missing. He also reported the sinking by U-boat of four Allied merchantmen. Charlottetown's commander, Acting Lt.-Cmdr. John Willard Bonner of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, was killed in action. The five ratings who are missing are believed killed in action.

One officer and six ratings are reported seriously injured—two of them on the danger list—but all are reported improving. Seven ratings were slightly injured, four of them already discharged from hospital.

The other four officers and 35 ratings were unhurt.

When sunk the Charlottetown was fighting off an enemy submarine attack on a convoy. Details of the time, place and the fighting in which the Charlottetown was torpedoed were not given. The announcement simply said the ship, "engaged as an anti-submarine vessel in escort duties, was torpedoed and sunk in heavy fog."

Survivors were rescued by another Canadian naval vessel and brought to an eastern Canadian port.

Part of The Price

"Naval losses," the minister said in his statement, "are part of the price which must be paid in order that protection may be given the merchant ships carrying supplies to the battlefronts."

He added that the Canadian navy is not taking losses without inflicting punishment, and that the enemy is not escaping unscathed.

"It is naval policy to announce the losses of its own ships as quickly as posible when the next-of-kin caualties have been advised," said the minister's statement. It's successes, however, are not announced until it is certain that the enemy can gain no help from the information divulged."

Men of the crew of the Charlottetown came from every province, except Prince Edward Island, and from Newfoundland and the United Kingdom. Lt.-Cmdr. Bonner was 42 years old and born at Sydney Mines, N.S. He took command of the Charlottetown in December, 1941.

The Charlottetown is the fourth corvette and the ninth ship lost by the Canadian Navy in this war. Previous losses were the corvettes Levis, Spikenard and Windflower, the destroyers Fraser and Margaree and the patrol ships Bras d'Or, Otter and Raccoon.

Explosive-Laden Balloons Scare Hungary

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(CP).—While planes of the R.A.F.'s coastal comper from air attack last night, planes of the R.A.F.'s coastal guard bombed docks at Bordeaux, German-held port and submarine base of Southern France on the Bay of Biscay.

Preceding the assault Beaufighters of the same command, on patrol over the Bay of Biscay yesterday, destroyed three enemy bombers and lost one of their own number, the Air Ministry's communique said.

Southeastern Europe, meanwhile, was kept in high state of jitters last night by an air raid attack in Sofia and by reports mysterious balloons laden with explosives were drifting over Hungary.

Hungarians were warned of the presence of the balloons by the Budapest radio, but the broadcast gave no hint as to where they had come from or whether they were causing any damage.

The Vichy News Agency later reported the balloons were trailing explosive of incendiary material on long cables, which apparently were intended to catch in telephone and high-tension wires.

The air-raid scare in Sofia was announced when the radio there shut down abruptly in the midst of

New Contingent Of Yanks Crosses

LONDON, Sept. 18—(CP)—Thousands of United States troops arrived in Britain recently to swell the ranks of the rapidly-expanding United States Army in this country.

While they have been whisked away to camps already announcements of their arrival was not permitted until today.

They came in a typical convoy of great ships, which were well-known passenger liners in peacetime, and disembarked at a number of British ports.

Crossing of the Atlantic was made swiftly and not a single German submarine was sighted, it was reported.

The arrivals consisted mainly of troops and anti-aircraft and transport units. There were also hundreds of army technical experts and some army air force personnel.

5,000 Canadians At Dieppe

Casualties Ran 67 Per Cent. Ottawa Reveals

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (CP)—The defence department disclosed officially today that 5,000 Canadian Army troops, in addition to detachments from all arms and from the other services, took part in last month's Dieppe battle.

The statement was made in 4,000-word detailed statement on the operation.

"The Canadian military force involved," said the statement, "was composed basically of large elements of two brigades of the 2nd Canadian Division, commanded by Brigadiers W. W. Southam (of Toronto), and S. Lett (of Vancouver), and a battalion of the 1st Canadian Army Tank Brigade.

"The Canadian Army troops engaged comprised about 5,000 all ranks.

"In addition, detachments of all arms and services played essential parts in the operation."

Canadian troops involved at Dieppe suffered some 3,350 casualties—killed, wounded and missing. On the basis of the official information in today's statement it was indicated casualties ran 67 per cent of the Canadian soldiers who took part in the attack.

Scrape With Tanker Upset Dieppe Show

Kept Toronto Royals Late, Daylight Landing Failed To Take Heights Over Town

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—(CP).—Canada's heavy casualties in the Battle of Dieppe—some 3,350 killed, wounded and missing of a force of 5,000—were due in part to a chance encounter with an escorted German oil tanker during the English channel crossing, a statement from National Defence Headquarters said to-day.

The strength of the Canadian force which attacked the French coastal town on the morning of Aug. 19, was disclosed to-day for the first time. The statement, issued by the army last night for publication to-day did not give the number participating but the 5,000 figure was added later.

Beyond stating the raid was essential to the agreed aggressive policy of the United Nations the statement did not attempt to appraise the value of its results. It praise the value of its results. It but kept back the essential objectives and the extent to which they were achieved for reasons of military secrecy.

The encounter with the German tanker was described as the one mishap marring "complete achievement of surprise." The statement said the Germans had no information an operation against Dieppe was projected.

One armed enemy trawler was sunk and another probably sunk in the channel encounter but the incident had two important results on the later land operation:

1. The British No. 3 Commando Force which had the task of attacking and destroying a battery at Berneval, six miles east of Dieppe, was unable to complete its assignment.

2. The Royal Regiment of Canada from Toronto was 20 minutes late reaching the beach at Piuts, a mile east of Dieppe and had to land in broad daylight instead of semi-darkness.

No. 3 Commando Force was able to put ashore a small detachment which interfered with fire of the enemy battery at Puits, but that was all. The daylight opposition encountered by the Royal Regiment prevented clearing of a headland east of Dieppe, part of the plan to protect the main force, attacking the beaches at Dieppe itself, from enemy fire.

"The conduct of all ranks engaged at Dieppe was "beyond all praise," said the 4,000-word statement issued by defence Minister Ralston. Canadians gained valuable experience in combat and were now anxious for another contact with the enemy.

For reasons of military security the statement was silent as to the main objectives of the operation

French Fight At Tamatave

Few Warship Shells However Soon Stop It

LONDON, Sept. 18 — (CP). — A strong new British force has landed on the east coast of Madagascar and occupied the port of Tamatave after some French resistance, the British East Africa Command announced to-day.

Tamatave is 130 miles north-east of Tananarive, the island's inland capital, and the first British beach head on the east coast. The new landing came after the Vichy French colony had turned down the British terms for an armistice.

Both British and Vichy French radio reports from the island had announced the occupation of Tamatave, but the communique was the first disclosure it was taken by newly-landed forces rather than by an offshoot of the columns moving toward Tananarive through the interior.

Tamatave, Madagascar's principal commercial seaport, was said to have fallen into British hands with little damage although it underwent a brief naval bombardment. One of the main railways on the island links Tamatave to Tananarive.

Although earlier broadcasts said British forces entered Tamatave this morning after the Vichy French had withdrawn in the night, the communique said "an envoy sent ashore to secure peaceful occupation of the town was received with fire."

PLEASURE DRIVERS ALLOWED 16 UNITS OF GASOLINE UNTIL APRIL

Gas Reserve 20 Million Gals. Under '41, Says Howe As Subs Reduce Tankers

Minister Urges Cars Laid Up For Winter Warns All Using Fuel Oil For Heating Do So At Own Risk

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP).—Pleasure-motorists throughout Canada tightened their belts today and sat down to figure out how to make the best use of the remainder of their shortened gasoline rations announced last night by Munitions Minister Howe.

Over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Howe told Canadians just how far the level of gas and oil stocks in the country has dwindled due to "colossal" tanker losses in the battle of the Atlantic, and declared frankly:

"You must understand now, that when your coupon book is exhausted your motoring is finished until April 1 of next year."

Reserves of gasoline in Canada are about 20,000,000 gallons less than a year ago, Mr. Howe said, and stocks of crude oil and unfinished products are about 40,000,000 gallons less.

Mr. Howe said a new category—"AA"—has been devised for motorists who use their cars for non-essential purposes. He added that a number of motorists formerly in higher categories have been reduced to Class "A"—previously the lowest class.

The Munitions Minister said "AA" motorists with Class 1 cars (popular-priced models) will be allowed the following supplies for the 6 months' period, October 1 to March 31:

64 Gallons in Ontario.

As a gasoline unit is three gallons in the Maritimes, four in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, and five on the Prairies, this new ration would work out for the October 1-March 31 period to the following totals for "AA" motorists.

Maritime Province 48 gallons, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, 64 gallons; Maritime Provinces 80 gallons.

The 'A' motorist with the Class 1 car under the new restrictions is entitled to 60 units a year, and 30 units for the six-month period October 1 to March 31. This is almost double the "AA" allowance. The Class 2 car is allowed 34 units, and the Class 3 car 38 units.

For "A" drivers in Class 1, this would work out at 90 gallons in the Maritimes, 120 gallons in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia and 150 gallons in the Prairie Provinces.

Every coupon not used was a valuable contribution toward solving Canada's gasoline problem Mr. Howe stressed, urging motorists who do not need their cars to lay them up for the winter.

Mr. Howe also warned that everyone depending on fuel oil for heating this winter would do so at his own risk. He could give no assurance there would be sufficient oil for winter heating. If sufficient oil could not be brought into Canada, oil installations that could be converted to coal would be the first to be deprived of supplies.

MORE ABOUT—

Scrape With Tanker

and the important results achieved. I said a public discussion of the lessons learned would give information to the enemy.

But certain points of importance could be made, said the statement, and it outlined them as follows:

1. Crossing of the Channel by a large naval and air-escorted force and the fact that the naval force remained for many hours off the enemy-occupied coast was "a significant achievement";

2. Demonstration of the possibility of transporting and landing tanks was "important";

3. The Air Force was able to inflict a "very serious strategic reverse" on the enemy;

4. More limited and local objectives were achieved, including destruction of batteries and a radio location station, capture of prisoners, infliction of heavy casualties on the enemy, and sinking one and possibly two armed vessels.

Lessons Come High.

"For the lessons learned and the advantages gained the forces engaged, and particularly the land forces, paid a very heavy price," the statement said.

"The history of similar operations in the past serves to indicate that heavy losses are to be expected in amphibious operations of this type directed against a fortified coastline held by a determined and alert enemy.

"At Dieppe the losses suffered were probably due in part to the misfortune of the chance encounter with the escorted German tanker. Such small circumstances are often important in operations of this kind."

Describing preliminaries of the Dieppe operation, the statement said the use of the Canadian forces was approved by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer Commanding-in-Chief of the 1st Canadian Army after he "had satisfied himself that the objectives of the proposed operation were vital to the agreed offensive policy and that the means available were likely to be adequate to the task in hand."

Land force plans were directed by Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, the commander of the 2nd Canadian Division, and co-ordinated with the Chief of Combined Operations, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of a Canadian Corps in Britain.

Large elements of two brigades of the 2nd Division were given special training and exercises in landings under similar conditions to those anticipated at Dieppe and these units basically comprised the assault force.

Thanks to special precautions taken, it was believed the enemy had no information that a specific operation against the Dieppe area was projected.

Extra Hun Troops, Guns There.

The enemy, however, had been strengthening the French coast generally because of the avowed aggressive policy of the United Nations, and had recently brought additional troops and guns into the Dieppe area. The Germans on the coast were in what might be called "a state of general alert."

Dieppe, said the statement, has a harbor to the south and east of the town. There are beaches in front of the town but to the west and east are headlands fronting in cliffs where landings are not possible. A mile and a half to the east is a suitable landing beach at Pourville, and a mile to the west another at Puits.

The plan of operations called for: 1. Commando attacks on German batteries at Varengeville, five miles west, and Berneval, six miles east; 2. landings at Pourville by the South Saskatchewan Regiment, and at Puits by the Royal Regiment; 3. the main assault on the Dieppe beach by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry on the right and the Essex Scottish on the left, to be followed by the tanks of the Calgary Tank Battalion and the floating reserve, the Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

The Commando attacks on the outlying flanks were to prevent artillery fire on the main attacking force and the attacks at Pourville and Puits were to clear the headlands of German troops who would otherwise be in a position to fire down at the main assault force.

These operations were successful on the west but only partially successful on the east. The headland there was not cleared and this affected the success of the landings on the main beaches.

At Pourville the South Saskatchewan Regiment landed with little opposition and affected a bridgehead through which the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg passed and penetrated two miles inland.

Sea Scrape Keeps Royals Late.

The Royal Regiment was due at Puits at 4.40 a.m. but due to a change in course as a result of the chance encounter with the escorted tanker did not get there until 20 minutes later, in broad daylight.

"The enemy garrison at this point were manning formidable prepared defences, were well provided with machine guns and mortars and were on the alert," said the statement. "In consequence the Royal Regiment came under fire before landing and under very intense fire at the moment of touching the beach. Although the troops rushed to the attack through a deadly cross-fire with the utmost gallantry, the regiment suffered extremely heavy casualties and only a temporary lodgement was obtained."

The statement said the first wave of tanks was landed successfully at Dieppe and valuable knowledge gained. Some tanks penetrated the town but others did not get off the beach. The engineers worked gallantly but were unable fully to breach the seawall and some of the tanks could not cross it.

The difficulties of withdrawal after the raid were increased because the enemy succeeded in bringing a number of mobile batteries, mortars and additional infantry into operation. This enabled him to bring heavy fire on the beaches and sea approaches. Despite fighter cover, German dive bombers were able to make sporadic attacks on the ships.

The navy, however, went to the beaches again and again to take off the troops and many acts of gallantry were performed. The expedition returned to England under an umbrella of air force fighters which prevented any serious interference.

Praise for Navy, Air Force.

The statement spoke in glowing terms of the support given to the Army by the Navy and the Air Force—in both of which large numbers of Canadians were included—and described the demonstration of the efficacy of arrangements made for inter-service co-operation as one of the valuable results of the operation.

"The distinguished part played in these operations by both Canadian sailors and Canadian airmen has excited the warmest appreciation on the part of the Canadian Army," the statement said.

One flotilla of landing craft was manned almost entirely by Canadian naval personnel and many other Canadian naval officers and men served. In a hazardous rescue of some men of the Royal Regiment a Canadian and an English sailor sacrificed their lives.

Two Army co-operation squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force did excellent work in the air fighting and suffered losses. Canadian fighter squadrons were also in action and many Canadian airmen served in the Royal Air Force squadrons engaged.

Are Only Waging 50 Per Cent War Hepburn Says

LINDSAY, Sept. 18.—Faith with the men of Hong Kong and the men of Dieppe will be broken unless Canadians arouse themselves and their Government into a determination "to pursue a 100 per cent war against those who intend to destroy them," Premier Hepburn yesterday warned in opening the Lindsay Central Exhibition.

"You are the sovereign power," he told civilians, veterans and men of the armed forces who participated in the opening ceremonies. "Governments may come and go. I present these facts with the assertion that we are only waging a 50 per cent war and I am prepared to abide by your decision. I urge you I appeal to you, arouse this apathy that grips up and support our gallant soldiers with arms and material and a stiff moral backing on the home front."

Applause rippled from the stands when he advised: "Disregard the sugar-coated news that come from this Vichy crowd at Ottawa."

It came again, when he said: "There isn't a man around me now who believes that Canada is putting a 100 per cent. effort behind the boys who are making the sacrifice in the armed forces."

Later, the Premier met informally beretted members of the Sir Sam Hughes Post, Canadian Legion, and men from legion branches in nearby centres and a detachment of the Veterans' Guard. They gathered about him in the midfield and he told them: "There are no politics in my soul today. I put, and I ask you to believe me, my country ahead of every other consideration. The only thing that matters is winning the war. There can be no other consideration."

Fewer N.B. Potatoes

FREDERICTON, Sept. 18 (CP)—A New Brunswick potato crop of less than the yield of 9,560,000 bushels last year is predicted for this season by C. H. Godwin, of the Federal seed potato certification service. The decrease is attributed partly blight and drought.

Colonel William O. Eareckson, somewhere in Alaska, inscribes a fond message to "Tojo" on a huge bomb soon to be carried to the Aleutian Island of Kiska. The island has just been attacked by American bombing planes. Heroic members of the "Flying Tigers" air group, fresh from their battles in Burma, are carrying on from Alaska.

However they turned away as soon as we faced them.

Then we were away again, five feet off the water and weaving in order to see behind and above us. The luftwafef had other business in hand, however, and we were not bothered. Suddenly our leader called. "Climb, blue two. You're streaming glycol." One aircraft had been hit in the radiator, and the cooling fluid was pouring out in a white stream.

At that height the pilot wouldn't have had a chance to jump and a single-engine fighter isn't at all seaworthy. Before the engine stopped, the pilot gained about 1,000 feet, got out, and after what seemed an hour his parachute opened. 100 feet or so before he struck the water.

The rest of us circled the spot Rescue Service on the radio, and within 45 minutes he was in a navy launch, warmed by several stiff tots of rum, and on his way back to the squadron. The rest of the trip was uneventful.

Anyway I was scared silly. Since then I've found one always has a tension before the show actually starts. But once you started it disappears and is replaced by calmness ness born of confidence in the leaders the training, and particularly the aircraft.

ees to work, then she will be permitted to retain her 'A' category.

Flexible Rules

"No hard and fast rule will be followed. Each case will be dealt with on its own merits."

On October 1 the first batch of notices to motorists will be mailed from 12 regional offices across Canada. Each letter will require the recipient to mail or send in his Category "A" ration book within a week. If the old book is mailed in, the new book will be returned within about 48 hours. If it is taken into the regional office, the transfer will be made immediately.

Mr. Cottrelle said that if a motorist uses up all the coupons in his present book he will not get a new book of any kind. If the owner of a small car has less than 16 coupons in his Category "A" book when he turns it in, the number he is short will be torn from his new Category "A" book before he receives it.

The controller warned motorists not affected by the reduction and not in the commercial category that the gasoline ration books they now have must last them until March 31, 1943.

"If anyone is foolish enough to use up all his coupons, then he will buy no more gasoline," said Mr. Cottrelle. "This ruling will apply even if the motorist is engaged in an essential industry."

TORONTO POULTRY

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market is very firm, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Heavy receipts of chicken are not sufficient to take care of requirement, demand being exceptionally good. Arrivals are clearing without any trouble. Some dealers are advancing their buying prices for light weight chicken under 5 lbs. Receipts of broilers and light fowl are plentiful and clearing on arrival. There is no surplus. Quotations to producers and country shippers are evidently not high enough to attract them to the market here.

Frozen turkeys are in real good demand, and the local stock of top grade birds is getting low and being augmented by Western shipments. Out-of-town movement of poultry from the market is good and would be better if supplies available. Some of the military supply depots are now being supplied with this kind of poultry.

One car of turkeys arrived on Thursday from the Western provinces, costing for Grade A, 32c lb. and for Grade B 30c lb. One car of fowl arrived from the West early this week costing 32½c for Grade A, 5 lbs and up, with ½ cent lb. less on the ½ lb. average. Two cars of Western poultry are due to arrive next week, one car composed of turkeys A and B, at 32 and 30c lb; One car chicken and fowl costing, Chicken, B milk-fed 27½c lb., Grade B, 25¼c; Fowl, Grade A, 25c; also two cars of turkeys at 31½c lb. basis Grade A.

Dealers are quoting producers and country shippers:

Chicken.—Grade A milkfed over 5 lbs. 28 to 29c lb; 4 to 5 lbs. 26 to 27c; 3 to 4 lbs., 23c; Grade B milk-fed, over 5 lbs. 27 to 28c; 4 to 5 lbs. 25 to 26c; 3 to 4 lbs. 22c. Grade A, over 5 lbs, 26 to 28c; 4 to 5 lbs. 25 to 26c; 3 to 4 lbs, 22c; grade B over 5 lbs. 25 to 26c; 4 to 5 lbs, 24 to 25c; 3 to 4 lbs. 20c. Grade C over 5 lbs. 22 to 23c; 4 to 5 lbs. 21 to 22c; 3 to 4 lbs. 17c.

Fowl.— Grade A, 5 lbs and up, 22c; 4 to 5 lbs. 21c; 3-4 lbs. 18-19c. Grade B, 5 lbs and up. 20c. 4 to 5 lbs 19c; 3 to 4 lbs. 16 to 17c.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Action remained abnormally quiet on the Livestock Market at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. Offerings were still unusually light. With only 120 cattle out, all of which were lower grades with no good killers, there was still a holdover of about 300 at the close, thus indicating a slow piling up of limited available supplies.

A few butcher cows sold at $6.50 to $8.25; bulls, $9 to $9.50, and plain stockers, $8.50 to $9.50.

The few veal calves offered sold steady at $10.50 to $15.50.

Hogs sold at $15.50 dressed-weight and sows at $12.75 to $13 dressed.

No sheep were offered.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 120; calves, 10; hogs, 250; sheep and lambs, 70.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Trading in the wheat pit of Winnipeg Grain Exchange continued slow today with only one or two minor purchases. The October wheat future was unchanged at 90 cents a bushel. Chicago wheat was up slightly.

Trade in oats and barley was light and mostly local. Rye, however, forged ahead more than 1½ cents in renewed buying by Southern interests against sales at Chicago.

But it strikes me that we have to look even further back to find the basic reason why the Muscovites play their cards so close to their chests that even their friends can't kibitz.

For the greater part of the past quarter century the Soviet Union stood apart among the nations of the world because of the almost universal hostility towards the political doctrines of communism.

So the Reds hoed their own row, and nothing was more natural than that they should built a mighty barrier about themselves to the exclusion of a world which was fearful of Bolshevism. The secrecy which surrounded Russia, and still does, is one of the amazing phases of history, for the outside world has known little of what went on within her borders.

Proof of this lies in Hitler's misjudgment of the Soviet military strength. That wasn't strange, however, for as I have mentioned before, when I toured Eastern Europe just after Munich, I was told in every capital that Russia was impotent militarily, and couldn't wage war. The secret services of Germany and the other European countries are among the most formidable in the world. And yet even they couldn't penetrate the Red wall of secrecy.

Last Minute News

BERNE, Switzerland (AP)— The German News Agency Europa Press reported today that Italian police took special precautions at Rome's Littoria airfield Thursday for the arrival of Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy en route to Vatican City. The Nazi account said Mr. Taylor landed by plane from Barcelona and was driven by automobile "through enemy territory" to the Vatican.

Japs' Supply Depot Is Shot Up

Pour 35,000 Rounds Into Buna Dumps, Firing 15 Barges

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept 18.—(CP).—While Australian troops battled Japanese forces in the New Guinea jungles only 32 miles airline from Port Moresby, Allied fighter planes struck a smashing blow yesterday at the enemy supply base at Buna, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

Approximately 35,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire were loosed by the Allied raiders in a concentrated attack, destroying or damaging 15 landing barges and setting fires in supply ships which were visible for 25 miles, a communique said.

The assault obviously was delivered with a view to relieving pressure on the Australian forces locked in combat with the Japanese near the village of Ioribaiwa, on the southern slopes of the lofty Owen Stanley mountains.

The fighting in that area, which the Japanese reached Wednesday after a swift eight-mile advance, apparently had abated somewhat in intensity, the Allied communique describing the action as sporadic.

A spokesman at Allied Headquarters, however, said both sides were busily manoeuvring for position, and it appeared probable the lull would be short-lived.

Base 90 Miles From Lines.

The Japanese spearhead at Ioribaiwa is approximately 90 miles southwest of Buna, where the invaders established a base late in July. All the supplies to feed their overland push toward Port Moresby flow through that base, being brought there by ship from upper New Guinea or from New Britain.

The latter source of supply also was subjected to a new assault by Allied heavy bombers, which set fires visible for 30 miles in a sharp night attack on Rabaul, it was announced. Wharves were bombed, explosions were touched off in buildings and supply dumps and a number of enemy aircraft on the ground were destroyed, the communique said.

The assault was followed by an early-morning air attack.

Gasmata, another Japanese base on New Britain, also was bombed simultaneously with unobserved results.

There was no mention of any Japanese air activity anywhere in the New Guinea theatre with the exception of a hit-and-run raid on Port Moresby carried out by a single enemy plane under cover of darkness.

"There was little damage," the announcement said.

Analyzing the situation in New Guinea, F. C. Folkard Melbourne Herald war correspondent, reported to-day the terrain around Ioribaiwa lent itself readily to the infiltration tactics the Japanese have employed so successfull heretofore.

a broadcast after the announcer had shouted excitedly:

"Air-raid warning. Bulgarians keep calm."

The scare was aggravated by tension created by Russian protests over a raid which Bulgarian police allegedly made last Tuesday on the Soviet consulate in the Black sea port of Varna. The Moscow radio said a number of outrages had been committed, including the theft of consulate funds. Russia and Bulgaria still maintain diplomatic relations although Bulgaria is an Axis member.

There was only minor German air activity over Britain during the night. An official statement said a few enemy raiders dropped bombs at several places on the coast of East Anglia but caused no casualties and little damage.

There was no report of R.A.F. night activity over Germany.

Labor Congress Recommends C.C.F. Program

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor at its annual convention today recommended to its chartered and affiliated unions that they should study the program of the C.C.F.

The resolution containing the recommendation was passed with only one of the almost 400 delegates voting in opposition.

Clarence Gillis, C.C.F. Member of Parliament for Cape Breton South who is attending the convention as a delegate of the United Mine Workers, was one of those who spoke in the discussion on the resolution.

He said his party recognized that the Congress could not instruct its unions to affiliate and was taking a wise course in advocating study of the C.C.F. program. Canadian workers should send reinforcements to help the small group representing their interests in the Commons.

Every power that Labor enjoyed in collective bargaining had been usurped, and workers now were compelled to deal with war labor board. Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Labor Minister, was holding out a promise of collective bargaining legislation as "bait" in the event of an election, Mr. Gillis suggested.

(Mr. Heenan told the convention earlier in the week that he had been authorized to prepare compulsory collective bargaining legislation for presentation at the next session of the legislature).

A. R. Mosher, president of the Congress, in supporting the resolution suggested to the workers that they could accomplish most by taking "political action in fact instead of just in resolution." The unions should study the program of the C.C.F. and lay beside it other programs, "if there are any," of the other parties.

A suggestion from the convention floor that labor should enter the political field with its own party failed to gain support.

The preamble of the resolution stated that the C.C.F. "now has a nation-wide political organization and is uniting for common purposes the farmers and industrial workers of this country."

It was resolved that the convention "express its appreciation of the work done on behalf of labor by the C.C.F. members in parliament and that it recommends to its chartered and affiliated unions that they study thep rogram of the C.C.F."

Truck Blows Three Tires

PORT HOPE, Sept. 16 (ENS) — A truck travelling east, about two miles east of Port Hope early Wednesday had one of its tires blow, causing the vehicle to hit the north ditch, striking a farmer's culvert, which caused two of the remaining tires to blow and narrowly missed two large maple trees. Damage is estimated at $1,000.00. The driver, G. F. Bates, of Toronto, miraculously escaped injury.

Making Slippers From Felt Hats

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 18 (ENS) —Responding to the appeal for old felt hats that could be made into slippers for refugees, members of the Tabernacle Church W.A. brought several dozen hats which had seen better days to their meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Nearly every one of the twenty-five ladies brought in one or more old felts that had been stored away in the attic, and all will be put to more practical use as they are stitched into comfortable slippers. To assist the Campbellord and Seymour Branch of the Red Cross in their preparation of comfort bags, the Association decided to contribute towels, and in addition to this the quilt which was taken off during the afternoon will also be turned over to the Red Cross. It was announced that Mrs. Robert Stephens would loan her home for the October 21st meeting. The president, Mrs. E. J. Mitchell, presided.

Sewing Circle Meets

A completely filled comfort bag which they are turning over to the Rawdon Branch of the Red Cross was displayed before members of the Rylstone Red Cross Sewing Circle at their regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Ten members, who met at the home of Mrs. John Stewart, carefully examined the contents of the bag which they had helped to contribute. While a number of the ladies joined forces to complete a quilt during the afternoon others took their hand at sewing items which will form a part of a baby's layette which will likewise be turned over to the Red Cross. The president, Mrs. Everett Heath, was in charge of the business portion of the meeting during which it was announced they would gather at Mrs. S. G. Meiklejohn's in October.

Stanwood Sewing Circle

It is unlikely that any special supper or other entertainment will mark the anniversary services to be celebrated at the Stanwood United church on October 11th. This departure from the annual custom was announced following a meeting of the Sewing Circle at the Orange Hall on Wednesday afternoon. Although they discussed plans for both a supper and entertainment they were abandoned by members who felt they could contribute more to the war effort by so doing. There were eleven members at the meeting and during the afternoon they completed one quilt. The president, Mrs. Carmen Redden, presided.

28,251 Aussie Toll

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 18. —(CP).— Australian war losses include 28,251 missing in action or captured by the enemy, Army Minister Francis Forde announced today.

Of these 7,667 are known to have been captured in the Middle East, mostly in Greece and Crete, while 16,286 were taken prisoner or lost in Malaya.

Cardiff Farmer Bags 500-Pound Bear In Orchard

BANCROFT, Sept. 18—(ENS). — Mr. William Herbert Ayotte, farmer, aged 42, of the township of Cardiff, county of Haliburton, residing near Highland Grove, west of Bancroft some eighteen miles, sent his two sons, Joe, aged 10 years, and Nicolas aged 9 years, for the cows on the evening of August 7. The cows were in a nearby orchard some one hundred and fifty yards from the house. It wasn't long until both boys came running to the house telling their father that they had been chased by a prowling bear.

Mr. Ayotte grabbed his rifle and set off with the two boys in search of the animal, and although he covered the territory very minutely was unable to find any trace of the animal. The next night the farmer having a haunch that the bear might make a reappearance set off once more through the orchard with his rifle. About fifteen minutes after his arrival in the orchard he heard the brush cracking and presently bruin poked out into the clearance. Ayotte fired three shots before he brought the animal down. Mr. Ayotte stated that the bear appeared to be six or seven years old, and weighed close to five hundred pounds. He brought the pelt into Bancroft Tuesday evening, making application for bounty. Another bear appeared in their fields just last week but they were unable to kill it as it was too distant when sighted.

Miss Viola Woodcock of the village is suffering quite badly from burns received while she was engaged in preserving fruit. Miss Woodcock had her fruit nearly finished and was melting some paraffin wax on the stove when the wax in the can suddenly ignited, flaming upwards, burning Miss Woodcock on the hands, arms and face and even catching a part of her hair. Dr. S. S. Lumb of the village was summoned and rendered medical treatment.

Mr. William Davis of Papineau Lake, twenty-five miles northeast of Bancroft, lost his main barns, stables and drive sheds by a fire of unknown origin Sunday afternoon about five o'clock. Livestock was not stabled at the time but Mr. Davis lost most of his year's crop.

"A" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (R) under command of Lieutenant Alec Scott of Bancroft, demonstrated the importance of tactics used in field manoeuvres on Sunday when the Company made a complete day of it some miles on the outskirts of the village. After a co-ordinated scheme was put into action and carried out, the boys returned to their headquarters and received considerable practice with rifles and Lewis guns. They also received talks and demonstrations as to the assembling and dismantling of the guns. Dinner was served on the field.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Mather and family left Sunday morning for Finch, Ontario, where they are spending several days at the home of the latter's parents.

Sergeant Fred Delyea, an instructor with an eastern unit, returned Monday, having been on furlough leave with his family.

Engineers from Kingston are busily engaged at the local Armories in Bancroft partitioning off the present room and making the quarters much more efficient for "A" Company in which to carry on its work.

Mr. Jack Anderson, son of Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Anderson of town, left Wednesday morning for Belleville, where he will enter Albert College for another term.

Miss Winnie Thompson of Toronto returned home Thursday, having spent a two-week vacation with her sister Selina at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiggins of Bancroft.

Miss Aileen Plumley motored to Belleville on Tuesday.

Mrs. C. O. Fuller and Miss Patricia Fuller motored to Belleville on Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bracken of Toronto were in town Wednesday closing up their cottage on Trout Lake for the year, also calling on friends in town prior to their leaving on a further motor trip through the Algonquin Park.

Port Hopers Honor Former Chief Constable

PORT HOPE, Sept. 18 (ENS)—A presentation and social evening took place on Thursday, at the home of Horace Osborne, College Hill, by members of the Ex-Service Men's Club, and the former members of the Veteran Guards of Canada for Ex-Chief Constable Thomas Murphy, whose duties terminated on September 15, in Port Hope.

Some forty members of these clubs presented Chief Murphy with a silver cocktail set.

Transport Is Ditched

COBOURG, Sept. 18—(ENS). — About $3,000 damage to a transport was caused when the steering is said to have failed on a large transport four miles east of Cobourg yesterday. The westbound transport swerved over and plunged into the north ditch where the semi-trailer rolled over. It was badly damaged. The driver, E. Vickery of Toronto, was unhurt. Provincial Constable Gordon Broughton of Port Hope investigated.

Last night it was reported that a truck had struck the signal wig-wag at the Kingston Crossing just north of Cobourg, putting it out of commission.

Port Hope Boy Held Prisoner

TORONTO, Sept. 18.—At first listed as missing, Flying Officer P. K. Roper is now reported as a prisoner of war in Germany, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. P. K. Roper of 273 Indian Road.

FLYING OFFICER P. K. ROPER

The young officer was reported missing on August 23, and news that he is held as a prisoner of war came as a distinct relief to Mrs. Roper. A member of the R.C.A.F., Flying Officer Roper was attached to the R.A.F. in the Coastal Command He piloted a torpedo plane, his wife said.

The officer was born in Port Hope, where his mother, Mrs. W. H. Roper, resides. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in August, 1940, in Toronto. After receiving his wings at Moncton, N.B., in April, 1941, he proceeded overseas.

"I am very relieved and am certainly fortunate to receive the news so soon," exclaimed Mrs. Roper. "In some cases it takes several months for news concerning prisoners to come through."

Boys With Rifles Fire At Light Bulbs

COBOURG, Sept. 18—(ENS). — Chief of Police W. J. Carey has issued a stern warning to boys responsible for shooting with either B.B. guns or .22 rifles at the electric light bulbs in the town. The manager of the Public Utilities reports that it has been necessary to make too many replacements of bulbs which have been found shattered by some kind of gun. In one case the Utilities workmen have found the bulb not only shattered but a hole through the reflector, something which must have been caused by a .22 rifle. Most of the trouble has been due to air guns although there are instances where stones have been thrown to break the bulbs. At any time it is a serious offence, but with a war on, it becomes even more so, the manager of the Utilities points out.

"Anyone found shooting at bulbs will be punished very severely," Chief Carey warned.

Reducing The Liquor Bill

The petition which was sent to Ottawa by the General Council of the United Church asking for a reduction in the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks in Canada has fared better than most such petitions. It is to be considered by a committee made up of six Cabinet Ministers; these are Mr. Ilsley, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Mulock, Mr. Michaud, Mr. Crerar and Mr. Thorson as Chairman. The petition asked that the manufacture of intoxicating drinks be curtailed, that the amount of liquor released from bond for sale be curtailed, that liquor advertising be prohibited, shipments overseas prohibited, and a campaign of temperance education instituted. These demands from the governing body of a church with over two million adherents cannot be disregarded.

Some stress has been laid upon the assertion that this petition is not the first move in an agitation for prohibition, and we are very glad to hear this, for prohibition in Canada is a thoroughly discredited cause. It has been tried in some provinces and it has given rise to evils worse than those which it attempted to cure. Abraham Lincoln, who believed that prohibition was the enemy of temperance, also said: "It is a species of intemperance within itself, for it goes beyond the bounds of reason in that it attempts to control a man's appetite by legislation, and make a crime out of things that are not crimes." The demands of the United Church, compared with most requests in this field, are comparatively moderate.

And yet there is one thing which the gentlemen who have framed the petition seem not to understand. Announcing that Canada's liquor bill for a year is $250,000,000 (which is certainly a very intemperate sum) they point to the increase in this bill over a period of some years. As they never, or very infrequently, visit the liquor stores themselves they probably have not noticed the great increases in the price of liquor over that period. These are, we assure them, very steep, and they account for a great part of the rise in the liquor bill which they deplore. We do not deny that there has been an increase in drinking since the outbreak of war; there has been increasing irregularity in the conduct of some beverage rooms; some of the conditions arising from this increased drinking are deplorable. But we do not believe that the increase in drinking is primarily responsible for the rise of the liquor bill; the increased cost of drink, brought about by heavy taxation, has done that.

The money which comes from the liquor tax now must come from some other source if the sale of liquor is drastically curtailed. Mr. Ilsley cannot spare a penny at present, and what he loses on the swings he will certainly make up on the roundabouts. The man who buys his glass in the beverage room and his bottle at the vendor's pays the tax without too much grumbling. Will the general public, including the advocates of temperance, be willing to bear further taxation in order that he may be denied that privilege?

This paper has stated its advocacy of temperance (and its strenuous objection to prohibition) more than once recently. Conditions at present are not satisfactory and we will support any reform move which appears to us to be moderate and sensible. The balance between abuse of the liquor traffic and restrictive, puritanical legislation, however, is difficult to observe. The tendency of temperance groups is often to treat all drinking as though it were excessive drinking, and that is what we object to most strongly in their activities.

One word more. If the petition of the United Church bears fruit, and if an educational campaign for temperance is set in motion, would it not be a good idea to enlist the services of some really temperate men as speakers? In the temperance campaigns which we have witnessed, the speakers fall into two categories—total abstainers and reformed drunkards. We maintain that no total abstainer can speak with authority on either the evils or the delights of wine, for he has never experienced them; a reformed drunkard is a man who, having been immoderate in one direction, has become immoderate in another. Neither of these types is useful example to the ordinary man. A temperance campaign, to be really effective, must be carried on by men who are moderate drinkers.

An Encouraging Sign

Nazis are Fascists, but not all Fascists are Nazis. The Croix de Feu party which flourished in Republican France was a Fascist party, and its head was Marshal Petain. But apparently the Croix de Feu cannot collaborate successfully with the Nazis, and cannot stomach Pierre Laval's toad-eating tactics, for its leader Charles Vallin, has fled to London to join the Fighting French.

Without being an occasion for uproarious rejoicing this is an encouraging sign. The Croix de Feu was estimated before the fall of France to have a million members, and it supported Petain at a time when it appeared that he would oppose the Germans. Vallin's flight may be taken as evidence that the Croix de Feu is no longer solidly behind Vichy and his alliance with the Free French bears out a statement made by one of their spokesmen that "we are receiving men of all parties as long as they agree on one essential—to fight the Germans." The presence of Vallin in the ranks of the Fighting French may strengthen the resolve of his comrades of the Croix de Feu who still remain in France. The path of Vichy grows more stony every day, and the determination of the French to free themselves waxes apace.

Opera In Montreal

With envy in our hearts we congratulate Montreal on its opera season, which began last night. The smaller cities of Canada cannot afford such pleasures; our capital cannot even support a legitimate theatre; only in Montreal and Toronto do the bright lights shine, and this season Montreal is particularly blessed, for it is to be visited by a company from the Metropolitan Opera of New York.

Everyone who listens to the winter broadcasts from the Metropolitan will recognize the names of the stars who will appear in Montreal during the next week: Grace Moore, Lawrence Tibbett, Richard Crooks, Ezio Pinza, Giovanni Martinelli, Bidu Sayao, John Charles Thomas, Jan Peerce, Helen Jepson, Gladys Swarthout, Kerstin Thorborg and the great comedian, Salvatore Baccaloni, will all be there. Any city in the world might be proud to be visited by such a group.

They will, of course, play the hackneyed old works which all opera companies, great and small, play all over the world. La Boheme, Rigoletto, Carmen, Faust, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci grouped together — sometimes the opera-goer must wonder that the singers do not go crazy from the intolerable monotony of their reportoire, for great as these works are they are done to death.

Thanks to radio hundreds of thousands of people have heard the great works of the opera repertoire where fifty years ago only a few hundreds on this continent knew them. But to hear an opera is somehow unsatisfactory; it must be seen to be enjoyed fully. We in the smaller cities of Canada must be content to hear only for another century or so; perhaps then the Metropolitan will visit us. Meanwhile we must take what vicarious pleasure we can from the fact that is is visiting Montreal.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

ONTARIO'S food basket seems to be full and running over. After the heavy crop of hay was taken off it looked as though wet weather had delayed and hindered the corn crop for ensilage so it would come short of filling many of the silos, but as other fodder crops were heavy this was causing no worry.

We now find, however, that ensilage corn has grown rapidly with the advent of hot days and as I drove across Oxford and Middlesex counties I found a remarkably good crop of corn. The fields are showing a very even crop and quite heavy with cobs of an extra-ordinary size. A good deal of it is hybrid corn which, though not so high as we used to see it many years ago, carries plenty of large cobs which will make first class ensilage, much better feed than the old varieties which used to be grown.

Ontario's corn crop now looks like making a very heavy addition to the excellent hay crop, and farmers who are milking cows will likely be able to produce milk, cheese and butter in unheard of quantities in the dairy counties of Ontario. So far as cattle feed is concerned this year it surely looks as though, "To him who hath shall be given." The grain crop added to the forage crops will make the production of beef one of the best in years.

I was through a field of mangels in Middlesex and the field roots seem to be rivalling the corn crops in heavy production. Mangels being good feed for wintering brood sows, excellent feed for young cattle and dairy cows, this crop will add to the production of the food most needed in this crisis of the war. It is true that shipping makes it difficult for this continent to render its full quota of necessary food, but with better methods guarding against submarines, it is very gratifying to know that Canadian farms will outdo their expected production this year, and that whatever the war emergency may be, we will stand ready to furnish food in increasing quantities to the fighting forces who are defending Allied countries and are now carrying the war to the very doors of the enemies of civilization.

IN THE southwestern part of Ontario there is a considerable tract of country which produces corn for grain, or as they term it, "corn for husking." Last year saw a very heavy crop of corn harvested for this purpose. This year, however, the early part of the season indicated that wet cool weather might lower the production. This, like the other crops, seems to have disappointed all the prophets of partial failure, and hog and cattle feed in this province will be increased by shelled corn to an extent which is likely to exceed all former instances. That the corn will be bursting the bins is the present prospect.

Sugar beets in the Wallaceburg district promise an excellent yield. Lack of help prevented the seeding of as many acres as have been planted before, but a number of people who came from Central Europe just before the outbreak of the war, and who have a good deal of help in their own families, have remarkable crops. Some people who sold land to a few of them say the mortgages are being paid off much sooner than either party to the deal expected.

Some of the market gardeners in this district are selling vegetables at a good price and some of the yields and prices are very satisfactory. Military camps are heavy consumers of some of these vegetables which means ready sale and fair prices for the growers.

At the time of writing, Labor Day, it is scarcely clear yet what is to happen to the cattle trade at the Toronto Yards. If the announced price ceilings are to prevail it is not likely many cattle will come to market until after the end of September. Grass is good and cattle will put on some weight this month. We have a price ceiling on beef, but no price ceiling on feeder cattle, which are the raw material for making beef. It would seem that the ceiling fixers need to learn something about cattle.

REPORTS from Britain are that excellent crops are being harvested there. Last year showed an excess of potatoes, and there was some loss as the surplus was not shifted quickly enough to feed hog and cattle. It was better to have a surplus than to be like Germany wanting them. Without any doubt British farmers have outdistanced the German farmers in increased production of food for their people and feeding stuffs for livestock. Science in agriculture has been called upon in Britain for its best efforts and has responded in remarkable fashion. New schools of agriculture have been established in the Old Land since the war began and every effort has been made for an all out accomplishment in agricultural research, that the land may increase its production and yet preserve its fertility so that famine will not have the slightest threat for the people of Britain, or the soldiers of the Allies who make Britain their base in their war efforts.

The British Minister of Agriculture is urging an increased acreage of rye in England and Northern Ireland for 1943. This crop should be seeded, Mr. Hudson says, on light soil which would not give a very good yield of wheat. Rye is regarded as a valuable crop as it can be used for human food and also for certain industrial purposes. An acreage bonus of £3 per acre will be paid to growers of rye in 1943. No payment will be made for green rye as fodder. It is estimated that on a yield of 25 bushels to the acre of rye the crop will bring bring a little over $2.25 per bushel. Strong land fit for wheat will not be sown to rye as it will be more profitably occupied in growing wheat.

A compulsory scheme for cow testing and milk recording is being proposed in England. The necessity for retaining only profitable cows in milk production during the stress of war is pushing the dairy farmers on to the necessity of knowing what cows should not be retained in the herd. Some of the milk recording societies closed up after the war began only to find that they were dispensing with the only accurate method they had for determining what cows were a liability in the strenuous efforts now being put forth to keep so valuable a food as milk up to the quantities necessary to preserve the health of the British people. Compulsory testing will only be brought about by the necessity of keeping the people of Britain up to the grim job they now have on hand. The extraordinary necessity for pails and scales to do the job will be difficult to overcome at present, so that while a complete system of milk recording for all the keepers of cows may be impossible there will likely be some steps taken toward that end.

Hun Seen After Manganese

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

THERE are new factors in the battle of Stalingrad, now in the street-fighting stage, which could foil Hitler's indicated hope of announcing capture of the city within a few hours even if its probable early fall cannot be denied.

Both Berlin and Moscow have stressed the share Nazi dive-bombers have had in breaking through Soviet defenses. But air effectiveness in the hand-to-hand fighting in city streets must diminish if not vanish. Friend as well as foe could be the dive-bomber victim.

It is a man-to-man, gun-to-gun, grenade-to-grenade affair in a house-to-house combat. The courage and daring of individuals, soldiers or civilians, fighting for ther own hearths comes to ts supreme test in such close action. There can be no lack of that in Russian ranks.

Yet by every rule of war experience Stalingrad's endurance must be regarded as numbered in days, if not hours. And with its seemingly impending fall much may be revealed as to Hitler's intentions or those of his Japanese accomplice. For if Japan ever is to strike at Russia or elsewhere in Hitler's aid, now would seem to be the time. The loss of so powerful a Russian and United Nations protective bulwark for vital supply lines and so important and modern a war arsenal as Stalingrad could not fail to have some dismal repercussions in Russia and in all the United Nations.

Whether Stalingrad can or will prove worth its cost to Hitler or the Axis must depend largely on its place in his grand war strategy. It is obviously supremely important to him, apparently much more important for some reason than its actual or potential strategic position can yet explain.

To attain Stalingrad, he has poured out the blood of other people's children, dipped deep into his reserves of oil and armor and left his own war industries and cities open to both Russian and British bombing. He faces another winter in Russia on vastly extended, not contracted lines. And all to take Stalingrad. Why?

This observer cannot say. Many theories have been advanced, including that of a correspondent in Oklahoma who wrote recently that lack of manganese rather than lack of oil was the basis of the Nazi campaign. He had heard that the Stalingrad region was rich in manganese deposits and that the lack of that metal to harden his war steel was Hitler's most urgent need.

Inquiry reveals that the greatest manganese deposits in Southern Russia are not around Stalingrad, but in the Caucasus range far to the south. There have come now in the American press reports from Russia that it is manganese, not oil, that Hitler seeks in those rugged mountains.

If that is true, possession of Stalingrad to anchor a Nazi winter front along the Don and Volga may be vital to Hitler. Without that eastward bulge to the Volga to protect it, his thrust down the Rostov-Baku railroad and along the northern flank of the Caucasus range where the managanese deposits lie would be exposed.

Yet if it is manganese in the Caucasus range even more than oil Hitler is driving to attain, it would be a highly encouraging thing for his foes. It would mean that the twin nerves of his war effort ashore, afloat or in the air, oil and steel, are both worn raw by the three-year struggle. It would mean that the blockade policy of Britain from the start of the struggle is taking effect increasingly and just how seriously only the Germans know.

Lack of a single cargo of manganese when the naval collier Cyclops disappeared en route from South America during the first Great War with that essential ore all but stymied American war steel production. It had to be replaced with manganese borrowed from Britain to keep the war mills crunching.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (CP)—Shipment of Canadian wheat to Russia takes on added significance in view of a widespread belief here that Russia faces a threat of famine this winter.

It has been estimated that Russia has lost 40 per cent of her food-producing regions to the Germans, including more than 50 per cent of her wheat acreage. The Russians, it is realized here, will require every pound of food that Canada, the United States and, to a lesser extent, Britain, can ship her this winter if famine conditions are to be averted. The Middle East and Africa may also contribute food but the bulk may have to cross the North Atlantic.

The Japanese have started to add armor to their Zero fighter which up to now, because it has had no protecting steel for the pilot, could climb and manoeuvre faster and more easily than American fighter planes in the South Pacific, particularly the P-40. In many instances Japanese pilots, to conserve the last ounce of weight, did not carry parachutes.

The Zero was a dead duck whenever it was hit in a vulnerable spot but it was tough to catch. American pilots, flying slower ships, have made up the difference in better training, deadlier shooting and tactical superiority but back in Washington there has been an ever-increasing wail because some American fighter planes are not standing up to world competition.

Liudnila Pavlichenko, the Russian girl guerilla and sniper, officially credited with killing 309 Nazis, may go to Canada to take part in the next Victory Loan campaign. The United States Army Air Force, taking to heart the lessons of the Battle of Crete, is using a glider designed to carry 15 men with full equipment and a smaller one with a nine-man load.

It must be a record. There are nine staff members, four secretaries and one telephone girl in the press division of the office of censorship. They handle censorship for all United States newspapers on an annual budget of $140,000. Washington has never seen anything like it and still doesn't believe it's possible.

Remembering what happened to the Versailles Peace Treaty after the Democrats lost control of Congress in 1918, leading to United States isolation and President Wilson's premature death, the Democrats are leaving no stones unturned in preparation for the November Congressional elections. The odds favor them retaining control of both Houses.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's health is much improved but he still takes things easy, that is, easy for him....The United States still buys gold to bury in the ground at Fort Knox, Ky., and one of the reasons is that to end the practice might have serious political and economic repercussions in many of the United Nations, including South Africa....

Illustrating what is meant by "Washington, hubbub world"; they say that any girl can get a job here as a government stenographer who can enter a room containing a typewriter, a washing machine and a Garand rifle and successfully pick out the typewriter.

Current Parlance

A Beverly Hills family is so war-minded that instead of calling their 14-year-old daughter a sub-deb they call her a near miss.

Incidentally, do you know why near misses are mentioned in reports of naval engagements? Often a near miss does more damage than a hit, just as sometimes a sprain does more damage than a break. A near miss may give a ship such a shock that seams bulge and the vessel is in need of complete overhauling.—Lee Shippey, in the Los Angeles Times.

A Bible Message For Today

And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him: And out of the ground the Lord God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Adam caled every living creature, that was the name thereof. And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field; but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man.—Gen. ii, 18-23.

Offensive

It is extremely regrettable that when the official and general relationships between Canada and the United States are so friendly, and when the two nations are working so amicably in cooperation with one another and with Great Britain in the serious business of battling for our existence, that this kind of perverted publicity should be placed before hundreds of thousands of theatre-goers from Halifax to Victoria. If the big motion picture interests across the border desire to mislead their own people by putting lines with the pictures that unfairly minimise the part played by a neighboring country and unduly magnify the part taken by their own, that is their business, of course, even though it is bad taste. Canadian audiences, however, should not have to be treated to this kind of propaganda. It arouses, quite naturally, a patriotic resentment which is making itself vocal.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

The Unknown One

It is the pilot instructor who takes the fledgling air student and gives him his first dual time in the air, nurses him into confidence in his ship and eventually sends him off solo—with a pat on the back, and a cold lump of ice in his own heart. The instructor dies a thousand deaths until his solo pupil returns, and then he takes him in hand again to turn that embryo confidence into an assured knowledge and the real thing. On every airfield in Canada that has been going on for many months now, yet the general public could not name five instructors between Victoria and Halifax. Nor is there any lack of public sympathy or of interest in that, because the names of these men have seldom, if ever, been mentioned. Ask the young pilots, however, how it is that they received their wings—the broad double wings of man who can fly an airplane—and they will give the credit where it is rightfully due: to their instructors, nameless and unknown.—Victoria Colonist.

Intolerable In War

Canada knows that a strike is not necessary. Canada knows that a just settlement can be arranged, and feels strongly that it must be arranged. Canada is confident that the government machinery of the Dominion is able and anxious to grant any fair claim and equality to resist one that is ill-founded. At all times, Canada deprecates strikes, but finds them intolerable in wartime. In plants across the border where wage disputes threatened stoppage of output, the Government has taken them over and operates them. Canada will support Ottawa in any action necessary to continue war production.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Over 100 Answer As The Grove Opens 67th Term

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 19 — (ENS) — Boys from all Canada, United States, South America, the West Indies and England rallied to the number of over one hundred as The Grove school opened its portals for its 63rd year and called the roll.

It was the same old school in its setting of pines and stately maples looking down over the Katchewanooka, the interior was extensively renovated and decorated, but the scene was the same—rugby field new mown, bright green—reds and golds of autumn—tinted maples stirring aside in a warm breeze to show dinghy waters—familiar masters' faces—and new ones—school days had begun.

G. Winder Smith, head master will handle mathematics; Thomas Crawford, English; Stanley Rickard, science; the Rev. S. A. R. Wood, chaplain and Latin; Hubert Eisdell, music master, organist and instructor in the junior school—a new master, Charles F. Furse of Montreal, mathematics and some junior instruction, three other new masters to come inside the next week or so will handle French, history and general instruction in Junior school. A former Old Boy comes back in the person of Christopher Kirby of Barrie and will handle physical training in the new defence course and coach with some of the athletics.

Chief Petty Officer George Lee, D.S.M. continues as instructor in seamanship and in this department the school has received from H.M.C.S. York, District Naval headquarters, two five-banked racing gigs carrying up to a dozen boys The boats are 25 feet in length and will be used in the naval cadet instruction. Another welcome addition during the past summer was two dinghies from an anonymous friend, the boats to be delivered shortly, increasing the fleet to 11.

Opening day saw the usual number of homesick boys, but a little lad of eight reversed the procedure. He and his mother had motored up from Caesarea with his brother 12—goodbyes had been said and the return journey made as far as Peterborough when "Age 8" decided he wanted to go to school with big brother. Yes, he was sure of it—so, he went back and The Grove added another name to the roster.

A Special Coach Load

During the afternoon, 46 lads arrived via special C.N.R. coach under the supervision of Thomas Crawford, with a brief stop at Lindsay while a detachment of the R.C.A.F. detrained at the fair. This year also saw many of the parents coming for the opening by train, direct result of the rationing of tires and gasoline.

A larger number than usual of boys enrolled from Ottawa and Montreal, many from homes broken up through parents being in the army or other branches of the service.

During the summer several boys were unable to get home to South America, West Indies and the British Isles due to lack of wartime transportation—one boy who resides in British Columbia managed to make it home then worked all summer and saved up enough for his tuition another year.

All boys have been cautioned regarding care of the school equipment due to rationing in most lines making replacements difficult. In the same rationing vein the gas ban will see less inter-school sports with rugby and hockey confined to class teams and competition with village squads.

Boys over 12 will take part in cadet instruction with emphasis on seamanship, and more woodcraft and water sports than usual.

The rugby coach will likely be Kipper Kirby with the able assistance of Headmaster Smith. No teams have been chosen yet and though the teams are apt to be light there is considerable promising material on hand.

Next Wednesday is a red letter day—the annual picnic and boat trip up through the lakes when the boys will get a glimpse of the Kawarthas in all their glorious fall raiment as the Stoney Lake cruises among the hundreds of islands, with a shore dinner a feature.

Fire Watchers, Wardens Still Needed

Air raid wardens and fire watchers who missed the lectures in the spring on their duties are being given the opportunity to hear them, when the lectures for the newly signed wardens and fire watchers are to be given in the next two weeks. The lectures are to be held at the Lyceum Hall on Tuesday, September 22, and Tuesday, September 29, at 8 p.m. on both dates. The lectures are to be given by Lt.-Col. M. R. Sloan, Chief Warden, Lt. Col. T. Dalton Johnston Deputy Chief Warden and Major Hurrell Dodds, Divisional Warden of No 5 Division.

In addition to the wardens, the A.R.P. Police Service under P.C. Archie Menzies, whose duties fall in very closely with the wardens, will also attend. A large number of wardens attached to the various factory A.R.P. organizations will also atend to obtain the general idea of wardens duties as they also apply to their factories.

The lectures themselves will be split into parts with the first night's work covering "Organization of the Wardens," "What a Warden Must Know," "Standing Orders" and "Air Raid Warning Signals." The lecture of the 29th will embrace "Wardens' Duties During an Air Raid," "Wardens' Reports and Communications" and "Sector Notes."

Some wardens and a large number of fire watchers are still needed in some of the districts, and any man or woman who is interested in the protection of Peterborough from air raids are given a cordial invitation to attend on the first Tuesday and sign up for this vital work. The need is urgent as the war has been brought much closer to the shores of Canada in the past twelve months, and Peterborough with its numerous war plants would be an inviting object to enemy air raiders.

Bishop Listens In On Fight —And Wishes

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP Cable).—Air Marshal William A. Bishop talked today to Canadian fighter pilots just back from a sweep over France and told them, "I wouldn't mind changing places with you."

The air ace of the First Great War, paying his first visit to the Canadians since he arrived in Britain from the Dominion recently, met pilots and ground crew members of a squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Norman Bretz, D.F.C., Toronto. That squadon damaged two Nazi aircraft during the morning's action.

He climbed into a Spitfire to listen to the pilot's account of the fighting and said, "I'd rather be sitting here in the cockpit of this Spitfire than stuck behind a desk. However, I guess I'm stuck on the ground for good now."

Then he went to the ground crews and told them, "You boys must never forget for a moment that your job is just as important as the job of those who do the actual flying. We just couldn't run an air force without you. Don't ever forget that and don't get discouraged because you can't fly. You are doing an extremely essential job."

He Listens In

The story of fighting which Bishop heard was one of action that started at 27,000 feet when the Canadians spotted a small formation of enemy aircraft immediately above them.

Flt. Lt. D. G. Malloy of Toronto who was leading the formation, promptly began to climb and engage the enemy. The Germans peeled off into a steep dive and PO. George Keith of Tabor, Alta., followed one down, his cannon blazing. Black smoke began to pour from the Focke Wulf 190, and Keith claimed a damage.

Meanwhile, a Messerschmitt 109 was preparing an attack on Keith's plane from the rear, but Malloy spotted the Nazi in time to warn Keith to take evasion action. While this was going on, Sgt. E. J. Ross of Montreal noticed two Focke Wulf 190's "stooging around." Ross flew in to attack and opened fire when travelling at right angles to one German's line of flight, turning until he was almost on the enemy's tail.

"I could see cannon shells going home," he said.

This enemy plane went down with smoke pouring from its engine and also was claimed as damaged.

Earlier in the day Bishop visited a squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Hodson of London, Ont., arriving just as the aircraft were circling overhead, returning from a sweep.

He wound up his day's activities with a visit to the Army Co-operation squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. R. F. Begg of Vancouver.

Price Control Keeps Ceiling Close To 1941's

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—(CP)—Without knowing it, Canada just a year ago began laying the foundations of the price control legislation which has been effective since December 1.

The prices charged throughout the Dominion in the period from September 15 to October 11, 1941, are basically the ceilings on costs which have to be borne by the average Canadian in the business of living.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said today that in general the ceiling holds, although in some cases adjustments had to be made to meet special circumstances and to ensure adequate supplies would be available.

Statistics of retail costs showed how prices have been levelled out by the price control legislation. The nearest comparison available between the prices of last year and those of the present year was shown in a table of average retail prices in 69 Canadian cities on September 1, 1941, and on August 1 this year.

A pound of lard in 1941 cost 16.2 cents, and in 1942, 16 cents. Between August 1 and September 1 last year the price of lard rose by 2.2 cents from 14 cents, but in the 11 months to August 1 this year it declined .2 cents.

A dozen grade "A" eggs cost 42.1 cents on September 1 last year and 39.8 cents on August 1 this year. Between June and September last year, their price had risen almost five cents a dozen.

The 1942 price of milk was up slightly, averaging 12.1 cents a quart in August this year against 11.7. Butter was down almost three cents at 38.7 cents a pound, but cheese was almost six cents higher at 34.6 cents.

Bread in August was down a fraction of a cent at 6.5 cents a pound, against 6.8 on September 1, 1941. Flour was stationary at ^.6 cents a pound, and rolled oats were up .4 cents at 5.7 cents a pound.

Sugar Unchanged.

The sugar price was unchanged at 8.6 cents a pound but black tea was higher at 84.9 cents a pound against 77.2 cents. Coffee had risen .2 cents at 47.9.

A shoulder of beef in August this year cost an average of 25.4 cents a pound against 20.9 on September 1 in 1941, but officials noted that under the sliding scale of wholesale prices permitted, beef costs are going down at present and soon will be at 1941 levels. A pound of sliced breakfast bacon this year cost 43.8 cents against 43.1 cents in 1941.

Prices board officials said comparison with August prices did not give the complete picture as some adjustments in prices occurred between September 1 and September 15 last year, while the ceiling prices were actually based on the highest rates charged between September 15 and October 11 and adjustments in that period had also to be taken into account.

"A comparison between December 1 prices in 1941 and 1942 will give an even better indication of how the price ceiling is working to protect the consumer," an official said.

Donald Lloyd Sentenced To Eight Months

Donald Lloyd, 28-year-old Lakefield car salesman, was sentenced to eight months definite and three months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory by the Hon. Mr. Justice Wilfrid Roach, presiding at the Supreme Court Sittings in Peterborough on Thursday. Lloyd faced three charges of fraud, but Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court he was offering no evidence on the third charge when Lloyd pleaded guilty to the first two.

On June 15 Lloyd was sentenced to one year on similar charges but was granted bail on July 15 pending appeal of the sentence which was reduced to six months by the Court of Appeal a few weeks ago, and he returned to jail September 6 to complete his sentence. Judge Roach handed down the new sentence to run concurrently from September 6, with the sentence he is already serving, which means he will serve just about two months longer on the additional charges, or a total of eight months all told.

Cecil G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay appeared on Lloyd's behalf and explained to the court that Lloyd had a wife and four children and was a brilliant salesman. "During the course of his business he sold a great number of cars and found it necessary to finance himself. He did this through the Consumer's Finance Company, and I am submitting that there was considerable carelessness by both parties," Mr. Frost stated.

The first charge dealt with a sale of contract for a Pontiac car supposed to be purchased by James R. Thompson of Lakefield for $535.00. This contract was assigned to Consumer's Finance Company for $535.00 and Lloyd was given $279.50 in cash, and the balance applied on debts which he owed the company. When the finance company set out to collect the payments on the car they discovered there was no such person as Thompson, and no such car.

The second charge was similar in nature, and concerned a car supposed to have been purchased by Harry Spiker for $500.00. This was a Mercury sedan. In this case, too, when the finance company tried to collect the monthly payments they could not locate Mr. Spiker, and found the car license given belonged to a car owned by an Oshawa man.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who defended Lloyd last June and who was successful in his appeal, sat in with Mr. Frost in an advisory capacity during the hearing on Thursday.

Judge Roach, after hearing the outline of the case, told Lloyd that the business had become unwieldy because of lack of proper book-keeping, and as a result Lloyd became involved in a frenzy of financing.

Child Finds Life In England Dull

In a hands-across-the-sea gesture, Edward Hillier, son of Mrs. A. Hillier and Pte. Hillier, 178 Lansdowne street, received a letter from 12-year old Pamela Irving, England, who met his father in the recreation grounds in Billingshurt.

After seeing the pictures of Edward, his mother and sister, Pamela asked if she could write to Edward and when given permission sent an interesting little letter. She explained that she used to live in London, but after war was declared she was evacuated to Rickmansworth. With the usual English calmness Pamela insisted that Edward would find things very dull there for "nothing ever happens in England."

The little English girl says she would love to visit Canada, and the thing she thinks she would enjoy most, is the long summer holidays that Canadian children have.

"Our daily life is very boring," Pamela declares, "and we are in the dullest part of the country. It is too much like town life to be interesting. I love reading and next to that my favorite studies are geography and art. We have seven lessons a day, one of which is French.

Apparently the usual English weather was prevailing when the letter was written, because the writer mentions the changeable variety of rain and sunshine. Pamela signed off with a breezy cheerio to her Canadian friend and expressed a wish to hear more of Canada and Canadians. The younger generation has the right idea of international friendships.

Favor Faculty Of Divinity For McGill U.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 18 (CP)—A proposal by Dr. G. G. Kilpatrick, United Theological College, Montreal, that a Faculty of Divinity be created in McGill University was unanimously endorsed by United Church General Council Commissioners here yesterday.

The staff of an initial faculty of 10 will be drawn from the three colleges teaching theology, four from the United College, three from the Anglican College and three from the Presbyterian College.

Dean of the Faculty will be appointed by McGill University, nominations for the appointment coming from committees of the three colleges involved.

In presenting his report, Dr. Kilpatrick said the initiative to create the new faculty came from the University and not from the church. He said the relations of the three colleges to their various communions would be unaffected and that each college would be assessed an agreed annual amount for maintenance of the faculty.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

This column mentioned yesterday the pronounced St. Louis knack of pulling games out of the fire at the eleventh hour. The Cards demonstrated that faculty again yesterday and their fighting spirit was rewarded by a ninth-inning victory over the Boston Braves. Meanwhile the Pittsburg Pirates were nosing out the Brooklyn Dodgers 3 to 2 and as a result the Cards are three games out in front and looking more and more like the 1942 National League champions. They have only eight games to play while the Dodgers have ten in hand and a three game lead at this stage is a mighty tough obstacle to overcome especially for a club that is wavering as badly as the Bums have been doing in recent weeks. St. Louis were down when they went to bat in the ninth inning of their game with Boston yesterday but they staged one of their characteristic rallies to score five runs and take the decision 6 to 4. Johnny Beazley started for the winners and Javery for the Braves but neither was in there at the finish. Sewell was the principal cause of Brooklyn's defeat. The Pirate pitcher held the Dodgers to eight scattered hits and two runs while the Corsairs drove Ed Head out of the game by scoring three times in the first two innings and that good start was enough to win for them.

* * * * * *

In the other National League games yesterday the Cubs swamped the Phillies 8 to 0. The tail-enders used a rookie pitcher and apparently the hardest thing about him was his name—Lapsihuska. And the New York Giants with Feldman turning in a five-hitter swamped the Cincinnati Reds 11 to 1. In the American League the chief feature of interest was the fact that Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox became the second American League pitcher to hit the 20-wins mark, as Boston triumphed over the St. Louis Browns 5 to 1 with Galehouse the losing pitcher. The champion Yanks with Atley Donald pitching defeated Detroit 7 to 4, Joe DiMaggio supplying the winning margin with a three-run homer.

On The Right Path

The statement of Wing Commander Kendrick of the Eglinton Training School, R.C.A.F., that although Tony Golab, Sarnia and Ottawa star, and Bobby Coulter, formerly of the Argos, are training with the Air Force there is no chance of them being shifted to Toronto to make them available for the R.C.A.F. football squad has a wholesome ring. It indicates beyond a doubt the Air Force heads realize, as Wing Commander Kendrick admitted in his statement, that the concentration of the famous Kraut line of the Boston Bruins at Ottawa to enable the Ottawa R.C.A.F. win the Allan Cup was an unfortunate mistake. Golab and Coulter are taking their operational training outside the Toronto area and there is no intention of interfering with that program, a policy that the public will approve just as heartily as the hockey move last winter was condemned. The decision of the Air Force that the war and military training must come first is thoroughly sound. As Wing Commander Kendrick put it, "The R.C.A.F. does not want another of those Schmidt-Bauer-Dumart cases."

* * * * * *

Down in Belleville however Sport Scribe Ken Colling has it—although he's probably mistaken in view of the official statement—that all the available football talent at No. 5 Initial Training School there is to be transferred to Toronto.. Here is the Colling version: "Following the successful operation of the Belleville and District Softball League this summer some of the club sponsors are toying with the idea of operating a six-man football loop along the same lines. Tilly Donihee, chairman of the Reliance Sports Committee, is highly in favor of such a group and so is FO. Ray Barrett over at the Mountain View Bombing School. FO. Bob Hunter, in charge of sports at No. 5 I.T.S., says his boys would like nothing better, but his department is faced with the lack of adequate football equipment at present. There's little doubt but FO. Buff Horton, over at Trenton, would weclome with open arms an opportunity to enter a team in such a compact loop, but as pointed out before the situation today seems to hinge around whether or not the No. 5 I.T.S. will join the fold. Rumors have all available football talent at No. 5 already slated to lineup with FO. Lew Hayman's R.C.A.F. entry into the senior O.R.F.U. ranks."

Kingston Loses Some

Bill Walshe, Kingston sports scribe sees in the sanction given pro hockey by the Dominion Government the loss of a number of former professional players that were expected to line up with the Kingston club this winter. Here is what he says: "Kingston's senior hockey situation is also concerned in the professional sanction. Several veteran performers living in Kingston would have remained at home all winter and probably would have played here but now they are in demand for pro play. Most of the Kingston pros are veterans with families and in a position to get passports for play in the States. They will get tempting offers and although they may like to remain in Kingston to share in the split of amateur play, with its other advantages, they will naturally take the bigger offers. Who wouldn't. They say charity begins at home but who wants charity when the pros across the line offer four figure salaries. Murph Chamberlain, Pat Patterson, Mickey Blake and Gus Marker are four qualified professionals living in Kingston who would not have much difficulty getting passports to play in the States and also qualify for the professional hockey of next year. They would have helped form an outstanding senior club in Kingston but can not be counted on now. Bill Cook, manager of the Cleveland Barons, stated yesterday when advised of the Ottawa decision on pro hockey, that his American League would operate with veterans past the military age draft and juniors too young for the call. The rinks of U.S.A. and Canada (not so much the N.H.L.) have done remarkable work to help war services and will do more next season."

* * * * * *

According to Ken Colling the outlook for senior interscholastic football in the Bay of Quinte sector this autumn is not very encouraging. There are good prospects for a junior six-man rugby group, along the same lines as last season but so far as the senior stuff is concerned. Last season Belleville Collegiate fielded what was considered a strong senior squad and they were good enough to tuck Albert College away. Then the gallant little Tweed High School team sprang a big surprise by trouncing the Belleville gridders in the group playoffs. Tweed youngsters then tackled Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School and were badly beaten despite a plucky stand at Riverside Park. Apparently Belleville Collegiate does not expect to function this season in the Cosaa schedule. Anyway Colling says "Senior (school) football is practically out for the duration."

Clift of St. Louis has made the most doubles and Spence of Washington leads in three base hits....Toronto Maple Leafs have a lot of junior hockey stars lined up for the National League campaign. Since the Cards climbed up on even terms with the Dodgers last Saturday the St. Louis club has won five out of six games while the Dodgers have been able to win only one out of four....At that rate the Cards should soon cinch the National League flag.

Bennett Wins Mixed Doubles

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 18 (ENS)—Campbellford rinks captured the top honors in a mixed doubles tourney here on Wednesday afternoon, when thirty-two entries from various parts of this district took part in what was characterized as one of the biggest events of the year. In fact there were more entries than could be accommodated, and several of the local rinks were forced to withdraw to give the visitors from Stirling, Havelock, Warkworth, Hastings, Norwood and Belleville an opportunity to play. Winners were as follows: For three wins—1st, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bennett, Campbellford; 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sloggett, Campbellford; 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. C. Churchley, Warkworth; 4th, Mr. and Mrs. E. Morton, Stirling. For two wins—Mr. and Mrs. A. Elliott, Stirling. For one win—Mr. and Mrs. A. Wannacott, Belleville.

Toronto Girls Eliminated

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—(CP)—Toronto's challengers for world softball honors were eliminated from the tournament here today when the Sunday Morning Class girls lost to the Denver, Col., Industrial Bank team 5-4.

It was Sunday Morning team's second defeat of the tournament. The Toronto team after winning in spectacular fashion in the opening game of the meet Wednesday night, was beaten 5-0 on Thursday by the Merry Maids of Chicago.

In the men's dicision, H.M.C.S. York squad from Toronto also suffered two defeats in the 12-hour competition that started Thursday.

The Tars lost to Phalanx Fraternity, Phoenix, Ariz., 7-6 and later to the Match Corporation squad from Chicago 5-0. In their game with the Phoenix nine the Sailor boys outhit their rivals 10-3 but were beaten by faulty fielding.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The supplementary schedule, in the men's section, is rapidly coming to a close. If the weather stays fair it is expected that the scheduled games will wind up next Thursday evening.

Who is going to come out on top? We don't know. There are two or three undefeated rinks in each section and the next couple of games may decide the issue.

Don't forget the men's tournament this evening at 7:30 o'clock and also remember that tomorrow's mixed tournament will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon instead of the evening.

In the ladies' section Mrs. H. Beatty's rink had to come from behind to gain the verdict of 14-9 from Mrs. J. Coursey's rink in the second round of the playoffs for third position. We believe that Mrs. Beatty now plays Mrs. F. Stanton's rink on Monday afternoon. As this is a round robin affair, there is no telling what the result will be.

Now for the game itself. It was well played. Some of the ends would do justice to any men bowlers.

The first part of the game was all in favor of Mrs. Coursey but on the fifth end when Mrs. Cullen trailed the "kitty" it made it possible for Mrs. Beatty to chalk up a four and that put her rink right back in the running. On the very next end, by some smart bowling her rink picked up another two and from then to the end was always in front. Many favorable comments by the spectators were made regarding the playing of both sides. It was a good game, well played, and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Partridge Soup

SHERBROOKE, Que., Sept. 18.—(CP).—The open season for partridge started early this year for Emmanuel Samson of Sherbrooke, but it was a case of the bird hunting the hunter and not the hunter hunting the bird. Samson was asleep, when he was awakened by the crash of a pane of glass. A search disclosed tha a partridge had flown through the window. It was still alive when he picked it off the floor.

DODGERS DROP 6th IN 7 TILTS AS PIRATES TAKE THEM BY 3 TO 2

Cards Three Up With 6-4 Win On Braves

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

From what's been going on here lately it no longer is a question of St. Louis Cardinals winning as Brooklyn's Dodgers losing the National League flag.

If ever a club looked as though it had folded up, the Dodgers from Flatbush did just that yesterday in dropping a 3-2 decision to Pittsburg Pirates for their sixth setback in seven games.

And what made the bums seem all the more pathetic was the way the Cards kept right on fighting in Boston and finally won out 6-4 with a five-run blast in the ninth inning to go three games in front in the pennant parade.

At the same instant as the guys from St. Louis were finally getting to Al Javery—after being muffled with five hits for eight frames—three Dodgers were walking meekly up to the plate for their ninth-inning "lick" and being retired in order with no more fight than you'll find in a dead chicken.

The net result of these proceedings was to put the Cards in a spot where only a major catastrophe can keep the Redbirds out of the senior circuit championship, climaxing one of the sturdiest uphill fights in years. For not only are they three games in front with only eight to go, but two of these games are in the important "losing side" in the records. At the moment, as the Cards head west to pick up against the Cubs Saturday and the Dodgers tangled with the Phillies today, here is the picture:—

Yanks Win 100th.

With the hot National League shindig still just about the whole show, the chief supporting features of the day saw New York Yankees win their 100th ball game to break a record they already had in the books and Tex Hughson join the select "20-game-winners" pitching set.

Joe DiMaggio's 20th homer of the season, good for three runs, was the big blow for the Yanks as they knocked off Detroit Tigers 7-4. This marked the eighth season in which the Bombers had chalked up 100 or more victories, adding one more year to the mark they already had.

Hughson became the first 20-game winner for the Boston Red Sox since the hey-day of Wesley Ferrell. Tex spread nine hits among St. Louis Browns without doing his spreading too thickly at any one point, and galloped off with a 5-1 decision.

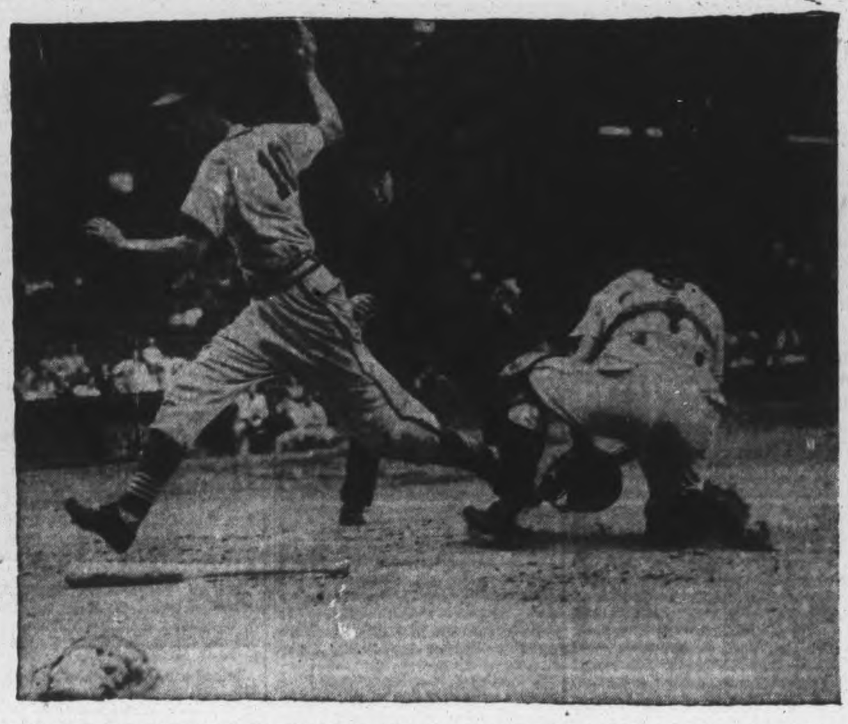
The pitching job of the afternoon came out of Philadelphia Athletics. Young Roger Wolff handcuffed the Chicago White Sox with just two safeties for a 1-0 victory.

In Cleveland, Sid Hudson arrived on the scene in the 11th inning for the Senators just in time to walk home the winning run that gave the Indians a 6-5 ball game.

Babe Young clouted a homer and three singles and knocked in seven runs to back up Harry Feldman's five-hit fast-balling and give New York Giants 11-1 verdict over Cincinnati Reds.

Chicago Cubs flailed the Phillies 8-0 behind Hank Wyse's eight-ball whitewashing job.

He Just Couldn't Make It



Walker of the St. Louis Cardinals is out at home in the first inning of the game at Shibe Park, Philadelphia. Phils' catcher, Livingston, made the play while Umpire Barr called it. It took the league-leading Cardinals 14 innings to come out on top 3 to 2, over the Philadelphia Nationals. With this win the Cards gained another half-game on the Brooklyn Dodgers, making their lead, two games.

Signs Backfield Ponton's Clouds Lift

By HAL WALKER

TORONTO, Sept. 18—The clouds have lifted and the sun is shining through down Balmy Beach way as far as Coach Alex Ponton is concerned.

Two kid backfielders that he thinks will show the customers a hatful of tricks this fall, Ed Jakubowski and Ross McKelvey, last night put their John Henry's on Beach playing certificates and rounded out a starting backfield—and a good one, too — for the Beachers.

"Terrific Twosome"

Ponton, erstwhile Whispering Mentor, couldn't restrain his enthusiasm and the sigh of relief which escaped from his wind pipe could be heard clear to Scarboro Bluffs. Jakubowski and McKelvey, are short on experience, perhaps, but perish the thought they won't be aces in the Beach deck, Ponton says.

"I think you're going to see a terrific twosome when 'Jake' and 'Mac' start moving for us" the veteran Beach strategist said. "Both of these boys have fitted into my system perfectly."

Others to pledge themselves to the Beach cause were Bill Zock, burly ex-Argo middle wing and Jack Young, rangy ex-Sculler who hasn't played for about four years.

Tommy Walden, all-star high school quarterback for North Toronto last season worked out last night. "I liked his style" Ponton confided.

Tiny Rader, six foot, 195 pound end wing, formerly of Vancouver will make his debut with the Beach tonight. Rader was organizer and Vice-president of Vancouver Grizzlies of the Western Interprovincial Union last season. He last played football with Vancouver Athletic Club and prior to that with University of British Columbita. One Western sports writer has maintained Rader, a strong tackler and good pass receiver, was one of the best end wings in the West. Tiny has been out of the game competitively for three years. If he can round into proper condition he'll wear Beaches' gold and blue.

Bob Cosgrove dropped around to watch Toronto Indians practice last night but he still can't make up his mind where he'll play ball this year. The Indians say they have the inside track.

Annis Stukis, the talking reporter, confessed to being busy as coach and chief scout. Stuke expects to have Red Vail, veteran ex-Argo snapback in action. "Red wants to try a comeback" quoth the Stuki. Alfie Ziziz, former Canadian schoolboy running champ, is another candidate for the Indians.

"Fastest guy lugging leather I've ever seen" yelled Stukus, as he dashed away to supervise his men at practice.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP). — One thing that has hoss-race fans puzled about the Whirlaway-Alsab match race to-morrow is who's going to be pace setter?....Both these goats—beg pardon, equine aristocrats—like to come from behind to win and unless one jockey is willing to take a chance on getting a licking by setting the pace, the affair is liable to be about as exciting as that great mile race a few years back when Cunningham, Venzke and Mangan did everything but run backwards to keep from taking the lead....To dress up the race a bit they're calling it the "Narragansett Championship," and instead of having numbers, the starting stalls will have signs "Whirlaway' and "Alsab" over them.

He tested the turn indicator for its inventor, Dr. Elmer Sperry, and called attention to the blind flying possibilities of the turn and bank indicator when that combination instrument first appeared.

Syracuse, Jersey To Meet In Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Syracuse Chiefs and Jersey City Giants, who played off for third and fourth places in the International League's lineup last week, will do it all over again in the final series of the Governors' Cup playoffs.

Syracuse, the winner in that tie-breaking tussle after they had finished the regular season deadlocked for third place, eliminated the second-place Montreal Royals last night when Ewell Blackwell pitched the Chiefs to a four-hit, 7-2 triumph in the fifth game of the series. Jersey City made the grade a day earlier, putting out the pennant-winning Newark Bears four games to two.

The final best-of-seven series for the Governors' Cup and the big pot of playoff money will open tomorrow at Jersey City. Two games will be played there and the next three at Syracuse, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Viewing the pitching record of the finalists, it isn't too surprising to see them in the last round instead of the heavier-hitting Newark and Montreal clubs. And their regular-season scraps indicate another hot-tussle for the cup. Fourteen of their 22 meetings ended in shutouts, eight of which were turned in by Syracuse pitchers. In all, the Chiefs earned 23 shutout victories during the long campaign, and another—a one-hitter by Red Barrett—in their third-place playoff with the Little Giants. Jersey City won 19 shut-out games.

Blackwell, a 19-year-old right handed who blanked the Royals in the playoff opener, nearly added another shutout to the list last night. He walked only one man, fanned six and the two runs off him both were unearned.

Syracuse had the game all wrapped up before a man was retired in the first inning. Ed Albosta faced three batters, walked two, and gave one hit, and then was yanked in favor of Les McCrabb. All three runners scored. In the third inning the Chiefs drove McCrabb to cover with three more runs and they picked up another tally off Bill Nagy in the fifth.

Woody Williams paced the Chiefs' attack, driving in four runs although he made only one hit, a double.

O'Connor Hurdles Rest Run "Flat"

TORONTO, Sept. 18.— (CP). — There isn't enough track talent in the Royal Canadian Air Force's No. 1 training command to give Larry O'Connor a race on his own terms, so the airmen have set their own: An 120-yard dash in which O'Connor will go over low hurdles while his opponents run on the flat.

O'Connor, now a corporal in the Canadian (Active) Army, hasn't lost any of the ability that won him a place on the Canadian Olympic team in 1936, so perhaps it's natural he can't find suitable opposition. But because he still draws crowds, opposition or not, he is one of the few army men invited to the No. training command's track and field championships at Toronto Varsity stadium to-morrow.

The entry list is huge—380 names long. It will be mainly an air force show, with entries from the R.C.A.F., the R.A.F., Fleet Arm and R.C.A.F. (Women's Division). Navy and army men will compete in the small number of open and exhibition events

Among the entries are PO. Alex Munro, Trenton, Ont., a former Olympic high jumper; LAC. John Sandy, Kingston, Ont., who won the 440-yard event for armed services at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1941; AC. Fred Town, Orillia, Ont., Canadian shot put record-holder; and LAC. Henry Neale, Hamilton, Ont., a star miler.

Remember When—

By the Canadian Press.

Detroit Tigers set a new major league mark two years ago to-day by punching out at least one home run in their 15th straight game. The previous record was held jointly by the Tigers of 1938 and the New York Giants of 1935. The streak was halted at 16 by Cleveland two days later. Hank Greenberg hit for the circuit in 12 of the 16 games.

4 Fans Charge Two Dodgers

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 —(AP)— Another round in the fight between several Brooklyn Dodgers players, Ebbets Field ushers and four spectators was blocked off in Flatbush Court yesterday when charges of assault were filed against Catcher Mickey Owen, Rightfielder Dixie Walker and the ushers.

The charges were brought by the four spectators, who themselves were arraigned in the Brooklyn-Queens Court on assault charges drawn on complaint of the ushers, Peter Sasey and Chester Broves.

In the Flatbush Court James Powers, attorney for the Dodgers, accepted the summonses. Magistrate Charles Solomon adjourned hearings until Oct. 5.

The spectators who preferred the charges against players and ushers were Michael Vigilante, 33, James Vigilante, 28, Anthony Fischetti, 26, and Michael di Giuseppi, 28, all of Brooklyn.

'T.R.' Given Spot In Sports Hall Of Fame

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18—(AP) Theodore Roosevelt, Knute Rockne and Walter Camp, in sculptured likeness will occupy the first three niches in the United States' newly-created football Hall of Fame.

President Bert Bell of the Robert W. Maxwell Memorial Football Club announced the selections, "T.R." because he saved the game more than 35 years ago by demanding rules to reduce injuries and fatalities caused by that era's mass formations; Camp. "The Father of Football," for his all-American teams which he began selecting in 1899; and Rockne, killed in a plane crash 11 years ago for his popular recognition as the country's No. 1 coach.

The club, founded in memory of Tiny Maxwell, Swarthmore football great, sports writer and official sponsored the Hall of Fame, which will be housed temporarily in Benjamin Franklin Institute.

Cattle Steady Lambs Up On Week's Sales

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Cattle prices were steady on all grades in trade on the Livestock Marekt here this week. Lambs were 25 cents higher. Hogs dropped 50 cents. Veal calves were firm and sheep were steady.

The larger supply of cattle included no more killers than last week's run. Most of the slaughter cattle offered were cows and bulls. A few lots of butcher steers and heifers sold at $8.50 to $10.50. Fed yearlings were $11 to $12.25. Butcher cows sold at $6.50 to $8.50 with bulls from $8.50 to $9.50. Good stockers brought $10.25 to $10.75, with stock calves at $11 to $11.25. Plainer stockers moved slowly at $8.50 to $10. Good milkers and springers were strog at $125 to $150 each with others selling downward to $75 each.

Calves sold at $15 to $15.50 for choice vealers with a few tops at $16. Common vealers sold downward to $9. Grass calves were $8 to $8.75.

Hogs dropped 50 cents to close $15.50 dressed. Sows were stronger at $12.75 to $13 dressed.

Lambs opened at $12 for good ewes and wethers and closed at $12 to $12.25. Bucks sold at $11 to $11.25, and culls at $9 to $11. Good light sheep brought $8 to $9 cwt., with culls downward to $3.

Huns Retreat

hand fighting which followed the Germans were routed and forced to retreat, losing about 500 killed and wounded."

Firing points and anti-tank obstacles were hastily erected by the Germans for protection against counter-attack and to serve as a springboard for another effort to drive to the heart of Stalingrad, Red Star said.

Dispatches contained frequent references to individual Red Army men who killed 10 to 12 Germans and to single machine-gun crews which accounted for as many as 40. A detachment fighting from behind ruined brick walls was credited with the destruction of seven Nazi tanks and the slaughter of 200 troops.

Red Star said Russian tanks destroyed 60 truck moving up infantry reinforcements in one sector.

The Germans attacked in a familiar pattern. Squads of automatic rifle men, hunched low and running, moved up first in an effort to cut through and disrupt defences from the rear. Tanks and motorized infantry followed them. Overhead planes dumped bombs on knots of Soviet resistance.

Streams of bullets whined and ricocheted through the streets and the defenders were forced back for a time, but they rebounded to oust the invaders at bayonet point, yard by yard and house by house.

Back to Water's Edge.

The Russians were backed down tree-lined avenues to cliffs overlooking the Volga waterfront at one time. With precipices behind them and tanks before them the organized their counter-attack in a supreme effort to save the great economic centre from the Germans.

A Tass dispatch said thousands of fresh Siberian troops, their military training newly completed, now were moving to the front and many were already engaged in the battle of Stalingrad.

Russian gunners and bayonet fighters, counter-attacking with a ferocity that forced the invaders to abandon hundreds of their dead, were reported to have cleared out detachments which had smashed into the streets of Stalingrad and restored the defence lines on the north-western outskirts late yesterday.

This display of recuperative power by Red Army men now in the 25th day of battle against an unprecedented array of German military strength was coupled with a diversionary offensive which bit into the Nazi holdings in the region of Voronezh, 300 miles to the north-west.

Damaging blows against the invaders were reported from both the central and Caucasian fronts and Soviet raiders were executed by air and by sea.

Special Broadcast Skipped.

(A Berlin radio broadcast—skipping all reference to a previously-advertised "special announcement from Hitler's headquarters" which failed to materialize as scheduled last night— asserted the Russians were resisting fanatically and suicidally. Its major boast was that "Stalingrad had ceased to be a solid black of resistance.")

The Russian account of the Nazi bid that failed said German detachments were able to penetrate into some of the streets in northwestern Stalingrad Wednesday night.

"Street fighting resulted which developed into hand-to-hand encounters," it said. "Toward the end of the day all detachments which had penetrated our positions were repulsed. The Germans left behind hundreds of dead and damaged trucks and tanks.

"Within two days one of our units destroyed 54 German tanks, 21 guns and 12 motor vehicles. They wiped out about 1,500 enemy officers and men. On another sector our Guardsmen (Elite Troops) routed a battalion of enemy infantry and destroyed eight tanks, two mortar batteries and 15 motor vehicles."

Russians striking at the German left flank on the Upper Don in the Voronezh area were declared to have recaptured a Nazi-occupied settlement, seized prisoners, 24 field guns and other equipment and wiped out about two regiments of infantry.

Counter-Attack Saves Day

Tank-supported German infantry pressed back Russian lines slightly on the central front for a few hours, but a counter-attack restored the Red army positions and the invaders left behind 22 tanks and about 1,200 dead, the communique said.

Russian troops battling to save the Grozny oil fields and Caucasus mountain passages were reported to have repulsed German assaults in the Mozdok area, reoccupied a village, destroyed eight tanks and other war equipment and "annihilated about 300 Hitlerites."

From the Black Sea coastal sector southeast of Nazi-occupied Novorossisk came word that Red marines had "repulsed several enemy attacks and mopped up about a battalion of enemy infantry."

"A bomber formation raided a German-occupied port on the Black Sea," the communique said. "Two enemy mine-sweepers and three torpedo motorboats were sunk and an ammunition dump was blown up."

The Moscow radio said four German-occupied naval bases in the Baltic were bombed by Soviet planes which damaged transports and port equipment, destroyed gun positions and set off fires and explosions.

See Cranberries Bumper Crop In States

BOSTON, Sept. 18. — This will be a big year for the nations century-old cranberry industry.

In the bogs of the Cape Cod region harvesting is getting under way on a $5 million crop of berries. Growers in New Jersey, Wisconsin, Washington, and Oregon will collect some $2½ million for their berries.

A big crop is in sight exceeded only by 1937's record harvest. The Cape District, cranberry centre of the world will produce just short of half a million barrels of berries. The other four growing States will contribute another 250,000 barrels.

That's a lot of berries, but Americans are prodigious cranberry consumers. Up to half a million barrels will be marketed as fresh berries and do their traditional duty as a tangy accessory to holiday turkey dinners.

A seventh or more of the crop will do war duty, going through dehydration plants, and seeing service with the armed forces on many a front. The rest of the crop will be canned.

This year the growers face new problems in the form of scarcity of pickers, many of whom have gone to work in war industries, and ingredient in cranberry sauce, but the demand for berries and the products processed from them is well in excess of the prospective supply, and a good financial year is indicated for the bog owners.

Within the past decade the growing of cranberries has been removed from the list of hazardous financial undertakings. There has been no cry for cranberry farm relief—no pressure for 110 per cent of parity.

This change is ascribed to the growth of the co-operative movement to a point where 80 per cent or more of all the cranberries grown are handled through two co-operatives, one operating in the selling of fresh fruit and the other in canning. Formerly growers suffered three loss years in ten; to-day any good bog, efficiently operated, yields a steady profit.

The co-operative movement in marketing was started in 1908 and to-day a top company, the American Cranberry Exchange sells for the entire industry, controlling state associations in the major producing areas. In 1930 Cranberry Canners, Inc., was inaugurated as a canning co-operative by two canning groups formerly competitive, and in the past decade it has had spectacular growth.

Quick 2nd Front Is Labor Call

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)— The Canadian Congress of Labor today called for "the speediest opening of a second front."

The resolution was given unanimous support and passed after a brief discussion in which delegates said they considered an immediate second front essential to victory.

Hon. Frank Langstone, New Zealing the convention, urged that workers put an all-out war effort in first place but at the same time protect the rights and principles gained in the past years.

While workers in Canada, as in New Zealand, had political equality they could not enjoy complete social justice without economic security.

The working class constituted the nation, and it was right and proper that it should take its place in running the country.

Mr. Langstone outlined labor activity in New Zealand where, he said, collective bargaining is generally recognized. Widespread social legislation had been effected, giving help through medical aid and other plans to New Zealand workers.

Japs' Supply

The Allies, however, now should be able to offer stiffer suport, he said, because they are close to their main supply base and can quickly call upon reinforcements. They will be able to obtain more effective air support for the country will offer the Japanese less and less cover the farther south they go, and the Allies soon should be able to use artillery to answer the enemy mountain guns which presumably are of 75 millimetre type.

Japanese advance forces, on the other hand, now are about eight or nine days' walking distance from Kokoda, their nearest base on the northern side of the mountains.

Underestimated Again.

Folkard recalled that in the early part of the Japanese advance such stress was laid on the supply problems the enemy would face in crossing the mountains, but once again, he said the enemy apparently was underestimated.

The Japanese, he said, not only are keeping their troops fed, but are giving them heavier equipment than the Australians are employing.

Although the Japanese have traversed the worst part of the Owen Stanley Range, fighting their way through passes more than 7,000 feet above sea level, the country still separating them from the head of the road leading to Port Moresby is tough, with steep razor-backed ridges some of which rise up sheer for 1,000 feet or more.

Ioribaiwa is perched atop a 3,000-foot ridge. About four hours' marching time north is Naroo, another mountain-top hamlet. Apparently fighting is going on in the precipitous valley between these two points with other Australian forces guarding the adjacent ridges.

The latter are covered with thick undergrowth and tropical trees and are washed by frequent heavy rainstorms which clothe the peaks in mist.

The Japanese now have captured seven villages on the original Australian supply route between Port Moresby and the former Allied advanced base at Isurwa, about two hours' walking time from Kokoda.

Predict No Fuel Oil Rationing

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (CP)—The Ottawa Evening Journal said yesterday that Munitions Minister Howe, in a radio address tonight, will "announce that there will be no rationing of fuel oil in Canada."

"He is also expected to announce the tightening of gasoline rations," the Journal said.

(Mr. Howe will speak over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's national network starting at 8.05 p.m., E.D.T., tonight, and over the French network starting at 8 p.m.)

The Journal said:

"The Minister's announcements, the Journal was informed, would be 'far too important to be made public in a press release.'

"It was one of those situations 'requiring the Minister to talk directly to the people' . . .

"His announcement of no rationing of fuel oil in Canada would come as a surprise. For last night at Washington Chairman Donald Nelson of the United States War Production Board said fuel oil would be rationed in thirty States, the are to be possibly extended later.

"Fuel oil could not be rationed in Canada because the supply is either available or it is not.

"The Minister is expected to explain that fuel oil will be supplied domestic heating plants as long as the stocks hold out.

"The announcement of tightened gasoline rations is expected in the form of the formal application of the new 'AA' category, into which the large majority of motorists now classified as 'A' will be lumped. The new 'AA' category will be imposed as much to conserve rubber as gasoline."

LAKEFIELD

WA Again Drops Thanksgiving Supper, Concert

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 18—(ENS). — The W.A. of Lakefield United Church met on Tuesday in the Sunday School room, with a fairly large attendance.

The meeting was opened with a and Mrs. F. Darling, group con- and Mrs. F. Darfling, group convenor for Group B, was in charge of the devotional. Mrs. Tanner gave a reading, stressing the need for more W.A. workers during wartime. The lesson thought was read by Mrs. Darling, followed by prayer.

Mrs. J. Murphy then took the chair for business. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Higgins and correspondence was read by Mrs. A. Darling, from the United Church of Canada, urging a special campaign to wipe out the remaining deficit of the United Church all over Canada. The association decided to give two certificates.

It was also announced that the annual W.A. convention is to be held this year at Knox United Church in Peterborough on September 24. Delegates appointed were Mrs. Geo. Kelly and Mrs. J. Murphy, with Mrs. J. R. Hull giving the report at the convention. Owing to rationing it was decided not to hold a Thanksgiving dinner, but to make collections the same as last year.

A quilting is to be held at the home of Mrs. F. Darling next Thursday, the third quarter 5-cents-a-week envelopes to be brought in at this quilting.

The meeting was closed with the benediction and a social half-hour followed.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ALAS NO ICE CREAM

Many harassed parents will be happy to know that many of the stores have used up their quota of ice cream for the month. So there will be no more cones for Johnny and Mary until next month.

BUSINESS IS BRISK

Starting of the duck season and its consequent trading in firearms has kept Provincial Constable Price Morris busy during the last few days. From September 9 to September 14, he issued 50 gun licenses at his office in the county buildings, and more come in every day.

FROM KOREA

Commissioner R. Wilson, former territorial commander of the Salvation Army in Korea, is coming to Peterborough for the week-end services, Saturday, Sunday and also Monday night. He is a friend of Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H., whom he knew in Seoul.

JUDGE AT LINDSAY

Frank C. Paterson is assisting judge of the boys' calf club show at the Lindsay Fair today. This is the Club's Achievement Day, winding up their season's work carried on under the direction of M. C. Winter, agricultural representative in Victoria.

"LOCAL" HERE LATER

Beginning Monday, September 28, the C.P.R. local will leave Toronto at 6.45 p.m. instead of 6.20 at present, and will arrive here at 8.55 p.m. The time change is included in the new schedule which goes into effect Sunday 27th at midnight. T. G. M. Jamieson said today that the local was being set back for the connection with the Buffalo-Hamilton train. It has been reaching Toronto at 6.10 with 10 minutes to catch the Peterborough train at 6.20; but the Buffalo train is now arriving at 6.15, leaving a margin of only five minutes, if the schedule were not changed. For that reason it was decided to hold the Peterborough local until 6.45 p.m.

COME TO-NIGHT.

Mrs. Stuart Lochland, Provincial Leader of the Canadian Red Cross, and Mrs. MacKenzie, District Officer, will be present Friday evening at a meeting being held to form a Red Cross Emergency Corps for this locality. The meeting will take place in the Recreation Room of the Y.W.C.A. at 8 p.m.

IT'S HAUNTED.

People passing by a house a couple of doors above Dublin street on George, have been considerably surprised as they went by to hear a childish voice crying out "hello," particularly so, since there was no evidence of anyone in sight. Heads crane around, vainly trying to locate the source of the voice. Those that are lucky finally spot a green parrot in a cage on the upper balcony, who occupies his time giving greetings to the pedestrians.

NEAR DROWNING

An employee of the Liquor Control Board store in Peterborough is reported to have slipped off one of the Stoney Lake docks while holding an outboard motor in his arms. As the story goes the victim claims he went down thirty feet in the lake, and narrowly escaped drowning. The motor was later recovered in eight feet of water.

CASES LAID OVER

Five non-jury actions scheduled to be disposed at the Autumn sittings of the Supreme Court have been laid over until the next non-jury sittings. Mr. Justice Roach concluded the sittings on Thursday night at ten o'clock when the jury brought in their verdict in the Laidley-Hockaday case.

NEED HELP

Major Bamsey, in charge of the Salvation Army Hut at the Training Centre, would like to make an appeal to the citizens of Peterborough for a Jew's Harp for the radio broadcast Monday night, the boys have been unable to find one in the Peterborough stores. Anyone who would lend one is asked to get in touch with Major Bamsey at once.

Ration Books Are Missing

Ration office officials at Peterborough claim they are having considerable trouble with people who have changed their addresses since July 1, and advise that all people who are in this category must apply to the ration office where they lived prior to July 1, in order that they may obtain their ration books.

Sugar rationing started on July 1 and at that time temporary ration cards were issued. Later ration books were issued. Any person who has moved to the Peterborough district or to any other district cannot obtain a ration book by applying to the nearest ration office. They must write to the ration office in the city or town where they formerly lived, and advise this office of their change in address. When this is done the ration office mentionetd above will mail the new ration book to the Ration Office in Peterborough on Hunter Street opposite the Regent Theatre and the newcomer can then pick the book up at this office, or else it will be mailed to them at their new address.

More than 200 telephone calls a day have been coming into the Pettreborough Ration Office, and this item is being published to acquaint all people with the procedure to be followed as the local office catering to a large district is already swamped with routine work.

Many beautiful floral tributes and spiritual offerings were received. She is survived by her husband, J. J. Allen, five daughters, Mrs. Louis F. LaFleche, Mrs. Duncan F. Chisholm, Mrs. Howard L. Watson, Gertrude and Margaret, all of Edmonton; two sons, Flying Officer J. Cletus Allen, R.C.A.F., Edmonton, and Officer Cadet E. Bernard Allen, (Gordenhead) Vancouver Island, B.C.; one sister, Mrs. Francis J. Poinan, Rochester, N.Y.; two brothers, Frank D. Leahy of Douro, Ontario, and Joseph W. Leahy of Salmo, B.C. Hainstock & Son, directors of service.

Mrs. Allen passed away in hospital following a lingering illness. Born in Douro, she had been a resident of Edmonton since 1913. A devout church woman, she had been a member of the Senior C.W.L. and St. Anthony's Altar Society. R.I.P.

Mrs. McQuade Hostess To Omemee Institute

OMEMEE, Sept. 18 — (ENS). — The Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday night, at the home of Mrs. Arthur McQuade, with a good attendance. The meeting opened with the president in charge. The roll call was answered by presenting an article for a layette for the Red Cross Society. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Northey of Lindsay for fruit sent during her recent illness.

The scrap book was in charge of Mrs. Acreman, and the following program was given: Reading by Mrs. Everson, "Canada, My Homeland," written by a Lindsay boy who is overseas; also a humorous reading entitled, "Having Company"; recitation by Mrs. Cornwall, "The Silver Dollar and the Cent."

At the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Library Board Chairman

The Omemee Public Library Board met recently and appointed Mrs. Moyer chairman of the board for the remainder of the year. R. J. Moon had been appointed chairman at the beginning of the year, but he will absent for the duration of the war.

C.G.E. Workers Raise $68 For War Victims

In the maintenance department of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. of which Herbert May is foreman, a little red, white and blue box, regularly makes its rounds on behalf of the suffers from air raids in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

To Louis Simpson can be ascribed much that has to do with this regularity, and in this he is ably assisted by Miss Ruth Dulmage.

Besides passing the box around on Saturday mornings, various other assists have been utilized to add to the amount, and it is recalled that a previous donation was enlarged by the formation of what was known as a two bits club.

As an assist to this their latest donation, a pleasure trip by boat through the lovely waters surrounding this district was held with Walter Nattree, Percy Aitchison and Louis Simpson serving as a special committee for that purpose, from which the surplus proceeds gave a boost to that which had already been placed in their red, white and blue box, from which this group will find added satisfaction in knowing that it was the means of putting the fund over the top for the 46th thousand dollar mark.

The box at Hooper's centre store was one of the first placed around in the various places of business, and has been a continual producer since that time, with a further $3 going to its credit in today's list through a collection made from it on Thursday.

Market Stall

For the third successive week, this effort which presents a splendid opportunity whereby the people from the surrounding district and the city co-operate, one with the supplying of farm produce, and the other by its purchase, will be serviced by two Girl Guides as sales clerks, and Miss Jean Fairburn of Springville acting as convener for that district. One hundred per cent of proceeds go to the fund.

Three girls, Joyce Pitchford, Joan Wildman and Ruth Chesher, all of whom are pupils at Confederation School are holding a bazaar this Saturday on the lawn at 114 Morrow street, for which they have gathered a fine assortment of wares, the full proceeds of which will come to the fund.

RAF Hood Saved Day At Dieppe

WATERLOO, Ont., Sept. 18 — (CP).—Pte. Louis Hodgson of Waterloo who was with the Canadian army in the battle of Dieppe said here the Royal Air Force put on "the finest show I ever saw" at Dieppe."

"They were just like a hood," he said. "If it hadn't been for the Air Force, I don't think a man would have been able to get out. If they co-operate in the same way in an invasion it will be a cinch."

Hodgson, the 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hodgson of Waterloo, arrived home Wednesday. He was wounded in the left arm by a piece of shrapnel during the attack while he was carrying out his duties at an advance dressing station as a member of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

He said he slapped a dressing on his wound and kept on working. "That's all I could do," he said.

"It was absolute hell," he said of the raid. "You've seen pictures in the movies that were fakes but looked pretty awful. Well, it was something like that, only worse. Men dropped like flies and the majority of them went down in a half-hour after the first landing."

178 Women Registered On Thursday

Thursday was the heaviest day for registration to date in the Selective Service office, William Mellis said Friday. There were 178 women registered as against 98 on Wednesday, and the registration is coming along much better than it was at the beginning of the week. To date about 600 women have registered.

Many women have come in from small places in the district as well as from the city, and it is expected that the office will be open until 9 p.m. Saturday. Most of the women who have called are young married women with small children, so that as far as this age group is concerned, there is not likely to be such a great number available at the present time for service. Those in charge feel that the older and younger groups will likely be more productive in the matter of numbers.

Car Is Wrecked Avoiding Skunk

BANCROFT, Sept. 18.—(SENS).—An innocent little skunk meandering along the road, 12 miles south of the Bancroft Highway No. 62, Thursday morning, was responsible for an accident to Miss Eileen Plumley of Bancroft, who, when swerving to avoid hitting the animal, ditched her car and was thrown clear, sustaining bad cuts and bruises.

Miss Plumley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Plumley of Bancroft, was driving home from Belleville when she saw a skunk crossing the road in front of her. She swerved to avoid hitting it and the car swayed from side to side a couple of times and then finally turned over in the ditch. Miss Plumley was thrown several feet clear of the car and lay there for over an hour before help arrived.

Help came with the arrival of the Belleville-Bancroft bus driven by G. L. Moxam, and a car driven by a Mr. Wasmund of Lake St. Peter. Miss Plumley was so covered with mud that neither of the drivers recognized her until a nurse from the Belleville Hospital, Miss 'Peachy' Bartlett, on the bus, discovered her identity. Miss Bartlett gave what temporary aid she could and the injured girl was taken back to Bancroft in the Wasmund car.

On reaching Bancroft, she was taken to Dr. Lumb's office and X-rayed and was found to be badly bruised with severe cuts in the back of her head. But there were no bones broken. She was later taken to her home.

The car was badly damaged, and the top was flattened down to the engine hood. Only the fact that she was thrown clear of the car saved Miss Plumley.

Provincial Constable F. W. Palmateer of Bancroft, investigated the accident.

Woman Allowed $2,500 In Damage Case

After deliberating for more than five hours a Supreme Court jury brought in a verdict of 50-50 negligence in the case of Mrs. Lily Laidley, who is suing Percy Hockaday, Young's Point, for $20,000. The charge arose out of a motor accident on Water street north last November 8, when Mrs. Laidley suffered fractures of both legs and other injuries when struck by Hockaday's car as she ran across the street in the rain after dark to catch a north-bound city bus.

Mrs. Laidley was allowed $2,500 of her claim plus the costs of the action in the verdict, and the decision was reported by the Hon. Mr. Justice Roach, presiding judge, shortly after ten o'clock on Thursday evening.

Cecil G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay, defended Hockaday, and Isadore Levinter, K.C., prominent Toronto lawyer, acted for Mrs. Laidley. Mrs. Laidley, the plaintiff, was in hospital from November until May from injuries received in the accident, and is scarcely able to get around with the aid of crutches at the present time. She is 65 years of age.

Judge Roach commended the jury on the care it had taken and the long attention given the testimony before arriving at a verdict, particuarly in view of the fact that it was quite hot and humid in the building.

The judge started his charge to the jury at 20 minutes past 3 on Thursday afternoon and spoke steadily until 20 minutes to 5, before permitting it to retire and consider the case. He said in part:

"This trial was a fair example of the care and caution displayed in our courts to see that justice is administered when citizens become involved in disputes.

It has been said that the court constitutes the last bulwark of democracy. When the bulwark collapses, democracy will also collapse.

Judgment following a case is not based on whim or caprice but on sworn testimony. Your decision will also be based on this evidence and you will not allow sympathy to affect your judgment.

It has been said that sympathy in a man is an engaging quality when practised at someone else's expense.

May I pause to pay a very deserving compliment to both counsels for their very able presentations.

You, as the jury, are the sole judges of the facts, you are supreme, I have nothing to do with it. As to the law, you will take the law from me and apply it to the facts as you find them."

Plan To Start Work On 125 New Homes

Fifty wartime houses are under construction on the Hatton property for which 125 have been authorized. and the Eastwood Construction Company expects to begin next week work on the other group of 125 houses to be built north of the old site of the Sanstone Brick Company.

H. S. Longhurst, administrator of the Wartime Houses, told the Examiner today that he has a list of 180 applications for housing accommodation. It is understood that C.G.E.-Genelco will require another 1,000 or 1,200 employees before they reach their maximum of employment and production.

Meanwhile, J. L. Gillespie, recently appointed supervisor of the staff house on Monaghan Road, is in Hamilton for a few days observing the system of management of the big staff house which was built in that city by Wartime Housing Limited for the accommodation of single men employed in munitions industries.

The local staff house will likely be completed by the end of this month, and will be formally opened with little ceremony by Joseph Piggott, the head of Wartime Housing.

Mr. Longhurst said that all the houses under his care are occupied. At the end of August twenty-one of them were vacated by the families of men who had decided to avoid being "frozen" in their Peterborough jobs.

"That was the biggest turnover we've had since the houses were completed," Mr. Longhurst remarked. "Some of the ocupants who left us at the end of the month gave us only two days' notice. They were not satisfied with the prospect of remaining here under the terms of employment which were coming into effect."

Four Local Boys On Home-made Sloop Sail To Lake Couchiching And Return

The home-made sloop owned and built by Spike Matthews which has such rakish lines that the Chemong crowd has termed it the pirate ship, has just returned from a two weeks' cruise.

The ship sleeps four people and carries a mainsail and three jibs, and the crew of the ship consisted of the skipper, Spike Matthews, Murray Dewart, George Gray, and Mac Graham. Two weeks ago they sailed to Stoney Lake, then cut back through the Kawartha waters to Lake Couchiching at Orillia. On the way up they discovered that the mast was too high to pass under somet of the high level bridges so to tip the mast, the skipper would three would tug on the guy wires threte would tug on the guy wires to sink the sloop at the back and tilt the mast over sufficient to clear the bridges. The plan worked.

They had a punt propelled with an outboard motor which was used to tow the sloop through stretches of canal where there was no wind for sailing.

Between Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon on the home stretch, rations were running low, so the boys set out a troll and tied into a 15-pound 'lunge. They couldn't land it in the sloop so Spike climbed on the tow rope back into the punt, and whammed the muskie over the head with an oar. The fish got such a wallop that he zoomed into the air and very conveniently landed in the punt. This addition to the larder solved the food problem and the boys arrived home on Thursday after a most interesting voyage.

Officer Son Of Peterborough Man Wounded During Dieppe Raid Rescued By Commanding Officer

Lieut. Leslie England, who was wounded at Dieppe, flirted with death and missed dying by inches several times in the trip from the beaches back to the ship which brought him home to England.

In a letter to his father, a barber employed by Ray Bacon, he tells of his experiences, and a portion of his letters reads as follows:

"I'm coming along fine and able to walk about and am up most of the time. My back of course is not comfortable but doesn't bother a lot. My leg injury was not as bad as I thought and I guess it was a bit of shrapnel.

The other day they took a photograph of my back. New methods of treating wounds has caused some interest. The wound is packed with gauze and allowed to heal from the bottom up. Those with leg wounds are placed in casts and not touched for two to three weeks. The results are very good....People who visited us at the early stages of our visit here were Vincent Massay and his wife, Mrs. MacNaughton, Lady Bessborough and a number of generals.

"I don't know if I told you, but Kempton is now Colonel of the unit. Most everyone was glad to see him back. Our past Colonel, Col. Merritt, is posted as missing and has been recommended for the V.C. I hope he gets it and I hope he's alive. He was very instrumental in getting me back. It was he who arranged for my streacher bearers, one of whom was shot and I was left in the open field for some time. Then the Colonel picked me up and carried me about 100 yards, then I walked a bit with his help, and then he had his batman carry me to the Regimental Aid Post.

At the Aid Post they put on some shell dressing and took me down to the sea wall. I refused morphine at this stage and you will see how lucky I was. At the bench wall I heard a shout and looked and saw everyone heading for our barges which had come in against fire to pick us up. Somehow I managed to get up and run across the beach out in the water and climbed aboard.

It got overcrowded as we made our way out, and eventually sunk, but again somehow I got out and spying another than came close by, I jumped on it and with others was taken to a motor launch. I was looked at, and given morphine. After lying down and feeling quite comfortable a bomb blew the front part off the destroyer, it landed in the part joining the room I was in. The water rushed in and here at this point I thought I was finished. Somehow again I managed to crawl over furniture, waist deep in water, and climbed through a hole in the side, and managed to get on deck.

There I saw a lifeboat being lowered and I clambered in and was taken on another destroyer that finally landed us in England at two a.m. on Thursday morning. From there ambulances waited and we were taken straight to this hospital. I went to the operating room at 4 p.m. on Thursday and came around five hours later. My anaesthetic was "pentathal" injected in the arm and has no after effects

For about the first five days I had to be fed, for I couldn't roll around to either side, but since that time I have been O.K.

Our casualties as you probably gather are high. Never again will we have such a difficult job, but such casualties, many were hurt on the return to the ships, going across the beach—I was just lucky.

It was a great experience. I'm sorry I got hit so early around 5.30 in the morning, but I'm sure I'll never get it again.—Regards to all. Les."

Lieut. England was serving with a Western Regiment which was in the forefront of the attack on Dieppe

Park Lighting To Be Reduced

Of the eleven lights in Victoria Park, nine will be missing in the power economy program of the Utilities Commission and the Light and Power committee of the city council. Only two lights will be left in use in the park fronting the Court House.

There are three lights in King Edward Park, and two of them will be extinguished.

Alderman Sullivan said to-day that his committee had discussed the power economy proposals with the Utilities Commission and were mainly guided by the recommendations of R. L. Dobbin, Utilities Manager.

"We have 640 300-watt lamps in the city streets," Alderman Sullivan said. "Instead of taking them out here and there it was decided to replace them gradually with 200-watters. A supply of these lamps has been on order for ten days, and have not yet arrived. The lights in the main centre of the city will probably be left as they are. Window lights and signs will have to be turned off, and it has been the opinion that the lighting in the central part of the city might be left as it is for the time being.

The government suggested a saving of 20 per cent. in the consumption of power. Mr. Dobbin told us that the reduction of the wattage of the street lights would amount to 54 kilowatts, but the saving actually required on the 20 p.c. basis would be 53 k.w.; so we are doing a little better than what was officially asked."

It was understood that some of these changes would not be affected immediately, partly because supplies of lamps have not arrived yet, but Harry Beatty has promised that there will be no delay as soon as the job is begun."

An Ottawa story gives the information that a 20 per cent. reduction in the apparent use of power is not reflected to that extent in the domestic power bills. They have found that it takes about a 50 per cent. cut in the amount of electricity used to reduce the bill by 20 per cent.

Millbrook WMS Guests At Clarry Homestead

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16 (ENS) — The W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church was entertained at the Clarry homestead, Parkroadway, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., for its September meeting, Miss Blanche Clarry, and her sister, Mrs. Maxwell Cameron, of Ottawa, being joint hostesses for the occasion. The program was in charge of Group D. Mrs. H. W. Johnston, convener, and the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, took the business period.

The Bible talk, "The greatest of these is love," based on I Cor. 13, was read by Miss Augusta Thornton, following which a solo was sung by Mrs. Johnston. The leader had an interesting letter from Miss Banfield, missionary at Mutton Bay, Quebec, which she read to the society, and this, with the W.M.S. Watchword in unison, concluded the program.

During the social hour the lovely flowers which were tastefully arranged throughout the large rooms, and which were grown in the well-known flower gardens of the hostess, Miss Blanche Clarry, were much admired.

In Navy Lingo One's 'Winger' A Girl Friend

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX, Seut. 18.—(CP).—Noah Webster would find his famous dictionary of little help in understanding the lingo sailors use in the Royal Canadian Navy. It's a strange world, the watery one those boys with the bell-bottomed trouser live in, and they have evolved a brand new language to fit it. And a lot of it sounds like so much Greek to the landlubber.

Take, for instance, the words tiddley, pusser, dobeying and flake out. They mean, in that order, fancy, strict, laundering and to have a rest. In the same mysterious manner bubbly has come to be the word for rum, a winger is a girl friend, and plue is tea.

Various ways of getting in trouble have been equally well disguised, to the landsman's ears, with the expressions put in rattle, weighed off, get a bottle, get a blast, get jankers, adrift and doff. So if your pal or boy friend writes and says he was adrift, don't go visioning him in a tossing lifeboat. He overstayed his leave, for which he will first be put in the rattle—that is, will be due for punishment.

About the Bottle

When finally punished, or weighed off, he will either get a blast, a personal balling out, or get jankers, which is work that the guilty party must do when he normally would be resting. Similarly getting a bottle does not signify the sailor is straying from the paths of temperance, it merely signifies that he has done something to bring discredit on the entire ship. Such a thing might happen if he doffed, or deserted.

Their terms for the various ranks and trades in the navy are equally confusing but colorful. Naturally a pea roller is a victualler's assistant; a bunting tosser, a signalman; and a sparker, a wireless operator. But who would guess the term Jimmie the One was used when mentioning the dignified first lieutenant, or that a jaunty was the barrel chester master at arms, and a Jack Dusty a supply assistant.

To complete the list, a tanky is a butcher, a diffy, a sick bay attendant; a buffer, the chief bo'sum's mate; and a springer, a physical instructor.

Miscellaneous definitions include the expressions Harry Tait, for something free and easy; Heath Robinson means complicated; juicers are English sailors.

Path To Victory Leads Through Control Of Skies

"We must win control of the skies; this is the path to victory, the shortest, quickest, cheapest path," declared Ralph P. Bell, director-general of Canadian aircraft production (RIGHT), speaking at the unique "open house" held for the employees and their facilies at one of Canada's largest "hospitals' for planes requiring repair or overhaul. CENTRE is W. J. McDonough, head of Central Aircraft, which employs 1,400 persons. On the LEFT is Fred Smye, a yong man formerly of Hamilton, Mr. Bell's assistant, lauded by his chief at the London function for his outstanding service to aircraft production.

Speed Training Has Tank Corps Always On High

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A lively little man with greying hair and a sparkling eye is rapidly becoming the patron saint of Canadian tank soldiers. He is devoted to a cause, the modernization of the army through the development of new forms of warfare.

He is Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, commander of the 4th (Armored) Division now overseas. General Worthington was largely responsible for the design of the "Ram" tank, one of Canada's contributions to the allied cause in the present war. Impatient to get into battle but determined to have his men ready, he has evolved what he calls "speed training" to get them ready more quickly by applying assembly line methods to training tank crews and tank mechanics.

Known to his men as "old Freddie" and "Worthy," the general wears heavy army boots, like those worn by his privates, because he likes to clamber over tanks, trudge through dust and mud, wherever his men are at work. His skin is bronzed, his face rugged, his speech direct. He stands with his hands on his hips and his head a little on one side when he talks to brigadiers, colonels, lieutenants, sergeants, privates. He knows a lot of them by their first names.

Knows His Guns

The general wants his men to be able to fix things around tanks and to try to improve things. He does just that himself. One day a photographer caught him flat on his back under a truck, showing a sergeant how to do a certain repair job.

Although he never served in the artillery he can load and lay a 25-pounder gun. He knows all about ranges, elevations and sights. "Does he ever," was the answer of a young artillery officer when asked if the general knew his guns.

A student of tank warfare long before the start of the Second Great War, General Worthington recalls how the Germans picked the brains of forward thinkers in the armies of the United Nations and put their best ideas to work.

"God has been good to us for a long time but if we don't wake up He will go and play with the other fellows," he philosophizes.

On the wall of the general's office at divisional headquarters he has a chart, showing the training progress of the division. He watches it as the indicator of the progress of the division towards battle efficiency. He tries to keep the whole moving forward evenly and keeps telling his men how the safety of the whole may depend on the individual.

A Soldiers' War

Generals can't fight battles in this war, he believes. They can only plan for battles. Once the battle starts things move so fast the general can't control them. Then it is the battle of the brigade commanders, the unit commanders, the troop commanders, the section commanders, and of the individual soldiers.

His own personal tank is ready for instant action. It is identical with all the other rams of the division and he calls it "Robin" after his daughter.

The general is the best-armed officer in the division. In addition to his service revolver, he wears a commando knife at his belt. The knife is made in one piece, handle and blade and is about a foot in length. The handle is wound with cord to provide a grip.

Keen on fitness the general insists on every man in the division, cooks, clerks and batmen as well as staff officers getting their share of physical training and every man must go through the tough battle drill course where he learns to fight with bare hands, knife or firearm.

The general keeps himself in the pink of condition and takes a turn with other headquarters officers in climbing the training ladder.

Ottawa Acting To Get Jobs For Wounded

TORONTO, Sept. 18. — (CP). — Acting on the policy that war disability in no way constitutes unfitness for work, the Dominion Government is taking specific steps to ensure good jobs for wounded veterans of the Second Great War, Walter S. Woods, Associate Deputy Minister of the Pensions and National Health Department, said yesterday.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Dominion Convention of the War Amputations Association of Canada, Mr. Woods said that special facilities and preferences "should and must be provided for these men who have made the greater sacrifice." Further, the rehabilitation work must start earlier than in the First Great War, he said.

Amputation cases in particular will be given special attention, Mr. Woods declared, by Personnel Services Welfare Officers, some of whom have already been appointed.

Working in all large centres in Canada where the number of disabled men being discharged warrants, these officers will investigate each amputation case individually.

Personnel of men of industry must be interested and modern psychology invoked, so that when the men left hospital it would be to take a course in training, or in a university, or to a job prepared for them beforehand.

"These Personnel services Welfare Officers do not wait until the disabled men can get around to the employment office—they meet them right in hospital as soon as the lad is well enough to discuss his future," Mr. Woods said. "Whenever the doctor will permit it they start to work and plan for the boy's future, so that no period of uncertainty occurs; no time for emotional conflict or despair...."

Given Preference.

Outlining the present Government provisions for rehabilitation of returned men, the Associate Deputy Minister said returned men already enjoyed a preference accorded to returned soldiers by the Civil Service. It was not too much to ask that certain jobs be set aside for these men—such as building inspectors, licence issuers and inspectors, meter readers and many other positions in the public service that a disabled man could perform as well, if not better, than an able-bodied man.

This, however, was not enough, and special facilities were required to ensure that any position in public service or private business or industry would be made available to them.

The attitude of many employers that loss of an arm or a leg cut off an individual's ability must be overcome. There had been a tendency to place seriously disabled men in work of an unskilled nature. This was "tragic and wasteful," Mr. Woods declared.

"Already we have amputation cases from this war," Mr. Woods stated. "....Some in fact will be coming back from the Dieppe landing before long. The loss of an arm, a leg or an eye, or the impairment of any function, should not by any means be permitted to relegate these lads to the background where they run an elevator or sit in a watchman's chair."

Mandalay Raided

NEW DEHLI, Sept. 18 (CP)—Japanese river craft and the waterfront at Mandalay were attacked by British bombers yesterday for the second time in three days, an R.A.F. communique announced today.

"Bombs fell in the quay area and a direct hit was scored on a barge," the communique said. "The result of other attacks on steamers and barges was not observed."

All the raiding planes returned safely, as they did from an earlier attack on the Irrawaddy River waterfronts of Mandalay on Monday.

Silk Undies First Says Girl Sniper

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—Lieutenant Liudmila Pavlichenko, Russian woman sniper credited with killing 309 Nazis, declared yesterday that "it is plain to see that with American women what is important is whether they wear silk underwear under their uniforms."

She added grimly: "What the uniform stands for they have yet to learn."

In an interview given Alice Hughes, radio commentator, at the Soviet Consulate here, the lieutenant said that she had been amazed by "the silly questions asked me in America."

"One woman even criticized the length of the skirt of my uniform, saying that in America women wear shorter skirts, and besides my uniform made me look fat," she added.

"This made me angry. I wear my uniform with honor. It has the Order of Lenin on it. It has been covered with blood in battle.

Westwood Institute Plans Bingo Party

WESTWOOD, Sept. 18 —(ENS)— O Canada, the Institute Ode, and prayer opened the September meeting of the Women's Institute, which was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. S. Graham, presided.

Mrs. William Renwick was appointed a delegate to the annual fall convention in Toronto. A bingo party was planned for Friday evening, October 23, and committees in charge were appointed.

The history of the harvest hymn "Come, ye thankful people, come," was given by Miss Jessie Davidson. A paper on Canadian Industries and Agriculture was given by Mrs. W. Renwick, including a suggested outline of study and activity along these lines.

A novelty contest for the "Best Rural Woman in the Community" was won by Mrs. Fred Faux, with Mrs. J. Clysdale taking second place.

4-Village Slaughter

London, Sept. 18 (CP).

A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Istanbul today quoted Belgrade reports that the Germans had shot all male inhabitants of four Yugoslav villages and sent the women and children to concentration camps in reprisal for the blowing up of a German military train.

The train, carrying troops and war supplies, was blown up by Serbian regulars on Sept. 10, it was stated, and many young officers on their way to reinforce Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps were killed.

Chart Shows Rules To Follow

"A career in dress design" sounds so glamorous and far off! But if it's what you want you CAN achieve it.

If need be, you can teach yourself—following home lessons that explain the principles of design, how to carry out your ideas.

Here is one amateur mistake to avoid at the start—don't plan lines or trimming that divide the figure equally. An unequal division is interesting, professional — as our diagram shows.

When you have sketched your design, the next step is to work it out in a pattern. You start by making a foundation pattern — a length of muslin which you pin to a dress form and then cut out at neck and arm.

Now, on this foundation, let your ideas flower! Try trimming effects, the shape of a lapel or pocket, using colored thread. Your creation begins to emerge!

Our 24-page instruction book shows with charts and diagrams each step in dress designing. Explains principles of design, making of patterns, use of color.

Warn Lake Boats As Night Gunnery Starts

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 18 (CP).—The United States Army warned fishermen and Lake captains today that it had started night-time anti-aircraft practice firing on the east coast of Lake Superior in the vicinity of Agawa Point, Ont.

The announcement, from Brig.-Gen. Trelawney E. Marchant, officer commanding the Sault Ste. Marie military area with headquarters at Fort Brady, Michigan, who said that day-time practice firing which had been carried on for some time would continue. The night firing began yesterday.

Lake shipping was warned that the practice firing creates a danger area on the Canadian side of Lake Superior from Agawa Point to Corbeil Point and extending 19 to 22 miles into the lake. Firing at towed and waterborne targets begins one hour after daylight and continues into the night, the announcement said.

The official description of the area is: "The water area enclosed by an east-west line extending from Agawa Point, Ont., to the 85-degree, five minute meridian; south along the 85-degree, five minute, meridian to an east-west line through Corbeil Point, Ont., to Corbeil Point."

The distance from Agawa Point to the indicated meridian is approximately 19 miles. The danger boundary extends approximately 32 miles south along the meridian and then 22 miles east to Corbeil Point.

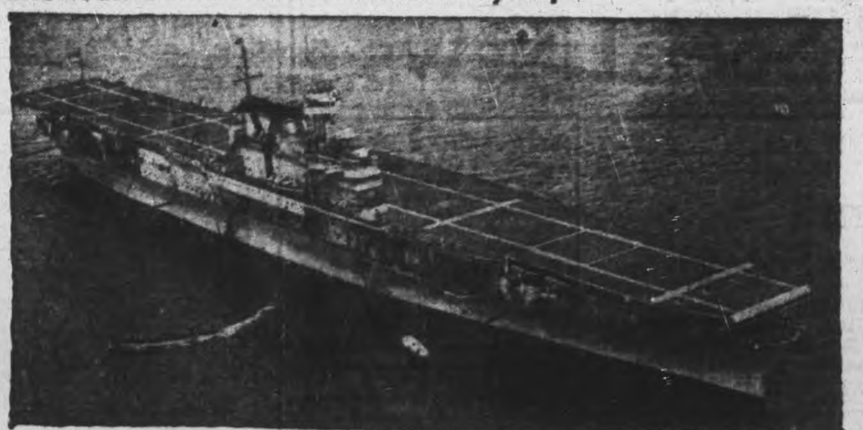
American Carrier Yorktown Sunk By Japs



Washington announces that the United States aircraft carrier Yorktown, pictured here, was sunk after the Battle of Midway, as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks. The Yorktown was first put out of action by enemy bombers and torpedo planes. Two days later as the carrier was being towed to safety, a Jap submarine fired two torpedoes into the crippled ship.

See Segregation Of Class Dying Out In U.K.

By CHARLES BRUCE

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP Cable)—Segregation of class from class is dying out in Britain and the post-war problem will be one concerning the nation as a whole rather than any particular group, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin told a group of visiting Canadian Newspapermen yesterday. He was answering a question as to what post-war planning is under way as far as labor is concerned.

"The whole tendency is to break down the segregation of classes and personally I think that's a good thing," he said. "I hope that after the war social services will be universal. What we have to do is to see that everything we plan fits finally into the nation as a whole."

Mr. Bevin was one of four Ministers who conferred with the Canadians yesterday. Others were Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, who went into detail on the rationing scheme; Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, who described air-raid precautions work, particularly that of National Fire Service, and Supply Minister Sir Andrew Duncan, well known in Canada as chairman of the 1926 Royal Commission on Maritime claims, who entertained informally.

Mr. Bevin said there is little wilful absenteeism in British industry. "It gets some publicity but when we investigate we find it is actually very low," he said. "For instance, in Scotland total absenteeism for every reason including sickness is less than five per cent."

Less Sunday Work Paying

The Labor Minister said that Sunday work has been reduced "because we find that output is bigger and better if the work is done on other days." He added there is definitely a point of diminishing returns in long work hours. "If you get over 56 hours a week there is no gain in it."

As an example of what is being done in industry, Mr. Bevin said that today's railways are being run with fewer people than before despite increased demands on on facilities. This has been achieved through regionalization. Raw material is not being shipped from one point to another for manufacture and then shipped back to the original point for distribution.

Similarly, the Labor Minister added, despite the fact the average age in industry is high, great things are being done through improved efficiency. "We have fewer men in agriculture than before the war, though there are more women, of course, and yet we have greater power of production. In industry we have always a growing reserve in the growing efficiency of people."

"It is amazing what women are doing," Mr. Bevin said in reference to this phase of national life. "Women have responded in such a way that one might say the extra weight they've thrown in has turned the scales."

Wages Up 28 Per Cent.

He said that increased salaries in some occupations represent a mixture of a war advance and raising basic conditions. This is true in mining and agriculture. The actual war-time increase in wages to meet the cost of living is 28 per cent. The actual increase in earnings accounted for by longer hours and so on is more than 47 per cent., he added. The output per unit is up 45 per cent. and the increase in the cost of living is 29 per cent.

War-time rationing in Britain is altering permanently the people's appreciation of food, in the opinion of Lord Woolton, the man who sees to it that the nation gets material to keep it fighting fit.

"The people are eating with the understanding of the proper uses of food," he said. "The fact is that in a period of privation we have improved the health of the nation."

He explained the rationing principle—to provide an adequate diet and to provide it without interruption. The supply and distribution system brings to the ministry the buying of all domestic wheat and meat and all imported foodstuffs. It regulates prices.

Through divisional food officers and registration of consumers with specified tradesmen, every householder can go to his grocer with absolute certainty that the amount of essential foods to which he is entitled is available.

"During the blitz we never failed to deliver rations in every part of this country," he said.

Particular attention is paid to the diet of children— "the generation that must clean up this mess."

Lord Woolton explained the points system by which some non-essential foods also are rationed. To "manage" the excessive demands for any particular commodity the point value of these foods is altered according to the demand. These "points" are additional to the fixed amounts allotted to individuals of essential foods like meat, butter, and cheese.

To meet the problem of the need of some workers for more food than others the canteen system has grown up by which the canteens set up in connection with heavy industries are allotted certain amounts outside the ration. Related to this are "British restaurants" designed to serve workers generally and particularly industries too small to support canteens of their own.

Lord Woolton said he is "doubly grateful" to Canada for the increase in foods imports from that country—imports of food from Canada have increased by 40 per cent since the war, though foods imports generally have decreased while home production has risen—and for the fact that imports of non-essential foods have been cut down which must have caused some economic hardship among Canadian producers.

He paid tribute to the women of England, many of whom have banded themselves together with the names "Queen's Mesengers" to go on call to blitzed areas by day or night to assure the proper care and feeding of people bombed out of their homes.

Mr. Morrison said that in connection with the setup of the National Fire Service there now is a party of Canadian firemen in Britain — a friendly gesture on the part of Canada. He felt they would go back to Canada better firemen as a result of their experience.

Hydro Rationing To Be Mild Against Others

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 18.—(CP)—Hydro was not caught unprepared for war, but it was caught unprepared for the fall of France and for the Nazi domination of Europe and the domination of the Far East by Japan, Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said in an address prepared for delivery here yesterday.

"We had planned for ample power resources before these tragic events took place," he said, explaining that since then industrial organizations had to be reorganized. This change created unprecedented demands for new distribution facilities, Dr. Hogg said, adding that new problems have constantly arisen in power supply "which somehow must be met and with the help of every Hydro municipality I am sure they will be met."

Referring to the restrictions on electricity, Dr. Hogg said: "I might remind you, however, that the ration of electricity this winter will really be insignificant compared to the rationing of other commodities. You already know how much rubber you can buy to operate your cars. You know how little steel, copper or aluminum you can purchase, and your wives know all about the drastic reduction in the use of silk, coffee, sugar and tea.

"Compare these drastic reductions with the comparatively small restriction which will be effected in the use of electricity." He said that to prevent interruptions use of electricity must be cut from 10 to 15 per cent. "This is really a minor rationing in our economic life," he added, warning that it will be "very apparent when street lights are dimmed and shop window lights extinguished."

Speaking of Hydro onditions in Eastern Ontario, Dr. Hogg said that in general "Eastern Ontario has nothing to be apprehensive about."

"You have a system that is extremely well-suited to your requirements," he said. "Your generating costs compare favorably with the Niagara and Georgian Bay systems. You have an abundance of undeveloped power sites at locations well-suited to your needs."

Ladies Hold Tea For Benefit Of British Babies

The ladies of Chamberlain street and Douglas avenue were entertained by Mrs. William Mantell and Miss Oliye Morley at the latter's home on Chamberlain street at a tea in aid of the bombed out districts in Britain. Each guest brought a gift for a baby in Britain.

Tea was served from prettily arranged tables on the lawn and a pleasant hour enjoyed. The generous gifts included fancy soaps and oils, safety pins, wool jackets, baby quilts, coats, bootees, bonnets wool shirts, pillows and sheets and everything a new baby could need. There were also several donations of cash. These gifts will be sent through the Excelsior Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School, to Mrs. Norman Buckley, Salvation Army, who will forward them to Britain.

O'Connor—Rogers

LINDSAY, Sept. 18 — St. Paul's Anglican church was the wedding scene Wednesday when Gladys Twigg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Rogers, became the bride of Vernon William O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Connor, Peterborough. Rev. A. J. Goldring officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length white silk jersey gown with long tulle veil caught by a halo of rosebuds and orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Her attendant was Mrs. H. Plewis, of Peterborough, while Miss Betty Rogers was flower girl. Harvey Plewis was groomsman and ushers were W. E. Rogers and F. Long, of Peterborough. At the following reception the bride's mother received, assisted by the groom's mother. Following a wedding trip the newlyweds will reside at Kirkland Lake.

Miss R. Young Addresses Women's Council On Day Nursery Set-up

The Local Council of Women heard three excellent talks on work of various kinds that is being done in Peterborough. The speakers were heard at the regular meeting on Thursday afternoon in the recreation room of the Y.W.C.A., with Mrs. E. Wand, president, in the chair.

Mr. Lionel Scott, of War-time Housing, gave a talk on the establishment of community centres in the War-Time Housing areas. He pointed out that many of the people in these areas, were new, even to this part of Canada; they do not know anyone in Peterborough, do not know each other. It is the purpose of the War-Time Housing authorities to extend the facilities of organizations in Peterborough to the people in these areas, and to see that they develop a healthy and contented home and community life. An old house near the Jackson Park area is already being re-conditioned to make a community centre which will house the group activities of these new citizens of Peterborough. Use of the Centre, however, will not be confined to people living in the housing areas. It is hoped that everyone in the neighborhood will avail themselves of its privileges.

The centres will be convenient meeting places for Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Red Cross Units, Garden Clubs, and and ony other community and group activities which may arouse the interest of the neighbourhood. Mr. Scott said that at present all he asked was the good will of the Local Council of Women and of all other organizations in the city. Later they might want help or advice.

Mrs. Charles Ray spoke on behalf of the Blood Donors' Clinic recently established in Peterborough. She said that the Clinic was more than overseas service and cited several instances in which the donors had given transfusions at the local hospitals in an emergency and said that the Clinic also helped to build up a blood bank in Peterborough, in case of sudden catastrophe.

She described the advantages of the dried blood which can be used at the scene of an accident or disaster, even by the side of the road, thus saving the patient the shock of being moved about while suffering from loss of blood. Also, in using serums made of the dried blood, blood types are not important, and there is no time wasted looking for a donor with the proper blood type. The dried blood is also easily carried.

There are 35 of these clinics throughout Canada and 20 of them send the blood to Toronto, where the red corpuscles are removed in a revolving machine and the serum is dried by refrigeration. The dried blood is packed in bottles which are in turn packed in metal cases, ready for transportation. All that is required to make it ready for use is the addition of distilled water.

The Red Cross is responsible for the establishment of the Clinics and the procuring of donors and the shipping of the blood to Toronto, but the drying and shipping are done by the Government. So far the work has required 4,000 donors a week, throughout Canada, but the demand is shortly to be raised to 6,000. There are 100,000 donors in Canada. The Peterborough Clinic has agreed to supply 100 donors a week, but so far that quota has only been met once. However, the average has been very good and it is hoped that the quota will be reached and surpassed in a few weeks.

Miss Rachael Young, supervisor of the Children's Aid Society, spoke on the need for Day Nurseries in Peterborough. She said that the Dominion and Provincial Governments had reached an agreement regarding the establishment of these nurseries. They will be used primarily for the children of war-workers, but this phrase will be somewhat broadly interpreted. The province will be the administrative body and will set up facilities, which will be supervised by the Department of Public Welfare.

Organization of these nurseries will be held up until the province has appointed a committee composed of representatives of local churches, labor and health organizations and education authorities, who will supervise the establishment of the nursery and see that proper standards are maintained. The finances will be shared by the Dominion and Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government may withdraw its support where the number of children accommodated is less than 20. The plan is primarily for pre-school children, but in communities where a large number of children of school age require a noon meal, or where the younger school age children are left unsupervised for long periods of time, consideration will be given to school age children.

Miss Young pointed out that voluntary workers who were willing to put in the same hours as the factory workers; that is, from 7 in the morning to six at night, would be required to run the nurseries.

Two ladies, Miss M. Anglin, and Miss Helen Young, were introduced to the Council as newcomers to the city. Miss Anglin represents the Protestant churches, and is here to further the work of the church among industrial workers. Miss Young is assisting Mr. Scott in the community work in the Wartime Housing areas.

It was announced that Miss R. Duff, field secretary of the W.C.T.U. would address the local W.C.T.U. in the Green Room on Wednesday afternoon; and that the Peterborgough Presbyterial of the W.A. would be held at Knox Church next Thursday, beginning at 9.30 a.m.

Misses Marjorie Miles and Eleanor Draper of Peterborough spent the week-end at the home of Miss Ida Switzer.

Mrs Martha Wright has returned home after spending the past couple of months with her sister Mrs. Wilson of Elmvale.

Fellow Employees Honor Clemena Long

Miss Clemena Long, faithful and well-known employee of the city was feted by her fellow employees and the City Council on Thursday evening, in honor of her approaching marriage. The celebration took the form of a dinner at the Peterborough Golf Club, which was attended by the office staff at the City Buildings, the Mayor, representatives of the Council, the Board of Works, the fire and police departments.

Mayor J. Hamilton was toastmaster and paid tribute to the guest of honor in a short speech, as did Mr. M. E. Shaver, city treasurer, Alderman Dutton, Dr. D. B. Avison, and Mr. F. Adams, former city treasurer. Miss Long was presented with a Governor Winthrop desk and chair by Mr. Shaver on behalf of all her fellow employees.

Miss Doris Strickland and Miss Eleanor Taylor added to the pleasure of the guests with a piano duet and Mr. Edward Humpage contributed a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Alma Blanchard.

After the departure of the gentlemen, the bride-to-be was honored by the girls of the office staff, who held a miscellaneous shower for her, at which she received many beautiful gifts.

Joint Meeting Opens Season For Young People

The Young People's Unions of Knox and George Street United Churches opened their fall season with a joint out-door meeting at Alcott's cottage on the river. It was a typical camp meeting and the young people were happy to have as their guests Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Honey of Baltimore.

A vesper service beside the river opened the evening. The service was conducted by Miss Marjorie Lewis, assisted by Misses Dorothy Smith, Norma Gardiner and Loretta McDougall. Mrs. Honey gave a splendid talk on the theme, "the power of prayer."

After the service a camp-fire was lighted and the young people enjoyed the singing of favorite songs under the leadership of Miss Gladys Gerrard. A young people's prayer, with news of the Unions, preceded a talk by Mr. Honey. A "friendship circle" and "Taps" concluded the camp-fire.

Miss Connie Lewis and her committee served a very welcome lunch and the members left after a very enjoyable evening, to the strains of "Sing Your Way Home."

Bonarlaw

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilen of Toronto returned home on Friday last after spending one week of their honeymoon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Neal.

Mary Alice Drew Is Wed To Clifford Keeler

St. Thomas' Anglican church was the scene of a pretty early fall wedding on Monday at 2.30 p.m., when Mary Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Drew, of Carmel, was united in marriage to Clifford Charles, son of Mrs. James Darch, and the late T. C. Keeler, of Cobourg. The rector of Cavan parish, Rev. A. E. Chevis, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was becomingly gowned in a street length dress of Alice blue crepe, with hat in dusky pink, white accessories, and carrying a bouquet of coral Talisman roses. She was attended by Miss Margaret Pollard, of Canton, who wore rose crepe, and Donald Keeler was his brother's best man. The ushers were Messrs. Edgar Keeler and Charles Drew, brother of the bride.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, south of the village, Mrs. Drew receiving wearing a dress of navy Chantilly lace with matching hat, and the groom's mother wearing moss green crepe, with beige hat. Later Mr. and Mrs. Keeler left for their honeymoon, the bride choosing for travelling a dress of sand crepe with accessories in a lighter shade. Upon their return they will reside at Cobourg.

A High Gold Standard

Although conservative of brim and crown, the cascading ostrich feather trim of this small formal hat gives it a very fancy effect. Gold velour with matching feathers.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF A HIGH HAT is good formal wear, why isn't a gold high hat that much better? The pretty town hat above, correct for the early autumn and perfectly able to carry on into fur-clad winter, is made of gold velour, and its foaming feather fancy of ostrich flues, which trims while it heightens the hat's silhouette, is a cascade of gold itself.

Your new neutral colored clothes, which are pale because they conserve dyes, will take kindly to gold color accents; so will your furs whatever their color. There are but few complexions to which gold as a shade is utterly repellent, and if you are interested, you'll find plenty gold accessories in all price ranges.

DOROTHY DIX

ALL WOMEN SHOULD THINK TWICE BEFORE THEY TALK

Millions of Words on Same Subject Are So Much Wasted Breath.

A WISE woman of my acquaintance, who has brought up successfully a family of boys, declares that her tongue is an inch shorter now than it used to be because she had chewed off that much of it by keeping from asking them where they were going when they started out of an evening, what they were going to do, and when they would be home.

'Of course," she adds, "all mothers know the futility of putting their children through questionnaires about all their movements because if they are going to do the right thing it makes no difference whether we know it or not, and if they are going to do things of which we disapprove they won't tell us the truth about it. Yet we can't resist giving them the third degree, although we are perfectly aware that nothing else irritates them so much and that we send them away thinking Mother is a nosy old thing who is always prying into their affairs.

"We forget that confidences can't be forced. They have to be spontaneous and that if we will let our children alone and respect their right to mental privacy they will tell us of their own accord the things we could not force out of them with the rack or thumb screws.

"Anyway, we women talk too much, especially at home. We can't say a thing once and let it go at that. We play upon it continually as upon a harp with a thousand strings. It becomes our theme song which we hum, and sing, and shout, until it gets on our family's nerves and makes them resolve not to be bullied into doing what we want them to do.

"A word in season may change a child's whole life, but millions of words on the same subject are just so much wasted breath. The child doesn't listen or pay the slightest attention to them. It is just Mom grouching over his not hanging up his trousers, or eating his spinach, or not coming straight home from school, and if she was not picking on him about one thing she would be about something else. So what's the difference? The children of mothers whose every sentence begins with 'don't' do as they please because their mothers have lost their influence over them by too much speaking.

"Husbands universally regard nagging as the worst fault a wife can have. A man will pay an extravagant wife's bills with no more than a groan of protest and love her still, as long as she refrains from reminding him of his faults and foibles. A man will let his wife poison him with bad cooking and make him live in a house that is like a pig sty if only she will forget the time he got his feet wet, or came home lit from the class banquet.

"But any wife who tells her husband every time he lights his cigar how bad tobacco is for his heart; who never lets him eat a meal in peace because she is sure he isn't getting the vitamins she thinks he needs; who never ceases to upbraid him about the ten dollars he lent an old schoolmate twenty years ago; who recalls every mistake he ever made and never ceases to say, 'I told you so' does it at her peril. It's their wives' tongues that pick the lock and open the door for the Other Woman in the great majority of divorce cases.

"By talking too much, women destroy their rating with their husbands. Men take their wives at their own valuation, and as long as a wife toots her own horn and tells her husband what a wonder he is, he is patting himself on the back and thinking what a picker he is. But if a wife runs to her husband with the tales of every mistake she makes he gets sorry for himself for having chosen such a dumbbell as a mate. Wise is the wife who dumps her sad cake in the garbage can and says nothing about it, but flaunts her angel food in her husband's face and says, I did it.'"

The moral of all this is that women should think twice before they speak and then not be repeaters.

This Is Everybody's War

By MOLLY BROWN

The movies are a medium of education, the possibilities of which have not been fully explored, or even imagined. Children, and most adults as well, remember longer and more vividly something they saw in the movies than they would if they read the same thing in a book or a newspaper or had it read to them over the radio. There is probably a good reason for this but it doesn't matter now.

Movies have been used a great deal of late to educate people on matters relating to the war. They have been use to explain the hows, the whys, and the wherefores of rationing and price-ceilings; to encourage recruiting, to boost the sale of war savings stamps and victory bonds.

Other pictures, notably an excellent series entitled "Carry On Canada," attempt with varying success to show the importance of different aspects of the war. All these are government-made films. News reels too, have played their part. And Hollywood, capital of the motion picture world, which makes films for entertainment and profit, has tried to do its share.

Hollywood films, for reasons too numerous to mention here, not all of which are Hollywood's fault, have been perhaps the least successful. The movie industry's contribution to the propaganda output has taken the form of more or less acceptable entertainment. Sugar-coated pills, in fact, in which there was sometimes more sugar than pill.

In these films the armies and navies of the Allied Powers have been noticeably neglected in favor of the air forces. That is understandable, if not excusable. The "men with wings" are very much in the limelight just now, and have been since the beginning and the naval service of any country is traditionally and rather necessarily a silent one in war-time. Moreover there is an idea abroad Hollywood that when a man has a pair of silver wings pinned on his chest, he automatically become a glamor-boy.

Several Hollywood pictures have dealt with the adventures of Americans in the R.A.F. These were fine, thrilling entertainment, and they probably stimulated enlistments in the air force. But they were all cut from the same pattern, and showed the Americans as bumptious boys in search of adventure being put in their place and taught manners by the peerless gods of the R.A.F. A pretty picture, but not strictly accurate, and monotonous after a while.

At least two of these pictures claimed to embody, as their high spot, impressive and authentic pictures of the evacuation of Dunkirk. These turned out to be rather inferior newsreel shots, easily the weakest spot in the entire production.

But Hollywood has made amends for this. In a picture that deals with the effect of the war on a peaceful, secluded English village; in a dozen lines of dialogue and a few hundred feet of film, Hollywood has managed to do all the newsreels failed to do; to convey an unforgettable impression of the horror, the tragedy and the high courage that was Dunkirk. Only great artistic ability allied to deep sincerity of purpose on the part of the director and the players could have produced the Dunkirk sequences in "Mrs. Miniver."

Criticisms have been made of this picture. It is said to glorify a social caste system and a snobbery that no longer exist and which no one wishes to have back; that the characters are the stock figures with which Hollywood believes all English villages to be inhabited.

There is a certain truth in these criticisms; the minor characters are stock figures and it is just possible that snobbery has vanished from England and everywhere else, though it is doubtful. But the leading characters in Mrs. Miniver are individuals, not symbols of class or caste; they merely happen to be wealthy and aristocratic. And money and social position or the lack of them have very little to do with courage. The criticisms are mean and poor-spirited when the picture is regarded as a whole. The dauntless courage of these individuals is typical of all the English people, and the whole picture is a magnificent tribute on the part of Hollywood to that courage.

With or Without Blouse

The slim, smartly casual suit, that can be worn with or without a blouse would be a useful addition to any wardrobe. The jacket has patch-pockets simulated with stitching and a slim, straight skirt. The casual box coat with the fluffy fur collar is cut on straight, economical lines. Fur collars will be fashionable this year and so far there is no restriction in the use of fur.

The Experts Say . . . .

By ISABEL ALLAN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—(CP)—Wartime hints for housewives on the home front from those who ought to know.

FRUITS—A recent survey in Canada shows vitamin C to be the second most common dietary deficiency. But Dr. L. B. Pett, director of Nutrition Services has a word of encouragement. He says lots of tomatoes and citrus fruits will quickly remedy this.

PAPER CLIPS—Take care of those paper clips, D. P. Cruikshank, coordinator of the metals administration, says. After the end of September the only metals available for their manufacture will be silver and gold. This means of course they won't be made at all. So the next time you see one on the floor, pick it up, don't leave it for the broom and dust pan.

WASTE—"Think twice before you put anything in the garbage pail these days," advises Marion Harlow, assistant director of Nutrition services. Here are two tips she has to conserve food—shred the outside leaves of lettuce for salads or soups; grind cabbage hearts up and add to the soup pot. Remember the old adage, "Waste not, want not."

PURSES—Now you can't afford a new handbag as often as before with the new tax you should take extra care of your old ones. The women of Britain have some ideas on the subject. Here are some of the tricks they use—rub your bag occasionally with a soft cloth moistened with olive oil, and polish it with a dry duster; to clean brown leather, rub with a piece of peeled raw potato; to treat stains on suede bags, use a fine emery board, brush well and steam over boiling water to revive color, then brush while damp.

DRINKS—Do you belong to a club that serves refreshments at meetings? If so Bryne Sanders, "Mrs. Consumer" of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board suggests you make it apple juice, tomato juice, bouillon, vegetable soup or anything else you can think of that is made from Canadian products. Miss Sanders also adds "we must get away from the feeling that there must be cakes and sweets at any function."

JÉLLY—It's jelly time now in Canada on the farm or in the city and here are some jelly-making tips that both the experienced cook and the bride should find useful, from Laura Pepper, chief of the consumer section of the Department of Agriculture. Fruit juice will jell only if sufficient pectin is added, so buy under-ripe fruits, Miss Pepper suggests. Use only enough water to prevent fruit from burning to extract the juice—heat your sugar before you add to the fruit juice and boil quickly until jelly breaks off when dropped on a spoon.

For Saturday, September 19

Conflicting issues and difficult situations may arise on this day, to be solved by sagacity, prudence and the assistance of trustworthy and influential friends in high places. Seek their aid and advice and move without extravagance either in behavior, or financially. Be wise in travel, change, investments.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of excellent prospects of advancement, preferment and promotion, with favors and sound advice from those in high places. At the same time there may be loss, financially, and in prestige, and popularity, possibly due to over-indulgence and extravagance in behavior, show, carelessness as to the truth and general integrity and stability. Travel carefully, be careful of writings.

A child born on this day may require very rigid and careful training by precept and example, lest it run into danger through careless, easy and expedient conduct and extravagance.

Co-ed Little Boy Suit

The three-button jacket and pedal-pusher short slacks are made of gray flannel, and ensembled from separate pieces to make a campus suit. Eton cap matches; note tan calf oxfords.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU are going to pedal your way through most of this year's campus actiivties, give a thought to the little boy pants which look like a winner among the more novel fashions.

The line is usually becoming to most youthful figures, both the plump girl and her more streamlined sisters, having, as a rule, fairly presentable gams from the knee-down. There is no doubt that the fashion is practical for hikers, and worth a try on that score.

If you mate pants and jacket, as shown above, an additional matching skirt gives a girl a three-piece suit with one version suitable for town wear, with or without a top coat.

Blast Bengasi

CAIRO, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Allied heavy bombers made a daylight attack yesterday on the Axis supply port of Bengasi, more than 500 miles west of the Egyptian battlefront, scoring hits on two ships and setting one on fire, a British communique announced to-day.

At the same time, the bulletin said, British fighters were active over the battle area, shooting down at least two enemy aircraft and damaging many others. One British plane was lost.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SANE TIME-SAVING

YOU HEAR people remark that they never again will claim the remaining tricks of a hand, or concede them, just because there has been some discussion of an unsatisfactory nature. Being careful about such matters is wise, but refusing ever to claim or concede tricks is merely an inconsiderate waste of other people's time. When it is absolutely certain that you can take the remaining tricks, you owe your opponents the courtesy of sane time-saving. By the same token, if it becomes absolutely certain your side can take no more, the same reason should impel you to concede the others.

There are several points of interest to that bidding, which came with four of the world's greatest players meeting in the World's Championship Masters Pairs, won by Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Al. M. Sobel, of New York, who were respectively East and West on this deal. Howard Schenken, of the Four Aces, was South, and Lee Hazen, whose four later won the team championship, was in the North.

An effort to steer the hand into No Trumps instead of suit caused Mr. Hazen to answer the opener with spades instead of raising hearts with four of them, as the scoring was match-point. When Mr. Schenken forced with 2-No-Trumps instead of 3-Diamonds, his partner knew there was no danger in his indicating tops of that suit with his second bid. That encouraged Mr. Schenken to invite slam, an invitation which Mr. Hazen gladly accepted.

Now for the moral of this hand. After Mr. Goren led the diamond 9, Mr. Schenken looked his riches over, saw that he could positively take 12 tricks and spread his hand, conceding one trick to the Spade A. His opponents promptly granted his claim.

How silly it would have been to play that hand out, in the hope that someone would discard the Spade A. Also, how silly it would have been for the defenders, after seeing his hand, to refuse to concede the rest of the tricks.

Ferguson Named

DETROIT, Sept. 18. — (AP).— Michigan Republicans voting in Tuesday's primary election chose Detroit's racket-busting Judge Homer Ferguson as their candidate for the United States Senate, rejecting the bid of Gerald L. K. Smith, former Huey Long aide, for the nomination.

Unofficial returns from 2,976 of the state's 3,751 precints, including 900 from Wayne County (Detroit) gave Ferguson 163,674 votes; Smith 92,922, and Elton R. Eaton, Plymouth newspaper publisher, 37,518.

Rumor Clinic

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP)—Establishment of a "rumor clinic" on the lines of a Montreal clinic, was recommended by Ed Wall, educational director of the Confederation Life Assurance Company, to a service club here last night.

Montreal has established such a clinic with the principal of McGill University, Dr. F. C. James, as its chairman, Mr. Wall said, and it has performed service to the country by investigating rumors and proving them false.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—(AP). — Membership of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians last night endorsed unanimously the fight of James C. Petrillo, Federation President, against recorded music and voted its "fullest confidence" in his leadership. The vote was the first expression of opinion of any of the Federation's members since the union's ban on recordings [illegible] effect August 1 and the Department of Justice started its anti-trust suit against the organization—

NoHopeOfEasing Battle On Inflation

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (CP) — With a year of price-ceiling control almost completed, Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said adjustments to meet cases of extreme hardship or seasonal factors have been made and the board "now proposes to resist any further claims in this respect."

(Price ceilings generally are based on prices charged in Canada during the basic period September 15-October 11 last year.)

In his statement Mr. Gordon said that "what has to be fought now is an assumption in any quarter that the battle against inflation has been won.

"The threat of a disastrous inflation is as real now as it ever was and the danger will be ever-present under conditions of war."

Any thought that Canada could relax controls enforced to prevent a runaway rise in the cost of living was based on "fallacious reasoning."

The heavy taxation imposed in the 1942-43 budget, coupled with the likelihood that the United States would enforce an over-all control of wages and farm prices, bringing their prices ceiling policy into harmony with that of Canada, had given rise to suggestions that Canada would be able to allow a breathing spell in its policy of price control.

Need More Care Than Ever

"Nothing can be more dangerous," he said. "Now, more than ever before, we need the utmost determination to keep prices stabilized."

Increasing requirements of the armed forces and the "critical scarcity of manpower" were cited as factors which were bound to result in dwindling supplies of goods and services available for civilian use.

"Price control does not permit these short supplies being auctioned off to the highest bidder and thus prevents the disorganization and inequities of inflation by enforcing price stabilization, in which direct controls are substituted for price incentive as a means of regulating production and consumption," Mr. Gordon said.

"Since the price ceiling was announced by the Prime Minister last October, the main struggle has been to set up an administrative machinery which will not only stabilize prices but will direct scarce production resources into the most necessary channels and share out in an equitable manner the civilian goods which are in short supply.

"Under existing conditions, and looking ahead to the future, it is clear that efforts along this line must be greatly intensified rather than relaxed."

Play Acey-Ducey Waiting Death

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18 (AP)—Coxswain Howard Sites, one of the survivors of the lost United States aircraft carrier Yorktown, told here yesterday how two trapped carpenter's mates faced death in a compartment five deck below the flight deck.

"They were in a compartment still dry, but there was water all around them," he said. "It was hopeless to try to get them out. The telephones were still working and they called down to the trapped men: 'Do you know what kinda fix you're in?'

"'Sure'," they called back. 'We know you can't get us out, but we got a helluva good acey-ducey game goin' on down here right now.

"'When you do sink her, put the torpedoes up forward. We don't want it to last long'."

Expect National Service In U.S. To Raise Labor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A government attempt to determine the future manpower needs of the armed forces and industry in the United States was disclosed to Congress today amid indications the administration soon would seek a national service to combat labor shortages.

Wendell Lund, director of the war production board's labor division, said government agencies are preparing a decision "on the largest and most efficient possible army which can be fully serviced by those who are left outside the armed forces."

"Until that decision is made, twin dangers face the nation's war effort," he said in a statement submitted to the House of Representatives committee on defence migation. Donald Nelson, W.P.B. chief, also is scheduled to appear before the committee.

"On the one hand," Lund said, "workers may be taken out of jobs into the army in such a way as to cripple production the armed forces need for their maximum efficiency. On the other hand there is danger the armed forces may be denied the men they need to operate the war machine.

"Until this decision is made the selective service and the war manpower commission are gravely hampered in their parallel responsibilities of manning the armed forces and industry."

Paul McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, told the commission yesterday that a national service act, giving the government broad controls over the country's labor resources, is "inevitable" and essential to maximum production.

"I think the people are ready for it," he declared. He said no decision has been reached on the form of the legislation as yet.

A national selective service act, under direction of Elliott M. Little, director of Canada's national selective service, has been in effect in Canada since Sept. 1. It includes these mains points:—

No worker may quit his job without giving his employer seven days' notice in writing.

No employer may lay off or discharge any worker without seven days' notice in writing.

No employer may interview or discharge any worker unless such worker has a permit to seek employment. Permits are obtainable from regional offices of national selective service across the Dominion.

The regulations do not mean "freezing" of workers in existing jobs. The selective service department has emphasized that compulsion will not be exercised at present in moving persons into essential industries but workers changing jobs will be asked to go into essential work where manpower is short.

Doctors, Nurses Needed In China

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 18 — (CP). — General Council of the United Church of Canada yesterday recommended an appeal be made immediately for young doctors and nurses in the Army to volunteer for medical service in China after the war, in view of the great task of rehabilitation which will develop there.

The motion, proposed by the Committee on Foreign Missions, said the appeal was necessary in order to have candidates ready for service at that time. The measure recommended that after the war assistance be given doctors and nurses recommended by the missions in undertaking post-graduate study in Canada. It suggested this aid might be given both financially and through scholarships, and also through helping such students secure suitable positions in hospitals and medical institutions.

The report pointed out there was great need for reconstructing and re-equipping bombed and looted hospitals in China, and urged the work of the Red Cross Society continue at the close of the war.

It suggested Army authorities be approached on the possibility of presenting needy hospitals in China with such articles as X-ray apparatus, surgical instruments and the other hospital supplies if and when there are no longer needed by the military.

Pittsburg Car Showrooms Converted Into War Production

PITTSBURG, Sept. 18. — Many auto dealers in Pittsburg and vicinity have become in fact the "resourceful Americans" everyone hears about.

They're converting to war production. It's a minor development thus far, but it bears promise of greater expansion and carries high hopes for dealers who have seen the war punch the bottom out of their businesses.

Their enterprise has gone so far that—

One is using his "used car" room to turn out finished assemblies for war equipment.

One, in Aliquippa, Pa., sews parachutes.

One works in his display room making gauges for bomb manufacturers.

Another produces small parts for bomb fuses. Still another has set up a "general store" in the room where he formerly sold cars. Several dealers have begun selling household accessories; one operates a bus line on the side and one sells farm implements.

About 85 per cent of Allegheny County's auto dealers still do business at their old stands. They still have some trade in selling and repairing cars but, with increasing restrictions, it's not like the good old days and many have been required to "convert" their shops or give up altogether.

A dealer in residential South Hills somehow acquired $6,000 worth of machine tools, including lathes, drill presses, electric saws and various precision instruments. After installing the machines in his showrooms he went after business—and got it.

In Duquesne, a dealer went into the bus business when auto sales began dropping. Duquesne is booming. Soon he had to expand his bus fleet. Today his bus line far overshadows his auto business.

An auto dealer at Washington, Pa., now is turning out parts for hand grenades.

REDS POURING SIBERIANS IN STALINGRAD BREACH

CANADIAN DESTROYER RAMS GERMAN U-BOAT IN FIERCE DUEL

The ABOVE photograph, one of the most graphic taken during the present war, shows the U-boat slithering away from the bows of H.M.C.S. Assiniboine as the Canadian destroyer attempted to ram her. The action at some stages, was fought at extremely close range—often no more than a few feet. Assiniboine just missed ramming the raider when this photo was shot by a member of the crew, but her accuracy was deadly later, and the sub was crashed by Assiniboine's bows. The raider stood suspended in the ocean for a moment after it was rammed, then was swallowed up by the waves. Her survivors were picked up, some of them being taken on board the Canadian destroyer. Hitler Is Thirty Days Late Already

Stalingrad Saves Russia For '42—Allies To Do It In '43

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (CP) — The Russian soldiers and civilians holding Stalingrad on the Volga have made sure of one thing—Hitler will never conquer Russia in 1942.

By their almost unbelieveable powers of resistance and by dying in thousands ,while taking many more Germans with them to the grave, these men and women of Stalingrad definitely have thwarted Hitler's plan to crush Russia this year, in the opinion of informed military circles here. They dislocated Hitler's time table perhaps by as much as 30 days and they will make it possible for Premier Joseph Stalin to make good on his promise to Washington and London that when the spring campaign of 1943 rolls around, Russia will be in there fighting.

It is true that Russia's military position today is acute, but, to bring Prime Minister Churchill up to date, "This is Sept. 19" and winter is approaching, the winter that blocked the Germans last year when they were at the gates of Moscow, the winter that has saved Russia time and time again in her long, turbulent history.

Red Army Still Intact

It is true, of course, that winter may not halt the Germans in the south, nor rob them of their summer gains. But what is vitally important is this: the Russians have escaped destruction so far this summer and fall, when the full fury of the German attack could be unleashed and today the Red Army remains a fighting, well-directed and capable unit. If the Germans could not crush the Red Army in the summer months, when they had the full advantage of the attack and of military superiority, is it reasonable to assume they can do it in the long winter months ahead?

How long the German time-table was thrown out by the heroic defence of Stalingrad may not become known until after the war. Similarly, it is not known what price the Russians exacted from the Germans in the form of manpower and machines, but the toll must have been colossal. The Russians literally paved the road to Stalingrad with German bodies.

Military observers here have been perplexed all along by Hitler's orders to his army to take Stalinrgad at all costs. They suggest its capture has not been worth the price unless Hitler needed it as an anchor for his line from Voronezh eastward in order to improve his left flank position. But if so, that means another campaign against the main Russian army and even if he drives on to Astrakan on the Caspian Sea, and he probably will, that will not knock out Russia. There will remain millions of men north of the Volga to keep him busy through the winter.

It is not enough to say merely that the Russians will be in there fighting in 1943 because on that basis the Germans might be expected to repeat next year the victories they gained this year and eventually the Russians might be pushed beyond the Urals.

That picture leaves out the all-important question of a second front and the ever-present war of attrition against the Reich and German-held countries by sea and by air. A land offensive against Germany leaving aside for the moment any consideration of Dieppe-like raids is considered almost a certainty for the spring of 1943. By then, the American production machine should be under full throttle and the United States, alone, will have an army of 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 men It will be then that the sacrifices of the men and women who defended Satlingrad and held up the German advance for so many precious days will be avenged and not alone on the Russian battlefield.

Blazing Jap Base Visible 50 Miles

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 19 (CP)—For the second successive day Allied bombers yesterday blasted the Japanese bases in New Guinea and New Britain from which supplies and reinforcements are sent to enemy forces held in check by Australian troops only 32 airline miles from Port Moresby.

Bombers made a "harassing night raid" on Rabaul, New Britain—also an important Japanese base for operations in the Solomon Islands—and started fires visible for 50 miles, an Allied communique said. Salamaua, Lae and Buna in New Guinea also were attacked.

The most immediate supply point for the Japanese now trying to push down the south side of the Owen Stanley range toward Port Moresby is at Buna on the northeast New Guinea coast. Allied fighters swooped down on Japanese transport and supply facilities there and poured burst after burst of machine-gun and cannon fire into them.

A reconnaissance unit, surveying the effect of Thursday's attack on the port, reported 27 burned barges, used to carry supplies along the coast, on the beach.

Farther up the New Guinea coast at Salamaua and Lae, heavy bombers started "numerous fires," the communique said.

Fighting on the road to Port Moresby was yesterday described in the communique as minor and apparently still centred in the vicinity of the village of Ioribaiva on the south side of the range. The action

Four-Tonners Flattening Boche Cities

Scatter Square Mile In Duesseldorf; Triple Hun Biggest

LONDON, Sept. 19—(CP). — A giant four-ton bomb designed to smash steel and concrete buildings and shatter lighter structures for blocks, already has been used to blight German cities, it was disclosed today, and some British air observers hailed the monster destroyer as the "war's deadliest weapon."

The new bombs—which the Air Ministry said were used with devastating effect in recent attacks on Karlsruhe and Duessedorf—were accepted as a sign the Allies are planning to scourge the Reich with the deadliest instruments of destruction they can bring to the job in the shortest possible time.

In Karlsruhe, 270 acres were laid waste and more than a square mile of Duesseldorf was wrecked when the giant bombs were employed September 2, the Air Ministry said. Thousands of fire bombs were showered among the wreckage to spread great fires.

The four-ton bombs were said to have been perfected after months of research. A large bomber then carried one to Germany and dropped it over an area not previously attacked. Aerial photographs were taken to show its effect.

Using 2-Tonners a Year

About a year ago the Air Minstry reported the use of two-ton bombs on Naples and said "great havoc was caused, buildings being seen swaying outwards and then falling in toward the point of the bomb bursts." Now the weight of the biggest bombs has been doubled.

Londoners who saw the shattering effect of Germany's largest bombs —believed to be about 3,000 pounds —cheered when they heard the R.A.F. is using bombs nearly three times as heavy.

Only a few types of the largest bombers are able to lift the new bombs off the ground.

German broadcasts telling the German people not to keep large pieces of British bombs as souvenirs were taken by observers an an indication Germany is anxious to obtain details of the construction of this new weapon.

British officials were tight-lipped on details of the bomb and refused to permit even vague descriptions.

The Daily Mail's air correspondent said, however, he had seen one of the 8,000 pounders being loaded into a four-engine bomber "and the mere size of the monster was awesome enough."

Bombers Scatter Hun Waters Full Of Mines

LONDON, Sept. 19—(CP). — A large force of bombers scattered mines in enemy waters last night, coastal command and naval aircraft attacked shipping off the Netherlands coast and fighter pilots raided railway targets in occupied France, the Air Ministry announced today.

Five bombers were lost in the night operations, the communique said.

The Air Ministry made no mention of any bomber attacks on German Baltic ports by British bombers as reported by today's German high command communique.

A single German air raider bombed and machine-gunned an area on the southeast coast of Britain in daylight after sweeping low across the English Channel and dodging through heavy anti-aircraft defences.

First reports indicated there were no casualties, however.

There was no aerial activity over Britain during the night and the R.A.F. presumably was grounded by bad weather over the continent, although reports from Stockholm said a number of planes—later described by the German-controlled Paris radio as British—had crossed the west coast of Sweden.

The Stockholm dispatches said Swedish anti-aircraft batteries had fired warning shots at the planes. Shortly before their appearance observers on the Swedish coast reported hearing heavy explosions in the direction of Denmark, 15 miles away by sea.

Huns Use Soviet Uniforms Driving Third Wedge In Volga River City Streets

Flaming Buildings Light Night Skies; Battle Seesaws As Reds Reform Batter Nazis Back Time After Time

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (AP).—Russian reinforcements helped the veterans of Stalingrad today to check German troops—some reported arrayed in Red army uniforms—who were developing continuous attacks both in the northwestern outskirts and against a Soviet-held height dominating the centre of the city.

Unable entirely to oust a wedge driven into Stalingrad's streets yesterday in the third of a series of Nazi drives from the northwest, the Russians fenced off their holdings with gun and bayonet, and Red Star said they gave no further ground in the city.

The mid-day communique emphasized the repulse of attacks by the Russians, who are fighting through a din of shellfire and bombing threaded with the wail of Stuka sirens.

Spirits of the Soviet reserves newly-ferried across the Volga to the embattled city are high, said a dispatch to the newspaper Pravda.

They are among the troops organized and trained in Siberia.

Night Skies Ablaze.

Field reports said night skies were bright with explosions, burning buildings and the light from thousands of flares. Tons of bombs were showered down by the German air force squadrons.

Red Star said that at one place, after planes had strafed and bombed a group of buildings, the Russians were forced to retitre before a charge of two regiments of infantry and 100 tanks. But the Russians were declared to have regrouped quickly and won back their positions.

With the same violence the Germans assaulted a hill which commands centre of the city and important traffic arteries, the army newspaper said.

Nazi planes loosed several hundred bombs in a 45-minute preparatory bombardment. Fifty tanks then rumbled up the hill, their guns pounding at the defenders.

Several tanks were camouflaged as Russian, even bearing Red army insignia, and many of the German troops were dressed in Russian uniforms instead of their grey-green, Red Star declared.

Nazi automatic riflemen, some of them also reported in Russian garb, swarmed into the fighting and the Red army troops were forced from some positions around the hill.

The Russians counter-attacked, however, Red Star said, and restored their positions in a five-hour battle.

The Soviet Information Bureau apparently referred to this hill in a midnight report on fighting for "a commanding height."

"All German attempts to capture this valuable position have failed," the Information Bureau said.

Perhaps referring again to the same area, it announced at mid-day that the Germans "made repeated attempts to capture our positions which covered the approaches to an important objective."

"The defenders of Stalingrad, with hand grenades, destroyed six tanks and then in a hand-to-hand engagement, killed 170 German officers and men," it was stated. "The LONDON, Sept. 19—(CP).—The Vichy radio broadcast a Madagascar announcement today that British forces have occupied Brickaville, on the east coast of Madagascar, 100 miles due east of Tananarive, the capital. This announcement indicated another landing has been made on the island.

Brickaville is 70 miles southwest of Tamatave, Madagascar's chief commercial part, where British forces made their first landings on the east coast yesterday following their original west coast landings ten days ago.

Six Listed Dead Found Captives

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—Six soldiers previously reported killed at the battle of Dieppe now are reported alive, five of them as prisoners of war, and two men previously reported missing are safe, national defence headquarters reported today in the 158th army casualty list of the war.

The list also reports one man a prisoner who was previously reported wound and missing and 43 as prisoners who were previously reported missing.

Lt.-Col. Douglas E. Catto of Toronto, officer commanding the Royal Regiment, is among those formerly reported killed in action who now are reported prisoners. The others are Maj. J. C. MacTavish of Moose Jaw, Sask., Maj. Elmer W. White of Estevan, Sask., and Lieuts. P. R. Clarke of Portage La Prairie, Man., and C. W. Bath of Toronto.

The man previously reported killed but now safe is Pte. Thomas H. Herbert or Sintaluta, Sask., and the two previously missing and now safe are Ptes. Leo Fortin, home address unknown, and Robert Lefebvre of Montreal.

The list also reported the death of Spr. Donald W. Sanford of Clementsport, N.S., a casualty presumably not connected with the battle of Dieppe.

The list reported officially that Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt of Vancouver, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment is alive but a prisoner.

Signs Lid Lifting In Egypt

Rome Reports British Shoving Out Test Stabs

ROME (From Italian Radio), Sept. 19 — (AP).— A burst of British activity in Egypt's western desert was reported by the Italian high command to-day with the claim that Axis air forces inflicted heavy losses yesterday on Allied tanks and troop columns making "exploratory thrusts" in the southern sector of the El Alamein front.

Three British fighter planes were reported shot down.

(The Germans, likewise indicating that something big might be developing after a period of quiescence in North Africa, echoed Rome's report, saying that German and Italian airmen on Friday carried out "continuous" bombing and machine-gunning attacks on British "tank reserves and motorized columns."

(To-day's British communique from Cairo told only of artillery exchanges and small scale air fighting.)

The Italian high command also said that an Italian torpedo boat had sunk a British submarine in the Mediterranean.

There was no confirmation of this report in Allied quarters.'

British patrols were claimed repulsed by Axis formations in the southern sector of the Egyptian front yesterday.

Smash at Japan Proper to Fix Nipponese

Concentrated Industries Blasted To Bits To Take Snap Out Of Tokyo

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Joseph C. Grew, former United States ambassador to Japan, in declaring yesterday at Syracuse, N.Y., that the Japs are tougher than the Germans, and will fight until utterly crushed, is trying to hammer home a truth which only in recent days has begun to register widely.

A good many people were suffering from distorted ideas about Nippon's vulnerability. Back at the time of Pearl Harbor a reader of this column wrote me a letter which was rather typical of a lot of current comment. He pooh-poohed my statement that the Japanese were hard eggs, and bragged:

"I've lived in the Orient and know my Japs. I'm only five feet four, but I never saw the day when I couldn't lick half a dozen of them, with one hand tied behind my back."

Now along comes Mr. Grew, who served as United States representative among these barbarians for a decade, to say that they "will not crack morally or psychologically or economically" and that "only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated." At the same time we are getting from the steaming jungle battlefields of the southwest Pacific islands grim proof of the fanatical willingness of the Mikado's men to die.

When United States Marines made their daringly successful invasion of Guadalcanal, not one of the many hundreds of Japs who were holding that island surrendered. Each went down in death, either fighting or like the three who battled until they had only three pistol bullets left, whereupon one of them shot his two comrades and then turned the gun upon himself.

Yes, the worshippers of the rising sun will take a lot of beating. What then is the basic strategy which will give best results? Let's get at it this way:

The heart of Nippon's strength, in all categories, lies in the homeland—Japan proper. There are her arsenals, her manpower, her financial resources — in short, those sinews which make her the power she is. Now all this is contained within an area of 148,756 square miles. And the borders aren't protected by other territories, but only by the sea.

So the strength of this primitive Samson is localized. We don't have to overrun a territory the size of say Australia — a mighty task for any nation—to do our stint. We don't have to reconquer all the Japanese conquests as a preliminary. Our primary task is to cut Samson's

Different In Real Invasion

N.Y. Press Sees Dieppe No Yardstick For 2nd Front

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(CP). — The New York Herald Tribune said editorially to-day that had the Canadian-led raid on Dieppe hat gained an entry into the town been followed up in force, "as would have been the case in a real invasion, the losses of the attackers would have appeared in a different perspective."

"Those losses were undoubtedly high," the paper continued. "They indicate, grimly, the nature of tre German defences along the occupied coast and form a measure of the gallantry of the Canadian troops who made up the great bulk of the attackers. But it is not necessarily too high a price to pay for the lessons of the Dieppe operation, neither is it a yardstick whereby to measure the cost of opening a second front."

The paper said enough is contained in Defence Minister Ralston's report on the Dieppe operation "to provide food for thought—and, despite the high percentage of losses among the land troops, hope—for the nations who are looking to the day when crossing the channel becomes more than an affair of commandos, more than a reconnaissance in force; to the day when the counter-invasion of western Europe begins."

SUGAR COATED NEWS FED CANADIANS PREMIER HEPBURN DECLARES

Canucks Bag U-Boat In Sea Epic

Battle Point-Blank Destroyer Finally Rams It

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Out of the fog banks of the Atlantic today came stories of valor, grim close-range fighting and loss of stout ships.

On the heels of announcement of the loss of two Caandian fighting ships naval service headquarters told the story of how one German U-boat was sent to the bottom in a battle which may well be unique in naval annals.

The victor over the U-boat was the Destroyer Assiniboine which finally rammed the enemy after a gun battle fought at such close range that neither ship could use its torpedoes nor its heavy guns. The action was fought somewhere in the western Atlantic.

Germans and Canadians, looking into each other's faces, fired at one another with machine-guns and light cannon. The men on the destroyer hurled depth charges, one of which bounced off the deck of the submarine, and the Germans used their light "Oerlikan" gun which fires small shells at a rapid rate with telling effect.

The reported incidents were merely clues to the ebb and flow of sea warfafe in the North Atlantic area in which the Royal Canadian Navy has been hotly engaged recently.

First Short Range Scrap.

"For many years naval warfare on the surface has normally been long-range warfare. The very unusual feature of this action was the extreme shortness of range. Every movement of a German on the submarine's deck was clearly visible from the destroyer and the opposing gunners were almost glaring into eac other's faces.

"This condition governed the manoeuvring and the use of the armament from beginning to end and called for a considerable amount of improvisation.

"It was a difficult situation to be in and the whole ship's complement well deserved the warm praise which they have since received. Although nothing but light stuff came over there were remarkably few casualties, considering the range, intensity and duration of the U-boat's fire and the total lack of cover on a destroyer's decks."

Stores Are Out Of Ice Cream Bricks

Ice-cream will probably not be quite so plentiful in the future, and already many stores are out due to the unexpected heat wave.

The ice-cream is rationed on a quarterly basis, and the new quarter comes up October 1. According to J. E. Weir, manager of Silverwoods, the stores may be without a supply of ice-cream for a few days, but most of them will have ice-cream or part of next week. Those who have used up the same amount as they had a year ago are just out of luck and will have to get along until the new quarter. He said that the hot weather in the latter part of August and so far in September has created a serious shortage until next month.

There are two controls in regard to the ice-cream business. First ruling was that the stores handling ice-cream could have as much as they used in the corresponding quarter last year. Then recently the manufacturers were told that they could only have 70 per cent of the sugar that they had used in the previous year. For a time this did not prove a serious handicap as they simply substituted honey, and so were turning out the same amount as a year ago. But now the use of honey for such a purpose has been forbidden and the problem is to get enough sweetness; so it is very likely that production will have to be curtailed considerably.

Before July Silverwoods controlled a weekly quota for the stores, but during July and the early part of August they had plenty of ice-cream for everyone, so they withdrew the control. But this unexpected heat wave since the last part of August has caused supplies to vanish overnight, so the company is having to divide up remainder justly among all the stores so that they can have some ice-cream for part of the week at least. The quota was established originally throughout the country to prevent too much milk from being diverted from the manufacture of cheese.

Don't blame the stores when you can't make the purchases you want, because they would gladly sell it, if it were obtainable.

Therefore I believe that when the major allied offensive against the Japanese gets under way, it will strike primarily at the heart of the empire—Japan proper—rather than start at the circumference with the idea of reclaiming the hodge-podge of Nipponese conquests piece-meal in order to reach the homeland.

The main Allied objective is, or so I assume, to fight in Japan proper. We shall approach this operation by first bombing hell out of that neatly arranged concentration of resources. We shall pulverize the island's industries and transportation system and what not, until finally we are ready to put an army ashore for the kill.

Once Japan proper is conquered, the rest of the ill-gotten empire will succumb. That doesn't mean there won't be much fighting outside Japan. There will be, and it's going on right now. But our main task will be done when we have just about wiped the Mikado's kingdom off the map.

Lieut. W. M. S. Lang Is Held Prisoner

COBOURG, Sept. 19.—(ENS)—Word was received here yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Lisgar Lang, that Lieut. W. S. M. Lang had been taken prisoner. Lieut. Lang who took part in the battle at Dieppe had previously been listed as missing. Lieut. Lang's mother and a sister, Mrs. Norman Lang, resided in Cobourg. Another sister lives in Kingston.

Capt. J. W. Foote Is Held Prisoner Of War

PORT HOPE, September 19 (ENS)—Mrs. J. W. Foote, 23 Bramley street received official notice on Friday that her husband, Captain Rev. John Weir Foot, former Presbyterian minister here, was a prisoner of war, following the raid on Dieppe.

It is also officially stated that the chaplain referred to in the following article is Captain Foote.

Somewhere off the beaches of Dieppe a young chaplain plunged into the waters from the boat which was taking him to safety and struck out for shore calling back to his mates, "these lads need me more than the boys in England." The chaplain who thus chose voluntary imprisonment in order to cheer other imprisoned Canadians was revealed today to be Capt. John Weir Foote, of Port Hope, a graduate of the Presbyterian Theological College in Montreal.

Capt. Foote has served overseas since June, 1940.

Salvation Army Leader In City

Commissioner Thomas W. Wilson, former Territorial Commander of the Salvation Army in North China and Korea, who will assist in the week-end services at the local Temple, has been an officer of the Salvation Army for 43 years. He was commissioned from the International Training College, London, in 1899.

Commissioner Wilson, then a Captain, was transferred from Manchester, England, in 1905 to Japan where he spent 21 years, most of the time in Tokio. He was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel and appointed Territorial Commander for British East Africa in 1926, where he spent nine years supervising activities in his 250,000 square miles of territory, comprising thirty-five tribes, each with its own language and customs. As a result of his work in British East Africa, Commissioner Wilson was awarded the Silver Jubilee medal by King George V in 1935 for distinguished service.

From 1932 to 1942 Commissioner Wilson was Territorial Commander for Korea, and organised Salvation Army corps in fifteen cities, and inaugurated a travelers' aid movement which later became wide spread in Korea. In 1941 Commissioner Wilson received his appointment to North China and with Mrs. Wilson left Korea for a furlough in Canada and the United States. The declaration of war against Japan has prevented him from going to China, and Commissioner Wilson is carrying on evangelistic work throughout the United States and Canada. He will be in Peterborough Saturday night, Sunday and also Monday night.

Tigers Get Loose At Lindsay Fair

Thousands of people who milled around the grounds at the Lindsay Fair Thursday night were blissfully unaware of the fact that a couple of full-sized tigers were loose in the circus tent of the Conklin shows for several hours while animal trainers and circus attendants battled to get the two "cats" back into their cages.

The tigers escaped while the animals were being fed. Exits from the big tent were hurriedly closed and the circus people started to round up the tigers. Police were notified and provincial officers and members of the O.V.C. went on guard outside, roping off that portion of the grounds and keeping the crowd away from the circus tent. Orders from the circus management to the police were that if the animals managed to get outside the officers were to take no chances but were to shoot the tigers.

However, with the use of packing boxes which were employed to construct a runway the fugitives were finally driven into this passageway and forced back into the cages.

Learn The Knack Of Relaxing Rotarians Told

COBOURG, Sept. 19—(ENS). — Dr. G. G. McNab, District Governor of Rotary International, and who is a school inspector of Guelph, paid his official visit to Cobourg Rotary Club yesterday and was the speaker at the regular weekly luncheon at the British Hotel.

Dr. McNab, who was introduced by R. N. McKenzie president of the Cobourg Club, informed the members that his meeting with the officers of the club and the directors had been very informative.

"I found that you have been doing very fine work here. I think that in the smaller clubs you can work best. A Rotary Club in a smaller community can accomplish things more directly than the Rotary Club in the big centre.

"One's neighbor to-day was not one's neighbor alone, but could be the man on another continent," the speaker declared. The world to-day was a neighborhood and the measure of two places from one another was not reckoned in miles but in time. One said now that it was not so many miles from Toronto to New York, but two hours' travelling time. Distance was being regarded in the time it took to get there and as a result there was increase in the tempo of living. Man lived so much in an era of haste now that he was beginning to forget how to relax.

"Dont crowd thirty hours into one day or ten days into one week. If we live at that rate we will lose our ability to get things done efficiently and then our effort collapses. An English poet by the name of Davies has said very aptly that we should develop a philosophy of wasting time, or in other words we should learn how to relax.

"Some were too prone to say that they hadn't time when they spoke of their attendance, or lack of it, at Rotary meetings. One couldn't afford not to have time for Rotary, because in Rotary one received the benefit of the fellowship and reloxation which Rotary provided. It might mean a sacrifice of time and necessitate being away from business, but the service which a Rotarian was able to render and the benefit which he received from helping others, more than repaid any lost time," Dr. McNab said.

The little things in life were the big things, although often in the vain wait for big things to come one's way, and they seldom come, one missed the comfort and satisfaction which the accomplishment of the little things of everyday life provided. The carrying out of the everyday duties, small though they seemed, brought in return a big measure of satisfaction, he said.

"Rotary knew no frontiers; its sun never set. Rotary was the pioneer of international goodwill. There was no such thing as British Rotary Canadian Rotary, or any national Rotary, because each was a manifestation of international goodwill. With the exception of the totalitarian countries, Rotary was marching on. But there was much room in which to expend and even in the local 168th District, there was room for expansion.

"The gretat task of Rotary will never be complete because as long as the world exists, there will be room for service and therefore room for Rotary," he said.

White Bread Amazed Nazi

AN EASTERN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 19.—German prisoners taken on board H.M.C.S. "Assiniboine," after she had vanquished a U-boat in the North Atlantic, were amazed that they should be served white bread and butter.

While on board "Assiniboine" they received the rame food as members of the crew. And for "afters," as they say in the navy, they were given cigars and cigarettes.

"They enjoyed their food thoroughly and were surprised by the good quality of it," said Ordinary Seaman Albert Lindsay of Hamilton, Ontario. "One could see that they hadn't had good grub for a very long time."

Water for washing purposes was a novelty to them, according to Lindsay. It seemed incredulous to them that they should be given all the water they wanted to drink, far less be allowed limitless quantities for washing purposes.

The ratings who guarded them during their stay on the Canadian destroyer stated that time and again the prisoners said they were fed up and very glad that for them the war was over.

"They had been at sea for more than thirty days and they certainly looked like it," said one of the guards. "But," said he "they are still Nazis."

One of their number, Fred Frederich, lived in Manitoba before the war, but seemed to know very little English. When asked what he did there, he merely shrugged his shoulders and said "farm."

Their belief in the Fuehrer was echoed by their engineer lieutenant, a tall arrogant fellow, when he said, "Hitler is genius."

TO NAME NEW CHIEF

The police committee of the Port Hope Town Council have received several applications for the position of Chief Constable, since it became known that Chief Constable Murphy was no longer on the job. It was learned today that certain applicants will be interviewed early next week, and if any of them meet the requirements he will be appointed chief constable.

Port Hope Plans "Dimes For Victory"

PORT HOPE, September 19 (ENS)—The red Dimes for Victory" boxes made their first appearance on Friday afternoon in the local stores and places of business. C. E. Stephenson chairman of the Dimes for Victory" committee, reported that thirty of these brightly painted smaller boxes have been placed and six larger ones in prominent places around the town. The committee working with Mr. Stephenson is Messrs. Stuart Smart, Jim Reynolds, Lenard Moncrief, Harry Mitchell, J. R. Moore, Ed. Brandwood, J. Wishart and Mrs. George Strong.

This committee last year averaged $100.00 a week in War Saving Certificates, which were drawn for each Monday night at the Capitol Theatre and in all over $5,000 was bought in War Saving Certificates and distributed in this way to the lucky winners throughout the season. This year's first draw will take place at the Capitol Theatre on September 28th.

Reckless Driver Is Fined $45

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 19 (ENS)—Found guilty on a charge of reckless driving arising out of an accident on the County road east of here on August 21 last, Bruce Lasher, 19, of Napanee, was assessed $45.00 and $9.50 costs. The accident involved two trucks which met in head on collision resulting in about $1,400 damage but no personal injury either to the accused or to James Forestell, driver of the other truck. The charge was laid by Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers. In addition to the fine Magistrate Langley took advantage of the Act to prohibit the youth from driving anywhere in Canada for the next six months. Thomas Lamey, 45, of Percy township, appeared on a charge of having liquor in his possession without holding a permit, but was remanded for one week on bail of $500.00 by consent of the Crown.

Four more local citizens were charged under the dog by-law with harboring a dog without the necessary license. All four had the charge withdrawn on procurement of the tag and payment of costs. Two others were granted a week's adjournment.

Hugh Ketchum Joins The Army

Hugh F. Ketchum, for a number of years a master at the Lakefield Preparatory School, and in charge of the Junior School, has received his call to the Army to take up special work in the Directorate of Personnel section.

Mr. Ketchum is a member of a well-known Canadian family of educationalists, having several brothers masters of schools. He saw service during the last war in different sections of the Army and Air Force, and is well qualified for his new position in the Canadian Army.

His wife is expetcted to continue as hostess at the Grove School.

New Teaching Staff Is Ready To Start In Port Hope School

PORT HOPE, Sept. 19 (Special to the Examiner)—Resignation of the entire teaching staff of the Port Hope High School in protest against the discharge of the principal, F. L. Brackenbury, last summer has had little effect on the workings of the High School in town.

When it was known by the school board that the teachers had decided they would sever connections with the Board at the end of the school year, steps were taken to secure sufficient teachers to round out the staff. This has been done and it is understood that the Department of Education of Ontario lent its assistance, in view of the fact that the Teacher's Federation had practically blacklisted the school in protest of the discharge of the principal.

W. S. Blake, B.A., supervising principal of the Tisdale township High Schools which includes Schumacher and Sudbury, has been named principal, and the other teachers are as follows: Mr. T. Calnan of Tweed, science and physical culture, Mrs. E. C. Dolman, Peterborough, commercial; Mr. C. Eastman, mathematics; Miss Evelyn Gist, whose home is at Welcome, and who has been teaching for the past five years at Niagara Falls, will teach German and French; Mr. E. Mason, who formerly headed the science department at Clinton High School, will teach science and physical culture. John C. Nix, a former teacher at South Porcupine High School will teach French, Latin and Music; Miss Elizabeth Quial, a recent graduate of the Ontario College of Education, will teach English and Art. Mrs. Elizabeth Patton will teach Girl's health education and general subjects, and Thomas Stanley is the music teacher.

The staff has been reduced by one, a trend that is general throughout the High Schools of the province where reduced enrolment and reorganization of schedules has made such a change possible. Of the old staff only two remain, Thomas Stanley, the music teacher and Mr. C. Eastman, teacher of mathematics.

F. L. Brackenbury, former principal of the school, has accepted a position with the Trinity College School as Master of Science and is already on the job. Most of the other teachers who were on the staff last year have accepted teaching positions elsewhere, and a few are just biding their time for the present.

Little immediate action looms on the school front in the town and members of the Citizen's committee had no comment to make on any future developments.

Red Cross Units For Emergencies Being Organized

Officers representing the Red Cross Provincial and District offices spoke to the women of Peterborough Friday night on the general organization of the new Red Cross Emergency Reserve units functioning across Canada, stressing the fact that their job in case of any emergency, would follow up the A.R.P. and St. John's Ambulance work in case of some straight war emergency, and that in the case of such things as epidemics, the women with Reserve training could be called upon to give assistance in the homes and hospitals.

It is impossible to give much information about how the Peterborough organization is going to function as the three Red Cross officers, said that local conditions would be the deciding factor as to the number of classes and opportunities open to the women after the nursing staff has been organized. However a general outline of the Reserve Unit as it is being carried out in other cities was given.

Mrs. L. S. Lochland, Provincial Leader of the Canadian Red Cross, chose the words uttered by Eric Knight in a recent address as the theme for the women who wish to get organized, "fight the war, as if the enemy were only 10 miles from your home." She said that in those areas across the Dominion designated as vulnerable, the Emergency Reserve functions under the local civic authorities in case of actual emergency. The women are trained under graduate nurses for any nursing emergencies or other war disasters that may arise, to assist in case of sabotage, and to help in the matter of home nursing that might be necessitated by the overcrowding of casualties from overseas in local hospitals.

Only Nurses Instructors

There will be no opportunity for the laywomen to act as instructors when they have finished their courses as that is always carried on by professional nurses. But after the work has been completely covered, the practice periods continue for the duration so that the women will not get stale. Until the whole course has been completed, the women are not known as actual Reserve Members of the unit, but as applicants. Mrs. Lochland stated that they considered the most important part of their work to be the emphasis on the practice side of the game.

Another Red Cross officer, Mrs. W. F. Wansbrough, described the general steps of organization. There are two groups of members, the nurses and the non-professionals. The starting point is the nurses who act as instructors. A meeting is first called of the nurses and the work explained and they are asked to choose a leader to take complete charge, and she would be known as the "Local Officer In Charge." There are no age limits, and for those older nurses, who feel they have been away from the work too long to teach, they could probably do the demonstration work. As soon as a leader is chosen the name is submitted to the local Red Cross and then to the Provincial Red Cross office.

The laywomen are called together and enrolled and if they have not taken home nursing in the last two years, the thing is to get in the home nursing class for a refresher course. The war classes, that is the study group, can be any size, since everyone is so busy, but in the practical work, there must be a nurse for every 20 people so that there can be real personal supervision.

Advisory Committee

Upon her appointment the Local Officer in charge goes to Toronto for a brief refresher course at the University of Toronto Nursing school, where she also gets taught the rudiments of organization and upon her return she has an Advisory committee picked out, which since it is responsible to the Medical Health Officer, Dr. D. B. Avison, should have him as a member, representatives of the public health and V.O.N. nurses, someone from the Red Cross and a representative from the C.D.C. committee, and hospitals.

As soon as this machinery is set up, the Unit begins to function as soon as possible. Every person in the course must take First Aid, Home Nursing and A.R.P. work. Those who enroll must not miss more than three times in the year, and even then they must have good excuses. If they do not come regularly, they are of no use.

The work will be arranged, Mrs. A. C. MacKenzie, the Peterborough District Officer said, so that organizations like the Red Cross and the St. John's Ambulance will not be overlapping and making extra work for doctors and nurses by both teaching the same thing.

Just as soon as the nurses here appoint someone to act as leader, plans will be outlined so that the Unit will be started at once, and the Red Cross will be able to outline a definite course of action for the women who are interested. Until that time, the only thing to do at present is to give your name to the Red Cross, or else wait until the list of things to be taught is given out and then register. Twenty disaster units with sterile and unsterile equipment, have been sent to this branch and they are capable of caring for 100 people, and they will be used on the scene of the action by whichever organization is in charge.

Ilsley Budget Highlight Of Past Session

In speaking to Kiwanians on some of the highlights of the present parliamentary session Gordon K. Fraser, M.P. for Peterborough West, told his audience that they could expect for some years after the war to keep on paying high taxes, with the returning soldiers to be cared for, and the compulsory savings to be paid back. Taxes would not lower with the immediate cessation of hostilities.

"Being a member of the House is not a bed of roses, but a patch of thistles," the speaker said "and a man must be a walking encyclopedia because there are all sorts of orders that must be read, and what is more retained, every day, and all this is in addition to the regular work that occupied the members from nine in the morning until eleven or later at night."

The work of the session so far was summed up in one word by Mr. Fraser — hectic. What with committee meetings, the regular sessions, the mail that has to be handled daily the members certainly have no time to sit and twiddle their thumbs. He went on to say that he himself had had as many as 107 letters in one day to look after, and that as he makes a point of answering practically all his mail, it involves a great deal of work.

Keep In Touch With Member.

Mr. Fraser pointed out that it was the duty of everyone in the riding to let members know their suggestions and criticisms, so that the member can do his best to carry out the policy his constituents want. He read a letter from one of the members of the Government which stated in essence that the members in the Government occupying the most important positions were kept busy at the grindstone and could not get out to keep in accurate touch with the opinion in the various districts and sections. But the members of the House were coming and going and picked up the things that the people wanted, and they in turn made those in authority acquainted with the wishes of the people and the Government was then able to try and comply with what they wanted.

Continuous Highlight.

Although the whole session was one continuous highlight, in Mr. Fraser's opinion the budget took top honors. In his words it was a "pipperino," and when the income tax rolls around people will really come to know just how much it is. "But," he said "citizens will pay it with a smile and be darn glad to have the privilege of doing so."

"The speech made by the Hon. Mr. Ilsley when he brought down the budget was the most touching I have ever heard, and there was no fear of any contradiction. Citizens must not only consider the income tax, but the coming Victory Loan and the War Savings Stamps and certificates, must be kept up to, for the Government must have the money. The budget was for $3,592,000,000 but it is believed before the end of the year that it will have to be raised to the $4,000,000,000 mark."

Thousands In Ottawa

According to figures given by the speaker there are over 800,000 people employed in Canadian industrial plants, 120,000 of which are women. In England the rates are much higher. There are 112,000 people in government employ and of these 29,000 are women. Out of that 29,000 there are 20,000 girls alone, in Ottawa doing work and they are really having a tough time, particularly with accommodation. In some places they are even sleeping in shifts and when one occupant climbs out of bed, another climbs in for the next few hours.

In closing Mr. Fraser said that everyone regardless of who he is or what his political views are, should forget politics and think only of his country, for if he doesn't, God help Canada, and God help our Allies, for everything that is cherished will be wiped out.

As far as is known at the present time, instead of the regular Friday luncheon to be held next week, Kiwanians will have a stag party at the Peterborough Golf Club next Thursday night, where they will discuss some future plans and programs.

Six officers of the local Training Centre were guests of the Kiwanis, and tribute was paid to them during the sing-song with the military songs that were chosen.

Gore's Landing W.A. Opens Fall Meetings

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 19. — (ENS).—The first meeting this autumn of the W.A. of St. George's-on-the-hill was held on Wednesday afternoon at the White House, the home of Mrs. Cecil Thackerey, nine members were present and after the opening service, a letter was read by the secretary, Mrs. Karl Harris, from the minister in Saskatchewan who received the last bale from this church.

It was decided to start another quilt with blocks to be brought at the next meeting. Attendance at the Deanery to be held in Colborne next Tuesday was also discussed and arrangements made for transportation. The next meeting, in two weeks time, will be held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Manley.

A real estate deal was culminated recently with the sale of the brick house and contents owned by Mr. Hill and situated in the valley near the 9th concession, to Royal MacDonald.

Lieut. George Gray, R.C.N.V.R. of Windsor and his bride were visitors to the village this week Lieut. Gray, formerly of Millbrook, was a teacher in the local school, S.S. No. 16. He paid a call on his former students at the school.

Master Robert Meggs returned to the Grove school at Lakefield on Thursday morning.

Miss Laura McLeod, who recently graduated from Toronto University, is now connected with a firm of chartered accountants in Toronto taking a four year course. Her sister, Miss Mary McLeod, is studying wireless telegraphy, and hopes to obtain a position aboard an ocean going vessel.

The bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. John Polley (nee Helen Cheyne) have returned from a brief honeymoon and are staying for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cheyne. Mrs. Cheyne has been in Lakefield because of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Waldon.

Arthur Johnston Is Laid To Rest

The funeral of the late Arthur T. Johnston, proprietor of the Windsor oHtel, took place in Toronto Friday morning, with interment in St. John's cemetery, Norwood.

Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's church, Peterborough, conducted the burial service and the pallbearers were R. M. Glover, Nagle Phelan, L. J. LeClair, John H. Loucks, Lloyd A. McClure, George Dormer, Fred Brown and F. D. Craig.

A funeral service was conducted at the Nesbitt funeral home, Charlotte street, on Thursday evening by Rev. H. N. Bracken, assistant at St. John's church and was very largely attended.

nect Brickaville and Tannarive and it presumably was to gain access to these strategic communications that the British command put the new force ashore today. The Vichy French described it as composed of light units.

There was no immediate report from Vichy on the progress of British forces pushing toward Tananarive from four landings on the west coast.

A British commentator in London said, however, that the methodical occupation of Madagascar is proceeding and that one British column advancing from Majunga, on the west coast, is less than 60 miles from Tananarive.

Stand At Capital?

This informant said there is a possibility that Vichy French forces might be concentrating at the capital for a stand but that at present resistance is negligible and only a few British casualties have been suffered.

A mysterious station identifying itself as "France Libre D'outre Mer"—Free France of the Farther Sea—was heard at Port Louis, Mauritius, vigorously assailing the Vichy government's policy in Madagascar.

Accounts of this broadcast relayed from the nearby British island of Mauritius said the mystery station urged Madagascar citizens to demand that Armand Annet, governor-general of the island, disclose British armistice terms which he rejected.

The station expressed doubt that French troops were willing to continue the fight as Annet was exhorting them to do.

Countering this broadcast, a Vichy French station, apparently located somewhere in Madagascar, poured out a high-pitched stream of anti-British propaganda.

Forget Politics Go All Out Is Hepburn Plea

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 19 — (CP).—A plea to "forget our politics" and a charge that Canada was being "fed sugar-coated news by paid propagandists in Ottawa" were voiced by Premier Hepburn of Ontario in a speech here last night.

Mr. Hepburn said: "What we want to see is Canada saved and the time is coming fast when Canadian people are going to rise in one voice and demand a total war effort. For heaven's sake, let us forget our politics and do our all for the war effort."

He called on Canadians to awaken from their apathy and realize the seriousness of the situation. Asking his listeners to study the map of Europe and Asia and compare it with the way it looked before the war began, he said: "We have not won anything yet."

The Ontario Premier, who spoke under the auspices of the Cornwall Kinsmen Club, asserted: "We are not taking the war seriously enough and may pay for it in blood, sweat, tears and slavery."

He charged that the Dominion was not prepared for the war in which the country is engaged and added that "Canada faces the darkhours in her history."

On The Battlefield

Speaking earlier yesterday at Maxville, Mr. Hepburn told Glengarry County residents that the talk about the war being won in the factories and on farms was "so much bunk."

Canadian Club Holds Meeting

PORT HOPE, Sept. 19.—(ENS)—The first meeting of the Canadian Club for the fall season was reld on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. E. M. Thurber, with a large attendance.

The newly-appointed president, Mrs. M. S. Hawkins, was in the craiar and introduced the guest speaker, Rev. L. M. Outerbridge who for the past two years has been preaching in the United church in Regina.

Rev. Mr. Outerbridge, who was born in Warwick, Bermuda, was ordained a minister of the United Church of Canada in 1925, previously having graduated from University of Chicago in Agriculture, Arts and Theology, in which he received his Master's Degree. On this knowledge was chosen to go to China to work on the famine prevention problem. Mr. Outerbridge is considered one of the best informed and most entertaining speakers on the problems of the Far East. He was decorated by the Chinese government for services and only returned from China at the outbreak of war.

He chose as his subject "Lights and Shadows of the Far East" and his address gave a vivid interpretation of his findings in that distant land.

Teachers' Tax Is Adjusted

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—A solution has been provided for a situation which was causing inconvenience to school teachers, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation said last night. Under the regulations for the collection of income tax, teachers who are paid in ten monthly instalments found themselves paying a greater percentage than was necessary, because the Government ordered that deductions should be made on their actual pay per month as if they earned that salary for twelve months.

A refund would be made when the final returns were sent in, but the teacher would be out of pocket for nearly a year, it was pointed out. This situation has been remedied by adoption of plan which will place teachers on the same basis as other wage-earners.

Example of Self-Sacrifice Is Shown By Judah

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 20 is Genesis 42-44, the Golden Text being I John 3:16, "Hereby know we love, because He laid down His life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.")

It is an exciting and dramatic story told in our lesson today. Joseph's whole life was dramatic, from the time when he was sold by his brothers to the traveling merchants, and carried into Egypt, to the reconciliation with his brothers and reunion with his father, which will come next week.

When the famine, which covered the then known world, had become so bad in Canaan that Jacob and his large family had no food, Jacob instructed his sons to go to Egypt and buy grain so that they might live. All ten of the sons were to go, except Benjamin, the other son of Rachel, his beloved. After losing Joseph, Jacob felt he could not bear to let Benjamin leave him.

Journey to Egypt

The ten brothers, then, journeyed to Egypt, little thinking whom they should see there. They were brought before Joseph, who recognized them at once, but his brothers did not know him. Being much overcome, and not knowing how they felt toward him, Joseph talked roughly to them, and accused them of being spies. This they denied, telling him they were all sons of one man, one brother had died and one son, the youngest, was at home with their father.

For three days Joseph held them in prison, then he told them when they came again they must bring their brother with them. He also commanded that they should leave one of their number in Egypt as hostage that they would come back and bring Benjamin. The brothers took counsel of one another, saying that they had doubtless gotten into this trouble because they had sold Joseph and heeded not his cries for pity. Reuben, the one who had tried to save Joseph, you remember, reminded them how he had tried to persuade them not to hurt him, and that the result of their hatred of their brother now was that the life of the younger was required. As they talked in their own language they did not know that they were understood by Joseph.

Simeon was seized and bound before their eyes. Their sacks were filled with corn and they were sent on their way. One of them opened his sack on the journey back and discovered the money he had paid for the corn was in the top of it. They all then opened their sacks and found their money too was there. They were frightened. They told their father all about it when they reached home, and also about the ruler of Egypt insisting that they bring Benjamin when they went back. Jacob said: "My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone; if mischief befall him by the way in which he go, then shall ye bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave."

Grain Is Eaten

At last the grain they had brought with them was all gone and unless they wished to starve they must go back to Egypt. Judah said they did not dare to go back without Benjamin, and indeed would not go without him, ending: "Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, and not die; both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

"I will be surety for him; of my hand shalt thou require him; if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever."

Reluctantly Jacob let them go. They took back the money they had found in their grain sacks, more money to buy the new grain, and gifts for Joseph. Seeing first Joseph's steward, they told him the whole story; he cheered them and told them not to be afraid, and brought Simeon to them. Joseph was overcome when he saw Benjamin. He asked them if their father was well, and then had to go to his chamber to weep before he could say more. Then he took them to his house and had a great feast spread before them, heaping Benjamin's plate with five times the food he served the other brothers. Possibly he wanted to see if they still were envious of this best beloved of their father's.

They had just started on their homeward journey when Joseph sent his steward after them, saying that his silver cup was missing. The brothers were horrified, and searched their sacks of corn. In each was again found the purchase price of the grain they had bought, and in Benjamin's the cup was found. More terrified than ever, they hastened back to Joseph, and Judah told him about finding the money and the cup and that they all would become Joseph's servants as punishment. Joseph answered that Benjamin, in whose sack the cup was found, should become his slave, but the rest should go home to their father.

Then Judah made the ultimate sacrifice. He pictured his father allowing this beloved younger son to go with them only because he, Judah, had promised to bring him safely back. He told of his father's grief at Joseph's supposed death, and how Jacob had said it would bring his gray hairs with sorrow to the grave if Benjamin was lost to him. He would stay, he said, and become Joseph's servant if only Benjamin was permitted to go home with the other brothers.

"For how shall I go to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father?"

Judah had been a wicked man. He had plotted to kill Joseph, but at last he had redeemed himself. In next week's lesson we shall see what Joseph's answer was.

Strengthening Moral Life By Thinking Upon God

By REV. E. R. JAMES

MINE EYES ARE EVER TOWARD THE LORD.—Ps. 25; 15.

A Jew, deeply absorbed in the worship of Jehovah, gives us his secret of devotion and realization. He is a man like ourselves, though living three thousand years ago. Troubles and afflictions come upon him as upon us. "The troubles of my heart are enlarged; O, bring Thou me out of my distress." Such words bring the Psalmist very close to us. He reveals to us his habit of thought. His mind is stayed upon Jehovah. In moments of anxiety and trouble his thoughts wing themselves to the Lord.

Have you formed the habit of thinking upon God? A habit is formed by repeating the act often enough till it becomes automatic. Make your closing petition at night: "O Lord, let my waking thought be of Thee." Then when you open your eyes say: "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord." Naturally there will come mornings when you forget. Begin again. Then in due time, almost unconsciously, your thought will rise t God and you will exclaim: "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord." If possible, let your eyes fall upon some portion of Scripture while you are dressing. You can buy a large type Gospel for five cents.

Such a habit will strengthen your morale. Our enemies are striving to break down our morale by clever half truths or even lying statements over the radio. But, fortified with the Presence you will not be afraid of any evil tidings; for your heart standeth fast and believeth in the Lord.

Perhaps having developed the habit of thinking about God when you wake you will go forward to thinking about Him at mid-day. This will keep you from becoming absolutely absorbed in the cares and anxieties of life. In so doing you will be following in the footsteps of every man who has truly striven to lift up his "eyes ever towards the Lord."

Such a habit will clear your understanding in your dealings with your fellow men. Your eyes are being purged from the mists of this world. You will have a clarity of insight which will pierce through the shams and falsities of popular thinking. You will not be carried away by every wind and wave of false teaching. A famous statesman has testified that he owes a great debt to his wife, a most devout Christian. With her purified insight she has seen through clever propositions and revealed their hidden dangers to him. Such a habit will cause you to experience the truth of Christ's own statement: "I come again," St. John 14: 3. A modern scholar reminds us that the tense means: "I keep on coming." God in His great love and mercy will keep on coming to you every time you make the effort to realize His Presence. As time goes on you will be placing less and less stress upon the thing of this world. Your treasure is being laid up in heaven where your heart is.

Moreover this habit will give you deep sympathy with your fellow man. Something of the Divine compassion will enter your heart as you look upon their troubles, woes and difficulties.

You will be looking at them through the eyes of the Heavenly Father, which is the only foundation of true brotherhood. You will do your share in helping them. You will not pass by on the other side.

As this habit grows there will come to you the sense of the perpetual Real Presence of the Lord Christ. Something of His courage will enter into you to face the dark days. The Son of Man, the Son of God will say unto you: "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee; when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned neither shall the flame kindle upon thee."—Isaiah 43:2.

MINE EYES AND MINE HEART SHALL BE THERE PERPETUALLY.

The Golden Text

"Hereby know we love, because He laid down His life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren."—I John 3:16.

Childhood of Great Men Played Important Part

It is interesting to study the early history of great men especially the conditions of their childhood and the internal circumstances of their environment. Abraham Lincoln grew up in the pioneer sections of Kentucky and Indiana, far from the city and close to nature. His family were very poor and work on the farm was long and hard. He had only a year's schooling, but educated himself by reading and study in spite of the obstacles and handicaps.

Theodore Roosevelt spent his boyhood in the busy, rushing city of New York. He was weak and sickly as a child, but early in life he resolved to overcome those handicaps and become a strong, vigorous man.

John Wesley was born into an Anglican rectory in Epworth in Lincolnshire, England. His father had a very small salary and they had no luxuries of any kind. His mother was his guide, philosopher and friend. She taught him his lessons and fitted him for a brilliant career in Oxford University.

What kind of a world was Jesus born into? Was it a free democratic world such as we live in? What were the historical political and social conditions of His life? How does the world in which Jesus lived compare with our world to-day?

"Jesus' World and Ours" will be the sermon subject in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday night.

Gipsy Simon Smith Is Coming to St. James' Church

GIPSY SMITH

Gipsy Smith was born and raised in a gipsy camp in the forest where Robin Hood and his Merry Men hunted the King's deer. He followed the gipsy trail until his father's death. After that he became a Christian he commenced to study and became a city missionary in London, England. He is well known in Britain, the United States, and Canada. He, and his first cousin, Gipsy Rodney Smith, came from the same camp. Their fathers were brothers. The evangelist writes and sings his own hymns. He wins by the sheer interest of the story he tells and the obvious truth of the message he brings. Many friends in Peterborough will be glad to see and hear Gipsy Smith. He will preach at St. James' United Church on two Sundays, September 20 and 27. Week-night meetings will also be held from Monday, September 21 to Friday, 25, at 8 p.m. These services are being held in connection with the 25th anniversary of the building of the church at the corner of Aylmer and Romaine street in south Peterborough.

Gum Shortage Looms

NEWARK, NJ., Sept. 19—(AP).—A chewing gun shortage is developing in Newark, and uses are urged by dealers to help "stretch" the available supply as far as possible. Shutting off of deliveries of the necessary gum base, which comes from Burma and The Netherlands East Indies, is blamed for the shortage. Some dealers are rationing packages, one to a customer.

Still Undamaged

ST THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP)—A wedding ring which slipped from his wife's finger 24 years ago as she was gardening has been drug up in the same garden by H. B. Henderson, of Oxford Mills. The ring was undamaged, and the inscription engraved inside the golden band was still easily decipherable.

Rally Day Sept. 27th

Rally Day has been long established in most of the Protestant Sunday Schools of Canada and the United States. It is now observed as the introduction to Christian Education Week as sponsored in Canada by The Religious Education Council of Canada and in the United States by The International Council of Religious Education. It is recognized further as an item in the general religious movement known as The Christian Education Advance — a four-year program sponsored by the same bodies and designed to improve attendance and the quality of teaching in Church Schools.

There are approximately one million persons now enrolled in the Protestant Sunday Schools of Canada and some twenty-two million on the North American Continent. But attendance is irregular and there are as many children and young people outside of the Church Schools as there are inside.

The Christian Education Advance may become the greatest evangelistic movement our country has known. We have buildings and equipment, publications and organizations. Now what is needed above all else is people. There is no age limit in Church Schools. Teaching materials are provided for every age from the nursery class to adults. Parents, teachers, boys and girls everywhere can make a good beginning of the autumn season on Rally Day by planning to attend Sunday School regularly. Indeed the whole family can share in the activities of the Church School. It is a patriotic service to Canada. Christian education can quicken the soul of our nation and build strong character and high purpose into the life of our Dominion. Teach a generation of youth to worship blood and soil and you can have a ruthless totalitarian state. Teach a generation of youth the Christian way of life and you can have a nation of free people capable of making democracy succeed. Christian education takes the policemen off the street corner and puts him in the heart.

Within two years Canada has produced a Navy with a strength two-thirds as great as the peacetime British Navy. We found materials and men for that. Can we produce the creative energy to find the answer to a moral and spiritual emergency? Unquestionably we can if we are willing to try and keep at it.

Yonug Canadians on corvettes and motor torpedo boats disregard the weather. They steer through storms and face dangers. If we are dead in earnest about Christian Education, the weather need not keep us at home. The rural mail gets through every day. The Trans-Canada air lines make 95 per cent of their scheduled trips. Sunday weather is seldom worse than weekday weather. We can take it.

Teachers are needed. The best teachers can find opportunity in this continent-wide co-operative project. It is expert work to guide the thinking conduct and faith of growing persons, but in doing this teachers themselves will grow. Their experience will be enriched, their fellowship will be deepend and they can pass on to coming generations what they have received

Judah: An Example of Self-Sacrifice — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 42-44.

When the famine came to all the lands, Jacob sent his sons into Egypt to buy corn, but he would not let Benjamin, Joseph's younger brother, go, and when the brothers stood before Joseph he recognized them but accused them of being spies.

Joseph finally sold them corn, but kept Simeon bound in prison, telling them they must not return unless they brought Benjamin with them. On the way home they found that each man had the money he had paid for his corn in his sack.

The brothers persuaded their father to let them take Benjamin with them, and they returned to Egypt. Joseph invited them to his home and made a feast for them, and they did eat in his house and drank and made merry with him.

Joseph had his silver cup put into Benjamin's sack, then had his steward pursue the brothers and find it. He told them they must leave Benjamin with him, but they pleaded with him that it would break Jacob's heart. (GOLDEN TEXT—I John 3:16)

The Labor Congress

The Labor Congress at Ottawa has been distinguished by realism about the war and by a moderation which is most encouraging. The days are gone forever, let us hope, when workers and employers opposed each other as a matter of principle, much as in old-fashioned schools teachers and pupils looked upon their mutual enmity as a law of nature. Mr. Philip Murray, the president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations who has established a no-strike policy in the U.S., put the matter of industry's relation to the war concisely when he said, "Labor has got to win this war because it is labor's war." Conciliation, not strikes, must be the means of settling disputes.

The President of the Canadian Congress, Mr. A. R. Mosher, endorsed Mr. Murray's statement. Labor has, in the past few years, won many a fight in Canada, and it is now reaching the point where it does not have to fight so hard. To protect the rights which it has already won, and to keep the way clear for further advances, Labor must see that this war is won by the Allies. For the time being, everything must give way before that preeminent need.

The advances made by Labor in Canada of late years must be pleasing to every citizen of truly liberal mind, whether he is himself a manual worker or not. But, having reached the stage where it is able to bargain with Capital on advantageous terms, many people will wonder when Labor will take the logical step of incorporating its unions. In the past, when unions operated under great handicaps, it was easy to see why this was not so; now, when unions are respected in all except die-hard circles, and when they exercise very great power, incorporation seems the logical thing for them. The workers would lose nothing by such a move; indeed, they would gain. The laws which govern large corporations, handling vast sums of money, would protect them against any attempts on the part of dishonest organizers to make a good thing out of their union funds. And when they bargained with employers it would be corporation bargaining with corporation, with the rules clearly established by law.

Recently Canada has received a number of graceful compliments from the U.S. for the adventurous way in which she has tried out economic and soical controls. Canadian Labor has a golden opportunity to set an example by incorporating her unions, thereby giving an earnest of their power, their patriotic intentions, and their unquestionable honesty.

It Takes Organization

No doubt our readers saw the pictures and the news story which appeared in this paper on Thursday, telling of the drive for scrap rubber which has just been completed in Campbellford, but we think that the facts will bear repeating and the moral may well be stressed. Campbellford has raised more than five tons of rubber in its drive, and of this more than three tons was collected by rural mail carriers, who picked it up at farms and small settlements as they made their rounds. As the district had already raised five tons of rubber in a previous drive this must be regarded as an exceptionally fine achievement.

But must it remain exceptional? It was done by organization, and most communities can organize for a cause if they really want to do so. The Campbellford Postmaster, Mr. J. M. Ferris, was the prime mover in this successful campaign, and initiative such as his must exist in other communities, if only it can be awakened. The situation was clear: there was rubber on the farms, and as the farmers could not be induced to bring it to town, means were found to collect it at the farms. The result—five tons of much needed rubber.

Scrap metal is badly wanted now, and there is usually some scrap metal around a farm. Would it not be possible for rural schools to organize the collection of this metal through their pupils? Once the scrap was collected it could be sold, and the money so obtained would make a useful addition to school funds which are always needed for sports, or concerts, or some cause of the kind. We commend this idea to progressive rural schoolteachers. Surely they will not allow the Campbellford Postmaster to take the credit for all the organizing ability in the county?

"The Incomparable Max"

It is with the greatest satisfaction that we read of the celebrations which attended the 70th birthday of Sir Max Beerbohm in London recently. "The incomparable Max," as Bernard Shaw once called him, was one of the great wits of the 'Nineties, and his contribution to English literature, though small, is perfect. Nowadays polish and style in writing are neglected in favor of a ruggedness which is often indistinguishable from uncouthness and vulgarity. After a bout with a Hemingway or a Steinbeck the bruised reader may recover his equanimity by reading a few pages of The Happy Hypocrite or Zuleika Dobson, most perfect of all romances to be written about Oxford.

But style alone will not make a writer great. Max Beerbohm allied style to excellent common sense, a wit both brilliant and deep, and a truly profound humanism. Those who dismiss him as a mere dandy of letters should read him again. The celebration of his birthday appears to have been a most happy occasion, and in his address to the guests the author showed that time had not dulled the spirit which led him to entitle his first book The Works of Max Beerbohm.

The New Category

Mr. Howe's announcement that motorists who use their cars for personal transportation only will be put in a new AA category for gasoline rationing is not in itself so important as his serious revelations about the effect of submarine warfare on Canada. The sinkings of tankers on both of our coasts has increase so markedly that we may become hard-pressed for petroleum for essential industries, quite apart from motor-vehicles. It is our duty to conserve in any way we can, and at whatever inconvenience to ourselves.

Many citizens will act upon his suggestion that they lay up their cars for the winter months. A car is a great comfort as a means of winter transportation, particularly for those who are no longer young, but the demands of the war effort are cutting down many of the comforts to which we had become accustomed. The motorist who lays up his car between October and April will thereby make a direct contribution to Canada's dwindling stock of gasoline.

Every effort is being made to find and destroy the submarines which are sinking so many of our tankers, but no one can say that we have the matter under control, or show any sign of getting it under control in the near future. The only thing for us to do is to scrimp and save gasoline wherever we can. Mr. Howe has told us that he needs our assistance, and it is up to us to see that he gets it.

Canute McCormick

We thought that by this time everyone knew that freedom in the modern world means freedom only to do things which do not inconvenience other people. Apparently we were wrong. Colonel Robert R. McCormick, who publishes the Chicago Tribune (an anti-British and formerly isolationist paper) does not seem to know this simple truth. He thinks, for instance, that "freedom of the press" means freedom to print anything at all, and that he lives in the only country in the world where this right still exists. Speaking from his own radio station recently, he said:

> "Freedom of the press is simply the right of everyone to print, or have printed, whatever he wants without interference by the Government. It only exists in the United States of America. In Great Britain and the Dominions such freedom of speech and press as had been achieved were destroyed by legislation a few years ago."

That, Colonel, is hooey and you ought to know it. There is probably no country in the world at present which has not some form of censorship. Certainly we have it here, and the censorship existing in the U.S. is vigilant and strict. Otherwise there would be leakages of all kinds of information which would be of the greatest value to our enemies. We are not free to tell all we know, certainly, but what is much more important is that we are free to say anything we like in criticism of existing institutions.

The Colonel has put in many a busy day trying to suggest to his countrymen that the British Empire is a decadent, fantastic, monstrously evil institution. He has not made any very remarkable progress. Against the rising tide of Anglo-American friendship he is as impotent as Canute who, according to legend, tried to turn back the waves by the power of his own command.

"Car Is Wrecked Avoiding Skunk" says a headline. Think what it would have been if it had hit it.

Melodrama In The Old South

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE story of adventure is not so popular with modern authors as it was with their predecessors before the last war, but it is still immensely popular with the reading public. That is why I think that "Tap Roots," the new novel by James Street, will be a best-seller. It is published in this country by Longmans Green, and if they do not sell a great number of copies it will be very surprising. The book is a straight tale of adventure; it never rests for a moment. The story is told with zest, in a helter-skelter style, but it never lags in interest through its whole long course. That is exactly the sort of book which everybody wants at some time or other, and some readers want it all the time. Mr. Street has set out to supply their need and he does so with great success.

This author has a great virtue; he is not afraid to be melodramatic. Too many writers are obsessed by the notion that every happening in their books must be credible; they never seem to learn that the incredible is not only more interesting, but frequently gives a more convincing impression of truth. Most of us have at some time been witnesses of, or participators in, some happening which we would find far-fetched if we read it in a book. Few good authors, and no great author, pay much attention to the credibility of their stories. They pay attention to the way in which the stories are told, and that is how they make their tales convicing.

JAMES STREET will never be admired for his style. His vocabulary is loose and lurid, and he has no notion of economy in words. But he is a fine story-teller, all the same. We forgive him all his stylistic iniquities because he never gives us a chance to become bored. We are always anxious to see what will happen next. His characters are not especially life-like, but they are vivid; their thoughts and actions are never commonplace. Mr. Street is not bothered by psychological niceties; like a good melodramatist he makes his characters vehicles to carry along his story, and he does this so whole-heartedly and unashamedly that he achieves a smashing success.

His theme is a novel one. We have had novels enough about the conventional Southern attitude toward the Civil War in the U.S.; this is a book about those Southerners who hated slavery and did everything in their power to bring it to an end. Not because they thought slavery inhuman; they saw it in operation and they knew that its inhumanity existed largely in the minds of the northern Yankees who knew nothing about the matter. They hated slavery because it made the whole economic operation of the South dependant upon the whims of the slave-owners; ordinary producers could not hope to compete with the abundance of slave labor. These men, whom we should now call go-getters, wanted a sort of commerce in which the slave-owners were not interested, and therefore they decided that the only method of getting their own way would be by the abolition of slavery.

THE scene of "Tap Roots" is the free state of Lebanon which existed within the larger state of Mississipi. Lebanon was owned and ruled by the Dabneys, a spirited, wilful family descended from Old Sam Dabney, who appears in the early chapters of the book. Old Sam is what we would all like to believe that pioneers were, and Mr. Street has lavished some of his most flamboyant art on this character. His greatest friend is Tishomingo, a chief of the Choctaws, who is what Mark Twain would have called "a Fenimore Cooper Indian." There is little, either in the culture of the white man or the lore of his own people, which Tishomingo does not know. He is unbelievably sagacious on all occasions, and he is a very flashy performer with a bull-whip; he is reputed to skin men with it. Much of the story's charm springs from this remarkable Choctaw.

Dabney's son (who is actually his grandson but who is unaware of this) Hoab Dabney, under whose leadership Lebanon successfully holds out against the South during the war. The story of their defiance of the Confederacy at a time when the Union cause seems hopeless is brilliantly told. This book, by the bye, gives interesting glimpses of Lincoln as a schemer and backwoods politician (which is how he appeared to many of his contemporaries) and of that ambiguous and unfortunate character Jeffy Davis, leader of the Confederacy.

ALMOST as entertaining a melodramatic character as Tishomingo is Keith Alexander, the Black Knight of Vengeance, whose terrible secret is that his parents were not married. Because of this dreadful (but from his point of view quite unavoidable) blot on his character, he behaves in a most romantic and desperado-like manner with Morna, Hoab's daughter, who shows an interesting tendency to take off her stays and abandon herself to Alexander, so fascinating is he and so passionate she. All in all you cannot go wrong with this book if you are looking for entertainment; if Mr. Street means to go on writing books like "Tap Roots" I have no intention of missing one of them.

Unconsidered Trifles

"On the day on which my wedding occurred—"

"You'll pardon the correction but affairs such as marriages, receptions, dinners and things of that sort 'take place.' Only calamities 'occur.' You see the distinction."

"Yes, I see. As I was saying, the day on which my wedding occurred—"

Smith was in his den with a few of his friends talking about his wife and her peculiarities.

"I have thought for some time," he said, "that my wife is utterly devoid of taste, but the other day she put on a new dress which was atrocious beyond words. I daren't, of course, say a word about it, and dared hardly look at it, but as she went out I went to the window to have another look at her and——"

At this juncture his wife entered suddenly.

"And the funniest part of the whole affair," continued Smith, without showing the least embarrassment, "was that they found the cat eleven days later on the top of the Eiffel Tower!"

And Mrs. Smith still does not understand what there was in that ridiculous statement to make them all laugh so uproariously.

Hun Timetable Spoiled

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

THE Russian last-ditch stand at Stalingrad, described by the Nazis as "embittered" and "suicidal," has thrown Hitler off schedule at least another day.

The fact must be that the Nazi attempt to storm the city streets from the northwest was more "suicidal" than the Russian defense.

German casualties inevitably were heavier than those of Russian defenders, who first contained the twin thrusts in a house-to-house battle, then drove the attackers out. In close-quarter action of that type, the attacker invariably pays a heavier casualty price several times over than the defender.

The Russian success in expelling the first invader units may not guarantee that Nazi follow-up drives of the same nature can be turned back.

Stalingrad is so certainly proved now both a symbol and a strategic pivot which Hitler must have at any price that it is a fair guess he is lashing his generals and troops to outmatch the Russians in suicidal determination. Yet that first repulse tended to confirm the impression that when the battle reached the street-fighting stage the odds against the Russians lessened rather than increased.

The enemy could not bring to bear in such close action and on so restricted a manoeuvre field his dive-bombers or tank superiority. Man to man, the Russians stood him off. Only by throwing overwhelmingly superior manpower at terrible cost into the fight can the city be reduced.

London has forwarded a report from Moscow that at the supreme moment orders to counter-attack, not to stand and die where they fought, were issued to all Russian units in Stalingrad. They stressed that every house or hill regained meant time lost to Hitler. There were also Moscow reports of reinforcements from Central Siberia pouring into the battle along the Don and Volga.

Stalingrad does not offer the Russians a base for a major counter-offensive. Massing within the city any more troops than could be effectively used in street fighting would merely be to double or treble losses unless Russian planes were available to keep off Nazi bombers.

If Siberian reinforcements are coming up, they must be heading for some other point in the line, probably for the Russian-held bridgeheads south of the Don along the north face of the great river bend. That is the only discernible point where a second-front operation might develop which could conceivably free Stalingrad from its dire peril.

It is too late for Russian counter-pressure far to the north to influence greatly the trend of the Stalingrad battle. It has long been too late for an Anglo-American second-front assault from the west to ease pressure on Russia at that point.

Nor do Canadian losses in the Dieppe operations, amounting to substantially two-thirds of the total force of 5,000 Canadians engaged, suggest that mass Allied landing operations across the English Channel are soon to be expected.

Whatever else was learned by the Allied High Command at Dieppe, the lesson that a real counter-invasion attempt to carry the war to Germany from the west must await far greater expansion of Anglo-American air and sea power as well as manpower than has yet been attained seems dominant.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—What the Dominion Government does about compulsory bargaining legislation, if it does anything, depends on whether organized labor can get together on the subject, it is understood from high authorities.

Some time soon leaders of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor—the biggest union groups—are to meet for discussions on the subject. So far, officials say, they have been unable to agree.

The predominant belief is that Labor Minister Mitchell, an old union man himself, will give the most favorable consideration to a joint recommendation from the two organizations on the collective bargaining question. But he is known to oppose any move based on the preferences of one or the other.

Departmental officials look upon the divergence of views in the T.L.C. and C.C.L. as the major problem to be surmounted before either the Federal or Ontario Governments can act. And they'll watch the coming conference of labor heads with utmost interest.

The talk is that National Selective Service will take over the calling up of men for military service Nov. 1. Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave no date when he said the move was planned.

Selective service has been holding off until it has about completed organization of its manpower-control machinery. Even at Nov. 1, say those in the know, the job won't be finished. The existing National War Services department machinery will be used for the November call-up at least.

It will be up to selective service to make sure the army's requisitions for manpower are filled with the least disruption of essential industry.

Right now the worst problem for the director of selective service and his staff is to find more than 100,000 men for winter work in the forests. That is a purely domestic problem but there is one related to it with tricky international angles.

Down in the Martimes Canadian workers are flocking across the border to work in the Maine woods, an annual event. But this year the home labor situation is so desperate they can't be spared in the normal numbers.

The outlook is for a Canada-United States agreement cutting the border-crossing quota by a sizable margin. There ought to be an announcement soon.

Mixed up with its tough problems, though, selective service has its lighter side. For instance there's the French-Canadian down Riviere Du Loup way who wants them to find him a "real good job" so he can "take girls out at night."

The army has always been fair game for the young fellow who made out he was a couple of years older than his actual age so he could get past the recruiting sergeant. Now the army thinks it has things fixed so they'll stay fixed.

Before the lads even see the medical officer in the distance they have to produce a registration card which has been issued to all Canadians over 16.

"Beat that," says the army, happily.

An intriguing subject for discussion—in hushed voices, always—is the progress of the Alaska Highway being built from Fort St. John, B.C., by United States troops. Government officials know as much as anyone about what goes on and they come back from northern expeditions with big, round eyes and expressive "ahs."

But when you ask about United States reports that some kind of road will be through to Alaska before the year-end they mutter that "It's a United States show" and not for Canadians to talk about, for publication anyway.

All they do say in private is good; that the Americans are pretty competent people when it comes to building roads—and other things.

Maybe you didn't believe those stories about overcrowded Ottawa? This corner reports that even Premier Bracken of Manitoba, here this week, spent the first hour or so of his stay looking for a hotel room.

And a sign-off note: Those A.R.P. sandbags stacked through the corridors of the parliament buildings are out of sight now. They've been provided with the neatest little red boxes, marked "public works department."

Loosens Tongues

So Cupid turns out to be a fifth columnist—but only in so far as he loosens tongues, and causes irresponsible talk. If he can overcome this trait, no doubt he can get back in the good graces of the army.—Halifax Chronicle.

A Bible Message For Today

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.—Gen. 1, 26, 27.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.... The Lord will give strength unto his people; the Lord will bless his people with peace.—Ps. xxix, 2, 11.

Praise ye the Lord. Sing unto the Lord a new song, and his praise in the congregation of saints. Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: let the children of Zion be joyful in their King.... For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people.—Ps. cxlix, 1, 2, 4.

Chain Letters Again

Ottawa reports that the chain letter nuisance has again made its appearance in that city, and The Ottawa Citizen reports that it has received a scrawl, "badly written and exhibiting all the usual marks of superstitious belief common to such letters." Generally this kind of thing is developed, honestly or otherwise, as a money-raising stunt. The technique is familiar. The newest recipient subscribes a certain sum and sends so many copies of the letter to a specified number of friends. The idea is that when the new subscriber's turn comes around, he or she, too, will be showered with financial rewards from other contributors. Perhaps there are cases on record where the 'scheme" really worked out that way, but we seriously doubt it.

In addition to the something-for-nothing appeal, of course, the chain letter usually contains a last paragraph threat to the effect that if you break the chain all sorts of ill luck will overtake you. So The Calgary Herald is right when it declares: "The chain letter racket appeals to two of the lowest instincts—greed and credulity." That paper suggests that people who deliberately break chain letters ought to be rewarded for doing society a good turn. Sound advice, in case the present Ottawa pest spreads this war west, is: "Don't be silly. Ignore the terms of the letter. Put the bit of paper on which it is written in the Victory Bag." It will do more good there.—Brantford Expositor.

A Bit Of History

Hitler, winning his costly battles in Russia, know how Napoleon felt about his series of victories in Germany before the French defeat at Leipsig in October 1813. The Corsican had nothing left for that one, and the Austrian adventurer may well be wondering if he will have a punch in October, 1942, when the Russian winter begins closing in.—Los Angeles Times.

Farmer Digs Up Torque Worth $700

LONDON, Sept. 19—Alfred Hare didn't think much about the twisted piece of wire that his cultivator dug up in Bawsey, England. Neither did his employer, G. W. Wilson, and for months it rattled around in the back of Wilson's car.

Now Wilson is glad he saved it, the "piece of wire" is valued at £200 (about $700 Canadian money). In addition, a court adjudged the precious wire to be treasure trove—the property of the finder, Alfred Hare.

According to the Fitzwilliams Museum at Cambridge, the treasure is a 2,000-year-old electrum torque or neck ornament. It contains 90 per cent gold and silver and weighs three pounds. Electrum is an alloy of gold and silver which the ancient Britons made into jewelry.

The story of the find was told in court. After Hare handed the metal to Wilson in April, 1941, it was tossed into Wilson's car. It was seen by a garage mechanic, who was struck by the odd, semicircular shape of the ornament. The mechanic advised taking it to a dealer. And Wilson asked the Fitzwilliam Museum director, Louis C. G. Clarke, about it.

Museum experts identified the torque and assayed it, finding more than 44 per cent gold, and nearly 50 per cent silver.

If the torque is detained by the Crown or a museum, Hare will be paid its market value, estimated at £200. If not, it will be returned to him.

Tweed Boy Is Missing In Raid

TWEED, Sept. 19 (ENS).—Sapper Bert Huycke, one of Tweed's most popular boys has been reported missing at Dieppe. The people of the village were deeply shocked when it became known Sapper Huycke was missing. His father, Lee Huycke of Melford, Sask., was notified sometime ago. The Huycke family name has been identified with this village for many years. His grandfather and uncles were engaged in the hotel business here, Bert came to live with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson. He enrolled at Tweed High School and soon became one of the most popular students. Of an ambitious nature he joined the staff of Carl D. Wilson's drug store.

Goes to Toronto

Malcolm Andrews who has been associated with the Forestry headquarters for the Trent district in Tweed since 1926 has received notice of his transfer to Toronto effective Oct. 1. Mr. Andrews has been a capable, efficient and popular civil servant in this community. Born in England, Mr. Andrew's father was vicar of the parish of Shelgrave for 39 years. He came to Canada in 1913 on the outbreak of war he joined the colors and went overseas with the 14th Division. While in France he was wounded twice and on returning from overseas he enrolled as a student in the Faculty of Forestry coming to Tweed 16 years ago. Since the appointment of Mr. H. W. Crobie to an important post in the Parliament Buildings. Mr. Andrews has been acting district forester here. Mr. A. Leslie was permanently appointed to the position sometime ago.

Major-General R. F. L. Keller, Kelowna, B.C., who succeeds Major-General C. B. Price as general officer commanding a Canadian division overseas and becomes the youngest major-general in the Canadian army.

Call Issued For Used Sewing Machines

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP)—Used sewing machines, in increasing demand since war needs have called for metals used in their production, went under a wartime price ceiling today with an order announced by S. Godfrey, administrator of used goods.

The second-hand machines now are scarce, the announcement said, and any housekeeper who has a sewing machine not in use is urged to turn it in, listing it with the used goods administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board if he is unable to dispose of it by other channels.

Sewing-machine scarcity has resulted in a tendency toward increased prices, and the new ceiling has been imposed because used machines were not previously subject to the maximum price regulations.

Price of used machines, rebuilt, is not to exceed 60 per cent of the selling price when new, said the statement. "This applies only to Ontario and Quebec, an additional $2.50 being permitted on sales in the Maritime provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and $5 additional for sales in Alberta and British Columbia. Extras and attachments not regularly supplied with a similar machine when sold as new may be charged for in addition, on the basis of 60 per cent of the price when new."

Rangers Start Fall Training Tuesday Night

Tuesday night will see the Second Battalion of the Prince of Wales Rangers begin Fall training. During the absence of the administrative and training staff on a special course in Kingston, the men of the battalion have had a holiday, but the officers and N.C.O's have taken advantage of the situation to carry on as usual on Tuesday and Thursday evenings with lectures, drill, and a great deal of mutual instruction, designed to make the training during the coming season more efficient.

One important change will take effect immediately. The second battalion has been changed from a machine gun to a rifle unit to correspond with the First Battalion. This means a certain amount of reorganization within the companies, and affects headquarters company especially. This war establishment of a rifle battalion is over 800 all ranks, and this is a very opportune time for recruits to join up. Over 200 men are needed to complete the company establishments. The best work can be done only when every platoon is up to strength.

Although enthusiasm is strong amongst the present members of the battalion, there is naturally considerable disappointment and some surprise that the battalion was not up to strength weeks ago. It is felt that everything possible has been done to put the need of the Reserve Army before the citizens of Peterborough and district, and to explains the nature of the work carried on. Next to joining the Active Service ranks, the most important duty of an eligible citizen is to make himself fit for home defence by enlisting and training in the Reserve Army.

27 In Bugle Band

The unit in the battalion which is making most progress at present from a recruiting standpoint is the bugle band. Under Corporal Barton the band has increased its numbers to twenty-seven, and it is confidently expected that it will reach an enrolment of forty. This will be the largest bugle band enlisted locally in recent years.

The brass band has also added new bandsmen to its strength, and is rapidly making up the deficiency caused by the enlistment of nearly twenty for active service. Both bands have been training steadily since the return from Connaught Camp.

It is expected that the week-end outdoor training at the Rifle Range camp will be resumed at once, if weather permits, so as to complete the necessary ten days required by the training syllabus for reserve units. Sleeping conditions will be more comfortable as straw mattresses are now provided.

The two officers and three N.C.O's who make up the permanent staff on the strength of the battalion have returned from Kingston, and are ready to give to give the men the benefit of the course which they have been taking.

There is no better time than the present for prospective recruits to join up. The recruiting office is open throughout the day, and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings for the Rangers.

Dangerous Roles For Yugoslav Canadian Unit

By FRANK FLAHERTY.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP).—Special and probably dangerous war roles await the Yugoslav troops whom Col. D. P. Savitch hopes to recruit and train in Canada.

He is looking for men to reinforce Yugoslav air force squadrons fighting with the Royal Air Force in the Middle East and General Draga Mihailovitch's tough army which is still battling the German occupation forces in the homeland.

Just how men who may be recruited and trained in Canada can reach and join the Yugoslav army at home is something he is not talking about for obvious reasons.

Col. Savitch has come to Canada on a military mission. He now is trying to find what Yugoslav citizens who may be fit and available for service are in Canada with a view to asking them to join the army and report for training at Windsor, Ont.

A similar survey is being made in the United States and it is possible some of the Yugoslavs recruited there may also go to Windsor for training.

Col. Savitch was chief of staff of his country's air force when the Germans attacked Yugoslavia in the spring of 1914. He was not home at the time as was a plenipotentiary at the signing of the Russian-Yugoslav non-aggression pact in Moscow and the country was overrun before he got back.

He Needs Men.

Since then he has devoted himself to the activities of Yugoslav forces outside the country and their chief problem is men.

The problem of supporting General Mihailovitch is also a vital one for the Yugoslavs, he said. Weapons, munitions and supplies are needed and this is one of the factors the Yugoslav government has in mind in recruiting men in Canada and the United States.

Some of them may be trained in parachute work. They will be given instruction which will enable them to go to certain places and carry out certain duties which they alone, by reason of their speaking the language of the country, could perform.

"Because our forces are still fighting in Yugoslavia infiltration can be carried out more efficaciously there than in other parts of Europe," says Col. Savitch. "I hope that in the future he will be able to do something in that way and that we may make some contribution to the general fight against the Axis powers.

Belmont W.I. Holds Grandmother's Day

HAVELOCK, Sept. 19—(ENS). — The September meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute was held in the Belmont Stone Hall on Thursday. The meeting was dedicated to the grandmothers, and the roll call was well responded to with "Ways of Gladdening Grandmothers." It was decided to hold a quilting in the hall on the 25th of September.

Quilt linings were received from Mrs. Rylott, Mrs. L. Keene and Mrs. George Smith, and Mrs. R. Anderson donated a quilt top. It was also decided to have no programs at future showers, just dancing.

The program convener, Mrs. William Anderson, had charge and read a welcome address to the grandmothers present. Wilma Ashby gave a reading entitled "In Honor of Grandma." The grandmothers then were called upon to sing "What a Friend we have in Jesus." Mrs. George Hartin gave a reading. Mrs. William Smith read a story. Mrs D. Anderson favored the members with a piano solo. Everyone joined in singing "Mother." The National Anthem closed the meeting, followed by refreshments and a social half-hour. The lunch was served by Mrs. Rylott, Mrs. Charles Ellis, Mrs. J. Roe and Mrs. L. Keene.

2 Canucks' Deeds Dieppe's Heroes

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP).—The Defence Department to-day singled out in its 4,000-word statement on Dieppe the bravery of two Canadian soldiers—Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, and Lance Sergeant G. E. Hickson of the 7th Field Company, Royal Canadian Engineers.

Col. Merritt, a Vancouver man, whose wife is listed as living at Belleville, Ont., is missing. Sgt. Hickson got back to England safely.

"Where all were brave, it is difficult and perhaps invidious to quote individual cases of gallantry," said the Department, "but two such instances are mentioned here merely as examples of the manner in which Canadian officers and men maitained the traditions of the Canadian army and the honor of their country."

When Col. Merritt's battalion was held up by fire at a bridge on which many men had fallen he walked back and forth across the structure waving his helmet and calling, "See, there is no danger here." Then he led his men across and cleared enemy positions on the other side.

He led detachments against strong road blocks, personally disposed of a sniper and led parties against machine gun posts. When last seen he was gathering weapons and organizing a defensive position to cover the withdrawal of the last parties of his unit.

Hickson Cracks Casino.

Sgt. Hickson was assigned to a demolition job in the town and, unable to go to it directly, attached himself to an infantry platoon. When the platoon's officer and senior non-commissioned officers were put out of action he took command and led it to the Casino which he entered by blasting a hole through a wall.

With another charge he blew in the steel door of a concrete gun emplacement inside the Casino and killed the gun crew. He destroyed a six-inch naval gun and two machine guns, then re-organized the rest of the platoon and led them against heavy opposition into the town. He was one of the last men evacuated from the beach.

Sweeper Fleet Great On Yarns

By FOSTER BARCLAY.

ABOARD A MINESWEEPER IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL, Sept. 19—(CP).—When the day's sweep is finished and the "black ensign" fleet has tied up at the quay you will generally find the skippers in any of the wardrooms, swapping salty yarns and almost unbelievable tales of the war at sea.

At this channel harbor minesweeping is almost a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week job. Work doesn't stop when the ships hit port at the end of the run. Decks and equipment, heavily coated with coal dust, must be swabbed, reports made out and a dozen other odds and ends put ship-shape.

An air raid siren howled as the skippers gathered in this Canadian-commanded minesweeper for a special celebration. Lieut. James Plomer of Winnipeg and Saint John was tossing a party in honor of a dour Scot who bagged a mine that day in a field 80 miles along the coast. The fleet was under orders to 'clean it out' next day.

One by one the skippers climbed down the hatchway and took a chair about a table beside the bulkhead covered with framed sketches of "lovelies" at their best.

It wasn't long before Jock came through the hatch, a big smile wreathing his wrinkled weather-beaten face.

"Well, boys," he chuckled. "You're all pikers. I'm off for 14 days' leave. That mine shook the stuffing out of the old girl and she'll have to go into dry dock.

"I didn't know I had it until I heard a dull rumble and water spouted into the air. The water where it went up, was covered with a brown substance that's got me baffled."

Only Seasonal Workers Exempt

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP).—Employers must deduct income tax from all employees except temporary seasonal employee engaged during September, October and November to harvest crops, C. Fraser, Elliott, income tax commissioner, said in a statement.

The statement follows:

A recent statement by the Minister of National Revenue (Hon. Colin Gibson) that income tax may not be deducted in certain cases has caused a number of inquiries and considerable misunderstanding.

The substance of the minister's statement is that after the turn of the year a possible plan might be worked out with a view to stopping deductions from persons who did not receive sufficient income in the calendar year 1942 to be taxable.

Such a plan has been under consideration but it has not been decided upon.

It is replete with difficulties and it may be found that these are greater than the difficulties involved in continuing the present system of making deductions and subsequently refunding.

Therefore, in the meantime, this is to reiterate that employees must, by law, deduct from their employees in accordance with the table of tax deductions.

The only exception provided for under order-in-council is in respect of those temporary seasonal employees engaged during the months of September, October and November in the harvesting of Canadian crops.

Employees must continue to deduct from all others.

Oil Field Scrap

CALGARY, Sept. 19—(CP).—The Alberta Petroleum Association has completed plans to make available for the war effort 2,500 tons of high grade steel, comprising scrap material in the Turner Valley oil field. It is estimated the amount of scrap ready to be moved will be sufficient to fill 75 carloads.

None Failed Duty At Dieppe Lauds Ottawa

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—Spotted through today's defence department statement on the Dieppe battle are brief bits of unqualified praise for the Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen who took part.

These are the ones that stand out, aside from those referring to individual acts of gallantry:—

"Throughout this operation the conduct of all ranks of the Canadian military forces engaged, and their determination to capture their objectives at whatever cost, were beyond all praise."

"Although they confronted situations comparable to the most dangerous tasks assigned to troops in the last war, there was not the slightest hesitation, and all ranks evinced the keenest desire to come to grips with the enemy."

"In none of these (documents on the operation) is there the slightest suggestion that so much as one man of the Canadian Army failed in his duty."

"The Royal Hamilton Light Infantry—attacking with great dash—had succeeded in capturing the Casino, which was most heavily fortified."

"The men of this unit (the Essex Scottish from Windsor, Ont.)—advancing with great courage to close with the enemy—were exposed to heavy fire from enemy mortars and suffered very numerous casualties."

"Although the ships and craft lying off Dieppe suffered sporadic attacks by dive-bombers, the (Royal) Navy most gallantly went into the beaches again and again to take off the troops, and officers and other ranks of the military force ashore performed many acts of gallantry in carrying wounded men to the landing craft."

"The naval forces ran all risk to assist the troops."

"Numerous cases of gallantry on the part of such personnel (Canadians serving with the Royal Navy) were recorded."

"Two army co-operation squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force attached to formations of the Canadian Army Overseas participated in the operation. Both did gallant work and suffered losses. Canadian fighter squadrons likewise played a brilliant part."

The Wrong Way

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 19—(AP).—Mrs. John Slaski is as good a patriot as anyone, but when her husband began breaking the Japanese-made dishes in their home, she called the police. It wasn't so much what he was doing, but how he was doing it, police said. He was breaking them over her head.

CALGARY, Sept. 19—(CP).—Fifteen Calgary women are working on construction of a new military hospital here following a request by W. Harry Ross, supervisor of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. They are operating hoists and toting wheel-barrows loaded with cement.

Accidents Go Up

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Industrial accidents in the Province of Quebec rose sharply in the first eight months of 1942. O. E. Sharpe of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission reports. In the 1942 period, acidents totalled 61,848, compared with 50,742 in the like period of 1941.

1,000-Pound Turtle

ASTORIA, Ore Sept. 19—(AP).—"Hey," Claude Ely, passenger on a deep-sea fishing boat, yelled excitedly to the crew, "there's a submarine over there." The boat was manoeuvred closer and Capt. Clifton Christiansen fired a rifle and hauled aboard a six-foot turtle weighing 1,000 pounds.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Crangized softball is not all over yet. The City League, the Girls' Loop and the Catholic League have long since completed their schedules and declared their champions but the Industrial League playoffs have just reached the final stage and are billed for next week. Outboard Marines, C.G.E. and Canadian Watercraft, survived the first round, with Brintons, Raybestos and Dominion Woollens being eliminated. Outboard Marines drew the bye into the finals while Watercraft eliminated the C.G.E. in the semi-final round and will now meet the Marines in the final series for the league championship. It will be a best two of three round with all the games scheduled for Riverside Park, starting at 6.15 o'clock. The rivals will meet Monday and Wednesday nights and if a third game is necessary it will be staged Friday night. The Industrial League clubs have been playing good ball and the final series should provide a lot of excitement as the finalists are very evenly matched.

Manager George "Soup" Campbell's Oshawa Colts are the zone champions in the O.A.S.A. intermediate A series, thanks principally to the good right arm of the big veteran hurler, Preem Whiteley. In the first game of the series with the Kingston Victorias who had eliminated Belleville, Whiteley was on the rubber and Oshawa won their home game without the slightest trouble, taking the verdict 11 to 3. Dean McLaughlin was assigned the task of controlling the Kingston club in the return game played Tuesday night but the former horseshoe champion who suffered his first loss of the season at the hands of the Plazas here took a real hammering from the Vics who won the argument 9 to 3. That made the third game look like anybody's battle but Whiteley was back on the mound for Oshawa when the two clubs clashed at Belleville Thursday night and the big fellow turned in about his best effort of the season, holding the Kingston batters to two hits and shutting them out. Meanwhile the Oshawa batters were teeing off and the final score was 13 to 0 for the Colts, a decisive enough decision to send the Vics back to Kingston without an alibi.

Anti-Tankers Win Again

The softball team of the 4th Anti-Tank Battery is doing quite nicely for itself in England, Manager H. Hopkins of Peterborough says in a letter received by this column. A number of Peterborough boys are on the lineup of the unit and the pitcher is Milroy who was the star of the Anti-Tank hockey team when the unit was stationed Lindsay. Manager Hopkins says that his team has now put out the 8th Brigade winners, the North Shore Regiment from New Brunswick, winning 16-5 and 9-4. The lineup was the same as in previous games except that Sergt. Chuck Dorrington was replaced by Harrison. Milroy was too good for the opposition, striking out 14 men in the first game. Hatton and McCoy led the assault with home runs. The second game, the letter says was a continual squabble. "The New Brunswickers," Manager Hopkins writes, "tried to make some new rules as the game got going and protested the umpires' work continually. Twice there was a near free-for-all, stopped by officers of the two outfits."

* * * * * *

Manager Hopkins expresses the hope that the next opponents of the Anti-Tank team may turn out to be the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. "We are no waiting to meeting the 9th Brigade winners and are hoping that it is the Sand, Dust and Gravel outfit, especially the headquarters company. We would like nothing better than show the infantry how good the anti-tank is." Incidentally there is more than the game itself to make softball exciting the letter reveals. "One of the interesting things about the first game is worth mention," Manager Hopkins writes. "While waiting for the North Shores to come a Jerry plane flew over and the A.A. guns started banging at it. For a while we were visited quite often. Three nights in a row they were over dropping stuff around us and we saw quite a display of fireworks."

* * * * * *

Another well known Peterborough athlete has enlisted for active service this week in the person of Jimmy Thorburn, high-scoring forward of the Outboard Marines and the Quaker City League champions last season who travelled down to Kingston this week and enlisted with the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. Incidentally Jimmy's debut at Kingston was auspicious. When the Navy basketball team heard that he was a cage star they tossed him into action that same night against the Kingston Y.M.C.A. senior squad and despite the fact that the Peterborough lad hadn't touched a basketball since the end of the last season and had to play in borrowed shoes, he had a notable debut. The Y outfit defeated the Navy boys 52 to 45 and all Thorburn did was to score 40 out of the Sailors' 45 points—a nice start in anybody's ball club. Thorburn is the fifth member of the Outboard Marine roster of last season to enlist for service in the armed forces and with Joe Jakafby gone to Hamilton, the Peterborough intermediate O.A.S.A. squad has practically disappeared since last season.

Start Stretch Drive

The eyes of ball fans today will be turned on two National League cities, Brooklyn where the wobbly Dodgers are billed to tie into Philadelphia and Chicago where the steam-rolling St. Louis Cards meet the Cubs. The Bums were to have opened the Philadelphia series yesterday but the game was rained out and will be played Monday which is an open date. Brooklyn is counting heavily upon a clean sweep over the Phillies whom they have already beaten 12 out of 15 games this season and with whom seven of their remaining 10 games are scheduled. However the Phillies especially with Hughes on the rubber are likely to cause some grief for the Bums who are now in a position to need to win everything in sight. St. Louis faces tough opposition at Chicago where the Cubs have their three best pitchers groomed for the series and will lead off today with the former Card pitcher Lon Warneke. Manager Billy Southworth is retaliating with his 20-game-winning ace Mort Cooper and it should be quite a duel in the Windy City.

Some idea of the class of the Picton R.A.F. soccer team which meets the Mount Hope R.A.F. team here two weeks from today in a game for the British War Victims' Fund may be obtained from the fact that the Picton outfit boasts in its membership seven British professionals, two schoolboy internationals and four junior international players. The Picton Fliers are playing the strong Ulster club in Toronto today and it is announced that the team will be selected from the following: Thornton (Wolverhampton), J. Williams (Manchester City), R. Williams (Eastbourne Town), Flockett (Spennymoor United), Campbell (Patrick Thistle), Ross (Johnstone United), Stavely (Bishop Auckland), Sheddon (Queen's Park), McConnell (Ayr United), Miller (Middlesborough), Lockwood (Durham University) and Smith (Elgin City).

Hepburn Divorced By Ogden Ludlow

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 19 — (AP).—Katharine Hepburn, stage and screen actress, was divorced yesterday by her husband, Ogden Ludlow, of Alexandria, Va., in Superior Court here. Judge O'Sullivan rendered judgment for the plaintiff on the ground of desertion.

Ludlow told the court that Miss Hepburn had divorced him in 1934 in Mexico but said he doubted the legality of the degree. Miss Hepburn did not appear in the courtroom. Ludlow charged desertion in 1933 "because she had decided that she couldn't continue her career and be married, too." They were married in West Hartford December 12, 1928, when he used the name of Ludlow Ogden Smith.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP). — One of the most successful coaches in the country is Tommy Hays of Edmonton, who has succeeded PO. Bob Fritz as coach of the University of Alberta Football Bears.

Tommy is 29. He wasn't much of an athlete himself, but has that elusive quality of character which makes men trust him, do their best for him. He's practically a rookie in the coaching line but took Edmonton Maple Leafs to the Alberta Junior football crown in 1940 and 1941, and coached the same club into the Western Junior hockey finals last year.

He may pick off another championship with Bears this season. Western intercollegiate sport has been curtailed in wartime, but not snuffed out. Present plans call for a four-game series between University of Alberta and University of Saskatchewan, in Saskatoon on October 17 and 19 and in Edmonton October 24 and 26.

Oh yeah? Dept.

Umpire Stan Szysky of Regina officiated in Moose Jaw several games this summer, said at season's end he had never heard a squawk from anyone during the season.... Either he's a positively amazing umpire, or he's deaf too.

Incidentally:

Lester Patrick once called Sub-Lt. Russ McConnell, who went down with H.M.C.S. Raccoon, the finest natural hockey player the world has ever known....Vancouver football fans, as well as professional circles, knew Lt.Col. Cecil Merritt well.....Col. Merritt, who has been reported a prisoner of war after Dieppe was a standout in the Vancouver Big Four about a decade ago....He was a lawyer in civil life ....Bill (Kingston Whig-Standard) Walshe reports that Kingston won't lack for football this year, with service players filling many of the gaps ....Freddie (Fort William Times-Journal) Edwards writes that Frank Sargent, C.A.H.A. president, is a good golfer, too....Sargent won the Port Arthur Golf and Country Club championship with a 73.....Plans are being pushed for football in Regina this fall, with Father Athol Murray of the Notre Dame School for Boys one of the prime movers....Here's an athletic organization actually progressing in wartime: The Ottawa-New Edinburgh Canoe Club, which had a deficit of $500 in 1941, a profit of $3,500 in 1942.

Getting Even

LONDON, Sept. 19 (CP) — The German commander in France has ordered all theatres, movies and other places of amusement in Paris closed tomorrow and Sunday "because attempts against the German army have multiplied recently," Reuters reported today.

Reuters said the order, issued by Gen. Otto Von Stuelpnagel, was broadcast by the Vichy radio. All sports gatherings were banned for two days.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 — (AP).— That $135,000 plus that Joe Louis and Billy Conn will be allowed to extract from the championship fight to pay their private debts is only about a quarter of what they'd be paid if they were civilians fighting for the usual 40-20 cuts....still, a lot of folks will be wondering why they're getting even that much after the original announcement that nobody would make a cent out of the scrap....We can imagine the howls that will go up from people who objected to suggestions that Joe be allowed enough to pay his income tax debt when they hear he's paying almost as much to Mike Jacobs and John Roxborough..... Nearly as we can figure it now, the Army emergency relief will collect about half the estimated $1,200,000 receipts, if the fans will kick in that much....That ain't exactly hay but neither is $135,000.

Safety in numbers.

In 1940 and 1941, the Delaware U. football team had co-captains and it went undefeated in 13 consecutive games....Playing it safe when they held their election the other day, the Lettermen split the 1942 captaincy among three senior players, Hugh Bogovich, Walt Paul, and Al Newcomb.

Recovered fumbles.

Look for plenty of speed from California this season, Harold Davis and Grover Klemmer, the fastest guys on Jeff Cravath's track team, are wearing football uniforms now ...Another moan: Michigan State's Charley Bachman lost a promising sophomore halfback because something in th aeir around East Lansing made Paige Christiansen sneeze so much he decided to stay at home in New Mexico......Monk Simons, Tulane's trainer for 28 years, is barred from practice sessions conducted by his son, little Monk. He has been warned not to be excited but he always does.

Swim Contests Held In 'Y' Pool

There was great fun and excitement at the Y.W.C.A. Pool on Friday afternoon when crowds of youngsters splashed and dived to their heart's content.

Final of 25 yards—1 S. Garner, 2 B. Saunders, 3 A. Gardner.

In the 25 yards dash for 11 and under—First group—1 S. Gray 2 J. Fitzgerald; Second group—1 M. Pogue, 2 A. Buller; Finals—1. Sunny Gray, 2 Alice Buller.

Pigeon race—Helen Scriver, winner.

Diving contest—1 Jean Millard, 2 Shirley Garner, 3 Adele Gardner.

Miss Littlefield announced that free swimming will be held at the Y.W.C.A. Pool next Friday at 4:30 p.m. All school girls welcome.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

We have already published the games to be played on Monday night next. We now submit the program for the balance of the week:

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Group A to play the games that were rained out on Thursday, Aug. 27th.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Group B to play the games that were rained out on Thursday, Sept. 10th.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Group A to play the games that were rained out on Wednesday, Sept. 9th.

As these are all postponed games, bowlers are asked to consult their supplementary schedule, and check on the dates and games.

In the ladies' section Mrs. R. Hendry has reached the finals of the club singles on the lower half of the draw. Just why there should be so much delay and so much postponing on the upper half is not very easily explained.

At this time of the year the boys begin to ask about the annual meeting. When and where is it going to be held. To be honest, we don't know the first thing about it, but as soon as they tell us, why we'll pass it on.

CARDS' DRIVE RECALLS BOSTON BRAVES' 1914 PENNANT DRIVE

Card Boss Thinks Dodgers Chances Good

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19. — A chat with Billy Southworth prompts a suggestion. Skipper Durocher really ought to invite him over to Ebbetts Field to deliver a "pep" talk to the sagging Dodgers.

For if they would listen to what the silvering haired, soft-spoken boss of the Red Birds has to say, they might be convinced they yet have a chance to win the pennant.

Billy thinks so and says so.

"This thing isn't nearly over," he declared. "The Dodgers are a good ball team."

Billy agrees, of course, that his Cards have the better chance, and he nodded his head when one of his interviewers pointed out that the Dodger slump brightened the Red Bird prospects.

"But that's nothing to count on," he objected. "Slumps are mysterious things. They come and they go without explanation. It is the time to beware though when a good team breaks one. The reaction is always pronounced"

The biggest point in the Cards' favor? Somebody asked that, and Billy pondered a moment.

"The schedule, I guess," he said finally and somewhat surprisingly. "The Dodgers don't get another whack at us, and now that we're in front that is important. We've beaten them, and I'd take my chances again, but I'm glad it is a risk we won't have to take."

The interview grew less formal when the talk turned to the Cardinal players. Which among them was the greatest? To whom did he give the credit for the drive that allowel the Birds to overhaul and pass the Dodgers?

"Look 'em over," he said, with a wave of the hand toward where the players were sitting on the bench. "Take your pick and who ever he is he'll be a guy who has done something to help."

Southworth smiles thinly, like a fellow who had to learn how, but pride lit up the one he managed then.

"We've got to be a ball club," he explained. "Everybody a little better than we were before. Out there on the field the boys have a little of everything. Power at the plate, speed on the bases, and strong stuff on the mound. And I've never seen a team come up with a big inning so often, when nothing less will do."

Redbirds Need 7 Of 8 Games Flag Is Theirs

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The strangest pennant race of all time was in 1914 when Boston Braves paraded from last on July 4 to first and undying fame in a few weeks—but St. Louis Cardinals will have accomplished a feat in some respects more difficult if they come home in front next week.

Everybody remembers the Braves were last in mid-July that year and that they spurted to the top. Most people have forgotten the details.

Actually it was one of the tightest races from top to bottom in Major League history and even though the Braves were in last place on July 18, when they started to spin, they were only 11½ games from the lead.

It was a battle royal with every club trampling on every other club and Boston made its climb to the top by winning 35 games and losing 10 between July 18 and Sept. 8.

This year the Cardinals were ten games off the pace as late as Aug. 5, even though they were in second place. And when they made their move they delivered the most punishing blows themselves with a minimum of help from the other clubs.

Between Aug. 5 and Sept. 13, when they took over first place exclusively, the Cardinals captured 33 games and lost eight. They have won four more without an interruption since then and have earned themselves a lead of three full games.

To make their achievement complete, of course, they must keep on until they win the pennant. They have eight more games to play—two today and tomorrow at Chicago and two each at home next week against the Cubs, Pittsburg Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

If the Redbirds win seven out of these eight, which is not too much to expect from the spirited St. Louis kids, they can clinch the pennant no matter whether the Dodgers win all their remaining 10.

Both teams were idle yesterday—and the Dodgers running into inclement weather for the first installment of their series with the Phils. The postponed game will be played Monday on what was to have been an open date.

Only one other major league contest was on yesterday's program and in it Cincinnati Reds smashed Pittsburg Pirates 5-1 with a four-run rally in the ninth inning.

Industrial Playoffs Commence Monday

Playoffs in the Industrial Softball League begin Monday at 6.15 p.m. between C.G.E. and Outboard Marine. The second game will be Wednesday, with the third, if needed, Friday evening.

Brintons, Raybestos and Dominion Woollens were eliminated in the first round, leaving Watercraft, Outboard Marine and C.G.E. In the second round Outboard Marine drew a bye. C.G.E. eliminated Watercraft Wednesday evening, and the League arranged the finals for next week on the basis of "two wins out of three."

Chiefs, Giants Are At It Again

By The Associated Press

Those white-washing experts of the International League, Syracuse Chiefs and Jersey City Giants, are at it again to-day—this time with a cheque of $3,000 going to the winner.

They collide at 3 p.m. in the Jersey City stadium in the first game of the final round in the Shaughnessy playoffs with the right to represent the league in the Little World series also going to the winner of the best four-of-seven games. The loser will get $2,000.

Syracuse advanced to the final round by taking four of five games with the second-place Montreal Royals in the semi-finals while Jersey City, after dropping the first two, won four straight from the pennant-winning Newark Bears.

During the season Jersey City and the deadlock was broken in a single Syracuse tied for third place and game which the Chiefs won, 2-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Charles (Red) Barrett.

That shutout was one of eight the Indians dished out to the Giants during the year. The Giants, in return, blanked Syracuse six times.

Although neither manager made a definite pitching selection in advance, it is believed Bobby Coombs will start for the Jerseys and either Nate Andrews or Clayton Lambert for Syracuse.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19—(CP)—A general meeting of Welders and Burners of sub local E of the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders Union last night declared itself dissatisfied with the labor policies of Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell and in a resolution to the Vancouver Labor Council and affiliated unions called for the resignation of the Minister and his replacement by "someone more acceptable to labor."

Warneke Due To Hurl Against Ex-Pals

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (AP)—Lean Lon Warneke, for several years one of St. Louis' top-ranking pitchers, was defiantly ready to take the mound today and strive to upset the pennant-bound Cardinals in the first of an all-important two-game series with the Chicago Cubs.

Warneke's assignment was anything but a soft one for opposing him will be Mort Cooper, ace Cardinal hurler who is seeking his 21st victory of the season. Warneke, who started the Brooklyn Dodgers on their downward plunge, pleaded for the job to pitch against his former teammates.

It was just a few weeks ago that Warneke was a member of the Cardinals who sold him to the Cubs for the $7,500 waiver price, cutting him out of a possible world series split that may reach $6,000.

But Warneke says he has no grievance against the St. Louis club.

"That's just a part of baseball" he explained. "I'm not sore, never was at the Cardinals for selling me, but I will try like hell to beat them.

"I visited the Cards the day before I pitched against the Dodgers and told them I would take care of Brooklyn. Well, I did. At the same time I told them I hoped I had a chance to lick them, too. Now I'm getting it."

The amazing Cardinals, who have won 34 out of their last 40 games, the last five in a row, are taking today's battle as just another ball game. Manager Bill Southworth refuses to worry, and is adhering to his policy of playing one game at a time.

The Cardinals, leading the Dodgers by three games, intend to do all within their power to at least hold their margin before returning to St. Louis tomorrow night. They can chalk up an even 100 victories for the season by winning today. The Cards hope to have the services of outfielder Terry Moore, who has been laid up with a charleyhorse.

Louis And Conn To Get $135,451

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—(AP)—Even though uncle gave them—and all his other fighting nephews—a raise recntly, Sergt. Joe Louis and Pte. Billy Conn will get $135,451.53 from the gate receipts of their Oct. 12 scrap in Yankee stadium to pay old debts.

The sports writers' committee handling the bout, originally arranged with Army Emergency Relief as the sole beneficiary, decided late yesterday that Louis' obligations of $100,951.53 should be paid and that Conn's debts of $34,500 also should be wiped out.

Under the new pay scale adopted for the army this summer sergeants, to which rank Louis was promoted last week, get $78 a month and private are paid at the rate of $50.

The committee said that Louis owed Mike Jacobs' 20th Century Sporting club $59,805.60 and $41,146.09 to John Roxborough, one of his managers. Conn owed Jacobs' club $34,500.

The committee made no mention of whittling Louis' $117,000 indebtedness to the U.S. government for his 1941 income tax.

The money which the two fighters draw in the Oct. 12 bout, in which Louis will defend his heavyweight title against the Pittsburgh youth who almost succeeded in winning it a year ago, will be regarded as "income" on which they must pay a tax next year.

Whirly To Face Alsab Today For $25,000 Cash

By SID FEDER

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Sept. 19 —(AP)—Unless Al Sabath has a nightmare, the "dream race" between Whirlaway and Alsab comes off at 5:30 p.m. E.D.T. at Narragansett Park today.

Sabath is the Chicago lawyer who owns Alsab and the only reason this collision of the four-year-old Whirly and the three-year-old Alsab didn't come off a week ago in the Narragansett special was because Sabath decided his colt had arrived at this little Rhode Island racing plant too late to carry out his training schedule.

Narragansett immediately put up $25,000 for a match race to be run today, with Whirly packing 126 pounds and Alsab 119 on the weight-for-age scale. They'll travel a mile and three sixteenths and the first one home picks up the whole purse.

The race brings together the top two stretch-runners of recent years. Whirlaway, out of the Calumet Stable of Warren Wright, the Chicago and Lexington (Ky.) sportsman, is the turf's top money winner, with $491,136, and unless most of the experts are wrong, he'll become the first $500,000 breadwinner in history today.

Alsab was picked up by Sabath for $700 at the Saratoga yearlings sales a year ago and already has won more than $270,000.

George (The Iceman) Woolf of Cardston, Alta., the No. 1 "money rider" in the business, will handle Whirly in this one, as he did a week ago in piloting Little Mr. Big Tail to his $24,000 triumph in the Narragansett special. Carroll Bierman has the assignment on Alsab.

The track's share of the betting on this race will go to Army and Navy Relief.

45,000 Pounds Sugar Beet Seed Imported Into Peterborough 40 Years Ago For Sugar Factory

Marked copies of Peterborough's two daily papers, The Examiner and The Review, of the issue of May 7, 1903, were noticed among the household effects of the late E. M. Poussett, which were recently sold by auction on the market.

The significance of their retention by the family was disclosed in the reports of the funeral of Mrs. Poussett on May 6 from the family residence, 607 Stewart street to St. Luke's Church, followed by burial at Little Lake Cemetery.

The following paragraph from the Examiner's account expands the story of bereavement: "At the house, previous to the family service, a solemn and pathetic ceremony was performed, the baptism of the little motherless child, slightly over one week old. Beside the casket, in which lay the little darling's dead mother, the child was baptized "Alice Meade." The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Symonds of Trinity College School, Port Hope, assisted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt of St. Luke's Church, who conducted the family funeral service immediately after the baptism."

The pall bearers were: Harold and Frank Burnham, Harry Rogers, Percy Price, Frank Bradburn and Llewellyn Hall.

Presumably the bereft husband had marked the news columns of the local papers of that day May 7, 1903, and set them away with books and other papers, including copies of the London Illustrated News. Forty years later a reporter casually carried them off as having no intrinsic value, and a glance through them immediately revealed the purpose of their keeping. Some of the books and sheet music were inscribed with the name "Alice Meade."

The incident invites some reference to the slow descent of time upon families and their affairs, their eventual twilight and disappearance, but it all belongs to the inevitables of life and is a universal experience as the years silently encroach and leave only the written record of most of us, when even memory has gone with contemporaries.

The local newspapers of that day featured the Gamey Commission's investigation of allegations that led to the defeat of the Ross (Liberal) Government in Ontario.

Sugar Industry

An advertisement signed by T. E. Bradburn, president, and J. W. Garvin, managing director, announced that the Peterborough Sugar Company had received 45,000 pounds of the best sugar beet seed from Saxony, Germany. "It is stored at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. The seed needs to be sown during the month of May, the first of June not too late. The factory cannot run without beets. Every farmer is urged to aid in establishing the industry in our midst by growing sugar beets. All contracts for one year. Pulp at factory to patrons free of cost."

The sugar beet factory was built on the property now occupied by the Peterborough Brinton Carpet Company.

William McClure, 28, son of John McClure, died on April 30. The family lived on the south side of the highway, and west of the C.P.R., which is the present extension of Lansdowne street.

Local market prices included: chickens, 50 to 75 cents a pair; butter, 20 to 25 cents in rolls and 16 to 18 cents in crocks; eggs, 10 to 12 cents a dozen; pork, 9 to 10 cents a pound by the quarter; beef, $5.50 to $7 per cwt. by the quarter. Export cattle, 3½ cents a pound; select hogs, 160 to 200 pounds, $5.50 to $6 a cwt.; potatoes, $1.25; hardwood, $5 to $7.

C.G.E. Anglers

The Otonabee Power Company was placing poles on King and Park streets.

H. R. H. Kenner gave a talk that evening, May 7, to the Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's Church, "A Trip to London."

Rev. W. J. Joliffe was invited to remain another year as minister of Charlotte Street Methodis Church. James Sutherland was elected delegate to the annual conference.

All Saints' Guild.

Taking part in the closing exercises of the Junior Girls' Guild of All Saints Church, winding up their winter season were: Helen Rush, Hazel Moore, Oliva Cuffe, Rose Mulholland, Gertrude McClellan, Geraldine Hooper, Helen Metheral, Matilda Brownlee, Ida Mulholland, Stella Cuffe, Ethel Shepherd, Eddie Boyce and Fred Hooper.

Mrs. R. F. Hall turned in the best score at the Peterborough Golf Club to win golf balls presented by R. Max Dennistoun. Mr. W. H. Hill was second, Miss Gwen Hall third.

Some of the lawn bowlers were Alex Weddell, Dr. Wightman, W. J. Thompson, Robert Cottrell, T. F. Matthews, Dr Greer, Gus Lech, R. Kerr, H. Armstrong, Ed Runnels.

Miss C. Strckland of New York was visiting at the home of her father, R. C. Strickland, Lakefield.

W. H. Hogg was manager of the Bank of Montreal. J. E. A. Fitzgerald had first class hardwood at $6 a cord.

The Toronto Brewing Company advertised in The Examiner its amber ale, half and half, and extra stout.

Joe McGinnity pitched the Giants to a 20-2 win over Brooklyn in the nation Baseball League. Walter Bresnahan was behind the bat. The attendance was 2,400. Cy Young for Boston in the American League beat Washington 6-3. Attendance 2,122. Eddie Plank pitched a winning game for the Athletics over the Yanks.

"Joseph Alder, one of Percy township's paupers, died at Warkworth recently. For years he was a shoemaker at Norham, and at one time was said to be worth $60,000. He was 87 years of age."

Robert Fair advertised children's fine ribbed black cashmere stockings at 20 cents a pair. Also "one lot of ladies spring jackets, special price, $1."

Grain Prices

The McAllister Milling Co. was paying (April) 70c for fall wheat; 43 to 45c for barley; 47 to 48c for rye; 32 to 34c for peas; $5.50 to $6 for alsike; $6 to $6.50 for red clover, and $2 to $2.35 for timothy seed.

Peterborough Cheese Board sold 4,354 cheese at top price of 11¾c a pound. The low price was 11⅝. G. A. Gillespie was one of the buyers.

E. B. Stone, barrister was presented with a gold-hetaded cane by the Albany Club of which W. H. Meldrum was president. An address mentioned that Mr. Stone was leaving for London. Some of those wishing him good fortune were Judge Weller, George Elliot, G. K. Martin, George A. Cox, William Bunton, W. K. Hall W. H. Robertson, Tom Brightman.

Warren J. Noyes, 10, died of injuries caused by a shunting train. His father, John Noyes, came from Plymouth Mass., in 1902, and was foreman of the Cordage Works, the present Nashua Paper Company's plant. The family live at 145 Rubidge Street.

Keene News.

"The Keene Improvement Association re-elected its officers: James McNeil, president; Andrew Shearer, secretary-treasurer. "It was decided to lay down about 500 feet of concrete walk on Front Street west." Dr. Victor McWilliams proposed a public library for the community. It was heartily endorsed by the meeting, and he was requested to proceed with the organization of a library as soon as possible.... Arbor Day was spent by all hands cleaning up the streets and planting a number of shade trees.

John Finlay was Reeve of Norwood, and Councillors were: A. Cunningham, M. Howley E. P. Cuffe and A. J. Robertson. The village assessor was Charles O'Retilly, and Roland Scriver was appointed truant officer in place of John Chandler.

George Elpic of Norwood and Sam Johntson of Trent Bridge left on a trial trip to the North-West Territories. The correspondent added: "If they obtain satisfactory opinion of the country they may subsequently move there."

John Cannon, Lot 17, Con. 12, Asphodel, died on April 29. He was born in 1851 and his father was "one of the first settlers in these parts."

And the advertising columns recalled that E. M. Pousset & Co. were stockbrokers at the south-west corner of Hunter and George Streets, upstairs.

Rare In Canadian Aviation

Good shot of a gas-less aviator, still rare in Canadian aviation but of a type of whom more may yet be heard. It was taken when R. Baranowski, Polish designer of the DeHavilland plant, Toronto, alighted from the glider which was towed 125 miles from Toronto to London, Ont., to be cut free for a thrilling performance at the unique "open house" staged for the 6,000 employees and families of Central Aircraft, Limited, one of Canada's greatest "hospitals" for planes needing repair or overhaul.

It's Tough Job Bill Collecting

Written for The Canadian Press by Frank Rasby.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Right from the outset Charlie Buchanan will have you know that he does not like to be known as a wolf at the door — he would not think of evicting widows into the cold—he has never forced money from orphans. He's the head of a medical audit agency and this year he'll try to collect 200,000 overdue doctors' bills from taxpaying citizens in every province of Canada.

Buchanan, 58, is a bluff, cigar-smoking businessman and he'll stake his 20-year-old collection business on the principle that the average Canadian is honest. He believes the western farmers rank as aces in paying ability.

Hanging from the wall in Buchanon's office is a chart of Canada dotted with thumb tacks. These represent agents that Buchanan has located in every Canadian district, men whose ordinary jobs vary from bank managers to policemen in various Canadian provinces. As super sleuths their job is to investigate and report the finances of overdue clients.

A Good Summer.

Despite increased taxes, Buchanan believes this summer has been the best ever for bill collectors. Bumper crops have given extra dollars to farmers while booming war industries in eastern provinces are handing out pay envelopes to former jobless Canadians.

In a general way Buchanan has a lot of fun collecting bills, but now and then something comes along to annoy him. For instance an old fellow in British Columbia died after a doctor had nursed him along for two months. When Buchanan tried to collect the bill, the man's family answered, "Well, you didn't cure him, and because it's not our fault that he died, we won't pay." Incidentally, this bill still is owing.

More honest was the widow who opened her maall one morning and was surprised to learn her husband owed a dentist's bill when he died. Not knowing what work had been done she wrote and asked Buchanan who replied that it was for a set of false teeth. Next day the woman came down with her teeth. "I'm not able to pay the bill," she explained, "but my Alf was buried without his teeth and I'll be giving them back to you. Maybe the dentist can sell them over again." She has the teeth still

These Fellows Paid.

One of the toughest dental customers Buchanan ever encountered was a farmer who lived in the Peace River country. For months Buchanan sent him letters reminding him about his debt for a set of false teeth. And for months the farmer haggled bitterly refusing to pay. It was only after the farmer got a letter threatening to sue for the outstanding debt that Buchanan received the cash plus a note which read: "Since my son and I both use the same teeth and since we are bth helpless as babes without them, we have decided to remit enclosed check. Thank you."

Mr. Beaver What Big Teeth You Have!

The determination in the expression of the beaver in this cartoon poster, recently produced by the Wartime Information Board, symbolizes the fighting spirit of the Canadian people, in the armed services, the munitions industry and the home front. It is a challenge to all Canadians to follow in the traditions of Canada's national animal and work ceaselessly for the destruction of the enemy.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH.

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT made under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough and to me directed, bearing date the 8th Day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-two I am commanded under the authority of the Statutes in that behalf to levy on the land hereinafter mentioned and described, for the arrears of taxes due thereon with the costs as hereinafter directed by the said Act. Therefore I give notice that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid I will proceed to Sell by Public Auction at the Court House in the City of Peterborough on the Sixth Day of October, 1942 at the hour of Ten o'clock (D.S.T.) in the Forenoon, the said Lands or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes and all lawful charges incurred in and about such Sales and the collection of the Taxes.

A List of the Lands for Sale for Arrears of Taxes will be published in The Ontario Gazette on Saturday, July 4th, 1942. Copies of the List of Lands for Sale may be had in my Office.

VOL. LXXXVI, No. 67 — PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1942 — PAGE 9

MAIN STREET TOPICS

STAFF CHANGES

I. D. Willis, former editor of the Port Hope Guide has taken a position as accountant with a firm in Gananoque. The work of editor has now been taken over by Miss Laura Kincaid, who came to Port Hope from Toronto a short time ago.

TO MEET SATURDAY

Teachers of the township area at Keene are meeting on Saturday evening at Keene, prior to the meeting of the Township Area Board. These meetings replace the old teachers conventions, and are held as often as monthly in some communities.

TO ATTEND FAIR

Schools in the Lakefield district have been invited to take part in the Fair program this year, and it is expected the pupils will parade to the grounds, and then stage individual school numbers, such as folk dancing and singing. There will also be school exhibits and the major problem facing the teachers is to provide transportation.

SEASON ENDS

The open season for lake trout fishing in Peterborough county ends on October 14, and on the day following the open season for maskinonge, bass and pickerel closes. This means that fishermen have not very many more days of fishing ahead of them.

GETS TWO MONTHS

Joseph J. Waldron of Otonabee township pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to a charge of illegally keeping liquor for sale and was sentenced to two months imprisonment.

DISCHARGED FROM NAVY

Leading Seaman Jack Killoran, son of Mrs. M. Killoran, Wolfe street has been given his discharge from the Canadian Navy. He was a casualty when the Levis was sunk several months ago, and never recovered completely. This boy has been serving for quite a number of years.

HOME ON LEAVE

Quite a number of Midland Regiment now serving on the West Coast have returned home on furlough, and more than seventy members of the Prince of Wales Rangers, also serving on the West Coast are also home on leave. It is unlikely that they will return to the former posts.

HOME ON LEAVE

Pte. Albert Maudsley of the Prince of Wales Rangers, stationed in British Columbia, is home on leave visiting his parents at 480 Park street. Pte. Maudsley has two other brothers, one is serving overseas and the other with the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF). His father, Pte. William Maudsley, a veteran of the last war, is now serving with the Veterans' Guard of Canada stationed at Quebec.

LOSES HIS GLASSES

A Peterborough man got a little bit too close to one of the monkeys in the Conklin Shows at the Lindsay Fair on Friday evening, and the monkey apparently in bad humor grabbed the man's eye-glasses off his face, and smashed them to bits.

BROTHERS IN OTTAWA.

Sergt.-Major Keith Braund, of the Canadian Dental Corps, has returned to Ottawa after a furlough of two weeks. His brother, Pte. Grant Braund, is on the staff of the Rideau Military Hospital, Ottawa. He is with the hospital's department of physiotherapy.

SOLDIER ON THE AIR

Pte. F. J. McPhail whose home address is Haliburton is scheduled to be heard on the radio program "Letters from Britain" which will be broadcast over Station CBL from 7 until 7:30 on Saturday night. Pte. A. English of Lindsay will also be heard.

TWO FRIGHTENED BOYS

There were two frightened boys at the police station this morning. They were a pair of youngsters from the Pontypool district who had hitch-hiked into Lindsay to visit the fair last night. They failed to get a ride back but eventually secured a lift to Peterborough and they were wandering around the streets early this morning when they were picked up by the police. However a farmer from the home district who was at the market this morning offered to take the pair home this afternoon and everything was all right again.

Salvage Prize Is Given To War Victims

The salvage department of the Civic War Service Council, of which Mrs. R. Whalon is president, offers two prizes monthly to the members of the ladies' organizations which put the most hours in at the very important work of redeeming salvage.

These prizes consist of $25 in cash for 1st prize and $15 for second prize with the stipulation that the money must be used directly in some service to the war.

For the second time in as many months, the first prize has been won by the North Monaghan Red Cross Salvage Committee, of which Mrs. Stan. Shields is convener, and the prize of $25 thus won has been turned over to help alleviate the sufferings of air raid victims in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund. Mrs. Monk is president of this branch of the Red Cross. This group has on more than one occasion given assistance to this fund, and in a substantial way at that, which adds to their credit in the matter of assistance to the war effort.

It will be recalled that the second prize of $15 for the month of July which was won by a group of workers from the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., through Miss Mabel Patterson was also given to this fund, thus the work which the Civic War Service Council is doing is not only helping in the most important job of redeeming salvage, but is also finding expression in giving help to the war effort in other ways.

The Induction Motor Test of the C.G.E. Co., Ltd., is such a small group of people that it could hardly be called a department, yet they have performed a really first-class job in helping the fund along, for their 11th donation under the usual title of "Odd Nickels" for $5 appears in today's list, with Miss A. McCracken as usual playing a leading role in raising it.

One of the fund's most regular contributors known as "E.M.F." is also listed today with the usual donation.

Soccer Match

On Saturday, October 3, one of the finest sporting events of the season will be held at Riverside Park at 2.30 p.m., when two picked teams, among whom are some outstanding professionals from teams in the British Isles now serving with the R.A.F. training schools at Picton and Mount Hope will meet in a game of soccer, giving their services and coming here specially to give an assist to the fund. His Worship Mayor Hamilton will be on hand to extend a hearty welcome to these lads in blue from the Motherland, and it is hoped to have a high ranking officer make the kick-off.

Tickets which are only 25 cents may be procured from those interested at the industrial plants, the members of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club, or at the Examiner Office, while children of school age will be admitted for 15 cents at the gate. Here is an opportunity to welcome the men from across the seas who so gallantly are doing their bit in the Empire's cause, as well as raising a nice sum of money to help their own folk who have suffered through air raids in the home-land.

Killed In Action

Flight-Sergt. Jack Arundel, son of Mrs. J. H. Bingham, Millbrook, and former cashier at the Coca Cola plant in Peterborough, is reported as killed in action over the English Channel. His fighter plane was lost in combat on July 25. He was 21 last April, and was an only son.

Help Is Needed To Save Pack

Canada Packers need on Monday at least twenty women and girls to help can the tomato crop.

Half the pack is already completed, but the hot sun of last week has ripened tomatoes rapidly, and growers are rushing them to the factory in heavy volume.

Some of those who have been working in the canning department are returning to the Collegiate Institute next week, and the management is anxious that their places be filled.

Ohers who have been helping are housewives who took on the work partly from a sense of patriotic duty.

"The Government has already appropriated 15% of the country's pack this season, that is in practically all lines," G. S. Matthews told the Examiner today. "Tomatoes are an important food, and the fact is that we have been supplied with all the tins we need. The immediate problem is to handle the tomato crop as it is now coming to us. It has been slower than usual in ripening, but the hot weather of the last week has created a rush for growers and packers. We are doing our best to handle the crop, but we are afraid that we may run short of help this next week. If we can get twenty women and girls we will probably be all right, but we would like to have more than that number with us Monday.

The growers did their part, and we can avoid waste if we can get the help we require."

Food production and the processing of it was of national importance, Mr. Matthews said. Canned goods are needed for the civilian population and for the men of the armed forces, and quite a lot of it will probably be sent overseas. The immediate duty is to get this perishable stock into the tins that have been provided.

War 25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

Sept. 19, 1917—Unfavorable weather precluded all but artillery activity on both sides in the Ypres sector. Argentine senate voted to break off relations with Germany. Announced United States army had 1,500,000 men under arms.

Sept. 20, 1917—British attacked strongly on 8-mile front east of Ypres, capturing Veldcheok, Zevenkote, Glencorse and Inverness Woods. Record session of Canadian parliament prolonged; lasted eight months.

Flight Sergeant John Arundel Died In Fight Over Channel

Flight-Sergt. John Arundel, a former Millbrook boy who enlisted from Peterborough in the Royal Canadian Air Force, is officially reported to have been killed in action in an encounter with German planes over the English Channel on July 25.

Meagre information indicated that he was flying a Defiant, one of the British single-seater fighting planes. Two escorting machines of the R.A.F. were driven off by a Hun attack, and the last seen of Arundel's plane is said to have been its bursting into flames and exploding in the air.

Flight-Sergt. Arundel is the sixth boy enlisting from Peterborough with the R.C.A.F. to have been killed in the service.

Enlisted in 1940.

Flight-Sergt. John Stanley George Arundel enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in December 1940 and received his wings the following September 18. He left Halifax for overseas on September 26, 1941, having just reached that city the previous day, and having had ten days' leave at home with his mother, Mrs. James H. Bingham and Mr. Bingham at Millbrook. Jack went overseas as a pilot officer, but received his promotion to flight-sergeant after certain rescue work of an outstanding character which he performed and being twice mentioned in despatches.

During his High School days at Millbrook Jack was an apt student, completing the Middle School examinations successfully and being awarded the Dr. Norman Allen Scholarship for the boy having the best all-round standing in the school. He went then to Peterborough Collegiate and took up a commercial course. Employed for a time at Zeller's he later was with the Coca-Cola Company, leaving it to enlist in the R.C.A.F. He was 21 years old on April 21 of this year. His birthplace was Cleveland, Ohio.

Flight-Sergt. Arundel had two uncles in the last war—Harold Arundel, now of the Grain Exchange, Winnipeg, who came through the conflict unscathed, and who was one of the first air pilots to leave Canada for overseas service; and Major H. C. C. Beaumont of the Lorne Scots Toronto, who won the Military Cross, and who is again Military Cross, and who has again present struggle.

Committees Set Up To Provide Assistance To Dependents Of Men Serving Overseas

The work of the Dependents' Board of Trustees under the Department of National Defense is carried on without remuneration to the national and local committees, J. Pembroke, Ottawa, chairman of the Board, informed the Examiner today. He and the Board's executive secretary, Squadron Leader G. W. Dunn, were in the city Friday meeting the members of the local committee.

George A. Gillespie is chairman of the committee, and the other members are Peter G. Wallace, Mrs. Paige Rowell, Mrs. R. H. Turner and Alderman Sullivan.

Committees have been set up in twenty-one regional centres from Charlottetown to Victoria to provide special assistance to the dependents of men serving in Canada's armed forces.

The purpose of the Board is to help in financial and other ways the dependents of the men of the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force. Emergent circumstances occur from time to time outside the bounds for which separation allowance is provided, Mr. Pembroke said. The local voluntary committee is authorized to deal with those cases. The committee has also been directed to give help and advice in non-financial problems and family matters.

Some of the purposes for which grants may be made are: expenses of illness, bills due to hospitals, doctors, dentists, opticians, X-ray examinations and so on; funeral expenses; special educational costs.

Mrs. H. K. Pallis is secretary of the local committee and Miss Rachael Young of the Children's Aid Society is the technical advisor.

Wartime Houses To Be Discussed

Peterboro has been requested to send representatives to a conference called by the Ontario Municipal Board in Toronto Thursday, October 1 to discuss municipal agreements with Wartime Housing, Limited. Windsor, St. Catharines and Hamilton are especially concerned in this meeting, but other cities like Peterborough have a direct interest in this question of assessments, taxes and the supplying of community services.

It was recently pointed out that Wartime Housing have not paid any taxes into the city treasury, and unless some agreement is entered into in the next four or five months City Assessor Henry would have no alternative but to assess new temporary houses at his estimate of value.

H. S. Longhurst stated that money is being set aside for Peterborough's taxes, but circumstances reported recently by the Examiner prevented the city council from getting down to the question of the terms of agreement with Wartime Housing which it would consider as a basis of negotiation.

Tentative proposals have been mention since early in the year.

Beefless Meals Over Week-End

Instead of steaks and roasts and common boiling beef, a city traveller for one of the packing plants was reported today to have been trying to persuade some of his retailers during the week to put in a stock of turkeys for Sunday.

That sounds like a paradox of scarcity. In the meantime stores have been supplied with lamb during the week and a lot of chops took place of sirloins and porterhouses.

Three days this week were meatless for the Roman Catholic people of the province, Wednesday and Saturday as seasonal days of a fast from meat, with Friday in between. Ember days occur during one week of each new season, September, December, March and June, an age old custom of abstinence.

Most people will have to be content with beefless meals over the week-end, with other week-ends of the same stringency in sight, but by way of compensation, farmers and gardeners heaped up fruit and vegetables on the produce market this morning.

LINDSAY

Honor Railway Fireman In Life Saving

LINDSAY, Sept. 19. — Donald Ross Morton, 77 Melbourne street, was honoured yesterday afternoon at the Lindsay Central Exhibition for his speed and skill in saving a man's life on the Canadian National Railways.

Last May Harry Barber, inspector on the C.N.R., was inspecting the running gear of a train going west when he stepped out and was knocked down by a train going east. Falling under the wheels the inspector suffered the loss of one arm and would rave bled to death but for the first aid rendered by Morton, a fireman on the eastbound train, who placed a tourniquet and saved the man from bleeding to death.

Officials of the Canadian National Railways made a public presentation of a certificate of merit to Morton, which was issued by the St. John Ambulance Corps.

Mrs. Richard Shrott and 3-year-old child Arthur of Manilla were rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital as a result of an accident which occurred when Gordon McInnes, driving a show team for L. Pinkham of Sunderland, was thrown off the buggy when one of the horses became frightened at a passing horse race. The gelding fell across the tongue, which snapped, injuring Mrs. Shortt and her child, as well as Mike Cole.

For Sunday, September 20

Sunday's horoscope presages a remarkable and exciting chain of events, with thrills, drama and many forms of high adventure, romance and dynamic experiences. It is a time for putting over all sorts of ambitious projects, with vim, courage and bold initiative.

Those whose birthday it is may stand on the threshold of a year of outstanding adventure and accomplishment, with dramatic and strange experiences and contacts. It should bring opportunity for attaining high goals and rich rewards for enterprise, initiative and fine courage. But attention to word and act, with direction in strange or irregular situations, may develop exceptional opportunity.

A child born on this day may have splendid talents and versatility, unique as well as practical and constructive. It should attain place and power in life.

For Monday, September 21

Monday's astrological augury is for a particularly lively and progressive movement in all the interests, incident to the breaking up of a long-congested or static state of affairs. Proper and vigorous yet cautious and shrewd manipulations of this "break" should lead on to enduring, stable and well concentrated security.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of great activity and progress directed by shrewd and sagacious effort to place affairs and fortunes on a firm and enduring basis. This may be due to the breaking up of a long frustrating and static chain of events. Push with vigor but acumen.

A child born on this day should be lively, energetic, versatile and solid; faithful and dependable as well. It should have a successful career.

First Canadian R.C.A.F. Women Arrive In U.K.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Trained to work in the R.C.A.F. operations rooms where bombing raids are planned and enemy movements chartered, the first contingent of the women's division, R.C.A.F. to arrive in Britain landed recently "ready and eager to tackle one of the most secret and vital jobs open to women in this war," according to word reaching R.C.A.F. headquarters here.

It was the greatest moment in the life of each of the girls—a selected group from all across the Dominion — when they landed in Britain. And each realized fully the responsibilities she was being called upon to face, the Headquarters announcement said to-day.

Five had received preliminary training at Western Air Command Headquarters in Victoria, while five others had done similar work at Eastern Air Command in Halifax. All had taken a secret course in operational work in New York, at the New York School of Information's first aircraft warning service.

So sudden was their departure that none of the girls stationed in the west had time for embarkation leave. With only 24 hours' notice, they were off to an Eastern Canadian port to join the first group of R.C.A.F. women ever to go to Great Britain. They were Cpls. Anne B Evans, Edmonton and Joan Tailyour, Toronto, and Leading Airwomen Kythe Mackenzie, Victoria, Muriel Scott, Unity, Sask., and Shirley Jackson, Winnipeg.

Some of the Girls.

Three university graduates, a Regina school-teacher, and a Quebec City girl whose 19-year-old brother was at Hong Kong with the Royal Rifles of Canada were among the group — Cpl. Veronica Haysom, Regina; Cpl. Frances Newell, Edmonton; Cpl. Helen Burtis, Montreal; Leading Airwoman Constance Duff, Toronto, and LAW Noreen Cambon, Quebec City.

One of the "clerks ops" wore U.S.A. badges. She is Cpl. Burtis, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilroy, live in New York. Her husband is a pilot officer in a coastal command squadron overseas. Although she holds a M.A. degree from Hunter College, she enlisted last April as "general duties," but was later selected to train for operations room work.

Cpl. Haysom taught school in Regina until she enlisted last April. Her father was killed in the last war at Loos.

Just before the convoy sailed Section Officer Marion Peiler of Montreal, women's division staff officer in eastern air command, told the group: "We of the R.C.A.F. are justly proud of the airwomen. You are so keen, so full of enthusiasm, and so smart.

"Each of you has an important war job to fill overseas and we know you can be depended upon to do that job as thoroughly and well as your fellow ariwomen are doing their work here in Canada. We wish you the very best of luck, and happy landings."

Geared for Action

SIMPLE CLOTHES, geared for action and adhering closely to W.P.B. rulings aren't hard to take. A brilliant American designer is showing some grand little untrimmed suits in his Fall collection. Here's our favorite, done in Sultana brown woollen fabric, the collar and cuffs trimmed with Madonna blue to match the hat of felt. Central Location Boon In New Salvage Warehouse

Anyone who has worked under the inconvenient and uncomfortable conditions in the salvage depot at South Central School will be glad to hear that a new and more centrally located depot has been opened.

The new depot is at the back of the Paris Beauty Salon on Hunter street and is approached through the drive-way beside the store. It is the property of Mr. B. Chesler and is rented at a cost of $10 a month. It is a large room on ground level which was once used as a storage room for furniture and it has a large door at the back through which the truck can be driven right into the building.

The Peterborough Utilities have installed lighting fixtures and a washroom is in the process of being installed. There is also a telephone. All these improvements have been made with a written agreement that they be removed when the salvage committee vacates the property.

A corner has been boarded off as an office, in which the business of the committee can be transacted and where papers relating to that business can be kept without danger of being baled along with the salvage. Down the middle of the room have been built four large bins, one for rags, one for newspapers and magazines and one for cardboard and one for scrap paper, which must be baled. Under the windows, where the light is best, is a table at which newspapers and magazines are sorted and tied.

The depot at South Central School and the shed built in the yard will be retained as storage space and the old lacrosse bowl is still receiving metal and rubber.

The new depot is to be used primarily for newspapers, cardboard, scrap paper and rags. The committee now disposes of grease and bottles immediately so that no storage is needed for them.

Many people who did not mind doing the salvage, were unwilling to undertake it because of the time spent getting back and forth. The depot is so centrally located that no one will have any farther to go than they would if they planned to do an afternoon's shopping, and the distances are about equal for all the salvage workers. The place will be heated with a Quebec heater in the winter and it is hoped that it will be warmer than the school.

Cotton Imports Rationed From Britain

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP). — With normal methods of importing suspended, Canada is receiving an allocation of cotton goods from Britain, amounting approximately to the imports of 1940, it was revealed yesterday.

The allocation to Canada during the present year was made under an agreement between the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the British Board of Trade.

After Munitions and Supply Department requirements for war purposes have been met, John H. F. Turner of Montreal, cotton administrator for the Prices Board, has control of available supplies of yarn for essential civilian purposes. No export permits will be issued by the British authorities for Canada without authorization of Mr. Turner.

Officials estimated that in the past 2½ years Canada's imports of British cotton manufactures have totalled about one-third of the total brought to the Dominion. But these British goods were declared to be essential to meet Canadian requirements.

The imports from the United Kingdom under the allocation system are divided equally between cloth and yarn types peculiar to United Kingdom manufacture and not otherwise available to the Canadian market.

Old Hands Come First.

As the total allocation to Canada is limited, exporters and importers having participated in the cotton trade during the basic year of 1940 are being given first consideration.

The allocation of cotton cloth supplies under his control is being made by the cotton administrator under a system of approved orders for indirect war requirements and essential civilian needs. In making the allocation, the administrator will provide only for requirements of types of cloth unobtainable in either Canada or the United States and for essential purposes only.

The British Board of Trade has control of the supplies of fabrics available for ordinary civilian use, and this authority grants export allocations to United Kingdom exporter on a percentage basis related to 1940 business and according to the weight available.

Under this authority the U.K. exporter is bound to make equitable distribution to Canadian importers who did business with him in 1940.

Wartime restrictions have been imposed on the types of goods eligible for export from the United Kingdom for the civilian trade. Orders are restricted to colored woven poplin and broadcloth shirtings, linings, corduroys, towelling, towels, corset cloth, sheetings, trouserings, gabardines, bedford cords, whipcords, velveteens, handkerchiefs, and handkerchief cloths.

On Rigid Priority

Officials said that agreement between Canadian and United Kingdom authorities on cotton requirements was reached early this year, and effective from April 1 the bulk allocation of cotton yarns and cloth was placed on a rigid priority basis, with total poundage divided equally between yarns and fabrics.

By fitting 1942 requirements to the 1940 imports, a reduction was caused in the amount of cotton products brought to Canada over overseas. Canada imported 39,1000,000 pounds of cotton manufactures in 1940, of which 21,600,000 came from the United States and 12,50,000 from the United Kingdom. Imports in 1941 rose to 42,600,000, with 26,600,000 from the United States and 14,400,000 from the United Kingdom.

For the first six months of 1942 Canada's cotton imports were 30,600,000 pounds, with 22,000,000 from the United States and 8,500,000 from the United Kingdom.

Under the priority system of cotton piece goods from the United Kingdom the Munitions and Supply Department has first call, the cotton administration second and the ordinary civilian trade third. The cotton administrator has power to switch goods from a lower priority to one of the higher groups, and British exporters must fit their shipments to civilian buyers in Canada in line with the amount permitted for civilians.

Mayer's $704,425 Salary Tops American List

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—(AP)—Louis B. Mayer, an immigrant from Russia who hit the jackpot in Hollywood, still tops the United States Treasury's select company of persons receiving more than $75,000 a year.

Mayer's $704,425 salary and bonus from Loew's, Incorporated, for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1941, the treasury list published yesterday showed, was $158,131 more than the second-place man, Thomas J. Watson, received as president of International Business Machines Corporation. Mayer has been at the top for several years.

Both incomes, as well as most of those in the treasury list, previously had been made public through annual reports filed with the securities and exchange commission early in the year. The difference in the two lists is that the treasury reports all compensation for personal services over $75,000, while the annual reports to S.E.C. show only the three top remunerations.

Both lists show only incomes from corporation salaries, bonuses and commissions. Actually, the largest incomes in the United States are from other sources, principally investments. For example, 44 persons paid income taxes last year on 1940 net incomes in excess of $1,000,000, and these 44 averaged $1,377,000 each. In addition, 104 persons paid taxes on net incomes averaging $660,000.

Bonus of $548,425

Mayer's compensation for the 1941 fiscal year included a $156,000 salary and a $548,425 bonus. His salary was unchanged from the previous year, but the bonus was up $7,376.

I.B.M. paid Watson a $100,000 salary and "other compensation" of $446,294.

The next three places in the treasury list, which it is required by law to publish, were held by Eugene G. Grace, who got $180,000 salary and $296,144 bonus as president of Bethlehem Steel Company; George W. Hill, with $120,000 salary and $336,415 bonus as president of the American Tobacco Company, and Francis A. Countway, with $30,000 salary and $408,778 bonus as president of Lever Brothers Company.

Singer Bing Crosby received salaries from two companies which aggregated more than Countway's income from Lever Brothers. Paramount Pictures, Incorporated, paid Crosby $302,314 and Universal Pictures Company, Inc., paid him $150,000, a total of $452,314.

Actress Irene Dunn appeared in the list three times with salaries totalling $362,500. She collected $137,500 from Universal Pictures, $135,000 from Columbia Pictures and $90,000 from R.K.O. radio pictures.

Success Of Commonwealth Air Training Plan Depends On Canadians

On the 50,000 men and women toiling in aircraft plants across Canada depends the whole success of the commonwealth air training plan, declared Ralph P. Finding 400 Jobs For Thoroldites

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP).—Steps already have been taken to ensure speedy placement of about 400 employees of the Ontario Paper Company and the Beaver Wood Fibre Company at Thorold, Ont., who will be affected October 1 when power supplies to the two plants are chopped from 40,000 to 15,535 horsepower by Government order.

Issued by Power Controller H. J. Symington, the move was announced last night by the Munitions and Supply Department. It called for a drop from 31,000 to 10,500 horsepower at the Ontario Paper Company and from 9,000 to 5,035 horsepower at the Beaver Wood Fibre Company.

The announcement quoted Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective service, as saying the problem created by the necessary lay-off of employees involved in the cut-off of power is already near solution.

A manpower advisory committee for the newsprint industry, representative of management and labor, has been studying the Thorold problem for some weeks, and questions of seniority rights, existing insurance plans and other problems of concern to the employees, have been solved, he said.

How Much Should a Family Spend On Funeral Service?

The amount spent by each family on funeral service here is left entirely to their own judgment.

We feel that such expenditure should be in accordance with the family's standard of living and should not be a financial hardship involved.

Comstock charges are suitable to every income, yet in each case the same high standard of service is given.

DOROTHY DIX

DAUGHTER PAYS TRIBUTE TO COURAGEOUS MOTHER.

Deserted By Mate She Works Cheerfully To Support Five Children.

DEAR MISS DIX: I want to pay tribute to a heroine who never will appear in the headlines but is just as brave as the people we read about who risk death in doomed cities without a whimper because she faces life with courage and dignity and a smile. My mother.

I am 17 today and have earned my first money. All at once it has dawned on me what it has meant to my mother to educate me, support five of us, go to work in an office and keep herself attractive and pleasant all these years. My father deserted her and us children. My mother had to go to work to support us and she has made a good job of it. She has fed and clothed and educated us; she has made for us a pleasant home that our friends love to come to, and no matter how long her day at the office, she is always pleasant and smiling.

What I can't understand is that if there is a God of Justice, why anyone as beautiful and fine as my mother should have had such a cruel fate. Why should she have had to work so hard? She says it won't change our situation to get bitter about it and that we must live one day at a time. Maybe she is right, but I don't see what she gets out of life. She does no harm to anyone and still she has had to spend her whole time planning, saving, scrimping, to bring us up.

What made me write this letter to you is that when I was walking past her door I saw her kneeling by her bed. She was crying and praying. She would rather die than let anyone see her cry. But something in me boiled over and I saw red. I only hope she lives to see the day when she can enjoy all the things she should have. She will be given them if I can get them for her. —JUST SEVENTEEN.

ANSWER: Well, my dear, I think any mother who has a daughter who loves, admires, appreciates and understands her as you do yours, is a lucky woman even if she has nothing else.

Not many mothers are so fortunate, for you give her something far more precious in their eyes than all the fine clothes and houses and limousines.

She Has Her Consolations.

Certainly your mother is a fine, brave woman; she is as heroic as any soldier whose breast is covered with medals. It takes much more courage to face life than it does to face death. It takes more nerve, more stamina, to go on fighting poverty and hardships and discouragement, year after year, than it does to lead a charge in battle. Your mother has had that sort of cold courage. You do well to honor her.

But you are wrong in thinking she has had no consolations, no rewards. She has had plenty and you have no need to break your heart in pitying her, for if she has known the martyr's crown of thorns she also has worn the victor's wreath of laurel.

She has had the joy of achievement, too. When you are older you will know that is one of the purest pleasures we ever experience. A craven husband deserted her leaving her and her little brood destitute. She didn't go on relief. She didn't turn beggar. She didn't become a burden on her relatives and friends. She went out, got work and did it so well that she was able to give her children a good home and education and fit them for their own battle with the world. When a women does that, and stands squarely on her own feet, she gets a thrill that is a consolation prize for many misfortunes.

It burns you up because your mother has had to work so hard, but work has not been a curse to her; it has been her blessing. It has kept her too busy to grow morbid in brooding over her faithless husband. It has given her an interest in life. It has lighted the fires of ambition in her soul and made her realize that new avenues of life opened before her instead of feeling that she had come to a dead end and everything was over with her. For the woman who has troubles to bear there is no anodine like work. No woman who has a good job ever dies of a broken heart.

And above all, your mother has her children. No woman is utterly desolate if she has children who love and appreciate her and are growing into fine men and women. When she has these she has the best gift God can give anyone; so don't let your mother's fate make you bitter and resentful. She has had the courage to rise above her sorrows and keep smiling. Out of what threatened to be a bad life she has made a good one. Try to emulate her.

Better Wait Than Be Sorry.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a boy, 19 years old, and have been in the air force for over a year. I have met a girl of 18 who is deeply in love with me and has asked me to marry her. Her father is well off. I have known this girl six months and have been going with her steadily. What should I do?—JOHN.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an Australian airman and have been stationed in Canada for nearly a year. I have fallen in love with a Canadian girl who wants to marry me, but I am afraid that if I took her back to Australia with me she might not like my country or my people and might be unhappy. This problem is one that not only I, but many other boys are confronting, for the Canadian girls are very attractive. What would you advise me to do?—J. M.

ANSWER: My earnest advice to all young men in the service is to put off marriage for the duration. Make love to the pretty girls as much as you like. Get engaged to them if you want to take an option on their affections, but put off signing the marriage contract until after the war and you know where you stand and what you are going to do and whether the girl looks as good to you then as she does now. Also how she feels about it.

There is a verse that every soldier should commit to memory now when men are being shuffled about the world to far countries. It goes like this:

"Like a fire upon the hearthstone is a neighbor's homely daughter,
Like the moonlight, like the starlight is the handsomest of strangers."

That means that the safest matrimonial bet is the girl back home who has your own background, your own tastes and prejudices and knows your own way of cooking.

It's dangerous to take any girl out of her own community and try to transplant her in a strange and foreign land. Sometimes it can be done, but generally it ends in a divorce or her nagging her husband into taking her back to the place that will always be home to her, but never home to him.

No boy of 19 should think of getting married no matter how much the girl is in love with him nor how well off her father is. If one pops the question to him he should tell her that this is so sudden and that she must give him time to think it over. He must keep on thinking it over until the war is ended and he is back home safe.

A $15 Mistake

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 19—(AP). —Mrs. Gertrude McHarg emerged from the hairdresser's to find her in a public garage whose mechanics automobile missing. Police found it had picked it up for a customer's car. It had received $15 worth of repairs, including complete overhauling of the ignition system.

R. M. Smith Ill On Alaska Job

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP).—R. M. Smith, Ontario deputy minister of highways, is in hopital at Fort St. John, 570 miles north of Edmonton, suffering from a heart attack, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, announced here today.

Mr. Smith was directing construction of the Alaska highway under the public roads administration of the United States government.

Hospital authorities at Fort St. John said Mr. Smith's condition was favorable but that he would remain under their care for some time.

Buttons Vanish

TOPEKA, Ka., Sept 19—(AP)—It's "button-button" with a different twist at Frank Coffman's house. Detectives said Coffman discovered all the buttons in a closet full of clothes had been cut off and stolen. Nothing else was missing.

HEALTH CHATS

By DR. D. B. AVISON, D.P.H., Acting Medical Officer of Health.

In our chat last week we were talking of the good results achieved in the practical elimination of smallpox and the typhoid and paratyphoid groups of diseases and I pointed out the danger that we might allow these good results to be vitiated by carelessness in keeping up our preventive measures.

Diphtheria

What we said about smallpox and typhoid and paratyphoid fever is equally true of the disease called diphtheria, a name that brings shudders to all of the older generation. This year there has not been a single case in Peterborough. However, it is only a little over a year ago that we had several cases and one death and this year two of our largest cities had severe epidemics with a number of deaths. There is no excuse for diphtheria for not only is there an absolute prevention for it but it is provided free for all who are intelligent enough to use it. Every child should be immunized in its first year of life and every older child not yet immunized should be done at the first opportunity.

Scarlet Fever

Compared with 20 years ago we have little scarlet fever and the cases we have are relatively mild. Whether the reduction is due to the preventive inoculations given or whether it is due to the common observation that this disease tends to come and go in cycles, is still being argued. Last year we had 34 cases in Peterborough and for this year we have had 16. So far as I can ascertain, none of these cases had been immunized. The oldest was 54 years and the youngest 18 months. None of them were severe. But let us remember that mild cases are often followed by a severe nephritis or kidney disease that may be very serious—some of you will remember such cases—and at least the patient will be isolated for 28 days and all the contacts for a week. How wise we would be if right after the first birthday we would have our children get the preventive inoculations! Do we guarantee their effectiveness? No, the best we can say is that experience has shown that about 90% are fully protected. It's a good bet, isn't it?

Whooping Cough

Here is a disease that all of us older ones used to think every child had to have. It seldom causes death but every parent dreads the long weeks of suffering for the child and sleepless nights for everyone in the house. We all know how the child's resistance, at the time, to other diseases is lowered and that not infrequently serious consequences follow. It, too, is a disease where we can promise only 90% absolute protection, but my, how worthwhile! Last year there were reported in Peterborough 151 cases, the oldest being 58 years and the youngest three months.

Summary

Smallpox, typhoid and diphtheria have been practically eliminated. Scarlet Fever and Whooping Cough are still too prevalent. The elimination of these diseases depends on an intelligent citizenry putting its knowledge into effect.

Proposes Labor Be On War Control Boards

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP)—The General Council of the United Church of Canada last night passed a resolution urging the government to give organized labor full, direct and representative membership on Wartime Control Boards directly affecting labor and its relations.

The resolution asked the government to encourage formation of joint management-labor war production committees in all war industries.

The council declared the practice followed in some prosecutions under the war regulations, of stating the charge in vague general terms without revealing the precise character of the offence charged is contrary to democratic principles. The council also asked the government to implement without delay recommendations of the special parliamentary committee appointed to review the Defence of Canada Regulations, and that the bar upon the Communist party and certain religious bodies be lifted.

The "valor and sincerity" of the Russians was commended, and "the fullest fraternal co-operation and mutual confidence between Canada and the Soviet Republic" were approved.

A resolution asking the government to pass a collective bargaining act was endorsed by the general council.

Elmer Davis of Kingston, Ont., said the argument supporting the motion for collective bargaining is unfair. "This church is asking the government to make it compulsory that every industry in Canada become unionized. That is definitely not the stand for the United Church to take," he declared.

Arms Plant Rocked

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A midnight explosion shook the huge plant of the Winchester repeating Arms Company, injuring 14 persons. Doctors said the condition of none was serious and that the name of the most severely injured worker had been removed from the danger list.

Thomas Boak, Winchester works manager, terming the explosion "accidental," said it occurred in a small, sheet metal outbuilding when a worker dropped a tray containing explosives.

Boak estimated the damage to the new building at $10,000.

RESTRICTIONS
in the use of
ELECTRICITY
Effective as of the 20th Day of September, 1942

The following are excerpts from Order No. PC5 issued by the Dominion Power Controller, and apply to the use of electricity by and the supply of electricity to a person or persons in any area in Canada designated a Power Shortage area.

The area in Ontario designated as a power shortage area by the Dominion Power Controller is all that part of the Province of Ontario lying south of the line from Parry Sound, Ontario, to Huntsville, Ontario and from Huntsville to Pembroke, Ontario, including the municipalities situated on this line, which area is served by the Niagara, Eastern Ontario and Georgian Bay Systems of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and by a number of other electric utilities.

SECTION 2. CERTAIN USES OF ELECTRICITY PROHIBITED

Except as provided in Section 3 next following, no person shall use electricity for the operation in any Power Shortage Area of lighting or electrically operated equipment or installations for:

Interior or exterior sign lighting (whether commercial or non-commercial) but not including direction signs in stores and signs at the office or residence of a medical practitioner;
Interior or exterior show window and showcase lighting (but not including stock wardrobes);
Interior or exterior outline or ornamental lighting;
Interior or exterior lighting for decorative or advertising purposes;
Outdoor lighting and floodlighting;
provided however that the following shall be exempt from this subsection:
Such lighting of marquees or sidewalk canopies as is necessary for public safety up to but not exceeding one-half watt per square foot of floor or sidewalk area covered by such marquee or canopy;
Such exterior lighting of entrances to and exits from buildings as is required for public safety up to but not exceeding 5 watts per foot of width of such entrances or exits;
Such exterior lighting of the facilities of gasoline service stations as is necessary for the safe and proper operation of outside equipment up to but not exceeding 100 watts per active gasoline pump;
Lighting between the hours of 4.00 and 10.00 p.m. of outdoor skating rinks up to 1 watt per 100 square feet of skating surface;
Lighting for places where outdoor sports are carried on, subject to such restrictions as the Power Controller may from time to time impose.
The operation of any electric air heater or electric grate in a store or office building.
The lighting of any theatre, music hall or concert hall to an extent involving the use of not more than 40 watts per hundred square feet of floor area and the lighting of any entrance to or exit from such place or any passageway leading from the street to the body of such place to an extent not greater than is necessary for public safety.

SECTION 3. USES EXCEPTED FROM SECTION TWO

The provisions of Section 2 next preceding shall not apply to lighting essential to the construction, operation, maintenance and repair of the following services:

Ordinary street lighting and lighting for traffic control and signal systems; provided that the power used for street lighting shall be reduced by at least 20% from that ordinarily used, except in areas which are lit by series arc lamps located more than 200 feet apart and that no street light shall be lit before one-half hour before sunset or after one-half hour after sunrise;
Signal or other lighting for police, fire or other public safety requirements or devices;
Lighting for war production plants;
Airports and air fields, military training or other military purposes;
Hospitals and schools;
Urban, suburban and interurban common or contract carriers for passengers or freight, including terminals;
Railways, terminals and related facilities;
Generation, transmission and distribution of electric power;
Shipping on inland waters, including locks and terminals;
Oil pipe lines, refineries and pumping stations;
Maintenance and repair yards or shops used exclusively for the maintenance or repair of transportation services;
Post offices;
Radio communications;
Telephone and telegraph systems;
Water supply and sanitation systems, including waterworks, pumping stations and sewage disposal plants and equipment;
Natural and mixed gas systems, including manufacturing plants, pipe lines, pumping stations and facilities;
Military establishments, including cantonments, posts, depots and fortifications;
News dissemination (but not for any advertising purposes).

OBITUARIES

MRS. R. N. MORRISON

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 19 (ENS) —One of Campbellford's most prominent citizens, Mrs. R. N. Morrison, died suddenly after a brief illness in a Peterborough hospital, Thursday afternoon.

Daughter of Mrs. Edward Bennett and the late Mr. Bennett, Mrs. Morrison was born in Seymour Township and she came to Campbellford about thirty years ago, where she played an important role in many women's organizations. She was secretary of the northern branch of the Women's Liberal Association for the past five years, past president of the Campbellford Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club and past president of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid. As a member of St. Andrew's Church, she took great interest in all its activities.

The funeral will take place Sunday at 2 p.m. from the Burnbrae church, five miles east of Campbellford. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Don Mackay of the Burnbrae Church and the Rev. J. O. Ralston of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where she was a member.

IVAN DOUGLAS DRIVER.

BETHANY, Sept. 19.—(ENS). — The passing, in Peterborough, of Ivan Douglas Driver in his 17th year, brought profound sorrow to the entire countryside, as was testified to by the large crowd which assembled at the farm home to pay a last respect to the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Driver. Ivan was a very active and cheerful lad and much beloved by all who knew him. A severe attack of 'flu' during the winter months, which proved very stubborn to subdue, finally resulted in an acute heart condition, to which he succumbed after trree weeks of suffering. He is survived by his sorrowing parents and three sisters, Gladys, Grace and Audrey, two small brothers, Robert and Maurice.

The funeral was held from the family residence north of the village, Rev. A. Harding officiating at the home and graveside. Interment was made in the family plot at Fallis cemetery, and pallbearers were Jack Hannah, Elias White, Arnot Neals, Nelson Kerr, George Gillies and Charlie Martin. Flower bearers were Elwood Kerr, Howard McGill, Donald Driver, Gordon Driver, Verne Mulligan, Norman Lowes, Allan Beer, Ralph Rowland, Gordon Staples, Bruce Davis, Robert Sisson, Carleton Patton. Jack Mathews and Owen Cauley were honorary bearers.

You May Still Advertise For Help or Employment

IF YOU FOLLOW THIS PROCEDURE:

First you must register your need for help (or employment) with the National Selective Service Office, Barrie Building, Peterborough.

Then, if an advertisement is desired, two copies of the wording should be presented to the National Selective Service Office; and, after obtaining their stamp of approval, one copy should be delivered to The Examiner.

Restrictions Above Do Not Apply:

To female domestic help and employment wanted ads where not more than one servant employed, nor to advertisements for ministers, teachers, casual labor, part time subsidiary employment which is not a regular occupation, nurses, farm hands, hunters, fishermen, trappers, students at work after school or on holidays other than long summer vacation, and any kind of "Help Wanted" advertisement from any Provincial Government.

All such advertisements may continue to be published in the usual fashion and without approval.

This Week In Radio

World News Parade, a weekly 15-minute news digest with occasional spot news pickups from various points on the globe will make its debut over WEAF on Sunday, September 20, at 3.15 p.m.

Dorothy Thompson, world famous woman journalist and commentator, returns to the air over WJZ in a new series of weekly broadcasts of news and comments. The first program will be heard Sunday, September 20, at 9.45 p.m.

Three stars of that outstanding picture, "How Green was My Valley," Maureen O'Hara, Walter Pidgeon and Donald Crisp, will star in the radio p.m.

The popular "I Dood It," Comedian Red Skelton will be back on the air this Tuesday night and may be heard over WEAF at 10.30 p.m.

Harry James and his orchestra will open the new Spotlight Bands series to be heard over WJZ. This adaptation of that success Monday over CFRB at 9 program will be heard every night during the week at 9.30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, with a different orchestra to be heard each night. These bands are touring the training centres entertaining the boys, and will be broadcast from all parts of the country with outstanding orchestras taking part in the program.

Word pictures of the nation's major football contests for the 1942 season will be brought to radio listeners on Saturday, September 26, starting with the Michigan vs. Great Lakes Naval Training Station at 1.45 p.m., WABC. At 2.45 p.m., WEAF will carry the Wisconsin-Notre Dame clash, and at same hour WJZ will air the Texas A. and M. vs. Louisiana State game. Canadian stations will broadcast these games but the hour at which they picked them up has yet to be announced.

Funnier than ever, Truth or Consequences returned to the air last Saturday. The show which derives from the old game of "Forfeits," picks its contestants from the studio audience, and they take he consequences if they fail to answer the questions (Saturdays, 8.30 p.m., WEAF).

Sunday, September 20th, Helen Hayes, outstanding stage, screen and radio star comes to Canada to play the lead in a radio dramatization entitled "Nazi Eyes On Canada." This will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network on Sunday next at 7:30 p.m. E.D.T. including CHEX, Peterborough radio station. Miss Hayes is donating her services, to help Canada's War Finance Campaign.

BE WISE
Guard Your Children's Eyes
Before school opening be sure to have your children's eyes examined. Prepair them for the long year of close study which is ahead.
If the examination shows that lenses are needed we can prescribe correctly— if it is just exercise treatment to strengthen the eyes, we have the proper equipment—and if your child does not need lenses we will tell you.
Proper lenses may mean the difference between high marks and just a pass—don't put it off—make an appointment today.

Charming Speech Wins More Friends

Lively Words Add Spice

Bill can't wait for his next date with Dorothy.

He can almost see her happy smile, the friendly twinkle in her eye. Her shining vocabulary gives her talk charm.

How he chuckles when she tells him about the Joneses' new French poodle, "just like a clump of neatly trimmed shrubbery rushing out to greet you."

And how his mouth waters as she speaks of those "crisp, golden muffins," she's planning for Sunday breakfast. (Can YOU make commonplace things vivid and amusing?)

Because she keeps her eyes open, picks up fresh colorful words and phrases from newspapers and magazines, Dorothy never resorts to worn-out comebacks like "You're telling me!" (How's YOUR repartee?)

And she's correct. You don't catch her saying "between you and I" for "between you and me," "hadn't ought" for "ought not." (What's YOUR score on errors in English?)

Chatting with old friends, meeting new ones, or talking to the boss, you need a good vocabulary—and our 32-page booklet tells you how to build it. Lists errors you're likely to make and gives correct forms. Explains meanings of words often misused, tells what slang isn't acceptable.

"The Authority on Authorities"

STOP A NEAR MISFIT

ONE OF THE most formidable possible combinations is a pair of hands in which there is only one fitting suit, with every other suit presenting length in one hand opposite shortness in the other. That is the ideal kind of situation for a cross-ruff, as each hand can ruff the other's long suit or suits. Cutting down ruffs by leading a trump is the best defense usually against such a lineup. If it is identified in the bidding by each partner showing a suit which the other doesn't support, and then by their getting together on a third suit for trump, there is seldom a good excuse for not using that defense.

There is no telling what might have happened in the final of the World's Championship Masters' Teams of Four if that contract had succeeded. At that stage, Edward N. Marcus, great Boston star, with his partner, Jay T. Feigus, of Brooklyn, sitting North-South, and their team-mates, Charles C. Harvey, of New York, and Samuel Katz, of Newark, were battling hard in the finals against the team which finally won for Lee Hazen, leading Richard L. Frey, Murray Seiler, Samuel Stayman and Sigmund Dornbusch.

At the other table, Mr. Frey got into 6-Hearts and made it. If Mr. Marcus, then, had managed to make the grand slam, his side would have scored a pronounced gain. But he did not. It was no fault of his, but of his opponent, Mr. Stayman, who made the killing lead against the hand, his heart 4.

Hearing from the first two rounds of bidding that North had a side suit of diamonds and South one of spades, he knew hearts could be used to ruff one or the other, or both. If he had not led the heart, dummy's three trumps would have sufficed to ruff out North's three losing diamonds, while the club K furnished a discard of the losing spade. But the heart lead left only two trumps in dummy, not enough to kill three losers. Mr. Marcus tried his only remaining chance, to set up spades, but the bunch of four in a hand and of three trumps in the other hand made this impossible, so he was down one.

Your Week-End Lesson

Do you know what its meant by a match-point duplicate game among a number of pairs? Do you understand how match points are computed? And do you know what is the greatest difference between this form of game and any kind of total cumulative contract points contest, such as rubber bridge or the usual kind of match between two teams of four?

One Story Enough

NEWMARKET, Ont., Sept. 18.—(CP)—Richard Godfrey, 17, of Pefferlaw, was warned by Magistrate W. E. McIlveen "never to come back here with a story like that again" when he was acquitted on a charge of stealing a pair of handcuffs from the glove department of a car owned by County Constable Alex McCallum. Godfrey said he was assaulted by a man who pinned one of the handcuffs on his arm.

CANADIAN DESTROYER BATTERS U-BOAT IN DRAMATIC ENCOUNTER

COXSWAIN PRAISED BY COMMANDER

Although shells were whistling all around him and the wheelhouse was a fiery furnace, Chief Petty Officer Max Bernays, H.M.C.S. Assiniboine's coxswain, stood by the helm and carried out to perfection every order issued from the bridge.

KILLED BY U-BOAT SHELL

Ordinary Seaman Kenneth Watson lost his life on H.M. C.S. Assiniboine when hit by a shell from the U-boat. The 18-year-old seaman is shown standing by the gun, a few feet from the spot where he fell.

THESE NAZIS WILL RAID NO MORE

The boatload of Nazi prisoners comes alongside H.M. C.S. Assiniboine after their U-boat had been blasted and then rammed by the Canadian destroyer. The prisoners smoke while awaiting their turn to climb aboard.

WOUNDED IN SEA BATTLE

The U-boat gunner who "winged" Ordinary Seaman Stanley Ballant (ABOVE) was later brought on board H.M. C.S. Assiniboine. The ships were so close during the engagement that gunners could see the enemy's faces clearly.

Submarine Is Sunk By Ramming After Spirited Surface Fight

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA. Sept. 19. — The sinking of a German submarine by H.M.C.S. Assiniboine (Lieut.-Commander J. H. Stubbs. R.C.N.) one of Canada's destroyers, has been announced by the Minister of National Defence for Naval Services the Hon. Angus L. Macdonald.

The submarine was sunk by ramming after a spirited surface action in which gunfire and depth charges played their part.

Several German prisoners were taken. The submarine captain was among the killed. One Canadian seaman, Ordinary Seaman Kenneth Watson. of Revelstoke. B.C., was killed.

In making the announcement. the Naval Minister said that the sinking was only one of the successful actions waged by the Royal Canadian Navy against U-boats. Further details of other actions, he declared could not be given until it was certain that their disclosure would not provide information which would be of material aid to the enemy.

In making the announcement of the Assiniboine success, however, the Naval Minister gave full details with the exception of the date and scene of the action.

Caught in Fog.

The submarine. he said. was caught on the surface by H.M.C. S. Assiniboine in dense fog. Instead of endeavoring to dive. she sought to escape into the fog, and for a while was out of sight. The destroyer's captain however. was able to resume contact which was not lost again until the U-boat was sent to the botom.

Gunfire was exchanged, both vessels scoring hits. A small fire was caused in the destroyer. interfering with the gun control and leaving the gun crews to independent firing.

At times the action was waged at such close quarters that the faces of the combatants could plainly be seen by their opponents.

Toward the close of the engagement a depth-charge fired from the destroyer actually landed on the submarine's deck. from which it rolled into the sea there to explode beneath the enemy's hull.

The details of the action. re released from Naval Service Headquarters, are given in the words of Assiniboine's commanding officer, as he described them to an officer on his return to port.

Picking Up Stragglers.

Assiniboine had been sentoff from the convoy to pick up six stragglers, Lieut.-Commander Stubbs related. "They were forty or fifty miles away and as we got to them we saw one go down torpedoed. We searched the area but found no trace of the attacker."

Nothing else happened that day, but the following morning an object was sighted and it proved to be a sub. The conning tower was visible at six miles range. so Assiniboine altered course and steamed in pursuit. opening fire immediately with the forward 4.7.

"He dived fairly close," said Lt.-Commander Stubbs, "so we dropped two depth charge patterns over the spot. Then we searched but saw nothing."

It was five-thirty in the evening when Yeoman of Signals William Cavanagh of Halifax sighted another conning tower at 1,000 yards range.

"We dashed off again in pursuit, and as we closed in he dived." the commanding officer continued. "Then the fog shut down.

"We did a turn to port and came out of the fog and there he was at half mile range." he went on. "We went for him at full speed with the intention of ramming. but lost him again in a fog bank. I ran Assiniboine on to what I thought was the spot where I had lost seen him. but I had evidently turned too soon. "So we altered course a little and went ahead. Then we saw him again, right on the surface and almost a stone's throw away.

"We closed him at 200 yards," he related, "and the sumbarine started an evading actionUthiO shrdlu mh in and just missed ramming his stern. We were so close that we couldn't depress our guns. but we were firing anyway. Then we drew parallel with him and the guns started to boom in earnest on both sides.

Could See Nazi Commander.

"From my perch on the bridge I could see the German commander plainly in the conning tower. but a short time later he was killed by a shell from one of our 4.7's which struck the conning tower. The Nazis concentrated their fire on our bridge, and the first few shots started a fire on the starboard side. This interfered with our fire control and so we had to resort to quarter firing. each gun operating independent of the other.

"With all our guns blazing, our point five gunners kept spraying the submarine's decks.

"I saw one of our 4.7's hit the conning tower again and at this time the U-boat decided to take a gamble and dive. We then started a criss-cross action. We crossed his stern several times, but I think we were too close for him to use his torpedo tubes. (Some members of the Assiniboine's crew reported having seen the wake of a torpedo as it passed the destroyer's stern early in the action.) He was very close to us and we knew we had him taped."

While Lieut. Commander Stubbs was manoeuvring for an opportunity to ram an able seaman, Michael Scullion. of Verdun. Quebec. found his opportunity. He saw the submarine looming up and got her on the sights of his 4.7 inch gun. The shell went into the U-boat's bows.

Continued to Fight.

She continued, however, to fight, until the Assiniboine was in position to ram.

"We slapped right into him again and then for good measure. let go charges from our port and starboard throwers which exploded under him the Assiniboine's captain continued. (According to the seamen who manned the throwers. one of the charges bounced on to the deck of the submarine. then rolled off and exploded at the depth set. This gives some inidcation of how close the U-boat was to the destroyer during the action.)

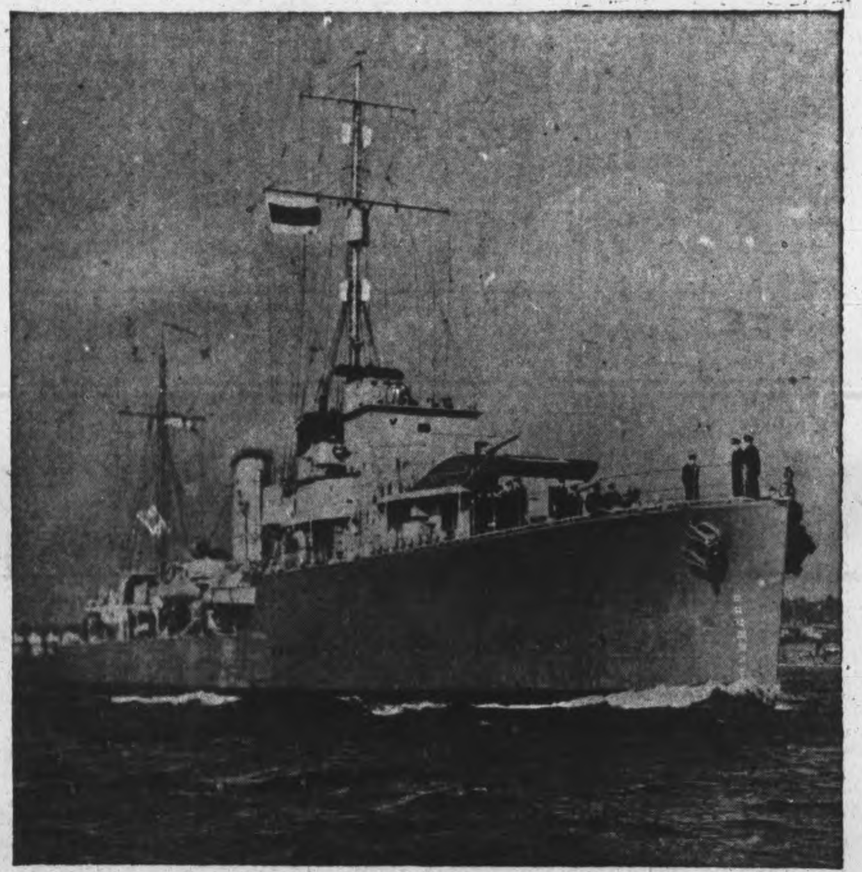
"By this time the Germans had had enough and had lined themselves along the deck with their hands held high (this was no Nazi salute.) They were all wearing their escape apparatus. Then, as the Nazis plunged into he sea. the submarine went up by the stern, shook for a second and took the last plunge."

All the survivors were rescued.

Lieut.-Commander Stubbs paid tribute to his ship's company. "They cheered so hard every time Assiniboine scored a hit that they must have struck fear into the hearts of the Nazis." he said. "The coxswain staged a wonderful show. The shells were whining around him and the bridge structure was ablaze but he carried out every command as if it were a normal Sunday morning." The coxswain is Chief Petty Officer Max Bernays, R.C. N.. of Halifax.

"The fire party had extraordinary success in extinguishing the fire on the bridge. The gunners did a remarkable job. I cannot speak too highly of the men who served in the Assiniboine in that action." he declared.

Destroyer Which Battered Submarine



H.M.C.S. Assiniboine which destroyed a Nazi U-boat after a thrilling battle in Canadian waters. The Assiniboine sunk the enemy raider with gun-fire, depth charges and by ramming. One Canadian, Gunner Kenneth Watson, was killed in the action. A number of the enemy were killed and others picked up. The Assiniboine was commanded by Lt. Commander J. Hamilton Stubbs, R.C.N. enemy was compelled to retreat."

Unparalleled Bloody Fighting.

Fierce fighting was declared continuing on the north-western outskirts of Stalingrad.

"Our 'N' unit repulsed several enemy attacks. destroyed four German tanks and three anti-tank guns and wiped out over 200 Hitlerites." a communique said.

Dispatches said the street fighting was so bloody it probably was unparalleled in the German-Russian War.

The Government newspaper Izvestia said many streets and yards were littered with German dead. It said 400 in grey-green uniforms were counted in the yards along one short street after the Russians had driven back an attack.

The invaders were reported fortifying houses as swiftly as they moved up, digging ditches and erecting street barricades. Many of these positions have been retaken, the newspaper said. But some are still in Nazi hands.

Field dispatches said three tank divisions and two infantry divisions had been defeated as they tried to expand German holding in the Mozdok area.

The mid-day communique announced that one Soviet unit engaged in the Mozdok area "destroyed seven German tanks, six guns and 13 trucks with infantry and wiped out about 300 enemy officers and men."

The Red Army men of Stalingrad, who fight, eat and cat-nap on sodden earth jarred by the crump of Nazi explosives, were within 24 hours of matching the record of Sevatopol, where Russian forces held out 27 days against the Germans' climatic Crimean offensive.

Drawn and battle-soiled Soviet detachments gave ground before a powerful Nazi drive from the northwest again yesterday, the Russians said, and again they counter-attacked with a fury that inches the invasion machine back along debris-cluttered streets.

But their task was incomplete at nightfall and Axis transports loaded with Nazi parachutists were reported interspersed among the German bombing squadrons sent against the tortured Volga River city.

MRS. EMMA MACFARLANE

Friends will mourn the passing of 82-year-old Mrs. Emma MacFarlane, who died this morning after a lengthy illness, in a Peterborough Hospital.

Although born in Elgin County, Mrs. MacFarlane lived for the past 57 years in Otonabee, and since the death of her husband, the late Donald MacFarlane, she has been living with her son, John, on Lot 13, Concession 10, Otonabee. She was a member of the United Church of Keene.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Herbert Hunter, Port Stanley, and two sons, Herbert and John MacFarlane, both of Otonabee.

The funeral service will take place Monday at 2 p.m. from the home of John MacFarlane, Lot 13, Concession 10, Otonabee, the Rev. George Murray officiating. Interment will be in Keene Cemetery.

Woman Hoarder Fined $2,000

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — Stringent warning to food hoarders was the imposition by Magistrate McNish of fines totalling $2,000 upon Mrs. Annie Dworkin, of Toronto, in police court yesterday, upon convicting her on two counts of hoarding groceries and one of hoarding sugar.

In giving judgment, his Worship reviewed the accumulation of groceries obtained by the accused, who had accepted delivery on Jan. 26 of twelve pounds of coffee, sufficient tea for one year, 15 tins of soup and enough soap to last six months. In February, Magistrate McNish noted, evidence had shown that accused had secured another large order of groceries. First grocery order involved was to the value of $105 on one day. Third charge was that of obtaining sugar in excess of two weeks' supply.

On the first charge, Mrs. Dworkin was fined $1,000 and costs or six months' imprisonment; on the second, $500 and costs or six months; on the third, $500 and costs or six months. If the fines are not paid, the prison terms are to run concurrently.

J. L. Wilson, K.C., prosecuted for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, while George Bagwell appeared for Mrs. Dworkin. Edward Dworkin, husband of the accused, was acquitted after evidence had disclosed he knew nothing of the purchases.

Six tires and six tubes had also been purchased by the accused, according to evidence. Recalling the testimony, the magistrate remarked: "She impresses me with having the attitude that she will have sufficient herself, no matter if others do not.

"She claims that she did not know of the regulations or that she was breaking the law. She is an educated woman . . . and yet says she did not read anything in the papers concerning the sugar rationing."

In defense, accused submitted that the orders for groceries and sugar had been placed previously to delivery dates.

"They were not sent back," retorted the magistrate. "If this sort of thing is permitted, those who have money will get food and those who haven't will not."

He added that the heavy fines might have a deterrent effect on potential violators of food regulations.

Special Rations

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP).—Members of armed forces on subsistence or on leave over seven days may receive temporary ration cards which will entitle them to sugar, tea or coffee, according to an announcement made today by Harold McPhillips, London, prices and supply representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Tourists from United States who visit Canada will also be issued temporary ration cards which will entitle them to one pound of sugar every two weeks two ounces of tea for two weeks or one half pound of coffee for the same period.

Everything Thrown At Submarine But Potato Masher Seaman Says

AN EASTERN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 19—(Special to The Examiner)—"We threw everything at them but the potato masher. The cook was busy on the starboard depth charge thrower and had no time to look for it."

That is how Able Seaman Roy Leeson, of Toronto, describes H.M. C.S. "Assiniboine's" set-to with an enemy submarine on the surface—with an exchange of gunfire that ended when "Assiniboine" rammed the raider and sent her to destruction.

As the ratings on "Assiniboine" sat around the mess-decks recalling incidents of the sea-fight, the name of their Commanding Officer, Lieutenant-Commander J. Hamilton Stubbs, R.C.N. was on everybody's lips.

"He was marvellous" said Able-Seaman Archie Cameron, of Melville, Saskatchewan. "He stood there on the bridge, as calm as if he were right in this port. The gunfire was spraying all around him. Why he wasn't hit is a miracle. It was certainly an uncomfortable spot, but he didn't mind. He had his plan worked out and, well, you know what happened to the U-Boat."

First Time In Action

This was the first time most of these boys had been in a gunfire action. True, they had seen and taken part in countless depth charge operations, but had never been under open fire. That they acquitted themselves nobly goes without saying.

To quote their Commanding Officer: "They stuck by their guns and, every time we scored a direct hit on the submarine, they set up such a roar of cheering that I couldn't hear myself giving orders."

There is the story of Ordinary Seaman Stanley Gallant, of Prince Edward Island. Gallant was operating one of the starboard Point Fives. He reached for some fresh ammunition and was hit on the right forearm by an enemy machine gun bullet. We looked at the blood streaming from his arm, turned to his mate and said casually: "Hey, Bill, they got my drinking arm."

Later, when the Nazi prisoners were brought on board, one of them walked over to Gallant and said in broken English: "I the fellow who shoot you. I see you at the gun". Gallant had an answer for that too, but it is better left unprinted.

Gallant—how appropriate is his name—went on operating the gun. Machine gun fire was spouting all around him, while the shells from the U-Boat's Oerlikan also were making their presence known. But he was unmindful of it all and, to quote Ordinary Seaman Albert Lindsay, of Hamilton, Ontario: "Gallant got in some pretty good licks at the Nazis."

When "Assiniboine" reached port, Gallant and Leading Seaman William Leggett, and Albertan, walked down the gangplank to the waiting ambulance, as their mates cheered and offered words of encouragement. Leggett had also been "winged" in the arm.

Youngest Aboard Killed

Then there was the crew of "A" Gun. Of the seven men, one Kenneth Watson, Ordinary Seaman, of Revelstoke, B.C., the youngest man on board, was killed. He died with a shell in his arms, hit by an Oerlikan shell. Three others were wounded, but the gun's crew continued pounding the U-Boat with only three left to man the gun.

Leading Seaman Howard Oliver, (Q.R.I.) was hit five times while standing on the open deck, issuing orders to his gunners. But he stayed at his post until the U-Boat gave her last gasp.

Warrant Gunner N. L. Wilkinson, R.C.N., was wounded in the ankle and back as he directed the gunfire from the open deck after the fire control had been put out of commission. He also found time to supervise the fire party battling the blaze on the bridge during the opening minutes of the fight.

George Kiddle, R.N., of Sheffield, Eng., a veteran of Norway, was on board "Assiniboine" on loan.

"I thought I had seen action there but for a single encounter I saw nothing like the "Assiniboine" show. Your Canadian boys didn't give a hoot for Jerry. We were so close to him that some of them would readily have gone over the side to engage the Germans. It was a good scrap, but we were too much for Heinie."

Kept Gun Going

Leading Seaman Earl Costello, of Montreal, was another who kept his gun going when his mates were hit.

Ordinary Seaman Bernard Thibodeau, of St. John's, N.B., had his hair parted by a tracer bullet: "I guess my number isn't up just yet" he said laconically.

Leading Seaman George Kilgour, R.C.N., of Stratford, who served on the China Station before being drafted to other Canadian ships, and Able Seaman Bill Oxtoby, of Toronto, offered a paean of praise for "Assiniboine's" officers. In this they were joined by their messmates.

"Our officers were grand", they said. "The chief engineer pushed those engines and punished them. He did all kinds of tricks with them at the captain's command."

"Yes, and Surgeon-Lieutenant Johnson" added Oxtoby. "He and the Sick Bay Attendant, Norman Leckie, worked over the wounded boys for 48 hours straight."

113 TOLL AS DESTROYER OTTAWA IS TORPEDOED

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP)—Navy Minister Macdonald today announced the sinking of the Destroyer Ottawa, another victim of German submarine warfare, with 113 officers and men dead or missing and believed killed. The loss was the second heaviest single blow, in terms of lives, suffered by the Royal Canadian Navy since the war began. It was the third loss announced within a week. A Peterborough boy, Torpedoman Robert Weir, was listed among the 76 survivors, confined to hospital. A second local boy, Lt. Ian S. McLeod, is reporting missing.

The loss ranked close to that of the destroyer Margare e sunk in 1940. Killed or drowned as that ship was cut in two in a collision were 142 officers and men.

The minister did not give the time or place of the sinking of the Ottawa, but said the ship was torpedoed on escort duty with a convoy in the Atlantic.

In keeping time and place secret he followed the practice of last week in announcement of the sinkings of the corvette Charlottetown with the loss of nine lives and the patrol vessel Raccoon with loss of 37.

Commander Killed In Action.

The Ottawa's commanding officer, Lt.-Cmdr. C. A. R. Rutherford, of Halifax, was listed as missing and believed killed in action, along with four other officers and 107 ratings. One rating died of wounds.

Survivors numbered 76, including five officers and 65 ratings of the Royal Canadian Navy and six ratings of the Royal Navy.

The Ottawa was one of six modern destroyers with which Canada started the war, and prior to the outbreak of hostilities was stationed on the Pacific coast. She made a record voyage in shifting to Atlantic waters for war operations and has since been engaged in the various phases of Atlantic operations, coming through repeated brushes with enemy submarines and aircraft.

On one convoy escort trip she rescued 118 survivors from two merchant ships.

She was one of the escorting destroyer when the King and Queen crossed the Gulf of Georgia from Vancouver to Victoria during the royal visit in 1939.

The Ottawa was lost in one of a series of clashes the Canadian Navy has had with the enemy since he turned his submarines northward to attack trans-Atlantic traffic after months of concentrated operations against United States and other shipping in more southerly waters.

Escorts on The Job

The enemy's move to the north found the Atlantic convoys stoutly defended as there had been no lessening in the strength of escorts dur-

Tirpitz Out After Convoys

Holed Up Since Red Torpedoing In July; New Britishers Ready

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP)— The German super-battleship Tirpitz was reported today to have left her refuge in the Norwegian port of Trondheim and to be patrolling Arctic sea lanes under the cover of Nazi warplanes in search of Allied convoys.

The report was the first intimation of activity by the warship since last July 9, when the Russians announced that one of their submarines had scored two torpedo hits on her in Arctic waters, thus foiling a Nazi attempt to smash a big Allied convoy.

The Tirpitz was said to have holed up in Trondheim fjord after this attack, hiding there during the long summer days when her movements could easily have been checked by aircraft had she ventured forth.

With the longer nights of autumn, however, the battleship would have a better chance of slipping undetected along the Norwegian coast and thence into the Arctic shipping lanes leading to Russia.

Observers here said the Germans obviously are calling upon every means at their disposal in an at-

Vienna Excellent Setting For October Bomber As Hitler, Duce, Horthy, Boris Plan Session

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 21—(AP).—The Turkish press reported yesterday that Hitler would meet Mussolini, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary; King Boris of Bulgaria and Marshal Ion Antonescu, leader of state in Rumania, some time next month in Vienna to settle the Hungarian-Rumanian dispute over Transylvania.

This report was linked in some quarters with the departure of the German Ambassador to Turkey, Franz von Papen, who left Turkey to accept Regent Horthy's invitation to a hunting party in the Carpathian Mountains of Transylvania, after which he is to go to Berlin, ostensibly to see his son, who was wounded on the Russian front.

Willkie To Talk Plain With Stalin; Walks Moscow Before Breakfast

MOSCOW, Sept. 21—(AP).—Wendell L. Willkie said today he hoped to have a long, straightforward and frank talk with Joseph Stalin because "I understand he is a man who likes frankness and I like frankness too."

Willkie arrived here yesterday and rose at 6 a.m. today, spending his first morning in the Soviet capital walking the streets before breakfast. He encountered columns of Russians on their way to work.

After breakfast he saw Red Square for the first time, walked around the Kremlin and talked with the British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr.

He had an appointment later in the day with Vyacheslaff Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar.

Before coming here Willkie toured Russian factories and collective farms. He said he had been asked some 50 times about a second front and said: "I want to check a lot of things here."

Willkie saiad he planned to deliver to Premier Stalin a written message from President Roosevelt and that he already had asked to visit the front.

Stalingrad—Allied Front.

He said he thought the "front down in Stalingrad is just as much an American and British front as it is Russian."

President Roosevelt's special representative said he did not find any letdown in spirits or the war effort in Russia in talking to as many persons as possible during his tour of plants and farms.

"We all pride ourselves on little things of life," he said. "I pride myself on the thought I know how to ask questions. I asked plenty and I found nothing to indicate there is the slightest letdown.

Willkie said he wanted to "talk to as many people as possible in and around Moscow."

He said the Russians appreciated the aid they have received from Britain and the United States, "but they didn't think our aid has been enough."

Noting how often he had been asked about a second front, Willkie said: "They think that is the

Huns Try Mighty Bombardment To Crack The City

LONDON, Sept. 21.— (CP)— A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said today all women and children had been removed from Stalingrad. Every able-bodied man is under arms and helping in the city's defences, the dispatch said.

Great Bombardment

MOSCOW, Sept. 21. — (AP) — Thwarted in their efforts to take Stalingrad by storm, the Germans began a mighty bombardment with heavy long-range guns that shook the city from end to end today, but still the Soviet defenders held and even gained at some points in hand-to-hand street fighting, the Russians announced.

Shells screaming into the city tore gaping craters in streets and squares and the thunder of cannonading all but drowned out the clatter of machine-guns, rifles and mortars manned by opposing forces locked in close quarters fighting in the suburbs, Pravda reported in a Stalingrad dispatch.

Pyramids of German bodies marked the way to the Volga, the newspaper said.

Seeking an early decision in the Stalingrad battle, the Germans sent a new Messerschmitt fighter, the 109-G into the air for the first time to protect the swarms of dive bombers. The Army newspaper Red Star said the new plane, with a 1,700-horsepower motor, developed 250

Air Bombs Quell Border Indians

NEW DELHI, Sept. 21.—(CP). — Airplanes sprayed incendiary bombs on the dens and encampments of the fanatical Mohammedan Hurs in western India in suppressing disorders in which they tore up railways and killed many Indians, Sir Alan Hartley told a Council of State to-day.

Parachute troops also were used. The outbreak, which had no connection with disorders attending the Congress Party's civil disobedience campaign, reached a peak last spring with the derailing of a frontier mail train and the butchery of a number of passengers.

Sir Allan, Deputy of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander-in-chief in India, said that more than 200 Hurs were arrested, 45 killed and 30 injured and that the area of martial law has been gradually extended as the Hurs fell back into the western Indian wastes.

The Council of State will debate the Congress Party's "rebellion" tomorrow along with the Assembly.

Seated at the session to-day were 32 members, of whom 11 are elected and the others either government officials or appointees of the Viceroy.

56 Hours for Retail Stores

One Night Till 10—Two If Morning Opening Delayed

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP)—A Wartime Prices and Trade Board order governing the hours during which retail stores may be open for business has been drafted and may come into effect Oct. 1, it was learned today.

Preparation of the order follows consultation with the retail trade throughout Canada. The draft provides that no retail establishment, apart from drugstores, restaurants, gasoline stations, railway or steamship establishments and hotel services may remain open later than 8 p.m. on any day, except that on any one day of each week they may remain open until 10 p.m.

Establishments may remain open a second night in the week until 10 p.m., but the additional two hours in the evening must be deducted from the morning opening. If the normal hours were from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., they would be from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. on the day following the late closing.

The draft provides that retail stores shall remain open not more than 56 hours from Midnight Sunday to midnight the following Saturday in any one week, if it is required by provincial statute or other legislation to close on Sundays; or for more than 62 hours in any one week if there is no legislation requiring Sunday closing.

Drug stores may remain open for six hours on Sunday if this allowed by municipal regulations. Drug stores will be unable to sell meals or refreshments, for consumption on the premises after hours.

It was understood that retailers in various communities are being asked to agree on hours within the limitations of the hours' ceiling. When 75 per cent. agree on these hours, the Board order will make them compulsory.

The draft order sets forth the purpose of reducing the consumption of electricity and fuels, and the release of manpower for the war effort. The order will cover any building or portion of building, both, stall, place or premises where goods are exposed or offered for sale at retail, or services are supplied.

"Services" covered by the draft order are laundering, cleaning, tailoring and dressmaking, hairdressing and beauty parlor services, barbering and shoeshining, repairing of all kinds, supplying of meals, refreshment and beverages and supplying of services performed by optometrists and opticians.

If the order is made effective, every store will be required to post at each entrance ot its place of business a schedule of hours during which it will be open. A copy of this schedule will be filed with the Prices Board, and it may not be amended without authority of Board representative, except that modifications may be made on a public holiday.

The regulations would not apply during the rush period of Christmas shopping from Dec. 10 to Dec. 31 inclusive.

Goering Retools Gets 4 New Planes

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Qualified British observers said today that the appearance of four new German high-performance warplanes on the world's battlefronts in the last few weeks indicated that Reichsmarshal Goering had achieved a major retooling "swap over" in the German aircraft industry.

They said the use of the new model fighters and bombers in battle showed that they were in mass production despite the opinions expressed by some air exports that the Germans would be unable to make major changes in models during the heat of the Russian campaign.

The latest German fighter was reported by the Russians yesterday to have made its appearance in action on the Russian front. It is the Messerschmitt 109-G, described as a high altitude, partly armored plane with a liquid-cooled 1,700-horsepower engine.

Experts here said such a plane would be a formidable addition to the Focke-Wulf 190, already reported followed up by an improved model.

(Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said the Me-109-G, although armed with three cannon and two machine-guns, lacked the speed of earlier model Messerschmitts. The newspaper said the 109-G would do 250 miles an hour at 3,000 feet and 325 at 12,000 feet.)

It has been confirmed officially

Count Admits Tip On Queen Mary

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 21 — (AP).— Police announced today tha the Italian Count Edmondo Di Robilant had been arrested and had confessed that he provided information for transmission to Rome concerning the passage through Rio some time ago of the British transport Queen Mary.

The tall thin Di Robilant, a high official of the Italian Lati Airline, was taken into custody with several other persons, and the police said the arrests broke up a major Italian espionage ring.

An announcement said the count was instrumental in mounting a radio transmitter which passed information to Rome and that he had provided data concerning material on ships coming from the United States for use in a big Brazilian steel mill now under construction, as well as informing on the Queen Mary.

Aussies Hold Out In Timor

All Jap Efforts To Take Mountain Fort Flop

MELBOURNE, Sept. 21—(AP).—High up in the mountains of Portuguese Timor in the South Pacific a force of Australians well stocked with good food and tobacco is still defying the Japanese, who announced occupation of the island on February 19.

A mixed force of native troops from Netherlands Timor, the western half of the island, and Australians moved into Deli in the Portuguese colony 10 days after the Japanese attack on the United States to forestall an expected Japanese invasion. Portugal protested against the Allied action and it was agreed the Allied troops would leave when Portuguese reinforcements arrived.

The first Japanese landing was made by 4,000 troops. The Australians were quartered outside the city of Deli, which fell easily to the Japanese February 19. The Australians, with the Netherlands troops which escaped Deli, moved into the interior.

Reports reaching Australia say the Japanese repeatedly have sent strong searching parties into the interior after the Australians and each time the Japanese have been ambushed and have suffered severely.

The Australians are well armed and have ample ammunition and food beyond reach of the Japanese. They are reported to be in the best of health and have a medical officer with them.

Finn Minister Drops Peace-Feeler Bomb

Truce With Reds Now On North Front Painted Boon To Convoys

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Finnish Minister to the United States, Hjalmar J. Procope, has dropped a bomb big enough to reverberate in many capitals, both Axis and Allied, in his announcement that "Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees secured for har lasting security."

If we label this extraordinary move as a fishing expedition for a peace offer, we probably shall encounter an official denial from Helsinki. Still, that's exactly what it looks like—a trial peace balloon. Between the lines there seems to lurk the hope that the United Nations will overlook that Finland is an ally of Hitler and persuade Stalin to make some proposal.

It might seem that it didn't matter a great deal whether tiny Finland waged war or not. But the sturdy land of lakes is a mighty atom in this conflict. The safety of Russia's whole right flang from Leningrad to the Arctic is involved.

Peace would be calculated to relieve the pressure on the Red lifeline port of Murmansk, which the Nazis are attacking from Finnish soil, and the railroad which runs southward. It would ease the whole situation in the Gulf of Finland around the long beleaguered city of Leningrad and the great Red naval base of Kronstadt.

It's likely, too, that Finnish peace would help the Allies meet the Nazi menace to the vital shipping through the Arctic ocean to Murmansk. That's a big item, for the Germans are making that a tough route. Only this week-end Berlin claimed the sinking of 38 merchantmen and the destruction or damaging of six warships (a claim not confirmed in any Allied quarters). At the same time London announces thta the Nazi battleship Tirpitz is reported to have been repaired and be on the prowl again along the Arctic route.

Of course, we can't say in advance whether the Nazis might not be able to circumvent peace in some manner, since they have troops in Finland. However, a passive or unwilling country would place one more obstacle in Hitler's way.

Why should the Finns suddenly decide to get from under?, It's only 15 months ago that they cast their lot with the Nazi all highest, in the face of British and American warnings. That was when Hitler's troops were grinding all Europe under their hob-nailed boots, and there was nothing in sight to stop them.

Top Fighter Planes British

U.S. Craft Listed Best In All 5 Sea Categories

LONDON, Sept. 21 —(CP)—The United States is building the world's best warplanes in seven out of 12 major categories, Peter Masefield, air correspondent of the Sunday Times, said yesterday.

Masefield, who is considered one of the best informed of Britain's aeronautic writers, rated Britain tops in three categories and gave the Germans and Italians each one first in his rating.

Here are his selections:—

Single seat fighter—British Spitfire.

Long-range night fighter—British Beaufighter.

Heavy bomber—British Lancaster.

Medium bomber — German Dornier 217E2.

Land-based torpedo bomber—Italian Savoia Machetti 84.

Army co-operation scout—United States North American Mustang.

Long-range patrol boat — United States Consolidated Cornado.

Transport land plane — United States Douglas DO44.

Transport seaplane—United States Boeing Clipper.

Naval fighter — United States Vought Sikorsky Corsair.

Naval torpedo bomber — United States Gruman Avenger.

Naval dive-bomber—United States Curtis Hell-Diver.

Masefield gave the United States first place in all five naval classifications but the United States did not rank first in any of the five land combat classes.

PRICES AND TRADE BOARD IS STUDYING ACUTE BEEF SHORTAGE

Beef Rationing At Hand Gordon Hints

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 — (CP). — Canada's acute shortage of beef may lead to consumer rationing, Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said in a statement last night.

He announced two other methods of dealing with the situation were under consideratioin— allocation of supplies, and placing of ceilings on the prices of live stock in addition; to existing ceilings on the prices of meat.

The announcement was the latest in a series of moves by the Board designed to overcome dearth of domestic supplies of beef and to regulate marketings.

Earlier this month the Board — which administers Canada's price ceiling system—made public a plan under a Government agency, Wartime Food Corporation, becomes the only cattle exporter, and will buy only when Canadian prices fall below certain levels.

At that time it was said beef supplies were sufficient to meet only 25 to 30 per cent of the civilian demand and Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart predicted it would take "a couple of weeks to a month" to overcome the shortage.

Mr. Gordon said: "The situation with respect to the supply of beef and other fresh meat in the domestic market may require further action by the board along those lines similar to those already announced in the United States. These would include allocation of supplies and consumer rationing.

"The board is also studying methods of establishing ceilings on the prices of livestock in addition to

Canuck Bomber Fires U-Boat

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP Cable) —Flames and smoke leaped from the conning tower of a U-boat attacked in the Bay of Biscay by a Wellington bomber whose crew, including two Canadians, were making their first flight against the enemy.

The submarine was still burning when the crew lost sight of it in a thickening mist.

The Wellington, captained by Sgt. A. S. Hakala, Sioux Lookout, Ont., with Sgt. J. J. Turnbull of St. Albert, Alta., second pilot, was on one of the ceaseless patrols to seek out and destroy underwater marauders.

"The submarine saw us first," the Air Ministry News Service quoted Hakala as saying. "We arrived just as it was diving but the submarine was late. Our bombs exploded just ahead of the periscope feather. It was some explosion."

The U-boat disappeared, then came up until the conning tower and part of the hull were awash.. Hakala swooped the plane low and the rear-gunner fired many rounds.

"To my surprise and joy flames and smoke poured from the conning tower," Hakala added. "The bombs must have started it, but I hope the bullets helped."

ing the long period of quiet on that route. In consequence, both sides have suffered recent losses.

In announcing the sinking of an enemy submarine and capture of the crew by the destroyer Assiniboine last week, Mr. Macdonald said the Canadian Navy had marked up other scores which for security reasons would not be disclosed until later.

Cmdr. Rutherford has been in the Navy since 1933 when he joined as a cadet. He received his training in England and aboard various ships of the Royal Navy. Since returning to the Canadian service he has served on the Canadian ships Fraser, Skeena, St. Francis, and Ottawa, assuming the command of the Ottawa in July this year.

All provinces were represented in the Ottawa's casualty list, as well as Ireland, Newfoundland, and the United States. Some 30 of the men lost came from Ontario, some 20 from Quebec, 18 from British Columbia, and 16 from Nova Scotia.

Among cities the largest number —13—were listed as from Halifax, with 11 listed from Toronto, eight from Victoria seven. from Winnipeg, and sex each from Vancouver and Montreal.

Goering Retools

that the Germans have used a new Heinkel 177 four-motored, two-propellered heavy bomber over Britain recently.

Scouter Good For Top Layers

Unofficial sources have reported the appearance, also, of a pressure-cabined Junkers 86-P bomber reconnaissance plane with a ceiling above above 40,000 feet.

Regarded as a signficant feature common to the JU-86-P, the new FW-190 and the Me-109-G was the fact that they all were reported capable of operating above 35,000 feet, out of anti-aircraft range.

Sources here said the Heinkel 177 can operate at about 23,000 feet on bombing missions and that this was about the height from which the Flying Fortresses of the United States Army Air Force bombed German-held territory in Europe successfully by daylight.

The Heinkel 177 is equipped to carry the heaviest load of any German bomber ever to fly over Britain, indicating that the Germans are copying the big bomb-carrying trend in the R.A.F. while following the lead of the United States in substratosphere operation.

While frequent bad weather over Britain limits the use of such extreme high altitude bombers, which must have clear weather to operate, their extreme operational height makes interception by fighters difficult. It takes approximately 15 minutes for a fighter to climb to 40,000 feet, by which time the bomber can be some 60 miles away.

Against the new model German fighters the United States Army Air Corps has to offer the Republic Thunderbolt and the Lockheed P-38 Lightning, both so far untried in this theatre of the war.

Still Away Behind

Despite the new-model German motors, air experts here said that neither the Me-109-G nor the FW-190 touches the power of the Thunderbolt's 2,000-horsepower air-cooled engine.

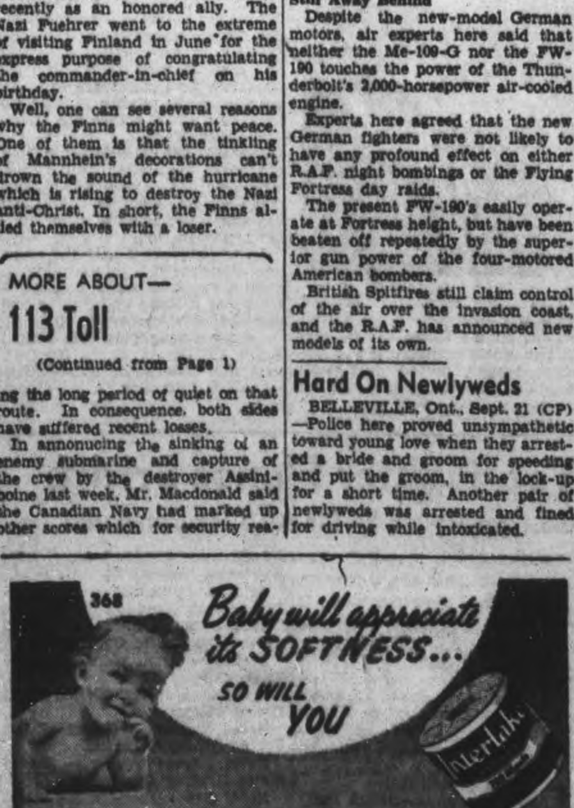
Experts here agreed that the new German fighters were not likely to have any profound effect on either R.A.F. night bombings or the Flying Fortress day raids.

The present FW-190's easily operate at Fortress height, but have been beaten off repeatedly by the superior gun power of the four-motored American bombers.

British Spitfires still claim control of the air over the invasion coast, and the R.A.F. has announced new models of its own.

Hard On Newlyweds

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP) —Police here proved unsympathetic toward young love when they arrested a bride and groom for speeding and put the groom, in the lock-up for a short time. Another pair of newlyweds was arrested and fined for driving while intoxicated.



Plan Commando Daggers For Bond Drive

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 —(CP)—The Commando dagger, weapon of ruthless, all-out warfare, will be the symbol for the $750,000,000 Third Victory Loan campaign opening Oct. 19, it was announced today by G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee.

"Canadians who buy Third Victory Loan bonds next month will participate personally with Gen. McNaughton (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Army Commander) and the Canadian Army Overseas in pointing the dagger at the heart of Berlin," Mr. Spinney's announcement said.

Some 722 Commando daggers— army issue from Sheffield, Eng.— have been flown to Canada for distribution to the 722 local units of the National War Finance Committee throughout the country.

"When each community unit achieves its war loan objective, it will dispatch its Commando dagger to the regiment overseas which represents that community," the statement said.

"The dagger will be for actual use in battle by a member of the regiment and will stand as a pledge from the folks back home to supply the armed forces overseas with all the weapons and equipment they need to reach Berlin."

Lapel badges issued to loan canvassers will be blue with a silver dagger on them, and pennants and flags flown in the campaign will bear the Commando dagger symbol.

The Commando dagger is an all-steel weapon about 14 inches long. The guard has an Arabesque curve, and the blade has a diamond-sectioned pattern.

On Sunday, October 18.

Commando dagger ceremonials will be held in 722 centres on Sunday, October 18. Finance Minister Ilsley and Mr. Spinney are asking mayors or heads of local government in all municipalities to proclaim October 18 "Third Victory Loan Sunday." On that day, at meetings, Canadians will pledge themselves to an intensified support of Canadas job of war.

Preceding the actual ceremonials parades are being arranged which will include representatives of the armed forces and groups of local civilian organizations of all kinds.

The commando dagger will also be used as a symbol for the campaign to show the progress of local loan subscriptions. Large replicas will be placed in prominent places in cities and towns and used as indicators of the amounts subscribed towards community objectives.

Mayors and Reeves in all municipalities are being asked to assume the active general chairmanship of local ceremonials committees. Directing the Dominion program of ceremonials are the following joint chairmen: W. J. Stewart, Toronto. Ivor R. Lewis, Toronto. Mayor Stanley Lewis, Ottawa, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and L. F. Winchell Toronto.

Noted Publisher Conde Nast Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP). — Conde Nast, 68, publisher of Vogue, House and Garden and other magazines and president of the Conde Nast Press in Greenwich, Conn., died Saturday at his home after a brief illness.

In addition to his activities in the publishing business, Nast was noted for the parties he gave at his Park Avenue home for the last thirty years in honor of a variety of causes. His magazine, Vanity Fair, pictured society life in the United States and it was merged abroad before with Vogue in 1935.

Nast was married in 1902 to the former Jeanne Clarisse Coudert. They were divorced in Paris in 1923. His second marriage in 1928 to the former Leslie Foster also ended in divorce.

In 1900 Nast, then a lawyer, was named advertising manager of the Collier Publications, Inc., a position he held for five years until he was made business manager.

Anxious to publish his own magazines, Nast resigned from the Collier organization and acquired Vogue, then a small magazine with scant advertising. In fourteen years he built Vogue into a leading fashion magazine with editions also printed in Paris, London and Buenos Aires.

In 1923, the French Government conferred upon Nast the Order of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his "encouragement of French culture."

Crash At Gren Tay

TORONTO, Sept. 21—(CP)—Nine passengers and three train crew members were injured slightly early today when a fast freight train collided with the Montreal-Toronto Express at Glen Tay station in Lanark County, the Canadian Pacific Railway announced. The C.P.R. said cause of the collision, at 2:28 a.m. has not yet been definitely determined. The line was blocked until 6:55 a.m.

Jap Post

Masayuki Tani was No. 1 Jap propagandist until Tojo came to power. Now he has been elevated to the post of Japanese Foreign Minister. His meeting with the Emperor and other cabinet members in Tokyo is believed to presage some new important military move, possibly directed toward Russia.

Weekend Death Toll Claims 9 In East Canada

By The Canadian Press

Nine eastern Canadians met violent deaths during the week-end. Seven were victims of automobile accidents, an American tobacco worker was burned to death at a Simcoe, Ont., farm, and an Ottawa hotelman died suddenly after a scuffle with patrons of its beverage room, an autopsy indicating he succumbed to heart disease.

Roland Bomhower, 35, and his brother Wilfrid, 23, were killed near Montreal when a car in which they were riding crashed into a bridge on a highway south of the city. The men were residents of St. Remi de Napierville, Que.

At Hawkesbury, Ont., nine-year-old Claire Fitzpatrick, of Gatineau Mills, was killed when struck by a car on a sideroad. Kenneth Inder, 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Inder of Brantford, Ont., died in hospital Saturday from injuries he received Friday when struck by a car.

Mrs. James McEwal Neil of Toronto, was instantly killed near Cobourg, Ont., when a car driven by her husband left the road and crashed into a culvert.

William Paffitt, 70, of Toronto, was drowned Sunday when his car went off the dock at the foot of Yonge street and plunged into Toronto Bay. Mrs. Estel R. Clute of Hamilton was instantly killed near Guelph, Ont., Saturday when a car driven by her husband, Bertrand L. Clute, skidded on wet pavement, ran into the ditch and collided with a tree.

David Murphy, 72, Ottawa hotel manager, died suddenly Saturday after scuffling with beverage room patrons. An autopsy indicated he died from heart disease.

Eretus Vickers, 23, tobacco worker from Roxton, Ga., was burned to death Sunday in a fire in a three-room farm house southwest of Simcoe, Ont. Vickers and a cousin, George Young, were visiting the home of Lewis Towsend. Jeannie Townsend, '16, smelled smoke and aroused her parents and Young, but attempts to waken Vickers were unsuccessful.

Red Sniper Gets Von Kleist In The Caucasus

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP).—The Daily Express Moscow correspondent said today that a Russian sniper put a bullet through the head of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist when the German was travelling in a tank to inspect Nazi forward positions in the Terek River Valley of the Caucasus.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21— (AP).— Russian and German official sources were in sharp conflict yesterday over reports from Soviet sources that the German field marshal and tank expert, Ewald von Kleist, has been killed in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus.

Moscow, which issued the report early Sunday, stood firm. The newspaper Izvestia, according to despatches from Moscow, said the "bullet of Soviet revenge" has ended the career of von Kleist and warned he will not be the last enemy general to fall.

The German High Command, however, issued a categorical denial that van Kleist had been killed.

"The assertion made by official Soviet quarters and relayed by the Reuters agency alleging that Colonel-General von Kleist has fallen is not true," a communique asserted.

The High Command did not elaborate.

The Russian press accepted the Soviet announcement without reservations, Izvestia observing that "the Soviet bullet which reached von Kleist is reaching millions of other Fritzies, and will reach all Fascist invaders from ordinary soldier to field marshal." The paper said Axis soldiers had pronounced their own verdict when they crossed the Russian border.

Von Kleist, 61, led a tank army into France, but his achievements in Yugoslavia were more spectacular. His forces took Belgrade, breaking Serb resistance to the German occupation. In Russia he had been assigned to the Moscow and southern sectors.

Von Kleist fought most of the German-Russian war in the Ukraine, the Don and Donets areas and in the Caucasus.

He was commander of the German forces which captured Rostov last November, only to lose the city to the Russians about a week later.

He figured this summer in command of tank forces which drove on beyond Rostov into the Caucasus.

A member of an old Prussian family which gave the German nation great poets and soldiers, von Kleist was born in 1881 in Braunsfeld, near Wetzlar. He started his military career as a field artillerist, but switched to the cavalry and went into the First Great War as leader of a squadron in a Hussar regiment.

He soon was made a member of the General Staff and distinguished himself in several positions on the Western and Eastern fronts. After the war he was an instructor in the cavalry school in Hanover for several years. In 1931 he commanded an infantry regiment in Potsdam, and after a year of that took charge of the Second Cavalry Division.

In the newly organized German Army he was made a commanding general of an army corps. In 1938 he retired from active duty.

With the outbreak of hostilities he returned to the army. In the Polish campaign his troops decided the operations in Southern Poland when they broke through the southern wing of the Polish Army.

He distinguished himself again in the western campaign and was decorated in May, 1940, with the Knight's Cross.

British 37 Miles Off Tananarive

LONDON, Sept. 21 —(CP)—The Madagascar radio said today that British forces now are within 37 miles of Tananarive, island capital. The broadcast was heard at Port Louis, on Mauritius Island.

The British column was said to be advancing from Majunga, northwest of the capital.

The force which landed at Tamatave on the east coast was said to be about 90 miles from the capital.

British East Africa headquarters announced that ot the east of Tananarive the important rail and road junction of Brickaville had been occupied. From the northwest British troops were advancing south of Ankazobe, which was taken Sept. 19 after a short engagement. Ankazobe is about 50 miles airline from Tananarive.

On the northwest coast rain was falling, softening the earth, and the French had demolished roads extensively. But despite these difficulties the southward movement of the British forces was reported continuing. In this area Befotaka, south of Maromandia, was occupied and British advance units were moving toward Antsohihy, the communique said.

A column moving down the north-east coast reached Sahambava yesterday, it added.

Owner Charged Under Rent Control Act

A charge under the Wartime rental regulations against Gordon J. Bigelow who was accused of receiving a rental for an apartment that was in excess of the maximum provided by the regulations was adjourned until Thursday when the case was called before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

T. J. Carley, KC., who is prosecuting the case informed Magistrate Langley that Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., defending Bigelow wanted an adojurnment.

There was no objection from the prosecution and the hearing was, therefore, set for Thursday morning.

German Prisoners Taken By Assiniboine Feared That Canadians Would Shoot Them

Special to he Examiner.

AN EASTERN ATLANTIC PORT, September 21.—Prisoners taken by H.M.C.S. "Assiniboine," after she had battled with and rammed a U-boat, were afraid for a few moments the following day that they were going to be shot. They had been told by the German high command that Canadians did not take prisoners, so when the destroyer's armed guard selected five Nazis from the group held below decks, the other clustered in a corner and whispered. Some shook hands, as if in a last goodbye.

When the five prisoners were returned to their temporary detention quarters and five more selected they all entered into animated conversation, and smiles of relief spread over their usually stern faces.

They were being taken in groups of five to the main deck for exercise.

Spitfire Fund Tops Objective

The Canadian Police Second Spitfire fund has gone over the top, Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer of the fund, announced this morning.

A subscription of $1,535 raised in the Windsor District and sent here by Superintendent J. R. Wilkinson of Windsor, chairman of the fund, received by Inspector Reid Saturday, completed the drive and the Inspector at once issued a draft for $22,350 in favor of the British Minister of Aircraft Production for the purchase of the second police fighter plane.

Owing to the illness of Sir Philip Gam, commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police, the second Spitfire will be presented by General McNaughton, commanding officer of the Canadian Army overseas. An early announcement of the identity of the pilot is expected.

Inspector Reid say that a substantial sum is left over for the third Spitfire fund which is to be launched at once.

Only yesterday the German high command claimed that Nazi planes and submarines had sunk 38 merchantmen in a six-day running battle with a 45-ship convoy in the Arctic.

Supply Line Losses High

While the German claims were characterized here as exaggerated, unofficial sources believed that losses on the Russian supply route undoubtedly have been heavy.

Thus far the Tirpitz—the mightiest, most costly unit in the German navy—has played an entirely negative part in the war.

Much of the time she has spent in hiding from assaults by Allied bombers and submarines.

In June, 1941, she was reported damaged during a Russian aerial attack on the once free city of Danzig. She did not again appear in the news until March, 1942, when she was spotted off the Norwegian coast, attacked by British torpedo planes and driven to shelter in a fjord.

It was believed on that occasion she was sallying forth for an attack on Allied supply lines.

The Tirpitz was launched at Wilhelmshaven April 1, 1939. She has been listed officially as a 35,000-ton ship, but British sources say she probably is 40,000 tons or more.

The reported reappearance of the Tirpitz followed by only 24 hours a statement by the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, which was interpreted by unofficial naval experts as indicating that Britain's newest 35,000-ton battleships, the Anson and the Howe, now are ready for action.

Tobruk Kept Ablaze

CAIRO, Sept. 21.—(AP).— Fires visible 30 miles were started by R.A.F. heavy and medium bombers which attacked the Axis supply port of Tobruk, more than 300 miles west of the Egyptian battlefront, Saturday night, a communique said to-day.

The raid was the principle feature of the week-end in the North African theatre as the opposing ground forces remained inactive except for minor patrol skirmishes and artillery excanges.

INJURED IN FALL.

Henry Campbell of Lindsay suffered scalp wounds that required medical attention on Saturday evening when he took a weak spell and fell heavily on the sidewalk at the corner of Kent and Lindsay Streets. He was standing next to a Peterborough man, who telephoned for a doctor and the police. He was discharged from the hospital on Sunday morning.

Hitler's Munich Ripped Apart In R.A.F. Smash

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP)—Broad sections of Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party and site of important German war industries, lay devastated today under the weight of a smashing R.A.F. attack which returning pilots said touched off fires so vast they could be seen 100 miles away.

Details of the assault were unfolded last night after the Air Ministry had analyzed reports of bomber crews who winged their way homeward after dawn yesterday from the daring 1,300-mile round trip foray—the 11th night raid on Germany this month.

The attack on Munich was accompanied by another raid on the oft-bombed Saar industrial region in Western German. Two bomber squadrons of R.C.A.F. participated in the Saar Valley pounding.

While the exact number of planes participating in the Munich raid was not announced, official reports indicated the destruction caused rivalled that sown in other German cities which have been the targets of some of the R.A.F.'s mightiest assaults.

Loss of 10 planes during the night was announced. Assuming that these losses amounted to five per cent, observers reckoned that upwards of 200 aircraft took part.

The Air Ministry said the raiders were over Munich for 30 minutes and loosed tons of big bombs as well and many incendiaries.

Dispatches hinted strongly the R.A.F. had employed some of its new 8,000-pound bombs as well as

Crack-up Bridge Gets Roadster

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21.—(ENS)— The village's twin "curve" bridges took toll early this morning of another driver and only the heavy concrete abutment saved the Packard roadster from a thirty foot drop into the Otonabee.

Unreported to police at noon the accident apparently happened this morning about 6 o'clock as the party was heading north. The machine, owned by John J. White of Burnham street, Peterborough, had the right front fender, side and running board smashed in with possible other damage, and was left on Clarence Foster's garage lot.

A man and woman apparently uninjured were reported taken to Chemong by Webster's taxi shortly after the crash.

This is the second crack-up in the same spot inside the past summer months, the location being on a down grade flat curve with no warning signs and little or no guard railing to prevent a plunge into the river. Last year another motorist shoved out some concrete railings at the same place.

Omemee Girl Suffers Injury To Fingers

OMEMEE, Sept. 21 (ENS)—Miss Alma Mortson, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Mortson of Omemee, and an employee of the North American Leather Co., suffered a painful accident on Saturday evening when her right hand was caught in a machine. Three fingers were badly cut. She was rushed to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where an operation was performed. It is expected that one of the three fingers can be saved, but the other two may have to be amputated.

Henry Swartz Injured In Car Crash

PORT HOPE, Sept. 21 (ENS) — An accident took place at 6.15 p.m. on Saturday when a car driven by Henry Swartz, R.R. No. 3, Port Hope, collided with a truck owned by Paedon's Cartage and driven by G. O. Clarke, Molson street, Port Hope, and containing two other occupants, Charlie Lang and Bruce Carr, both of Port Hope. The accident took place on the Lakeshore road just west of Gifford's service station. The truck, which turned over, was badly damaged, but the occupants escaped injury.

Henry Swartz, the driver of the car, was removed to the Port Hope Hospital where he found to be suffering from chest injuries and cuts to his forehead and fingers which necessitated a number of stitches.

Constable Gordon Broughton investigated the accident.

George Rothwell Is Laid To Rest

COBOURG, Sept. 21—(ENS)—The funeral was held this afternoon for George Rothwell, one of the town's best known citizens, who died suddenly her on Saturday. He was in his 75th year. His loss will be sadly felt by the community as he was known to almost everyone. The service was conducted at St. Peter's Anglican Church and he was buried with masonic honors in St. Peter's Anglican Cemetery. The pall-bearers were Walter Johnson, R. E. Barnes, Dick Parker, Charlie Morrison, Jack Burnet and Fred Greer.

The late Mr. Rothwell was born at Bolton, Lancashire, England. He came to Canada in 1889 and resided for some years in New Brunswick. Later he moved to Ottawa and in 1918 he came to Cobourg as a member of the Imperial Munitions Board. He entered the employ of the Douglas Packing Co., at Cobourg in 1919. This firm later became known as the Douglas Pectin. He retired eight years ago after several years of service as office manager.

Mr. Rothwell was a prominent member of the Masons. He was a past master while in New Brunswick and was a member of the Shriners. In addition he was a member of Palestine Preceptory, Port Hope and St. John's Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Cobourg. Mr. Rothwell was a church auditor at St. Peter's and was also auditor in several church societies. During the second last Victory Loan drive he was local secretary.

Married in 1901 to Estelle M. Green at McAdam Junction, N.B., he is survived by a son, Aubrey of Montreal and a daughter, Mrs. Gerald Butler of Toronto. He has three brothers, Rupert and Percy of Hartford, Conn.; Stanley of Liverpool and a sister, Sarah at Little Lever, England.

Good For Half-Holiday

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Sept 21 — (AP). — An anonymous woman telephoned school officials: "This is an air-raid warning." Officials immediately dismissed 800 students, and now police are seeking the purveyor of the false alarm. No protest is recorded from the 800, who had a half holiday.

The First Step

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP) —The German radio broadcast today a Tokyo dispatch saying that the first secretary of the Japanese Embassy at Kuibyshev, Russia, had been recalled for consultation. The dispatch, by transocean, said that the diplomat, Funao Miyagawa, probably would leave the Russian provisional capital September 25.

Albanians Blow Big Tank Plant

ANKARA, Sept. 21—(Delayed).—(AP)—Albanian authorities in refuge here said today patriots had blown up a tank and machine repair factory near Tirana, capital of the Italian-occupied country, destroyed a Tirana Hotel and set fire to a Fascist wool warehouse at Durrazzo in July and August.

Bomb-wielding guerillas were reported to have damaged severely an Italian military convoy on the Kruja-Burrel road last month.

The greatest destruction in all the forays apparently was in the tank and repair factory near Tirana, July 5, the Albanians said. Two Albanian officers dressed in Italian uniforms were reported to have carried explosives into the factory and set off a blast that jarred the countryside and killed several hundred Italian workmen.

Japs Want Few Repatriated

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—The Japanese Government has agreed to the repatriation of a "very few" Japanese nations now in Canada, an External Affairs Department spokesman said last night.

At the request of the Canadian Government, P. E. Schwartz, Spanish Consul-General, submitted some time ago a list of Japanese which it was proposed to repatriate. Mr. Schwartz came to Ottawa Friday to discuss with Government officials here questions concerning Japanese subjects in the Dominion, including arrangements for repatriation. Spain is the protecting power for Japanese interests in Canada.

An External Affairs Department statement Saturday said that the Canadian Government "hopes that it may be possible to increase the number of Canadians and Japanese for reciprocal repatriation on the next sailing of the exchange vessels and the Spanish Consul-General some time ago informed his Government of this for communication to the Japanese Government."

Pacific Battle To Be Tough —Gen. Kenney

By MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 21 (AP).—Maj.-Gen. G. C. Kenney, new commander of the Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, told a press conference Friday that "if anybody thinks we haven't a fight on our hands over here he'd better turn over and dream on the other side."

"Nobody's kidding me about this show," Kenney said. "It's a fight, but I think we've got the fighters over here to do the job."

In his first formal interview since he succeeded Lt.-Gen. George H. Brett, Kenney said that replacements of planes and pilots for the Southwest Pacific area had been stepped up in the last five months.

He also disclosed that American fliers, navigators and bomb-aimers are being sent home to instruct fledgling airmen.

The transfer of Maj.-Gen. Ralph Royce, chief of operations of the Allied air forces in this theatre, from Australia to the United States is part of that policy, he added.

Some airmen already have returned home and more will go as replacement arrive, he added. Many have had experience in the Philippines and Java.

While reiterating his belief that American P-40 and P-39 fighter planes can outslug the Japanese Zero, Kenney said that new types of planes are being produced in the United States with pepped-up engines and more horsepower. Almost all new types also have increased fire-power, he said.

Questioned concerning the fact that Japanese planes have not supported their ground troops in the Owen Stanley Mountain fighting in New Guinea, he said the Japanese had lost a lot of aircraft through Allied heavy bombing of Buna, Salamaua, Rabaul and elsewhere and may be short of aircraft.

On the other hand, he added, the Japanese may be saving equipment for a big show somewhere.

Gen. Kenney said also the Japanese may not have sufficient planes for both the New Guinea and Solomon Islands operations.

Nevertheless, he warned, the Japanese are able to get planes from Japan faster than the Allies can get them from the United States since fighters can be flown from Japan in stages but come by ship from the United States.

In a tribute to the Australian fliers working in co-operation with th United States Army Air Forces, he said they were doing "a wonderful job" with Hudson bombers and P-40 fighters.

Big Crowd Enjoys Sunday Concert

PORT HOPE, Sept. 21.—(ENS)—A large and appreciative audience enjoyed the concert in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday night at 8:30 when the Citizens' Band and the Salvation Army string band combined to present a very fine concert which is the opening event in connection with the drive which opens this week in aid of the Red Shield home front appeal of which Mr. Stuart Smart, manager of the theatre, is chairman.

Envoy Wells of Peterborough, who was guest speaker at the Salvation Army Citadel on Sunday, was chairman of this concert.

The citizens' band under the direction of Mr. Fred Brooks included many fine selections.

OBITUARIES

CAPT. FRED BRADLEY.

OMEMEE, Sept. 21.—(ENS).—The funeral of the late Captain Fred Bradley, of Belleville, who passed away on Wednesday afternoon in Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, was held from the United church, Omemee, on Saturday afternoon.

Services were in charge of Rev. I. B. Naylor, of Thorold, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. R. M. Patterson, of Omemee United church and Captain Laverty, padre of the Military Training Centre at Peterborough.

Many beautiful floral tributes showed the high esteem in which Capt. Bradley was held. Many friends attended from a distance, also a firing party, military escort and bugler were present from the Military Training Centre at Peterborough.

The late Captain Bradley was of a sterling Christiian character. Rev. Naylor, in paying tribute said he was a true soldier of the King of Kings. Captain Bradley was a veteran of the World War No. 1, and although he was in poor health since then, when war was declared again, he gladly offered his services.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, two sons, Paul and John, both serving in the R.C.A.F., one sister, Mrs. Harold Graham of Omemee, and three brothers, Dr. Harry Bradley of Leamington, Gordon of Mimico, and Orville of Detroit, Mich.

Interment was made in Emily cemetery.

HECTOR CARVETH

PORT HOPE, Sept. 21 (ENS) — funeral took place on Saturday afternoon in Port Hope of the late Hector Carveth of Niagara Falls, New York.

He was born in Port Hope, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carveth, and received his early education in the Port Hope public and high schools, later graduating as a Chemical Engineer.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife and seven children, all of whom attended the funeral in Port Hope on Saturday.

Mr. Carveth, whose death was the result of an accident caused by the explosion of a vat at the place of his employment last Tuesday. He died on Thursday in Niagara Falls, New York.

Memorial Service In Seymour For Sgt. Pilot Arthur M. Rowe

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 21. — (ENS). — A capacity crowd filled Stanwood United church on Sunday afternoon as Seymour township honoured its second casualty of the war, Sgt. Pilot Arthur M. Rowe, 24, at an impressive memorial service. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe of Healey Falls, the youth was killed on September 1st while piloting a Spitfire in Egypt. Born at the family homestead in Seymour township he attended primary school at Stanwood, later attending Campbellford High school and Peterborough Normal school, where he graduated last year.

Sgt. Pilot Rowe was highly regarded both here and in Peterborand kenw well the sacrifice he ad was made known friends from over a wide area came to honour his memory. Rev. J. R. Holden of the Stanwood charge conducted the service and he was assisted by a former pastor, Rev. L. M. Hinton, who knew the deceased as a young boy and knew well the sacrifce he hod made for his country since his own son is with the R.C.A.F. in Egypt. A full choir led in the singing and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford presided at the organ, giving a very effective rendition of the Dead March in Saul as the mourners, the deceased's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, his two brothers, LAC. Russell of St. Julian, P.Q., Howard, and two sisters, Mrs. Harold Brunton and Mrs. Thomas Dutton, took their places. The altar of the church was decorated with many beautiful flowers; there also was the Union Jack where it had been placed by members of the Canadian Legion, B.E. S.L. 13. Legion President Major J. M. Bygott as well as representatives of the Reserve Force attended the service which came to a close as Bugler Walter Lowe, Campbellford, sounded the Last Post and Reveille, which was the signal for a minute of silence.

Mrs. R. N. Morrison, Campbellford Is Mourned By Many Friends

CAMPBELLFORD. Sept. 21. — (ENS). — From far and near came friends on Sunday afternoon to pay their final tribute to Mrs. R. Neil Morrison, whose funeral cortege was one of the largest ever seen in this vicinity. A woman whose cheerful disposition and pleasant personality had won her a place of high esteem in the hearts of many, Mrs. Morrison was borne to her last resting-place in the cemetery, alongside Burnbrae Church, at 2:30 in the afternoon.

Gertrude May Bennett was born in Seymour Township 58 years ago, a daughter of Mrs. Bennett and the late Edward Bennett. She spent her early life in the vicinity of Hoards where she became the wife of R. Neil Morrison forty years ago. They lived in Seymour East for about eight years prior to coming to this town in 1912 where they have since been residents.

A natural leader and an able organier, Mrs. Morrison had all the qualities of a good citizen and being without any family of her own she spent much of her life in striving to make others happy. Few women of this town have ever exceeded the scope of her many undertakings. She was for two years president of the Campbellford Women's Bowling Club, and it was she who helped to organize and to popularize weekly mixed rinks bowling tourneys locally. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here for the past thirty years and a past president of the Ladies' Aid Society. During World War I. Mrs. Morrison was one of the leading members of the I.O. D.E. Bemersyde Chapter and assisted in making countless quilts and other articles which her failing health prevented her from doing during the past two years. At the time of her death she was secretary of the Northumberland Women's Liberal Association, an office she had held for the past five years.

The many beautiful floral tributes bore mute testimony to the high esteem in which she was held.

The funeral service held in Burnbrae church followed the committal service at the graveside which was conducted by Rev. J. O. Ralston of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford. Assisting with the service during which Francis DeCarrol of Campbellford rendered a vocal solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," were Rev. Donald McKay of the Burnbrae charge and Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Cobourg.

Surviving her besides her sorrowing husband is her aged mother, Mrs. Edward Bennett of Campbellford, and two sisters, Mrs. Harry Fanning of Wellman's Corners and Mrs. Kirk Moran of Stockdale and one brother Fred Bennett of Campbellford.

The bearers were W. A. Fraser, M.P., Trenton; H. N. Carr, M.P.P., Campbellford; W. B. Horkins, Toronto; Dr. H. O. Richardson, Arthus G. Morgan, and Earl H. Greig, all of Campbellford. Flower bearers were John Wallace, Harry Gay, Kenneth Burger, Harry Fowlds, Joel McArthur, Jos. Smith, T. J. Craighead, C. H. Davidson, Earl Craigheao, J. R. Battisby, Hector MacMillan, Henry E. Locke, W. S. Wiggins, P. C. Denyes, Alex MacDonald, Dr. O. C. Watson, Harry R. Townsend, all of Campbellford, and Harry P. Lee, Toronto, and Ross Forster, Trenton.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. L. Black, Toronto; Dr. John Hawley, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sills, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mark, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bennett and Miss Mildred Bennett, Oshawa; Mrs. V. I. Tufford, Beamsville; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Oddie, Detroit; Mr. William T. Shannon, Toronto; Mr. Russell Morrison, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Simpson, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Morely Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Herrington, Mr. and Mrs. George Little, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thorne, all of Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Loomis, Toronto; Mrs. W. Strong and Miss Rose Strong, Brighton; Mr. James Cox, Trenton; Mrs. Fred Forster, Mr. Ross Forster and Miss Vera Forster, of Trenton; Mr. McNair, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs T. J. Johnson, Trenton; Mrs. Harry Johnston and Mr. Maynard

Boy Of 14 Wanting To Get To Toronto Steals Three Horses From Farmer

COBOURG, Sept. 21— (ENS).—Clifford Lapp, Baltimore farmer, lost three horses and his hired man on Saturday. It is hired boy, to be exact, as the hired hand was 14 years of age. It is alleged that, regardless of his tender years, he made off with the three horses, two of which have been recovered.

Lapp told police that he sent the boy out on Saturday afternoon to cultivate back of the house and the three horses were hitched to the cultivator. Later in the afternoon when he went out to see how much progress he had made, he found the horses and the boy gone. Late on Saturday night he found two of the horses, with their harness, in the bush some quarter of a mile away.

That is just half the story, for this boy, apparently tiring of farm life, was using every means of transportation to put the miles between him and the farm home. He didn't like walking, for he was stopped by a Toronto police officer in that city, as he rode blissfully along on a bicycle stolen from Dr. Lockhart. He had discarded the horse en route, and apparently thumbed a ride to Toronto.

When the Toronto police learned the boy was wanted for horse theft at Cobourg, they enquired where he left the horse. "I tied it to a fence about half-way between Port Hope and Bowmanville." He will be returned to Cobourg, perhaps in time to finish the cultivating.

Eating, Drinking Lead In U.S. Sales Step Up

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Salesof independent retailers were at approximately the same level in August as in the same month of 1941, according to preliminary data released by the Bureau of the Census. August sales were 7 per cent above those recorded for the preceding month. These preliminary estimates are based upon reports from 15,724 independent stores in thirty-four States.

Eating and drinking places again led other retail trades with a sales gain of 25 per cent for August over August, 1941. In the non-durable goods lines substantial increases were also registered for dry goods and general merchandise stores, 22 per cent; drug stores, 22 per cent; food stores, 20 per cent, and general stores, 18 per cent.

Dollar volume of department stores gained slightly, while apparel stores were up 8 per cent. Filling stations, however, recorded sales 14 per cent below those for August a year ago, the only decrease shown in the non-durable goods line.

In the durable goods lines, jewelry stores registered an increase of 20 per cent in dollar sales for August of this year, compared with the same month of last year. Sales of hardware stores decreased slightly, while dollar volume of lumber-building materials dealers and furniture stores fell off 8 per cent and 19 per cent, respectively. Motor vehicle dealers recorded the largest sales loss, 62 per cent, the bureau said.

Sailor Thanks Port Hope Group

PORT HOPE, Sept. 21—(ENS). —This is another letter of appreciation received by Mrs. W. Potts from the adopted sailor of Group No. 1 of the United church:

Dear Mrs. Potts—I wish to thank you and the rest of the ladies of Group 1 of the United church W. A. for the swell ditty bag I received. It certainly contained just the things I really needed at that time. You can understand how grateful I was to receive it.

The day I finished my course I was drafted right away to Quebec city to join the ship's company of your ship Port Hope, as ship's electrician. So I didn't have much time to come prepared.

I only wish I could have been in Port Hope the day the ship was there. It must have been a great occasion. The chaps tell me how swell the people were to them and the good time which they gave them. It is certainly something that will live in their memories for a long time.

Thanks a million Group 1. I certainly do appreciate what you have done for me. I remain.

Your adopted sailor,
RALPH W. TAYLOR

Roseneath Church Has Active W.A.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 21—(ENS). —From month to month the W.A. of Roseneath United Church, in an effort to promote the church in the life of the community, plans for comforts to be sent overseas to local soldiers; sends out cards of sympathy to the bereaved, cards of congratulations to new mothers and babies, and cards to the ill and convalescents, always planning to raise funds to meet these expenses, and expenses incurred in improving the interior of church and parsonage.

During the meeting on Wednesday afternoon it was decided to order yarn for members offering to knit socks for overseas soldiers. Mrs. Lenard Brisbin and Mrs. Clark Sandercock were appointed to a committee to purchase and distribute yarn for knitting.

A number of quilt block were turned in, and Mrs. Ella Brown volunteered to assemble these and

Woman Is Killed When Car Strikes Culvert

COBOURG, Sept. 21—(ENS). — Mrs. Elizabeth Neil of 7 Edgewood Grove, Toronto, age 70, met instant death late on Saturday night on the Gore's Landing-Harwood Road, when the car in which her husband, age 69, was driving left the road and collided with a concrete culvert. Her husband, James McEwan Neil, who is a retired Streets Department employee of Toronto, escaped with a few minor bruises and a shaking up. The car after striking the culvert bounced back and slid sideways into the ditch, almost turning over. Mrs. Neil's head struck the windshield, shattering the glass. It is believed that she was killed by the force of the blow against the windshield.

The body was taken to McFayden's Undertaking Parlors, and the driver was brought into Cobourg, where he was treated by Dr. F. Blackwell.

After the accident, Neil crawled through the open left door of the car and along the ditch, through a creek and climbed the bank to the road. He travelled on foot for about a quarter of a mile until he reached the garage of Russell Johnson, where he gasped that here had been an accident. Russell Johnson and some others drove Neil to the scene. In the meantime Frank Shearer had come along and stopped at the scene of the fatality. A call was put in for a doctor, and Dr. W. E. Wilkins of Cobourg came out. He pronounced the woman dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil are well known in the district, having come each summer for several years to their cottage. The fatality happened not more than 500 yards from their summer cottage. Every night the old couple went for a walk along the road near their summer place, and they were a familiar sight to the other cottagers and permanent residents of the Harwood district.

Mrs. Neil is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. Gordon Howe, Mrs. Earl Douglas, and Mrs. Cecil Nolan, all of Toronto.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable David Adair, of Cobourg. An inquest may be held.

The Future of over 1,000 more women now safeguarded by IMPERIAL POLICIES

● Among Imperial Life's 8,000 newest policyholders are women in almost every occupation. There are housewives and stenographers, nurses and secretaries, teachers and clerks. They exchanged an uncertain outlook about the future for the peace of mind that comes to holders of Imperial Life Policies.

The future money problems of the business woman are no different to those of men. Whether married or single they too must face the problem "What happens if I die too soon—what if I grow old?" They too have dreams for the future that only money can make come true—a long holiday trip to foreign lands—a comfortable life in the sunset years. The Imperial Life has plans to meet every pocketbook.

To an increasingly large cross-section of the people of Canada, The Imperial Life is "my insurance company".

Is This Wartime Economy?

The appointment of Dr. James S. Thompson as General Manager of the CBC has not yet been ratified by the Government, and very rightly so. The Board of Governors of that body were somewhat premature in announcing their choice; they might have been wiser to find out beforehand if it was agreeable to the people's representatives. The Parliamentary investigation of the CBC included some pointed criticism of the Board of Governors, and it was thought at the time that that body would resign in consequence, but they have shown no disposition to do so, and have been hasty in appointing one of their own number to the vacant executive position.

The salary of the new General Manager has been set at $15,000. In addition Major Murray has been found a job as Director-General of Broadcasting at $14,000, and Dr. Augustin Frigon, as Assistant General Manager, is to get $14,000. Thus the total bill for leading executives of the CBC comes to $43,000 a year. This seems an excessive sum at a time when we are all being taxed heavily, and we hope that the Government will not agree to it.

Running the CBC is important, and the General Manager must have a salary befitting his position. But $15,000 is the salary of a Prime Minister; and $10,000 is the salary of a Cabinet Minister. Are Messrs. Thompson, Murray and Frigon in quite that class? We do not think so. Very possibly they could earn larger salaries than these as private citizens, but as the public servants of a country at war we do not think that they should have so much.

Dr. Thompson has been a member of the Board of Governors of the CBC since 1940 and he has made one report on broadcasting which was very sound as far as it went. But he has done nothing which marks him as the only man for the General Manager's position; it is also a fact that he is not a native Canadian, and there is a strong feeling that a Canadian should be head of the CBC. And if Dr. Thompson needs two such expensive assistants he will be a very costly public servant indeed.

What we need now is a man who can run the CBC with one assistant, and who can run it better than it has ever been run up to the present. The General Manager ought to be his own Director-General of Broadcasting; what is the sense of dividing authority at the CBC still more, when divided authority has been one of its worst handicaps in the past? There seems to be a desire to make a place for Major Murray at any cost, but we doubt if the people of Canada, who will have to pay his salary, share that desire.

It is futile for the Government to tell the people of Canada that they must save and scrape and deny themselves to win the war if $43,000 are to be squandered in this way. Can't we find one strong man to run the CBC for us at a reasonable salary? Can't we pay our taxes and buy our War Bonds with the assurance that somebody is keeping a watchful eye on our money?

Gifts For Soldiers

An American paper has interested itself in the question of what gifts soldiers like to receive from their friends, and as we believe that this information might be of interest here we are glad to pass it on.

Soldiers do not like bulky or useless things. There is no point in sending a man a chess or chequer board, or a cribbage outfit; probably these are provided for him in camp or at recreation centres and he does not want to have to stow the thing away in the comparatively small storage space which is allotted to him. And soldiers do not like diaries; few people keep diaries in private life, and those who do will take their own books to camp with them. There is no point in sending a soldier anything which he would not use in civilian life.

Soldiers do like wrist-watches, and they have a special affection for the kind that are water-proof. Small portable radios are handy, too. Useful wallets and billfolds are acceptable, and some of the boys (particularly officers) are very glad to get extra shirts and handkerchiefs; these, of course, must be of the proper color. Pen and pencil sets are welcome and so are compact sewing sets, with thread and buttons in them. And of course home-made food is always welcome.

Army camps, as we have stressed in these columns before, are glad to receive gifts of books. They do not want old books of the Rose of the World variety, and they do not want books about the last war. Classics are acceptable, and so are new books on all subjects; thrillers and Westerns are popular, but not with all the men. Biography, history, and books about the present war all have their place. We may remind you that if you have no books on hand which you care to part with it is possible to buy excellent cheap reprints at about three for a dollar which will serve the purpose just as well.

Balkan Revolt

It is roughly 3,000 years since the Balkans won their reputation as the trouble-spot of Europe. These violent, passionately patriotic, liberty-loving people have made trouble for one conqueror after another during that time, surviving centuries of the most crushing hardship, the most obtuse misunderstanding and misrepresentation, and preserving in their darkest hours an untrammeled spirit. Since the so-called conquest of Yugoslavia Hitler has had nothing but trouble in the Balkans; guerillas under the fabulous General Draja Mikhailovitch have harried his troops, terrified his collaborators and kept alive the free spirit of the Slavs. Living like bandits hidden in the hills they keep up an incessant warfare, sometimes in force and sometimes in small groups. There is a tempting price upon Mikhailovitch's head, but betrayal is the last thing he fears. With arms secretly conveyed to him from Russia Mikhailovitch's strength is growing; Bulgarian troops are deserting the Nazi ranks to join him. Revolt has even spread to Macedonia, where the people cannot forget that Alexander the Great was one of their countrymen, and where resentment of Nazi discipline has smouldered for many months.

The name of Mikhailovitch will become part of the world's legend of heroism and daring, taking its place with the names of Robin Hood and Hereward the Wake. At present the name may cause us to blush. With the minimum of equipment and men Mikhailovitch is doing so much; with great armies we have, until now, done so little. There are excellent reasons why it should be so and by no means all of them are discreditable to us. Still, it is difficult not to feel that the most important thing about Mikhailovitch is his spirit, and that this flaming, adventurous spirit would do great things for us if we could capture it.

Compulsory Bible Study

We notice that the Protestant high schools of Montreal are to have a compulsory course of Bible study this year. The course has been established "in the conviction that a knowledge of the Bible is part of the equipment of any educated man...that the Bible is great literature and has a place by itself among the great books that our race has produced and is an essential part of the spiritual heritage of our race."

This is the right way to approach the matter. So long as the Bible is regarded as a talisman or a bundle of conflicting dogma it will receive either the superstitious reverence or the neglect appropriate to either. But if it is taught intelligently, as a collection of records of a great spiritual advancement, and as a great work of literature, it will have interest and its invaluable counsels will remain in the mind. Not to know the Bible in some degree is to be ignorant indeed, and we admire the sensible step which the Montreal schools have taken to lessen such ignorance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is only for a few weeks that marriage is a gambol. After that it becomes a hard lottery.

There may be a shortage of chewing gum soon. Which will solve another parking problem.

With a power shortage at hand what becomes of our boast about being a nation of live wires?

We noticed a squirrel hoarding the other day, and we are thinking of reporting it to the local office of the WPTB.

Russ Winter Faces Nazis

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WHATEVER the impetus behind Hitler's orders to his armies to take Stalingrad at any price, the month or more of lost time it has cost him has brought him perilously close to the same predicament in which he stood in Russia just a year ago.

Again winter is impending. It bids fair to close in earlier this year. Its first heralds, continent-wide rains and a skidding barometer, appeared before Sept. 15.

A year ago those grim symbols of disaster for invaders of Russia were first noted Sept. 28. Hitler gave them no heed.

With the fall of Kiev Sept. 19 last year and invasion of the Crimea and investment of the Rostov gateway to the Caucasus in progress, Hitler's hopes of a decisive victory reached high tide Oct. 2, 1941. He issued a pompous "order of the day" to his troops.

"Tomorrow," he said, "begins the last great decisive battle of this year."

Next day, after a flight to Berlin, he broadcast his historic assertion that "Russia is already broken and will never rise again."

He believed it then, no doubt. His thought that Russian armies had virtually all been decimated or trapped was reflected by his press chief, who announced Oct. 9, after a conference in the field with his master, that the last "complete" Soviet armies had been scattered or trapped.

"For all military purposes Soviet Russia is done with," that Hitler spokesman asserted. "The British dream of two-front war is dead."

It seemed all too plausible. The Nazi surge into the Donets Basin rolled forward. Moscow was in deadly peril. Orel and Bryansk fell in early October. Russia's main army of the centre was reported trapped near Vyazama on the Napoleonic route. On Oct. 16 Odessa on the Black Sea went down.

The next day in Tokyo the Cabinet of Prince Konoye resigned and General Tojo, the war-maker, succeeded. The stage was set for the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

By Oct. 21 Berlin reported Leningrad encircled. Kharkov fell next day. Then came a slowing down. Only a note in Nazi war bulletins, first appearing Oct. 22, seemed to explain it. It said snow and freezing weather was impeding progress.

It was not halted. Steel Nazi fingers reached closer to Moscow. There were steady German strides forward elsewhere, as in the Crimea, but for a month the attack increasingly lagged due to winter conditions.

It was Nov. 22 before Rostov was in Nazi hands. The Russians retook it a week later, and the German winter retreat was on. It was under Axis defeat omens in Russia, not victory portents, that Japan took the plunge Dec. 7.

This chronology throws light on Hitler's problem this year for all his new victories. Five weeks or less will see another Russian winter upon him. He has conquered rich Russian territory, threatens her main oil artery, but on the authority of President Roosevelt has destroyed no single Soviet Army.

Again he is looking to Japan for help. And the moment for that help to be afforded somehow, somewhere, may be at hand. Yet even if he holds Stalingrad, the "decisive" victory in Russia he foresaw last Oct. 2 still is denied him.

Two fishermen met every day at twevle o'clock, when they took a constitutional together. This consisted of a visit to every public-house in the town.

One day, during one of their several halts, Tom remarked that he had been reading in a newspaper that if all the public-houses in the country were set end to end they would make a street extending from John o' Groats to Newcastle.

The other's reply, as he drained his glass, was: "Hech, man, what a walk!"

Mist across the valley. Yellow elm leaves floating down. A red branch on swamp maple. Wild clematis on old stone walls. Starry asters in the woodlands. Goldenrod along the roads. On the hillsides, purple thistles and the milkweed's airy plumes. On the millpond, water lilies. In the gardens, marigolds. Yellow cucumbers and squashes. Purple grapes and yellow pears. In the orchard, pink-cheeked pippins, northern spies and big pound sweets.

Gray squirrels busy with their hoarding. Swallows in long rows on wires. Bees zig-zagging, honey-laden. Butterflies in sunshine sailing. Locusts milder with their humming. Goldfinch round the sunflower haloes. Crickets slowing up their fiddling. Katydids all night debating.

Crips and cool the early evenings. Sharp and wet the morning hours. In the air a fruited fragrance. Everywhere a tang to living.—Christian Science Monitor.

Honor Them

Look for a small silver badge in the lapels of men, some in nondescript clothing. The badge with a crown on top carries the letters "M.N." It stands for the Merchant Navy, and those lads you see wearing it are in port after being torpedoed or running cargoes through submarine-haunted seas and dodging dive bombers.—Vancouver Sun.

Piecemeal Prohibition

(FROM THE MONTREAL GAZETTE)

THE Dominion Government will serve no useful purpose and most certainly will not aid the war effort of the country by encouraging the prohibition movement. In the course of an hour interview on Saturday Prime Minister King told a delegation from the United Church General Council, in session at Belleville, that a Cabinet Committee was already at work seeking ways of curtailing liquor consumption by "effective action." The committee consists of six members and has had some meetings. Mr. King promised a radio address which will be an appeal for temperance. He intimated also that a public statement of Government policy will be made "before very long." The United Church delegates did not ask for prohibition of the liquor and beer business but they did present a resolution of the council which would mean the thin end of the wedge, and not so very thin at that. It asked for limitation of materials to breweries, rationing of beverage alcohol to one-half or two-thirds the present consumption rate, reduction of the alcoholic content of beverages, a ban on liquor advertising and a nation-wide campaign of temperance education. This is partial or piecemeal prohibition, not the ultimate goal but a long step toward it.

Public opinion in Canada is not ready to support prohibition, either outright or on the instalment plan. It is not ready to accept restrictions which invite the sinister activities of the bootlegger and the racketeer. It does not want the social and economic losses which attend a traffic driven, even partly, underground. It burnt its fingers once, and badly, and it dreads the fire. The Canadian people are, as they ought to be, preoccupied with the business of war, the business of saving their skins and their souls, and one of the last things they want, or that would be good for them or for their war effort, would be a recrudescence of the liquor issue and its attendant disturbances. The Dominion Government, in a matter of this kind, and particularly at this time, would do well to make haste slowly, very slowly.

Any plea for new restrictions upon the sale or consumption of liquor and beer has its basis in, if not a misrepresentation, at least a misconception. What is implied is that the present rate of consumption is too great. A request for a campaign of temperance education suggests that the Canadian people are intemperate now. The premises are, of course, false. Canada is a sober country. Conditions in the Dominion's largest city ought to be representative and typical, and evidence of drunkenness in Montreal are, happily, so rare as to be exceptional That the country's liquor and beer bills are large is true enough but those who are trading on the word "temperance" are reading into the $250,000,000 total a thoroughly unwarranted consumption estimate. Even after allowance is made for higher production costs the charges made to the public are far above the actual costs of manufacturing and marketing these beverages. Heavy taxes are included in the final retail purchase prices, and to a very large extent the proceeds of these taxes go into the war effort. Finance Minister Ilsley increased the federal imposts substantially in his June budget for that specific purpose, though they had already risen materially since the commencement of the war. Aggregate trade figures, therefore, mean much more than liquor or beer consumption volume. Offered as a measure of consumption they are misleading.

We already have temperance in Canada. We do not want the evils that accompany whole or partial prohibition. The Dominion Government has an opportunity to let well enough alone, and should take it.

Learning From the Enemy

(FROM THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

AS Mr. Lyttleton and Mr. Bevin have foreshadowed, the emphasis in the coming months will be on increased production, not by the crude and injurious method of lengthening hours but by higher efficiency in process and the use of labor. Mr. Lyttleton has already said that his department is trying in co-operation with Mr. Bevin's, to spread knowledge on improvements in factory method. They should consider especially bringing to notice American war experience, and there is even something to be learned from Germany, where the production problem is the same or rather still more acute. How Germany is applying scientific method to production is instanced by its "Refa-Manner," men trained by the Reichsausschuss for Arbeitsstudien in time and motion study. There are now 30,000 or 40,000 of them, and they are being turned out in large numbers after attending evening courses of fifty-two lectures of two hours each. Their job is to apply timing throughout industry and to examine every detail in the process of manufacture to see if it cannot be simplified. "The Refa man will only be satisfied if nothing can be simplified, nothing made easier, and no new device added." It is recognized, even in Germany, that the worker's consent has to be got to time-study, which can have so marked an effect on his piece rates. The Nazi substitute for trade unions, the Arbeitsfront, is therefore associated with the control and training of the army of "Refa" men, and so (according to the optimistic Frankfurter Zeitung) the worker "knows in advance that he is protected against any exploitation." One does not quote this for British emulation but only as an illuminating example of the thoroughness with which the Germans also are trying to make the most of their resources.

Drinking Habits Reanalyzed

(KANSAS CITY STAR EDITORIAL)

A RECENTLY published book, "Alcohol Explored," by H. W. Haggard and E. M. Jellinek, is a readable discussion, from a scientific standpoint, of numerous angles of what frequently is referred to as "the alcohol problem." It is not special pleading, either, for abstinence or for drinking. It upsets numerous widely circulated inaccuracies. Its conclusions are based upon a large number of cases reported from state hospitals and allowance is made for percentage of error. Both the authors are members of the faculty of Yale University. Dr. Haggard is director of the university's laboratory of applied psychology, and Dr. Jellinek, vice-chairman of the scientific committee of the Research Council on Problems of Alcohol.

Some drinkers, the book points out, go insane because they drink and other drink because they are going insane. These latter are known as symptomatic drinkers, and it is inaccurate to blame alcohol for their mental condition. Speaking in general terms, continued excessive use of alcohol shortens life expectancy, although not so much as many persons believe. It sometimes causes certain physical diseases, like cirrhosis of the liver, although that ailment may occur also in total abstainers.

The physical effects of alcohol are not so devastating as the advocates of total abstinence would have people believe, the authors say. Indeed, there is virtually no difference in the health and length of life of abstainers and moderate drinkers. When you consider those who drink to excess, it is something different. They do have worse health, are more vulnerable to certain diseases, particularly pneumonia, and a certain proportion of them develop mental maladies. Yet it is rather the ethical effect than the physical which makes heavy drinking a menace, if you except the danger of motor car accidents among the bibulous.

The causes of excessive drinking remain diversified and frequently are puzzling. Sometimes the difficulty is merely increased habit. Some men and women drink to overcome an inferiority complex or unhappiness. These are escape drinkers. Some drunkenness is symptomatic, the result of disease and not the cause.

Sometimes, the authors admit, men continue to drink to excess for prolonged periods and pay no penalty except the moral disapproval of many who know them. They remain healthy, able to make money and contented with their lives as they live them. Perhaps as hopeless as any class of excessive drinkers are the stupid drinkers, the fellows who drink because other people are doing it, and because they have not enough mental resources to know how else to obtain recreation.

All in all, the conclusions of the book are encouraging. The authors believe that, although the prevalance of drinking is greater now than it was before national prohibition, the number of excessive drinkers and the average consumption of liquor per individual is decidedly less. The alcohol problem hardly will be on the road to solution, the authors believe, until such time as we know more about why men and women become excessive drinkers.

A Bible Message For Today

And God spake all these words, saying:

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth:

Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them.—Ex. xx, 1, 3-5.

What profiteth the graven image that the maker thereof hath graven it; the molten image, and a teacher of lies, that the maker of his work trusteth therein, to make dumb idols? Woe unto him that saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it.

But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him.—Hab. ii, 18-20.

Our Bureaucracy

Not much can and perhaps not much should be done about it at the moment, but it is nevertheless worth calling attention to the fact that we are building up an immense wartime bureaucracy in Canada. Every day now orders issue from Ottawa, and every order—and this is something we are apt to overlook—means employing more people to carry it out, and also imposes new costs on individuals and on business firms. And the end is not only not in sight, but is obviously far distant....There is reason to hope that somewhere in the seat of government there are those who are watching vigilantly to see that no more controls are established than are absolutely necessary, and that the line of retreat is being kept open. Some day the retreat will have to be swift and complete, and it might as well be orderly.—Vancouver Province.

They're A Must Now

Keeping careful and accurate accounts has always been a part of good farm practice. Now they are a must for every farmer, since there is no other way in which he can compute his share of the sum total which Canada must raise for war costs. Accurate account books will save confusion and error, not only when filling out income tax forms but also when reviewing the success of the year's work.—Farmer's Advocate.

For Tuesday, September 22

According to the lunar and mutual aspects governing the affairs of this day all things may be expected to move at a particularly high tempo attended by confusion, excitement and upheaval. While well-directed energies might be turned into constructive channels the prospect of this is slight. Protect property from loss or theft.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year in which their own recklessness and turbulent energies, faculties and emotions may combine to frustrate and negate any desired efforts in a constructive direction. Travel and change may be perilous.

A child born on this day should be ardent, erratic, impulsive and passionate, with difficulty in directing affairs to productive channels.

Fall Activities At 'Y' Start With Open House Week

The Peterborough Y.W.C.A. has planned an exceptionally interesting fall and winter program, which includes gymnasium and dancing classes, basket ball, badminton, archery and swimming. The clubs for members of all ages are self governing and plan programs along educational, social, and service lines.

The residence provides home life for hundreds of girls, many of whom are newcomers to the city, and the rooms registry service helps many to find suitable living accommodation. Recreational evenings, open house days, workers' shift hour programs, educational and war emergency classes and a place to meet and entertain one's friends, are all services provided by the Y.W.C.A.

The season's activities start off this fall with "Open House Week" from October 1 to 7. It is hoped that old "Y" members, new-comers to the city, and interested friends of th "Y" will take advantage of this opportunity to find out about Y.W.C.A. activities.

The first evening is being planned by groups from the south end of the city, who will present a program from 7 to 10 o'clock on Thursday evening, October 1. Friday evening is planned especially to interest newcomers to the city, both men and women. Saturday morning there will be a Children's Party, and it is hoped that the gym, which can accommodate 500, will be full. Young men and women will be welcomed to the Fireside Hour after church on Sunday.

Monday evening will be a special rally for groups from the east section of the city and Tuesday for girls from the centre section especially those working in shops and offices. Wednesday is for the northern section. Anybody is welcome any time.

Omemee Friends Honor Newlyweds

OMEMEE, Sept. 21—(ENS). — Friends and neighbors of Omemee and community held a shower in the Coronation Hall in honor of the recent marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Lowes, on Friday evening. They were presented with many beautiful and most useful gifts, which will always be a remembrance to them. The climax of the evening was reached when Vincent Fee asked Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lowes to come forward and be seated before the many gifts which surrounded them, and an address was read by Mr. Fee.

Mr. Lowes made a very suitable reply, thanking all for the many gifts bestowed upon them. Lunch was enjoyed by all.

The Musical Mountaineers resumed their music, and dancing was in full swing until the early hours of morning. Those attending from a distance were Mr. Lloyd Clark of Bethany; Miss Agnes Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Young, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunlop, Mrs. Carter, Miss Pearl Tucker, Miss Margaret Categan, Miss Noreen Moher, Miss Marian Dunford, all of Peterborough.

Girls Succeed as Bread Route Drivers

MRS. JUNE BRAND MISS GERTRUDE RUTTER

Demands of war on the manpower of the nation is channelling more women into jobs formerly held by men. Stock's Bread Company have already engaged two girls for city bread routes and they are shown ABOVE. Mrs. June Brand at the LEFT is the wife of Pte. Fred Brand of the Canadian Army, and the young lady at the RIGHT is Gertrude Rutter, formerly of Belleville. (Staff Photos)

Two Women Doing Real Job Driving Bread Truck in City

Girls, how would you like to drive a bread wagon around town all day, learning that the horse can beat the new driver at the game any day in the week because he really knows his route? That is what charming Mrs. June Brand, 195 London Street, and Miss Gertrude Rutter, Belleville, are doing, and they are completely in love with their jobs. These girls are the first, and so far the only two girls in the city, to be handling a job such as this, and they drive two of the wagons for the Stocks Bread Company.

"Talk about co-operation," Mrs. Brand laughed, "the women are really grand and do all they can to help us and to save us time. Why, when they give me peaches to eat, lots of them even peel them. That's what I really call service." Miss Rutter has the same story to tell.

Mrs Brand's husband is Pte. Fred Brand, and his wife accompanied him to Ottawa, Moncton, St. John's and other places in Eastern Canada, but when he was moved out to the west coast, Mrs. Brand could not accompany him, and as they have no family she decided to get herself a job just for the duration. After the war she intends to go back into her home. Before starting on the bread route, she had worked for a short time in the Canadian General Electric, but never found it as interesting as her present work.

Horse versus Driver.

Mrs. Brand is a plump, jolly, 24-year-old girl who gets an awful kick out of life, and it is no wonder that she makes friends wherever she goes. Until she started on her present job, the only time she had ever had anything to do with a horse was when her brother took her out for an hour one day. But she's doing a swell job now, even if she and the horse didn't quite pull together at first. One of the first times she was

Adamson-Gertley Nuptials At Knox On Saturday

Knox United Church, decorated with white tapers, fern, and baby mums, was the scene on Saturday for the wedding of Margaret Reliena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gertley, to Stanley Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Adamson. Rev. H. J. Mahoney officiated and Mr. William Potter, organist, supplied the wedding music. During the signing of the register he played "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a graceful gown of white silk jersey, fashioned on Grecian lines, with shirred three-quarter sleeves and a sweetheart neckline; the full skirt fell into a graceful circular train and she wore a two-strand pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. Her finger-tip veil of French net was caught to a feathered juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of gladioli and bouvardia.

She was attended by Miss Isabel Morrow, as maid of honor, Miss Wylma Lockie and Audrey Killingbeck as bridesmaids. Miss Morrow wore turquoise blue silk jersey, Miss Lockie rose dawn silk jersey and Miss Killingbeck heaven blue silk jersey All the attendants wore matching juliet caps and carried bouquets of gladioli and roses to match their gowns.

Mr. John Howson was best man and the ushers were Mr. Arthur Gertley, brother of the bride, and Mr. Allen Thompson.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a gown of corn-flower blue crepe with a matching feathered hat and a corsage of rapture roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Adamson left on a motor trip to Western Ontario, the bride travelling in a moss green wool suit with brown accessories. On their return they will live at 479 McCannan avenue.

Jewison-Smith Nuptial Ceremony in Bride's Home

MILLBROOK, Sept. 21 (ENS) — A pretty fall wedding took place on Saturday at 3 p.m., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Smith, Bank street, when their second daughter, Diana Elizabeth Belvia (Betty), was united in marriage with William Lloyd Jewison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jewison, of Bailieboro, the ceremony being performed by Rev. A. E. Chavis, rector of the parish of Cavan, in the presence of more than fifty guests.

The home was beautifully decorated with fall blossoms for the occasion, the bridal party taking their place before a background of flowers, and beneath an arch centred with a large white wedding bell from which went fluted streamers of pink and white, and which was intertwined with gladioli and other September blooms. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in a street length dress of aqua green crepe, with high neckline, fitted wide belt finely braided in conventional design, the bodice having a slightly draped effect, and the sleeves being of bracelet length. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses, and wore in her hair a coronet of matching roses and pleated silk net. The groom's gift, a tiny gold wrist watch, was worn, and a triple strand of pearls finished the dress at the neckline.

Attending the bride was her cousin, Miss June Freeman, of Peterborough, who wore a street length dress of cinnamon brown crepe, with draped bodice, the skirt pleated at the front, high neckline and bracelet length sleeves; her arm bouquet was of pink Sweetheart roses, and the coronet worn similar to that of the bride. The groom was supported by his brother, Milton Jewison, R.C.A.F., Trenton, and during the signing of the register, Misses Marjorie and Beatrice McDowell sang. Miss M. L. Collins played the wedding music.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, the bride's mother wearing a dress of black typhoon crepe, with gold clip at the neckline, matching hat with gold pin at the side, and a corsage of pink gladioli and baby's breath. Mrs. Jewison, mother of the groom, also received wearing floral patterned blue taffeta, with navy hat, and corsage of rose gladioli and gypsophilia.

Pouring tea at the bride's table, which was done in pink and white and centred with the handsome three-story wedding cake, were Mrs. Wentworth Gray, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Harold Freeman, of Peterborough; while serving the guests for the buffet luncheon were Mrs. Walter Challice, Misses Marian Belch, Marjorie Sutton, Laureer Richards, Jean Smith and Mrs. Harry Freemantle, the last two being the bride's sisters.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Jewison left by motor for their honeymoon to be spent at Muskoka, Toronto, and other points, the latter travelling in a dress of romance brown crepe, with gold clips, profile hat in a darker tint of brown, with matching veil, shoes and accessories. A fur scarf was worn, and she carried her "Sportowne" tailored beige top coat. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm east of Bailieboro.

The young couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts. The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a gold compact; to the best man a Parker pen and pencil set; and to the pianist and soloists boxes of fine bon-bons.

A kindly gesture on the part of the bride's mother and the bride herself, was the gift of the latter's bouquet to Reeve W. E. Ball, who is still confined to bed following a serious heart attack three weeks ago last Friday.

DOROTHY DIX

WOMEN LOSE SELF-RESPECT IN DESIRE TO ATTRACT MEN.

They Doll Themselves Up and Take Any Kind of Treatment.

One of the things the matter with girls is that they do not have enough self-respect and appreciation of themselves. At these words I can hear a derisive shout go up and thousands of voices crying out: "Girls not think well of themselves? Good heavens. Did you ever watch a girl make up her face in public and after she had plastered it all over with powder and paint and lipstick regard the result in her mirror with an expression of raptured admiration and satisfaction that denoted she thought she was looking at one of the world's masterpieces? Girls lacking in vanity? Ha! What a scream!"

Well, when it comes to looks I grant you that the great majority of girls are convinced they are Miss Americas, else how can you account for the fact that they all think they can wear the same kind of clothes and hats and have the same kind of hair bobs? Apparently they never perceive any physical handicaps they may possess. They are convinced that if Hedy Lamarr can look glamorous with her back hair in a bag they can, too and if Marlene Dietrich is an eye full in slacks they would be wows in breeches, and so they go to them.

Far from deprecating girls' belief that they are all cinema material and would be in Hollywood if they got their just deserts, I glory in it. If a woman with a figure like a telephone post can find happiness in admiring her lines, and a fat one gets pleasure out of displaying her curves in a sweater, let us thank God for it. The inability to see herself as others see her is the consolation prize a merciful Providence has bestowed upon many a homely woman that has made her content with herself and saved her from committing suicide.

Their Egotism Collapses.

Girls are chesty enough about their looks, but when it comes to dealing with boys their egotism collapses like a pricked balloon and they become as humble as a worm of the dust. They throw away their dignity as though it were so much excess baggage. They lose all their self-respect in their efforts to attract masculine attention. They fawn on anything in pants and are meekly grateful when it condescends to notice them.

In all the world there is no sight more disillusioning than that of a pretty, well-groomed, intelligent, educated girl out with a lout of a boy who looks like something that had been fished out of the garbage can. She has dolled herself up to the limit to try to make herself attractive to him, but he hasn't even taken the trouble to put on a clean collar to make himself easy on her eyes. She is going through all her bag of tricks, working like a dray horse trying to entertain him. She is being amusing, vivacious, flattering, pretending to have a good time whether she is or not. He is sitting on the back of his neck contributing only grunts to the conversation, his whole attitude being that of the Grand Sultan who has brought along his slave to divert him. Dost recognize the picture girls? You've been the central feature in it often enough to know it by heart.

So little self-respect have girls that they take any kind of treatment that boys choose to accord them. They let boys make them do all the telephoning and make all of the dates and write two letters to their one. They let boys hold them up on dates without the slightest excuse and then let them come back without a word of apology. They let boys come and honk their automobile horns for them when they are going out for a ride and make them climb into the cars themselves without even giving them a hand up. They let boys make them meet them on a street corner or in a drug store when they are going some place together instead of bothering to come to their homes for them.

Have Little Self-respect.

Worst of all girls have so little self-respect and put so little value on themselves that they are willing to sell their good names for the privilege of being noticed by cads who make a girl pay for being taken to the movies and treated to a hot dog by being mauled.

And when you ask girls why they submit to these indignities the universal answer is, "We have to if we want to have dates. The boys won't take a girl out who won't pet, and they drop a girl if she is choosy and particular about the way he looks and acts."

But that's where the girls are wrong. They forget that they are as necessary to the boys' pleasure as the boys are to theirs. No boy can dance by himself. No boy gets any thrill out of taking another boy out to a dinner. There has to be a girl on the other end of the line and if girls would refuse to have anything to do with boys who didn't treat them with respect they would get it, for women have always gotten what they have demanded of men.

That's the way girls acted in former times. They had no trouble about dates and they married earlier than they do now.

Port Hope Boy Is Wed In Toronto

CAVAN, Sept. 21—(ENS)—A quiet wedding of local interest was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Everard McCredie, in Toronto, on Wednesday, when Mary Greenway, daughter of Mrs. Everard McCredie and the late Mr. McCredie of Toronto was united in marriage with Mr. Robert J. McKnight of Port Hope, formerly of Cavan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McKnight of Cavan.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, attended by their immediate relatives. Later they left on a short wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Port Hope.

War Recipes

Since this is Mary's Moore's contribution, and since I dare to call chicken a wartime food I should explain: I feel like Marie Antoinette when she allegedly said "Let 'em eat cake," when the starving rabble complained that there was no bread.

One look at some of our meat counters and you wonder if, since we can't buy beef or pork, the answer is "Let 'em eat chicken!"

This Brunswick method of stewing chicken extends the bird and uses our Fall vegetables in such a delicious combination that you'll never forget the flavor. But please don't let the corn or potatoes in it burn.

BRUNSWICK STEW

Cut a boiling fowl in pieces for serving and roll each piece in flour. The liver, heart and gizzard may be included in the stew. In the bottom of large kettle fry out ¼ lb. salt pork for about 7 or 8 minutes. Over the salt pork put a layer of tomatoes, a thin layer of onions, a thin layer of fresh corn, a thin layer of fresh snap or lima beans, a thin layer of cubed potatoes, then a layer of chicken, and repeat until you have added at least 1 cup of each of the vegetables, and a large boiling fowl. Add 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon white pepper, and fill to cover with boiling water, cover and let simmer for 3½ hours, carefully lifting it from bottom to prevent scorching. The juice leftover (if any) makes excellent soup.

HERBIE MOORES FRACTURES AN ANKLE PRACTISING WITH R.C.A.F.

Air Force Star Out Of Game Rest Of Season

TORONTO, Sept. 21.— (CP). —The Royal Canadian Air Force team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union lost one of its brightest stars during the week-end, when Herbie Moores, former Balmy Beach half-back, fractured an ankle in practce.

Moores was carrying the ball during tackling drill and suffered the injury when his cleets caught in the turf as he attempted to pivot away from a tackle. He was admitted to hospital.

Balmy Beach gained added strength during the week-end when Len Staughton, veteran inside wing of Argonauts, decided to play with the team. It will be his 14th season of senior football and be the first time he has played for any other team but Argonauts.

Kawartha Club Holds Surprise Party

Yesterday was "surprise party" at the Kawartha Club, and the committee went all out, to make the day a real surprise for all players. It all started out as a regular two-ball foursome, and play went according to St. Andrew and Lex Robson, until the players reached the tenth tee. There they were met by Lionel Browne, Ken Symlie and Lex Robson. Each player had to dip into a hat, and draw a slip of paper, on which was written the name of the club they could use on the back nine. If you don't think that arrangement had complications, you should have seen players, putting with a driver, digging their way out of bunkers with a putter, and generally having themselves quite a time. Those who know the 14th green, and the oversized ant-hill in the center of this green, will guess that the committee set the cup half way up the side of the mound. There were some fantastic scores made on this hole, Jules Mercier winning high gross with 18 strokes. Low score on the 14th was won by Al Heckman and Mrs. Lex Robson. Using a driver, Heckman sank a long putt for a 7. Winners on the day's play were:

Low gross, first nine: C. Selkirk and Mrs. V. Selkirk.

Low net, first nine: Dave Price and Mrs. Jack Watts.

High gross, last nine: George Solmes and Miss M. Weir.

Low score, 14th hole: A. Heckman and Mrs. Robson.

High score, 14th hole: Jules Mercier and Miss Doris.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Nick Etten, Phils, and Buck Newsom, Dodgers—Former hit three-run homer in first game and latter pitched six-hit ball to win second contest, in which Etten made half his team's hits.

Mort Cooper, Cardinals, and Claude Passeau, Cubs—Cooper pitched four-hit shutout for 21st victory in first game and Passeau bagged his 19th triumph with five-hit shutout hurling in nightcap.

Gerry Priddy, Yankees, and Lou Finney, Red Sox—Former batted in all New York's runs in both ends of doubleheader, winning first game; latter knocked in all three Boston runs to take second game.

Mel Harder, Indians, and Dutch Meyer, Tigers—Harder hurled two-hit shutout in opener and Meyer singled winning run home in ninth inning of nightcap.

George Case, Senators—Stole his 45th base and made three hits, including homer, to help win first game against Athletics.

Don Kolloway, White Sox, and Bob Muncrief, Browns—Kolloway led winning attack with four hits in first game and Muncrief pitched strong seven-hitter in second session.

John Wyrostek, Pirates—Batted in both Pittsburg runs against Reds, including winning counter with triple in 13th inning of first game.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The first faint stirring of hockey interest in this district comes in the form of a chatty letter from Ken J. Soden, manager of the Belleville Reliance hockey club to this column. Ken sees a four club group for this section during the coming campaign composed of Whitby, Belleville Reliance, Trenton R.C.A.F. and the Petes and suggests that in view of the transportation problem it may be necessary to adopt a single schedule, giving each team three games away from home in the regular schedule. "Bus travel apparently being out, although not definite yet," writes the Belleville manager, "we will travel either by train or cars (five automobiles should transport a hockey team) and it should not be too hard to find that many people who have saved some of their pleasure-travel gasoline." He adds that if the group should happen to be only a three-club affair then a double schedule would be in order.

* * * * * *

As for the prospects for the various teams Ken says that the Trenton Air Force is very hockey-minded right now—"Lionel Conacher has seen to that," he says—and Trenton might surprise everybody this season. They have the call over all airmen at Trenton, Belleville, Picton and Mountain View. As for Whitby the Belleville manager thinks they should be as strong as ever as most of their players still work in Oshawa and the Pickering munitions plant has increased by leaps and bounds this summer. Reliance, he intimates, will have to fill up some of the gaps with 'teen age players who fail to make the pros, big city seniors or the Junior A leading teams. Of last year's Belleville outfit Donihee, Hastie, Bowen, Williams and goalie Major are still available but Coach Mike Rodden has departed from the Belleville scene.

Here is what Bill Walshe has to say in the Whig-Standard about Kingston's prospects in the Ottawa Senior City League: "Kingston's senior hockey opposition will likely come out of Ottawa and include the famous Fliers of the R.C.A.F., holders of the Canadian championship. A Kingston delegation of Bill Watts, Capt. James Sutherland, Wally Elmer, Willard Dodd and this reporter visited the Capital yesterday to interview officials of the Ottawa City Senior League. Kingston's application for entry in the Ottawa circuit was favorably considered by Cecil Duncan, C.A.H.A. representative in the Ottawa Valley, and Len McKinley, secretary of the league. Kingston's hockey cards were spread on the table, face up. It was explained that Kingston would have liked to remain in the O.H.A. senior series, as last season, but long trips to the Niagara peninsula prevented that grouping this year. It was also suggested that Kingston's geographical grouping was toward the east with Ottawa. Ottawa officials agreed that a Kingston entry would add more color and competition to their league and it was suggested that Cornwall be invited to join the Ottawa-Kingston circuit to organize a powerful Eastern Ontario senior series. The Cornwall proposition will be considered later after the Ottawa city teams meet and officially discuss the Kingston entry. If the Kingston entry is accepted, the Ottawa League will likely consist of five teams with the Combines, the R.C.A.F., Hull Volants or now Le Regiment de Hull, Ordnance and Postal Corps. Ordnance was originally reported to have the Colville brothers and Shibicky, the New York Ranger line, but the star trio has not yet arrived in Ottawa and according to the N.H.L. official list of players in the Service Forces they have not enlisted."

A Pitching Classic

Twenty years ago yesterday was a red letter day in the Central Ontario Baseball League when the playoffs between the Petes who had won the first half of the race and Belleville who came home in front in the second half started at Belleville before a huge crowd. That was the day that Chief Williams, left-handed Belleville pitching star, tossed one of the greatest games of his career to hold the Petes to one hit, shut them out and fanned no fewer than 18 men. The only hit was made by the late Shiner Johnston who was first man up in the ninth and slashed a hot drive past J. K. Williams, Belleville third-sacker. The Belleville scorer called the play an error and gave Williams' credit for a no-hitter but it was a sheer gift as Third Baseman Williams had no chance to handle the ball. It was Al Heckman's first year with the Petes and he held Belleville to eight hits, struck out nine and allowed three runs, one of them unearned.

* * * * * *

Belleville scored a run in the second when Swanston made a wide throw to third trying to catch J. K. Williams off that bag and got their last two in the fifth when after Vern Weir had singled and had been forced by Peeny Mills, Harry Mills singled sending his brother to third, J. K. Williams drove a single to left to score the pair. It was the last Belleville hit of the game. The Petes lineup that day was Wolfe cf, Johnston 2b, Swanston c, Heckman p, Kirn rf, Holyman ss, Collins 3b, Long 1b, Shaughnessy lf, Bergoine lf. Three of the team incidentally have since joined the great majority, Herbie Wolfe, Shiner Johnston and Frankie Collins. Belleville had the following batting order: Ross cf, Weir ss, W. Mills c, H. Mills 1b, J. K. Williams 3b, Meagher 2b, Hagerman lf, Casey rf, J. H. Williams p.

Not Gain Enough

Although the Brooklyn Dodgers by winning two out of three games from the Phillies during the week-end while the Cards were breaking even in a double-header with Chicago, gained half a game on the leaders their chances lessened nevertheless. St. Louis still has a lead of 2½ games and the end of the schedule is in sight. The Bums have only seven games left to play and the Cards six. In other words, even if Brooklyn were to win all their remaining seven contests they could not win out unless the Cards dropped three of their six engagements and of course another Dodger loss would make their task almost impossible. The Cards made their half game gain on Saturday when although outhit 14 to 7 by the Phillies, they managed to win out in eleven innings 5 to 4. However, the tail-enders came back Sunday to take the first game of a double-header 7 to 3 with Hughes the winning pitcher and Whit Wyatt the loser. Old Buck Newsom kept the Dodgers in the running by pitching a six-hitter in the second game which the Dodgers took 4 to 2. Mort Cooper who has won more games and registered more shutouts than any other pitcher in either major loop won his 21st victory of the season by holding Chicago Cubs to four hits and blanking them as the Cards won 1 to 0 at the expense of Lon Warneke. The St. Louis club got the only run of the ball game on a typical Card play, a double steal that saw Johnny Hopp slide into the plate with the solitary marker. Fortunately for Brooklyn's chances Claude Passeau stopped the Cards in the second game when the Cubs by getting three runs off Max Lanier in one inning took the decision.

* * * * * *

The New York Yanks spent the week-end dropping two games out of three to the Boston Red Sox who beat them 9 to 6 Saturday by scoring three runs in the 10th and took the second game of Sunday's double-header 3 to 2, coming from behind. Hank Borowy took the loss in that game while Wagner who relieved Terry was the winner. The Yanks won the first game 2 to 1, although they only made four hits off Joe Dobson and Lefty Judd, the latter getting the loss. The veteran Red Ruffing allowed seven hits but the only run scored off him was Ted Williams' thirty-fifth homer of the year. The Red Sox powerhouse is evidently determined to make sure of the home-run leadership for he clouted out his 34th in Saturday's game and is now seven up on the nearest contender which makes him a cinch to lead in the four-master department.

ATHLETES AT WAR

By MIKE GREENSTEIN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

(News of Canadian athletes in the armed forces will be welcomed for inclusion in this weekly feature and should be sent to 'Athletes at War," The Canadian Press, 44 Victoria street, Toronto.)

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP) — The boys of a Royal Canadian Air Force bomber squadron Somewhere in England put on an East vs West softball game recently — with no holds barred.

The East won 27-24 and an enthusiastic station correspondent says "there were so many home runs the scorekeeper lost track after the first 20."

Anyhow, the East took the name of Montreal Beaus while the western boys played under the title of the Western Gentlemen.

From Ottawa we hear that Thain Simon of Brockville, formerly with Brantford Lions of the Junior Ontario Hockey Association and Dominion sculling champion in 1941, has joined the R.C.A.F. and now is stationed at one of the air force's Manning Pools.

Bobby Jones, a prime favorite with Moose Jaw boxing fans and one-time Saskatchewan bantamweight champion, is stationed with the R.C.A.F. at Prince Albert.

Bill Snider, who started playing hockey with the Brandon Wheat Kings and then switched to sextets in Regina and Nelson, before transferring to the North Sydney Victorian in the Cape Breton League, is with the R.C.A.F. stationed at Winnipeg.

A correspondent writes us that Bill is 24 and last season was rated the best centre man in the aforementioned League.

Art Walker, who starred on the Queen's University football and basketball teams and was one of Toronto's best sandlot ballplayers is a pilot officer in the R.C.A.F. overseas.

Cpl. Henry Jones, centre for the Truro Barcats when they won the Nova Scotia junior hockey championship in 1936, is in the army overseas.

Phil Gold, one of the University of Toronto's outstanding basketball players from 1930-3 is a lieutenant in the United States Army Medical Corps now.

Lieut. Jack Hughes, with a west coast regiment overseas, is a former New Westminster Salmonbelly lacrosse star.

Mrs. T. Carew offered her home for the October meeting, and Mrs. Alfred Baithwaite and Mrs. G. L. Tucker are a program committee.

The setting for Wednesday's meeting was the home of Mrs. Earl Waldie, and the president, Mrs. Charles Sandercock presided over the business session. Mrs. M. Davey had charge of the devotional exercises.

The theme of the W.M.S. meeting on Tuesday afternoon was "God in the City Streets," but the program of study dealt more specifically with conditions around the home church as our mission field. Questions were raised regarding conditions vital to church and community relations, by Mrs. D. Bisbin, first vice-president, who presided at the meeting.

Mrs. M. Davey was hostess.

The October meeting will be held on the 6th of the month, one week earlier than usual.

"DEAD ON TARGET!
S-t-e-a-d-y---bombs gone!"

Hurtling along at 300 miles an hour, the Air Bomber directs the plane—aims at the target. Down go the bombs! Right across the target! "Bombs Gone!" he cries, and another crushing blow lands on the nerve centre of Axis production.

These Air Bombers have been trained for months in R.C.A.F. training schools for moments like this. If they miss their mark, their bombers' flights are in vain. Small wonder, then, that the Pilots await their directions at the critical moment of attack.

The Air Bomber is but one of the members of an R.C.A.F. air crew. His job is a vital one, but so are each of the others. Because of their team training and team spirit, these groups of red-blooded young Canadians are scoring success after success in their devastating attacks on the enemy.

R.C.A.F. training in Canada is expanding steadily. More planes, more schools, more instructors are now available. At present applications are being accepted for air crew at R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

If you are physically fit, mentally alert, over 18 and not yet 33, you are eligible. Lack of formal education is no longer a bar to enlistment.

WOMEN TOO—join "that men may fly." Canadian women fill vital jobs in the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, releasing men for air crew duties. Recruits are needed, age 18 to 40, physically fit, with at least High School entrance. Many useful and fascinating jobs await you. No experience needed. The Air Force will train you quickly to take your place with Canada's airwomen. Full information at any R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, or write address below for explanatory booklet.

Giants Are Held Scoreless In 31 Innings

By the Assocaited Press.

An experienced guide, compasses, eye-glasses, or direction finders that will show Jersey City Giants how to reach home plate is in immediate demand by Manager Pancho Snyder of the Giants.

Syracuse Chiefs haven't permitted a Giant spike to cross home plate in the last 31 innings of play between the two clubs and the Giants now trail two games to none in the International League final playoffs.

Charles (Red) Barrett began the dilemma when he blanked the Jerseys in the tie-breaking game for third place on September 10. He took up yesterday where he left off, whitewashing the Little Giants in the second game of the Governors' Cup playoffs. 4-0. It was the second straight shutout for the boys from Syracuse in the playoffs as Clayton Lambert hurled a 1-0 13-inning job on Saturday.

There was thunder hidden in the usually quiet Redmen bats or three of their Sunday runs came as the result of homers. Roland Van Harrington, rookie second sacker, won the contest in the first frame with a circuit smash. Albert (Dutch) Mele insured the victory with another in the eighth inning with one man on.

The teams move to Syracuse tonight for their thind game of the series scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock.

Armed Services Hold Field Day

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP)—More than 4,000 spectators Saturday saw close to 500 athletes, representing all three Branches of the Canadian armed services participate in a huge track and field championship program sponsored by No. 1 Command of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Varsity Statium here.

So close was the competition that only two men gained more than one victory. They were AC2 Jack Parry, former Windsor, Ont., high school star, now stationed at Bellevile, and Sgt. Norman Blais of Ottawa, stationed at Trenton. Parry won the 100-yard dash and the running broad jump, while Blais took the shotput and discus throw events.

AW. Winnifred Rudge, St. Catharines, provided one of the surprises of the day by besting AW. Bernice Martin, Winnipeg, a former Canadian titleholder, in the 75-yard dash for airwomen.

Sgt. Larry O'Connor of Newmarket Basic Training Centre, a former Canadian Olympic competitor, anchored his unit to a neat victory in the 880-yard invitation relay.

Dodgers Split Double Bill With The Phils

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

If St. Louis Cardinals are doing any worrying today it must be about how to get World Series tickets for their friends or how to keep their wives from buying any new furniture before the end of the week.

The struggle for the National League pennant now has been reduced to the point where the Redbirds can clinch it with any combination of five victories of their own or five defeats for Brooklyn Dodgers.

Since the Cardinals have six games left to play, that means they can loose one of them and still win even though the Dodgers capture all eight of their remaining tussles.

There doesn't seem to be much prospect of Brooklyn bagging eight straight. The best they could do against the futile Phils yesterday was halve a doubleheader and all that saved them from winding up even deeper in the rut than their present 2½ games was a truly great pitching performance by Claude Passeau.

The ace of Chicago Cubs pitched a five-hit 3-0 shutout over the Cardinals in the second game of a doubleheader for his 19th victory of the year after Morton Cooper had administered a four-hit whitewashing to the Bruins in the opener 1-0.

Beaten On A Steal

Cooper's feat came in an airtight duel with his former teammate, Lon Warneke, who scattered seven safeties but was defeated on a double steal which brought Johnny Hopp home in the fourth inning. This was the 100th triumph for the Cardinals and Cooper's 21st.

Passeau's performance in the second game gave St. Louis its first blanking since May 24.

Brooklyn was beaten the first game 7-3 and the defeat was all the more humiliating because Whitlow Wyatt, the Dodgers' No. 1 star, was knocked out in less than four innings when Danny Litwhiler and Nick Etten hit home runs, the latter with two aboard. Credit for the victory went to Tommy Hughes, who a week ago Sunday stopped the Cardinals on three hits.

Newsom Wins

Buck Newsom self-styled pennant insurance for the Dodgers, pitched six-hit ball to win the nightcap 4-2 and keep Brooklyn's pennant hopes from dying a natural death. Even so the Dodgers were unable to score after the first two innings.

Today Brooklyn has another date with the Phils at Ebbets Field and the Cardinals return home to Sportsman's Park for the first of two encounters with Pittsburgh Pirates.

Like the headline engagements, all the other major league action yesterday involved doubleheaders and all were divided except Cincinnati's clash with the Pirates. These rivals battled 13 innings in the first game before the Pirates won 2-1 and then they played a 3-3 tie in the second game, which was halted at seven innings by Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew.

The New York Giants' games at Boston were postponed.

In the American League New York Yankees beat Boston Red Sox 2-1 and then lost 3-2 in eight innings when darkness halted play. Gerry Priddy batted in all New York runs in both games, a long fly scoring the deciding tally in the ninth inning of the first affair. Lou Finney drove home all Boston's runs in the second game.

Athletics Close Season

Philadelphia Athletics closed their season a week ahead of time, by a quirk of the schedule but no doubt to the relief of all concerned. Washington beat the A's in the first game 11-9 with a seven-run rally in the ninth, and Philadelphia salvaged the nightcap 2-1 with the help of four errors by the Senators.

Old Mel Harder pitched a two-hit 2-0 shutout against Detroit Tigers but Cleveland Indians dropped the second session 6-5 to leave their dispute over fourth place unsettled.

Chicago White Sox took advantage of four errors by St. Louis Browns to win their first game 6-5, but the Brownies copped the after-piece 4-2 with effective seven-hit hurling by Bob Muncrief.

The Dodgers Saturday beat the Phils 5-4 in 11 innings while the Cards' game with Chicago was postponed. Mel Ott clouted his 28th homer with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to give the Giants a 7-6 victory over Boston Braves. Cincinnati down the Pirates 4-3.

In the American League the Senators swept a twin bill from the Athletics 8-3 and 11-9. The Red Sox took advantage of Bill Dickey's wild throw in the 10th inning to score three runs and best the Yankees 9-6 for their 90th victory of the season—their greatest number in 25 years. Cleveland at Detroit and Chicago at St. Louis were postponed.

Return Race Is Being Planned

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP). — If racing had a Mike Jacobs you would probably be hearing to-day how Whirlaway and Alsab have been rematched for a mile and a quarter "bout" for the year's match race championship.

This one is a "natural" after Saturday's spine-tingler in which Alsab hung it on Whirly by half a lip for a $25,000 pot at Narragansett and, in the fight game, Uncle Mike never lets the gravy grow cold on "naturals."

But Uncle Mike usually sticks to his own knitting. So the chances are the impetus for the return of one of the real thrillers of turf history probably will come from the fellows who are trying to arrange Belmont Park's special "Week of Champions, November 6 to 12, for Army and Navy Relief.

In that case, the return between the $700 bargain baby and little Mr. Big Tail would be the big headliner. And the word to-day is that if matters can be ironed out a purse of $25,000 or higher will be offered to put it on again.

Plain Ben Jones Whirly's trainer, is "hot" for the return shot, although he isn't taking a thing away from the way Alsab hung it on Whirlaway under Carroll Bierman's classy piloting. So it depends on how Al Sabath feels about it.

Right now, however, both horses have a couple of other earlier dates to keep. The Sab still has to convince Shut Out that he's as good a three-year-old as Mrs. Payne Whitney's Kentucky Derby winner. The Lawrence realization during the current Belmont meeting should straighten out all confusion in this division, and Shut Out will be pointing for that one in a $3,000 overnight "prep" on to-day's program.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—One ramed services outfit which has struggled along well enough without the benefit of overpowering publicity is the United Services boxla team from from Victoria....This clubs is in the British Columbia finals with New Westminster Salmon-Bellies, but probably won't get any farther than that....It combines army and navy athletes, most of them boxla stars in civilian life....A couple of the better-known players are George Urquhart, formely of St. Catharines, Ont., and Nibs Chambers, an Owen Sound, Ont., product.

The Mann Cup champions, St. Catharines Athletes, still look best in the Ontario boxla final....Mimico-Brampton Combines, the opposition, haven't quite the polish.... Montreal Shamrocks are getting more opposition than expected from Lachine-Ville St. Pierre in the Quebec final....New Westminster and St. Catharines probably will wind up in Maple Leaf Gardens here about two or three weeks from now, in the Canadian final.

Incidentally:

Lou Davies, visiting racing potentate from the west, informs me that the daily double had its introduction to this continent at Calgary....This bureau said last week it's North American birth was under the auspices of the Quebec Racing Association....It originated in England....Ottawa's football day plans still are on the march, although Rough Riders and Uplands Air Station are the only definite entries so far in the Ottawa City League.

Freddie (Fort William Times-Journal) Edwards suggests that the N.H.L. match the C.A.H.A. grant of $9,000 to promote bantam, midget and juvenile hockey....He argues that these minor leagues have contributed plenty to professional hockey in the past, writes that if the N.H.L. made such a grant Canadian playoffs would be possible in the minor divisions....Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson reports that Jean Pusie, who needs no further identification, expects to play hockey next year....I can hardly wait.... Pin-boys on some Vancouver bowling alleys refuse to set the eavier ten-pins, forcing fold-up of several leagues.

Alsab Defeats Whirly Fools Jockey

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Sept. 21 — (AP).—The little guy who is called the iceman and known as the best "money rider" in racing, was near tears.

Georgie Woolf was admitting to friends that something that had never happened to him before in all his years of booting home winners had cost him his greatest race —the thriller in which Alsab barely nipped Whilaway for the $25,000 Special at Narragansett Saturday.

"For the first time in twelve years," he said, "I had a horse in the air instead of on the ground at the finish. If Whirly had been at the end of his stride, instead of in the middle of it with all four feet off the ground, we'd have won."

Both Woolf, native of Cardston, Alta., and Trainer Ben Jones hastened to add that this wasn't an alibi, that the Chicago Express had beaten their horse fairly and squarely. They'd like a return match if they can get it, although at the moment Jones' plans for the turf's money-winning champion are to start next Saturday in a stake either at Belmont or Havre de Grace.

To explain Woolf's theory, they pointed to the official photo finish of the match, which showed Whirly in mid-air, his head up. Alsab had just completed his stride and up at full length, the tip of his nose extended and just resting on the finish line. It was that close. And the 35,000 who were limp with the excitement of the smashing stretch struggle realized that when Whirly landed, just a few feet after crossing the wire, he was in front of the $700 bargain baby.

"What fooled me," Woolf added, is the length of Whirly's stride. Now, you know some jockeys always count off strides in a stretch. From the three-eights pole to the finish, I'm always mentally picking off those strides just to make sure I'll have it measured right so my mount will be on the ground at the finish.

"Whirly not only has a long stride, but it gets longer as he picks up speed. He changes the stride on you, and that's what made me miss this time."

Drop Two Clubs In AHL Schedule

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. — The American Hockey League, reduced from ten teams to eight, agreed to a 56-game schedule for each remaining club at the owners' annual fall meeting Saturday. It means 28 home contests for each club, against 24 last winter.

Springfield Philly Out

Maurice Podoloff, league president, announced the Hershey, Pa., team had been shifted from the Wester nto the Eastern Division, where it joins Providence, R.I.; New Haven, Conn., and Washington, D.C. The other half of the circuit consists of Indianapolis, Ind.; Cleveland, Ohio; Pittsburg, Pa., and Buffalo, N.Y.

Eddie Shore, whose franchise at the army took over his team's arena, the arm ytook over his team's arena, will serve as manager at Buffalo. Springfield and Philadelphia will suspend operations for the duration.

Grab Up Juniors

According to Podoloff, the league has lost about 25 per cent of its playing personnel to the armed services of the United States and Canada, but expects to make up most of this figure by signing some of Canada's outstanding junior players, or at least those who are not grabbed up by the National League. The season will open October 27 and close March 14.

Five Clubs In League Of Eastern U.S.A.H.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 — (CP).— Five clubs will make up the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League this season and will play a forty-eight-game schedule opening here on November 8. It was announced yesterday following a league meeting which re-elected Tom Lockhart of New York as president. Eight teams participated in 1941-42.

Comprising the loop will be New York Rovers, Boston Olympics Baltimore Orioles, Washington Eagles, and the Curtis Bay (Baltimore) Station of the United States Coastguard. The Curtis Bay Station team will play its home games in Baltimore and Washington, evenly divided between the cities.

On the Coastguard team will be Art Coulter, former star of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and Sam Lo Presti, Chicago Black Hawks' goaler.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP).—If it hasn't been done already, this Dept. wants to nominate Gunder Haegg, the Scandinavian stepper, as the outstanding athlete of 1942.. His 10 world records in less than three months don't sound as good as the 28 Paavo Nurmi hung up in the winter meets in 1925, but Haegg has stuck to standard distances while the boys were clocking Paavo at all the whistle stops such as a mile and seven-eighths....If you're planning to go to St. Looey for the world ssries, better start thumbing now. Scribes heading west from here already are resigned to taking upper berths or worse.

Travveler's Return.

When Edward L. Styles got back home to Strughters, Ohio, after spending 11 months in China and Burma with the Flying Tigers, he was plenty excited, but not over his ventures with the A.V.G.....On th train Stiles encountered Golfer Gene Sarazen and he reported it was the greatest thrill of his life ...."Why," exclaimed Eddie, "that fellow has been all over the world."

Confusion Corner.

Charley Berry, the new American League umpire, also is one of Elmer Layden's prize head linesmen on the National Football League's officials' list....And Irv (Chicago Times) Kupcinet suggests it wouldn't be surprising some day to see him threaten Jimmy Dykes with a 15-yard penalty for coming on the field.

Want Canning Area Schools Delay Openings

TORONTO, Sept. 21. — Ontario Minister of Education Duncan McArthur Friday appealed to School Boards in canning districts to keep High Schools closed until October 5 so students may assist in canning fruit and vegetable crops.

The Minister of Education made this appeal after receiving a telegram from Elliott Little Director of National Selective Service, stressing the urgency of lending student help to canners. Immediate help is needed within 24 hours, Mr. Little declared.

Twenty-seven centres were mentioned by Mr. Little as requiring student help to save tomatoes, peaches, corn, and other perishable crops.

His telegram stated: "Strongly urge all High Schools in canning factory sections of Ontario remain closed until October 5 for co-operation with canners in supplying school labor to the following specific towns: Simcoe, Burlington, Niagara Falls Niagara-on-the-Lake, Grimsby, St. Catharines, Waterford, Welland, Port Dalhousie, Vineland, Port Dover Collingwood, Ridgetown, Belle River, Chatham, New Toronto, Hamilton, Essex, Brantford, Guelph Uicton, Belleville, Peterborough, Wellington, Beamsville, Winona and Tecumseh.

"Due to present labor shortage, your co-operation is urgently required to save tomatoes, peaches corn and other perishable crops. Immediate help needed within the next 24 hours."

Opening date of High Schools, already deferretd two weeks by Provincial Government Order-in-Council, is September 22.

Mr. McArthur stressed that the school boards which delayed school openings until October 5 will not suffer in regand to grants, providing students are aiding canners. Because of the immediate urgency of the situation the Government has not time to act under another Order-in-Council, he asserted.

"The Government of the Province is convinced that the situation is of the most urgent importance," declared Mr. McArthur. "It is counting on the continued co-operation of School Boards and principals in making possible the release of a sufficient number of students as will prevent any serious loss of the food materials which are now available, but which will be destroyed unless an adequate supply of labor is provided."

According to the Minister of Education, certain school boards have already decided to stay closed until the October 5 date or later. Collingwood, on Wednesday night decided to remain closed an additional two weeks he said. In Chatham, the high school will open on September 22, but will release students to help process fruit and vegetables. Similar arrangements are being made in other centres, he added.

"I wish to make it clear that the school boards will not suffer in any way in the matter of grants because of the absence from school of boys and girls whose services are required in canning factories or on farms to help in the acute crisis," asserted Mr. McArthur.

2 Fliers Perish In Madawaska

CALABOGIE, Ont., Sept. 21. — (CP).—Two student pilots from Uplands Airport, near Ottawa, were killed late yesterday when their training plane crashed into the bank of the Madawaska river near Calabogie.

One of the dead was LAC. Arthur Ault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Ault of Ottawa.

Royal Canadian Air Force authorities in Ottawa withheld the name of the other flier, pending notification of next-of-kin.

Calabogie is in Renfrew county 65 miles west of Ottawa.

The plane, a Harvard trainer, was one of a flight of three machines on a routine training flight. When the ill-fated aircraft failed to return to its flight a search was begun.

Meanwhile two Calabogie River workers, William Ropelle and Dominic Clenen, who saw the crash, had sent word here and R.C.A.F. authorities at Ottawa were notified.

LAC. Ault was to have recieved his wings at Uplands next Friday. Born in Ottawa, he attended Glebe Collegiate, and was a well-known football player and skier in the capital.

Sqdr. Ldr. George A. Ault, Assistant Advocate-General at R.C.A.F. Headquarters, is a brother.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXXVI, No. 68 — PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1942

MAIN STREET TOPICS

SERVED ON OTTAWA

Two Peterborough boys served on the ill-fated destroyer Ottawa, which is officially reported torpedoed in a battle with German submarines. Jack Killoran recently discharged from the navy because of wounds received when the Levis sank, was on the Ottawa for a long time, before transferring to the Levis. Petty Officer Bob Middleton, now an instructor, also served for many months on this ship.

VAGRANCY CHARGE DISMISSED

A vagrancy charge against three youths who were asserted early in August and whose case had been adjourned until today was dismissed in police court when the Crown announced that no evidence would be offered.

BREAK INTO HOUSE

During the absence of the family from the city, the home of P. B. Munro, 276 Monaghan Road, was broken into some time last week and a tobacco jar full of coppers was stolen. Entrance was made by prying off the screen from the combination door leading to the rear verandah and then forcing the back door. Apparently the thieves were in search of money for a diamond ring and several valuable watches were not taken.

FALLS DOWN STAIRS

Arthur Devlin, Indian River, sustained a deep cut on his head when he slipped and fell down the stairs leading to the basement of the Silver Moon Cafe Sunday night. He was given first aid by Dr. Herb Young and removed in an ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital. The cut on the head required several stitches to close. Devlin was also suffering from concussion.

POP BOTTLES BROKEN

Sticks of wood protuding from a truck were responsible for an unusual accident in which several cases of empty pop bottles were thrown to the pavement and most of the bottles broken. Mossom Junkin, Bobcaygeon, was driving a truck laden with wood west on McDonnel street. A truck belonging to Gordon's Beverages was parked in front of 176 McDonnel street and as the wood truck passed the standing machine, some of the sticks brushed several cases off the beverage truck. Outside of the broken bottles, the damage was slight.

CAR CATCHES FIRE

As Charle Brown, 232 Edinburgh street, was passing a car parked on George street between Brock and Hunter streets, early Saturday morning, he noticed that the upholstering on the rear seat was on fire and the flames were beginning to lick up the back of the machine. He turned in a fire alarm and the blaze was quickly extinguished. The car was the property of Nicholas De Carlo, 118 Sophia street, who was enjoying a sandwich in a nearby cafe, unaware of the fact that his automobile was burning up outside. A cigarette butt is thought to have caused the blaze.

KNOCKED OFF BICYCLE

Thomas Walling, Sherbrooke street sustained a cut behind the right ear, bruises on the forehead and shock when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with an automobile near the intersection of Sherbrooke street and Highway 28 Saturday. Howard Kemp, R.R. 2, Ida, was driving his car south on Highway 28 and had made a right turn to go west on Sherbrooke street when the automobile and the bicycle being ridden east on Sherbrooke street met in collision. The rider was tossed off his machine and the car, after the collision, went into the ditch. Kemp was not hurt.

YOUNGSTERS HAVE RIDE

A score of East City youths, running in age from 15 to 20, had an unexpected ride to the police ctation Sunday afternoon when police rounded them up, after complaints had been received that they were making niusances of themselves on Hunter street east. The youngsters were allowed to go after they had been given a stiff warning by Sergt. G. T. Puffer.

GIVEN AWARD

For conspicuous first aid service rendered a colleague while on duty, Douglas R. Morton, a C.N.R. fireman was signally honored Saturday when he was presented with a certificate of merit awarded by the C.N.R. Council of the St. John Ambulance Association before more than 5,000 spectators at the Lindsay Central Exhibition.

SUCH VANITY.

Men are always taking cracks at the women for being so fussy about their appearance, but one man Saturday night had nothing on any lady. He was wearing the uniform of a Scotch regiment and the pleats of his kilts were not hanging in quite the right way to suit him, so he stopped and after glancing around carefully, hurriedly arranged the pleats in special folds and then marched on his way.

GETS THREE MONTHS

Arrested in a restaurant Sunday night Max Redmond was arraigned in police court this morning on an old intoxication charge dating back to April and to which he pleaded guilty and also admitted two previous convictions. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., sentenced him to three months in jail. Redmond asked if the sentence could be served at Guelph but the magistrate said that was out so far as he was concerned.

FOUND INS FINED

Five men who entered written pleas of guilty were fined $10 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning on a charge of having been found in in the premises of a bootlegger. These were the first charges under the new section of the Liquor Control Act that have been laid in Peterborough. The men were found in an Otonabee house when provincial police raided the place recently and the charges were laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris.

FEW OFFENDERS

Very few stores showed any lights on Sunday night as the new power saving regulations went into effect. One laundry had a lighted neon sign in the window, just a small one, and two restaurants had window lights on early in the evening, but these were switched off later, probably just a little foregtfulness on the part of the proprietors.

ON THE JOB.

Citizens are remembering without any prompting that to get new tubes of shaving cream and tooth paste they have to hand in an old one in exchange. In a number of the stores Saturday night it was noticed the customers were handing out the old tubes before they were asked for their order.

HOME ON LEAVE.

Company Sergt. Major George Weir, now stationed in British Columbia with the 1st Battalion Prince of Wales Rangers is home on leave. He is a brother of Ldg. Torpedoman Bob Weir, who is reported wounded and in hospital following the sinking of the Canadian destroyer "Ottawa."

PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR.

Starlings are reported to be increasing in numbers according to residents along Driscoll Terrace who have seen the birds going to roost in the willows of the river bed during the past few years. Each morning the birds rise and swarm down river flying low, and workmen going to work have marvelled at their numbers.

NO PARTICULAR RUSH.

Service station owners report there was no particular rush to buy gasoline on Saturday night. Apparently ration book holders in the A category have reached a point in the use of the coupons where they have scarcely enough to keep them going until the new books come in, and therefore very few of them need do any extra driving to use up their quota.

GETS NEW TRUCKS.

Members of the administration and training staff of the Prince of Wales Rangers (Reserve) and the 4th Field Battery (Reserve), returned to their jobs at the Armouries to-day after a special course. The Rangers brought back two small army trucks for training purposes.

New Cafeteria Is Opened For War Workers

Equipped to accommodate four hundred diners at one sitting, Genelco cafeteria opened to-day in the new frame building constructed on the north side of the munitions section of Canadian General Company's property.

The cafeteria is being operated by Industrial Cafeterias Limited, specialists in the field of purveying to large group of factory workers.

One meal will be served daily from twelve to one o'clock for Genelco employees only, but as soon as the staff can be increased, and necessary shift changes arranged, Canadian General Electric employees will also be served, and meals will be provided for the night shift.

According to "Gun Shots," the Genelco weekly sheet edited by Arthur Kittson, employees may buy anything from a cup of coffee to a full meal. Cost of a full meal ranges from 25c to 35c depending on the choice of food. Balanced menus for each day will be posted. "The staff dietitian will make sure that each meal contains the proper amount of calories and vitamins to keep you operating at the peak of efficiency throughout the day."

Smoking is permitted in the cafeteria, "and even if you still think your wife's cooking is best, and carry your own lunch, you may buy coffee or tea here and enjoy it in the cafeteria with your food."

Six To a Table.

The entrance to the cafeteria is on Works avenue at the east end of Genelco office building. Tables accommodate six persons and 400 persons can be served at one sitting. A railing leads directly to the covered serving counter where you may select your meal "from a tempting variety of food."

"The serving counter has a section where salads and desserts are kept cold and one where meats and vegetables are kept hot; tea, coffee, a milk urn, and an ice cream cooler. Used trays and dishes are collected and wheeled away in carts by the staff into the dish-washing room, where a dish-washing machine washes and dries the dishes, leaving them clean and sterile for next use."

The bakery department uses three large electric bake ovens, and all mixing from dough to mashed potatoes is done in a mixer as large as a Buffalo Drill. The salad and sandwich department occupies a section of the kitchen and its equipment includes two types of slicers, a grill, and a twelve-slice toaster. There is a completely equipped butcher shop, and for Fridays, an ice refrigerator for fresh fish. Seven refrigerators, three of them large enough to walk into, keep vegetables, dairy products and meat at the proper temperatures.

All supplies are received in the annex on the lower floor of the building and vegetables are cleaned and stored here before being sent up to the kitchen. The equipment here includes a modern potato peeler and a large walk-in refrigerator to keep vegetables cool until they are required for use. By cleaning all vegetables on the ground floor, no dirt or vegetable peelings are handled in the kitchen, thus adding materially to the sanitary condition of this room. A hydraulic freight elevator connects the lower floor annex with the kitchen.

Only by providing efficient and labour-saving equipment can the quality of the meals be kept up, and the cost kept down. We believe that this the most modern kitchen in Peterborough in the city's largest restaurant, will achieve its purpose. This is a cafeteria designed to serve nutritious meals in appetizing variety at low cost—to keep us healthier to work harder for victory.

Is Held

Edward Haight, 17-year-old Stamford, Conn., highway department employee, is shown at Westport, Conn., after his arrest in connection with the brutal slayings of seven-year-old Margaret Lynch and her eight-year-old sister, Helen. According to Connecticut state police who made the arrest, Haight is said to have admitted luring the pair into a station wagon in Bedford village, and driving them to a lonely spot where the crimes took place.

Munitions Plant Employee Willing To Work On Sunday Providing Not 'Nicked' For Tax

Did you hear the one about the fellow who was asked to work on Sunday in a certain munitions plant, right here in Peterborough, at time and a half, too, and he replied that he was willing provided "they" didn't nick him for the "tax." This smart guy is so ignorant that he did not know the tax was demanded by the government and not by the company, and incidentally it was his contribution, compulsory, or probably he wouldn't part with a nickel, for the winning of the war. At a certain spot where you hear a lot of comment on pay days it might surprise you, neighbor, to hear the squawks, surprise and disgust, too; and then you'd meet the other chap who remembered depression times and is happy to have the money to kick in his share toward winning the war.

But those other lulus down where they give off the general sentiment is that some of the tax money should be spent on an internment camp with enforced labor and not a cent of pay. But, as a last word, try to imagine anybody getting pretty fair money, and 85 cents an hour isn't so bad, and being so stupid as to blame the company for holding back from his cheque the money the government is taking from everybody to pay for this war and its munition plants and also the "sap" breed of squawking workers who certainly do not make friends for themselves by their cheap palaver.

Husband Drops Dead On Dock Beside Totally Blind Wife

BANCROFT, Sept. 21.—(ENS)—A woman who is totally blind had the harrowing experience on Sunday at noon of having her husband drop dead on the dock, half in the water following a heart attack, at a spot that is more than half a mile from the nearest neighbor.

The dead man is John Park, age 68, well-known resident of Ormsby, a few miles south of Bancroft. The Parks have a summer home on Salmon Lake, and on Saturday went down to Beaver Creek dam at St. Ola in their launch. The weather roughened up so they spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. D. King. Returning home on Sunday morning they stopped for a moment at the store and post office operated by C. E. Stephens.

On arriving at the dock, Park helped his wife out of the boat and asked her to wait for a minute while he took out some groceries they had purchased. A few seconds later, Mrs. Park heard a thud and a splash. She screamed her husband's name twice and getting no answer got down on her hands and knees and felt along the ground until she came to her husband's body. She realized that he was partly in the water so she pulled him clear of the lake, and shouted for help. The Stephen's family more than a mile distant heard her shouts, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephens went over by boat.

Mrs. Stephens remained with Mrs. Park while her husband went up the lake a mile, then drove two more miles to the nearest phone. Prov. Constable S. W. Palmateer, County Constable F. Delyea and County Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson went to the cottage and the doctor stated that death had been due to a heart attack. No inquest will be held.

Mr. Park is survived by his widow, one daughter Tressa of Pickering, one son Arnold of Long Lac, Quebec, and two brothers, Mac and Williams of Ormsby.

Gipsy S. Smith Attracts Crowds

Large audiences heard Gipsy Simon Smith, evangelist, at the opening of his week's special services at St. James' United Church. He has had great crowds and success in his meetings this year in some of the great American churches. This is his third visit to St. James'. His appeal is more to the reason than to the emotions. He reminds his hearer that the scripture says, "Come let us reason together" not, come let us get excited together. He has no hobbies, and avoids the extreme methods which keep some people away from special services. Yet he preaches the gospel in its fulness. He declares that we have had man-made revivals, what we need is a God-sent one, and says that the people are tired of the circus brand of evangelism, and the high pressure methods to get converts and money. The evangelist sings his own solos nightly. Meeting will be held till next Sunday.

The following poem entitled "A Mother's Prayer For Her Soldier Boys" was written by Gipsy Simon Smith, whose youngest son is in the Canadian Army:

Hear thou, dear God, a mother's plea,
I make to Thee on bended knee,
My boy I bring to Thee in prayer,
Give unto him thy sheltering care.

I pray for courage, make me strong,
And though the parting seems so long,
When danger threatens to destroy,
May angels hover o'er my boy.

With breaking heart and agony,
In this my dark Gethsemane,
Thy will be done. If this must be,
I will not lose my faith in Thee.

To Thee I come with all my grief,
Give me that peace that brings relief,
And hear, dear God, a mother's plea,
Lord, send my boy safe home to me.

Buttons Given Blood Donors

The Peterborough Blood Donors Clinic has given out the first silver and the first bronze buttons to two men who have given the required number of transfusions. Alan Banks, George Street, who completed his third transfusion today since the beginning of the year was given his bronze button. His two earlier donations were given at the hospital, but all three were given under the auspices of the Red Cross. Maxwell Sherwood, of Toronto, who has been giving a number of transfusions in Toronto, and who is at present working in this city in connection with the Bonner-Worth construction job, has completed his sixth donation, and was given his silver button at the end of last week.

Members of the Red Cross were full of praise for the fine work the two hospitals are doing in handling all the sterilization. The nurses and girls there have to give a lot of time to doing this job, and they do it very willingly, often after a long day's work.

About 50 men were expected to turn up this morning, and before 10 o'clock 22 had already passed through the Clinic. The medical men in attendance were Drs. E. A. Hammond, R. K. Magee, D. W. Clarke, and Prust. Women of Mark Street Church and the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. were in attendance to help with the preparation and serving of the trays

Cannery Secures All Help Needed

Response to Canada Packers' appeal Saturday for twenty helpers in the canning department to finish the tomato pack was "splendid" this morning, according to an appreciative statement from the management.

A little splurge of publicity in the Examiner at the week-end was a rather anxious appeal in the prospect of losing some of the temporary employees, especially girls who were resuming their studies at the Collegiate.

"We really had more women, and also some men, than we expected," the Examiner was told, "more in fact than we could take on, and we did not like, to turn any persons away, although could not take them all on. It is a great relief to us to know that we will now be able to pack all the tomatoes we can handle during the coming week, and that so far as we are able to co-operate with growers there will be no loss of crop."

Weather Balloon's Gondola Is Found

Fred C. Marshall, former game overseer discovered a United States weather balloon gondola in the woods two miles north of Lakefield along Lake Katchewanook a on Sunday afternoon while walking through the woods with Stewart Cotton.

These instruments are sent aloft in a balloon by the United States Weather Bureau for the purpose of recording temperature, pressure and moisture in the air, through which they pass.

The balloon rises to a height of 12 miles, and are often blown many miles from prevailing winds. When the gas is exhausted in the balloon a parachute is released which carries the instrument to the ground.

The instruments may then be used over again, after the recordings have been taken off, and new adjustments made. The one found by Mr. Marshall on Sunday was released at Buffalo on May 15, 1942 at 11.30 in the evening. As the crow flies this balloon travelled approximately 200 miles.

The instrument is being returned to the Buffalo weather station.

School Children Renew Work For War Victims

As a school unit, the pupils of Confederation School of which Mrs. H. B. Jackson is principal, have on many occasions given help to the victims of air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, and looking back over the records one finds that they were actually the first school to send in a donation as a unit, with two classes being credited with the sum of $11.79 on December 14, 1940, just nine days after the fund commenced operating.

It may be a coincidence, or it may be that they are running true to form, be that as it may, their contribution of $14.80 listed in today's receipts for the fund, marks the first that has come in since school re-opened a short two weeks ago.

This donation was raised by them in various ways, a paper collection being responsible for a good portion of it, and then two girls clubs named "The Secret Star" and "The Junior Commandos" respectively, the first of whom gave their fees to the fund, while the latter collected quite a sum. At present the Junior Commandos consists of four girls, Jean Millard, Ruth Armstrong, Dorothy Hotston, and Pat Nixon, and there is reason to believe they will be heard from again at a later date.

On Saturday, September 12, the Cavanville district farmers with Sydney C. Boyles as convener supplied the market stall with donations, and two of today's items are further receipts from this group, which actually makes a total of $12.93 to the fund from this effort, for which credit goes to Mrs. Ira Gillis, Murray McCullough, Vern Hunter, Bill Swain and Norman Trew, for the help they gave in supplying donations of produce.

Violet McKeiver, of 268 Wolfe street, is only a little girl, but she demonstrated she was quite able to do something to help people in need, by securing donations of groceries and selling them to raise $2.00, which is listed in her name today.

Two regular contributors from Norwood are heard from through D. B. Cutcliffe, manager of the Royal Bank and the fund's representative in that place, with the penny box at the King's Hotel adding $3.07 to its previous good record, while the box at the Royal Bank contributed $1.57 in a like manner.

Previously acknowledged	$45,043.06
Box at King's Hotel, Norwood, per D. B. Cutcliffe	3.07
Box at the Royal Bank, Norwood	1.57

Lakefield Couple Have Narrow Escape

Mr. and Mrs. James Millage, Lakefield, had a narrow escape from injury Saturday night when their car overturned on the shoulder of Highway 7, a short distance west of the Central Smith Cheese factory, as they were returning from the Lindsay Fair. It was raining very hard at the time and the visibility was bad. When Mr. Millage found that his wheels were on the shoulder of the road he stopped the car and it turned over on its side. H. L. Garner came along a moment after and helped Mr. and Mrs. Millage out of the machine and drove Mrs. Millage into Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Millage were not hurt and the car was not badly damaged.

Rubber Czar

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, has announced the appointment of William M. Jeffers, pictured, president of the Union Pacific railroad, as the new rubber administrator, in complete charge of the nation's program to end the confusion over both the gasoline and tire situation. Jeffers will be vested with all the authority of the chairman of the War Production Board as it relates to all phases of the rubber program.

Air Post

Rear-Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the bureau of aeronautics who has been named commander of the Air Force, Pacific fleet, a new post just created. The official announcement said "this billet is the most important air command afloat in the navy" and gives evidence of the growing second front against the Japanese in the south-west Pacific.

Bombing Victim Grateful For Parcels

HAVELOCK, Sept. 21.—(ENS)—The following letter was received by Miss Beryl Rice acknowledging parcels which were sent through the Salvation Army:

Dear Madam:

Just a line of my utmost gratitude for the parcel which I have received with your name an address on. As one of Hitler's victims, I am very grateful. Myself and two babes were saved but nothing to wear or use. I am staying at the above address until I have another home. I have received the parcels through the Salvation Army Home and we are still keeping our "thumbs up" until victory in spite of everything. Once again "thanking you" and the kind hearts of our Dominions, I remain,

Your sincerely,

Mrs. B. Batey, England.

Harvest Moon, Dimming Lights

A conflux of seasonal events sets off this week as a broad demarking line between summer and autumn. Monday, September 21, begins the brief period of equinox, a day or two of equal periods of daylight and darkness, followed by the quarter of the year in which the nights progressively encroach upon the days until December 21 when the new solar year of 1943 virtually commences.

Coinciding with the season of the long nights was the government regulations requiring economy in the consumption of electric power, store signs and shop window lights extinguished last night as a means of conserving power for industry. The public naturally understands that home lights have to be turned on earlier during the next three or four months, cutting deeply into the prestn surplus of power from which the war materials factories and other plants are taking increasing loads. This factor imposed by the autumn has prompted the government and the Hydro-Electric Commission to appeal to the public for their co-operation in avoiding unnecessary use of lights, heating appliances and so on, in their homes.

The business section of the city illuminated only by the street lamps and the moon looked last evening as dim as in the early hours of the night when folks are long since in bed, and most of the store signs and lights were usually turned off.

R. L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, said today that the public conformed unanimously to the regulations, but it was too early yet to determine what saving of power would accrue from this community economy of power.

Then, to greet the new season the thermometer dropped to 37 degrees before daybreak this morning, from those heat peaks up in the eighty brackets last week, and a heavy frost welcomed the early risers as they set out for work.

"It appeared to be a light fall of snow as I looked out the window," said a Lakefield man from the Katchawanooka shore.

Frost was on the pumpkin, once more,—of course a different pumpkin, of the 1942 harvest, and gardeners reported tomatoes and peppers and other tender plants were bighted.

"Most of the tomato crop was picked any way," a North Monaghan man said, "and it wasn't a heavy crop, so that loss won't be much."

So, there you have the frost and the harvest moon, the equinox, and the dimming of lights in the business centre of the city, and also at the corner stores, the usual advent of autumn more deeply shadowed by the darkness of Hitlerism.

LOANS

$25 for $1.76—$50 for $3.58—$100 for $7.10

TOTAL COST WHEN REPAID IN SIX MONTHLY INSTALMENTS

No endorsers or guarantors needed—A quick, simple way to get a cash loan at reasonable cost

DO YOU NEED some extra cash? Would you like to pay off old bills as part of your wartime financial program? This advertisement tells about a simple plan which is helping many men and women with their present-day money problems.

Repay out of income

Suppose you need $100 for an emergency or to pay off debts. You get the money in a quick, simple transaction. Then you may repay on a regular monthly payment plan. At the end of a definite time, you are entirely in the clear. The payment plan thus becomes a personal debt-paying program.

The cost of this service is reasonable. Suppose you borrow $100 and repay in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each, a total of $107.10. The cost of your loan is just $7.10. A $50 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $8.93 each, a total of $53.58, costs only $3.58.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit. The principal requirement for getting a loan is a steady position or other source of income. We consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in twenty-four hours or even sooner.

Loans for many purposes

People borrow at Household to pay a doctor or dentist bill, general expenses, insurance, mortgage payments, down payments on homes, old store bills, car repairs, a training course, tools, moving expenses, coal for winter—and for expenses of many other kinds.

You may repay your loan on almost any plan you wish. The table shows how loans may be repaid in 2 to 15 payments. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Look in the table now for the loan you need. See how you may repay out of income.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. Or just phone and tell us how much you need.

Two Women

on her own she got rather a scare. Unknown to her as she started down the Sherbrooke Street hill, a bolt came out of the rig and let one side of the shaft fall and scared the animal out of a year's growth, and he started to run madly down the hill. Mrs. Brand said she did the only thing she could think of and that was to hang on to the reins with all her might, and hope. The horse finally reached the bottom of the hill and calmed down somewhat and some man kindly repaired the damage.

Full of such incidents the driver told of the first day she and her instructor "George" (who appears to be a well-known figure) were out on the route. Every little while the horse kept stopping dead in his tracks and nothing this young woman could do would budge him. After several futile efforts, she was told to wake up and realize that the horse knew what he was doing, because he'd been on the route for years and when he stopped it meant business. They were at a customer's.

Lived On a Farm.

The little Belleville lass, 18, who is not quite as demure as she appears at first, also worked for a short time in the Canadian General Electric She has been in Peterborough about two months, but for her the hometown is still the nicest place to be. She has one advantage, because she was brought up on a farm. One of her customers was very anxious to give her a cat, but as she says unfortunately a boarding house is not exactly the place to store away a pet. This same little lady nearly got the ducking of her life a couple of days ago, and her companions think that maybe she had it coming to her. While she was having a drink of water, she noticed one of the boys bending over and fixing something on her wagon.

"That was too good a chance to waste," she giggled, "and I filled a cup partly full with water and ran over and poured it down the back of his neck. That was nearly the end for me. Before I could move, I was being escorted over to the drinking fountain for a dunking, but he finally let me off."

The two girls say the work is not easy, but being tired doesn't prevent them from having a good time at their hobbies in the evening. When asked what they liked to do most, Mrs. Brand replied that her favorite recreation was "Bingo," and that she was a winner fairly often. Gertrude Rutter said she was all for dancing and roller skating, not exactly a relaxing sport after a hard day's work. But both were disgusted at the mere suggestion that they might be too tired to go out for a good time.

From 7 to 4

The girls go into work around seven o'clock in the morning and they may be through around four or a little after in the afternoon, just depending on how soon they put in their sheets. When they come on in the morning all the bread and cake is piled on the racks and they simply take their list and check off the items and then load the wagons. Then men hitch and unhitch the wagons.

They think that the men with whom they work are really grand. They've been made to feel one of the gang, and when they come in in the morning the boys always yell a friendly hello and do a bit of kidding, but if they need help, the men are right there. So also do the office staff and Mr. James Dutton, the manager, help. He, in particular, takes a very keen interest in their progress and make things as easy as possible for them.

Housewives Co-operate.

As for the reaction of their customers to girl drivers, Mrs. Brand and Miss Rutter laughed as they recalled the amazed and startled reaction when they announced that they were to be on the job regularly. But once the housewives realized the situation, they began to put themselves out to help them as much as they could, and the girls certainly appreciate it. When Mrs. Brand's customers hear her coming in on the run, they are always at the door waiting with the ticket, or else have it ready at the front door, so she will not be held up. Miss Rutter announces her arrival with singing and whistling and has the same results. Both have found that if the women need anything extra, they either send the children out to the wagon or come themselves. All this is a big help to the girls.

The biggest trouble the two have had, although they have it down to a science now, is with the settling in and balancing of the sheets in the afternoon. In a bright cheery office there is a long table with benches, and here the two ladies and the other eight drivers balance up the day's cash in a complicated fashion, at any rate it is to the onlooker. Then they hand in their order sheets for cake, and they order on an average of about five days in advance. The odd time they may err in having too much or too little, but as a general rule, they hit it prett- well.

According to James Dutton, the girls are doing a really good job and the company is more than satisfied with the result of their experiment. As for the girls, they are as thrilled with the work as the first day that they started, and they hope to be there a long time.

Obituary

J. ROWLAND BUTCHER.

I nthe midst of the hustle and bustle of Saturday shoppers, J. Rowland Butcher dropped dead at the corner of Hunter and George streets, around 3 p.m. He died before a doctor could be summoned.

A resident of Peterborough all his life, this 65-year-old man was an employee of the Canada Packers for a number of years, and he lived at 420 Chambers street. He was a member of the Salvation Army.

Left to mourn his loss are a son, Gnr. Wilbert Butcher, overseas, and three sisters, Mrs. W. Bradshaw, Mrs. W. Whittaker, and Mrs. Reuben Castle, all of Peterborough.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street, at 2 p.m. Adjutant Norman Buckley of the Salvation Army, officiated and interment was made in Little Lake cemetery.

National Steel Drive

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP).—American newspapers today undertook a country-wide drive to speed colection of scrap steel necessary for the war effort. Newspapers throughout the country have pledged their help in rousing their communities to a national, co-operative effort in digging through homes, plants and farms for the metal. The drive began in some sections at dawn today, but officially starts September 28 and continue till October 17.

Writing Letters Can Be Made Easy

"Oh, Why Can't I Write Well?"

"Woe is me!" you think. "I try so hard, I use up so much paper, and I just know he'll be bored to death with my letter!"

But wait a minute. Are you sure he'll be bored? Your news may not be much, but he'll love reading it if it's told right—and you can easily tell it right.

Don't just line up facts in little blunt sentences: "Henry and Midge called for us. He drove his old car. We went to the movies."

Pick the high spots and dress them up: "Henry drove up in his car with a HORRIBLE clanking noise. Midge was so embarrassed!"

Another trick is to use the exact word, the "picture phrase." Not a "very good" speech, but "deeply moving" or "inspiring."

As you read your letter over, comb out grammar snarls—easy to find when you know how! "I laid down to sleep," corrected, becomes "I lay down." "Different than" becomes "different from."

Our 32-page booklet has correct forms for common grammar mistakes; suggests topics for friendly letters; helps you find vivid words and phrases for everyday thoughts. Has 24 correct model letters—including business, friendly, social.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps for your copy of "Good Letter-Writing Made Easy" to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIGURING MATCH POINTS

MANY DUPLICATE players do not understand how "match points" are calculated in a pair tournament. Actually it is quite simple, when once the basic principle is learned. Knowing it should improve anybody's game on an occasional hand. In a nutshell, you get a match point whenever you beat another pair. The worst score on a deal gets you zero. If you beat one pair, you get one point; if you beat two pairs, two points; if you beat three pairs, three points, and so on. Consequently, each deal is as important as any other deal, for the same number of match points comes from it. That is the main difference between this game and total point play like rubber bridge—there are no "unimportant" deals.

Pair Nos. N-S	E-W	Plus Score N-S	E-W	M. Pts. N-S	E-W
1	4	920		5	3
2	6		50	2	5
3	1	450		3	0
4	3	980		6	1
5	5		300	0	6
6	7	480		4	4
7	2		100	1	2

That table will furnish an example. It is the figuring on one deal of a duplicate. With North-South not vulnerable, the game bonus, to be added to the value of the tricks, is 300, and the small slam bonus 500. At the various tables, these were the respective results, with North or South the declarer in each case: 6-Clubs made, 6-Hearts down one, 4-Hearts bid and an extra trick made, 6-Hearts made, 7-Hearts doubled and down two, 4-Hearts bid and made six, and 7-Hearts down two not doubled.

Notice how the worst North-South score, of down 300, got North-South pair 5 no match points, how the next worst of down 100 got pair 7 only 1 point for beating one pair, how the next worst of down 50 produced two match points, and so on. Also notice how the worst East-West score, for East-West pair 3, against whom North-South scored 980, produced no match points for East-West pair 3, and so on.

When two pairs are tied for the same score, they split the match points which would have been awarded if they were not tied. Thus a tie for bottom and next to bottom, or for the 0 and 1 spots, would give each a half a point. Likewise a tie for the 4 and 5 positions would give the tied pairs 4½ match points each. If three pairs are tied, at the 4, 5 and 6 spots, they each get 5. Here you have the entire method of match point scoring for a pair game.

Penitentiaries Commission, Church Demand

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 21. — (CP).—The General Council of the United Church of Canada, at its final session here, yesterday passed a resolution urging the Dominion Government immediately to appoint a federal commission on penitentiaries, as recommend in the Royal Commission report on penitentiaries.

Dr. J. R. Mutchnor pointed out Council was only asking the government to do what it promised to do, adding: "The Government made a tremendous row about it and then forget it."

Commissioners agreed Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, the Moderator, should endeavor to arrange a conference of representatives of all religious bodies in Canada to consider how best they can contribute to the promotion of nationa unity in a maximum war effort.

Earlier, Council urged the Dominion Government to pass a Collective Bargaining Act.

In presenting the report of the Economic and Social Research Commission, Rev J. R. Mutchmor told commissioners "the farmer has not had his share of the wealth of Canada, and we must not forget to do our part in aiding him."

The report said increased adult education was needed to enable members of farm families to enjoy the "good life" in the widest sense.

It was recommended the United Church support the efforts of farm organizations to secure adequate marketing legislation, both provincial and Federal, so as to give efficient Canadian farmers at least the protection afforded to other citizens of Canada.

Commissioners declared they favored their ministers' following the Japanese congregations evacuated from the West Coast to their new home to assure them of sympathy.

The Council appealed to the Church as a whole to co-operate with government placement officers in locating British Columbia Japanese in other parts of Canada.

Must Maintain Ceiling Price

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—Ceiling prices established in the basic period last fall for men's and boys' fall weight work shirts must be maintained by wholesalers and retailers. Manufacturers are required to offer the same proportion of garment in each price range. These are provisions of an order issued by A. Bradshaw, of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Costs of manufacturers of these goods have actually increased due to labor turnover and other factors affecting manufacturers generally, and also, in the case of woollen shirts, to an increase in cost of the fabrics. It is estimated that manufacturers' costs are up 15 to 17 per cent. Accordingly the order permits a price increase by manufacturers, but not to exceed 12 per cent in relation to prices in effect during January and February, 1941, on similar lines made in the same way and sold to the same class of customer. As no increase in the price to the customer is permitted, the rise is being absorbed by the trade. Evidently this can be done, as in many instances wholesalers and retailers had agreed to pay manufacturers more than 12 per cent over the quotations in 1941.

The shirts referred to are made from woollens, part woollens, doeskins, jersey, cotton flannel and other like materials. Last June they were subject to an order prescribing various restrictions and eliminations in manufacturer, affecting cuffs, pocketing, buttons, zippers and stitching.

Three French Workers For Each Prisoner

Germany advertises her lack of manpower when she demands three French workers to go to Germany, for every French prisoner released from that country. Loud outcries have been made that Laval by agreeing to the exchange, is selling his people into slavery. The workers, PICTURED ABOVE, were waiting at the station of Compiegne, France, as the first trainload of war prisoners pulled in, under the new exchange arrangements. They are off to Germany. Some of the returning soldiers are seen near the train.

Large Offering Of Poultry On Farm Market

Hens are saving the hides of heifers these Saturdays, a sacrifice that may be more apparent than real for the simple fact that the beef animals are going to be kept until they are well rounded like the calf that was killed for the prodigal's welcome.

The poultry section of the local market has boomed these last few weeks since the scarcity of meat became acute. The supply on Saturday seemed to be even more plentiful than a week ago, and prices were firm—26¾ to 28c for year olds, and 30c to 32c for this year's pullets, and finally 45c a pound for chickens roasted at home and all ready for home. Most of the March to May chickens sold at 32c, but there were some at 30c; and the demand was active.

Butter was in the customers' groove of 38 cents. Quotations for eggs ranged from 25c to 47c. One South Monaghan woman said her prices were 27c to 40c; another from the same township quoted 25c to 43c; another 30c to 40c; and from Emily township, 32c to 47c the dozen. Mediums generally were selling from 38c to 43c, and the extra specials 45c and the "five star finals" 47c.

"I haven't had time to look around hardly since I got here," said one woman, and all she had left at 11.20 o'clock with about half a case of eggs. Selling was a cinch, with no dragging and waiting for buyers like it used to be even a few months ago. Chalk up to the credit of the market the business that is being done in poultry these Saturdays as something really helping a lot of city women who sincerely wish to avoid clamoring around for cuts of beef when they know the market is going to be extremely bare for another month or two.

Kindred vegetables were cabbage, cauliflowers and broccoli. Joe Chimenti had all three, 10-a-bunch for the 'broc'.

Arthur Stinson had some prizeworthy cauliflowers at 15c, 2 for 25c, full sized and a clear white. He said those rains of several weeks ago made a big difference. Gardeners generally had a lot of big cabbage. Stinson prices were: Golden Bantam corn 25c a dozen; tomatoes 35c the 11-quart basket, and 90c a bushel; Yellow Globe Danvers Onions 50c a peck; carrots, 6 quarts for 25c; cabbages 8c or 2 for 15c; grapes 50c a basket.

Potatoes were steady at $1.65 to $1.75 the bag. D. Olan of Cavan asked $1.65 for Cobblers, and Joe Burns had Cobblers and McGregors at $1.65. He says the McGregors are an old variety, but he likes them.

Herb Doig's prices included celery at 2 bunches for 15c; cucumbers, 50c a basket; pickling onions, 20c a quart or 2 for 35c; egg plant 10c; potatoes $1.50; yellow wax beans 10c the quart.

"There's some bitter sweet," said one woman to a friend as they passed one of the outdoor stands. And the reply of the realist was: "But you can't eat bitter sweet." Well, George Benton says a lot of women do buy the red-berried sprays as reminders during the winter of the season that is gone. He gets a supply from back of Buckhorn, and sold all but one bunch Saturday.

Norman Moncrief had a lot of apples and tomatoes, but the Examiner tried twice to get within hallooing distance, and then passed on. Fred Cann from Port Hope says the apple-picking season is in full swing Folks will be interested in hearing that the McIntosh Reds are being picked this week. He had Wolf River apples at 35c a peck, and Bartlett Pears 60c, Cantaloupes from Sidney township were two and three for 25c, and the smallest at 5c each. Turnips were 5c each. Wes Fallis had Ebenezer onions at 6 quarts for 45c.

Pleasant View Gardens from Bowmanville featured Bartlett pears at 60c the 6-quart basket; Patricia blue grapes 45c; crabapples 30c a basket, and that means a lot of jelly for January mornings; Alexander apples 40c; cauliflowers 5c, 10c, 15c each.

Gherkin cucumbers were $1 a basket and the "dill" size 50c, and so as not to overlook it, pumpkins were 20c. Jim Healey of Westwood had Blue Damson plums at 50c for six quarts. His Cobblers were $1.75 and eggs 43c.

Elderberries and wild grapes were also noticed, peppers, spinach and a lot of odds and ends in one of the biggest outdoor market of the year.

Hitler's Munich

the 4,000-pound "block busters" used in many previous massed assaults.

Advices from Switzerland, where several border cities had air-raid alerts, said the detonations of bomb blasts in southern Germany were so great the blasts could be heard far inside the Swiss borders.

One Monster Blast

The sergeant pilot of one great Lancaster who was over Munich for 20 minutes said the city was rocked by one of the greatest explosions he had ever heard shortly after midnight.

"There were no flares just them," he said, "but in this sudden flame the whole city was revealed in a red and smoky light. For a full minute the blaze stayed like that—then black smoke rolled up and hid it."

Other R.A.F. crewmen reported that when they headed for home fires set in the early stages of the raid were "taking a firm hold and spreading.

The Rome radio said British planes also were active over Italian territory during Saturday night, bombing several localities in Sicily.

There was no immediate indication the R.A.F. was over Germany again last night, and British sources said unsuitable weather over the Continent presumably had limited operations to patrols.

No German activity was reported over Britain during the night, but Saturday night a few Nazi planes attacked scattered places on the English East coast, causing some casualties.

Two German raiders dived out of clouds this morning and dropped high-explosive bombs on a residential area in a Southeast coast town, reports to London said. An apartment building suffered a direct hit but there was no immediate statement concerning possible casualties.

German Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist was reported killed Saturday by the Russians. (The Germans denied yesterday that Von Kleist had fallen.)

Southeast of Novorossisk, the Black Sea naval base now in the hands of the Germans, the Russians said two companies of German troops were annihilated in a fierce battle with Russian marines.

Voronezh Battle Goes On

At Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, the front was alive with battle. German counter-attacks were reported repulsed with severe losses for the Germans. In three days, the Russians said officially, more than 3,000 German officers and men were wiped out in one sector.

In the far north, too, the Russians dug at German positions. Forces of Soviet marines, the communique said, landed behind the German lines, demolished 10 bunkers, an ammunition dump and five dugouts and killed 150 Germans.

But these successes were only side clashes to the battle which all Russians watched with anxious eyes, the struggle for Stalingrad.

(The German high command yesterday said briefly the fighting at Stalingrad "continued with unabated fierceness." German dispatches claimed, however, that the Germans had reached the Volga at several points. The action was said to be "narrowing down.")

Russian reports said the heaviest fighting was in the northwest suburbs where the opposing forces faced each other from behind barricades and buildings.

A communique described how one Soviet unit in the streets of Stalingrad destroyed six German tanks, 14 motor vehicles, two guns and seven machine guns and killed 300 Germans.

Other German troops, stalled for days in the drive on the Grozny oil fields at Mozdok, were battling fiercely with the Russians. Soviet cavalrymen were reported to have dispersed a company of enemy infantry.

In another sector of the Mozdok area, the Russians turned back a German attack launched with about 100 tanks, a communique said. More than 200 German tommy gunners were reported killed and 18 tanks destroyed.

It was in the Mozdok region that

Discharged Employees Require Forms Made Out In Triplicate

In regard to the separation proceedure needed by employees in changing jobs and employers letting employees go, William Mellis, manager of the Unemployemnt Insurance Commission would like to draw attention to the following instructions.

The form, which is in triplicate, should be given to the employee by the employer seven days previous to the day the employer's services are to be discontinued, if the employer is issuing the notice. On the other hand, if the employee is giving the notice to the employer that he is leaving, the employee should present this notice to the employer seven days before the day he wishes to leave his employment.

Of this triplicate copy, the employee retains the original copy, which is white. The second, which is a yellow form should be returned to the Unemployment Insurance office immediately after the forms have been issued by either party. The third copy, which is pink, should be retained by the employer for his records.

In the matter of the permit it is necessary for the employer to complete section "C" of the form, providing the person is engaged. It will also be necessary for the employer to return the white slip marked "Employee's Copy" duly completed to the unemployment office. The yellow copy can be retained by the employer. It is necessary that the employee's white slip be returned at once to the Unemployment office so that their records may be kept up to date.

Butter Output Below Normal With Cheese Up Says Ontario Director Of Dairying

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 21 (ENS)—A few of the reasons why a butter shortage was a distince possibility were outlined by Director of Dairying for Ontario, E. C. Lackner, in an address before members of the Campbellford Cheesemakers' Association. Addressing a gathering of well over seventy which was seated on cheese boxes at the local grading station, Mr. Lackner went into considerable detail to show how the increased production of cheese had resulted in diminishing butter output. Thanks to forty-two per cent increase in cheese production in Canada the export Board now had all the cheese it required. "We have as much cheese as we want this year" said Mr. Lackner. Ontario alone had increased its production of cheese by 29.2 per cent, or in round figures 141 million pounds to the end of August. But the province of Quebec has an even better record as the consequence of a slightly different set up in their butter and cheese industry. There are many combined plants in Quebec and also many whole milk plants where it is merely a case of switching from butter to cheese. The Quebec increase was 74.4 per cent by the end of August (for the year). Ontario figures for the month of August indicate a falling off in production by 2.3 per cent and this according to the speaker was principally due to a dropping off in production of 460,000 pounds in the counties from Frontenac east.

Six Million Pounds Less

Of butter, Mr. Lackner said the production decrease was a mere 3 per cent, which doesn't sound very large, but by the end of August this mean't Canadians had six million pounds less than was made a year ago. In Ontario and Quebec alone the decrease in butter production has climbed to 9¾ million pounds but this large figure has been brought down to the 6 million mark by other provinces which have shown an increase. However, the still more important factor to be considered is that despite lower production more butter is being consumed now than a year ago, and it is for this reason that an eventual shortage, which may spell rationing is in prospect. The subsidy was placed on butter with the idea of putting the price on a parity with other dairy products and not to divert whole milk from the cheese factories explained Mr. Lackner, adding that there was some prospect of getting enough to the creameries during the winter to make up the deficit. "It's a big deficit to make up and whether we're headed for rationing or not I don't know."

Quality Poor at First

Returning again to the cheese question the Director of Dairying reminded the cheesemakers and many factory presidents who were also on hand, that quality had been poor early in the season and he attributed this fact in part at least to new cheese factory customers who were not fully aware of the quality of milk required to make first grade cheese. There are more milking machines in operation now than ever before, and this Mr. Lackner saw as another possible reason for poor quality milk. Clarifying this he said, "These machines must be taken care of—washed and sterilized." Undergrades (2nd grade and lower) in Ontario for the first seven months were as follows: January 4.1 per cent; February 7 per cent; March 8.45 per cent; April 8.32 per cent; May 7.88 per cent; June 4.16 per cent; uly 3.78 per cent. Concluded Mr. Lackner, "It looks now as though the undergrades will remain low from this time on, which should bring us fairly close to last year's record."

Milk Testing

Coming finally to his main thought for the evening—Milk testing, which is to be taken over next year by the factories, the speaker presented some carefully prepared figures to show just why the cheesemakers should cooperate. He said there were 624 registered cheese factories in the province of Ontario and of these, 453 had 48 patrons or less, which would mean an average of three additional hours work in testing each month for the maker. Well aware of the opposition which makers from this district were raising to the plan Mr. Lackner went on to say that anybody could do the job once they had some instruction. Turning to the practice of appointing a milk tester for the district Mr. Lackner criticized the working of this scheme which in his opinion had been less satisfactory this year than in former years because some of these men have tried to do too much testing—hurrying the work to make a little extra money." The speaker emphasized that milk testing was not the job of the Dairy Instructor "who has more valuable work to do and will as time goes on have an even more important job than the testing of milk. However, if a group of factories wish to get together and appoint a man to do the work, they can do this, but the factory will have to pay him." He characterized the milk producer's claim that they are afraid to have the cheesemaker do the job as "just darn nonsense." "They trust you to weigh the milk and in making the cheese, so why wouldn't they trust you to make a simple test." As the plan begins Mr. Lackner said that Dairy Instructors would no doubt be called upon to do a considerable amount of check testing until patrons are themselves satisfied it is being done right.

Change Over in Western Ontario

Adding weight to the arguments in favor of the cheesemaker doing the testing was the statement of Chief Dairy Instructor for Central Ontario, J. M. Baine, who declared the same problems had faced cheesemen when the change over was made in Western Ontario. "Now," said he, "we have less trouble in these sections where the testing is done by the cheesemaker than before." He then gave some advice on making and curing adding that the labor situation would continue to be a problem since the larger volume of cheese had to be made with less help and gave a good indication of the amount of work the cheesemaker had to do.

George Parr, Dairy Instructor from Stirling, was of the opinion the Northumberland Patron's Association would cooperate on the testing question by hiring a man to take over the testing, if that was what the majority desired. Dairy Instructor Owen McAvoy of Madoc declared that if makers had to do the testing "we'll have better samples than we do at present," while Instructor W. J. Moore of Peterborough declared that in his view the box question was more important than testing at the present time. Referring to the box shortage in Peterborough county he said "it's a mess." He added that some factories were so full they didn't even have room to turn the cheese over. Affirming this statement George Elliott, president of the Peterborough County Producers' Association, said, "If the Cheese Producers' Association would do something about boxes they would be doing more than protesting about milk testing."

Other speakers at the meeting, which was called by W. P. Moore, president of the Campbellford Cheesemakers' Association, included J. A. Murray, local dairy instructor; Federal Cheese Grader J. L. Irwin, Belleville; Hector Arnold, president of the Northumberland Cheese Producers' Association; F. W. Barnum, president of Rylstone Cheese and Butter Co.; Thomas Fry, former milk tester for this district.

the present ceilings on the prices of meat. Cattle prices at present are substantially higher than the appropriate seasonal level and must be expected to decline this autumn."

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has appeared to be somewhat in conflict with the agriculture department on the beef problem.

Imposition of a sliding-scale of price ceilings on beef, varied seasonally, which was announced two months ago, was expected to provide a regular flow of the existing supplies. Wholesale prices were staggered to bring the producer a better return in the spring, after expensive winter feeding, and somewhat less in summer and fall when cattle are pastured.

This fall cattle raisers find themselves with an abundance of feed and farmers are reported not only holding their cattle but buying new stock, in competition with butchers, to fatten for the spring prices.

MARMORA

Over 250 Attend Shower For Newlyweds

MARMORA, Sept. 21—(ENS). — The spacious Town Hall of Marmora proved none too large on Thursday evening for a party and miscellaneous shower tendered Private Thomas Smith and Mrs. Smith who were married at Stirling last Tuesday afternoon. It is estimated that about 250 persons representing relatives and friends were in attendance.

Frank Leal of Deloro was master of ceremonies. Music for square dancing was furnished by Doug. Jones with Carl MucMullen as caller, while Harold Auger with records and amplifiers looked after the requirements of those favoring round dancing.

Early in the evening a pause was made for the presentation of a set of dishes, and a silver tray to the newlyweds from fellow employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company The presentation was made by Malcolm Hawley, with Coston Paranuik reading the address.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith graciously thanked the donors, and after the luncheon hour which was marked with the serving of an abundance of good things, the large number of miscellaneous gifts were opened.

The gathering then formed a ring around Private and Mrs. Smith and sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

An 8-Cent Raise

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP).—A strike-prohibiting contract granting wage increases averaging eight cents an hour for 78,000 employees at eight United States Atlantic coast shipyards has been signed by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (C.I.O.). The contract sets minimum wages of $1.20 an hour for mechanics and 80.5 cents an hour for unskilled workers.

Labor Re-elects A. R. Mosher As President

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—(CP).—The Canadian Congress of Labor concluded a busy five-day annual convention by re-electing A. R. Mosher of Ottawa, president last night and decided to convene next year in Montreal.

A. A. McAuslane of Vancouver was elected first vice-president, Sol Spivak of Toronto, second vice-president and Pat Conroy of Ottawa, secretary-treasurer.

The convention went on record that it "strongly disapproves of the action of Minister of Labor (Hon. Humphrey Mitchell) when dealing with the hours of work problem in the shipyard industry on the west coast."

A government-sponsored plan providing for continuous operation of the shipyards, with workers getting one day off in seven, led to strong opposition by west coast shipyard workers. A Royal Commission investigated the situation and a majority report recommended the plan be employed. Minority reports by a labor representatives on the Commission proposed an alternative plan of operation six days a week.

Mr. Justice S. J. Richards, who headed the Commission, is scheduled to confer in Ottawa with Labor Minister Mitchell on the situation to-day or Monday.

Resolutions Sanctioned

The convention approved resolutions calling for:

Affiliated locals to study the program of the C.C.F.;

Introduction of compulsory collective bargaining legislation and outlawing of company unions;

Immediateopening of a second front;

Immediate opening of a second tive selective service for the armed forces and the reserve;

Cost-of-living bonus for widowers, old age pensioners and soldiers' dependents;

Exemption of the cost-of-living bonus from income tax;

Income tax amendments to exempt single persons up to $750 and married persons up to $1,250 with $400 exemption for each child;

National health insurance;

Old age pensions increases;

A national housing plan;

A higher corporation tax limiting profits to four per cent;

Support for government victory loan and war savings campaigns;

Curtailment of store hours;

Equal pay for equal work;

Strong support affiliated unions (a phrase in the original resolution providing for strikeaction was deleted.)

The convention also adopted a report of its publicity committee calling for adequate labor and farmer representation on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation board of governors.

WOULD you willingly place too heavy a burden on your wife's shoulders? Care of the family and management of the home are tasks that are naturally hers as a partner. Yet if she were suddenly left without you, burdens that are heavy when shared by both would be hers alone. How could she face them without an income?

There is a way to make sure that she would not have the added, crushing responsibility of earning money to provide the family with food, clothing and shelter. It is to put as much of your income as you can into Life Insurance and to increase the amount as your circumstances permit.

Life Insurance can be arranged to provide a non-cancellable monthly income that will never be uncertain—that fluctuating values or market upheavals can never reduce. Thus your heaviest burden will not fall on shoulders ill-fitted to carry the load.

24 MIDLAND MEN DROWN AS PICNIC BOAT SWAMPS

MIDLAND, Ont., Sept. 22 (CP)—A gay picnic party to celebrate completion of a war contract was turned into sudden tragedy last night when the 75-foot motor launch carrying 41 men of the day shift of the Midland Foundry and Machine Company sank in Georgian Bay with only 17 survivors.

The boat went down swiftly and suddenly after taking water when it came out into the main steamer channel leading to the open bay between Beausoleil and Present Islands.

The boat foundered 1½ miles from the closest shore of Beausoleil Island.

The originally-reported toll of 25 was reduced by one in mid-afternoon today and there was a possibility that three others listed previously as missing and believed drowned were safe.

Stewart Cheetham of Midland was found alive on Beausoleil Island and reports that could not be confirmed immediately reached here that three others also were alive on the island, about eight miles from here. The names of the three could not be learned.

Most of the dead were believed to have been trapped in the big cabin of the power, Diesel-engine launch, owned by Bert Corbeau of Midland, superintendent of the foundry. Corbeau, former National Hockey League star defenceman with Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal teams, was among the drowned.

Elmer Shaw, president of the Company, was among the survivors. J. N. Bicknell, Toronto lawyer and a partner in the firm, drowned.

Shoal Saves Many

Finding of the long shoal that runs for about a quarter-mile into the Bay from Beausoleil Island was credited with saving most of the 16 who got away from the boat.

One of the survivors—his name was not learned immediately—said he had been swimming in the cold water until he was exhausted and was ready to give up when his feet touched the shoal. He called to the others in the water around him and they made their way up the shoal to the Cincinnati Y.M.C.A. camp on the island.

They got in touch with Peter Tonch, superintendent of the Beausoleil Island National Park, who took them in a launch to Delawanna Inn at Honey Harbor, 10 miles across the Bay from Midland and 30 miles by road. The survivors were brought here about nine o'clock this morning.

Corbeau was believed to have been at the wheel of the launch. The boat took some water as it came out into the gap and Corbeau, survivors related, attempted to turn around. The boat took more water then and suddenly it sank.

Germans In Stalingrad Square

R.A.F. Mining To Bottle Nazi Fleet

Big Raiding Force Seen Ready To Strike Convoys

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(CP).— The threat of a big German naval force breaking out of the Baltic to combine with powerful North Sea units already a menace to Allied convoys was given by British observers today as the likely reason for recent intensification of British minelaying in Nazi home waters.

Even when bad weather kept all other R.A.F. forces at home last night, big mine-sowing planes were at work over the German north coast. The Germans said British aircraft were in the Schleswig-Holstein area—(where they might have been mining the seaways off the Nazi submarine base of Flensburg or the great Kiel naval station itself.)

Germany's biggest battleship, the 35,000-ton Tirpitz, was reported yesterday to have left her summer haven in Trondheim, in Norway, now that darkness is returning to the Arctic, and to be stalking the Barents sea shipping lanes to Murmansk.

Reputedly at Kiel undergoing repairs from battle damage are the 26,000-ton battleship Scharnhorst, the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen and the 6,000-ton light cruiser Nuremberg as well as the new aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin, which may be ready for service.

2 Barges Pile Up Cook Is Drowned

EAGLE HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 22 — (AP). — Two barges laden with pulpwood, piled on rocks near Eagle Harbor upon encountering heavy seas in Lake Superior to-day. One woman, a cook, apparently lost her life.

The barges, the Transport and the City of St. Joseph, were bound from Grand Marais, Minn., for Port Huron, Mich. They were in tow of the tug John Roen.

Reports of the Roen Steamship Company of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., which operated the vessels, indicated the tug was safe.

The cook was Mrs. William McLeod, wife of the St. Joseph's captain.

Capt. McLeod notified the Roen Company that members of his crew donned life jackets and, with the exception of Mrs. McLeod, succeeded in reaching shore safely. The crew of the Transport was reported to have been rescued by the Eagle Harbor coastguard. The crews of the barges and the tug totalled about 25.

Something Brewing

LONDON, Sept. 22—(CP). — The Vichy radio reported that nine Flying Fortresses left Gibraltar this morning flying toward the East, Reuters News Agency said.

The broadcast said about 250 planes had reached Britain's "Rock" by ship and air in the last four days and had flown on from there into the Mediterranean war area.

Writer Missing In Far East Fleet Action

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—The International News Service said today it had been informed by the United States Navy Department that Jack Singer, its correspondent with the Pacific Fleet, is missing in action.

The I.N.S. said that its last dispatch from Singer, carried a week ago, described a trip on a torpedo plane that sank a Japanese carrier. The place where that action took place was not disclosed.

Singer, who was born in New York in 1914, joined the I.N.S. last April after serving as a sports writer on the New York Journal and Journal-American since 1939. He applied for a foreign assignment and saw action with the Pacific Fleet on several occasions.

Joe James Custer, 38, United Press correspondent with the Pacific Fleet, was wounded during the first Solomon Islands raids. While he was standing on the bridge, a shell fragment pierced his head just behind the left eye.

Singer was with Clark Lee, AP correspondent, aboard an aircraft carrier in the Coral Sea on Aug. 6, but whether he was missing in connection with subsequent action of this force was not known.

In his long delayed story, released last week, Lee said in part:—

"For Jack Singer, the other newsman on board, and myself, it seems we've been waiting a lifetime. We haven't had much to do, and, although everybody has been friendly, it's been a long hot trip. We've accustomed ourselves to sleeping in the morning, despite planes taking off from the deck above our heads, and having a siesta even when all the ship's guns are roaring."

Praise From Knox

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — "The long chances" which war correspondents are taking to get the news fills Navy Secretary Frank Knox with "a great sense of pride."

Their work, Knox told his press conference today, "is very admirable and creditable to the profession."

The tribute was evoked by information that another newsman, Jack Singer of the International News Service, is missing in action. Singer was attached to the Pacific Fleet.

Knox is publisher of the Chicago Daily News and he related how he had had the experience of having to restrain some of his people. Daily News staffers in London, he said,

Yanks Lose 2 In Epic Convoy Scrap

Torpedo Boat Gets 1st U-Boat Second Off Italian Coast

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—(AP). —The Navy Department to-day announced that two United States merchant vessels were lost in the Mediterranean Sea early in August out of a Malta-bound convoy at about the same time that the British aircraft carrier Eagle was sunk.

One of the American vessels was torpedoed and sunk by a motor torpedo boat at night after Axis air and sea craft had attacked the big convoy almost constantly for three days.

The Eagle, the loss of which was announced in London on August 12 had been sunk the second day.

The other American merchantman was scuttled by the crew to prevent its falling into enemy hands after it had been torpedoed presumably by a submarine.

Killed in the first ship were four members of the gun crew who were shot by machine-guns when the Axis torpedo boat roared in to the attack. There was no loss of life aboard the second vessel, the total complement of yhich was composed of 48 crew members, 14 gun crew members, and 43 passengers. Total complement of which was composed 107.

Saved By Warships

The ships' companies, rescued by British war vessels, eventually returned to this country via England.

"The ordeal (of the convoy) was opened by a submarine attack, which came shortly after the convoy passed through the Strait of Gibraltar," Navy's account said. "Effective counter-measures taken by protecting warships, however, got the merchantmen through without injury.

"The next day, there was another submarine sortie, and dive bombers made their first appearance overhead. As was later announced by the British Admiralty, it was in this attack that the British aircraft carrier H.M.S. Eagle was sunk.

"High altitude bombing was added to the pattern of attack on the third day, and the British tanker Ohio was hit and severely damaged. The story of her heroic struggle into Malta despite her damage has been announced by the British.

"Later on the third day, torpedo planes joined the attack and several hits were scored in the face of spirited anti-aircraft fire.

"As dusk fell, the convoy's course brought it close to shore. Proceeding blacked out, the ships moved silently past the coast line until

Mystery Chutes Scaring Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 22 — (AP). — Nearly 50 State Policemen to-day combed Connecticut woodlands for two parachutes reported on Monday to have been seen dropping. One was said by witnesses to have been bearing a man over the dense forest land; the other carried "streamers."

State Troopers concentrated their search in Rocky Hill and Wethersfield, where, Lieut. Henry Mayo said, evidence of "a suspicious nature" was found in a shack. He refused to amplify his statement.

Officers said they investigated, with results, a report that a parachute was seen disappearing "over the mountain" in Colebrook.

State Police said that the report of a parachutist over Rocky Hill-Wethersfield, some 10 miles from Hartford, originated with a group of youngsters at the National Youth Administration Centre, and Charles A. Hayes, 47-year-old Rocky Hill farmer.

The plane was so high that "it looked just like a hawk," said Hayes and he couldn't tell how many motors it had nor whether it was a biplane or a monoplane.

Extensive Posse.

Taking part in the hunt, besides State police, were Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, army intelligence officers, about 60 youths from the N.Y.A. centre and a company of military police.

Possible explanations for the presence of a parachute over Rocky Hill and Wethersfield were: A black helium balloon was released by the weather bureau at Brainard Field; about 250 weighed parachutes were released over Springfield, Mass. Sunday in a test of that city's civilian defence organizations; 50 weather bureau stations about the country regularly release balloons bearing miniature radio transmitters which are borne to earth by parachutes after the balloons burst.

Hand To Hand Battles Never Halt

Reds Pile Nazis High Before Yielding Caucasus Height

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Red Army troops were declared today to have repulsed German attacks and advanced in some phases of the Battle of Stalingrad and heavy Nazi casualties were reported strewn before a height and a settlement newly-captured by the invaders in the Central Caucasus.

MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (AP)—Battling at bayonet-point in the narrow streets and rubble-strewn squares, [illegible] of Stalingrad held the Germans at bay for the fifth consecutive day, reeling before steadily reinforced onslaughts but surging back again and again and sometimes gaining ground.

Bombs and shells had levelled much of the factory city on the Volga to a battlefield, with every yard contested. Red Star reported street fighting of ever greater intensity and declared that in some cases Germans held one storey of a building while the Russians fought back from another.

It was a battle with bayonets and gunbutts amid heaps of dead.

And even as the battle-grimed defenders held on into the 29th day of the siege and the 16th month of Russia's war, the army newspaper reported that the Germans were using relays of transport planes in their rush to replace losses and reinforce their assault.

Red Army infantry, artillery and mortar crews, carrying the no-retreat defence of Stalingrad into its 29th day, killed 400 Germans, destroyed 15 tanks, 48 supply trucks, two armored cars and two artillery batteries and silenced other guns and mortars, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

It indicated that these represented but a few of the scores of engagements for possession of the battered Volga River industrial city over which the Red flag still flies.

"Attacks don't halt," it said. "Hand-to-hand clashes are going on in the square, on street crossings and in houses."

(The reference to "the square" was not expanded, but it would indicate the Germans were challenging the Russians close to if not at the heart of Stalingrad.)

Five German tanks were set on fire or disabled by Russians in the Mozdok area of the Central Caucasus, the Information Bureau said,

Only 5 Divisions Home As Rumania Stripped To Help Hitler Out Of Morass Deep In Russia

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 21—(Delayed)—(AP).—Reports to Ankara tonight, thus far not supported by direct evidence, described large new movements of Rumanian troops to the Russian front.

Only a few, possibly five, divisions were reported left in Rumania to guard against the alleged possibility of a Hungarian stab in the back while the bulk of Rumania's fighting men are far east of their own frontiers.

The reports said this move followed a long period of tension between Marshal Ion Antonescu and the Germans, in which the Rumanian dictator gradually swung around to the idea of sending a large army to fight deep within Soviet territory.

Hun Hint Stalingrad's Fall Delayed, But Not To Winter

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 21—(Delayed)—(AP).—A German newspaper, the Frankfurter Zeitung, asserted today "the fall of Stalingrad, and therewith the final breaking up of the Russian front, has been delayed" but insisted "it has not been put off until winter."

This admission, following a German claim last week that the finale to the battle was near, was coupled with the implication of exceedingly high German losses.

Premier Stalin's method of resistance to the death, the Zeitung said, had been approved in London because it would extend the struggle and "accordingly higher German losses were to be expected."

The newspaper asserted, however, that destruction of strategic positions in Stalingrad was imminent, after which increased pressure would be brought upon Great Britain.

A Berlin dispatch to the National Zeitung of Basel said the Germans were trying to enlarge a wedge about a mile wide forced into Stalingrad but the Russians "brought fresh units across the river (Volga) by canoe for the counter-attack."

New concentrations of the Russian Air Force and heavy guns on the eastern bank of the Volga also were in use, it said, so "the intensity of the battle even is increasing."

"No one can estimate how many still are living in the city which once had 500,000 inhabitants," it said.

"But if the battle lags half an hour it is swarming suddenly with human figures creeping out of hiding with terrified faces, carrying buckets and trying to reach places in the neighborhood to fetch water for the day.

"Sometimes on one of the small clay ovens which stand in front of every shelter some soup is steaming. But the next hit by artillery drives these poor terrified figures away again from the surface of the ground."

Quick, Sharp List Launch Gone Says Survivor

MIDLAND, Ont., Sept. 22.—(CP)— Albert Miller was one of the survivors of the sinking of a motor launch in Georgian Bay last night when a score or more of men are believed drowned. The men were employed at a Midland foundry. Miller's story of the disaster follows:

Twenty-five of my pals are gone and I don't feel so good today. I'm glad to be alive, but it is something I certainly never will forget.

How it happened I don't know. I was sitting in the stern of the boat talking to Laurie Gouette. It was a swell night and we'd had a swell time. We were on our way home.

Suddenly the boat gave a sharp turn and a list. It went over so far that Gouette and I were thrown out of our seats and slid across the deck until the rail stopped us. We hung on, almost like hanging onto the side of a wall, until the boat righted herself and threw us back into the middle of the deck again. Then she went down like a stone.

There was a bright moon and when I got to the top I looked around. I could see them in the water, all the men who'd been on the trip. There was shouting and yelling. Some of them couldn't swim and were doing their best hanging on to cushions.

I got rid of my pants and other clothing but I couldn't get rid of my shoes. The water wasn't very cold.

Laurie Gouette was away off somewhere. I seemed to be striking off all by myself. They were shouting for help but there didn't seem to be much sense to it. I was saving my breath. I wasn't doing any shouting.

I had never swum more than half

Australia Cuts Public Holidays

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.— (CP).— The Australian Prime Minister, John Curtin, announced to-day that public holidays in Australia will be curtailed, the Australian radio reported in a broadcast heard here by CBS.

Instead of two separate breaks at Christmas and the New Year, workers will receive four days' respite over the Christmas period; Boxing Day, Sunday and Monday. There will be no break at the New Year and work Jan. 1 will be paid at ordinary rates.

Mr. Curtin said that Jan. 26, Australia's national day, will not be celebrated next year.

Tojo Does Some Boasting

Says Japs To Raid Tacoma, Nab Perth, Australia

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)— Korean sources here said last night that Japanese Premier Tojo, in a speech before the Black Dragon Society Aug. 6, had boasted of Japan's plans to seize additional territory in the Pacific and Indian Oceans and to conduct submarine operations against Dutch Harbor and Tacoma, Wash.

The Korean National Front Federation said in a statement its agents had reported that Tojo asserted that Japan would be able to occupy the key islands of the New Hebrides and Fiji groups, southeast of the Solomon Islands, Cocos Island, in the Indian Ocean, and the City of Perth, in western Australia, by next January.

Tojo, the underground report said, also told of "plans of submarine movements on the Pacific coast during the coming six months." Tojo, the reports said, "particularly named Dutch Harbor of the Aleutians and the city of Tacoma, Washington."

The federation also said there was this reference to the possibility of Japanese attack on Russia:

"When questioned by Foreign Minister Matsuoka regarding the Siberian question, Premier Tojo laughingly replied:

"'Do you think the Siberian melon is ripe for the picking?'"

The Korean organization seeks independence of Korea, seized by Japan early in the present century.

Italy Grows Bitter Over Share of Loot

See Laval, Hun Working To Cheat Her—Forced Labor To Spark French Revolt

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 22 — (AP).—A bitter tirade against France by a semi-official Italian publication was interpreted today as indicating Italy's growing dissatisfaction with what she has got out of the Axis and her dwindling hopes of wining any material rewards from participation in the war.

This conclusion was drawn by experienced observers from an article which appears in the weekly foreign affairs journal, Relazione Internationale, and which, though directed at France, lacked any expression of faith the Nazis would support Italy's war ambitions.

The article, voicing a fear known to have been widely held for some time in Italy, expressed belief that Pierre Laval, chief of the Vichy Government, is co-operating with the Germans in the hope of winning the upper hand over Italy and foiling Italian territorial ambitions.

Relazione's viewpoint coincided in many ways with views generally held in United Nations quarters. It made these points:—

1. The "patriotic ideal" of Frenchmen is that France is bound to the Anglo-Saxons in "obstinate opposition" to the Nazi new order.

2. Laval knows this and is co-operating with the Germans, while at the same time trying to maintain American relations so that he can hop an Allied bandwagon if necessity requires.

3. Marshal Petain is too old to be a factor much longer, and Laval doubtless one day will try to succeed him with resulting chaos.

Laval never has concealed that he hoped to use German influence, the journal said, to keep from giving anything to Italy, whose aspirations against France form the basis of her territorial hopes.

The article obviously could be accepted as having had an official nod and therefore as representing Italy's dissatisfaction, with the result of her propaganda campaign this summer for Nice and Corsica.

Reliable private advices are to the effect that Italy hoped to realize her claims after the Salzburg meeting between Hitler and Mussolini several months ago.

That confab was followed by a tour of King Victor Emmanuel of the Italian frontier region bordering France, where he reviewed troops. Italians let it be known that they expected to attain something soon.

But nothing happened. And now informed private sources declare that Italy regards each step of collaboration by Laval as an additional guarantee against Italy.

Widow Weds, Doesn't Know

Sheds Amnesia But 5-Month Hubby Mystery To Her

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 22 —(AP)— The attractive young widow of a retired Binghamton, N.Y., newspaper man related today a story of nearly a year's loss of memory and her recovery from amnesia to find herself married to a man she can't remember.

Mrs. Glory Weller Miller, 25, appealed to the manager of a motor hotel for assistance yesterday after awakening and finding her surroundings unfamiliar. The manager took her to the police station.

There police identified her through a picture supplied by her husband, Henry Miller, a commercial photographer who had reported her missing.

But Miller was a stranger to his wife. She had no recollection of meeting him, of their marriage in Las Vegas, Nev., May 1, or of her life with him since.

The shock which led to her plight occurred Nov. 4, 1941, she said when she entered her home in Atascadero, Calif., and found her first husband, H. Pierce Weller, 50, dead. That was her last remembrance until her recovery in the hotel. She didn't know the United States was at war.

"I don't know what to do," she told interviewers. "I can't stay with someone I don't know. I realize all the evidence indicates I was married to Mr. Miller, but I don't know him. I can't remember even meeting him."

"I'm going to take her to a doctor," said Miller. "I love her and I want to keep her."

DEFENCE OF CANADA REGULATIONS BAN AMERICAN NOVELIST

Ottawa Bans Dreiser Addresses

Author Quits Toronto As Anti-British Views Stir Action

OTTAWA, Sept. 22 (CP)—Theodore Dreiser, 71-year-old American novelist, was understood to be back in the United States today following a brief visit to Toronto during which he was banned under Defence of Canada Regulations from making a scheduled public address there.

Justice Department officials said the address was ordered cancelled because of certain anti-British statements Dreiser was quoted as making in an interview with a Toronto newspaper yesterday.

Under section 21 of the regulations, on which the ban was based, the Justice Minister is empowered to issue an order to restrict in any way the "dissemination of news or propagation of opinions" prejudicial to the public safety or the safety of the State.

Dreiser, who checked out of his Toronto hotel room late yesterday, had been scheduled to address a meeting of the Town Hall Forum Committee in Eaton Auditorium in Toronto tonight on the subject "Democracy on the Offensive."

sition to collaboration of any sort meanwhile has spurred Laval into a series of strong measures.

Many new police officials have been named including the appointment of former Prefect Bouffet of Rouen. Laavl's confident to take charge of Sine Prefecture, which includes Paris.

Observers here said these appointments were made to cope with the stormy period believed certainly to lie ahead when enforcement of Laval's labor law begins.

Petain started to-day on an unexpected trip to Southern France, and there were different reports on the reason. The Swiss newspaper Der Bund said it was not connected with internal conditions, but a Marseille dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Volksrecht Buerich yesterday told of great revolutionary anti-Vichy resentment, extending for the first time to the old Marshal.

Labal's labor decree tsruck at Frenchmen more than any other collaborationist move because this one affected all the people directly. Under this law able-bodied men from 18 to 50 and French women may be drafted to work—perhaps in Germany.

Sabotage and attack supon Germans heretofore in occupied France have been done by comparatively small groups although Frenchmen generally resented and opposed deportations of Jews an dforeigners. These deportations were extended last week to include French citizens.

But through all this the population for the most part held to the view that Petain was doing all he could on their behalf and that violent action therefore was better avoided.

Compulsory labor, however, in the opinion of private observers, will arouse the population as never before.

Eire 5th Column Women Trail Troops

LONDON, Sept. 22—(CP).—The Press Association, quoting an unidentified American officer, said today women figure largely in a fifth column organization trailing United States troops in Northern Ireland. The fifth column, he said, was financed by Germany and its activities carried out by the illegal Irish Republican Army.

Many of the women are believed to have crossed the border from neutral Eire and to have settled in Londonderry, the site of the American naval base.

Quoting the officer, the Press Association said "the Americans have been given a strict "lecture" about the I.R.A. and have been "disillusioned of the idea that it is composed of outlaws fighting English oppression."

Irish politics, according to the "lecturer" who was not named, is being used by I.R.A. agents "to cause friction between the British people and American forces."

Farmer Bests Two Kidnappers

AURORA, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP). — Edward F. O'Connell, 44, frustrated what authorities termed a plot by two young farm hands to abduct his daughter yesterday after he and his wife and her father and sister had been held prisoner in their farm home for several hours and threatened with death.

Sheriff Marcus W. Damisch said the the victims told him the youthful gunmen, both employed at O'Connell's farm, said they were waiting to kidnap O'Connell's 14-year-old daughter, Mary Catherine, when she returned from school.

But, Damisch saiad, O'Connell outwitted one of his captors, Merle Smith, 17, clubbed him into unconsciousness and later with a posse of farmers seized the second youth, Fred Dubay, 16. He said both were charged with assault with intent to kill.

24 Midland Men

Lists, Ships Water, Goes Down.

Al Miller of Midland, one of the survivors, said the boat "seemed to list and ship a lot of water, then it sank"

"I had to swim about a mile to get ashore," he added. "If anyone had told me I could swim a mile I'd have thought they were crazy."

The picnic at Corbeau's cottage near Whalen's Island in the Thirty Thousand Island group was planned to celebrate the successful completion of the war contract. The party left Midland about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, had supper at Corbeau's cottage and started back after dark.

Harbor men here said there had been a moderate wind but only a small swell on the bay. After the bright sunshine of the afternoon, the night was bitterly cold and this was believed to have been a factor in the large number of drownings.

Every available boat of the district was pressed into the search today for the bodies of the drowned.

Corbeau's launch was one of the largest of its kind on the Great Lakes. Before it came into Corbeau's possession, it had been owned by N. L. Nathanson, motion picture company executive, J. P. Bicknell, mining magnate, and E. L. Ruddy who sold it to Corbeau.

Survived Worse Blows

A fast and powerful craft, Corbeau had used it for years to take fishing parties over the bay and it had come through far worse weather than that prevailing last night.

The survivors who reached Beausoleil Island broke into the Y.M.C.A. camp, which was closed for the season recently, to escape the cold. First word of the tragedy was heard here this morning when Dr. T. J. Johnston and Inspector Hugh Gibson of the Provincial Police at Midland got a telephone call that Tonch had brought survivors to Honey Harbor.

Survivors told of helping Shaw, the company president, after they were thrown into the water. Unable to swim a stroke, Shaw was held up until the lucky finding of the shoal.

One Lifeboat Upsets

Survivors said one of the two lifeboats trailing the launch was upset when one man jumped into it from the launch. Tom Davidson of Midland, one of the survivors, told of the boat slanting in the gap as Corbeau changed its course, and of the men aboard being thrown to the one side as the launch dipped.

Davidson was asleep just before the boat went down. He was thrown from his bunk by the list and before he could get out of the cabin the water was up to his armpits. Davidson stripped off some of his clothes and plunged into the bay. In the water he kicked off his shoes and struck out for shore, 1½ miles away.

Among the missing was Ted Contois of Midland, father of Herbert Contois who was burned to death two weeks ago in a house fire in Midland.

Provincial Inquiry.

Provincial authorities arrived here this morning to open an investigation.

Dr. Smirlie Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario; Deputy Attorney General C. L. Snyder and Prof. W. L. Robinson, provincial pathologist, were among the officials sent to the scene by Attorney General Conant.

At Toronto Mr. Conant said an investigation would be opened immediately to determine whether there was any negligence in the handling of the boat.

Attorney-General Conant, in directing Dr. Lawson to conduct an inquest, said such an inquiry would find out whether any negligence in the condition or operation of the boat occurred, or whether any action should be taken to prevent similar situations in the future.

"This question of operation of small pleasure boats has given us some concern and we have considered it frequently from the standpoint of safety and speed," Mr. Coant said. "We have been confronted with the difficulty that they come under the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. We will consider if the inquest makes recommendations whether it is proper for us to make suggestions in their operations."

List of Those Aboard

Following is the list of men missing after the launch in which they were returning from a picnic was swamped and sank in Georgian Bay last night, gathered by District Inspector Cox of the Provincial Police and reported to the Attorney-General's Department:—

J. H. Bicknell and Mr. Dixon, Toronto;

Bert Corbeau, Barney Light, George Todd, Jack Magnus, Norman Robbins, Mitch Maracle, Jack McLaughlin, Lloyd Strong, Buddy Bell, Rudy Ellery, Bert McQueen, Robert Cornelius, Steward Cheetham, Gordon Oakley, Elgin Scott, Harry Gillespie, Ted Contoist, Joe Starch, Albert Bourdon, Art Legault, Bert Mason, Art Bingham, Mose St. Denis. These men are all believed to be from Midland or Penetanguishene.

The 16 men reported safe after the tragedy are: Orville McClung, Tom Davidson, Albert Perrault, M. A. Deschang, Harry Scivgne, Stanley Leclaire, Barney Robbins Elmer Shaw, Gorrie Courette, Basil Sommers, Charles Rankin, Joe Parker, Al Miller, Robert Shaubel, Mort Garrett, Ken Lower. They are also believed to be from Midland and Penetanguishene.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rea Marks 94th Birthday

Member of the pioneer family from whom the name Reaboro derived, Mrs. Elizabeth Rea was 94 years old today. She is living with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Kelcey, 71 McDonnel street.

Mrs. Rea is a daughter of the Copeland family of Woodville, another of the old families of Victoria County. Her brother was the Rev. George C. Copeland, who for a time was pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church about sixty years ago.

Prior to coming to Peterborough, Mrs. Rea suffered a broken hip in an accident, which has confined her to bed.

88 Students Attend Normal

Although attendance in general at the normal schools this year is lower than formerly, Dr. J. Bannister, pricipal of the Peterborough Normal School, said that they were very little lower at the school this year. The enrollment today was 77, with 11 more waiting for admission, making a total of 88 students. Last year the number of enrolled students was 92.

There has been only one change in the staff, and F. B. Smitheram of Toronto has succeeded Maurice H. Park. He will teach Science of Education, social studies and some mathematics. Mr. Park has taken a position on the Toronto staff.

CGE Team Wins First Game Of Playoff 12-11

Pushing over a run in the final innings, C.G.E. won the first game of the Industrial Softball League final series at Riverside Park Monday evening by 12 to 11 from Outboard Marines. It was an exciting battle all the way, with the lead see-sawing. Outboards got off to a flying start by scoring four runs in the opening frame. The Electricians got three of them back in the third and broke loose in the fourth with five more to go well in front.

They were leading 10 to 4 when Outboards went to bat in the sixth but when the first half of the inning was over the score was tied at 10-10, the ultimate losers scoring six runs in a big rally. However, C.G.E. took the lead in their half with a single run and led by that margin until the first of the eighth when Outboards again sewed up the game, only to have C.G.E. win out in their half, after which the game was called for darkness.

C.G.E. outhit the Outboard Marines 21 to 11 but an odd feature was that the whole 21 hits of the winners only represented a total of 24 bases while the 11 blows of Marines were good for 20 bases. For the losers Leether had two triples, McMillan a triple and Collins, Watkins and Heffernan all came through with doubles. For C.G.E. Allison had a three-bagger and H. Jones a double.

Outboard Marines: Collins 2b, Heffernan p, Watkins 3b, English 1b, Metcalfe c, Leether ss, McArthur lf, Woodcock cf, McMillan rf, Garvey batted for English in the eighth.

an hour after midnight. Then stabbing fingers of light from the shore picked them up, and motor torpedo boats roared out to the attack, supported by shore batteries.

"With a rising crescendo of motors, one of these small, deadly craft singled out a merchantman and, weaving and skidding on the surface of the water, sped in to the attack. With machine-guns blazing, it circled the larger vessel. Four members of the gun crew were killed in this phase of the engagement.

The First Disaster.

"A moment later a torpedo opened up the merchantman's port side. Flames leaped skyward. The crew fought the fire until dawn turned the east gray. Then high flying bombers reappeared. A direct hit exploded on the wallowing merchantman's stern and the captain, after destroying the ship's papers, gave the order to abandon ship. The survivors were picked up almost immediately by a British warship and taken to Malta for later passage to England and the United States.

"In the meantime, by zig-zagging and dodging, the second United States ship had successfully eluded torpedoes from both the E-boats and the ever-lurking submarines; but in doing so she had become separated from the rest of the convoy.

"Suddenly a torpedo crashed without warning into number one hold, on the port side. The ship settled at once by the head and appeared to be sinking. Crew and passengers successfully lowered and occupied three lifeboats. They pulled a short distance away and waited developments.

"Several hours later, the vessel was still afloat. A Heinkel bomber flew over, but passed up the crippled ship. Encouraged the crew reboarded their vessel to obtain valuable navigation instruments, and other equipment.

2nd Front Big Pro-Russ Rally Plea As Toronto Greets Soviet Youths

TORONTO, Sept. 22—(CP).—National unity is essential for a total war effort "but you can't have that so long as there is a narrow-minded political party in Ottawa," Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario last night told 18,000 persons attending a total war rally here in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The war presents an opportunity for a greater partnership of Liberals, Conservatives and Labor—all who believe in total war, Premier Hepburn told the rally, at which tribute was paid to three Russian heroes.

"The voice of Canada ultimately will demand an end of this 50 per cent. war effort," declared the Premier.

After welcoming the three Soviet youths — Lieut. Lyudmila Pavlichenko, girl sniper; Lieut. Vladimir Pchelintsev, another sniper, and Nikolai Krasavchenko, Moscow youth leader—Premier Hepburn presented a 30-30 sporting rifle to Lieut. Pavlichenko on behalf of the people of Ontario.

"I hope your present record of slaying 309 Nazis is a mere rehearsal," he said.

The rally, sponsored by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of American, the Canadian Seamen's Union and the United Automobile Workers of America, cheered approval of the sending of telegrams and cables to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Premier Joseph Stalin and President Roosevelt.

The messages to Premier King, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt urged total war effort and the speedy opening of a second front in Western Europe. The cable to Russia assured Premier Stalin everything would be done to speed the launching of a second front and extended greetings to Marshall Timoshenko, the defender of Stalingrad.

Pledge For McNaughton.

The meeting also sent a cable to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of Canada's army overseas, promising him and his men the full support of people in the Dominion would be behind them when they

Record Attendance At Y Board Meeting

At the September meeting of the Board of Directors held Monday evening, the best attendance for years, of member of the board was on hand. Reports were received of activities during the summer with the boys' camp, operated by the Y's Men's Club under J. M. Singleton's leadership, and the Vacation Club as two of the highlights.

Plans for the fall and winter season were presented including the membership campaign commencing on Friday night of this week. The Association has lost 154 members through enlistment in the active forces. It is expected that this loss will be made up by the new members among the many younger men, coming to the city. A noticeable increase in the 17 to 19 year old group has already become a distinct trend. All actviities get under way October 1. The Y's Men's Club commences Thursday and the Friday Night Club immediately following the membership campaign.

29 Men Join Active Army

Since August 24, twenty-nine men have been enlisted for active service at the Peterborough Armories, and an equal number have been turned down because of low medical category, or else have been assigned a temporary category.

Major Claire H. Stuart, recruiting officer, stated he has had a steady flow of men seeking to enlist and many others who have just wanted some information about the various branches of the service, prior to their deciding which branch they wish to enlist with.

The following have been accepted for active service: Arthur Henry Sayer, Peterborough; Vernon Harold Shaw, Campbellford; Henry F. Hutchinson, Gooderham; Elmer K. Mouncey, Roseneath, R.R. 1; Harold A. Rogers, Centre Dummer; George John Neumeister, 248 Charlottle Street; Don Borden Ash, 183 Stewart Street; James Kerr, R.R., Peterborough; Urban Alphonse Crough, R.R. 7, Peterborough; Clifford W. Innes, Norwood; Howard W. Steen, Lasswade; Jacob G. Gill, 31 Water Street, Lindsay; Kenneth Anderson, 487 Aylmer Street; Joseph A. LeBlanc, Peterborough; Douglas C. E. Good, 83 Sumach Street, Toronto; Nelson G. Smith, 13 Eastdale Street, Toronto; Norman Mahaffey, Bowmanville; Harold J. Foster, 56 Queen Street, Lindsay; Gordon F. Bain, 97 Elgin Street, Lindsay; James H. Gardner, Campbellcroft, R.R. 1; Wm. G. Cretney, 10 Greer Street, Belleville; Donald R. Bolton, Burleigh Falls; Samuel S. Bolton, Burleigh Falls; Ernest Byron Foster, 488 Aylmer Street, Peterborough; Edson W. Wegg, Camborne; Kenneth A. Teasdale, Eagle Lake, Ontario; Robert Edgar Barry, West Guildford; P. J. Obituary

MISS JENNIE MOYES.

Miss Jennie Moyes, 573 Bolivar street, an employee of the Colonial Weaving Company, for over twenty-five years, passed away Monday, after a two months' illness, in her 69th year.

The late Miss Moyes was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and came directly from there to Peterborough, thirty-two years ago. This Scotch lady had many friends scattered throughout the community, and she was highly thought of at Knox United church, where she was a member.

Left to mourn her loss are two sisters, Mrs. W. Herd and Miss Elizabeth Moyes, both of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. from the Nesbitt Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street. The Rev. H. J. Mahoney and the Rev. Wm. MacDonald will officiate at the service. Interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Peterboro Girls Injured At R.R. Crossing

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 22.—(Special to Examiner)—Three Peterborough girls serving at the Farm Service Force Camp at Winona were injured, of them critically so, when the car in which they were riding collided with a C.N.R. locomotive at a railway crossing near the Canadian Ohio Brass Plant at Niagara Falls.

The most seriously injured was Theresa Lemaire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Lemaire, Stewart street, who suffered lacerations of the scalp five inches long, lacerations of the face, back and shoulders, and severe concussion. She was in a semi-conscious condition for some time but was reported to have spent a fair night. Shirley Whitaker, war guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. Whalon, Homewood avenue, suffered bad facial and other lacerations and possible spinal injuries. Betty Lou Braund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Braund, Margaret avenue, suffered injuries to the neck which are not serious.

Two members of the R.A.F. P. R. Harwood and Ronald Balston who were also passengers in the car were able to proceed to Hamilton, where they are stationed, after receiving first aid treatment. The driver of the car, Frank Dell, of Niagara Falls, New York, escaped with severe shaking and shock, and has been arrested on a charge of dangerous driving with bail set at $3,000 cash or two sureties of $2,500 each. His wife sustained cuts and bruises.

The accident took place on Sunday afternoon at about 5:30 and the car was driving toward Hamilton. The visibility was good and the electric signal was working but the driver apparently failed to see it and crashed into the driving wheels of the big engine. The car was tossed aside upside down in a deep drainage ditch and completed demolished. The accident was investigated by Highway Traffic Officers Donald Huffman and medical aid treat was given at the scene of the accident and at the Niagara Falls General Hospital by Dr. J. H. Davidson.

Order Is Refused For Steel Doors

Washington has rejected Peterborough's application for rolling steel doors and steel sash for the new incinerator, according to a letter which City Engineer Parsons received to-day.

The request for a priority order was regretfully turned back with an explanation that the steel is needed for war materiatls.

In the meantime J. K. Sheehy has begun the work on the enclosing building with the understanding from Toronto that the big rolling door and also the steel sash would be available. Mr. Parsons said that wooden doors and sash would have to be substituted if the Washington order is the final wond. It is understood that these steel details had to be ordered from a manufacturer in the United States as special equipment.

Elliott To Coach Teams At Queen's

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 22 — (CP). — Bob Elliott has been appointed football and basketball coach of Queen's University.

Elliott will fill the vacancy created when Johnny Edwards accepted a commission as an athletic official in the Navy.

Elliott has played most of his sports in Kingston. He played football, basketball and baseball.

He played baseball in Brockville and Smith's Falls before returning to Kingston to play with the Ponies in the C.O.B. League.

a mile in my life before but on that one I outdid myself. I wasn't tired, I kept on swimming.

Bumps Into Dinghy

Finally I ran into something. It was a dinghy from the yacht, turned upside down with some of the party hanging on to it. One was Elmer Shaw, our president. How he got there I'll never know. He couldn't swim a stroke. He'd told us this before the boat went down. He's been laughing about it. Ernie Robinson was hanging on to the dinghy with him and there was someone I didn't recognize.

We righted the dinghy and bailed it with our hands until it was floating enough to hold us. Mr. Shaw and Robinson got in and I hung on to the side. Just then there was a voice from off to your right. It said "I can't stay up any longer," and this was followed by a yell. It was Stan Leclaire. He had come in near us and thought he was a goner. He let down his feet when he couldn't swim any more and they touched bottom. We were on the shoal that sticks out from Beausoleil island.

Leclair came over to the dinghy and hung on and I walked beside it, pushing it toward the shore. We landed and made for the Cincinnati Y.M.C.A. camp. It is closed for the season but we broke into the main hut, found matches and started a fire.

There were five of us at first, but others staggered in in ones and twos. No one said very much. We were dog tired, dazed and cold.

Pte. Walter Pilling Returns To Kingston

One of the little group of Peterborough boys who recently returned from England on furlough, Private Walter Pilling left on Sunday for Kingston in the expectation that in the near future he would recross the Atlantic.

Private Pilling was in the Old Country two years and four months. He enlisted with the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment, and during his experience overseas was through the period of Germany's heavy bombing of Britain. One of his sharpest impressions of those twenty-eight months was the upstanding courage of the British people, with no evidence of weakening under the German attacks when they were at their height. Private Pilling is the son of Edward Pilling of this city.

Hastings County Leads In Cheese

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 22 — (CP).—Maintaining its reputation of being the leading cheese producing county in the province, Hastings county again topped its sister counties in Ontario in August production. In the eight months ending August 31, 1942, this county produced 7,166,496 pounds as compared with 6,048,000 pounds in the corresponding period of last year. Production in August was 1,603,174 pounds compared with 1,646,395 pounds in August, 1941, but unfavorable pasture conditions was the cause of the reduction.

Famous 'Raspberry' Is Given In Court

His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley was introduced to the Bronx cheer in a police court case this morning when the famous "raspberry" with which the fanatic Brooklyn rooters have long saluted umpires, visiting players and their own beloved Bums when the latter are off color was demonstrated by a woman witness.

A North Monaghan woman had charged a neighbor with assault and the complainant alleged that the accused had spat in her face during an argument.

When the accused gave her explanation of the affair she denied the spitting.

"I gave her the raspberry," said the woman.

"You gave her what?" remarked the Magistrate in a tone of astonishment.

"The raspberry," repeated the witness, and the court still looked bewildered over the term.

"Your Worship has evidently never seen a big league crowd show its displeasure with the umpire," remarked John A. Bradshaw, who was defending the accused.

At the suggestion of counsel the witness demonstrated the renowned Bronx cheer by giving what Magistrate Langley described afterward in his judgment as an "ironical buzzing of the lips."

Magistrate Langley finally dismissed the case, remarking that it came within the section of the Criminal Code which allowed the court to find that the assault was of such a trifling nature that it did not merit any punishment. He said that it was possible that in the giving of the "raspberry" that some moisture might have struck the face of the other woman.

MORE IN A MORNING

"You could get more than that any Saturday morning on Charlotte street," remarked Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman of the police commission at Monday's meeting of that body when it was reported that there had been 19 convictions for parking bylaw infractions during last month with 15 convictions under the Highway Traffic Act and one under the war time anti-speeding regulations.

LAKEFIELD

Minnie Charlton Fiance Shower Guests

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 22—(ENS). — Over one hundred and thirty neighbours met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frankish on Friday evening in honour of Miss Minnie Charlton and Alex Nichols, whose marriage takes place this week.

The house was beautifully decorated with streamers and bells but owing to the warm spell the evening's festivities were held on the spacious lawn, which was illuminated for the occasion.

The first part of the evening was spent in games and cards. Following this Miss Jean Garbutt read an address expressing the good wishes of those present. Ruth Little, Ann Richardson, Ruth Garbutt and Shirley Graham then brought the gifts in large baskets, and Misses Cora Charlton, Hazel Northey, Phyllis Webdale and Mrs. Hilliard Ray assisted in unwrapping them. Miss Charlton and Mr. Nichols graciously thanked their friends for the lovely gifts. Lunch was then served.

Mrs. Charles Frankish, Mrs. Will Garbutt, Messrs. Alex Graham and Russel Little arranged the party.

Miss Pearl Henry left on Saturday for Kingston, where she reported for duty with the C.W.A.C. Miss Henry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Henry, Regent street, Lakefield, and formerly of Peterborough.

Miss Irma Rosborough of Peterborough, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Northey, the guest of Miss Doreen Northey.

Miss Eileen Waterman of Springfield, who commences her new duties on the High school staff here, has arrived in the village and is residing at Woodburn Lodge, home of Mrs. Dora MacMillan, Miss Murietta Jory, of the Public school staff, is also staying with Mrs. MacMillan.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Erskine, Carolyn Ann and Frances Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Grylls spent Sunday in Lindsay.

John David Grylls, who has been assisting his uncle, R. A. Nugent, on his farm on the Lindsay Highway, returned home with them.

Mr. Hubert Brown attended the Lindsay Fair on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coons and Clarence, Jr., spent Saturday in Toronto and Oakville.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Mathewman of St. Catharines, spent the week-end with Mrs. Mathewman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Brown.

Asked whether he knew of any tendency on the part of the government to have its own men cover the news directly, eliminating independent reporting, Knox said the only thing he knew of which might give rise to reports of such a trend was what the Marines are doing.

He said they were taking some younger newsmen and training them for regular combat duty. After engaging in front line action these men are then qualified to write of their experiences and those of their fellows.

"However," the Secretary added, "it's done not for the spot news but to cover the feature stories which we are all glad to read."

Coroner's Jury Absolves Car Drivers

COBOURG, Sept. 22.—(ENS). — Death from a lacerated brain sustained in an accident three miles east of Cobourg was the verdict of the inquest Monday night into the death of 4 year old Edgar Dawn, ward of the Children's Aid, Toronto, who was killed when he fell out of W. L. Littlejohn's car, Toronto, while driving east near Cobourg on Sept. 12. Coroner Dr. W. E. Wilkings presided and Harry Deyman acted for the Crown.

No blame was attached to anyone in the jury's verdict.

Chief Carey was called to certify the jury.

William H. Littlejohn of Toronto, the driver, testified that young Dawn had been adopted by him and his wife from the Children's Aid. He was four years of age.

"East of Cobourg I heard the rear door of the sedan slam. The boy had been riding in the back. I stopped at once and got out to find the boy lying on the highway. The boy had tried to open the door before but had never been able to do it. My other boy can open it. It had been raining that day and the highway slippery," testified Littlejohn.

"The locking catch was in position on the door," recalled the witness.

The next witness was Dr. Fred Blackwell, of Cobourg, who had been called to the child. The child had suffered several fractures of the skull.

"Could the injuries sustained by the child be caused by a fall to the pavement?" asked Mr. Deyman.

"I would say so," replied the doctor.

Mrs. Littlejohn corroborated her husband's evidence in regard to the accident. The Dawn boy and the Littlejohn boy were riding in the back seat, she stated.

Pte. E. J. Fox of Barriefield, related that he was going west in the opposite direction to the Littlejohn car. 'I saw the boy come out the rear left door of the other car. He seemed to cling to the door then fall to the pavement. My car seemed to hit him at the same time that he hit the pavement," testified Pte. Fox.

Sergeant R. Coulson, R.C.A.F., St. Thomas, who was following behind Fox, testified that he saw the left rear door of the Littlejohn car swing open. He observed the child fall out on the road and the boy appeared to fall right in the path of Fox's car.

Motorcycle Rider Spilled In Crash

PORT HOPE Sept. 22.—(ENS).— On Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Walton and Ontario streets, a car driven by Roy Thomas, of Ontario street making a left hand turn caused a motorcycle driven by F. S. Levin, of Montreal, which was following closely behind the Thomas car, to go out of control, the motorcycle clearing the car on the wrong side and coming to rest against the east curb by Hyne's drug store, throwing the driver, F. S. Levine, up against the building. The motorcycle driver was fortunate in only receiving a shaking up and a few scratches.

The accident was investigated by Constable Rafter.

Nursing Reserve To Be Organized

PORT HOPE, Sept. 22—(ENS). — About thirty ladies attended the meeting in the Library Hall at 2.30 on Monday afternoon to hear Mrs. George Dorey explain the establishing of a local branch of the nursing auxiliary emergency reserve in the Canadian Red Cross Corps.

Mrs. Wotherspoon, president of the local Red Cross Society, introduced the speaker, Mrs. George Dorey, district leader of Section 2, C.R.C.C., with headquarters at 621 Jarvis Street in Toronto.

Mrs. Dorey explained how when a reserve is set up for a Canadian Red Cross emergency corps, an advisory committee is appointed and she suggested that a committee could consist of the medical health officer, superintendent of the hospital and the president of the Red Cross branch. A graduate nurse would be in charge of each unit and under her would be local officers who would be in charge of the reserve.

Mrs. Dorey stated that up to the present date there are 4,856 members in reserve non-professional and graduate nurses, although this is not a complete list as branches are forming daily. In Ontario alone the required number asked for is 12,000 people.

Mrs. Dorey emphasized the necessity for Canadian people to strive to become healthier and the need for experienced people during an epidemic.

Only graduate nurses can be instructors and women are trained under graduate nurses for any nursing emergencies or other war disasters that may arise and to help in the matter of home nursing, and first aid should need arise. After the classes and lectures are completely covered, the practice periods will continue for the duration, so that all those trained will keep the practical work fresh at all times.

Mrs. Dorey closed with the words: "We must not slacken, we must all try to do what we can. We may not all have to be used but we must all be ready.

Mrs. M. C. Wotherspoon thanked Mrs. Dorey and expressed the hope that Port Hope would be organized at a very early date.

Tribute Of Georgia

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 22 — (CP). — A tribute from the State of Georgia to the existence of 125 years of uninterrupted peace between Canada and the United States was dedicated to-day at Port Stanley by Fred G. McAlister of London, Ont., president of Kiwanis International.

The tribute, a large slab of Georgian granite, was presented by Kiwanians of Georgia to the Kiwanis convention in Cleveland in June for erection on Fraser Heights at Port Stanley overlooking Lake Erie.

Town Council Reduces Street Lights

COBOURG, Sept 22—(ENS). — Cobourg has taken steps to cut down street lighting consumption, by reducing wattage of street lights, it was revealed at last night's meeting of the Town Council. Deputy Reeve John Westington reported that the Fire, Water and Light Committee, of which he is chairman, had surveyed the town Friday night in company with a Public Utilities Commission employee and had designated between 30 and 40 100-watt street lights in various parts of the town which could be shut off for the duration. Other steps included replacing every 500-watt bulb in the town's lighting system in the business section with a 300-watt bulk and every 300-watt bulb with a 200-watt one. These changes have been carried out.

Deputy-Reeve Westington also reported that the Commission will install the light especially requested for Tweed Street. Two deputations were on hand. James Jones appeared on behalf of the Canadian National Railway to request the permission of council for the railroad to lift 20,000 feet scrap rails which are now lying between the rails on the spur line to the docks. These rails were installed to enable cars to cross the track along Spring Street but, said Mr. Jones, scrap metal is now much needed and as repairs are soon to be made on the spur line the railway thought it might be best to retain the rails as scrap. On motion of Councillor Ed. Morton and Reeve R. Roy Dodge, permission was granted providing the request be put in writing.

Angelo Cortese was present to speak briefly on behalf of his application for permission to install a billiard table and a pool table in his newly acquired premises on King Street. On motion of Councillor Allen Field and Councillor R. T. Love, permission was granted.

As another tag day on behalf of St. Joseph's Orphanage had already been scheduled for this Saturday, September 26, the Chinese relief tag day organizer had a request before council that their tag day be switched to October 10. The change was granted.

Basement Floods.

W. Skitch reported that his basement had been flooded by a blocked sewer, causing $35 damage, and his letter intimated that council would be held responsible. The matter was referred to the streets committee for investigation.

Mr. Karrow, 302 King Street West, also reported basement floods and asked that a big tree be removed to stop the trouble. The matter was also referred to the streets committee.

Mrs. Margaret Wicks, Buck Street, complained of sewage backing up into the cellar, and her letter was referred to the streets and health and sanitation committees to investigate and report.

Clerk Young read a cablegram from ex-Mayor Ewart, addressed to the present Mayor, thanking council for their gifts. The ex-Mayor is with a military unit overseas.

On motion of Councillors Morton and Love, the offer of Charles Jackson to buy 75 feet of land on Chapel Street, west of the F. Cochrane property, for $100 was accepted.

Fish On Tap

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22—(AP).— Mrs. Elsie Joseph splashed out of the bathtub, screamed for her husband and sprinted into the livingroom. Sure enough, there was a fish in the tub. It was about an inch long — just tiny enough to wriggle out of the faucet. The water department declined to comment.

Is Now Chief

Constable Gordon K. Hardy of the Peterborough police department, who has been appointed as chief constable of the Port Hope force at a salary of $2,000 a year.

Gordon K. Hardy Named Chief Of Port Hope

Constable Gordon K. Hardy of the Peterborough Police Department, was appointed chief constable of Port Hope at a meeting of the Port Hope Town Council Monday night. His salary will be $2,000 a year, and his duties will commence at soon as his resignation from the local force is acted upon.

Chief Hardy has been a member of the local department for over three years, coming here from Bobcaygeon, where he had formerly been constable. During his residence here he had earned the reputation of being an efficient and conscientious officer and he has been popular not only among his colleagues but with the public who appreciated the manner in which his duties have been carried out.

At Port Hope he succeeds former Chief Murphy, whose resignation was asked for a short time ago. Last week members of the police committee of the Port Hope council visited Peterborough and interviewed Chief Constable Newhall, Judge Smoke, chairman of the Police Commission, and others in reference to Constable Hardy's standing as a police officer, and as a result he was asked to go to Port Hope last night to meet the council. His appointment followed, and on his return to Peterborough he tendered his resignation from the Peterborough force.

The force at Port Hope consists of a chief constable and three police constables.

Mrs. C. B. Williams Is Laid To Rest

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22 (ENS) —Funeral services for Laura Martha White a life-long resident of this town were largely attended here on Monday afternoon. Born in 1879 the deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mr and Mrs. John White. She became the wife of the late George Thomas one time grocer of this town in 1903 and following his death 28 years ago she subsequently married Clarence B. Williams, her now sorrowing husband in 1919. The late Mrs. Williams was one of this town's leading citizens and during World War 1 was a prominent member of the I.O.D.E. Bemersyde Chapter taking an active part in the work of this organization. In St. John's United Church where she was a life long member Mrs. Williams was for many years active in the Women's Association holding various offices in this group. Failing health during the past four years forced her to limit her activities to this type but she had already long earned her place as one who enjoyed doing all she could for others and evidence of the high esteem in which she was held was seen by the many beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Williams passed away early Saturday morning following a prolonged illness. Surviving her besides her husband is one son, J. E. Thomas of Peterborough and a daughter, Mrs. Stuart A. Anderson of Campbellford and one granddaughter, Laura Lee Anderson, also of Campbellford. Two sister, Mrs. W. H. Ashton of town and Mrs. W. J Davey of Owen Sound also survive.

The funeral service was conducted from the family residence, Inkerman street at 2:30 on Monday afternoon by Rev. G. N. Maxwell of St. John's United Church who spoke of the deceased as a woman who had proved herself a wonderful mother, a good neighbor and helper. He referred to the message of hope that autumn brought: "by the leaves falling we are made conscious of a time in our hearts when they will grow again." Following the service interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. C. W. Palliser, T. J. Craighead, J. C. Birmingham, R. J. Locke, J. C. Anderson, P. C. Denyes. Flower bearers were Mr. H. N. Carr, M.P.P.; Major J. M. Bygott, Major A. T. Linton, Dr. O. C. Watson, Messrs. C. H. Davidson, G. W. Hammond, J. O. Benor, Earl Craighead, W. J. Brady, S. R. Wilson, Alex. MacDonald, H. D. Atkinson, R. A. Connor, J. Gay, Charles Collins, T. L. Diamond, M. B. Sayers Capt. Alex Turnbull, W. S. Wiggins, Walter Head J. A. Irwin.

Among those from out of town attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rouse, Brighton; Miss Betty Giffen, Mrs. Howard and Mr. Walter Head all of Peterborough; Mrs. Fred Barry, Hastings and Miss Helen Gorman, Reg. N., Warkworth.

No Committal Made On Theft Count

COBOURG, Sept. 22.—(ENS). — Evidence was taken yesterday in the preliminary hearing of a theft charge and a forged customs entry charge against George King, former customs employee of Cobourg. Adjournment of the case was made until next Tuesday at the request of T. F. Hall, K.C., counsel for the accused, who pointed out that as Judge German was out of town, it would be impossible to arrange for bail at this time, if the accused was committed for trial. Decision of the magistrate in regard to committal was accordingly deferred until next Tuesday. Magistrate R. B. Baxter presided and Harry Deyman acted for the Crown

The accused is changed with theft of $343 and with forgery of an excise entry while in the employ of the Dept. of National Revenue at Cobourg on or about Feb. 1, 1939. He was arrested on Sept. 14 at McDonald's Corners by Corporal Karl Lockwood of the R.C.M.P., Cobourg.

Main witness was Major D. H. Burn, head of the Cobourg customs office, who testified that King was cashier and computing clerk at the time of the alleged offense. He stated that King had handled a remittance by cheque for the amount of $612.72 the remitter being a Colborne packing company. The entry which was made in the cash book on Feb. 1, 1939, was only $269.72, however, stated Major Burn, producing the book in question.

Similarly in the tax sale register an entry was made for $269.72, Major Burn saiad, which the latter changed to $612.72 on instructions from Ottawa. Another book produced in court showed a payment of $333 on Feb. 1, 1939, by a coal firm but there was no entry on the deposit slip for that day showing that the money had been deposited, it was testified. On the deposit slip produced for the bank files and identified by the bank manager, A. C. Hodgetts, was the packing company cheque or $612.72. Major Burn also testified that the duplicate book of deposit slips which contained the carbon copy of the day's deposit was missing.

The Crown produced in court an envelope said to be that in which R. R. Joslin of the packing company had maialed three copies of his December excise statement along with a marked cheque for $612.72. Because the cheque arrived a day past the 30 day limit, the envelope, although postmarked Jan. 31, was preserved by Major Burn.

Joslin testified, that his firm makes monthly returns on sales tax collected during the previous month. He said that he sends a certified cheque to cover the total, plus three statements of which two were sworn to. He produced the unsworn statemen submitted by him to the Cobourg customs on Jan. 31, 1939. This had been receipted, allegedly by King, and returned to him by mail. The certified cheque was also produced and identified by Joslin. This and the unsworn statement which was returned receipted to him, were both made out for $612.72, he testified.

Produced in court was a tax return filled out for $269.72, supposedly in the handwriting of Joslin and supposedly sworn to be the village clerk of Colborne, H. S. Keyes. This return was supposedly for the month of December, 1938, the same month for which Joslin had his receipted statement for $612.72.

"That is not my handwriting or signature," declared Joslin to the court on being shown the document containing the figures for $269.72.

Mr. Keyes also denied that it was his signature on the same excise tax form.

F. R. Budden, Belleville, excise tax auditor, said that he had audited the books of the packing company in April of 1941 and had discovered a discrepancy between the receipt for $612.72 and the figures obtained from the books at the customs house in Cobourg. The discrepancy amounted to $343, he stated.

Indians Upset

NEW DELHI, Sept. 22—(CP-Reuters).—The working committee of the All-India Nationalist League today adopted a resolution which viewed with grave concern the "growing deterioration of the international situation." The resolution also deplored the Congress Party's mass action and condemned acts of sabotage and violence.

It called for complete Indianization of the Viceroy's Executive Council, leaving control of the armed forces in the hands of the commander-in-chief and restoration of provincial autonomy in the provinces.

PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & July or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Council Names New Chief Constable

PORT HOPE, Sept. 22 (ENS) — The regular meeting of the Port Hope town council was held on Monday night with all members present and Mayor Sherman Gifford in the chair.

A letter was read from the Dominion Bridge Co, in which Dr. Cunningham advised that equipment to look after the smoke and odor from the Eldorado Radium Refinery factory, which has been a source of great inconvenience and discomfort to the residents of the town, and especially to those in the vicinity of refinery, is now ready and available from a Montreal firm, but the date of installation of same is not yet available.

A letter was read from a hotel manager on Main street referring to the noise of trucks back-firing on the hill being an interference with guests at his hotel and suggesting that the council take action in trying to divert this transport truck traffic around the Dale highway after 12 p.m.

The council was addressed by members of the street employees, asking for an increase of 5c an hour, making a 45c rate, and a 44 hour a week guarantee, which was turned over to the Street and Bridge committee and Financial committee to bring in findings at next meeting.

A resolution was passed that Russell Lowe be appointed to fill the vacancy due to the resignation of Roy Dayman as mechanic on Fire Truck.

Mr. Martin assured the meeting that a telephone was ordered to be installed at the pumping station.

Members of the council referred to the darkness of the town, and it was stated that Mr. Coleman had asked for a 20% reduction on street lighting and more might be necessary. Several places where lights were necessary were suggested, the main one of these being the foot of Walton street where a flasher was suggested, and the matter was turned over to the police committee to be dealt with immediately.

Mr. Berry addressed the council in regard to drainage on his property, and the mayor asked all members of council to meet at this property on Tuesday night.

In regard to the suggestion of the Canadian Legion to re-instate guards on the Viaduct, the mayor informed the council that this matter was discussed with officials in Toronto and he was advised that this was a matter for the Dominion government.

The Salvation Army was granted permission for a tag day on October 3rd.

Councillor Thompson reported that although applications had not been called some half a dozen applications for Chief of Police had been received, and Constable Gordon K. Hardy of the Peterborough City police was named to the vacancy. A resolution was passed accepting the resignation of Chief Thomas Murphy.

The mayor stated that Councillor Moore would bring in a by-law at the next council meeting to call for the ringing of a curfew to bring young people off the streets at a stated time. This also is a result of the shortage of Hydro and poor lighting facilities.

Mayor Gifford presented to the members of the council a new gavel of teakwood, presented to the mayor and council of Port Hope by Lieut. W. R. Turner and members of the crew of the H.M.C.S. Port Hope minesweeper.

Burglar Complains

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(AP). — Arthur Cooney, 26, roused from a Central Park bench, told police he had been robbed of a suitcase full of clothing while he slept. As Cooney described the clothing, Detective Peter Naton thought it more than coincidence the description fitted a list he had just obtained of goods stolen from a nearby apartment. Arrested, Cooney complained: "I burglarize a house and somebody robs me."

Gore's Landing Red Cross Group Elects Leaders

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 22.— (ENS)—The first autumn meeting of Red Cross members was held in the Public Library on Friday afternoon. Around 15 ladies attended and worked during the afternoon on knitting and winding wool.

Mrs. Harry Hastings who has been a faithful and efficient convener since the Red Cross knitting circle was formed, resigned from this position as she is leaving shortly for Toronto.

The committee appointed at this meeting were Miss Emily Pratt, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Milton Ames, in charge of wool and knitted articles; Mrs. Melville Harris, in charge of sewing; Mrs. Joe Harris, in charge of quilts; Misses Mary Gordon, Emily Pratt and Mrs. George Harris, buying committee for all wool and materials.

Mrs. Joe Harris moved a vote of thanks for Mrs. Hastings excellent work as convener of Red Cross.

The financial report was most encouraging, with cash on hand September 19, $72.07. To date $5.79 has been spent for articles for the ditty bags and these are not finished.

The next meeting of the Red Cross will be held in two weeks' time.

Crew Picket Ship After Rates Cut

A WEST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 22 (CP)—Officials of the Canadian Seafarers' Association said yesterday that a picket line was thrown around a ship in this port recently after the prevailing rate of $45 for war risk indemnity had been cut to $25.

The officials charged they were notified by owners of the ship that the National War Labor Board had issued instructions they were to receive only $25 war risk indemnity in future, and that this had been confirmed by R. H. Neilson, Ottawa, official in charge, after the men refused to sign on.

They said the crew was then discharged without notice by the company and that they applied to the Unemployment Insurance Commission for seven days notice, which was refused them.

They said that an American crew was brought in and the Canadian crew then established a picket line which they maintained until the ship sailed.

Plaque To Francoeur

QUEBEC, Sept. 22 — (CP). — Premier Adelard Godbout will unveil a memorial plaque to Louis Francouer, well-known French-Canadian journalist, who was killed in an automobile accident last year. The plate, which will be hung in the Press Gallery of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, will be unveiled on September 23.

Professional Pessimism

At a meeting held recently in Toronto Professor Watson Kirkconnell of McMaster University made a speech which attracted considerable attention, as it was out of line with the optimistic sentiments which we are accustomed to hear expressed about the future of Canada. Our country, said he, would shortly reach saturation point in its population. Only ten per cent. of our area is suitable for settlement, and there is comparatively little room left for newcomers. Furthermore, according to Professor Kirkconnell, the percentage of Anglo-Saxons in our population is decreasing, for at present the increase in Anglo-Saxon population is only 25 per cent. to the 75 per cent. increase in the non-Anglo-Saxon population. This can only be set right if Anglo-Saxon Canadian families produce four children each, at the least. Altogether the picture which the professor draws is not a particularly pleasing one to those who would keep Canada British, and who would see her grow to greatness.

We are not ourself especially alarmed. Professor Kirkconnell is a man of brilliant and versatile mind and he has made a careful study of the problem of population in this country, and there is no doubt that, according to statistics and rules, he is quite right in what he says. But history is strangely impatient of statistics and rules, and things rarely work out as the statisticians tell us they will. We are still at the beginning of what may be known to history as the Age of Science, and old rules about population may soon be discarded, and old ideas about what land is habitable and what is not may go by the board.

Few things are inevitable. Too many Canadians think that because our country is big and rich it must inevitably become great. Professor Kirkconnell thinks that because certain conditions exist now certain other conditions must come about in the future. Nature is doubtless logical, but it is certain that she is not logical according to any rules known to man, and we gravely doubt if either the excessive optimism of the first group, or the pessimism of Professor Kirkconnell will be justified by the future of Canada.

We Have The Money

In less than a month the drive to raise the Third Victory Loan will begin, and before it is finished we shall have to find $750,000,000. At first sight that seems a vast sum, and certainly it is $150,000,000 more than we were asked for at the time of the last Loan; let us not forget, however, that it has been our custom to over-subscribe these Loans and that last February we came very near to the billion dollar mark.

There is no cause to panic about the forthcoming Loan. We have the money for it in the country and we shall doubtless over-subscribe again. The banks report that savings accounts throughout Canada are in a healthy state, and it is from these that the bulk of the Loan will come; the opportunity to convert savings into bonds is not one which any prudent person will allow to escape. The new system of collecting income tax, and the increases in that tax may cause many people to feel that they are worse off than they were earlier in the year; in some cases they doubtless are so, and in some other cases their feeling has no foundation in reality. But in all cases it will be necessary to search hearts and pocket-books in order to see what can be spared for the Loan. Mr. Ilsley has made it clear that he expects a large part of the Loan to come from those people whose incomes have improved since the beginning of the war because they have taken positions in well-paid war industries. This is a point which can hardly be emphasized too much; it is not from the wealthy that the greatest part of the Loan must come, for the wealthy are too few; the bulk of the money must be subscribed by those who are in steady employment, receiving good, but not phenomenal, wages.

There is no point in glossing over the facts about the forthcoming Loan. The country must have the money, and we must find it in our own pockets. Financing the war is costing us dearly in money, but losing the war would bring us a ruin more devastating than any of which we can now conceive. We have the money for the new Loan in the country; let us begin to think now about putting it at the service of the government and the fighting forces.

Moderates In India

The Indian situation remains unsatisfactory. The Congress Party seems determined to spite Britain, even though in doing this it offers aid and comfort to enemies of freedom; Britain refuses to climb down from the position she has taken on the subject of Indian independence. The situation is rather like that which arises when a highly-strung, wilful child defies an arrogant, domineering father; the only hope of a friendly outcome lies in the work of a skilled mediator.

The obvious mediator in this case is the United States, but that country is desperately busy with its own affairs and can hardly be expected to take time to patch up other people's quarrels. If it were not that the fate of the U.S. is as much bound up with the Indian situation as is that of Britain it is doubtful if the great republic would care to take a hand in the matter at all. As it is the U.S. is doing what it can by semi-official means to pour oil on the troubled waters, to soothe the over-heated Congress, to persuade Britain to be less dogmatic, and to encourage an expression of opinion among the moderate thinkers in India.

Hope for India probably lies with these moderates. But moderate thinkers are not so persuasive or attractive to the masses as violent thinkers, and it will not be easy for any conciliatory party to gain a following. If it were possible, however, for a moderate party to find some means by which India might immediately receive a measure of self-government, but which would not involve too painful a loss of face by Britain or the Congress, a very ugly situation might be averted.

Ontario Hillbillies

A few weeks ago a case was discovered in a not too remote part of this Province which involved the sale of a thirteen years old girl by her father; he sold her to a neighbor who wanted a wife for $75 and he accepted an old overcoat as a down payment. He has now been sentenced to spend from six to eighteen months in a reformatory.

We wonder precisely what the effect of eighteen months in a reformatory will be upon such a man? He has reached middle age; his ideas of life and conduct are fixed; it is doubtful if he has ever in his life done anything which might be described as thinking. We doubt very much whether it will be possible to do anything more than scare him so that he will not sell any more of his daughters — certainly not in a frank and open way. It will not be possible to make him a citizen of the modern world.

The discovery of a man who has such a primitive attitude toward life in our own Province should provide us with some food for reflection. It seems unlikely that there are many others like him, though there are doubtless a few here and there. But there are districts to be found in all parts of this Province (and doubtless in other provinces as well) which are described euphemistically as "backward." Poverty is probably the most apparent evil in such districts, but poverty may, in these cases, be the result of ignorance. It is not an easy task to break the vicious circle of poverty and ignorance but it ought to be done. The existence of such districts is a reproach to us all.

Much is being said these days about post-war planning. We might add to our list of post-war duties the elimination by medical and educational services of these backward districts in our Province. Little can be done for the adults, perhaps, but if the children are caught young enough they can be saved, and we should see that they are given a chance in a world where the selling of children as brides is not countenanced.

T. S. Eliot Looks At Kipling

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

WHEN a man bites a dog, it is news; and when a critic who is popularly considered to be an apostle of obscurity and disillusion suddenly presents himself before the world as the champion of a versifier who was determined to be readily comprehensible and who dealt very extensively in illusion, that also is news. To deal in generalities no further, Macmillans have published a new selection of Kipling's verse, and the introductory essay is by T. S. Eliot.

The chief interest of the volume lies, of course, in Eliot's re-valuation of Kipling as a writer of verse. The poems are familiar, and the selection is an admirable one. The complete volume of Kipling's verse is too bulky and too mixed in quality to give much pleasure to the ordinary reader; this selection is just the right size and it contains all the old favorites. But in the thirty pages of the introduction one of the foremost poets of the English-speaking world says his say about a man who has been very much abused. Kipling to many people—and particularly to many who have not read him—stands for a special kind of Tory imperialism, for the doctrine of the White Man's Burden, and for the fatuities of "If." There is some justice in this point of view, but it is only half the truth; Kipling was a remarkable artist, and if he chose to devote his artistry to the presentation of a world-philosophy which we now condemn he was not the first and will not be the last man to do so. We cannot dismiss his artistry merely because we disagree with his politics.

MR. ELIOT half explains Kipling's bumptious patriotism as the result of his essential foreigness. Kipling dearly loved India, but he was not an Indian and he was not even an official of the British Raj; he loved Sussex, but he was never a true Englishman: his desire to belong to some part of the earth—a desire which those who so belong can rarely comprehend—led him to protest too much. But Kipling's patriotism was not the whole story. The reader of his complete works will find many an indication that the author knew of the injustices of British rule in India; Kipling knew the inglorious pages of British history as well as the great ones; he knew that the British soldier is not a fun-loving boy who becomes stern and proud when he is called upon to kill heathen for the dear old Queen. And he was not a race-snob, as some people have asserted; the completely admirable people in his tales of India are the Indians themselves, whom he knew and loved. We must not blame Kipling because he was not a man of god-like judgment, nor must we dismiss him as a fool. He was a fine artist, and he was also very much the product of his times.

AS A writer of verse, in Mr. Eliot's opinion, Kipling presents peculiar problems to the modern critic who expects to have to defend a poet against charges of obscurity, of despising the intelligence of the average reader, and of writing in forms which are either abstruse or non-existent. Kipling wrote nothing the full meaning of which is not apparent in a single reading, he wrote to be understood by everyone, and he wrote with consummate skill in traditional verse-forms. He did not regard himself as a poet; he considered the writing of verse as a necessary part of his literary equipment and he never aspired to great heights. Neverthless, in the opinion of Mr. Eliot, there were times when he wrote genuine poetry, and as a writer of expert, thought-conveying verse he compares him with Dryden. Knowing Mr. Eliot's high opinion of Dryden this is praise indeed.

Defending Kipling against the charge of being a political versifier Mr. Eliot has this to say: "...a poet who has treated the problems of his time will not necessarily go out of date. Arnold's 'Stanzas From The Grande Chartreuse' voice a moment of historic doubt, recorded by its most representative mind, a moment which has passed, which most of us have gone beyond in one direction or another: but it represents that moment forever. We have therefore to try to find the permanent in Kipling's verse...." Mr. Eliot addresses himself to this task with his usual solemnity, taste and good sense and when he has done we know that we shall never be able to concur in a wholly condemnatory judgment of Kipling again.

STILL, it is a pity that Rudyard Kipling's poems have to follow Mr. Eliot's excellent essay. To this reader at least they do not improve with familiarity. Kipling, Mr. Eliot tells us, was essentially a ballad-maker. Perhaps so, but much of the charm of the old ballads lies in their age; we are not forced to make up our minds about their usually unpleasant moral and political outlook. The King who sat in Dumfermline tower, drinking the blood-red wine, is a hero to us, but to his contemporaries he may have been a sodden tyrant; and the Twa Sisters of Binnorie must have been very unpleasant company. The figures in Kipling's ballads are too near us to be wholly romantic. Nevertheless, lovers of Kipling (and they are many) will welcome this excellent new collection, and students of literature will be grateful for this new valuation of a much-misunderstood talent by one of the most acute critics of our time.

Unconsidered Trifles

"My dear, won't it be rather awkward having refugees in your house when they don't speak English and you can't speak French?"

"Oh, I suppose I shall have to write everything down for them."

The leader of the Auxiliary Fire Service called at the house across the way.

"Pardon me, but are you the lady who was singing?"

"Yes, I was singing. Why?"

"Well, lay off the top notes, please. We've had the bloomin' fire engine out twice!"

A woman's voice was heard from the steps of a crowded car: "Oh, get in, dear; someone will give you a seat." The next moment two young women entered.

The men in the car read papers sternly. Those who had none pretended to be asleep. The too-certain women glared in vain. The car went on for half a mile, then a man alighted.

"There's a seat for one," said the conductor.

"Don't take it, dear," said one young woman, "some man will want it."

In the moment of defeat she triumphed.

SOLD DOWN THE BIG RIVER

Nazis Bolstering Home Public

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

UNCONFIRMED Nazi accounts of devastating twin blows struck at United Nations' lifelines in the North Atlantic and the Arctic are peculiarly subject to the suspicion of extreme exaggeration because of their timing.

Hitler's propaganda mill has in the past blown up relatively minor incidents at sea to draw German public attention from less favorable developments elsewhere. or can it be doubted that the epic Russian defense of Stalingrad, the Rommel failure to crack the British front in Egypt, and, above all, British and Russian air battering at German cities are having some wearing effect on German war nerves.

They needed a tonic. The Berlin propaganda machine probably sought to supply it in the form of doctored versions of sea actions, in which, to hear Berlin tell it, Allied convoys were virtually annihilated in the North Atlantic and the Arctic. Unquestionably, both these stories have some basis in fact, but that they approached the disastrous proportions outlined by the Nazis is quite improbable.

Word from London that the Nazi battleship Tirpitz had left her refuge in a Norwegian fjord to cruise the Arctic sea lanes under an air umbrella is in line with Germany's need to throttle Russia's northern supply line, just as her southern inlets for Anglo-American help are being choked on the Volga. It also means, if the ship reached the open sea, an intensive hunt to find and destroy her.

Sunk or put out of action definitely, she would release powerful Allied naval units for other duty. While the Tirpitz is afloat and able to move, they must stand guard against just such a foray.

If the timing of German sea success stories invites suspicion, timing also must be considered in weighing the significance of what looked like a Finnish effort to find some means of escape from the war and her Axis fellowship. It came in a long justification of his country's course issued by Finnish Minister Procope in Washington. This was its most thought-provoking sentence:

"Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees obtained for her lasting security."

That sounds like an open bid for American pressure on Russia to offer peace to Finland on a basis that this country or the whole United Nations fellowship could guarantee. It came not only at a time of crisis for Russia but just as President Roosevelt's unity emissary, Wendell Willkie, reached Moscow for discussions with Stalin.

There has been widespread speculation as to whether an Axis peace offensive might not get under way once Hitler established winter lines in Russia. The Procope move might be a forerunner of that. If, as seems likely, it had no made-in-Berlin stamp upon it, however, it must be giving Nazi leaders grave concern.

Finnish bases are important to the Nazi campaign to block the Arctic supply route to Russia. A Finnish-Russian peace would free seasoned Red Army fighters from that front for use elsewhere. Finland's escape from her war association with the Axis would break the circle Hitler has drawn about Russia.

Look Out For the "Drys"

(FROM LE CANADA)

THE General Assembly of the United Church of Canada, in session at Belleville, has voted unanimously to send a delegation to Prime Minister Mackenzie King to ask him to take, under pretext of war, draconian measures against the traffic in alcoholic liquors. It is the story of the last war over again. There exists in the Anglo-Saxon world a morbid perversion of the religious spirit which manifests itself in a sort of demonic obsession over alcohol. The prohibitionists sincerity believed the "Demon Rum" to be the prime cause of all man's physical and spiritual ills.

In the normal years of peace, the religious deviation of the Puritans found only a feeble echo in the hearts of the multitude of men whose religion is saner. Their gospel fell upon dry soil —if one may say so—and the common man, dowered with common sense, made moderate use of alcoholic beverages in which only excess is to be deprecated.

But in wartime things are different. The apostolic zeal of the Puritans, long frustrated in its direct manifestations in peacetime, hastened to invoke the necessities of war to justify all those measures of suppression of the "Demon Rum" which obsess the Puritan mind.

Let us recall what happened in the United States because of the last war. Let us recall all the stupidities that the Puritan mind led us to commit even in Canada. The Americans, who never do things by halves threw themselves headlong into prohibition under pretext of helping the war effort, and there followed, during the "Roaring Twenties," a period filled with the most shameful orgies, physical and moral, in their history.

The Canadian Temperance Federation bought, at the end of June, a full page of newspaper space to advertise a manifesto addressed to Mr. King and his Government and entitled "Face the Facts." The Federation's principal argument was that the total spent on liquor by the Canadian people has never stopped rising since war began: from $179 millions in 1939 we went to $191 millions in 1940 and $232 millions in 1941.

Apparently our prohibitionists have never realized the two simple reasons which explain this. First, the price has gone up, and on top of that, war taxes have been greatly increased. Second, war has given to social classes which were formerly destitute of money, the means to pay for a glass which, in periods of unemployment, they had simply done without. But is that to say that liquor consumption per capita is excessive? That is the only thing which counts as far as public health, physical or moral, is concerned.

Before letting themselves be over-reached by mean who are well intentioned but who have a few too many bees in their bonnets, our administrators would do well to ponder the question for a long time.

A Professor in the Wrong

(FROM THE MONTREAL GAZETTE)

PROFESSORS, like politicians and other lesser persons, can and do make mistakes, and an elusive Professor Ivan E. McDougle, of Baltimore, seems to have made a very sad error when he declared that the "only way we can maintain our "present standard of living is by putting our wives to work." He added that life is "so damned easy for women these days," and made some remarks about parasites. It is gratifying to learn that the McDougle is being taken to task by women, and even men, all over the country. Perhaps his idea was to create a little tempest as a diversion from the greater war now raging.

There are not many wives who do not have to work, even in these days of appliances for practically every household task. If there are children in the house, the wife's labors are unceasing, as every father who has had to mind the house for a couple of hours well knows. Father becomes quickly distraught with the onerous duty of keeping the young hopefuls reasonably occupied and if they are quiet for a minute and he sits down for a rest the telephone rings or the doorbell makes an insistent demand for attention. It is simply terrible.

If the family goes to the country the man of the house is lost. He has no one to find his coat, his pipe, his hat, even his pocketbook. He forgets to send the laundry out and on Sunday discovers he hasn't a clean shirt. With the wife at home none of these things happen; she does everything that should be done. She works, in fact, and works well. As for women who can hire help, they too are kept busy with their social duties, and at present many of them are working tirelessly at duties connected with the war. In short, the professor is all wrong. Let him and others who maintain that women have too easy a time in the home look after themselves a while. Then they will be roaring like Father in the play.

A Bible Message For Today

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and let my cry come unto thee. Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me: in the day when I call answer me speedily....

My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass. But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations....

I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: thy years are throughout all generations....The children of thy servants shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee.—Ps. cii, 1, 2, 11, 12, 24, 28.

The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ.—Rom. viii, 16, 17.

"Say It With Music"

A new and important work has just been added to German music the credit for which, as for so many additions to German culture, must go to the Fuehrer. It is a "choral masterpiece" by the composer Gottfried Muller, based on five of Hitler's most noted sayings. The composition of this "masterpiece" will surprise no one who heard of the removal of Jewish elements from the works of Bach and Handel begun in Germany early in the year. What could be more fitting than that such cleansing should be followed by the writing of an oratorio based on the outpourings of the Fuehrer himself? Is not the "Messiah" based on texts from the Bible? With "Mein Kampf" and the Fuehrer's inspired speeches to hand, to have hung back would have been singularly non-Aryan.

So many of Hitler's sayings are "noteworthy" for one reason or another that the selection of five suitable ones can have given Dr. Muller little trouble. To suggest only one possible combination, he could begin (recitative) with that frank avowal of divine guidance of Providence," continue (aria) with frequent repetitions of "I have no more territorial demands to make in Europe," go on to the pathetic "My patience is exhausted," and end with the massive chorus "My name will go down in history as the great son of the great German Reich," softening down to the closing tenderness (ppp) of "That I love peace is shown by my work." Whatever the sayings included, the world will await the first performance of the "masterpiece" with great interest. It would welcome even more the composition of an oratorio based on Hitler's "famous last words." — Manchester Guardian.

Some Show Off

Managers of a Pacific coast bomber plant complain that mixed working crews do not get along so well. They say the men are apt to flirt with the women when all workers should be concentrating on production. However, if the men in this plant are normal, they probably make a special effort to impress their girl co-workers with their own ability, and this should mean more bombers coming off the line.—Edmonton Journal.

Celebrate Anniversary

Following the games at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club on Monday evening, a celebration was held in honor of the 36th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westbrooke. Mrs. Westbrooke was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by Mr. J. Jebson, and Mr. Westbrooke received a golf club from Mr. Art Cauley on behalf of the club. Both were very surprised, but responded nobly, Mr. Westbrooke giving a blow by blow description of his golfing career. Mr. Jack Jobe also made an appropriate speech.

Kinettes Bingos Will Continue In Coming Months

The first meeting of the Fall season of the Peterborough Kinettes was held at the home of Mrs. K. Smylie last evening, with Mrs. Maurice Holt presiding.

Mrs. Adam Sands reported that during the Summer the Kinettes made on collection from the Milk-for-Britain milk bottles, and the sum of $116 was realized. Another collection will be made in the very near future.

In the absence of Mrs. W. Fanning, Mrs. A. Sollitt reported on the progress of the quilts for the air raid shelters overseas, and now the fourth and fifth quilts are practically complete. These are the quilts that are made from the tops of old socks, and as old socks are still in demand for new quilts, anyone having any is asked to contact a Kinette and information will be given as to where the socks can be left to be picked up.

It was unanimously decided to carry on with the monthly bingos again this year, and Mrs. J. Elliott and Mrs. N. Elliott were appointed co-conveners, with Mrs. W. Osborne and Mrs. A. Sollitt acting on the prize committee. A tentative date for the first bingo is Octaber 22 or 23.

The next meeting will be held October 19, at the home of Mrs. A. Sollitt, 243 London street, and the advisory council, consisting of Mrs. J. Wharry, Mrs. D. Loucks, and Mrs. William Gordon, along with the executive, will meet at the home of the president, Mrs. Holt, 469 Water street, on October 1.

Bernice Lynch Honored

A shower was held at the home of Mrs. Stella Smith, 164 Dublin street, in honor of Miss Bernice Lynch, whose wedding takes place early in October. During the evening the guests enjoyed games and a sing-song, after which the gifts were wheeled in a doll carriage decorated in pink and mauve by Mrs. Bolton and Mr. Brown. Those present were: Misses Doreen Lee, Beryl Lee, Jean Bullied, Bernice Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Row, Mr and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Bolton, Mr. and Mrs. Bullied, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Steinburg; Messrs. Lloyd McKnight, Bob Wayne, Joe Lynch, George Brock.

Brooks—Kerr

The marriage was quietly solemnized on September 8 at the United Church parsonage in North Sidney, Nova Scotia, when, Barbara Margaret, daughter of Mrs. Kerr, 588 Aylmer street, and the late W. H. Kerr, was united in marriage to J. Howard Brooks, son of Mrs. Wilbert Brooks of Coldsprings. The Rev. Neil D. Patterson performed the ceremony.

The attendants were Mrs. Ralph M. Wakely, nee Kathleen Lacey of Peterborough, and Mr. Ernest Tillsonburg. The bride wore a two-piece dress of powder blue crepe with a black velvet hat and matching accessories and a corsage of chrysanthemums. Mrs. Wakely wore a beige dress with brown accessories and a corsage of bronze mums. For the present they will live in North Sidney, where the groom is stationed.

Digweed—Hawley

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Warsaw United church manse on Saturday, September 19th, at 2.30 p.m., when Grace Hawley, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Greenaway, Newdale, Manitoba, was united in marriage to Earl Clement, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Digweed, Warsaw, the Rev. E. D. Snelgrove officiating.

The bride looked lovely in a teal blue suit with red fox trimming and navy blue accessories, and carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Mrs. Ivan Clements, Peterborough, attended the bride, wearing a sand dress and brown accessories and carrying bronze gladioli.

The groom was attended by Mr. Ivan Clements, Peterborough.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, attended by immediate friends of both families.

The groom's mother received, wearing a black sheer dress and a corsage of mauve baby 'mums.

Later the young couple left for a short honeymoon in Guelph and London. On their return they will reside at 153 Westcott street, Peterborough.

Activities Old and New Discussed by YWCA Board

At the September meeting of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors reports were received from all program departments outlining activities and services offered this fall and winter.

The Association, realizing the large number of newcomers to the city and the increased numbers in industry, has carefully considered how best the Y.W.C.A. could meet these wartime situations. It was interesting to learn that the National Council Y.W.C.A. was studying needs of to-day and at a conference this summer asked Peterborough Y.W.C.A. to be an experimental centre for several suggested projects.

The War Services Committee is arranging for open house day once each week. In his way the Y.W.C.A. will provide a hostess centre where girls away from home can find home conveniences. It may be a place to read, play the piano or radio, entertain ones friends, use the sewing machine, enjoy games, and meet new friends in the Recreation Room, have a swim in the pool or exercise in the gym. Recreational evenings will be arranged once each week especially for girls in war industries as well as the Monday recreational evenings and dances which proved so popular as arranged last season for the soldiers. Shift hour classes will be another feature so that whether time off from work is morning, afternoon or evening, members of shift gym class or club will find the same program whenever they can come.

Girls of the C.W.A.C. are guest members of the Y.W.C.A. and cordially invited to use the Association facilities.

The Y.W.C.A. residence has rendered excellent service to hundreds of new girls in the city and the rooms registry service has helped over 300 girls secure accommodation in selected homes since June.

Clubs and gym and swimming classes cordially welcome newcomers—Ladies' Day Out Club for mothers and young children, a new club of last season is growing in numbers and a new club organized in early spring, the Friendly Nations Club, will soon be meeting again.

The physical department in cooperation with the Y Gym Auxiliary has drawn up a varied program of gym and swimming classes. All gym classes commence October 8. Former members and prospective members are asked to attend the Rally Week activities October 1 to 7. Badminton and archery courts are now ready and new members are joining. Basketball teams from factory, school and church groups are signing up. This season badminton and archery members may entertain men friends to games on Monday evenings.

The swimming pool reported 403 lessons and 272 swims, a total of 692 using the pool in July and 523 swims during August when there were no lessons, this representing 100 more than Auust. 1941.

The girls' work department expects many new clubs this year. A knitting club has already been requested. Factory groups are considering the advantage of club programs and arranging for nights at the Y. The clubs already organized are cordially inviting new members to join their clubs. Sunday fireside tea hour first of each month will again be proomted by the Girls' Council.

The report of the Camp Committee was most encouraging. One hundred and sixty-three girls enjoyed camp, 103 from Peterborough and the others from Warsaw, Millbrook Lakefield, Waterloo, Brooklyn, N.Y., Belleville, Hamilton and Toronto. Special parties services hikes, and stunt nights were planned and carried out by the council ring thus developing group spirit and leadership. Pictures of camp were kindly taken by F. L. Roy and G. Downer. The last week of the camp was devoted to special C.G.I.T. council under the direction of the National Girls' Work Board wher 57 extra campers, 11 councillors and 4 Y.W.C.A. staff carried out a special leadership training program.

The report of the National Interpretation and Support Committee showed $335.75 sent to the Mrs Winston Churchill Fund for British Women in His Majesty's service during the summer. $1,500 is the allocation for this year. Interesting letters of services rendered from these funds were read showing new hostels and recreation centres opened. Over 100 Land Army hostels are being operated by the British Y.W.C.A. as well as club and social centres in industrial and military districts. A beautiful bedspread was on display. This was donated for the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund by Miss A. Robinson. Tickets will be sold in the near future.

The Program Committee, outlined the Y open house week, October 1 to 7, planned to welcome former and new members and all newcomers to city and interested friends of the Y.W.C.A. to the opening of fall activities at the Association. The city has been divided into sections so that groups may have a better opportunity to get to know others living or working in their districts. Thursday, October 1, is south section of the city Friday is newcomers' night, men and women, Saturday morning is children's party when 500 are eypected, Sunday after church is friendly hour for young men and women. Monday is eastern section of city. Tuesday is centre, especially store and office and Wednesday is the western section. But anyone will be welcome any time.

Work of Local 'Y' Admired By National Secretary

Great admiration for the local Y.W.C.A. and the part it plays in community life was expressed by Miss L. Gates, National general secretary, in an interview on Monday evening. Miss Gates is visiting the local Association in company with Mrs. H. Clarke, convener of the Personnel committee of the National Council.

She said she was always glad to visit the Peterborough "Y" because it was such a pleasant place. "It isn't only pleasantness of surroundings," said Miss Gates, "but a certain feeling that everone is welcome here; that this "Y" plays an important and interested part in the life of the community. It is interesting to see that in a city the size of Peterborough the "Y" can live up so thoroughly to its ideals and purposes."

Miss Gates had just come from Ottawa, where she had been working with the Y.W.C.A., and she said that she was tremendously interested in the large number of girls in Ottawa, who have come from all parts of the Dominion to take civil posts in the Capital. "These girls," she said, "are doing a war job just as surely as any girl in a factory or in the army, and yet they have no status as war workers, and are not recognized as such." The huge numbers of civil service girls in Ottawa are creating a real problem in that city.

She was interested in the experiments of the local Association in providing a centre of recreation and social contact for the girls in the factories, many of whom are new to the city and find difficulty in making contacts. "I find the present movement of girls from one part of the Dominion interesting and thrilling," said Miss Gates. "These girls are getting a view of their country that they might never have had otherwise. They are learning to know and appreciate Canada. When I was in Newfoundland not so long ago I met a girl in a C.W.A.C. uniform who had been present at a gathering I addressed in Alberta in July. This kind of thing is happening all the time. You, at your "Y" have girls come to you from Halifax and Vancouver who are taking special courses at your factories, after which they will be sent again to yet other parts of Canada. It is thrilling to think that the "Y" provides facilities for recreation and social contact for these girls in all the places they may be sent."

Miss Gates thought that this movement of girls would make a change in relationships between the people of the different parts of Canada. She thought that they would get to know and understand each other better and that after the war they would be more open-minded about where they settled down in the Dominion.

She spoke of the changing attitude of the public, especially among soldiers, toward the Y.W.C.A. "The public is just beginning to realize that the "Y" has kept pace with times and that it is quite capable of continuing to do so."

Roseneath Soldier Is Wed In Lindsay Church

ROSENEATH, Sept. 22 —(ENS)— A wedding of local interest was solemnized on September 16 at three p.m. in Russel Street Anglican Church in Lindsay when Daisy Agnes Blackbourne, daughter of Mrs. Frank Blackbourne of Lindsay and the late Mr. Blackbourne, was united in marriage to Trooper Hilton William Pringle of Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pringle of Roseneath. Rev. A. J. Goldring was the officiating clergyman.

The bride given in marriage by her uncle, Clarence Blackbourne of Hastings, wore a street-length pink lace dress. She was attended by the groom's sister, Mrs. Harold Bull of Petawawa, wearing a street-length dress of figured blue crepe with blue redingote, small flowered hat, and navy accessories. Cpl. Harold Bull of Petawawa attended the groom. A reception was held at the bride's mothers home, the latter wearing blue crepe. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore blue figured crepe with black accessories. Trooper and Mrs. Pringle left by motor for a short honeymoon in Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a blue silk jersey suit, with black accessories.

Out of town guests included Mrs. William Blackbourne, grandmother of the bride, and Clarence and Cyril Blackbourne, of Hastings; the bride's uncles, Corp. and Mrs. Harold Bull of Petawawa, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pringle, Leona and Donna Pringle of Roseneath.

Mission Circle Meets

The Fall meeting of the Living Link Mission Circle of Trinity Church was held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Catharine Hodgens, the president, Miss Margaret Skitch, presiding.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Hodgens' group and opened with the hymn, "Take Time To Be Holy." The scripture reading was read by Mrs. John Davern.

Miss Skenfield of the Children's Aid Society was the speaker and she outlined the word of the Society and some of the war-time problems facing it today. A short question period followed and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Galipeau—Mahoney

The wedding of Joanne Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mahoney, to Albert Galipeau of Huntingdon, Quebec, son of Mrs. Galipeau and the late Mose Galipeau took place in St. Peter's Cathedral with Rev. Fr. Finn officiating and Miss Marion Best presiding at the organ. Mrs. D. Campanaro sang during the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white net and lace with a finger-tip veil caught with a cluster of flowers, and carried a cascade bouquet of gladioli and fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Mahoney, who wore pink net and lace with a matching Dutch cap and a bouquet of pink gladioli and cornflorwers. Mr. Maurice Mahoney was best man.

A reception was held at the bride's home, after which the young couple left on a trip to Montreal. For travelling the bride wore an Alice blue crepe dress with black velvet hat and matching accessories. They will live at 17 Hunter street, Huntingdon, Quebec.

May Seeney Weds Gordon Newton at Rush Point Church

A pretty wedding of local interest was solemnized at the Rush Point United Church on Saturday when May Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Seeney, Havelock, was united in marriage to Gordon Wilfred, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Newton, Havelock, the Rev. S A. Kemp officiating.

Mrs. Harry Watson played the wedding music and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harold Seeney, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white silk net over taffeta with long torso lines and a very full skirt, short puffed sleeves and elbow-length lace mittens. Her finger-tip veil hung from a Dutch cap headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

The bride was attended by her only sister, Mrs. J. C. Reid of Toronto who wore a gown of heaven blue lace over taffeta with elbow-length gloves. A tiny flower hat and silver slippers completed the costume and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and cornflower.

Joan Seeney, the bride's tiny niece, was flower girl in pink net over taffeta and carried a nosegay of pink rose buds. Mr. Garfield Newton, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home to about thirty guests. Her mother received in a gown of blue shadow sheer with black accessories and a corsage of roses. The groom's mother assisted in navy sheer and black accessories with a corsage of roses.

For travelling the bride wore a queen's blue wool suit with squirrel trimming and brown accessories. On their return from a trip to Ottawa and other points east the happy couple will reside in Peterborough.

A, B, C, RINKS CAPTURE THE LADIES' LAWN BOWLING SCHEDULE

Tournament Winners Again On Top

By HERB MARTIN

It was decided, late last evening, to hold a mixed doubles tournament, tomorrow afternoon from 1:30 o'clock to 6:30 o'clock. Chose your own partner. Fee: $1 per game. Three 10-end games.

When the three leading teams in Group B were each defeated in Monday night's schedule games, it threw the contest wide open. Off hand we'll say there are five teams tied for first place. Tomorrow night's games may decide something and then again it may end up in a tie. And by the way the games scheduled for Wednesday night wind up the schedule for B group.

The third position in the ladies' schedule has, after well over a month's delay, been finally decided. The honor goes to Mrs. J. Coursey's rink. At the conclusion of the schedule it was found that three rinks, Mrs. J. Coursey, Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. F. Staunton were tied. A round robin series was played, and as each rink won a game and lost a game Mrs. Coursey's rink was declared the winner with the total points of 27. The personnel of the rink was Mrs. R. Payne, Mrs. P. Sexsmith, Mrs. R. Crowe, Mrs. J. Coursey, skip.

And here's one for Ripley to think over:

In our ladies' open tournament here July 8, Mrs J. Arnold finished first, Mrs. L. Bearne second and Mrs. J. Coursey third, or in exactly A, B, C. order, and now when the schedule is over these same three rinks have finished exactly in the same A, B, C order, Mrs. Arnold first, Mrs. Bearne second and Mrs. Coursey third. We doubt if anything like that will occur again.

The finals in the club singles will be played on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock between J. Cullen and H. Girven.

It seems that over at Oshawa on Saturday afternoon, after they had played one game, rain held up the tournament for a couple of hours; the second game had only proceeded about eight ends when rain came again but this time for keeps. The committee in charge did not know what to do. There were many suggestions offered. The committee decided to refund the money but that did not go over. So the committee went back into a huddle and came out with the suggestion that they draw for the prizes. Our two rinks did pretty well out of the melee. G. Gimblett drew first and R. F. Downey drew second.

First: T. Doughty, Judge S. Smoke, G. Gimblett, skip.

H. Darling, C. Williamson, R. F. Downey, skip.

Scores:

P. McFadden	21	Dr. H. Long	18
E. Wall	20	H. Clegg	16
F. Dearborn	14	G. Gimblett	13
R. Burns	24	G. Coleman	10
Nels Routley	22	E. Sackville	16

Expect Tropical Track To Open

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 22 — (AP). — Henry L. Straus, president of the Gables Racing Association, arrived last night from New York with word that Tropical Park will operate both its fall and spring meetings "unless Government restrictions in the future prohibit it."

The racing strip will be put in condition beginning October 15, and the barns will be opened November 1 to receive horses, Straus said. Racing starts December 21 under present plans.

Straus said he and other officials are confident that Miami will have a good winter season and racing fans should find methods of getting to the track.

"Of course, that's our biggest problem," he commented.

The Garden State Park at Camden, N.J., which has neither bus nor train service, he used as an example. Fans managed to get there in good numbers despite the tire shortage and gasoline rationing, mostly by "doubling up" in their cars, he said.

Fumble Ties Bombers

WINNIPEG Sept. 22 — (CP). — A fumble followed by a converted touchdown in the last two minutes of play last night enabled Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers to deadlock Winnipeg Bombers 11-11 in the second game of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Senior League.

Pollet Chosen To Hurl For Cards Today

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ST. LOUIS Sept. 22—(AP). — The pennant-seeking Cardinals faced with the necessity of winning four of their next five games to be assured of the National League championship, rely on 21-year-old Howard Pollet baby of Red Bird crew, to protect a two and one-half game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

With the Cardinals beginning to show the nervous tension of their amazing pennant drive—they have scored only three runs in their last 27 innings—cool, calculating Pollet was Manager Southworth's last-minute choice to face the Pirates in the last game of their all-important two-game series.

Southworth was so pleased yesterday with the showing of Southpaw Ernie White, who handed the Pirates a 2-1 loss that he decided to toss another lefty at them.

Opposing Pollet will be Truett (Rip) Ewell, who aided the Cardinals' cause by defeating the Dodgers 3-2 10 days ago. He was the winning pitcher in the nightmare at Pittsburg Labor Day, when the Pirates scored 11 runs after two outs in the sixth inning, and went on to an 11-6 triumph.

Baby Pollet, although with the Cards only a little over a year, pitches like a veteran. He didn't win his sixth game this season until early September but that victory was all-important because it placed the Cardinals within two games of Brooklyn the day before the Dodgers, twice defeated, were tied for the league lead. He pitched three scoreless innings against the Cubs last Sunday in a relief role.

Think Edge Enough.

Back home on their home lot, the Cardinals, who won eleven of their fourteen games on the road, are oozing with confidence. They figure they have a distinct edge over the Brooklyn Dodgers as the pennant drive draws to a climax, having one less game to play than the Bums and a record of having won 35 out of their last 42 agmes.

The soft spoken, considerate "Billy-the-Kid" Southworth was elated with the achievement of his players in whipping and overtaking the Dodgers, who only 28 days ago had a lead of ten and a half games. Southworth at hot time predicted that the Bums could be stopped, could be beaten, but nobody would believe him with the exception of his scrappy players.

"It's great to get home after losing only three games on a road trip," Southworth said, with a grin.

"We are not so much concerned with what happens in Brooklyn as we are about winning. We're still taking these games one at a time, you know but I have every confidence that we will win out in the end.

Ontario Shying Off McMark Case—Hepburn

TORONTO, Sept. 22 — Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced flatly last night that "the Province of Ontario is not entertaining any thought of becoming an appeal court for disgruntled race-horse owners."

Statement Is Clear

In a statement Mr. Hepburn made it quite clear that the Provincial Government hasn't any intention of attempting to take control of Ontario's racing out of the hands of the I.C.R.A.

Ten days ago, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, the Provincial Secretary, made a statement in which he protested against the suspension which the I.C.R.A. had plastered on Owner Jim Fair of Cainsville. Mr. Nixon called the suspension "unjust" and intimated that the Government might use its powers to set up an appeal court to rule on decisions made by the I.C.R.A.

But Mr. Hepburn last night said plainly that his Government will not interfere with the administration of racing in this Province.

Mr. Hepburn said:

"As far as the controversy in racing circles in regard to the specific case of Jim Fair and his horse, McMark, I want this distinctly understood—I have nothing to say for or against the I.C.R.A., but they are the governing body of racing and any forms or any appeals or redress in any case must be handled through that body.

"Certainly the Province of Ontario is not entertaining any thought of becoming an appeal court for disgruntled race-horse owners."

Horse Still Banned

Mr. Fair was suspended by the I.C.R.A. on July 4 after McMark, which last year won more races than any other Canadian-bred horse, had performed inconsistently.

Mr. Fair's entire string of thoroughbred's was ruled off although he was permitted to transfer all of them—with the exception of McMark—to another trainer. Mr. Fair was denied the privileges of the I.C.R.A. tracks for thirty days, after which he was reinstated and once again took charge of his horses.

However, McMark's suspension was continued and the horse still is unable to race on tracks under I.C.R.A. jurisdiction.

With The Boy Scouts

SIXERS' CONFERENCE

On Saturday afternoon, September 19, a Sixers' conference was held on the scout grounds just north of Nassau. Owing to rain, the conference had to be abandoned just after 4 p.m. There were present: 1st Peterborough, 11 boys; 2nd Pack, 7; 5th Pack, 4; 8th Pack, 2; 10th Pack, 5; 12th Pack, 4; also Commissioner E. Wolfe, Mr. A. Hope, Scouter Peter Dominik; Cub leaders Mrs. Langhorne, Miss Meiklejohn, Bessrs. Q. McKinney, W. King, A. Ingham and G. E. Groombridge. Following the grand howl, which was taken by Mr. Hope the cubs were divided into 5 sixes as follows: the Pine Six, Jack Gray, sixer; the Tamarack, LaVergne Butcher, sixer; Elm Six, Alastair Fettes, sixer; Spruce Six, John Buck, sixer; Maple Six, Hugh Dibben, sixer. Games for six corners were played, hidden trees, Union Jack jig-saw, and streets of Peterborough. Lectures followed. Six competitions by G. E. Groombridge; the duties of a sixer, by Mr. A. Hope; and discipline in the six with co-operation in the pack by Mr. McKinney. The second session of games followed. Alert, message relay and flag scramble. At this point the rain interfered and the balance of the program was abandoned. Before leaving the grounds, the officers in charge decided to hold the balance of the conference either on the grounds or at some pack headquarters; time to be arranged.

Open Evening to Officers, Friends.

During the recent meeting of the scout officers of the district, definite plans were drawn up to hold a grand social and business meeting of the scouter officers and assistants next month. Invitations will be sent out to every officer in the movement and others to join in a supper meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday, October 14, at 6.45 p.m. We understand that the Apple Day committee is meeting on that date, and they will be invited to attend, and special arrangements will be made whereas they can conduct their meeting and join in the fun as well. It was unanimously decided to invite the wives, sweetheart and friends of our officers along as it was felt that too many times we neglect those at home.

We sincerely ask every scout and cub officer and all assistants to reserve this date to join us in our objective. Further announcements at a later date.

Apple Day

Just to remind you that Apple Day is just three weeks away. Yes, three weeks from Saturday of this week. Have you started to prepare for the occasion? We are planning some improvements at the Training grounds. If we had had a hut there on Saturday, the rain would not have brought the cars scurrying out to get us. So let us get behind Apple Day and get the necessary funds to build a shelter.

At St. John's

Thirty cubs were present at the council rock on Friday, with two new chums being introduced to the pack; they were John Biddle and

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tickets for the Picton R.A.F.-Mount Hope R.A.F. soccer game at Riverside Park a week from Saturday in aid of the British War Victims' Fund are going like hot cakes and with any kind of a break in weather the battle promises to be the major sporting event of the season and draw the biggest crowd that has seen an outdoor contest of any kind here in a long time. There are three reasons for the demand for tickets and the prospects of a record crowd. The first is because the prowess of the two Royal Air Force teams is widely recognized and both soccer fans and hundreds of other citizens who have never seen first class soccer played are equally anxious to see the teams in action. The second reason is, of course, the fact that the entire proceed will go to helping the British bomb victims and the third is that the game offers an opportunity to honor the men of the Royal Air Force, the men who won the Battle of Britain and have done such a glorious job ever since the war started.

* * * * * *

The Picton R.A.F. squad played a 3 to 3 tie with the crack Toronto Ulster team in Toronto Saturday and the exhibition they gave thrilled the Queen City fans. Bob Fenton, soccer expert of the Telegram says that the more the Toronto followers of the game see Ulster and the Picton R.A.F. outfit in action the more they like them. And Bill Entwistle, footfall editor of the Star, remarking "there couldn't possibly be a better attraction than Picton" has the following to say of Saturday's game: "Picton fliers hit town Saturday night, argued with sirloin steaks first and then went on to engage in a gruelling 90-minute soccer tussle with Ulster United at Ulster stadium. The R.A.F. won the steak battle 12 to 0 and drew the soccer game 3 to 3. At times sheets of rain shooting across the lights presented a weird picture, but the more than a thousand onlookers saw one of the best exhibitions of the kicking game ever seen in this city. It was even better than the first encounter. The rainswept field didn't hamper the lads at all. All through the piece they patted the sphere and they belted it and they slung it from side to side as it 'twere tied to their feet. The fact that six goals were scored might give the impression the goalies were a little off. On the contrary, Thornton of Picton was the best man on the field and Breadon, in the Ulster goal, was little behind him."

Bums Fail To Gain

St. Louis Cards are still two and a half games ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the end of the schedule is getting perilously close. The two contenders both won yesterday and now the Dodgers have six games left to play while the Cards have five. That means that even if the Dodgers win all six of their remaining games they can't win the pennant unless the Cards drop three of their remaining five. A clean sweep for the Bums and two losses for the Cards would leave the two clubs deadlocked. Brooklyn faces the toughest obstacle in the balance of their schedule today when they are called upon to meet their neighbors the Giants. Mel Ott's club will break a leg battling to take this one. After today the second-placers have the edge so far as their schedule is concerned for they have three more games with the Phillies and two with the Boston Braves while the Cards have to play another game with Pittsburg and then two each with the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs.

* * * * * *

Both the contenders had a tough argument on their hands yesterday. The Phillies and the Pirates may be well down the ladder but in both cases they put up a stubborn fight. The Cards just eked out a 2 to 1 win over the Corsairs with the usual St. Louis flair for getting the winning margin in the final frame. Ernie White held the Pirates to six hits but Hank Gornick was pitching careful ball for the losers, too. The Cards went ahead with a run in the fifth but the Pirates tied it up in the seventh and St. Louis just managed to put together the winning marker in the ninth. Brooklyn on the other hand won their decision over the Phils in the first innings when they scored three unearned runs at the expense of old Sy Johnston. After that Johnston shut them out and allowed only four hits in the last eight innings but the damage had been done. Kirby Higbe held the Phils to four safe blows and the battle ended 3 to 1 for the Dodgers.

* * * * * *

Meanwhile the American League champs have been looking like anything but that. Boston Red Sox, cleaning up the series three games to one, grabbed off yesterday's game 3 to 2 and once more came from behind to turn the trick. The Yanks have been getting good pitching but their offence has been rather impotent at times and they lack the devastating power of other great New York machines. Tex Hughson went the route for the Red Sox and became the second pitcher in the majors to reach the 21-win mark. Yesterday's victory tied Hughson with Mort Cooper and he is ahead of the Cards' ace in the loss column, six to seven. It was, however, the punishing bludgeon of Ted Williams, rather than the cunning in the right arm of Hughson that turned the trick. Marvin Breuer had held the Red Sox to one hit until the ninth and New York led by 2 to 0 until that frame. Then with a runner on the sacks Breuer elected to pitch to Ted Williams and the Boston slugger promptly drove his 36th homer of the season out of the park to drive in two runs and sew up the game. Then the Red Sox pushed the winning marker across in the eleventh to give them a big edge on the series.

Having Lots Of Fun

They're having lots of fun in the Kingston City Baseball League where Corkey, Arniel, Compeau, and a few other old timers have been playing all season. Bill Walshe tells about it thusly in the Whig-Standard: "Seven games have been played in the Kingston city baseball final but the series is still far from settled, in fact the clubs are no better off than they were about six games ago. Aluminums have three wins, Locos two, and two games have ended in no decisions in the original four-out-of-seven series. Last night the teams played to a tie in six innings wth darkness ending play and unless games start a lot earlier or are played in the afternoon the round may continue like a merry-go-round and go on and on forever with no one catching the brass ring. As far as the fans are concerned it is good fun. Thousands have been crowding around the Cricket Field every evening and when the ball season is over they probably will have nowhere in particular to go. They are not paying much for their fun, considering the collections, although Star Reid and his few assistants who try to gather up the dimes may wear out a few pair of shoes if the legs hold up. Star Reid has been showing a decided limp in last few games but a chap with his courage will outlast several ball teams. And while on the subject of collections it is estimated, judging by the crowds and cash, that the average is about half a cent a person."

It looks as if Preston is a choice spot for rain. A week ago Saturday showers badly interfered with the Westclox-Preston Rivulettes game with the result that the girls had to play most of the afternoon game in the rain and then finish the battle in the evening on a wet, slippery diamond. Last Saturday after nice weather all week rain again arrived in time to wash out the first game of the provincial finas between the Rivulettes and the Port Credit munition plant girls and now the setup is all haywire. The Port Credit team made the trip to Preston, to make matters worse. Now the girls who eliminated the Westclox are billed to play the first game at Port Credit this Saturday but no arrangements have been made for the second game.

Navy Grid Squad Good, But Shy On Reserves

By HAL WALKER.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—You're not long "aboard" H.M.C.S. York and talking football to the officers and ratings before the intense enthusiasm of the ship's company for the team that will represent them in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series becomes apparent.

Lack Reserve Strength.

Chances are when you go "ashore" the genial men in training down at the old Automotive Building at the Exhibition Grounds will have you thinking that maybe after all the Air Force, Beaches, Hamilton, Indians and Kitchener had better keep a weather eye or the Navy men will torpedo 'em.

Sub-Lieutenants Harold Smith, Brad Heintzmann, Len Sharpe and the rest of the Navy football board of strategy were discussing the forthcoming grid season.

Teddy Morris, who shares coaching duties with Jim Palmer, thinks his team is going to surprise a lot of people. "We may not have as many players as the other teams," quoth Edward, "but we've got a lot of darned good players."

Practice Before Breakfast.

That's the Navy's big problem (as far as football is concerned), a lack of reserves. Morris thinks his Tars will be able to offset that by their superior condition. Evidence of the wholehearted co-operation he and Palmer have received from the sailor-footballers is apparent when you consider the players volunteered to turn out to practice each morning at 7 o'clock.

No matter whether it blows or not the boys are out on the practice ground before breakfast and before going about their duties "aboard" ship. Then they go back at the grind after their training period is through in the late afternoon.

The Navy is particularly keen to give the Air Force a licking in the opening game at Varsity Stadium Saturday. They're also thinking they got a fair chance because they've got more work in than Hayman's Fliers. Morris believes Elwin Morris (no relation of his, by the way), Hugh Cuddie and Co. will run opposition tacklers dizzy. And he may not be far wrong, at that.

Need Experienced Centre

Morris (Elwin, not Ted) will be first string quarterback, do the passing for the Tars. Bob Goldham, Leaf hockey player, will likely do all the kicking. With justifiable pride Teddy points to such stout-hearted linesmen as Les Ascott, Steve Levantis, Jack Wedley and Pat Reid, all players of proven ability. Levantis will captain the Navy team.

"They'll take nothin' from nobody," he explains eloquently.

One big worry of the H.M.C.S York men right now is their lack of an experience centre. Sub-Lieutenant Don Boxer, a backfielder, volunteered to fill in for the time being, but admits too grave doubts about learning the job on short order.

The Navy will parade 500 strong behind their band for the O.R.F.U. inaugural at Varsity Stadium Saturday. They'll make a lot of noise cheering their team on its way.

This is one time the men of the "silent service" feel they have good reason to unbutton their lips. They think their team is worth it.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 22 — (CP). — Baseball is being played all over Britain—much to the bewilderment of most of the populace— so the London News Chronicle hit on an original idea to educate the masses.

Under a three-column heading, "Ever Hear of Baseball," along with a diagram of the playing field and positions, the paper published a purported exchange of pleasantries relating to the game between "Tom Tipple of the British Army" and "Joe Jukes of the American Army."

The scene was laid in "The Hammer and Tongs," a pub, and many a mild and bitter went down the hatch before the American finished explaining the game to his cricket-thinking ally. Initiation into the rudiments of the sport began for the Tommy when the American commented that the Red Sox had him worried "because they're going to slide." Then it went like this: "Why don't you pull them up?"

Further dialogue about "socks" and "sox" and then Jukes says: "For crying out loud, I mean the Red Sox, Red Sox. The American League Boston Red Sox. (Sadly) Ever hear of baseball?"

"Sure. It's the game where the grown-up men attack a little ball with a club." Tipple declares.

Then the lesson begins, with the barmaid interjecting to ask if the audience ever kills the umpire "like I hear them call out in the fliks (movies)."

Ring Notes: Cpl. Ernie Roderick, British and Empire welterweight king, took time out from his Air Force duties to return to his native city of Liverpool and knock Jim Herlighy of Dublin kicking....Herlighy's gameness proved his downfall for he decided to mix it with the camp and went down in the fourth of a scheduled 10-round bout. ....The gong saved him from the count but his seconds threw in the towel....Pte. Eddie Petrin of Montreal, Canadian bantam champion, will shortly make his second appearance in a London ring in an Aid-for-Russia tournament against LAC Joe Davis a tough customer from the R.A.F. Eddie's London debut wasn't so successful. He was pitted against flyweight king Jackie (Dynamite) Paterson in an exhibition affair and hit the deck early.

Lakefield Parson Outclasses Field At Peterboro Golf Club

The Match and Handicap Committee of Peterborough Golf Club really took a punch on the nose Saturday afternoon in the men's weekly golf tilt, when the Rev. George Kelly, hard-hitting vicar from Lakefield, really outclassed the field, coasting in for first place with a net 57.

Young Frank Smoke, playing his last game of the season on the local course as he is returning this week to college, copped second position with a net 64.

Mr. Kelly and Smoke played together, and paced each other into the best scores of their golf career. Other ball winners were O. DeGraw, G. Maniece, H. Bradburn, and Claude Elliott.

Players are asked to bear in mind that the official closing is billed for next Saturday afternoon, September 26, with many special attractions.

Scores:

Mixed Two-Ball Foursome

The third and final for the year mixed two-ball foursome was played Sunday afternoon at the Peterborough Golf Club.

The weather was all that could be desired, and helped to boost the number of entrants to 22 couple; the largest turnout of the year for these monthly affairs.

At the presentation of prizes held in the club house after all foursomes had turned in their scores, including the Jebson-Northrop group, who really saw a lot of the course from entirely new angles, Mrs. C. Graham thanked the members for turning out in such numbers, who in turn assured her it was the best golf day they have ever had at the club.

Winners:

First low Gross—H. Bradburn, Mrs. Blaiklock, 85.
Second Low Gross—G. Monkman, Mrs. J. Green, 87.
First Low Net—O. Steer, Mrs. A. Rutter, 69.
Second Low Net—E. Westbye, Mrs. McConkey, 71.
Sealed Holes—T. MacKay, Mrs. F. Roy.
Sealed Holes—J. Jobe, Miss A. Davidson.
Most Fives—Don McIntyre, Grace Comstock.
Least Number Putts—C. Westbrook, Mrs. C. Graham.

JAMES ROBERTSON BROWN SPARKS CARDS, WHIPS PIRATES 2 TO 1

Bums Nip Phils But Odds 20-1 Against

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

The chances are you are never going to see Jimmy Brown in the hall of fame. And you'd be willing to bet his chances of landing the most-valuable-player award any year are not bright.

But when it comes to picking out the guy who did as much as anyone else to bring St. Louis Cardinals the National League pennant, don't overlook James Robertson Brown of the Jamesville (S.C.) Browns.

The Cards still have the little job of sewing up the flag first, but after their 2-1 victory over Pittsburg Pirates yesterday—in which Brown, incidentally, knocked both runs across—they still sported a 2½-game bulge with only five to go. And, although Brooklyn also came home a winner with a 3-1 decision over the Phillies, all the Red Birds need now is any combination of four victories or four Dodger defeats to put it on ice. Around Broadway today, the odds were 20-1 against the Bums.

There will no doubt be some arguments over Jimmy Brown, of course. From day to day when the fans will talk about Mort Cooper's zipball and Walker Cooper's catching and the awful things Country Slaughter does to pitchers. And when you mention Jimmy, they'll generally brush him off with, "Oh, yeah, he's the second baseman; he's pretty good, too." This in spite of the fact that other National League managers say he's the key man who holds the infield together.

The Key Works

But while that's part of it, it should be pointed out that it's not so much what Jimmy does while he's in there—but what the Cardinals do when he's out.

In two of the last three seasons—1939 and '41—it was while Jimmy was on the shelf with assorted ailments that the Cards blew their chances and as soon as he got back into action, they thundered down the stretch. And in 1941, it's probably only that he was hurt early and got back in time that they saved the flag.

Yesterday, the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead in the first inning against the Phils and managed to hold on to it right down to the wire, although Kirby Higbe was in many tough spots before he pulled out his 15th victory of the year.

Marv Breuer looked like a sure winner for New York Yankees over the Red Sox as he allowed only one hit for eight innings. Then Ted Williams' 36th homer tied it up in the ninth and Tony Lupien's single sent the winning Boston run home in the 11th.

In the other only game of the big league schedule, the Detroit Tigers rolled over Chicago White Sox 6-4 on homers by Chet Ross and Barney McCoskey.

Athletics Take 16-7 Lacing From Combines

BRAMPTON, Sept. 22 (Special)—Mimico-Brampton Combines jumped back on even terms with St. Catharines Athletics, defending champions, here last night when they earned a smashing 16-7 win in the fourth game of their Ontario Lacrosse Association senior championship series.

The Combines' victory tied the teams 2-2 in the matter of games won in the best four-of-seven round for the Provincial title. Fifth game will be played in St. Catharines Wednesday night.

Arch and Ken Dixon were the spearheads of the Combines' winning attack here last night. It was a rough contest with no quarter given or asked. Combines started scoring early and had the contest pretty well wrapped up by half-time, when they led 8-2.

Mimico Combines—Goal, Large; defense, Jim Mullis and Arthurs; rover, McPhail; centre, B. Mullis; wings, Thompson and McDonald; alternates, Anthony, Gimblett, Milne Masters, McLean, Williams, A. Dixon, K. Dixon.

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 22 — (CP). — When Vancouver's Ken Black played—and tied—the people's choice, Benjamin Hogan, in a golf match for war charity last week it might have been his last golf contest for the duration....Golf has been his job, but because of the shortage of materials he will be looking for another (or headed for another) after October 1.....He is one of Canada's best, although he didn't compete in any of the major tournaments this year.

Gridiron gossip:

Edmonton Athletic Club junior footballers probably have the best coaching of any junior club in the country....Paul Kirk, former Regina Roughriders star is chief with Bill Starr, ex-Green Bay Packer fullback, his assistant......Starr taught the lads some plays Edmonton fans haven't seen before.... Herbie Moores is one of football's unluckiest.....A few years ago he retired from football after a back injury just when he seemed headed for the top with Toronto Beaches.. ..FO. Lew Hayman coaxed him back to perform for the Toronto R.C.A.F. team this year, and in one of the first workouts Moores fractured an ankle....He's hospitalized and likely out for the season.

For those who were wondering: The Australian who scored Winnipeg R.C.A.F.'s winning touchdown in the Winnipeg City Football League opener last week is LAC. Frank Webster....We'll probably be hearing more of him....His first identification was variously as F. L. Webster and W. L. Webster..... Capt. Jeff Nicklin, former all-Canadian with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, is back in the country for paratroop work at Camp Shilo Man... ..It's improbable he'll play any football this year.

Incidentally:

Regina probably will be Saskatchewan's senior hockey stronghold during the upcoming season....It has an edge on the opposition in the number of Army players available.. ..Terry Reardon is with Montreal Shamrocks in the Quebec boxla playoffs. This Irish pro hockeyist played against Shamrocks, for Canadiens in the semi-final....He went to Shamrocks as a wartime replacement....Private Jack Church, former Toronto Maple Leaf and Brooklyn American, probably will be available for hockey around Cornwall, Ont., this season....He's stationed near there....Larry Haynes is football coach at Vancouver College....He was to have been coach of the Jericho Beach Air Station Club, but its plans folded up.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The swanky Cypress Point Golf Club at Del Monte, Calif., will try to stay open for the duration—with only 45 members left...The Phils must feel kind of crowded with four umpires working their games these days. Most seasons they'd be glad to get that many paid admissions during the final week.

Guest Star

Francis E. Stan, Washington Evening Star: "The Louis-Conn affair is one scrap drive worthy of support, but if the War Department condones expenses that may be as much as $250,000, it can't be considered an all-out war effort. Offhand, we can't recall hearing when Ensign Gay, Lieut. Bulkley and a lot of bona fide heroes were given bonuses to pay off their back taxes and debts, so why Louis and Conn?"

Travel Bureau

Georgia's footballers rode 17 hours in day coaches to get to that Kentucky game Saturday...And that's another good reason for giving the home team the edge in your grid selections this year...Other colleges report they may have to split up their squads to travel in small bunches but they're still hoping for the best...

Weighty Document

The old collegiate custom of listing "program weights" for football players is out at the Texas College of Mines. Apparently tired of explaining to doubting sports scribes, Tub-Thumper Jud Williams sent out a squad roster, showing an average of 169 pounds, accompanied by a sworn statement showing the weights were attested by a doctor.

Chiefs Blanked By Blackwell In 5 to 0 Tangle

By The Associated Press.

Bill Terry, general manager of the New York Giant farm system, which includes Jersey City, recently called Ewell Blackwell, young Syracuse right hander, the best pitcher in the International League.

And Blackwell, 19-year- old Californian owned by Cincinnati of the National League, made the selection stick last night by shutting out Terry's farm hands, 5-0 for the Chiefs' third straight victory in the International League's final round of the Governors' Cup playoffs.

Blackwell's blanking blanking brought to 40 the number of innings since the Jersesy have counted a run off Syracuse pitching, including the game in which the two clubs broke a third-place tie.

Blackwell was touched for four singles. In addition, he walked two batters but fanned seven others.

There wasn't much to the game after a rousing first frame in which the Chiefs collected four runs and drove Adrian Zabala to the showers.

The triumph moved Syracuse to within a single game of the playoff title and the right to meet Columbus of the American Association in the Little World series. Columbus swept through Toledo, four games to none, in the Association's final playoffs.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Brown, Cardinals—Drove in both Card runs in 2-1 victory over Pirates.

Ted Williams, Red Sox—Hit two-run homer in ninth to tie Yankees after which Sox won out in 11th, 3-2.

Barney McCosky, Tigers — Hit homer, two singles, drove in two runs and scored another in 6-4 victory over White Sox.

Yankees, Cards Mound Staffs About On Par

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 — (AP). — "Sure," conceded the American League man, "I wouldn't be surprised to see Mort Cooper pitch a whale of a game against the Yankees. They can be pitched to like any other club. Cooper might hold them to four or five hits and maybe a single run."

He and the National League man had been tossing the coming World Series around orally for some time when the American made his disarming concession. The National League beamed his surprise and delight, but before he could think up a suitable appreciative reply, his antagonist continued:—

"And you know what'll probably happen to Cooper? Spud Chandler or Ernie Bonham or somebody else on the Yankee staff will be having a hot day and Cooper will get beat about 1-0. That's what I mean about oCoper not winning the series for the Cardinals."

The writer regards this as a graphic summing-up of the pitching potentialities of the two clubs that probably will play the first game of the big series a week from tomorrow in St. Louis. Brooklyn still has a mathematical chance to beat out the Cards in the National League, but actually the Dodgers were licked a week ago.

The American Leaguer, of course, was giving only his side of the argument. The same thing could and probably will happen to one or more of the Yankee flingers. If the Yankees have the best pitching staff in baseball, as is widely believed, then St. Louis Cardinals certainly have the second best.

Better Than Yanks By 1941.

The Cardinals' staff must be regarded as stronger than the Brooklyn staff of a year ago. Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards, at least will not have to start a couple of such veterans as Curt Davis and Fred Fitzsimmons, who led off against the Yanks in the first and third game of the '36 series.

While Cooper, with his fine fast ball and great variety of stuff, is the one who will have to turn the Yankees back a time or two if the Cards are to have a hope of winning the series, he lacks considerable of being the "Cardinal staff." In Max Lanier and Ernie White the club has a pair of corking good southpaws, and in Johnny Beazley the freshman pitching sensation of the National League.

The Yankees, themselves, have vivid recollections of the Card hurlers from their spring exhibition series, whic the Cards won six games to three.

The Yanks expect to face Cooper, the 21-game winner at least twice, and probably a third time if the series goes the limit of seven games.

The Yankee staff, led by big Ernie Bonham with 20 victories and only five losses, probably is every bit as good as the one that held Brooklyn to 11 runs in five series games a year ago. Marcus Russo, the ailing southpaw who beat the Dodgers 2-1 in the third game, is a doubtful starter but in his place it has Hank Borowy, with 15 victories and only four losses for his first big league campaign.

Red Ruffing, a veteran now but still one of the game's greatest spot pitchers, likely will square against Cooper in the opener. Red, at 37, has only won 14 games this season against seven losses, but his record of six world series victories against a single loss is unrivalled among to-day's pitchers.

Spud Chandler with 16 and five, is certain to start one game, and probably Atley Donald another.

All in all, the series pitching appears to be about a standoff.

Organized Camp Gets Aid In Moulding Boys

Organized camping makes a distinct contribution toward teaching boys to live co-operatively, courageously and creatively, Mac Singleton, new boys' secretary of the Y.M.C.A. told Rotarians at their regular luncheon Monday in addressing the club on the work of the "Y" boys' camp at Clear Lake during the past summer.

Introduced by Rotarian George H. Roper, Mr. Singleton gave some of the highlights of camp life, to show the problems presented by the boys who attend such camps and the manner in which camp training and routine helps youngsters to adjust themselves to living with groups and to overcome the effect of too much parent influence, spoiling at home and other trends that handicap them.

The speaker remarked that if the camp only sent the boys home a little stouter and tanned but had no other effect upon them, organized camps would not be justified. They, however, he said, did make a contribution toward training boys to fit themselves for adult life and the effect was not lost in future years.

It was the young boys of today who would have to be counted upon to take over the after-war problems and to win the peace and make future wars impossible, Mr. Singleton said. "I do not think the lads who are nine or ten now will be called upon to serve," said the speaker. "I hope the war will be over before their services are required. But they will be needed afterward for the post-war period and camp life helps to train them for that responsibility."

There was a total attendance at the camp last summer of 122, Mr. Singleton said, and of these 78 were Peterborough boys. The speaker said that the camp property and equipment was in fairly good condition. A big problem from now would be the question of leadership. It would be necessary to depend upon younger boys, who were not developed enough emotionally for the task.

Rotarian Dr. Harold Long expressed the thanks of the club to the speaker.

Rotarian Wes. Brown announced that the Peterborough squadron of the Air Cadet League of Canada was all ready to commence enrolling members. For the present, he said, only 50 members would be accepted.

Rotarian M. H. Riddle presided at the luncheon and Leslie Turner was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Axis Friction

London, Sept. 22 (CP Cable)

THE Polish Telegraph Agency quoted Italian Red Cross nurses today as saying there had been open breaks between Germans and Italians at some of the larger railway stations in Poland where ambulance trains halted en route from the eastern front. Italian ambulance trains now were said to stop only at smaller stations, passing through the larger ones or stopping for only a short while.

"Front Street" Goes Dark In Power Curb

By The Canadian Press.

The sparkle left the streets of cities and towns in Ontario and Quebec Sunday night as new dim out regulations went into force and centres turned out all but essential lights in an effort to conserve Hydro.

The order, which went into effect at midnight Saturday, left once-brighty lighted streets in wartime darkness, perhaps for the duration of the war.

Store windows were black and only a few electric signs were left burning. Downtown streets in all municipalities presented a picture of drabness, compared with the blazing illumination a week ago.

Toronto streets were almost at the backout stage and only a few lighted display signs were visible. There was almost complete absence of the usual crowds of Sunday night window shoppers.

St. Catharine street at Montreal was only a shadow of its former sparkle. The dimout regulation made a dull glow out of the brightly-lighted thoroughfare.

Downtown Hamilton was almost black and at London the streets were dark as many lights were turned off. At St. Thomas there were no lights on one side of main business streets while at Windsor streets in the one brightly lighted Border City were plunged into near darkness.

Every other light on Guelph streets in the once brightly lighted the Board of Light and Heat.

Saving as high as 21 per cent of the municipalities' regular consumption will be effected by the dim-out order, officials estimated.

Barbers Mourn As "Gazette" Goes For Good

By SETH MOSELEY

NEW YORK, Sept 22 (AP)—All day long today Dan, the barber, went on snipping hair with never a word of the war or the disappearance of the Dodgers. For Dan, faithful subscriber for 29 years, knew that the United States government no longer regarded the Police Gazette as a grand old American tradition.

The unhappy tidings reached the barbers of America from Washington, where the postoffice department, holding that the pink-sheeted weekly "profitably pandered to the lewd and lascivious," barred it from the mails.

"I don't know about that lewd business," Dan said, keeping his eyes averted from the lady of charm on last week's cover, "but I never had to talk much when the men were reading it in the chair."

Last week's edition, possibly the last mail issue, related the sedate home life of a lovely Broadway butterfly, also known as a burlesque stripper; the "streamer" headline on the cover, reading "Brooklyn's Reign of Terror," definitely bore no reference to the Dodgers' latest baseball score.

Its contents were a far cry from pre-20th century days when the Gazette was as necessary to a barber shop as a gilded shaving mug. Then it told of "Lives of the Felons"—what they ate, what they thought—and what the Gazette thought of them.

When it was young, the Gazette carried pictures of killers and wasp-waisted women, the latter sometimes revealing naughtily a bit of high-button shoetop. The sins of this great lamp-lighted city were its materials. Richard K. Fox, its Irish-born publisher, gave diamond-studded belts to champion prize-fighters.

It was founded in 1845, started to slip with the decline of vaudeville and foundered in 1932. H. H. Roswell bought it at auction for $545 and promised to "bring back to the barbers of America a Police Gazette that will bring men in to have their hair cut once a week." He could not be reached for comment on the government's action.

"Seen the Police Gazette?" the vaudeville straight man used to ask.

invaded the continent of Europe.

Thanking the crowd for the warm reception given them, the three Russian heroes expressed the hope a western front would shortly relieve the pressure on the Russian armies.

"The sooner there is a second front, the sooner there will be victory for us," said Lieut. Pavlichenko, the girl sniper, through an interpreter.

Premier Hepburn condemned the Dominion government for permitting a diplomatic envoy of the Vichy government to remain at Ottawa.

"It is time to give that man his bag and baggage and send him back to the traitor he serves too well," said the Premier.

While saying he was inspired by the declarations of labor men at the rally as they described Labor's efforts to increase the country's war production, Premier Hepburn emphasized the war would be won by soldiers on battlefronts.

"The blood of British, Canadian and American youth will stain the soil of Europe alongside their comrades in Russia before the war is won."

A demand for a second front was brought before the rally by four Labor speakers—George Burt, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America; Paul Fournier, president o fthe Montreal Trades and Labor Council; C. S. Jackson, International Vice-President of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, and J. A. Sullivan, Vice-President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who acted as chairman.

Children's Protection Act Taken Place Of Curfew Law

Members of the North Monaghan Township Council discovered in the course of their deliberations that they could not introduce a curfew law, under such a title, but that other legislation is in existence which gives any policeman plenty of authority to deal with children who loiter after dark, and parents who permit this loitering.

The curfew act was repealed in 1908 and replaced with the Children's Protection Act which reads as follows in part, Chapter 312, R.S.O. 1937, Section 16:

(1) No child shall loiter in any public place after nine o'clock in the afternoon or be in any place of public resort or entertainment after that hour unless accompanied by the parent or guardian or an adult appointed by the parent or guardian to accompany such child."

(2) A child found violating the provisions of sub-section 1 may be warned by any constable or probation officer of a children's aid society, and if such warning is not regarded or after such warning the child is again found disobeying the provisions of this section, such child may be taken by the constable or officer to his home or to the children's shelter.

(3) A parent who permits his child to violate this section shall upon summary conviction thereof for the first offence incur a penalty of $1.00 without costs, and for the second offence, $2.00 and for a third or any subsequent offence, $5.00.

Curfew tolls the knell of parting day, but no longer in Ontario, although this new legislation is just as effective in its meaning and administration as the old law, which set forth that children had to scurry home just as soon as the bell tolled the warning of curfew.

but "in another sector the Hitlerites, at a cost of heavy losses, captured a height and a populated place."

Russians were credited with the initiative on the northwestern front. The communique said they pressed back the Germans in fighting for a town and repulsed counter-attacks.

While Russian guerillas were credited with killing 363 Germans, and destruction of 33 railway cars, 27 ammunition trucks and about two miles of railway track in a week's fighting.

Mum On Big Guns

Izvestia stressed a report that German commanders had moved more troops to the Stalingrad area for a new assault intended to overwhelm the garrison. Dispatches repeatedly said the Red army was pouring a deadly mortar fire upon the invaders on the city's approaches, but made no mention of the Russians' prized big guns.

Military leaders in Moscow expressed belief that heavy Russian batteries were firing into the Germans from the east bank of the Volga as well as from positions in and around Stalingrad.

Captives substantiated reports of large German casualties. A prisoner from a German railway battalion said his group, thrown into the fight as a combat unit, lost 65 per cent of its men.

Many Germans have been wounded and survivors of broken units are sent to the rear for regrouping, but fresh forces still move up. There is nothing to indicate the Germans haven't as many men attacking Stalingrad now as at any time since the siege was established Aug. 25.

Izvestia said the Germans rounded up farmers, women and children at a place and drove them ahead of their troops, but Soviet automatic riflemen manoeuvred between and saved the civilians.

(The Berlin radio, as if to shift emphasis from the Stalingrad front, claimed Russian forces had been encircled on the central front after breaking through German positions at two points south of Rzhev.)

The midnight communique said a regiment of tank-supporting Nazi infantry launched several attacks in one Stalingrad sector, but was repulsed with severe losses.

"Two hundred and thirty Hitlerites were wiped out," the communique said, "and 24 motor vehicles and three mortar batteries were wrecked in street fighting by the troops of one unit.

Get 12 Tanks I Attack

"On another sector our forces pressed back the enemy and destroyed 12 tanks and about two German companies."

(Bitter fighting in various sectors of the Soviet front was attended by a report in the Stockholm newspaper Arbetaren that German troops in Norway had been regrouped and it was believed large contingents were being sent to Russia.

(The Nazi-controlled Vichy radio claimed that German troops had crossed the Volga River five days ago but did not report the site such a crossing.

Russian heavy artillery, tanks and planes were reported backing Soviet infantry in attacks upon the Nazi flank in the Upper Don Basin, destroying scores of German dugouts and loosening the invaders' grip upon one settlement after another.

A Soviet rifle detachment forced a new crossing of the Don under heavy fire, field dispatches said.

Russian soldiers, sailors and marines maintained a defence of the Caucasian coast south of the fallen port of Novorossisk.

"Four motor vehicles were demolished, 60 Germans were wiped out and a munitions dump was blown up in the course of three days of operations by one of our patrols," it was announced.

Nazi attacks were declared repulsed in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov River front and a Russian force was credited with capture of a Nazi-fortified position.

Four Axis transports totalling 42,000 tons and a mine layer were sunk by a Red navy submarine in the Baltic Sea.

18,000 Turn Out To Greet Sniper

TORONTO, Sept. 22. — (CP).—Eighteen thousand people strained police lines around the City Hall square here yesterday as they welcomed Lieut. Lyudmila Pavlichenko, Russian army girl sniper and her companions, Lieut. Vladimir Pchelintsev, Russian sniper, and Pte. Nikolai Krasavchenko, Moscow youth leader.

Welcomed at City Hall by Mayor Fred Conboy, the Russian visitors continued to Queen's Park, where the Ontario Civil Servants' War Veterans' Association formed a guard of honor and escorted the party to Premier Mitchell Hepburn's office.

"If they are typical of the Red army, I have little doubt of ultimate victory," Mr. Hepburn said in his welcome to the Russian heroes.

The three soldiers later attended a luncheon held in their honor at the Canadian Club. Attorney-General Gordon Conant introduced the guests at the luncheon.

5 Inches of Water Decreed For Royal Baths

LONDON Sept. 23 (CP). — The King, the Royal family and everybody else at Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle will bathe in no more than five inches of water from now on.

It is a part of Britain's fuel conservation plan, in which the King is taking a leading part.

His Majesty ordered every bathtub in the Royal household painted with a black or red line at the five-inch level, and a notice posted calling attention to the necessity for fuel economy, the Press Association disclosed.

Likewise, the King directed that not more than one small bulb shall be lighted in a bathroom or in any of the palace bedrooms and that all additional bulbs be removed.

No central heating is used at either the palace or the castle at present, and the King has forbidden lighting of fires. There are to be no fires in any bedroom except on physicians' order.

The number of boilers at Windsor Castle has been so reduced that on four days each week, there is no hot water in some residential parts of the castle, and occupants of those rooms have to obtain it from the kitchen.

Fuel economy measures also have been introduced in kitchens, and all unessential lights in palace corridors have been removed.

caused Toronto City Council to pass a resolution asking that Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Federal Minister of Justice, be informed of anti-British remarks. Council also asked the Police Commission to discuss whether the Eaton Auditorium should be closed.

Both Mayor Fred Conboy of Toronto and Attorney-General Conant of Ontario, brought the matter to the attention of Mr. St. Laurent, following which John Chisholm, Toronto Chief of Police, told a special session of the Police Commission he had been instructed to take any steps he considered advisable to "prevent the holding of any meeting in Toronto for the purpose of being addressed by Mr. Dreiser."

The Town Forum committee then cancelled the meeting, Chairman D. Ross saying the statements attributed to Dreiser had been "widely interpreted as a hindrance rather than a help to better understanding" of the United Nations' joint effort for which the meeting was called.

They Stabbed Him

Vancouver, Sept. 22 (CP)

ORDINARY SEAMAN Peter Loudon, 18-year-old member of the crew of the Canadian Destroyer Assiniboine, said here Saturday the crew of the German submarine which was sunk by the destroyer mutinied when an officer attempted to keep them at action station at the point of a revolver. Loudon said the officer who tried to force the crew to keep on fighting was stabbed by one of his own men. "We know this is true because the officer we captured had a knife wound in his shoulder," he said.

Plenty Of Food If Labor Available In '43

By KRANKLIN MULLIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—(AP). — A plentiful supply of food is in sight for next year, if enough man and horse power is available to keep the farms running. Statistics compiled by the grain trade show that the United States physical farm plant is prepared for the task.

Demands of the armed services for men and rationing of farm machinery, manufacture of which has been sharply curtailed, have made the situation acute. Farm leaders, especially in the agricultural middle west, have appealed for deferment of farm labor and particularly farm operators.

Production in 1942 was nine per cent greater than in 1941 whereas only a six-per-cent increase had been sought under goals adopted after the United States entered the war. These can be duplicated or exceeded, the statistics indicated, providing there is sufficient man and horse power.

The outlook from the standpoint of soil condition, feed and seed supplies was never brighter, records showed. Production of feed this year, the basis for estimates on the output of meat, milk and eggs in 1943, was of record proportions. These supplies will nourish and fatten the greatest population of livestock ever on farms, expected to be about 13 per cent greater than last year.

Equipment may be a huge problem. New machinery has been rationed and may be expected to become harder to obtain.

Partly as a result of these prices but largely because of the huge production of 1942, agriculture's income is expected to be near $15,000,000,000, a record, compared with about $11,000,000,000 last year and below $5,000,000,000 in 1932.

Congress Spurts On Living Cost Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Administration leaders opened a drive in Congress today to deliver to President Roosevelt by the end of the week legislation delegating to him broad, new statutory powers to control the cost of living in the United States.

The Senate prepared to start debate during the day on a measure authorizing and directing the President to act before Nov. 1 to stabili[illegible] prices, wages and salaries at Se[illegible] 15 levels, so far as practical.

The House of Representatives, awaiting a decision by its rules committee on the length and scope of its prospective debate, scheduled consideration of a somewhat different version tomorrow with leaders counting on a final vote late Wednesday or Thursday.

A speedy adjustment of the Senate-House differences would be necessary to put the measure on the President's desk Saturday, five days before the Oct. 1 deadline he set in his you-do-it-or-I-will message to Congress of Sept. 7.

With this rapid-fire timetable in mind, the Administration mustered forces in an attempt to beat off expected farm-bloc amendments which would boost by 4.6 per cent the lowest level at which price ceilings could be applied to agricultural products.

Under terms of both House and Senate measures, the President would be authorized to suspend present provisions of law which prevent the fixing of farm prices at less than 110 per cent of parity. (Parity is a standard calculated to equalize the prices of things the farmer sells with those of what he buys.)

It's as easy as that to make your telephone talks briefer

Please think before you telephone: "Do I have to make this call?"

And whenever you are on the telephone, ask yourself: "Am I keeping this talk as brief as I can?"

Yes, it will be hard at first to limit your telephone time to a fraction of what it used to be. But the war is changing a lot of habits . . . and the high-speed tempo of war business has put a heavy load on telephone equipment which cannot be further expanded.

The situation is sure to grow more urgent. You can help by confining yourself to essential calls . . . and by making them brief.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Davis, 622 Donegal Street, are quietly observing the 50th anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday, September 22. Mr. Davis is 73 and his wife is 69. There are six children in the family. (Staff Photo)

Veteran Service Station Operator Marks 50th Wedding Anniversary

Closing of gasoline service stations at seven in the evening and on Sundays was one of the finest bits of legislation arising out of war conditions, A. V. Davis, Reid street service operator stated today. Mr. Davis, who is 73 years of age, is observing with his wife the 50th anniversary of their marriage, and all members of the family are expected home for the occasion.

"Every man is entitled to a day of rest, and he should not have to work until midnight every day of the week to make a living. I believe the stations are pumping just as much gas now as they did in seven days before and the motorists have become educated to the new time. I do hope they never change back to the old system."

Mr. and Mrs. Davis live at 622 Donegal street and they started married life much in the same manner as the Canadian pioneers, as they bought a piece of land in Cavendish township near Pencil lake, cleared the land, built their home and raised a family.

They were married in Lindsay, and Mrs. Davis, who was prior to her marriage, Elizabeth Haines of Mulmer township, near Orangeville, had been living in Kinmount. Mr. Davis was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Dummer township pioneers. As a boy he drove the river, worked as a lumberjack and travelled considerably He worked on the building of the Minneapolis and Sault St. Marie railroad, and later helped build the I. B. and O. in the Victoria and Haliburton counties.

Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Davis lived for two years near Irondale, and then moved to Cavendish. After 17 years in Cavendish they moved to Peterborough, where Mr. Davis was employed as a teamster with the Trent Canal for more than 20 years. He helped build the dam at Eel's lake and at Bottle lake.

After operating a service station at Oshawa for a year they moved back to Peterborough, and for the past seven years Mr. Davis has been operating the service station at the corner of Reid and Dublin streets.

In a chat with these two people, a reporter learned they keep well abreast of the times, and the sympathy of Mrs. Davis lies with the girls of marriageable age today who see their boys going off to war." It is difficult for a girl to see the man she loves go away to war, but she must remember that if she marries him before he goes, she must bear in mind until he returns, that she is a married woman and must conduct herself in a manner that will bring the approval of the community and not its scorn."

The marriage was blessed with seven children, six of whom are living, and both Mr. and Mrs. Davis believe that a big family, while it may bring a lot of work, adds to the happiness of a home. "The happy reunions at Christmas pays one back for a lot of hard work," she said.

The members of the family are as follows: Gordon of Oshawa; Lulu (Mrs. Fred Edwards), Peterborough; Myrtle (Mrs. George Hall) Oshawa; Harold of Charlotte street, Peterborough; Clair of Oshawa; and Eva (Mrs. Dick Martyn) of Peterborough. There are nine grandchildren.

Women Taxi Drivers Must Be 21 Police Commission Decides

Women taxi drivers in Peterborough will have to be at least 21 years of age, the board of police commissioners decided at their regular meeting Monday afternoon, the first in two months.

The question was brought to the front when Hugh Davis, taxi proprietor waited on the board to ask that an age limit be set so that the taxi men would have a guide as to selecting girl drivers.

"It's hard to get men" Davis told the board, "I am short five drivers now and while a lot of women have applied I have not been able to engage them because I did not know what age you might set."

"Personally I don't think a girl under 21 years of age should be allowed to do that kind of work" said Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman of the commission.

"I wouldn't like to see young girls driving taxis" Mayor Hamilton remarked and Magistrate E. A. Gee concurred in that opinion.

The 21-year limit was agreed upon, but Judge Smoke pointed out that every application would have to stand on its own merit. In a general discussion on the taxi business, Mr. Davis volunteered the opinion that he did not believe there would be a taxi man in business a year from now. The difficulty of replacing tires and increasing cost of operation with the War Time Prices and Trade Board refusing to permit an increase in fares were mentioned as part of the grief in the taxi business just now.

"There's not much we can do to help you" remarked Judge Smoke, and the one-man deputation agreed with that appreciation of the situation.

Davis said that the local garage men had been allowed to raise their charges, in spite of the ceiling. There is no use complaining to the local War Time Prices and Trade Board because it has a garage man as head of it" he said.

"Why don't you file a complaint with the regional board, in that case?" asked Judge Smoke.

Later the commission passed amendments to the taxi bylaw, making it legal to employ women drivers but providing that they must only drive between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Applications for taxi drivers' licenses were received from Thompson Huggins, R.R. South Monaghan, Sidney Bottingham, Y.M.C.A., Ray Laton, Driscoll terrace, Robt. E. McCully, Princess street, and Thos. J. Buck, and were granted on motion of Judge Smoke, seconded by Magistrate Gee.

The police radio system has been out of commission for some time and it was decided to endeavor to have the radio service man of the Guelph police department visit Peterborough and check over the apparatus. Guelph has the same system as the local setup.

SCHOOL DAYS.

Book stores in the city had a big quota of bicycles parked outside their doors to-day as high school students jammed the stores to purchase the new text books required in their studies.

MORE MEMBERS ADDED

Applications from seven more men who wish to join the A.R.P. Auxiliary police were favorably received by the police commission at its Monday meeting. The board also approved the selection of Miss Amy Wood as police matron for the A.R.P. police force.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that Reeve Johnston of North Monaghan will attend the Adjourned Tax Sale of the County of Peterborough, and will purchase in the name of the Municipality all property belonging to the Township which does not bring taxes and costs.

Market Stall Nets $15 For War Victims

The happy idea, whereby the farmers of the surrounding district united in their own localities, and provide donations for the stall at the market on Saturdays is more and more proving its worth, with the third time of operation on Saturday, September 19.

Led by a convener who gets in touch with them in their own district, the farmers have responded in increasing manner each week, and the city folk have collaborated so that all such produce has been sold, with 100% of the proceeds coming to the fund.

This Saturday past, the farmers of Springville centre with Miss Jean Fairburn as convener, supplied the stall, and two girl guides Kitty Smith and Lona Parrott were again on the job as sales and records clerks, with the total result that $15.02 in all is credited in today's list for the city and district fund to relieve the distress of air raid victims in Britain.

For this particular effort, donations were received from J. F. Staples, B. Butcher, W. Bowles, E. Johnston, Mrs. F. Robson, S. Fairburn, B. Preston, G. McIntosh, the Elliott Brothers, Mr. Strong, Mrs. H. Bothwell, N. Bowles, Mrs. V. Tully, Mrs. F. Clifford, F. Lillico, A. Hunter, Mrs. F. Winslow, M. H. Johnston, and Mrs. S. S. Staples.

The amount turned in by the two girl guides was $11.87, and S. Fairburn then carried on the sales on his stand on the open market to raise a further $2.65, which was later added to through the convener herself sending in another 50 cents, which brought the total up to the above-mentioned amount of $15.02.

This coming Saturday, the stall will be supplied by the farmers from Fairview district, with Mrs. W. Folwler, the energetic secretary of the war work group of that place acting as convener.

The penny box in the Sergeants' Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers has on more than one occasion given the fund a boost, and once again it is listed with a further contribution in an amount of $5, having been brought up to that amount when opened by the secretary of the fund on Monday afternoon, while one personal donation under "No Name" is listed for $5.

Some time ago Herbert Jackson, farmer of R.R. No. 2, Omemee, made and donated a sewing cabinet to the fund, which was the means of raising over $42, at which time he promised to make something else to help things along. True to that promise, he has made a solid oak jardinere stand which could grace any home, and if anyone could supply a jardiniere, to go with it, the secretary of the fund would be pleased to learn of such, and would call for it on being advised of such.

Lions Planning To Boost City Playground

Charles Carter of Bowmanville, Deputy District Governor of District A, Lions Clubs, told members of the Peterborough Lions Club on Monday evening, that victory is only a means to an end, namely a step towards establishing a universal brotherhood of man which the war interrupted.

Introduced by Fred Cripps, of the Peterborough club, Mr. Carter took some exceptions to a title in the Lions Magazine, which read "Lionism is needed more than ever now." He said "Lionism is not dependent upon any time that will emphasize its usefulness, nor may any time detract from its value or the truth of its promise "Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nation's Safety." These are ideals or better still an ideal synonymous with every moment of man. If we say or even imply that Lionism is needed now more than at any other time, because we are at war, what shall we say in that time after the war. Through Lions patriotism can be recognized in its true meaning, for its true self. That is not something, some purpose which may be filed away with every peace treaty, there to remain in obscurity until it is brought out and dusted off with every declaration of war. That it should mean not only willingness and ability to die for one's country in time of war but to live or die to keep one's country out of war."

Keeping this in mind, do we regard victory as the end we are seeking? We must have victory, we must win, we shall win. Being right we cannot do otherwise. But we must realize that victory is the means to the end we seek. That we as Lions, that our country as a Christian democracy has been interrupted in the consummation of its avowed purpose—that of re-establishing a universal brotherhood of man. I say re-establish for surely that is the state in which we were created in the image of God. Men, not God, have wandered from the true path.

Post War Planning

The first the immediate requisite is to win, but let us not lose sight, after victory, the manner of and the reason for our winning. We are called the United Nations. We like to think of ourselves as a united people, we are not, and must not ever be placed in the position of being the anonymous associates of a bureaucratic hegemony. Our government and the governments associated with our government are our servants, charged not only with winning the war, but of redeeming to the extent of our share, our failure to maintain the peace. In the ecstasy of victory, the relaxation that will come with peace, we must not, or permit them, to lose sight of that fact."

I have implied post war planning without putting forth any definite plan, but I know that as far as Lionism is concerned there will be better, keener minds than mine to effect what must and will be done."

During the dinner meeting, certificates for meritorious work were presented to J. E. Girven, retiring president and Jack Armitage, retiring secretary who has held that important post for four years. Armitage has now been named Advisory Council Chairman.

Report of the recent carnival was given by Fraser Watson, and his report indicated the club had a net profit of $2,496.87 on the venture. Rev. C. E. Moore in a vote of thanks to the members for their fine work, paid special tribute to Victor Gallon and J. E. Girven for the success of the carnival.

To Aid Children

Frank Edgar, reporting on club projects suggested that the Lions assume the responsibility of setting up and maintaining a public playground on Park street south on the property owned by the city. The members were keen to accept the proposal and it will be discussed more fully at a later meeting.

Guests at the club included Chief Officer Ralph Strong, U.S. Maritime Service; James Woolley, Bank of Montreal; Emmons Crawford, District Governor, Bowmanville; Charles Carter, District Deputy, Bowmanville; Bruce Malcolm, District Secretary, Toronto; Cliff Eastman, and George O'Neill of the Port Hope Club; Roy Cornish and Bert Hutchinson, Port Perry Club, and Aubrey Smith and Andy Thompson of the Bowmanville Club. Dr. A. R. Stevenson, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist who has just started practice in this city was also a guest of the club.

Germans Forced To Man Deck Guns At Point Of Pistol Survivor Tells Assiniboine Crew

Fire set by the German gunners on the destroyer Assiniboine was a contributing factor in the loss of the German sub, because the smoke formed a protective curtain for the gunners on the starboard side of the destroyer, thus handicapping the U-boat gunners, Petty Officer Bun Dorrington stated today. Dorrington lives at 52 Victoria Avenue, and is a member of the Assiniboine. He is now home on leave.

A short time ago, Canadians were cheered by the heartening news that the Canadian destroyer had sunk the U-boat following a blistering hide-and-seek battle in the Atlantic, and several members of the U-boat had been captured. Several stories as told by crew members have been written, but the articles missed a few of the most amazing parts.

"We were forced to man the deck guns at the point of pistols," one German prisoner, named Mike, who formerly lived in the Canadian West told Dorrington.

Hard To Get Deck Range

This was obviously the truth, for the Lewis gunners aboard the destroyer had the range on the submarine deck and were wiping out the gun crews almost as fast as they came on deck. The Canadians were handicapped because the destroyer was close to the submarine, and the guns mounted high on the destroyed decks were hard to manipulate down a steep angle of fire at the sub.

The Germans had a fairly heavy calibre gun on the foredeck and an Oerlickon gun, a small bore rapid-fire gun aft, which fired explosive mushroom bullets at a terrific rate. This was the gun that set fire to the destroyer.

"I don't believe the submarine could submerge, because they made it a surface battle, and would have had the advantage had they gone down," Dorrington stated.

The battle finally ended when the destroyer skipper, Captain Stubbs, had the ship manoeuvred into position and rammed the underseas craft. Several prisoners were taken and they seemed quite docile, but the two officers were arrogant and domineering.

Planned Mass Attack

Dorrington stated that one of the prisoners told that the sub had instructions to meet at a point in the Atlantic five miles off the convoy and then the plan was to gang up on the destroyer and sink it. Apparently the other subs didn't keep the rendezvous, so the lone U-boat moved into the attack. "We stood off there five miles and watched this convoy for several hours," one prisoner said.

Zigzagging back and forth in the heavy fog, the sub attacked the destroyer, but the crew of the Canadian boat, threw everything except the kitchen utensils at their attacker. Depth charges, machine gun fire, and gunfire from the naval deck guns, raked the sub, as it circled the destroyer, and it is likely that the deadly fire of the Lewis gunners at 200 yards whittled down the crew so rapidly that it turned the tide of battle.

Dorrington was on the depth-charge crew on the port bow aft, and it was the starboard crew that had most of the action. One chap in the latter crew took thirty pictures during the engagement, and was wounded in the arm by flying shrapnel.

"The action ended when the destroyer turned and rammed the sub amidships. She had just come down the starboard side and just as we dropped the depth charges, the after gunners sent a charge right into the conning tower. The action lasted about an hour and a half, and I believe like everyone else that the skill of our skipper, Lieut.-Commander Stubbs was the deciding factor in this battle."

Dorrington served for two years on the ill-fated destroyer Ottawa before being transferred to the Assiniboine.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

SIDEWALKS FINISHED

The Board of Works has completed concrete sidewaks on Douglas Avenue and Brewer street.

NEW PARATROOPER

Sgt. David Leether, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Leether, 358 George street, has returned from England on a furlough after which he is to begin paratroop traning.

NIGHT FIRE

A defective fireplace was the cause of a fire at the home of Ford Turner, 800 Water street, Monday evening. The Fire Department answered a call at 10:31 p.m. and Chief Gimblett said that there was some damage. The Turners had a fire going in the fireplace when the boards below caught fire. Besides some damage in the basement, there is a hole in the side of the fireplace.

NEW RESTRICTIONS.

The pressure of war is about to cause further restrictions for the people of this city. Beginning October 1, both Railway Express Companies at the request of the oil controller, are confining their delivery and pick-up services to between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

TAG DAY DATES SET

Dates were set for three seasonal tag day appeals at Monday's meeting of the board of police commissioners. W. G. Shiner for the Boy Scouts' Association asked permission for that body to hold its annual Apple Day on Saturday, October 17 and that request was granted. The five chapters of the I.O.D.E. and the auxiliary of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders were given permission to hold a tag day on October 3 to raise funds for sending Christmas presents to Peterboorugh soldiers overseas. The Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion will stage its annual Poppy Day effort on November 7.

CLOSE TO FREEZING

The temperature Monday morning reached a low of 35 degrees, backing down two extra notches after six o'clock, A. O. Phillips informed the Examiner today. This morning the register was at 36, just hovering above the freezing point.

ANOTHER CASUALTY.

Gnr. Earl George Dean, Royal Canadian Artillery, formerly of Lindsay, who was listed previously as a prisoner of war in the casualty lists, is now reported to have died while a prisoner. His next of kin is his wife, Mrs. M. E. Dean, Lindsay.

OPEN SEASON ON PARTRIDGE

This year as in other years there will be two open seasons for partridge hunting. The first one will open on October 3 and extend to October 14, both days inclusive. The second opens during the deer season and extends from November 2 and November 12. The bag limit is five birds per day or 25 for the season.

MERCHANT DIES

Charles Cancilla, prominent Port Hope fruit merchant who has operated a fruit store on the main street for a quarter of a century, died suddenly in Port Hope Hospital. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Marie Cancilla of Port Hope.

A FREAK ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Grundy of Toronto were in a car mishap at the corner of Victoria and Marsh streets, Port Hope, on Monday evening. The car struck a bump and went out of control, landing in a ditch. Mrs. Grundy received serious cuts on the face and head, and has slight concussion. Provincial Constable Gordon Broughton investigated.

COMMISSIONER DIES.

Stanley Darling, local insurance man, is a nephew of the late Dr. W. D. Smith, of Toronto, who died suddenly a few days ago. Dr. Smith had been a commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Board since 1939. He was a Liberal member for Dufferin-Simcoe from 1934 to 1937.

TAKEN OFF THE ROAD.

Following a minor accident, one of those old model cars that youth likes to daub up with bright paint and quaint mottos, was taken off the road by the police Sunday, When an effort was made to test the brakes on the ancient car, the owner could not get the engine started so the machine was ordered off. Ironically enough it had the slogan, "Keep Them Rolling," prominently displayed.

Graduate Nurses ATTENTION!

There will be a meeting of all graduate nurses on Thursday, Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. in green room of Y.W.C.A. for purpose of electing a local officer and unit officers for Red Cross Emergency Reserve Nursing Corps.

Joins His Ship

Thomas P. Panter, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Panter, 498 Patterson Street, who after completing training on the H.M.C.S. York, has joined his ship. Before entering the navy, Thomas was employed at the C.G.E. He was also a member of the Salvation Army Temple band.

9-Period Day Inaugurated As PCVS Opens

The Peterborough Collegiate opened to-day with the usual crowds of students filling the Assembly Hall to get instructions for the opening day. One of the new things to be introduced this year is a 9-period day instead of the usual eight. There will be five periods in the morning and four in the afternoon, and this should help take care of some of the overlapping classes that have been so troublesome in the last couple of years.

As for the registration, L. J. Petitt, acting principal, said that it would be another week before they would be able to make a real estimate and comparison. He said that as usual there will be a number of stragglers who will start in a day or two, and there are still many students serving on farms or fruit areas. These people will be marked present along with the regular students if they are back in school before October 5. Another source reported about 835 in attendance today. Last year 949 attended at the opening.

There have been three teachers from the staff enter the armed services. But there is only one new member of the staff, Miss Katherine MacDougal, a specialist in Home Economics, who is replacing Miss Kirkwood, who resigned at the end of the last term. The work ordinarily taught by the three men who have left, H. Toole, R. David and H. Craig, will be absorbed by the other members of the regular staff.

After the morning session, the rush started on the book stores, as pupils hurried to collect the volumes of knowledge from which their teachers hope they will learn a good deal during this new term. Even the extended holiday has not made most of the students any too anxious to return to their books.

Lt. I. S. McLeod Missing Aboard Ottawa

The sinking of the H.M.C.S. Ottawa has added another name to the list of casualties associated with men of this city. Although he lived here for only a year, Lieut. Ian Stanley McLeod formerly a traveller with the Imperial Tobacco Company, made many friends, and he fell so completely in love with the district that he persuaded his wife to spend some months in the early part of 1942 in the city.

Lieut. McLeod signed up in the Navy two years ago this past Labor Day, and he was formerly attached to a corvette. In January he began taking a special course in navigation and for this he received training in both Canada and Great Britain before he was assigned to his new post as navigating officer of the Ottawa. He was in Peterborough on leave in April, and after he took up his new duties, his son was born here in May.

He expected to have four-weeks' leave in August, and was looking forward with great pleasure to meeting the son he had never seen, but unforeseen circumstances cancelled the leave, and so Mrs. McLeod remained with her mother in Haileybury where she had gone shortly after the baby's birth.

Lieut. McLeod was born in Hamilton, son of Mrs. Lilian McLeod, 811 King Street East, and he received his education there at the Central Collegiate. Last Saturday was his 27th birthday, his second since joining the R.C.N.V.R.

The casualty report released from Otawa stated simply, "msising — Ottawa stated simply, "missing — believed killed." and it was a great shock to his many friends and business associates in this city, where he had become exceedingly well known in a short space of time. His passing will be sorely missed by all who knew him in both his birthplace and his adopted city.

DOCTORS ON CALL.

Your Spine

is the line-shaft of your body.

It has a direct controlling influence on your health and movements.

There are nerves emitting through openings between each pair of vertebrae all along the spinal column and these nerves send branches to nearly every part of your body.

If any of these nerves are constricted because of misalignment of a joint of the spine or hips, weakness and lack of proper function will exist in the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

A severe nerve irritation at the upper part of the neck can be responsible for upsetting the whole nervous system.

Our method of spinal manipulation has proven effective in overcoming a great many nervous disorders and physical handicaps.

Jack Fowley. Canon Robertson visited the pack in time to hear some of the lads trying to recite.

Following the opening ceremonies, two games were played. Owing to the fact that the special instructors were unable to attend, the program was switched to the competition for winning jungle names. The first one for singing was given to Bob Gilmour, Chill. Stuart Wigg will be known as Keego for swimming prowess. Douglas Britnell same through in knotting and will be known as Karela. In recitation there was no one to pass Bobby Craw, who was awarded the name of Oonai. In skipping, the competition was keen, with Jack Adams doing everything efforded by George Hall the first won the name of Jacala, whilst the latter received Shaw-Shaw. The smallest cub was absent, but was unanimously voted as Suggeema (the Mosquito), we hope George Franks will read and remember this.

During the Red Flower Lorne Bolton was presented with his First Star and Doug. Robinson with the swimmer's badge. The Red Six were warned for duty next week. Black Six for stunt, and Grey Six to write the log for this week.

Registration

All groups should remember that next month is the time for registration. Why not start on the work now.

St. Luke's

A good attendance was recorded at the opening fall meeting of the pack, every cub anxious to get back to cubbing. The reforming of the pack gave promotion to several boys as new sixers and seconders were appointed as follows: Blue Six, Wayne Ferguson, sixer; George Gough, seconder; Red Six, Bob Wyatt, sixer; Kenneth Johnson, seconder; White Six, Alistair Fettes, sixer; Alfred Curtis, seconder.

A permanent progress chart has been built, the tags for the totem pole repainted and other tags prepared to attach to the totem pole as a record o those boys who have gone to the troop.

Akele gave the boys a talk on the duties of the sixers and seconders. Billie King left the pack in a going up ceremony, and is now with the troop. Good hunting, Billie. La Vergne Butcher was promoted to senior sixer, and was given his third arm band, also his three years' service star, collector's and toymaker's badges.

In future the meetings will start at 6.30 p.m. sharp, and the leaders would appreciate the co-operation of the parents in this matter, also points will be awarded for neatness. Any boys wishing to join the pack are invited to attend the meetings every Tuesday night at 6.30 p.m. in St. Luke's Sunday School.

St. Andrew's

The patrol leaders and seconds are requested to attend a meeting call for 6.30 p.m. on Thursday. All other boys will come along at the usual time. It is the desire of the scouter to get thing running. Why not do your part?

Mothers' Auxiliary

St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary is holding a monthly meeting at 3 p.m. on Thursday of this week, September 24, in the St. John's Sunday School. The mothers of all scouts and cubs are cordially invited to attend.

Apple Day

Don't forget. Apple Day is just three weeks away We hope that you have made a start, to be prepared to do your part.

Home and School Association News

HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL.

The regular meeting of the Home and School Association Council was held on Monday evening in the staff room of the Y.W.C.A. with the president, Mrs. C. Chambers, in the chair. The president opened the meeting by welcoming the members and warning them that a year of hard work lay ahead.

The matter of the Regional conference of Home and School Associations was discussed and it was decided that, with the permission of the Provincial Federation, a regional conference would be held in Peterborough. Belleville and Perth, the two nearest conference centres to Peterborough and district, were rather distant, considering gas and tire situation, and it was thought that a conference in Peterborough for Lindsay, Havelock, Norwood and other centres would be a good idea.

Mrs. R. Parnall was appointed program convener for the conference, and it is hoped that Miss M. Davidson will address the gathering on Home Education. The matter of refreshments was discussed and it was suggested that a church organization be approached with a view to having them cater, but nothing definite was arranged. A rummage is to be held by the Council at the site on George street of the former Dutton's Nut Shop, on Saturday, September 26, to defray expenses of the conference. Associations are urged to have their contributions at the store on Friday afternoon.

The meeting was told that the ministers who give religious instruction in the schools would very much like some illustrations to help in the lessons, but that nothing of this kind was provided by the Board of Education. It was decided that the Council should ask the Board to supply these things.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

Mrs. M. Parry, president, was in the chair for the September meeting of the Confederation Home and School Association. Mrs. W. White was elected convener of War Work for another year and she read a letter received from a mother in England, thanking the members for layette which she had received. It was decided to send fruit and flowers to Mrs. Douglas, a member of the association, who is confined to hospital following a serious accident. Mrs. Douglas was always a willing worker and the hope was expressed that she would soon be able to attend the meetings again. Miss Day, the new teacher, was introduced and welcomed to the association. The attendance banner was won by Miss Johnston's class.

Range Pals Meet

Range Pals met at the home of Miss Audrey and Norma Timlin, on Friday evening. Quilt making occupied the first hour of the meeting. During the business period letters, from Range Pals serving overseas, were read. The president reminded those present that it had been decided earlier, in the year, that each family raise a dollar for Range Pals War Fund and that none had yet been turned in.

Contests and games followed and lunch was served. At the conclusion of the evening Miss Daisy Bell, on behalf of the Range Pals, wished Miss Norma Timlin best wishes on entering her second year at Queen's University, Kingston.

Next week's meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell, Otonabee.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, September 23
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A BRILLIANT opening for accomplishing some outstanding performance in the direction of a cherished goal or worthwhile objective is seen from the predominant planetary operations. However, while the aims and ambitions may be lifted to such progress and achievement, there are disruptive or thwarting undercurrents to hinder and postpone if not entirely obstruct. It might be possible to fortify this frustrating situation by the aid of well-established bodies or organizations, business, political or fraternal.

Those whose birthday it is might be given the brilliant opportunity to reach a cherished goal of accomplishment or progress, with honors, profit and fulfilled ambitions, but for a matter seeming to obstruct, delay or decisively set aside, at least for the time being.

in the first game of the Southern Ontario finals....Spider Armstrong of Toronto was knocked out by Frankie Carto of Philadelphia in the third round of their lightweight bout at Philadelphia last night....Chief George Gimblett and R. F. Downey demonstrated in the Oshawa bowling tournament that they are masters of the draw. They won first and second prizes when the winners had to be decided in that way....Hamilton sport revenue from the Pony League and senior lacrosse this season took a sharp drop. The Parks Board share for rental of Scott Park fell $2,000 short of last year....Second game in the Industrial League finals will be staged at Riverside Park tomorrow, Wednesday evening at 6.15 o'clock.

Low-Calorie Foods Reduce Poundage

Fat Girl Left Alone at Parties

"Ruthie's fat but awfully nice," the hostess said. But the men prefer the slender girls somehow!

If you're a "Ruthie" you needn't accept such a fate. You can lose two pounds a week, choosing foods that cut you down to 1200 calories a day, instead of the high quantity —maybe 4,000—you get now.

It's easy. When you know your calories you can have just as much to eat. Sliced chicken has only 100 calories a serving (creamed chicken has 435) and a baked white potato (100) is as filling as a sweet potato (200).

Desserts, too, may be on your reducing menu as long as they're low-calory—such as apple snow, 125 a cup—but NOT chocolate blanc mange, 431!

By being smart about your food you win a smart figure; soon everyone admires yours!

To know your calories, see our 32-page booklet. It has a calory chart, 42 delicious low-calory menus, recipes for slimming desserts. Includes a 3-day liquid diet to start your reducing.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "The New Way to a Youthful Figure" to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of boo...

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU CAN'T DO BOTH

CLEAR-CUT decision as to which method you intend to use is vital in the play of most difficult hands. Choosing one course may render the other impossible. Whichever one you embark upon commits you to seeing it through that way, whether it works or not. That applies particularly to the use of the trumps in dummy. Sometimes, if you employ them to ruff a loser or losers in your own hand, you will no longer have them there to use as entries for cashing a long suit. Conversely, if you use them up on straight trump leads, you won't have them for ruffing.

After West led the club K to the A, the declarer did some very "unthorough" thinking, if there is such a word as that. He saw right away that he could ruff his losing club in dummy, so set out with that in mind, without planning further. To the second trick he finessed the heart J, the Q winning, and won the returned diamond 3 with the K when East held up his A over the Q. Then he led the club 9 to be ruffed by the heart 5.

Now he worked on the spades, leading the 2 to the Q and K. The next diamond caused East to win the Q with the A and return the spade J to the A. On the spade 9, East discarded, so the diamond 5 was thrown off. The heart 6 to the A killed the K. The diamond 8 was ruffed by the heart 7 and over-ruffed by the 9. The club J was then ruffed by the heart 2 and the heart 10 cashed, but the diamond 9 then had to be lost to the J, setting the contract.

Careful planning could have shown the declarer that his sole chance lay in running spades after trumps were out. Had he taken the opening club, lost the heart finesse to the Q, won the returned diamond as he did, then dropped trumps with the A and 10, he would have had the fourth trump in dummy for a re-entry to cash spades. Then he could have led the spade Q, West covering and the A winning. The spade 2 could have been given up to the J, and he would then have been okeh. East could have cashed the diamond A, but now the late ruff of a club could have put declarer in dummy to run the good spades, discarding all of the losing diamonds on them.

On what does the success of a 4-Heart contract by South on this deal depend? How can West make it either easier or harder for South to succeed?

Four Canadians Win D.F.C., Two At Dieppe

LONDON, Sept. 22 (CP Cable). — Canada's ever-growing honors list was increased today with announcement of awards to four Canadian airmen, two of them for heroism during the Dieppe raid.

The Distinguished Flying Cross went to Flt. Lt. James Whitham of Edmonton, PO. George Allan Casey, Mitchell, Ont., and PO. George Pepper, native of Belleville, Ont., now living in England. Sgt. Clarence Scott of Tisdale, Sask., was awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Scott's award resulted from a thrilling episode over Dieppe. He was wireless operator-air gunner in an aircraft detailed to attack a selected target prior to troop landings. The bombing was accomplished, but on the return flight his aircraft was attacked by a Focke-Wulf 190 and set afire.

As the plane plunged into the sea near the French coast Scott gave the enemy a final burst from his guns. He was thrown clear when the plane struck the water and soon became aware his two flying companions were in the wreckage.

The gunner inflated his "Mae West" jacket and swam to the spot where his two crewmates had come up unconscious. Scott held the pilot's head above water while he inflated his jacket, then he inflated the crashed plane's dinghy and pushed the pilot into it. Next he swam to the observer's side, blew up his jacket and got him into the dinghy. He was spotted by a British aircraft which sent a rescue launch.

Scott's citation today said: "In the face of extreme danger this gallant airman displayed conspicuous courage and determination in his resolve to save his companions, both of whom were injured and in distress."

Scott suffered a sprained ankle and a deep cut over the eye.

Casey was wireless operator-air gunner in the leading aircraft of a formation of bombers detailed to carry out a smoke-bomb attack in support of the Dieppe operations. He met considerable fire and his plane was hit repeatedly. One engine was put out of action and Casey was wounded in both thighs while his R.A.F. co-gunner was critically injured.

The bombs were released from low level and Casey, disregarding his injuries, engaged enemy defences whenever they came within reach of his guns.

Whitham, member of a famed Canadian fighter squadron, received his decoration or bravery and initiative in a large number of sorties over enemy territory while the award to Pepper was for consistent and skilful flying in the face of danger.

Five Quilts Completed By Warsaw Workers

WARSAW, Sept. 22 — (ENS). — Twenty-five ladies were present at the war work meeting in the Institute Rooms on Thursday all day, with 21 sitting down at noon to a pot-luck dinner. Five quilts were completed, also several items of sewing and knitting were returned.

The committee reported seventeen Christmas boxes packed and sent overseas. It was decided to purchase a coal oil stove for use in the rooms.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of appreciation to the board of the 4th Line School for its donation of $10 from a dance, also to Wilbert Wright for his efforts in sponsoring a war dance which netted $64.00 to be used for Christmas cheer boxes.

He Wants To Call Off The War

This spirited battle took place at Port Washington, N.Y., when the Women's Defence Cadets of America fought off a force of "invaders" composed of members of the New York State Guard. The cadet lost her gun, but that didn't hamper her fighting one bit. By the time she got through with her male opponent he was more than ready to declare an armistice.

Brig. Macfarlane Is Promoted

OTTAWA, Sept. 22—(CP)—Appointment of Brig. A. R. Macfarlane, 50, of Toronto, Deputy Master-General of the Ordnance, as District Officer Commanding Military District No. 10, with headquarters in Winnipeg, was announced to-day by Defence Minister Ralston. Brig. MacFarlane succeeds Brig. Harold J. Riley.

Brig. Riley's resignation, for reasons of health, was announced Sept. 14.

Brig. Macfarlane distinguished himself in the First Great War by winning the D.S.O. three times. He also was mentioned in dispatches five times. He saw 4½ years' service in that conflict.

On demobilization, he joined the Ford Motor Company of Canada, in 1919 and held various Canadian positions and also spent four years in Australia and New Zealand.

In recent years, he headed his own company of importers and exporters in Toronto. Almost two years ago, he was appointed to the post of director of mechanization in the Master-General of the Ordnance Franch, and was promoted from Lieut.-Colonel to the rank of Colonel. After 14 months' service in that capacity he was promoted Brigadier and named Deputy Master-General of the Ordnance.

His work with the M.G.O. branch took him to Great Britain and the United States. He is an expert on all forms of mechanization as it applied to the Canadian army. He was born in Montreal.

Marmora Holds Harvest Service

MARMORA, Sept. 22—(ENS). — Flowers, fruits and vegetables in goodly profusion beautifully adorned the interior of St. Paul's Anglican Church on Sunday for the annual harvest thanksgiving service which was conducted by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, and marked with a good attendance of worshippers who joined with the choir in the hearty rendition of harvest hymns.

As an anthem the choir sang William Chatterton Dix's hymn "To Thee O Lord, Our Hearts We Raise."

W. J. Cottrell, who as a choir boy attended the funeral of the hymnologist in England, took the solo part and also read the lessons.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell preached an impressive [illegible]rmon, stressing the duty we [illegible] of thankfulness to the Creator [illegible] all good things.

Week-end guests included William Nayler of the Royal Canadian Navy, Toronto, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nayler; Miss Joyce Howard, nurse-in-training at Nicholls Hospital, at her home here; Mr. Gordon Burns of Peterborough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Burns; Miss Grace Prentice of Belleville, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Prentice; Private Ernest Gordon of the Canadian Army Service Corps, Peterborough, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gordon; Private Ray Nayler of the Ordnance Corps, Peterborough, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Mrs. Ralph Staples Is Hostess To Cavan W.I.

CAVAN, Sept. 22—(ENS).— The monthly meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Staples on Thursday. Thirteen members answered the roll call, "A Wartime Do or Don't."

Two members, Mrs. Keegan and Mrs. Hunter, were chosen as delegates for the district rally for Institute officers and members to be held on October 15.

The conference, consisting of three institutes of Mt. Pleasant, Millbrook and Cavan, which is to be held in Cavan in November, was discussed. Mrs. Mervin Smith, Mrs. Ralph Staples, and Mrs. Charlie Smith were the committee chosen for the conference.

It was decided that the Institute prepare the Christmas boxes soon that are to be sent to the Cavan boys overseas.

The Institute asked for two linings and two quilt batts and also asked that each member of the Institute make a quilt block 12" square within two weeks. This in connectoin with their Red Cross program.

The program for the meeting consisted of two readings by Mrs. Richardson; a mock Institute meeting in which each member took part, and a contest on 'rationing.'

The next Institute meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Wilfrid Reynold's group.

Women Next

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (CP)—The Australian radio said today the possibility of conscription of women there were foreshadowed by the War Organization Minister, John J. Dedman, who said that within the next six months 80,000 more women will be required for war work in Australia.

He added that while a compulsory call-up of women is not considered necessary now, it might be at some future date.

British Farmer Now Growing 60 p.c. Of Food

By DOUGLAS AMARON.

LONDON, Sept. 22 — (CP). — British farmers are doing a vital war job in cutting down the import of food and relieving the strain on shipping by reclaiming land for cultivation and improving fertility and output by the best possible methods of draining and mechanized farming.

Completion of the 1942 program of the plow-up campaign will have brought about 6,000,000 more acres into cultivation than before the war. This is considered about the maximum posible achievement.

From being 40 per cent self-sufficient in food before the war. Britain now has made herself 60 per cent self-sufficient, an achievement unsurpassed in agriculture.

British output of wheat, barley, and oats jumped 50 per cent since the war began potato acreage was increased by 70 per cent, vegetable production was raised from 2.500,000 tons in 1938 to nearly 4.000,000 tons in 1941.

Allotments (little individual gardens where people go out in the evenings and cultivate vegetables) stand at 1.750,000—practically double the pre-war figure.

Private Gardens Did.

Between 2,000,000 and 3.000,000 private garden owners contribute to the war effort, producing £10,000,000 to £15,000.000 worth of vegetables, thus releasing land for crops which private individuals cannot grow.

In the first six months of 1942, British milk production was 10 000,000 gallons above the pre-war overage for the first six months of the war, despite the great increase in plowed land.

By the end of 1941, 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 acres had been or were being improved under the drainage program in the first nine months of which the British people had already achieved more than the Italians did in their much-vaunted drainage of the Pontine Marshes, which took considerably more than nine years.

Britain now is the most highly mechanized farming country in Europe, with an estimated 120,000 tractors, compared with 50,000 at the start of the war.

Off From Alaska For Raid On Japs

Before taking off from an Alaskan airport, Captain Ira Wintermuthe (HOLDING MAP) gives his crew final instructions for a bombing raid on the Japs. It has just been announced that U.S. army planes from Alaska swept down on Japanese-held Kiska, in the Aleutians, and sank two enemy warships, destroyed six planes, killed 500 Japanese ashore, and blasted storage dumps.

Lloyd Parnall Only Member Crew To Escape

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND Sept. 23—(CP). — Flt. Sergt. Russell Harling, a Winnipeg air gunner is one young fellow with a confident eye to business. A former manufacturers' agent in Winnipeg where he ran his own business, he spends his leaves touring this country visiting firms he had done business with and making new contracts which will be useful to him when he settles down again after the war.

One of the happiest fellows in the outfit is PO. Lloyd Parnall, a navigator from Peterborough, Ont. He made three trips to Bremen and then crashed. His crew mates were killed, but he escaped and now he's back on the job. The loss of his companions was a shock and he explained that "you feel a lot better once you're back in the air."

The artist in Harling's squadron is PO. Ken Kenyon, a Londoner who's been with the Canadians so long nobody ever thinks of him as anothing other than a Canuck.

His work is admirable and his mates are particularly proud of his pastels of PO. John Higham of Assiniboia, Sask., now back in Canada and Flt. Lt. Don Patterson of Toronto.

There's also a business side to his work. As gunnery officer he draws all the diagrams showing pilots how to take evasive action.

A busy man on days when there are operations is PO. E. (John) MacCormack, a young lawyer from the Saskatchewan coal mining town of Estevan. He is the bombing leader, and as such has to check not only his own bombing gear, but also that of all the other bomb aimers or navigators.

Most of the insignia for aircraft are thought up by ground crews. At least that's the story at this station where some of the ideas transferred in paint to fuselages of the big bombers are pretty snappy. The insignia range from a "Ruhr Valley Express" chugging along with its train of rickety, bomb-laden flat cars to "Chief Lonesome Polecat," a red-mocoasined Indian astride a big green maple leaf.

This may be too drastic for a school room, but it's more than efective at any rate. PO. Bob Miller of Marshall, Sask., is gunnery instructor in his squadron conversion flight and whenever his class gets a little sleepy he slaps a blank cartridge into a pistol and fires it. Result: Class wakes up, ultra-fast... ..Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Turnbull of Govan, Sask., C.O. of the conversion flight, quietly remarks when he hears an explosion from the room next door: "That's Bob getting his class down to business again."

Tweed Bakery Truck Smashed

TWEED, Sept. 22 (ENS)—A truck owned by F. C. Arber of Central Bakery, was rather badly wrecked on Highway No. 37 north of Tweed. Driven by Ray Cornell, the vehicle left the road and eight guard posts were ripped off before it was brought to a stop. The fenders, grill and hood were all badly damaged. Cornell was not injured in the accident. Chief J. C. Hayes investigated the accident.

Malcolm Ardenne, who has been associated with the Tweed District of Department of Lands and Forests, since 1926, will assume his new duties in the Division of Research in Head Office, Toronto, the first of the month.

Residents learned with regret when the casualty list appeared, that Sapper Edgerton Burton (Bert) Huyck, one of the most popular lads of Tweed, was included in the missing list, following the Dieppe raid.

Always interested in aviation, he applied for enlistment in the Air Force immediately on the outbreak of war but was rejected. However, he was not long in becoming attached to the Royal Canadian Engineers. Following his preliminary training, he went overseas with his unit in the early days of the war.

Charged with a serious offence, Clarence Moon, 28, Madoc, was arrested in Tweed, by Chief of Police J. C. Hayes, and now awaits hearing in the county jail.

A warrant is out for the arrest of a woman involved in the charge. Three children, connected with the case, will be given into the custody of the Children's Aid Society. The arrests resulted from intensive investigation by the police officer.

Allies Rake Lae Without Jap Opposition

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Septe 22—(CP) — Operating without interference from enemy planes Allied fighters yesterday attacked the vital Japanese base at Lae on the northeast coast of New Guinea for the third successive day, burning five barges and a tugboat and damaging shore installations.

A communique announcing the raid said Allied fighters and bombers also had blasted Japanese supply lines extending inland from Buna, 175 miles south of Lae, to Kokoda, on the route of the Japanese drive toward Port Moresby.

The assault on Buna, which touched off fires and heavy explosions, was the 13th on that target since Aug. 25.

On the New Guinea ground front Allied headquarters reported "No change in the general situation," indicating the Japanese still were stalled at Ioribaiwa, a hamlet on the southern slopes of the Owen Stanley mountains 32 miles airline from Port Moresby, which they reached last week.

Extensive patrol activity was reported in that sector, however, and a resumption of bitter fighting at any time was regarded likely.

An Allied spokesman, meanwhile, announced elimination of another threat to Port Moresby with the completion of "mopping-up" operations in the Milne Bay area on the southeast tip of New Guinea, where the Japanese set troops ashore during the last week in July.

All enemy forces engaged in that abortive thrust have been disposed of, the spokesman said.

The sweeping assaults carried out by the Allied Air Force yesterday represented the continuation of a co-ordinated program to smash the bases through which the Japanese are supplying their troops trying to push overland toward Port Moresby.

Eight tons of bombs were unloaded in the previous day's attack on Lae—also carried out without enemy fighter opposition.
